DARKNESS ENDS DESPERATE 1 TO 1 BATTLE

Sunday's Contest Packed With Thrills For Ball Fans

Before the largest crowd of the season Tawas City and Turner battled for twelve innings last Sunday in the play-off game which would have meant the championship of the American Division, only to have it all go for naught as the game was called because of darkness with the score tied at one all.

"Bill" Mallon and "Lefty" Gardner were the opposing hurlers in this mound duel which was packed with thrills as both teams fought desperately to win this game and represent their division in the series with Sterling of the National circuit.

Tawas City scored their lone run in the first inning when Quick, first batter to face Gardner, was safe when S. Gingerich fumbled his slow roller down the third base line. Katterman, laid down a bunt intended for a sacrifice and beat the throw to first base for a hit. Quick stole third and Katterman stole second on the next pitch. Zöllweg struck out. W. Mallon was given an intentional pass filling the bases. Laidlaw sacrificed. Quick scoring the only run Tawas City was able to tally during the game.

The locals went down in order the next four innings. In the Tawas half of the sixth Quick beat out an infield hit in the locals half of the stanza and was caught stealing. Sztanyo to McPherson. Katterman singled and stole second where he was left stranded as Zöllweg struck out and W. Mallon lined to Reid in center. Smith batted for Scholtz in the eighth and singled to left with one out, and was left on base as Quick and Katterman grounded out.

Turner went down in order in the first inning via strikeout. Reid, Gingerich and McPherson hitting the breeze in order. In the second Newton and Whitehouse fanned to make it five in a row for Bill. Sztanyo singled. Gardner walked and Kelly was Bill's sixth strikeout victim in two innings to end the second.

Bill then kept the Turner boys off the bases until the eighth, except the fourth when McPherson singled to left and was thrown out in an attempted theft of second. Laidlaw to Katterman. In the eighth Sztanyo opened the inning by drawing a base on balls. Gardner laid down a sacrifice and won the decision at the initial sack for a base hit. Warren batted for Kelly and sacrificed. Mallon to Kussro-Rahl batted for Snyder and drove a long fly to Zöllweg in center. Sztanyo scoring after the catch. Reid was passed intentionally and Gingerich ended the inning by grounding out M. Mallon to Kussro.

A revamped Turner team took the field in the last half of the eighth with Rahl going to left. McPherson to third, Warm was at second base and Gingerich replaced Snyder at short. Mallon set the opposition down in order during the remainder of the game.

In the Tawas City half of the ninth C. Libka batted for Zöllweg and was safe at first when Gingerich fumbled his line smash to short. Mallon fied to Warren at second. Laidlaw forced Libka at second. Gardner to Gingerich. M. Mallon fanned to end the inning.

Tawas City threatened again in the tenth. Staudacher opened this frame with a smash back to the box and was out Gardner to Whitehouse. Kussro singled to right. Smith forced Kussro with an intended sacrifice. pitcher to second. Quick singled to left and Katterman fanned ending the inning. They went out in order.

Mrs. Charles Harris

Mrs. Charles Harris, life long resident of this city, was found dead on the kitchen floor of her residence Monday morning by her brother, Edward Clark, when he went to make his morning visit. Death was due to a sudden heart attack.

Lula Mae Clark was born July 21, 1871, at East Tawas, the daughter of pioneer Isoco county residents. In November of 1895 she was married at Tawas City to Charles Harris. She is survived by the husband; four sons, Temple, Glen and Leland, of Flint, and Byron, of this city; two daughters, Mrs. Mae MacDonald and Mrs. Muriel McGary, of Flint; three grandchildren and one brother, Edward Clark, of this city.

The funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon from the residence. Rev. S. A. Carey of the Methodist church officiated. Interment was in the Tawas City cemetery.

Soldier Drowns Sunday At Van Ettan Lake

Private Meredith Caulkins of Selfridge Field, was drowned last Sunday morning while attempting to swim to shore from an overturned boat on Van Ettan lake. His two companions, Ronald Senecol and George Koffman, both of Detroit, both clung to the boat and were rescued by another soldier after they had been in the water for more than an hour.

The three men, Caulkins, Senecol and Koffman, stationed at Camp Skeel, had been sailing a sail boat improvised from a canoe. When about a quarter of a mile out from shore the boat capsized by a sudden squall. Caulkins was the only one of the three men who could swim.

The body was recovered about 350 feet off shore by Coast Guardsmen Palmer Burrows, Herbert Hassel and Frank Morrey.

Tawas City High School Has 60-Piece Band

The Tawas City High School band started the school year with approximately 60 members in the organization and look forward to this being the outstanding year in the history of the young band.

When Charles Nordman, music instructor, came here a year ago he was given a band of 25 pieces. His first objective was to raise the number to 40, and this goal was reached last spring when our band was re-presented at the spring festival with 42 members.

The next objective was a well balanced band of 60 players, and all indications show that this goal has been attained. There would be no purpose in lift if there were no objectives, and Mr. Nordman says that "I would rather rehearse a band than sleep at rest."

It will cost money to support a band of this size, so we sincerely hope that everyone will become a loyal follower of the band in whatever projects it may undertake. They are in need of several more bass horns and more uniforms.

The band includes about 25 percent of the enrollment of the entire school. The records show that there are about 240 pupils enrolled in the school and 60 of these people are members of the band. Some of the people in the third fourth and fifth grades have proven themselves capable of doing band work. Some odd 20 of these people worked diligently with Mr. Nordman all during the summer.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Back in the champagne days, when our Uncle Sam was "Uncle Shylock" in England, Sir Philip Kerr, later the marquis of Lothian, did not share this disesteem. He said repeatedly that Abraham Lincoln was his political saint; he risked ostracism at his club by admitting that America did a lot to help win the war, and urged that England should at least make a token payment on the American debt.

Lord Lothian, arriving in Washington as British ambassador to this country, has traveled widely in this country, has always taken home good reports, and, as one of the most skilled artisans of empire-building and upkeep, has urged understanding and co-operation between the two nations, for the well-being of both.

"The British empire," he recently said, "is America's outer ring of security. If it disappears under Fascist attack, the United States and its Monroe Doctrine, freedom of the seas and so on would be threatened."

A brilliant writer and speaker, addressing cultural and foreign policy groups in many nations, Lord Lothian has spoken and written unofficially, his dissertations reflecting closely empire policy. There probably is no more scholarly and gifted outsider of the British intellectual dominions than this handsome Oxonian, trained in South Africa under the famous Lord Milner, skilled not only in the realistic "pratique" of empire-building, but in its genteel histrionics.

Like Simon, Chamberlain, Hoare, Halifax, Astor, Beaverbrook and virtually all the others of the British high command in recent years, he firmly refused to believe—until Munich—that Adolf Hitler had any but pacific and constructive intentions; he shared the prevailing conservative view that German expansion would be, legitimately, to the east, and that the resurgent Reich harbored no designs against the British empire. In 1935, he visited Herr Hitler and returned with warm reassurance to his countrymen. He reported great achievements by the Nazis and indicated high esteem for their Fuehrer—as virtually all his political associates had done.

He shared the shock and bewilderment of his confreres in the aftermath of Munich. He urged that no further concessions be made to Germany and that the Hitler onslaught should be met with an impenetrable alliance against him. It was after Munich that he warned America against the ills which which it would be beset if Britain should succumb to a "Fascist attack."

LOUIS (LEPKE) BUCHALTER, who, it seems, after all, hasn't been away, was discharged seven times by New York magistrates.

Smooth Fellow Judge Nott, of general sessions court, twice held him, as did

Bridgeport, Conn., several times, but he won, seven to six, in 23 years of tilting with judges and juries, the charges ranging through assault, robbery, burglary and homicide, as involved in fur-dressing, garment, flour, trucking and fake labor union rackets.

He has never carried a gun, and, as befits the richest of all industrial racketeers, keeps the strong-arm stuff moving smoothly, with perhaps no more than an inter-office memorandum to carry it through. Unlike his predecessors of such amateurish outfits as the Gas House Gang, he is no show-off, never wears conspicuous clothes, speaks softly and is never out in front. His gang at times has included more than 500 thirty-second degree hoodlums, and J. Edgar Hoover, of the FBI, to whom he surrenders, has put him down as a co-partner of the Barker-Karpis kidnaping gang and other equally unpopular outfits.

He was born in Essex street, on New York's Lower East Side, in 1897, one of 11 children. All his brothers and sisters are honest and respectable. No explanation of his errant ways has ever been offered. In his early youth, he formed a partnership with young Jacob Shapiro, the beginning of a long and poisonous friendship. They worked up from such small beginnings as package-snatching and mauling pushcart peddlers, and, taking on hired help, began to take over old-established crime firms, such as the Kid Dropper gang. Their first big-business outreach was when they began systematically to shoot up the leather business.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LABINE

Special Congressional Session Expected to Halt War Profits; Housewife Feels Price Boost

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE ON RAMPAGE
The President's "moral" obligation was forgotten.

BUSINESS:

War Babies

"No American has the moral right to profiteer at the expense of either his fellow citizens or of the men, women and children who are living and dying in the midst of war in Europe."

The U. S. had two days to ponder this Presidential warning before the markets opened after a Labor day week-end. If pondering means forgetting, the nation did it well. Tickers ran three minutes behind as "war babies" zoomed 5 to 15 or more points. When it was over, 5,930,000 shares had changed hands and the value of listings at New York alone had upped some $3,000,000,000. Next day the market straightened out.

Grains were no exception, jumping to their pegged limits each day. So stagnated was the futures market that milling business practically came to a stop when processors refused to sell flour without being able to buy in their hedges against the cash wheat they needed. Finally the Chicago board of trade doubled the daily price limits and upped initial margin requirements. Meat followed the trend. Hogs soared from 50 to 75 cents as the market opened, jumping another $1 the next day.

The net result soon sifted down to Mrs. Housewife, whose meat, butter, eggs and flour went skyrocketing despite government-held surpluses of most commodities. Off to the White House with this news went Attorney-General Frank Murphy, gunning for the well-remembered devil of World war days, "High Cost Living." He went back to his office with the President's blessing and an order to find ways of outsmarting the speculators, but Frank Murphy's job was not easy.

A search of his statutes would show the attorney-general he had few laws to fall back on.

FRANK MURPHY
... found no laws.

That would be smart politics, because Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace is doing his best to keep farmers from speculating with larger crops next year. If the glove fits agriculture, it also fits business.

Though ambitious profiteers thought the President had left a loophole in neutrality by exempting Canada (which has not gone to war), Secretary of State Cordell Hull soon bashed this hope in the head. The U. S. might sell arms to Canada for transportation to the allies, except for one sentence in the neutrality act: "It shall be unlawful to export . . . arms, ammunition or implements of war . . . to any neutral state for transport to, or for the use of, any . . . belligerent nation." Next question: How can this ruling be enforced?

THE WAR:

Speculation

As the War of 1939 got well underway, censorship's lid clamped itself over everything save the vague official communiques from London, Paris, Berlin and Warsaw. Conversely, the propaganda mills ground faster than ever. By adding to communiques and subtracting from propaganda, observers could ascertain a few things. The gist: France, Britain and Poland were in a tough spot.

The key to this problem lay somewhere in Poland. Defending troops rushed back to the Vistula and Bug rivers (See Map) where they hoped to dig in permanently. Though Generalissimo Smigly-Rydz called the retreat "strategic," there was every indication Poland's position was desperate. Off to London seeking aid went Foreign Minister Josef Beck, knowing full well there was no way Britain and France could send it.

To a certain point Der Fuehrer's scheme was obvious. The Reich

POLAND'S WAR

Heavy shaded area shows German territory. Light shade shows territory Poles say they are willing to surrender to establish permanent front lines along the Vistula and Bug rivers, in strategic areas shown with dots.

made no offensive on the western front, where British-French forces found the lightly manned Siegfried line a stone wall. But when he has mopped up in Poland, Herr Hitler can decide on one of two courses, war or peace. If he makes war, the combined armies of Britain and France will have tough sledding against a Nazi juggernaut which has no problem of back-door vulnerability. From over its new common border with Russia could come all the economic help Germany needs.

But observers saw another possible reason for Hitler's apparent lack of interest in the western front. Having no military objectives there, having failed to declare war against Britain and France, he might turn about and sue for immediate peace on the stipulation that Poland shall be incorporated into the Reich.

Actuality

Aside from Poland's retreat, aside from German apathy on the western front, the War of 1939 followed tradition. On the propaganda front, Berlin issued a "white book" replying to Britain's "white paper," recounting pre-war Anglo-German relations and placing responsibility on England. Faced with continued merchant marine warfare, both France and Britain established import control systems to conserve foreign exchange and provide shipping space for war necessities.

Most vital, however, was the time-tested plan whereby the United Kingdom hopes to starve Germany into submission. Thrown around western exits of the Baltic sea was the impregnable naval blockade which only Britain could muster. Meanwhile the unique ministry of economic warfare hoped to make British pounds, shillings and pence an equally potent weapon.

Question Mark

Most observers agree that Italy's current non-participation resulted not because Hitler waived his treaty, but from deliberate intention. Though Rome declared its neutrality, removed air raid shelters and resumed oceanic shipping, there was method in this madness for both Hitler and Mussolini. For Hitler, Italy was not only a threat against democracies, but also a potent source of supplies should all other paths be cut off. For Mussolini, it was smart to watch developments: Seeing in Der Fuehrer a potential threat to his Mediterranean domination, Il Duce is willing to join whichever side he thinks will win.

ASIDE FROM WAR

While war and its repercussions held U. S. interest 100 per cent, the following noteworthy events drew little attention:

IN BALTIMORE—Twenty-six-year-old Mrs. Harold Ickes, wife of the 65-year-old interior secretary, presented her husband with a baby boy.

IN CLEVELAND—Col. Roscoe Turner, veteran aviator, sped 282 miles per hour to win the Thompson trophy the third successive time, thus winning $16,000. Then he announced retirement from the air racing business.

IN NEWARK—Elisha Waterman, executive vice president of the fountain pen company, was beaten by C. I. O. pickets as he tried to enter the plant.

IN NEW YORK—Willys-Overland claimed it was dropping a "bombshell" into the automobile field with an unprecedented new low price car for 1940.

PAN AMERICA:

Solidarity

Hemispherically, the Americas constitute an economic unity which can operate independently of war-crazy Europe. But in peacetime the Old world's rich nations dangle tempting trade offers before the tiny lands of Central and South America, wooing them away from the more logical north-and-south commercial channels. When war again engulfs Europe, the rich suitors forget their temporary New world friends, who invariably turn once more to the U. S. for leadership.

No exception to this rule is the War of 1939, which finds Argentina cut off from her German-Italian trade sources by a British blockade, and finds Mexico's expropriated oil program at a standstill because Germany can no longer cross the sea.

Not unexpected, therefore, was the call which went forth from tiny Panama republic a few days after war was declared. Would the 21 American nations attend a conference to preserve western hemisphere peace?

Plainly visible behind scenes was the fast-moving hand of the U. S., which could use Pan-American solidarity to good advantage. Europe can no longer supply the needs of South America, nor can America supply the needs of Europe under neutrality restrictions. But everyone—including newly handcuffed American exporters—would be happy to open up new markets in the other Americas and thus keep U. S. production at normal.

DOMESTIC:

Un-Americanism

Fully stolen by Europe's war is the news spotlight which Washington's election-bound investigation committees hoped to enjoy this summer. But early September brought one witness before Rep. Martin Dies' un-Americanism committee who broke through the barrage from abroad to win prominent place in the week's press. The witness: Earl Browder, general secretary of the U. S. Communist party and its presidential candidate in 1936.

Interesting to committeemen were the revelations that (1) Communist Browder has traveled abroad the past two years on a false passport; (2) his assertion that Communists work with every group seeking to improve U. S. economic conditions; (3) his apparently contradictory admission that if the present economic system worked effectively there would be no place for the Communist party.

COMMUNIST BROWDER
"I only endorsed his policies."

Biggest news, however, was something which might—if substantiated—make the Republican party blush. In 1936, said the witness, a man named "Davidson" had approached him as representing seven wealthy Republicans who were willing to give the Communist party $250,000 to nominate President Roosevelt as its presidential candidate. When "Davidson" heard that information about the offer had been passed on to the Democratic national committee, the offer was withdrawn and "Davidson" disappeared.

If this embarrassed Republicans, their Democratic opponents were also reddened. Communist Browder denied he had endorsed President Roosevelt in 1936. Then he explained why: "I carefully refrained because I knew the Republicans wanted me to do it. I only endorsed his (Roosevelt's) policies."

CHARLES LAUGHTON proved himself a hero recently, and the cameras weren't grinding either. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" company was on location, and hundreds of extras were milling about, staging festival scenes in Fifteenth century Paris. Part of the atmosphere was a trained bear in a cage, who was placidly eating ice cream.

Somebody bumped into the cage, as the mob pushed and shoved about, and it was overturned. The bear, ice cream dripping from his jaws, got out—and the panic would have been on, with people convinced that the bear was frothing at the mouth, if Laughton hadn't stepped in.

Over the public address system he reassured the crowd, telling them that it was ice cream on the bear's mouth, and that, if they would stand still, the trainer would tie the bear up.

All in the day's work for Laughton—but can't you see the newspaper headlines if he hadn't kept his head?

Linda Darnell becomes a star in "Public Deb No. 1," with the top men at Twentieth Century-Fox all set to send her straight to the top. She was booked for "Drums Along the Mohawk," but they felt that the role assigned her wasn't important enough.

It's in John Garfield's contract that he may return to the stage each season. And it was in his own mind a while ago that he wouldn't make any more prison pictures. Consequently people were surprised when, after finishing "Four Daughters," he didn't rush back to Broadway, and he surprised them again, more recently, when he agreed to do "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" (which will be screened as "The City of Lost Men").

In the first case he was persuaded to stay on in Hollywood in order to get his screen career off to a good start. In the second, a nice, fat bonus check was used as persuasion.

In "Golden Boy" you'll meet a new movie hero, William Holden—six feet tall, possessed of brown hair, blue eyes, a pleasant personality, and so much ability as an actor that he was picked from 4,500 candidates for the leading role in the picture. And some of those other candidates were experienced actors.

Holden wasn't. He'd gone to college, and been a member of Paramount's stock company. It was when he took part in a college play in Pasadena that a talent scout spotted him, and he was signed to a seven-year contract. After that he didn't do anything but report at the studio and exercise in the gymnasium, until he made a screen test with a girl who was being considered for a role in "Golden Boy." Director Mamoulian saw the test, spotted Holden, Columbia bought a half-interest in him—and you'll see him in "Golden Boy."

Family notes: Paul Muni's wife took a screen test not long ago. Charles Laughton's wife (known to stage and screen fans as Elsa Lancaster) will appear on the Bing Crosby program September 21. On Thursday nights, when he's part of that same program, Bob Burns always telephones his daughter, Barbara Ann, to say good-night.

Treasury Official Discusses Our Needs Regarding Taxation

Government Wants to Know What Business Has to Say About Present Levies; Where Are We Going to Get the Revenue to Pay Our Debts.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—In these days when the menace of a world-destroying war hangs perilously overhead, it is heartening to read something or hear something that gives consideration to the problems of America and Americans. While international broadcasts were filling the air with facts and alleged facts and just plain propaganda the other night, it struck me as most significant that an official of the treasury should take time out and talk, by radio, on the general subject of taxation and the country's needs in this regard.

Undersecretary John W. Hanes, then serving as secretary of the treasury because of the absence of Secretary Morgenthau, made what a good many described as a dry speech. Certainly, most editors so regarded it, or else they thought that the European backyard fence with its mess of tomcats squalling at each other was more important. There can be no debate, of course, that the war situation requires the closest scrutiny and the calmest of nerves; but the point is that all of us hope our nation is going on over the horizon of the future, and attention needs to be given—and must be given—to our internal affairs as well as our relations with those across the seas who insist upon quarreling over the line fence.

So it was that, when Mr. Hanes made a statement concerning the need for a general reallocation of taxes, a great many people felt it to be a very hopeful sign. Now, it is always a healthy indication when an official of the federal government looks facts in the face. We have not seen a great deal of that in recent years.

But if such things are significant and valuable, how much more important it is to see an official come out of the heart of the New Deal and say, in effect, that the treasury wants to hear what business has to say about the present taxes. Mr. Hanes went further: He said the treasury wanted to hear these things in private, not in a public demonstration where the individual who has grievances about unfair taxes could be held up to public scorn. You will remember, of course, how some of the New Dealers staged a vaudeville show a year ago; how it picked out cases of taxpayers who had avoided taxes by taking advantage of the provisions of law, and how each of these was marked as an unpatriotic citizen.

Many of the Taxes That Had Been Tried Failed Miserably

If I read the speech by Mr. Hanes correctly, what he had to say was that a good many of the taxes that had been tried by the sputtering type of New Dealers have failed miserably. Of course, Mr. Hanes could not say it just that way, but he told of repeal of a group of taxes and revision of others, and in almost the same breath, he predicted the changes would aid business recovery.

The thing that is important to me in this situation is that Mr. Hanes had the courage to take a definite position for reallocation of taxes on an equitable basis—for I do not believe anyone can justify the silly structure that now is used to keep the federal government going. It can be said, moreover, that Mr. Hanes recognizes what confronts the nation in the way of revenue needs. None of us have heard very much from top flight officials lately as to how this $45,000,000,000 debt is ever going to be paid. The boys who spent the money, and had a good time doing it, are slinking to cover. They don't want to face the facts. Whatever their attitude may be, however, taxes are going to come higher, 59-cent dollar or no 59-cent dollar, and Mr. Hanes apparently was willing to tell the country the story of taxes up to this time.

Leaders of the house of representatives in the last session of congress recognized the general situation. But they were only half-hearted about it, as politicians always are when taxation is before them. New taxes don't encourage votes anywhere. But the house leaders put through a resolution authorizing the ways and means committee to start a study of the general tax problem. A sub-committee, headed by Representative Cooper of Tennessee, was appointed to do the job. And here is where the treasury got into the situation, because Mr. Hanes suggested the treasury could be of help in making the study.

Might Be Smart Politics To Undertake Tax Revision

It is much too early for any one to hazard a guess as to what will be done. Next year is a year for general elections, from the President on down the line. It is rather unusual for a congress to undertake tax revision (especially upward) in advance of a campaign, but somehow I believe it might be pretty smart politics to do so next year. There is nothing to indicate that Mr. Hanes had any politics in his mind; indeed, I think the contrary is true, because Mr. Hanes has been a business man and it is unlikely that he is versed in politics. He told of the situation in a rather simple and understandable way, and when it is summarized what he said was: We have to have more tax receipts but on an equitable basis. It will remain to be seen whether congressional leaders will have the guts to place the taxes on a sound basis.

One can look over present tax laws and find so many instances where tax burdens break the back of one line of business and fall absolutely to touch another. The demagogues will tear their hair and moan about taxing the poor, and proceed to lay taxes that are hidden in a hundred articles that wage workers must have. And that is the menace of the present tax situation: hidden taxes. I wonder how many political leaders would be able to hold on to their jobs if they would tell the truth about the taxes they have concealed.

The public administration clearing house, an institution designed to aid state governments by dissemination of information regarding the various states, released a statement a few days ago that was quite illuminating as to the steps being taken in tax matters. It showed that four additional states—Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and New York—had enacted new taxes on cigarettes in 1939. That makes a total of 25 states now using this source of taxes. There are eight cities that have special taxes on cigarettes, in addition to state levies.

25 States Make Users Of Tobacco Pay a Tax

Now, I am not here to plead the cause of the cigarette. The tobacco industry and the tobacco farmer, I assume, are able to take care of their own problems. But how many people have stopped to think that 25 states are making the users of tobacco pay a tax ranging from one cent to five cents on a pack of cigarettes, and that the federal government takes six cents a pack (of popular priced brands) before the pack reaches the retailer in your town!

The political demagogue will harangue at length, slap his hips and wipe motion picture tears from eyes about a sales tax that "takes as much from the poor as from the rich," and vote glibly for a tax on cigarettes. Nor does he mention ever that such a tax as the one just cited—and there are many others that could be mentioned—promotes something akin to bootlegging. He will avoid saying that persons living near a state boundary will, and do, cross over into the next state and buy cigarettes and tobaccos if that neighboring state does not have such a tax. He probably still talks about a tobacco tax being a tax on a "luxury" article, which makes a point of the statement by Mr. Hanes that "new conditions require new methods."

Not any one can, or ought, to say that tobacco ought to be free from taxes. I have seen no sign from the industry or organizations of tobacco farmers making such a contention. Yet, from an unbiased viewpoint, the basis established by Mr. Hanes, it seems to me there should be attention given to this type of taxation, whether on tobacco or any one of a thousand other commodities. It is a type of taxation that, for the most part, is concealed.

Where Are We Going to Get Revenue to Pay Debts?

People may ask what the alternative is. Where are we, as a nation, going to get the revenue necessary to pay the interest on this gigantic public debt of nation, states and cities?

The income tax is certain to continue. It ought to continue, because those who have incomes must carry their share, or more. But I am quite sure that every one else ought to know that he is a part of the government, too. It may be, therefore, that a general sales tax—open and above board—is the answer. Surely, it would be better than the present several hundred hidden taxes that are nothing more or less than sales taxes, and quite unevenly distributed. It would have the effect of making every one conscious of his part, and it would cause quite a few folks to stop and think before they put pressure on their state legislators or the members of congress for a new expenditure of public money. We are paying as much as thirty cents out of every dollar, now, for government. The debts are on our shoulders and must be paid, but why not have some honesty about how the money is taken away from us.

We have heard much about planning for the future, assuring security and honeyed words of that kind, and so it seems not improper to suggest that attention be given to a general program of taxation that will help in bringing about those objectives.

Settlers Seek Sagebrush Soil

Western Irrigation Project To Welcome Hundreds Of Home Seekers.

YAKIMA, WASH.—A year from this summer hundreds of soil-hungry settlers will be establishing themselves on small tracts of central Washington's Roza irrigation projects, preparing to make a living from ground that for decades bristled with sagebrush.

They'll be moving in and erecting cabins even before water is available to turn their land into a productive state, but the chief construction engineer of the project, C. E. Crownover, said that is just what the U. S. reclamation bureau prefers.

Water probably will not be available for the arid lands until the spring of 1941, Crownover said. However, the settlers can take up their tracts several months earlier and begin clearing them and building numerous ditch networks needed on each farm.

Early Arrival Favored.

"It's easy to see that this work must be done before the land will be fitted for irrigation waters," Crownover said. "The job will take time and there's no reason why the settlers can't do it before water from the main canal is available to them."

Virtually all the difficult parts of the $15,000,000 project—started in 1935—have been completed or are under construction. When the unit is finished, it will complement the Yakima valley project, one of the largest reclamation sections in the world.

When all gravity-flow and pump lands are connected to the Roza system, a total of 72,000 acres will be irrigated, providing farms for 1,800 families if the tracts were set aside 40 acres to the settler.

The Roza is in addition to the Tieton, Sunnyside and Kittitas divisions of the Yakima valley project.

The Roza's main canal will be completed to mile 45 with money now in the hands of the reclamation bureau. These funds also will finish the main diversion dam, now under construction at a cost of $525,000, and four spillways.

Ditch to Run 100 Miles.

The largest artery of the system will stretch 100 miles when it is completed.

The lateral ditchworks will be built next summer. This may be done on small contracts or, to save money, the government may decide to put the Civilian Conservation corps on part of the job. But indications are that local contractors will get the work.

Those who want to settle on the reclaimed lands need not fear speculation, for the reclamation bureau—through J. S. Moore, superintendent of the Yakima valley project—has begun to crack down on any landowners showing such an inclination.

Moore has sent notices to 50 large holders directing them to sell all but 160 acres before water becomes available. The superintendent also has warned owners that if any land is sold above its appraised value, half of the excess will go to the project's cost.

300,000 Dancers, Actors, Singers in Soviet Army

MOSCOW.—Over 300,000 members of the Soviet army are trained as dancers, musicians, singers, actors, and poets.

Every unit in the army and every warship in the navy has its choirs, orchestra and dramatic groups. One of the soloists in the Moscow Grand Theater of Opera and Ballet, Vassili Drovannikov, is a former member of the Red army, where he received his original training in his art.

The arts hold a prominent place in the life of the Soviet soldiers and sailors. In the daytime they spend their time in fields, at airdromes, in classrooms or on shooting ranges; in the evening they amuse themselves giving performances or watching the performances of others.

The bird was one of a collection of rare fowl which C. G. May, British delegate, is taking to the World's Poultry congress at Cleveland.

May said the rooster crowed every night at the hour to which it was accustomed in England and made no allowances for sunrise or the various time zones encountered on the crossing.

Shopping Made Easy Under Reich Ration Plan

Dietary restrictions imposed on Germany's inhabitants are illustrated here in actual quantity. A pound and a half of meat—that's a week's supply. Also allowed is a half pint of milk per day and two ounces of cheese—enough to bait a mouse trap. Groceries are obtainable only under the Reich ration-card system. Each housewife must present her card at the grocery store when making purchases, and merchants maintain strictest adherence to limitations. In addition to food restrictions, the amount of clothing each citizen may buy is regulated by Nazi edict.

Europe Lines Up for Second World War

Map shows lineup of nations under present European alliances. Poland, France and the British empire are aligned against Germany in the conflict, with Italy and Russia listed as "doubtful." Spain, hitherto considered pro-Nazi, is expected to remain neutral as a result of the Nazi-Soviet non-aggression pact.

History Repeats Itself—Australians Win

Bobby Riggs, left, of the U. S., and Adrian Quist, of Australia, shake hands after their singles tennis match at Haverford, Pa., which helped decide the Davis cup championship. History repeated itself, for just 25 years ago Australia won the cup, and the winners marched off to war. This year's victorious Australians, Quist and John Bromwich, received their sailing orders one hour after their triumph.

MICAH: A MESSENGER OF SOCIAL JUSTICE

LESSON TEXT—Micah 3:1-12; 6:6-8. GOLDEN TEXT—What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?—Micah 6:8.

We demand human rights, social justice, and economic security. Corrupt judges and bribe-taking officials must be put out of office. Landlords must not squeeze every penny out of their tenants; loan sharks must be put out of business; the rich must not oppress the poor. The Church must have ministers with a real message and must share in the solution of the problems of humanity.

No, we did not copy that paragraph out of today's newspaper. It is the message that the prophet Micah preached more than 2,500 years ago. And what's more, he not only presented theories, but he knew how to accomplish his purpose of real social justice. It is time some of those who talk about this subject got back to the Bible and really learned how it can be done.

I. Social Injustice (3:1-10).

The inhumanity of man toward man is not something that just happened. There are fundamental reasons for such conditions, and they are the same in our time as in Micah's day. The responsibility rests squarely on the failure of our national and spiritual leaders to perform their God-given tasks.

1. Rulers without Judgment (3:1-4, 9-10).

The obligation of anyone who is given or who seeks public office is to know judgment. This does not mean only that he is to have a general knowledge of the law and its technicalities; he is to know justice in his very heart, to love it, and to see that it is always rightly administered.

The leaders of Israel had woefully failed, in fact had deliberately departed from the standards of God, and Micah exposed them in plain, dramatic, well-spoken words. While verses 2 and 3 are not to be taken literally, they do in striking figurative speech describe just what unscrupulous politicians do to an unsuspecting people.

2. Prophets with a False Message (3:5-8).

In such a day might one not expect God's messengers to have a word of condemnation for the leaders and of comfort for the people? Not only did they keep quiet about the sin and corruption which they saw about them, but they actually encouraged their prominent and wealthy "church members" in their sin by saying, "All is well." Such religious leaders have not altogether perished from the earth.

Let ministers of God be like Micah, who is described in verse 8 as a man of judgment and justice, because he was "full of power by the Spirit of the Lord."

II. Social Security (3:11, 12; 6: 6-8).

No, that idea was not discovered by the politicians of the 1930's. It has been in the plan of God from the beginning; in fact only in Him is there any real national, personal, or social security. Micah skillfully unmasked false security and revealed the way of true security.

1. False Security and Divine Judgment (3:11, 12).

When the heads of a nation "judge for reward" and its religious leaders "teach for hire" and its prophets "divine for money" (v. 11), there is no use to talk piously about God being with us.

The prophecy of verse 12 was fulfilled three times—by the Chaldeans in 586 B. C., by Titus in A. D. 70, and under Hadrian in A. D. 135. God always keeps His promises, even if the promise be a promise of judgment.

2. True Security and Divine Blessing (6:6-8).

God is not to be propitiated by the offerings of material things as a sacrifice or by any outward profession of piety. He looks at the heart.

Verse 8 is a remarkable and beautiful epitome of God's requirement of man, namely, justice, kindness, and humility; but note that this is the requirement of the law, and one which no man can possibly fulfill apart from Christ. It is evident folly for men to quote this verse as did the agnostic Thomas Huxley and others, to justify themselves for not responding to the claims of the gospel of Christ. Only Christ can make any man capable of true justice, constant kindness, and genuine humility. Only thus can we meet the demands of the law of God.

Real social justice and security will come only as there is a recognition of Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord by the leaders, by the prophets and by the people.

Self Abnegation

After you have been kind, after love has stolen forth into the world and done its beautiful work, go back into the shade again and say nothing about it. Love hides even from itself. Love waives even self-satisfaction.—Henry Drummond.

Giving Sympathy

Give to the afflicted those words from the heart which temper the bitterness of tears. There are no sufferings which sympathy does not alleviate. The sorrows of life are dispersed by the rays of brotherly love, as the frosts are melted in the morning at the rising of the sun.—F. de Lamennais.

To Correct Constipation Don't Get It!

Why tell yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew! Forgiving One Another
 Forgiveness of injuries is a God given grace. It is the most reluctant act that human nature ever performs. In the deepest condition of moral degradation there is no such thing as forgiveness of injuries thought about. So destitute is mankind of the spirit of forgiveness of injuries that heathen religions taught the right of revenging an injury, but not of forgiving one. In view of this, we say, the spirit of forgiving injuries is God-given. The Bible is the one book which from beginning to end advocates forgiveness.

"Nothing is too good for you, Jane. I can't say it as I want to say it, but you'll never know what you seemed to me on Sunday as you came through the mist."
 Evans' voice shook a little, but he recovered himself in a moment. "Here come the Townes." He rose as Edith entered with young Baldwin.
 After that Evans followed Baldy's lead as a dispenser of hospitality. The two of them passed cups, passed thin bread and butter, passed little cakes, passed lemon and cream and sugar, flung conversational balls as light as feathers into the air, were, as Baldy would have expressed it, "the life of the party."
 "Something must have gone to Casablanca's head," Frederick Towne remarked to Jane. "Have you ever seen him like this?"
 "Years ago. He was tremendously attractive."
 "Do you find him attractive now?" with a touch of annoyance.
 "I find him—wonderful"—her tone was defiant—"and I've known him all my life."
 "If you had known me all your life would you call me wonderful?" She looked at him from behind her battlements of silver. "How do I know? People have to prove themselves."

Dr. Hallam had driven Mrs. Follette over. He rarely did social stunts, but he liked Jane. And he had been interested enough in Evans to want to glimpse him in his new role.

Strolling up to the tea-table, he was aware at once of a situation which might make for comedy, or indeed for tragedy. It was evident that Towne was much attracted to little Jane Barnes. If Jane reciprocated, what of young Follette?

"I saw Mrs. Laramore yesterday," he said, abruptly, "lovely as ever."
 "Yes, of course," Towne wished that Hallam wouldn't talk about Adelaide. He wished that all of the others would go away and leave him alone with Jane.

"Mrs. Laramore," said Jane unexpectedly, "makes me think of the lady of Shallott. I don't know why. But I do. I have really never seen such a beautiful woman. But she doesn't seem real. I have a feeling that if anything hit her, she'd break like china."

They laughed at her, and Edith said, "Adelaide will never break. She'll melt. She's as soft as wax." Then pigeonholing Mrs. Laramore for more vital matters. "Uncle Fred, I am going out to Baldy's studio; he's painting Jane."

Frederick was at once interested. "Her portrait?"

"No. A sketch for a magazine competition," Baldy explained.
 "May I see it?"
 Baldy, yearning for solitude and Edith, gave reluctant consent.

"Come on, everybody."
 So everybody, including Dr. Hallam and Mrs. Follette, made their way to the garage.
 Edith and young Baldwin arrived first. "And this is where you work," she said, softly.

"Yes. Look here, will you sit here so that I can feast my eyes on you? I've dreamed of you in that chair—in classic costume. Do you know that you were made for a goddess?"
 "I know that you are a romantic boy."
 "How old are you?" she asked him.

"Twenty-five."
 "I don't believe it. I'm twenty-two, and I feel a thousand years older than you."
 "You will always be—ageless."
 She laughed. "How old is Jane?"
 "Twenty. Yet people take us for twins."

"She doesn't look it and neither do you."
 The others came in and Edith went back to her thoughts. He wasn't too young. She was glad of that.

The sketch of Jane was on an easel. There she stood, a slender figure in her lilac frock—bobbed black hair, lighted-up eyes—the lifted basket with its burden of gold and purple and green!
 Towne stood back and looked at it. Jane at his side said, "That's some of the fruit you sent."

"Really?" Frederick had no eyes for anything but Jane, in her lilac frock. Jove, but the boy had caught the spirit of her!
 He turned to Baldy. "It is most unusual. And I want it."
 "Sorry," said Baldy, crisply. "I am sending it off tomorrow."
 "How much is the prize?"
 "Two thousand dollars."
 "I will write a check for that amount if you will let me have this."

"I am afraid I can't, Mr. Towne." "Why not?"
 "Well, I feel this way about it. It isn't worth two thousand dollars. But if I win the prize it may be worth that to the magazine—the advertising and all that."
 "Isn't that splitting hairs?"

"Perhaps, but it's the way I feel." "But if you don't win the prize you won't have anything."
 "No."
 "And you'll be out two thousand dollars." The lion in the Zoo was snarling.
 And above him, breathing an upper air, was this young eagle. "I'll be glad to give the sketch to you if it comes back," said Baldy, coolly, "but I rather think it will stick."

It was, in a way, a dreadful moment for Towne. There was young Baldwin sitting on the edge of the table, swinging a leg, debonair, defiant. And Edith laughing in her sleeve. Frederick knew that she was laughing. He was as red as a turkey cock.
 It was Jane who saved him from apoplexy. She was really inordinately proud of Baldy, but she knew the dangers of his mood. And she had her duties as hostess.
 "Baldy wants to see himself on the news stands," she said, soothingly; "don't deprive him of that pleasure, Mr. Towne."
 "Nothing of the kind, Jane," exclaimed her brother.
 "Baldy, I won't quarrel with you before people. We must reserve that pleasure until we are alone."
 "I'm not quarrelling."
 Jane held up a protesting hand. "Oh, let's run away from him, Mr. Towne. When he begins like that, there's no end to it."

She saw him presently standing beside Baldy on the station platform.

"Jane, they are not worth your little finger. I put you above all. On a pedestal. Honestly. And I want you to marry me."
 "But I don't love you."
 "I'll make you. I have everything to give you."
 Had he? What of Robin Hood and Galahad? What of youth and youth's audacity, high resolves, flaming dreams?
 She felt something of this subconsciously. But she would not have been a feminine creature had she not felt the flattery of his pursuit.
 "Jane, I'll make life a fairy tale. We'll travel everywhere. Sail strange seas. Wouldn't you love it—all those countries you have never seen—and just the two of us? And all the places you have read about? And when we come home I'll build you a house—wherever you say—with a great garden."
 He was eloquent, and the things he promised were woven into the woof of all her girlish imaginings.
 "I ought not to listen," she said, tremulously.
 But he knew that she had listened. He was wise enough to leave it there.

He rose as he heard the others coming back. "Will you ride with me tomorrow afternoon? Don't be afraid of me. I'll promise to be good."
 "Sorry. I'm to have tea in town with Evans."
 "Can't you break the engagement?"
 "I don't break engagements." The cock of her head was like Baldy's.

books and a big box of sweets. People in the Pullman stared at Jane in the midst of all her magnificence. They stared too, at Towne, and at Briggs, who rushed in at the last moment with more books from Brentano.

Edith and Baldy were on the platform. Edith had come down with Towne. So Frederick, alone with Jane, said, "I want you to think of the things we talked about yesterday—"

"Please, not now. Oh, I'm afraid—"
 "Of me? You mustn't be."
 "Not of you—of everything—Life."

He took her hand and held it. "Is there anything else I can do for you? Everything I have is—yours, you know—if you want it."
 He had to leave her then, with a final close clasp of the hand. She saw him presently standing beside Baldy on the station platform—the center of the eyes of everybody—the great Frederick Towne!

As the city slipped away and she leaned her head against the cushions and looked out at the flying fields—it seemed a stupendous thing that a man like Towne should have laid his fortune at her feet. Yet she had no sense of exhilaration. She liked the things he had to offer—yearned for them—but she did not want him at her side.

In her sorrow her heart turned to the boy who had stumbled over the words, "If my blundering prayers will help you—"
 She found herself sobbing—the first tears she had shed since the arrival of the telegram.

When she reached Chicago, her brother-in-law, Bob Heming, met her. "Judy's holding her own," he said, as he kissed her. "It was no end good of you to come, Janey."
 "Have you a nurse?"
 "Two. Day nurse and night nurse. And a maid. Judy is nearly frantic about the expense. It isn't good for her, either, to worry. That's half the trouble. I tried to make her get help, but she wouldn't. But I blame myself that I didn't insist."

"Don't blame yourself, Bob. Judy wouldn't. She told me she could get along. And when Judy decides a thing, no one can change her."
 "Of course," she swayed a little. "Hold on to me a minute, Baldy. It takes my breath away."
 "You mustn't be scared, old girl. I'll be all right in . . . a minute."

His arms were tight about her. "It seems as if I should go, too, Janey."
 "But you can't. I'll get things ready and ride in with you in the morning. I'll pack my trunk if you'll bring it down from the attic. I can sleep on the train tomorrow."

The next morning Baldy went to bring his car around, and Evans stood with his hand on the back of Jane's chair, looking down at her. "You'll write to me, Jane?"
 "Oh, of course."

He shifted his hand from the chair back to her shoulder. "Dear little girl, if my blundering prayers will help you any—you'll have them."
 She turned in her chair and looked up at him. She could not speak. Their eyes met, and once more Jane had that breathless sense of fluttering wings within her that lifted to the sun.

Then Baldy was back, and the bags were ready, and there was just that last hand-clasp. "God bless you, Jane."
 Frederick Towne was at the train. He had been dismayed at the news of Jane's departure. "Do you mean that you are going to stay indefinitely?" he had asked over the wire.
 "I shall stay as long as Judy needs me."
 Frederick had flowers for her,

Judy in bed was white and thin, and Jane wanted to weep over her, but she didn't. "You blessed old girl," she said, "you're going to get well right away."
 "The doctor thinks I may have to have an operation. That's why I felt I must wire you." Judy was anxious. "I couldn't leave the babies with strangers. And it was so important that Bob should be at his work."

"Of course," said Jane; "do you think anything would have made me stay away?"
 Judy gave a quick sigh of relief. How heavenly to have Janey! And what a dear she was with her air of conquering the world. Jane had always been like that—with that conquering air. It cheered one just to look at her.

Hawks Destroy Field Mice; Great Aid to Farmers

Nature is wise. She provided that where the mortality in a species is high, the species is prolific. Such a prolific species is the field mouse.

In a single year one female mouse may have 17 litters of young, averaging 5 to the litter. Thus in one year a female mouse may multiply herself 85 times. More than that, asserts a writer in the Missouri Farmer, each of her female offspring begins to reproduce at about one month of age, and it is estimated that if every descendant of a single female mouse lived there could result the unbelievable total of more than a million mice in a year's time.

It is also claimed that each mouse uses 23 pounds of green feed in one year to support it, and that if there was an average of 10 field mice per acre on the farms of the United States the loss on our 65,000,000 acres would amount to more than 3,000,000 tons per year.

If allowed to propagate unmolested, scientists estimate that rodents would run man off the face of the earth in seven years. What keeps mice down? Many enemies are at work, enemies like cats, weasels, disease germs, etc., but one of the most important of its enemies is the hawk. Hawks have been called nature's policemen, and it is believed that without these, farming would be impossible.

In winter field mice eat seed, seed that is needed for game birds and other wildlife. When the seed is gone they eat the bark of trees, and it is not uncommon for them to ruin many young fruit trees. When in the field, hawks by day and owls by night prey upon them wholesale. One of these hawks, commonly known to farmers as the little sparrow hawk, may be seen atop a nearby tree watching for mice when corn is being shucked out of the shock, and he is very busy particularly if there is snow on the ground and he is hungry and the mice are easy to see. Nearly all hawks may kill an occasional bird and some of them catch chickens. A few, a very few of them, are almost wholly bad, just as there are bad actors among men. But the good that hawks do more than counterbalances their bad traits and farmers should think twice before shooting them down as outlaws.

African Cobra Venom Deadly

Two grams of the neurotoxin from the venom of the African cobra will kill 1,000,000 mice.

DESSERTS IMPORTANT IN MENU

Desserts That Are Different

Build up your menu to an interesting climax with a new and delicious dessert!

Desserts really play an important part in the menu, and in nutrition, too.

Sweets, provided in proper amounts and in the proper place in the diet, are just as necessary to good nutrition as milk, meat, fruits, vegetables and cereals.

Plan the dessert to fit the menu—a light sweet for the close of a hearty dinner, and a richer, heavier dessert to wind up the meal that is fairly simple. Consider the weather, too, and when it's hot and humid, serve sweets that are temptingly dainty. When the temperature drops and appetites perk up accordingly, desserts may be sweeter, richer and more substantial.

You'll find in this collection of untested recipes from my own kitchen a dessert for almost any occasion.

Athletes' Foot Can Be Cured By Treatment

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

I HAD the opportunity some years ago of visiting the orthopedic clinic of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, and was interested to find that about 80 per cent of the patients each morning came because of their feet. Prolonged standing, the use of ill-fitting shoes, infection of teeth and tonsils, causing inflammation of the joints of the feet, were among the conditions found in this group of patients.

Today, another condition, not needing orthopedic attention, has become very common and many "cures" for it are seen on the pages of our newspapers and magazines. I am referring to ringworm of the feet or athletes' foot. And it is actually because of an increased desire for cleanliness that this ailment has spread so rapidly.

We read in the Bulletin, Lake Carriers association, the following: "With the increasing large number of shower baths being installed on the vessels, there obviously has been an increase in the number of cases of athletes' foot contracted. The suggestions for the treatment among these lake sailors is Whitfield's ointment (named after the famous British skin specialist) and potassium permanganate tablets.

Hot Water Treatment.

"Dissolve one five-grain potassium permanganate tablet in a gallon of hot water. Soak the feet for 30 minutes in this solution. With a piece of gauze gently remove all the loose skin. Wipe the skin dry and then apply Whitfield's ointment to the affected parts. The application of Whitfield's ointment should not be too thick."

In the meantime, preventive measures as recommended by Dr. Udo Wilde, University of Michigan (a) use of paper slippers which keep feet off the floor and (b) after the bath thoroughly dry the body, especially feet, groin and armpits.

Remember, the above treatment—soaking in potassium permanganate solution and application of Whitfield's ointment—is for the skins of hardy lake sailors. It might easily be too severe for many skins. It would be wise, therefore, first to use milder solutions and ointments. If the results are disappointing, then the use of Whitfield's ointment, perhaps every second day, might bring the desired results safely. Whitfield's ointment is a nonproprietary ointment which can be put up by any druggist.

Food Not Always Stomach-ache Cause

A physician making his round of calls stopped at a restaurant and ate some fresh fish of which he was very fond. After leaving the restaurant he had driven only a couple of miles before he had a most intense and violent headache, a pain in the stomach and extreme nausea. He stopped his car for a few minutes and finally drove home where a vomiting spell gave some relief, but the headache persisted. After a couple of days' rest in bed, with no relief from his headache, he called in another physician who also attributed the headache and vomiting spell to poisoning from the fish. After two more days went by the physician, and patient also, concluded that the persistent, "splitting" headache was not due to the fish but to some pressure on the brain. The removal of a little fluid from the spinal column gave instant relief from the severe headache and desire to vomit.

Most of us with a headache, stomach-ache and a desire to vomit are apt to blame these symptoms on some food eaten, whereas vomiting, headache and pain in the abdomen may be due to disturbances far removed from the abdomen.

Certain diseases of the brain are apt to produce digestive disturbances—brain tumor, epilepsy, migraine.

The thought then is that when there is abdominal pain and vomiting, apparently not due to food, the fact that other organs outside the abdomen—heart and brain—may be causing the symptoms should not be forgotten.

Lovely Filet Squares

The palm, since ancient times, has inspired artists. It's no wonder, then, that this lovely square in such simple crochet uses it as a motif. A stunning cloth or spread of mercerized string—smaller articles in finer cotton—will give you handiwork you'll treasure. Pattern 6373 contains instructions and chart for making the square; illustrations of it and of stitches; materials needed.

In the eleventh. In the twelfth they had a scoring opportunity which went amiss. M. Mallon was safe on Gingerich's error. Staudacher beat out an infield hit. Kussro forced Mallon at third, McPherson unassisted. Smith and Quick struck out and the ball game was called as the umpires decided that further play would be dangerous for both batters and fielders.

Mallon allowed three hits, walked three, and breezed the third strike past 16 of the visiting batters, while his team mates played errorless ball behind him.

The strong cross-diamond wind made judging of high flies difficult and several fine fielding plays were made because of it. The outstanding play of the game occurred in the twelfth. With two out Whitehouse hit a high fly to short right-center and Katterman, after a hard run, dropped the ball, Quick, who was also in on the play, scooped the ball up for the final out of the inning. Another play worth mentioning was in the seventh inning off the bat of the same Whitehouse who hit a hard smash to the right of Kussro, who in trying for the ball was hit on the bare hand, the ball glanced toward second and Katterman made a nice pickoff and toss to Kussro for the putout at first base.

Gardner allowed seven hits and issued one base on balls. Twelve of the local lads were victims of the third strike. His supporting cast was guilty of three miscues.

Next Sunday, September 17, these two teams will again play at the Tawas City Athletic Field and hope to break the deadlock. If it is a thrilling game you are looking for, be out Sunday. In the past two seasons these two teams have played seven games, six were decided by a one run margin and the seventh the tie game of last Sunday. What more could you wish for in evenly matched teams? What new thrills are in store for Sunday? Come and find out for your own curiosity. The game will be called at 2:30 sharp. Let's have a large delegation of rooters on hand and win this important game.

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL
At a meeting on Wednesday the sophomores elected Hazel Moran as president. Hugh Prescott was chosen as vice-president and Corrine Fahselt was elected as secretary-treasurer.

The study of current events during the last few days in the European history class has taught many that much can be done in America to avert war by thinking clearly and not being easily alarmed or prejudiced by propaganda. They learned that propaganda was a cause for the United States entering the World War.

The bookkeeping class is so large this year that the instructor has given her chair and desk to one of the students. There are 22 taking the course as compared with 13 last year. The juniors will sponsor a high school dance at the City Hall Friday night.

The juniors held their first class meeting in the commercial room Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected: President, Ediel Rempert; Vice-President, Harold Ross; Secretary-Treasurer, Russell Rollin. It was voted to pay class dues of ten cents each month. This group are fortunate to start out with twelve dollars in the treasury.

About 25 students are taking advantage of the work offered in baseball. It is expected that there will be a few games played with other high schools this fall, but none have been as yet scheduled.

The seniors held their first class meeting of the year Wednesday for the purpose of electing officers. The following were selected: President, Mabel Simons; Vice-President, Richard Zollweg; Secretary, Kathleen Davis; Treasurer, Beata Buch.

The enrollment in the high school grades is as follows: Ninth, 30; tenth, 26; eleventh, 22; and twelfth, 17.

SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES
There are 38 pupils in the room this year. Nineteen are in the seventh grade and seventeen are in the eighth grade.

We have one new student, Viola Drumm, formerly of East Tawas. The seventh and eighth graders are much pleased with their new language books.

We are trying to enjoy the building process by which we are surrounded. The seventh grade read some of their favorite poems Wednesday for language.

FIFTH and SIXTH GRADES
There are 12 pupils in the fifth grade and 17 in the sixth grade.

Ruth Ulman and Isabelle Toms have been ill but expect to start to school Monday. This will make a total enrollment of 31. We have a number of pupils who came from other schools this year. They are John Rollin, from Hale; Betty and Phyllis LaRean, from Bay City; Vernon Grove, from East Tawas; Margaret Christopher, from National City; and Jean Pfeiffer, from Saginaw.

Ida Koepke and Inez Ulman brought beautiful bouquets of flowers for the room.

Eight people from our room are in the band this year.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
The third grade, with nine pupils, has an unusually small enrollment this year. The fourth grade has, at present, a membership of 15.

PRIMARY
The primary room has an enrollment of 32; 16 in beginners, ten first graders, and six second graders. Shirley Jane Boomer has been absent from the second grade this week.
