Harrisville-Turner Play Here Sunday

NORTHERNERS BEAT LOCALS IN 7-0 GAME

Three Teams Deadlocked For First Place

Harrisville, the team which proved to be the "Dark Horse" of the American Division, came to town last Sunday and handed the local team a 7 to 0 defeat behind two-hit pitching of their curve ball artist, Herbie Holms, and thereby share in a three-way tie for first place honors with Tawas City and Turner.

"Bill" Mallon was chosen to perform mound duties for Tawas City with Kenny Smith doing the receiving, due to Walt Laidlaw being forced to the sidelines by injuries sustained in an accident the day before, and for four innings held Harrisville to two hits and scoreless. In the fifth Harrisville scored one run. Ayling, first batter up in this inning, reached first base via taking one of Bill's fast ones in the ribs. Gunderson forced him at second. Katterman to M. Mallon. Pfeister forced Gunderson. M. Mallon to Katterman. H. Holmes then drove one into deep right field for three sacks scoring Pfeister. Teeple ended the inning by grounding out, Katterman to Kussro.

The visitors scored three runs in the sixth on two hits, a walk and an error. George opened the inning by drawing a base on balls and stole second. L. McDonald struck out. Cuyler singled scoring George and took second on the throw to the plate. H. McDonald hit an easy roller to Kussro and was safe at first as Kussro, when about to field the ball, glanced at the runner on second, the ball went through into right field, Cuyler scoring on the error. Ayling fanned. Gunderson hit into right field for two bases scoring H. McDonald with the third run of the inning. Pfeister ended the uprising by grounding out Katterman to Kussro.

Harrisville scored again in the seventh. Holmes opened the inning with a single to right and was sacrificed to second by Teeple. George hit back to the box and was cut W. Mallon to Kussro. Foster replaced L. McDonald and hit into right-center for two bases scoring Holmes. Cuyler singled to center and Foster was out at the plate trying to score on the hit, Zollweg to Smith.

Kussro took over the mound duties in the eighth, Mallon going to right and Moeller to first base. H. McDonald fanned. Ayling walked and stole second, and went to third on a passed ball. Gunderson hit a sharp grounder to Mallon at short and was safe when Moeller dropped the ball. Ayling scoring on the play. Gunderson stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Pfeister struck out and Holmes ended the inning by grounding out Mallon to Moeller.

Teeple drew a base on balls to open the ninth and took second while Mallon threw out George. Zollweg gathered in Foster's fly in left-center for the second out. Cuyler was safe when Zollweg dropped his fly in short right-center. Teeple scoring with the final run. H. McDonald ended the inning with a fly to Mallon in deep right.

The Tawas City bats were held to a whisper all during the game. Kussro scratched a hit in the third after two were out, and then for the next five innings the side was retired in order. In the ninth Laidlaw batted for Smith and grounded out Cuyler to George. Kussro was safe on Cuyler's error. Quick forced Kussro at second. George to Cuyler. Katterman singled with a line smash off the third-baseman's finger tips, Quick going to third on the hit. Katterman stole second and Zollweg struck out to end the game.

Only four Tawas City players reached first base during the game, one on an error, one on a fielder's choice besides the two hits.

On Tuesday evening, August 22, delegates from Harrisville, Turner and Tawas City met at the G. H. Q. Restaurant, Tawas City, and arranged for playing off the tie which exists in the American Division. They decided that the two divisions be played at the Tawas City Athletic Field. Three slips were placed in a hat, two blank and one with the word "by" inscribed upon it. These were drawn out to decide which teams were to play the first game. Tawas City drew the "by." Therefore Harrisville and Turner will play the first game in the elimination next Sunday, with Tawas City playing the winner of this game on the following Sunday, September 10.

These three teams are evenly matched, despite the humiliating defeat handed them last Sunday, and the fans will witness two games which will be fought every inch of the way by these three teams, as this will be (Turn to No. 2 Back Page)

Mrs. John D. Bowen, Sr.

Mrs. John D. Bowen, Sr., of Alabaster, died Tuesday, August 22, after a short illness.

Agnes Leona Wochna was born January 21, 1880, at Buffalo, N. Y. She went to Chicago where she was employed. There she was united in marriage to Virgino Rocky. To this union was born five children of whom four preceded her in death. After the death of her husband she returned to Buffalo, where she was married to Charles F. Crooker in 1907. One daughter, Irene Agnes Crooker came to this union by adoption. In 1927 she divorced Charles F. Crooker, after which she went to Ohio. In 1929 she was united in marriage to John D. Bowen, Sr., of Alabaster, where she made her home until death.

She was a member of the Community church of Alabaster and the Ladies Aid in which she was a faithful worker.

Those who remain to mourn her death are the husband and two daughters, Virginia Rocky Collier of Buffalo, N. Y., and Irene Agnes Crooker at home; three step-daughters, Martha, Winnie and Agatha; four stepsons, James, George, John, Jr., and William; also fifteen grandchildren, many other relatives and a host of friends.

The funeral services were held Friday afternoon from the Alabaster Community church. Rev. J. Kavanaugh officiated. Burial was in the Tawas City cemetery.

Calls Attention to New Tax on Mortgages

The Michigan Association of Register of Deeds through Marjorie M. Lickfelt, County Register of Deeds, calls attention to a recent act passed by the Legislature affecting the owners of mortgages and those persons who have sold property on Land Contracts.

Under the present law, before a Mortgage or Land Contract can be recorded by the Register of Deeds, a five-mill tax must be paid at the County Treasurer's office.

Under the new act which is known as the Intangible Tax Law, this present five-mill tax law is repealed and from and after September 29, 1939, the owners of mortgages and land contracts will be required to pay through the State Tax Commissioner a three-mill tax each year on the unpaid balance due on such mortgages and land contracts, and will no longer be required to pay a tax at the time of recording a mortgage or contract with the Register of Deeds.

The new act will not apply to any mortgages or land contracts which have been recorded or which will be recorded on or before September 28, 1939. It will, however, apply to all Land Contracts and Mortgages not now recorded unless the five-mill tax has been or is paid under the present law on or before September 28.

Notice TO THE RURAL PATRONS OF TAWAS CITY PUBLIC SCHOOL: The bus will operate this year the same as last year.

Board of Education.

TAWAS CITY SCHOOLS WILL OPEN TUESDAY

Local High School Has 3 New Teachers In Faculty

The Tawas City Public Schools open Tuesday, September fifth, at nine o'clock. The custodian, Henry Fehsel, has been busy the past few weeks getting the building in condition for use.

The faculty for the year is as follows: superintendent, A. E. Giddings; principal of high school, J. R. Forsten; commercial, Doris Boone; English-Latin, Geraldine Van Eenwyk; music, C. F. Nordman; seventh-eighth grade room, Mrs. Lucy Allen; fifth-sixth grade room, Mabel Myles; third-fourth grade room, Bird Yeager; and first-second grade room, Margaret Worden.

It will be noted that Miss Van Eenwyk, Miss Yeager and Miss Worden have been elected to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Miss Aittama, Mrs. Evril and Miss Hall, respectively. Miss Van Eenwyk lives at New Williamson, New York. She is a graduate of Hope college, Holland, Michigan, and taught last year in the Sheridan, Michigan, high school. Miss Yeager lives at Saginaw. She is a graduate of the Central State Teachers college, Mt. Pleasant, Michigan, and has taught for three years in the Saginaw county schools. Miss Worden, well known to the residents of the district, holds a life certificate and degree from the Central State Teachers college. After receiving her life certificate, she taught for seven years in the same room in which she will again teach this year. She resigned to become the critic for the Iosco County Normal, and then later became school commissioner of Iosco county.

About the same course will be offered in the grades as last year. In the high school, English III will replace English IV, advanced algebra will replace shorthand, and occupations will probably replace the high school academic class in music. The study of occupations of certain factors, as health, character, industry, appearance, which are common to all occupations. This will be followed by an analysis of about twelve occupations from the standpoint of preparation necessary, history, demand for those prepared, etc., etc.

The bus will run the same as last year to enable high school students to secure transportation.

There will be but one entrance time for beginners and that will be the first of the year. The reason for this is self evident. All beginners must not be less than five years of age during the month of September. It is expected that there will be no deviation from this rule. Parents are urged to cause their children to begin school promptly Tuesday morning.

Fisherman Thought To Have Drowned

John V. Kavanaugh, Bay City commercial fisherman, is thought to have drowned Tuesday night in Lake Huron. Kavanaugh, who is conducting summer fishing at Oscoda, had gone from his home to move his boat from the city pier into the river to protect it from impending wind. He did not return Wednesday morning and he was reported missing by his mother, Mrs. William P. Kavanaugh.

Kavanaugh is 26 years old and married. Mrs. Kavanaugh is at Mercy Hospital, Bay City, where their first child was born at 7:30 Wednesday evening. Mrs. Kavanaugh is 25 years old.

Searching operations are being carried on by the Coast Guard, planes from Camp Keok and others. The boat was discovered Wednesday a mile off Au Sable point. The engine ignition switch was still on and the motor was in gear leading to the belief that Kavanaugh fell out of the moving boat.

CARS COLLIDE, BABY DIES, FOUR INJURED

Accident Occurs Saturday Afternoon On Hemlock

A fifteen month old baby is dead, the mother Mrs. Paul Brisbin, seriously injured, and three others suffered cuts and bruises as the result of an automobile collision late Saturday afternoon on the Hemlock road. The cars involved were owned and driven by Paul Brisbin, of Toledo, Ohio, and Walter Laidlaw, of this city.

The accident occurred at about four o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Brisbin, infant son, George Burton Brisbin, and Mrs. Brisbin's sister, Miss Corinne Meister, were driving toward East Tawas. Walter Laidlaw was driving west. In passing at the Sommerville corners, the two cars collided, Laidlaw's car crashing into the side of the Meister car. Both cars immediately previous to the collision had apparently swung to the wrong side of the center of the road and the reason can only be explained by the drivers of the two cars.

Clyde Roberts of this city, brought the injured to Dr. J. J. Austin's office in this city where the baby died within a short time. Mrs. Brisbin, after being treated by Dr. Austin, was taken to the Burley Wilson home. Mr. Brisbin and Miss Meister suffered cuts and bruises. Mr. Laidlaw's face was cut and bruised.

Roberts notified the sheriff's department and the state police and Sheriff John Moran and Trooper James MacDonald went to the scene of the accident.

Walter Laidlaw was arraigned Monday before Justice W. C. Davidson charged with negligent homicide. He asked for an examination which will be held next week and was released under a $1500.00 bond.

Mrs. Brisbin is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Meister, summer residents at Long Lake for the past 25 years, and is well known in that section of the county. Dr. Austin reported Thursday that Mrs. Brisbin's condition had improved.

NEW FACULTY ORGANIZED AT WHITTEMORE

Term Begins Next Tuesday With Five New Teachers

Whittemore Public school will start on September 5, for its current school year. The usual wide range of subjects will be offered.

The new faculty, organized under the direction of Wayne E. Grimm, superintendent, and Orval G. Jagger, principal, will be Willard Nogle, mathematics, Florence Graham, English and Latin, and Eileen Boorsma, commerce and social science. The grade instructors are Alfretha King, junior high, Jennie Valley, intermediate, Lorraine Flathau, elementary, and Ruth Johnson, kindergarten. Miss Johnson will have charge of the music throughout the system and Miss Platau will teach art in all the lower grades.

Five of these teachers are new to the Whittemore system. Mr. Nogle received his A. B. degree from South Dakota Teachers college and has taught for the past two years at Au Gres. Miss Flathau and Miss Johnson both attended Central State Teachers college receiving their B. S. degrees in June. Miss Boorsma attended the University of Michigan receiving her A. B. degree in June also. Mrs. King has been a successful teacher in Iosco county for the past several years.

Of the four "old-timers" Mrs. Valley has her life certificate from Central State Teachers college and has begun work on her bachelor's degree there. Mr. Jagger and Miss Graham have their B. S. degrees from the college; Mr. Grimm has his A. B. degree from the same institution also. Mr. Grimm also holds a Master of Arts degree from the University of Michigan having received it this August.

Library Located In Davidson Building

With the cooperation of the city council the Tawas City Library has been moved to the Davidson building during the past week. As this is a larger building we anticipate a greater number of people making use of its facilities.

There is a lack of suitable furniture, especially chairs, and we will gladly accept donations of such.

Our book supply is inadequate to supply the demand. If you have any books which you would like to donate to the library, please bring them in or let us know about them.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends for their kindness to us during our bereavement.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—With Edward R. Stettinius Jr. as chairman, the newly announced war resources board can be expected to function smoothly and swiftly. The chairman of the board of the States Steel corporation goes from his home at 21 East Seventy-Ninth street to his office at Broadway and Rector by subway to save moments. He eats no lunch to save more time. He cuts through formalities with his many business callers and saves more.

Stettinius is that reputed rarity, a rich man's son who has made good. His father became an industrial leader in St. Louis, and was invited to become a Morgan partner. The son lost little time after his graduation from the University of Virginia in beginning his business career, not because he had to, but because he wanted to work. He was 24 years old when he went into General Motors in 1924, 31 when he became vice president, 34 when he was made vice chairman of the finance committee of U. S. Steel and 38 when he took the top job as chairman of the board.

Modernity stands out in the strong lines of his figure, his crisp speech, and his attitude toward problems of politics and business. They say he nearly fainted when he first saw the office furniture of the 21 floors of the Steel Corporation building after he became chairman. The rolltop desks and similar items were unchanged since the days of Judge Gary. The refurbishing began immediately under Stettinius and was thorough.

Mr. Stettinius plays neither bridge nor golf; he takes his exercise on the bedroom floor, and occasionally goes out to his 500-acre farm in Virginia.

OWEN A. TOMLINSON, the man who forbade the building of an 11-foot mound on the top of Mt. Rainier so that it might retain its laurels as third highest mountain in the United States, was once a captain in the Philippine scouts under Gen. J. G. Harbord. Before that he was a buck private in the United States army, in which, together, he served 14 years, participating in the Filipino insurrection. He was born in Whitestown, Ind., 57 years ago, and in 1923, after leaving the army, he was appointed superintendent of the Rainier National park.

When Tomlinson, sorrowfully, refused to permit the Tacoma chamber of commerce to pile, as it were, Pelion on Ossa, thus bringing Rainier a foot higher than Massive of Colorado, he underwent some of the tribulations that used to be his when, as lieutenant-governor of the sub-province of Hugao in the Philippines, he had some 130,000 head-hunting savages to handle. However, report has it that public clamor is dying down, a tribute to Captain Tomlinson's persuasive tact in convincing his fellow statesmen that little of the genuine honor lies in the artificial adding of cubits to stature.

GEN. JUAN YAGUE is named by Generalissimo Francisco Franco as minister of air in the new cabinet he has formed and of which he has named himself as premier. So far as advices from Spain are concerned, this is the most favorable news concerning Yague heard since the fall of Toledo.

Outspoken always, he is the man who, in preliminary maneuvers of the advance upon Lerida, accused Franco of sanctioning the bombing of open cities and of sounding off too eloquently in praise of German and Italian contingents in the Rebel army. For this contumacy, report had him behind bars and later a suicide—both, to quote Mark Twain, greatly exaggerated.

Later, when he was removed from command of his Moroccan corps, a personal disaster, specifically, the garrote, was reported to awaiting him.

And so what? Nothing short of bestowal of the aerial portfolio and the consequent strengthening of the falange as the backbone of post-war Spain.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY HENRY W. PORTER

Roosevelt Appeals to Germany And Poland to Try for Peace; England and France Mobilize

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

In a desperate effort to avert the holocaust of war which threatens to engulf Europe, President Roosevelt appealed directly to Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany and President Ignace Moscicki to refrain from hostilities for a "reasonable and stipulated period" and attempt to settle their difference by

1. Direct negotiation.
2. Submission of these controversies to an impartial arbitration in which they can both have confidence, or
3. Agree to the solution of these controversies through the procedure of conciliation, selecting as conciliator or moderator a national of one of the traditionally neutral states of Europe, or a national of one of the American republics which are all of them free from any connection with or participation in European political affairs.

EUROPE: Near the Abyss

Through the doorway of historic 10 Downing street stepped Neville Chamberlain, prime minister of Great Britain, dressed in somber black and more grave-faced than he has been for months. Not even the cheers of the crowd which lined the streets as he made his way to the Parliament building, drove the gloom from his features.

Standing in the house of commons, called in emergency session for the eighth time since the World war, the premier, twisting his hands and speaking in a strained voice, made a speech, heard by millions of listeners all over the world. No longer an "appeaser," Neville Chamberlain told the members of Par-

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN
"Imminent peril of war."

ment that Germany was "in a condition of complete readiness for war," that Great Britain found itself "faced with imminent peril of war," and that a German attack on Poland would mean certain and immediate war.

"The understanding we gave Poland was given before any agreement was talked of with Russia, and it was not in any way dependent on any such agreement being reached," he said. "How can we, with honor, go back on an obligation which we had so often and plainly repeated?"

As he went on in a cold, firm voice reviewing the treaties which "formally define our obligations but do not in any way alter, add to or subtract from obligations of mutual assistance which have already been accepted" his listeners realized that he was telling them that Britain would go through with the present crisis to the bitter end, even if that end meant war. And the men who heard him, "appeasers" who had cheered his other "crisis announcement" that he was flying to Munich to talk to Adolf Hitler, now cheered his pledge that there would be no "appeasement" now.

Chamberlain opened his speech by the declaration that "new and drastic steps are required by the gravity of the situation" and that he hoped it would be possible for the Emergency Powers Defense bill, giving his government dictatorial, wartime powers, to be signed by the king immediately after its approval by parliament. Before that time the king had held a privy council at which he signed an order authorizing the government to mobilize the navy, naval reserve and the Territorials (home guard) when necessary.

Meanwhile the ominous tramp, tramp of armed men was sounding in other countries directly involved in the crisis. In Poland 500,000 more men were mobilized, bringing the total force under arms up to 1,700,000. In France 2,000,000 men were called to the colors.

On this side of the Atlantic President Roosevelt cut short his North Atlantic fishing cruise and hurried back to Washington to confer with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Undersecretary Sumner Welles. His first step was to send a personal message, via Ambassador William Phillips, to King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy expressing the hope that the king would find some way of exerting his influence in behalf of the maintenance of peace.

Five hours later Pope Pius XII, supreme head of the Catholic church, went on the air with an urgent appeal for peace.

Ribbentrop

Twelve hours before Great Britain's parliament met in emergency session to give Neville Chamberlain dictatorial and wartime powers, another meeting was held in the massive-walled Kremlin in Moscow. Its purpose was to put the finishing touches on an act which had brought Europe to the brink of the abyss of war. Chief figures at this meeting were Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, and Viacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet premier and foreign commissar. They were there to sign and seal in the presence of Dictator Stalin the non-aggression pact between their countries, a secretly negotiated agreement which provided one of the most sensational political developments in Europe since the World war. Under its terms, these two nations which have been bitter enemies for years, have agreed not to go to war against each other for at least 10 years.

Not only did it free Germany from fear of having to fight enemies on the eastern as well as the western front, as she did in the World war, but it put an end to British and French hopes of getting Russia to join them in a tri-power alliance to "stop Hitler." Instead it gave him the "go ahead" signal for his plans for the dismemberment of Poland and it meant that if England kept her pledge to defend Poland, she and her ally across the English channel would have to do it without the support of the Soviet's 2,500,000 soldiers and thousands of planes.

That is the unmistakable meaning of Article 4 of the non-aggression pact which stated that "Neither of the two contracting parties will participate in any grouping of powers which directly or indirectly is pointed against the other party to this agreement." Little wonder, then, that Germany should hail this coup as the greatest in a series of diplomatic triumphs by Der Fuehrer.

Last act in this latest drama of world events which has been staged in Moscow was the departure by airplane of the saddened members of the British and French military missions who for four months have been trying to get wily Joseph Stalin and his advisers to sign a mutual assistance treaty with their nations. As they returned to their respective capitals and saw on every hand the feverish activity of mobilization they must have reflected upon the ironical fact that, when they left Moscow, the Soviet press was hailing the pact with Germany as "a forceful instrument for world peace!"

PAN-AMERICAN: Argentinian Trade

To compete with the trade of "certain European countries" which have been "developing at our expense" and to remove the greatest single obstacle to a united front in the Western hemisphere, the United States will soon sign a reciprocal trade agreement with Argentina. Announcement of this plan was made in Washington this week by Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, who said that the negotiations would begin at once.

Characterizing this as "a welcome constructive step in these unhappy times," Diplomat Welles let it be known that preliminary discussions, which practically guarantee the agreement going through, have been completed. When it does go through Uncle Sam will have offered his strongest inducement, the enlargement of mutual trade, to conciliate a nation which had stood at the other extreme of Latin America in policy as well as geography.

Next to Canada, Argentina was the most important trade outlet for the United States in the Western hemisphere during the past year with its imports from this country valued at more than twice its exports to its northern neighbor. No less important than enlarging this trade outlet is the fact that this new agreement may forge another link in Pan-American resistance to totalitarian doctrines.

AGRICULTURE: Milk Strike Off

New York city housewives are getting milk again for their children after a nine-day "drouth" but they are paying 3/4 of a cent a quart more for it. After two days of negotiation brought about by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, the strike of the upstate dairy farmers came to an end when the C. I. D.-supported Dairy Farmers' union voted at Utica to accept the compromise offered by the New York Metropolitan Distributors organization.

The compromise provided for a blended price to farmers of $2.15 per 100 pounds (47 quarts). The dairymen's union originally demanded $2.35 a hundred-weight instead of the $1.50 they had been getting.

Two increases in price already had been made since the recent restoration of federal-state marketing control under orders set up by Secretary Henry A. Wallace.

FAR EAST: Japan Says 'No'

Insisting that the economic questions at Tientsin are "purely British-Japanese," the Japanese foreign office has rejected a British suggestion that other powers be called in to discuss the question. This rejection was Nippon's answer to British rejection of the Japanese contention that Chinese silver deposited in foreign concession banks should be turned over to Japan and that British support of Chinese national currency be withdrawn. The British had advanced the view that since economic questions concerned other nations, "all parties to the nine-power and other treaties must be given an opportunity to express their views."

Although the Japanese statement rejected this suggestion, it was careful not to close the door to further discussions of issues growing out of Japan's blockade of the Tientsin concession. Meanwhile the killing of two pro-Japanese Chinese policemen and the wounding of six others by a British policeman in Shanghai threatened to develop into another major incident in Japanese-British relations. Announced the Japanese embassy: "We take a grave view of this affair."

DOMESTIC: Silver Shirts on Parade

A tale of visits with German and Italian embassy officials in Washington, of conferences with Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader, of making arrangements with a group of Arabs to picket a Washington hotel where a Jewish meeting was being held was unfolded this week before the Dies committee investigating un-American activities in the United States. It was told by Henry D. Allen of Pasadena, Calif., formerly active in the Silver Shirts of America and one of the sponsors of the American White Guard, short-lived successor to the Silver Shirts in southern California.

More dramatic than the appearance on the witness stand of the

HENRY D. ALLEN
Had Arabs Picket.

Californian, who testified that the purpose of the organizations he represented was to "fight Jewish Communism," was the threat of the committee to prosecute 37-year-old Fraser Gardner of Washington whom they accused of seeking a job as a committee investigator in order to spy on its activities. Gardner first denied that he had any connection with William Dudley Pelley of Asheville, N. C., leader of the Silver Shirts, but when confronted with evidence that he was receiving $50 a week from Skyland Press, Pelley's publishing house, he cried: "As God is my judge and may I never leave this seat, the Skyland Press, Pelley or any of the people connected with him know of my application to this committee." Unconvinced, the committee asked for action by the United States attorney.

After having uncovered plenty of evidence of Nazi and Fascist activity in this country, the committee will next turn its attention to Communism. Chairman Dies has announced. First witness will probably be Gen. W. G. Krivitsky, formerly a high official of the Soviet military intelligence division and author of a series of magazine articles describing the work of Russian secret and political agents. Scheduled for deportation last month, Krivitsky's departure was delayed until the committee could question him.

Patient Should Tell Physician All Symptoms

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

THERE was a time when our humorists liked to say, "The patient has had his tonsils and all his teeth removed but he still has his rheumatism." We do not hear this joke any more because practically every family has seen the very satisfactory results obtained by removal of teeth and tonsils in preventing further attacks of rheumatism although joints damaged by chronic rheumatism can hardly be expected to be free entirely of pain and stiffness.

Another joke on the medical profession was based on the "foolish" questions the physician asked the patient—his parents' and grandparents' age when they died and any illnesses from which they suffered; did he wake up in the night and not go to sleep again readily; how far could he walk without getting out of breath, and other questions that did not seem to be related to the pain or other symptoms of which he complained. This questioning or getting the "history" of the patient before making the examination is not considered a joke any more because only the patient can accurately describe his pain or other symptoms. Thus a patient, much worried about his heart as it seemed to be beating too rapidly, visited a heart specialist. He expected the physician immediately to use the stethoscope, the sphygmomanometer (blood pressure machine), the electrocardiograph, which records strength and regularity of the heart, and the fluoroscope, which enables the physician to actually see the heart.

Exercise Test Made. Instead, the physician had him walk across the room and asked him how far he could walk at this rate without getting out of breath. When he told the distance that he could walk without getting out of breath easily, the heart specialist told him he had no heart disease, and to worry no further about it.

An examination with stethoscope, blood pressure machine, electrocardiograph and fluoroscope was made, however, and the heart was pronounced normal.

Thus the simple question, "How far can you walk without getting out of breath?" gave the heart specialist the information that it was not the heart that was causing the symptoms.

Mucous Colitis Held Incurable

When a research physician who has studied the intestinal tract—stomach, small and large intestine—for many years tells us that no case of colitis (inflammation of the large intestine) is ever cured, it may sound discouraging to the thousands of individuals who suffer with this ailment, the outstanding symptoms of which are soreness across abdomen, pains, colic, jelly-like substance on wastes from bowel.

Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo clinic, professor of medicine, University of Minnesota graduate school of medicine, at a meeting of the American College of Physicians said:

"Do not spend much time and attention on the colon (large intestine) in cases of mucous colitis, which might better be called sensitive colon. Find out what kind of person the patient is (most of them are women); how they complain; what it is—physical, emotional or spiritual—that upsets them and then try to remedy these conditions if possible. Listen to the patient. The trouble may be food allergy—sensitivity to certain foods, a fit of anger, a "cold" or almost any type of physical, emotional or mental stress and strain.

Cases Begin in Childhood. "Many of these cases begin in childhood due to bad early training and 'no case of colitis is ever cured.' The patient simply has to 'live with his disorder.'"

"These patients must be listened to with attention and treated with sympathy, understanding and tact. "The thought then is that mucous colitis is caused by the nervousness or the emotions, and it is the nervousness and the upsets that must be treated, not the colon itself. And just as the pernicious anemia patient must always use liver or liver extract and the diabetic patient use insulin or protamine insulin, so must the mucous colitis patient always remain or try to remain calm in spirit if he wishes to keep free of the symptoms of mucous colitis.

"In the meantime, avoiding rough foods, and using plain water containing a teaspoonful of salt enemas, or plain water enemas, will help to prevent symptoms.

To Bring Back Showboat Era

Plan Colorful Feature for River Pageant to Be Held in 1941.

MEMPHIS.—The colorful showboat era of a half century ago is to be revived on the Mississippi river as one of the features of the exposition planned here for 1941 to mark the 40th anniversary of the discovery of the stream by Hernando De Soto.

Negotiations are in progress for the purchase of a Hudson river steamer to serve as a showboat. The salons will be converted into a theater seating 2,500 persons and the steamer will move down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, presenting Edna Ferber's famous "Showboat" at all river towns.

The boat which the exposition committee seeks to purchase is the Berkshire, largest of three steamers of the Hudson river night line which operates between New York city and Albany.

To Keep Staterooms. Ralph E. Logsdon, Memphis Chamber of Commerce director, said the plan is to keep 450 staterooms of the Berkshire intact so that the steamer may be used also as a passenger boat and for conventions.

Private capital from St. Paul, St. Louis, Louisville and New Orleans interests will be used to pay for the Berkshire if the deal goes through. The Berkshire cost $3,000,000 in 1914, and its owners are asking $250,000 for it now.

Logsdon said that if the Berkshire is purchased, the first presentation of the play, "Showboat," will be staged at the river docks here. The boat then would cruise down the Mississippi to New Orleans, presenting the play at various river towns. It would later go upstream, having a show season of at least 30 weeks.

It is hoped that if the showboat revival is a success, it may have a season on the river each summer. Logsdon said that Albert Johnson, one of the leading scenery designers of New York city, had agreed to inspect the Berkshire and determine if a stage and auditorium could be built without removing the staterooms.

Broadway Talent Likely. The Oscar Hammerstein theater interests in New York are interested in the project and most of the actors and actresses will be imported from Broadway, according to plans.

Meanwhile, other plans for the exposition are going forward. Recently President Roosevelt endorsed creation of a national "Forest of Repentance" which had been proposed as a feature of the quadricentennial celebration.

Dog Demonstrates His Ability at Mathematics

RICHIBUCTO, N. B.—Alfred S. Beers owns a dog that can count, add and subtract.

For the benefit of skeptics, Beers has a repertoire of mathematical stunts that his fox terrier can do. When he asks, "What is four from six?" the dog barks twice, and gives the answers to other problems in the same way.

The highlight of the performance is when the owner shows the dog any card from the deck and asks him what number it bears. The dog barks as many times as there are spots on the card, then walks over to a chair where the deck is spread out and nudges one of the cards of the same suit.

Rancher Fools Rattler; Tramples it to Death

YAKIMA, WASH.—Rancher Ralph Sundquist, rancher, was walking through one of his orchards when he heard a rattle near him.

Sundquist looked to the ground and saw a rattle snake coiled to strike. Without a stick, stone or any other weapon, Sundquist moved away until the snake uncoiled and slithered to a small brush clump.

Then he gathered up handfuls of dust and threw them at the snake's head until it was blinded. While it writhed on the ground Sundquist watched his chance and trampled it to death.

PLEASANT POINT, ME.—Wanting some money in a hurry, Horace Nicholas, an Indian of Pleasant Point, Maine, raided a herd of seals off Hurlay point and collected 14 noses—for which he received $28 bounty.

Early Colonists Were Alert Press Agents

BOSTON.—With two rival fairs in operation, states from coast to coast are redoubling efforts to entice visitors. But this publicity drive is not new. The states had publicity men as far back as 1616. According to Gov. Leverett Saltstonall, back in 1616, Capt. John Smith (of Pocahontas fame) prepared maps and pamphlets on the advantages of New England and distributed them abroad. In 1621, English promotion companies engaged in crude advertising with lurid handbills to induce English people to go to America.

War between the police and New York's army of peddlers is never-ending. Peddlers are licensed by the city. But there are certain districts which the law says they must not invade. Also there are those who would peddle without a license. All are men out to make a living. Nonpayments of license fees means more profits. So do excursions into forbidden territory. Competition is less keen there. The police are charged with the duty of enforcing the law. Hence many peddlers are escorted to police stations and from there to a magistrate's court. Sometimes the street in front of the old Forty-seventh street station, in the heart of the Tenderloin, resembles a section of the lower East Side. That's because so many push cart peddlers have run afoul of the law. While they are inside, their stocks remain outside. That isn't so good for perishables. It's all the worse because usually the peddlers haven't $2 for a fine so they go to jail for a day.

At this season, the beaches are one of the main battle fronts between the law and prohibited commerce. Peddlers are forbidden to do business on the beaches. Refuse from their wares clutters up the sands. Also concessionaires, who have paid real money for their locations, object to the intruders. Bathing and sun bathing rather favor the peddlers. But that makes no difference to the police. Usually, rather than make arrests, the police merely chase the peddlers. When the coast seems clear, the peddlers return. Thus, perpetual motion of a sort. If the peddlers don't get caught, they may make a fair day's wage. If they do get caught, they sit behind bars for a day. That's hard for ice-cream salesmen. The cops don't object to men making a living. But they have to obey orders.

Recently an ice-cream peddler at Orchard beach thought he could outsmart the law. When he saw an officer bearing down on him, he jumped into a boat, thumbed his nose and picked up the oars. The cop commandeered another boat and proved to be the better oarsman. So the peddler spent a day in jail. The matter wasn't to end there, however. The next day, a whole fleet of boats with outboard motors waited within the life lines. It looked as if the peddlers' had scored a point. But as usual, they lost out. The policemen merely telephoned for a police launch—and police launches are fast. Peddling at Orchard beach isn't popular or profitable just now.

Many New York cigarette smokers are rolling their own at present. The three-cent tax is the cause. Last year, the city imposed a cent a package tax to raise funds for relief purposes. The penny tax brought in about $7,000,000. The tax didn't work any hardship on smokers since most tobacco dealers absorbed it. But the state legislature, at the last session couldn't let such a golden opportunity pass. So a tax of two cents a package was slapped on. When that took effect, prices of cigarettes jumped three cents a pack. Dealers in New York city complained that their business would be ruined unless the city knocked off its tax. No action was taken, however.

The result was a decrease in cigarette business in New York and a big increase over in New Jersey. On cigarettes in that state, there is only one tax, the internal revenue levy. Stores advertised postage-paid bargains in New York newspapers. Roadside stands sprang up along all roads leading to the city. Trucks stopped at vantage points and drivers peddled cigarettes. Filling stations also added stocks. A crimp was put into the roadside business by the law, however. Federal law requires that each tobacco seller must register with the collector of internal revenue and post a $500 bond. Then there is a state law which prohibits the vending of tickets or goods on a highway.

Commuters, especially those who drive to work, bring in hundreds of cartons daily. Some increase their earnings in that manner. Most of the bootlegging, however, is done merely as a favor. In many offices, Jersey residents keep their fellow workers supplied with tax-free smokes.

ISAIAH: A LIFE DEDICATED TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 6:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Here am I; send me.—Isaiah 6:8.

Crisis! We have had so many of them that they have almost become commonplace. There has been one war crisis after another. There have been world crisis and domestic crisis until the word has almost lost its meaning.

In the life of the individual, however, the times of crisis are very real and important. In a critical illness one knows when the crisis comes, and he who safely passes that hour is on the road to recovery. More vital than a physical crisis is a spiritual crisis, when a man meets God face to face and his future destiny is determined by the response which he makes to God's call. Isaiah had such an experience when he came to realize God's glory, confessed his own unworthiness, and sought cleansing of life as a preparation for commission to service.

I. "I Saw the Lord" (vv. 1-4). King Uzziah, who had begun well but had forgotten God, was at the end of his life, a leper because of his sin, and dying in disgrace. Israel which had known unprecedented prosperity under God's blessing now hardened its heart nationally against God and was also about to go into eclipse. God needed a man to speak for Him in such an hour, to bring to His people a message of judgment and also of blessed invitation. To prepare that man, the great Isaiah, God gave a remarkable manifestation of His glory and power.

It is essential that the man who speaks for God should first see the Lord high and lifted up and to hear of His holiness and glory. The negative tone of the present-day message, the lack of enthusiasm and interest in holy things, the low standards of personal holiness, the failure to preach boldly the truth regarding God's holy standards are to be explained by the fact that there has been no vision of the eternal holiness and glory of God. The need of the people today is the same as it was in the time of Isaiah. Where are the men and women who are ready for a vision like his and for the commission which will follow?

II. "Woe Is Me! for I Am Undone" (v. 5).

To see the holiness of God is to be immediately conscious of one's own sin and unworthiness. The obvious conclusion which one draws from that fact is that anyone who is proud, who is not concerned about his own sins and the sins of his people, is living far from God and has either never known or has forgotten about His divine holiness.

Isaiah spoke of the pollution of his lips, thereby confessing that his heart was not right. Whereof the heart is full, thereof speaketh the mouth, for we read in Matthew 12:34 that out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. Remember that even though Isaiah was a believer he recognized the need of cleansing.

III. "Then He Touched My Mouth" (vv. 6, 7, R. V.).

"Then"—what an important word! When Isaiah called out in humble confession, "then" he was cleansed. The turning point is right at that place for any life. Only when we come to the place of confession and contrition which Isaiah knew, can we expect the Lord to send the cleansing fire and the enabling power.

None but God can give this cleansing. Man is unable to wash himself clean. "For though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much soap, yet thine iniquity is marked before me, saith the Lord" (Jer. 2:22. See also Jer. 13:23). Reformation, turning over a new leaf, character development, all commendable in their place, are not sufficient. There must be divine cleansing of the life if there is to be a commission to service.

IV. "Here Am I; Send Me" (vv. 8-13).

God had a difficult and unpopular message to be delivered but now He had a man who was ready to carry it. Isaiah had to proclaim to Israel that because they had turned from the sunshine of God's love, which would have melted their hard hearts, it had for them become the sunshine of His wrath, which could only progressively harden them and turn them from Him. The same sunshine that melts the wax hardens the mud.

The work of God in our day awaits the man or the woman of vision—the one who has been prepared by confession and cleansing and who has then received the divine commission.

Faith

Of all the forces at the disposal of humanity, faith has always been one of the most tremendous, and the gospel rightly attributes to it the power of moving mountains.

'Swing Style' Reading Not New; The Greeks Had a Word for It

Every now and then, the newspapers report a "brand new" idea or a "brand new" discovery. Take, for instance, the report about "swing reading." "Swing reading" is the latest thing imaginable—the invention of two smart eye doctors in Los Angeles.

As the papers say, the doctors disclosed their "idea" a short time ago at a national convention of the American Optometric association. Advocating a new system of printing in "swing style," the doctors said they had something that would help the eyes. In short, they urged this type of thing:

Many of the convention delegates a rof snoisseds dennuhs ydretsey day on the golf course. The weather enuf saw re along the next, and so on. Well, we don't like to make ourselves seem scholarly, but the doctors have unwittingly dug up something pretty old. As a matter of fact, the ancient Greeks had a word for it, used the system and gave it up. They called it boustrophedon, and you can find the word in a good dictionary even to this day. Pronounced boo-stro-fee-don, with the accent on the third syllable, it means literally "turning like oxen in plowing." It is a compound of two Greek words—bous, meaning ox, and strephein, meaning to turn.

P. S. Incidentally, the excerpt quoted above reads normally this way: "Many of the convention delegates yesterday shunned sessions for a day on the golf course. The weather was fine."

Anybody else got a new idea?—Pathfinder.

Finally Name Was O. K. Though Not 'O,' but 'K'

A gentleman had completed his purchases, and the clerk, in filling out the sales slip, asked:

"What is the name, please?" "Jepson," replied our hero. "Sixteen twenty-one West—"

"Your first initial, please."

"Oh, K."

"O. K. Jepson."

"I said 'Oh.'"

"O. Jepson."

"No. Rub out the O."

The clerk began to look haggard.

"Your initials again, please?"

"I said 'K.'"

"Pardon, you said 'O. K.'"

"I said 'Oh.'"

"Just now you said 'K.'"

"I said 'Oh,' because I didn't understand what you were asking me. I didn't mean it was my initial. My name is Kirby Jepson."

"Oh."

"No. Not O, but K. Here, give me the pencil and I'll write it myself. There, I guess it's O. K. now."—Annapolis Log.

Third Largest Island in the World

The third largest island in the world is Baffin island, bowing only to Australia and Greenland. On it are four lakes, one as big as Lake Ontario. In winter, Eskimos build igloos on these lakes, fish for dinner through holes cut in their "parlor floors!" Baffin bay, hardly ever free of ice, is navigable only between June and September. Hence the bay and island are a refuge for, and abound in whales, seals, polar bears, wolves, white and blue foxes. Though it was discovered in 1576, little more is known of the region than William Baffin recorded when he named it in 1616.

In the Circuit Court for the County of Iosco, in Chancery.

Order of Publication.
 Lloyd G. McKay and Rose M. McKay, Plaintiffs, vs. William A. Hoffman, Frederick Burton and Henry Lemke, Defendants.

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the county of Iosco, in Chancery, at the city of Tawas City in said county on the 18th day of July, 1939.

In this cause it appearing from affidavit on file, that the defendant Henry Lemke, was previously a resident of the city of Detroit, in the state of Michigan, and that process for his appearance has been duly issued, and that the same could not be served by reason of his absence from, or concealment within the state of Michigan, and by reason of his continued absence from his last known address, and that after careful search and inquiry said plaintiffs cannot ascertain in what state or country the defendant Henry Lemke now resides.

On motion of Yeo and Bilitzke, attorneys for the plaintiffs, Lloyd G. McKay and Rose M. McKay, it is ordered that said defendant Henry Lemke cause his appearance to be entered in this cause within three months from the date of this order; and in case of his appearance he, said Henry Lemke, cause his answer to the plaintiffs' bill of complaint to be filed, and a copy thereof to be served on said attorneys for said plaintiffs within fifteen days after service on said defendant Henry Lemke of a copy of said bill and notice of this order; and that in default thereof, said bill be taken as confessed by said defendant Henry Lemke.

And it is further ordered, that within forty days the plaintiffs cause a copy of this order to be published in The Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed, published and circulating in said county, and that such publication be continued therein at least once each week for six weeks in succession, or that plaintiffs Lloyd G. McKay and Rose M. McKay cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said defendant, Henry Lemke, at least twenty days before the time above prescribed for his appearance.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Young, pretty Jane Barnes, who lived with her brother, Baldwin, in Sherwood Park, near Washington, was not particularly impressed when she read that rich, attractive Edith Towne had been left at the altar by Delafeld Simms, wealthy New Yorker. However, she still mused over it when she met Evans Follette, a young neighbor, whom the war had left completely discouraged and dependent. Evans had always loved Jane. That morning Baldwin Barnes, on his way to work in Washington, offered assistance to a tall, lovely girl in distress. Later he found a bag she had left in the car, containing a diamond ring on which was inscribed "Del to Edith—Forever." He knew then that his passenger had been Edith Towne. Already he was half in love with her. That night he discussed the matter with Jane, and they called her uncle, worldly, sophisticated Frederick Towne. He visited them at their home, delighted with Jane's simplicity. He told them Edith's story. Because her uncle desired it, Edith Towne had accepted Delafeld Simms, whom she liked but did not love. She disappeared immediately after the wedding was to have taken place. The next day Jane received a basket of fruit from Towne, and a note asking if he might call again. Mrs. Follette, widowed mother of Evans, was a woman of indomitable courage. Impoverished, she nevertheless managed to keep Evans and herself in comparative comfort by running a dairy farm. Evans, mentally depressed and disillusioned, had little self reliance and looked to his mother and Jane for guidance. Edith Towne phones Baldy in answer to an ad. She asked him to bring her pocketbook. Jane calls on Frederick Towne in his elaborate office. He gives her a stenographer, a letter to Delafeld Simms, in which he severely criticizes him. Unknown to him, Lucy and Simms are in love with each other. Towne takes Jane home in his limousine. She introduces him to Evans, who convinces her that she should return home and face her friends. She is interested in Baldy. Later they eat in a restaurant, where Edith sees several friends. She knows they will see to it that the news is spread. When Towne asks Jane to dine with him Evans realizes that he must do something to rehabilitate himself.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

The Towne car was waiting, and Mrs. Follette in a flurry welcomed them. "I don't see why you didn't ride over with him." "He hadn't come, and we preferred to walk." "What was the matter with you, Evans?" "Nothing much, Mother. I'm sorry you were fussed." He gave her no further explanation. Jane put on her slippers and went off in the great car. And then Evans said, "I'm going over to Hallam's."

"Aren't you well, my dear?" "I want to talk to him." He saw her anxious look, and bent and kissed her. "Don't worry, Mumsie, I'm all right."

Dr. Hallam's old estate adjoined the Follette farm. The doctor was a nerve specialist, and went every morning to Washington, coming back at night to the quiet of his charming home. He was unmarried and was looked after by men-servants. He had been much interested in Evans' case, and had in fact had charge of it.

The doctor was by the library fire, smoking a cigar and reading a brown book. He welcomed Evans heartily. "I was wondering when you would turn up again." He showed the title of his book, "Boswell. There was a man. As great as the man he wrote about, and we are just beginning to find it out."

"Rare edition?" Evans sat down. "Yes. Got it at Lowdermilk's yesterday."

"We've oodles of old books on our shelves. Ought to sell them, I suppose."

"I wouldn't sell one of mine," Hallam was emphatic. "I'd rather murder a baby."

Evans flamed suddenly. "I'd sell mine, if I could get the things I want."

"I don't want anything as much as I want my books."

"I do. I want life as I used to live it."

The doctor sat up and looked at him. "You mean before the war?"

"Yes."

"Good."

"I'm tired of being half a man. If there's any way out of it, I want you to tell me."

The doctor's eyes were bright with interest. He knew the first symptoms of recovery in such cases. The neuroathetic quality of Evans' trouble had robbed him of initiative. His waking-up was a promising sign.

"The thing to do, of course, is to get to work. Why don't you open an office?"

"A fat chance I'd have of getting clients."

"I think they'd come."

The doctor smoked for a time in silence, then he said, "Decide on something hard to do, and do it. Do it if you feel you are going to die in the attempt."

There was something inspiring to Evans in the idea. Hard things. That was it. He poured out the story of the past few days. The awful scene with Rusty. Tonight in the fog under the pines. "Wanted more than anything to drop myself in the river."

He was walking the floor, back and forth, limping to one edge of the rug, then limping to the other. Then Jane came. Little Jane Barnes. You know her, and she told me—where to get off—said I was—captain of my soul—! He stopped in front of the doctor, and smiled whimsically. "Are any of us captains of our souls, doctor?"

"I'll be darned if I know." The doctor was intensely serious. "Will-power has a lot to do with things. The trouble is when your will won't work—"

"Mine seems to be working on one cylinder." Again Evans was pacing the rug. "But that idea of an office appeals to me. It will take a bit of money, though. And it is rather a problem to know where to get it."

"Sell some of the old books. I'll buy them."

Light leaped into Evans' eyes. "It would be one way, wouldn't it?

Mother would rather hate it. But what's a library against a life?" He seemed to fling the question to a listening universe.

The doctor laughed. "She'll be sensible if you put it up to her. And you must frivel a bit. Play around with the girls."

"I don't want any girls except Jane."

"Little Jane Barnes. Well, she'll do."

"I'll say she will."

The doctor, watching him as he walked back and forth, said, "The thing to do is to map out a normal day. Make it pretty close to the program you followed before the war. You haven't happened to keep a diary, have you?"

"Yes. It's a clumsy record. Mother started me when I was a kid."

"That's what we want. Read it every night, and do some of the things the next day that you did then. You will find you can stick closer than you think. And it will give you a working plan."

And he was interested.

Evans sat down and discussed the idea. It was late when he rose to leave.

"It will be slow," was Hallam's final admonition, "but I believe you can do it. And when things go wrong, just hunk and I'll lend you some gas," his big laugh boomed out, as they stood in the door together. "Nasty night."

"I have a lantern," Evans picked it up from the porch.

When Evans reached home his mother called from upstairs, "I thought you were never coming."

"Hallam and I had a lot to talk about."

He came running up, and entering her room found her propped up on her pillows.

"Mother," said Evans, and stood looking down at her, "Hallam wants me to sell some of the old books and use the money to open an office."

"What kind of office?"

"Law. In town."

"But are you well enough, Evans?"

"He says that I am. He says that I must think that I am well, Mother."

"But—"

"Dearest, don't spoil it with doubts. It's my life, Mother."

There was a look on his face which she had not seen since his return. Uplifted, eager. A light in his eyes, like the light which had shone in the eyes of a boy.

She found it difficult to speak. "My dear, the books are yours. Do as you think best."

He leaned over and kissed her, lifting her a bit. There was energy as well as affection in the quick caress. She drew herself away laughing, breathless. "How strong you are."

"Am I? Well, I think I am. And I am going to conquer the world, Mumsie."

His exaltation lasted during the reading of the diary. It was a fat little book, and the pages were written close in his fine firm script. He found things between the leaves—a four-leaved clover Jane had sent him when he made the football team. A rose, colorless and dry. Florence Preston had given it to him.

He dropped the rose in the wastebasket. How could he ever have thought of Florence? Love wasn't a thing of blue eyes and pale gold hair. It was a thing of fire and flame and fighting.

Fighting! That was it. With your back to the wall—and winning! For some day she could be in the world and not be his? And if she loved strength she should have it. He bent his head in his hands—his hands clasped tensely. There was a prayer in his heart. His whole being ached with the agony of his effort.

"Oh, God, let me fight and win. Bring me back to the full measure of a man."

Again he opened the book. Bits of printed verse dropped out of it. Jane had sent him this, "One who never turned his back, but marched breast-forward."

He opened the book and read of Jane, and of himself as he had once been. He skipped the record of his college days, except where he found such reference as this: "Little Jane is growing up. She met me at the station and held out her hand to me. I used always to kiss her, but this time I didn't dare. She was different somehow, but some day I'll kiss her."

And this: "Jane is rather a darling. But I am beginning to believe that I like 'em fair." That was when he had a terrible crush on Florence Preston, whose coloring was blue and gold. But it hadn't lasted, and he had come back to Jane with a sense of refreshment.

He found at last the pages given over to those first days after he had been admitted to the Washington bar, and had hung out his shingle.

"Sat at my desk all the morning. Great bluff. One client received with great effect of busy-ness. Had lunch with a lot of fellows—pancakes and sausages—ate an armful. Tea with three debutantes at the Shoreham—peaches. Dance at the Oakleys' in Georgetown. Corking time. One dead moment when the butler took my overcoat. Poor people ought not to dance where there are butlers."

Autumn came: "Jane and I went today to gather fox grapes. Mother is making jelly and so is Jane. The vines were a great tangle. Shut in among them we seemed a thousand miles away from the world. Jane made herself a wreath of grape leaves, and looked like a nymph of the woods. I told her so and she gazed at me with those great gray eyes of hers and said, 'Evans, when the gods were young they must have lived like this—with grapes for their food, and the birds to sing for them, and the little wild things of the wood for company. It would be heavenly, wouldn't it?' She's a queer kid. Life with her wouldn't be humdrum. She's so intensely herself."

"We talked a bit about the war. I told her I should go if France needed me. I am not going to wait until this country gets into it. We owe a debt to France . . ."

He stopped there, and closed the book. He did not care to read farther. Oh, his debt to France had been paid. And after that day with Jane among the tangled vines things had moved faster—and faster.

He didn't want to think of it . . .

CHAPTER VIII

The evening wrap which Jane wore with her old white chiffon was of a bright Madonna blue with a black fur collar. Jane, as has been said, loved clear color, and when she dyed dingy things she brought them forth lovely to the eye and tremendously picturesque.

Frederick's house was a place where polished floors seemed to dissolve in pools of golden light, where a grand staircase led up to balconies, where the ceilings were almost incredibly high, the vistas almost incredibly remote. Frederick, coming towards her through those pools of golden light—blonde, big and smiling, brought a swift memory of another blonde and heroic figure, not in evening clothes—but in silver armor—"Nun sei bedankt, mein lieber Schwan," Lohengrin! That was it.

"A fat Lohengrin," she amended, maliciously.

Unaware of this devastating estimate, Frederick welcomed her with the air of a Cophetua. He was unconscious of his attitude of condescension. He was much attracted, but he knew, of course, that his interest in her would be a great thing for the little girl.

And he was interested. A queer thing had happened to him—a thing which clashed with all his theories, broke down the logic of his previous arguments. He had fallen in love with little Jane Barnes, at first sight if you please—like a crude boy. And he wanted her for his wife. It was an almost unbelievable situation. There had been so many women he might have married. Lovelier women than Jane, wittier, more distinguished, richer—of more assured social standing. He could have had the pick of them, yet not one of them had he wanted. Here was little Jane Barnes, bobbed hair, boyish, slender, quaint in her cheap clothes, and he could see no one else at the head of his table, no one else by his side in the big car, no one else to share the glamorous days of honeymoon, and the life which was to follow.

And so when young Baldwin had telephoned of Edith's plans, there had leaped into Towne's mind the realization of his opportunity. He would see Jane among his household gods. And he would see her alone. He had sent Briggs in time to have her there before the others arrived.

And now Fate had played further into his hands. "I've had another message from Edith," he told her; "we'll have to eat dinner without them. The fog caught them south of Alexandria, and they went into a ditch. They will eat at the nearest hotel while the car is being fixed up."

"Baldy's car always breaks at psychological moments," said Jane. "If it hadn't broken down on the bridge, he wouldn't have found your niece."

"And I wouldn't have known you"—he was smiling at her. "Who would ever have believed that so much hung on so little."

And now Waldron, the butler, announced dinner—and Jane entering the dining-room felt dwarfed by the gargantuan tables, the high-backed ecclesiastical chairs, the tall silver candlesticks with their orange candles.

"Your color," Towne told her. "You see I remembered your knitting."

"I'm crazy about brilliant-wools," said Jane; "some day I am going to open a shop and sell them."

But he knew that she would not open a shop. "You were like some lovely bird—an oriole, perhaps, with your orange and black."

Hackney Is Descendant of the Norfolk Trotter

Prior to the end of the Eighteenth century the use of wheeled vehicles was not general. Says Johnstone in writing of the origin of hackneys: "Roads were few and bad. Therefore people relied mostly on horseback and walking for transportation. At this time (about 1800) there was in the eastern part of England a breed of saddle horse called the Norfolk trotter. The hackney of today is a descendant of this strain. The Norfolk trotter had fast gaits and good endurance, yet from his conformation this conclusion would not be drawn. His head is too coarse, neck short and thick, and he has no height."

The hackneys of today have these same qualities, with the exception of much richer heads, writes Capt. Maxwell Corpening in the Chicago Tribune. Originally they were saddle horses, but now are used mostly for driving—principally in shows. Great stress is placed upon their manner of going. Much time is devoted by trainers to achieving an exaggerated high foot action. Their success in achieving this is remarkable considering the breed's heavy forehead and relatively thick, chubby body. Because of this up-and-down motion the hackney is not fast as compared with our standard-bred roadsters.

The process of refining the breed came into prominence with the advent of better roads and the introduction of wheeled vehicles. So long as he was used for saddle purposes coarseness was tolerated. With the development of snappy little vehicles, smooth roads, and the exaggerated hackney way of going, fashionable folk began to take notice. Hackney classes with feminine drivers became social events. In seeking to maintain the pace American sportsmen began importing these cocky little performers, until now no horse show is complete without them.

The common reference to "road hack" in designating a saddle class is a derivation of hackney. Likewise the term hack in describing a vehicle.

Whitewash Coal for Queen

MANY VARIETIES OF COOKIES (See Recipes Below)

Cookies in the Cupboard

What cookies do folks like best to eat?

- A cookie that's rich, and spicy and sweet?
- A soft, thick cookie with fruity flavor.
- Or the thin, crisp wafer the tea drinkers savor?
- A chocolate cookie that's moist and rich.
- Or a tasty tidbit with nutmeats, which
- May be flavored with honey, molasses or spice?
- Any kind of a cookie is pretty nice!

There are as many varieties of cookies as there are occasions for serving them. And what satisfying morsels they are for the school lunch box, for afternoon tea, or for a family meal at home. You'll find among the tested cookie recipes below one for any such occasion ranging from dainty tea cookies to thick, soft, molasses cookies for an after-school or bedtime snack. They're all grand recipes for the Girl Scout cookie sale you may be planning, or for the next meeting of the church guild.

Soft Molasses Cookies.

- (Makes about 7 dozen cookies.)
- 1 cup shortening
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 2 eggs
  - 1 cup New Orleans molasses
  - 2 teaspoons soda
  - 1 cup buttermilk
  - 6 cups flour
  - 1 teaspoon baking powder
  - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
  - 1 teaspoon ginger

Cream shortening, and add sugar gradually. Beat in the eggs and molasses. Dissolve the soda in the buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder and spices together and add to the first mixture alternately with the buttermilk. Drop from teaspoon onto a greased baking sheet. Dip the bottom of a tumbler in cold water, and press down gently on each cookie. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for about 8 minutes.

Even on Sunday evenings hungry families demand good food. It's simple enough to provide a meal that is temptingly different with suggestions such as those Eleanor Howe will give you in her column next week. Be sure to look for her article "Sunday Night Suppers!"

Butterscotch Brownies.

- (Makes 2 dozen small cookies.)
- 4 tablespoons butter
  - 1 cup brown sugar
  - 1 egg (slightly beaten)
  - ¼ cup flour
  - 1 teaspoon baking powder
  - ½ teaspoon vanilla
  - ¼ cup nut meats (cut fine)

Melt the butter in a small saucepan. Add sugar slowly, and cook for 2 minutes. Remove from flame, and add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Pour into shallow greased pan and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 18 minutes. Cut in squares.

Chocolate Applesauce Cookies.

- (Makes 3 dozen cookies.)
- ½ cup shortening
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 2¼ cups flour
  - 1 teaspoon soda
  - ½ teaspoon salt
  - 2 teaspoons cinnamon
  - ½ teaspoon cloves
  - ½ teaspoon ginger
  - 4 teaspoons cocoa
  - 1½ cups applesauce (unsweetened)

Cream shortening, add sugar and beat well. Sift together the flour, soda, salt, spices, and cocoa and add alternately with the applesauce. Beat thoroughly. Drop by teaspoon-fuls on greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for approximately 15 minutes.

Orange Ice Box Cookies.

- (Makes 5 dozen cookies.)
- 1 cup shortening
  - ½ cup brown sugar
  - ½ cup white sugar
  - 1 egg
  - 2 tablespoons orange juice
  - 1 tablespoon orange rind (grated)
  - 2¾ cups general purpose flour
  - ¼ teaspoon salt
  - ¼ teaspoon soda
  - ½ cup pecan nut meats (broken)

Cream shortening and add sugars slowly, while beating constantly. Add egg (well beaten), orange juice and orange rind. Mix and sift flour, salt, and soda together and add to the creamed mixture, together with the broken nut meats. Form in rolls in wax paper and chill overnight in refrigerator. Slice thin, place on greased baking sheet and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 12-15 minutes.

Grandmother's Sugar Cookies.

- (Makes 5 dozen cookies.)
- ½ cup shortening
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 1 egg, and 1 egg yolk
  - ½ cup sour cream
  - ½ teaspoon vanilla extract
  - ½ teaspoon lemon extract
  - 3 cups flour
  - 1 teaspoon baking powder
  - ½ teaspoon salt
  - ½ teaspoon soda
  - 1 teaspoon nutmeg

Cream shortening, and add sugar gradually. Add the egg and beat until fluffy. Combine sour cream with flavoring extracts, and add to the creamed mixture alternately with the sifted dry ingredients. Chill for about ½ hour. Roll out and cut. Place on greased cookie sheet. Brush tops of cookies with unbeaten egg white and sprinkle generously with sugar. Bake in a moderately hot oven (425 degrees) for about 8 minutes.

Pineapple Cream Tarts.

- PART I—Tart Cases.
- ½ cup butter
  - ½ cup granulated sugar
  - 1 egg yolk (beaten)
  - 1 teaspoon lemon extract
  - 1¾ cups cake flour

Cream butter thoroughly and add sugar slowly while beating constantly. Add the beaten egg yolk and lemon extract. Then add the flour. Divide dough into 12 even pieces. Then lay one piece at a time in the left palm; press with the right hand until dough is large enough to fit a muffin tin. Then fit each piece into the muffin tin and prick well with a fork. Bake approximately 20 minutes in a hot oven. Fill with Pineapple Filling.

PART II—Pineapple Cream Filling.

- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 whole egg (well beaten)
- 1½ cups milk (scalded)
- 1 teaspoon lemon extract
- 1 No. 2 can shredded pineapple
- 1 cup whipping cream (whipped)

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Add the egg (well beaten) and mix thoroughly. Pour on the milk (scalded). Return to a double boiler and cook until thick. Remove from flame, add lemon extract, and allow to cool. Fill tart shells and just before serving place one spoonful of crushed pineapple (drained) on top of the cream filling.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey. It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted, nutritious cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Sew a Bag to Keep Your Ball of Twine In

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHEN you want to wrap a package do you always know where to find twine? A ball of it in a bag like this one hung over the kitchen table will be ready for use.

Scraps from your piece bag may be used in this way. The bag is just big enough to cover the ball loosely and is made of a straight piece of goods with the ends seamed together with a French seam. The top and bottom are bound with prepared bias binding. A single cord is run through the binding at the bottom. It is drawn up to leave a small opening and the ends are tied and sewn securely. Two cords are run through the top with a loop of each cord left on the outside so that the bag may be drawn up by pulling them. The ball of twine is placed inside with the end running through the bottom opening.

their last opportunity to represent the American Division in this year's "play-off" series with Sterling, the National Division winner. Who will it be? Which team will Tawas City meet in the final game? Come out
Sunday and witness the first game.
The games are scheduled to start at the customary 2:30 p. m. with no advance in the admission price.

The umpires selected for these games are Mike Stoner, of Prescott;
Hugh Beede, of Harrisville; and Joe Halligan of Tawas City. The net receipts will be split three ways.

NOTE—The pastor is still confined to his bed because of the serious leg injury he received two weeks ago.
There was a fine response last Sunday at the services. Please continue this, as it will greatly encourage the pastor during his absence from the pulpit. Next Sunday Mr. and Mrs.
Harry York, of Mayville, Michigan, will have charge of the services. They are fine singers, and Mr. York is an earnest speaker. Come and hear their special singing.
