State Representative John D. Hamilton, of Detroit, who spends most of his vacation periods in our locality, is seeking the nomination for the Detroit City Council in the Non-Partisan Primary Election to be held in Detroit on October 10. A World War Veteran, Mr. Hamilton was drafted as the main speaker at the Memorial Day Exercises of 1938 at Oscoda to "pinch-hit" for the speaker of the day who was unable to appear due to an automobile accident on that morning. John's speech, made in an outdoor costume, rather than the orthodox formal clothes, was a classic for that kind of an occasion. His many Tawas and other Huron Shore friends will no doubt be pulling for Mr. Hamilton's success.

The Tawas City baseball team started out in last Sunday's game as if they intended to win the second contest of the series and place themselves on even footing with Sterling, but their first inning rally was nipped in the bud by umpire Percy Doyle of Sterling, and they finished the game on the short end of a seven to one score.

Sterling scored a run in the first inning when Zollweg dropped P. Navadonski's long fly in left center for a two base error. H. Koelsch fanned, Templin singled scoring, Navadonski. Wilson was hit with a pitched ball. Another fast ball got away from Bill and hit Walker on the head who dropped in his tracks. He was revived and continued in the game. K. Koelsch hit an easy fly to M. Mallon at short and Beck fanned for the third out.

Tawas City came back fighting. After Quick and Katterman grounded out Laidlaw worked Bootz for a base on balls, W. Mallon also drew a pass. Zollweg drove a line single to left off the fingertips of K. Koelsch at third, Laidlaw scoring on the hit, but, Mr. Doyle entered the picture at this stage. Someone in the crowd told Doyle that Laidlaw failed to touch third and when the ball was thrown to that base the so-called umpire called him out. We don't know how he could see whether Walt hit or missed the base as he had his back to play and was watching the ball roll in the outfield at that time. An argument took place but to no avail.

Laidlaw's clear marks could be seen on the corner of the bag, but Mr. Doyle wouldn't even take a look. We don't know how Doyle, a Sterling man, was selected to umpire in the series. He isn't an umpire to begin with and the person who told him he was, sure did a fine job of kidding. He isn't up on the rules and those which he does know he doesn't understand. Incidentally he is the same umpire who called Moeller's two base hit at Sterling a week previous, a foul.

We hope that next year the league directors will use better judgment in selecting umpires to handle the play-off games for the good of both teams involved and to be sure that Mr. Doyle isn't included in their choice. This squawk isn't being made as an alibi for the loss of the game, but, the run which was taken away from them was the tying run at that stage and to they were still at bat with runners in scoring position and no one knows what might have happened from then on. The team took the field and finished the game with a "what's the use" attitude and from then on it was a listless game with only the Sterling boys showing any kind of base ball life.

Mr. Doyle's poor umpiring shouldn't cast any reflection on the Sterling team as they are a fine bunch of fellows and a good ball team. They played the game well enough to win and we recognize and congratulate them as being champions of the Northeastern Michigan league.

Tawas City had men on the bases in scoring position in five of the nine innings but just couldn't provide the punch to send them across the tally station, as a result eleven men were left stranded on the sacks. W. Mallon was hurling good ball in trying to stay the bats of the visitors. He allowed seven hits in seven and one-third innings, hit two batters and slipped the third strike past seven of the opposing hitters, while seven errors were charged against the local defense which helped considerable in the scoring. Kussro, who relieved Bill, fanned two, walked one and didn't allow a hit in the one and two-thirds innings he hurled.

S. Bootz started on the mound for Sterling. He pitched six complete innings and retired from the game in the seventh after walking M. Mallon, first batter to face him. During his stay on the mound he issued three walks, fanned four and allowed four hits, the only Tawas City run was charged against him although it was scored after he left the game in the seventh. Daniels came to his rescue but was a bit on the wild side and walked Moeller, who was batting for Smith, and Kussro filling the bases. Quick grounded to Templin who tossed to H. Koelsch forcing Kussro at second, M. Mallon scoring. Katterman struck out and Laidlaw lined to third ending the inning.

This game ended the season for Tawas City in which they were successful in winning the American Division championship but were defeated by a good ball club for the Northeastern Michigan league title. The local club is a young aggregation with an age average of 22 years and should provide the fans in this section with some good baseball for many years to come. So lets all join in congratulating this young team for their achievement in going as far as they did, and also Sterling for winning the cherished prize for this section of Michigan.

The team wishes to thank all the loyal fans who followed them this season, and those who helped in any way they could, such as loaning cars

Wm. Woltman Honored For 10 Years of Service

Ten years of distinguished service as teacher in Emanuel Lutheran school was the occasion for special services and a social gathering in honor of William Woltman last Sunday evening by the school and congregation of Emanuel Lutheran church. Rev. O. J. Eckert, Jr., of Saginaw, gave the anniversary address. Rev. Eckert installed Teacher Woltman, who came here directly from the Lutheran Seminary at New Ulm, Minnesota.

The social gathering was held at Emmanuel school with Rev. A. Westendorf, of Bay City, acting as toastmaster. Teacher Albert Wanderssee, of Ann Arbor, a former teacher here, and Teacher, W. Stindt, of Bay City, gave short addresses. Eino Haglund, of East Tawas, spoke in behalf of the choir of which Mr. Woltman is director. Roland Buch spoke in behalf of the school. Henry Anschuetz, chairman of the church board, told of the congregation's appreciation of Mr. Woltman's fine service and presented him with a nurse from the congregation along with a number of other gifts.

The affair was a complete surprise to Mr. Woltman. He told of the pleasure he had in his ten years of service here and expressed his thanks for the fine party.

Complete 2 Miles of Black Top in County

The County Road Commission has just completed the first two miles of black top to be constructed in Iosco county. One mile of this construction is on the Tawas Beach road and the other mile is on the road that leads from the National City plant to Turner, over which the trucking company that haul plaster and other material from the plant travels.

This work was made possible by the cooperation of the Trucking Company and the Tawas Beach Association. These people have cooperated to the extent of financing the major portion of this work.

The Commission believes this work represents an important step forward because of the necessity to convert road material as well as eliminate the dust and salt nuisance.

If the experiment meets with approval it is hoped that 3 or 4 miles may be constructed each year in various parts of the county. This work would be divided between such roads as the River road out of Oscoda, the Hale Long Lake road, the Monument road out of East Tawas as well as those pieces where the people using them contribute to the financing as was the case this year. Other main county roads would be considered in order according to traffic.

Stephen Nisbet Serves Long in Fremont Schools

Stephen S. Nisbet, a former Tawas City boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Nisbet of this place, began his 20th year as teacher, coach, principal and superintendent of the Fremont public schools when school opened this season.

In speaking of Superintendent Nisbet the Fremont Times Indicator said: During the 19 years that he has been at Fremont the enrollment at the high school has increased from 154 students to 420. A total of 1,021 students have been graduated from high school during that time. Prior to 1921 only 456 persons had been graduated. The new school building was built in 1926.

Mr. Nisbet and Principal Orman A. Kirk have been commended several times by University of Michigan and state school officials for the splendid educational system at the school. Outstanding are the opportunity rooms where underprivileged children and students who find certain subjects difficult are given special attention.

Mr. Nisbet studies carefully the characteristics and the habits of each of the students and often consults parents about their children. Through past experience with more than a thousand high school students, besides pupils in the primary grades, Mr. Nisbet finds that the average student's chief difficulties consist of an inability to concentrate and to read understandingly.

He receives his greatest enjoyment from the progress Fremont high school graduates make in business and domestic life. He constantly keeps in touch with recent graduates to help them over the many difficulties that confront them.

"The heart breaking situation" remarked Mr. Nisbet, "is the student who has fine possibilities but does not make use of them. Too many graduates look at the benefits of the present instead of building for the future."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

How to Pay for New Conflict Is Europe's Biggest Problem; British Taxes Set New Record

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE WAR: Finance

Great Britain entered the World war in 1914 with a 649,000,000-pound debt, raised her tax rate to six shillings in the pound (or 30 per cent) and probably spent 11,076,000,000 pounds (about $55,000,000,000) to lick the Kaiser. In 1939 Britain's record peacetime budget was 1,322,444,000 pounds, of which 380,000,000 pounds was to be borrowed. Most of this was for defense, but what bothered Britishers most on September 1, when they declared war on Adolf Hitler, was their current public debt of 8,200,000,000 pounds, 13 times greater than 1914's.

To Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, fell the financing job. Up to the house of commons Sir John carried his first war budget,

SIR JOHN AND BUDGET
U. S. taxpayers can be thankful.

neatly packaged in the ancient case (see photo) which exchequers have used for years. Preliminarily, commons knew the war of 1939 would cost more than the last conflict, would possibly last longer, and would positively bleed the British taxpayer to death. Sir John therefore surprised no one with his budget:

To raise 70,000,000 extra pounds this year, and 146,000,000 extra the next fiscal year, Sir John assessed incomes at seven shillings in the pound, or 35 per cent, until next March 31; for the full 1940-41 fiscal year the rate is seven shillings sixpence, or 37 per cent. American taxpayers should have enjoyed the comparison:

Income of $2,000 per year:	American	British
Family with two children	None	$ 70.08
Married couple, no children	None	246.26
Bachelor	None	350.40
Income of $4,000 a year:
Family with two children	28	721.26
Married couple, no children	60	871.26
Bachelor	120	976.26
Income of $20,000 a year:
Family with two children	1,164	8,047.26
Married couple, no children	1,260	8,202.06
Bachelor	1,450	8,326.26

Meanwhile fireside economists debated how Adolf Hitler was faring in wartime. Disregarding his pre-war debt and his funny financing, it was a good guess that even should these obstacles be overcome the allies' blockade would strangle him. One-fourth his 1938 imports of $2,000,000,000 would be cut off, including 90 per cent of his high-test gasoline; 67 per cent of his grain and all his cotton, rubber, wool and tin. Even Russia's new friendship could not be expected to offset this loss, for the press of war will keep German factories busy, thus barring exchange of manufactured items for Soviet raw products. And Josef Stalin is not altruistic.

At Sea

One bright autumn day North sea villagers in both Norway and Denmark heard cannonading at sea, occasionally spotting aircraft over the horizon. The booming stopped at night but started with new fury next day. Both Britain and Berlin at first denied a battle, then each admitted it and claimed victory. The press could choose between the Reich's report that one British airplane carrier had been destroyed and a battleship badly damaged, or the report of London's first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, that a German attack had been repulsed with no losses.

BRITAIN'S SHIPPING LOSSES
Submarines went down, too.

Day before, popular Mr. Churchill told the house of commons that "a third" of Germany's submarines had been destroyed and that shipping losses were about a third what they were in disastrous April, 1917. Moreover, losses were still going down (see chart). What he did not point out is that Britain has fewer boats at sea now than on September 1.

Eastern Front

After a 20-day siege, during which it was "bombed and burned into an unspeakable inferno" during which thousands of civilians died from bombs, bullets, pestilence or horsemeat diet, Warsaw surrendered and the war in Poland was over.

Western Front

After a month of see-saw fighting during which French-British troops apparently had the upper hand (thanks to Germany's pre-occupation with Poland) the battle of Siegfried vs. Maginot apparently got under way. French pressure was heaviest near Zweibruecken in the Saar region, and at least one report said that heavy French cannonading smashed a hole in the main Siegfried line between Merzig and Saarbruecken. Certain it was that heavy artillery assumed new importance, for the French war office admitted enemy shells were falling in small towns behind the Maginot line. For the moment, Premier Edouard Daladier could tell his council of ministers that the situation was "most satisfactory."

DOMESTIC: Repercussions

Dramatic volumes might have been written last month about how Europe's war whipped the slow stream of U. S. life into a raging river filled with whirlpools, quicksand beds and bottomless pits. At Los Angeles Mrs. Josephine Mair filed a notarized document forbidding her two sons from "participating in any activity called war." The U. S. fleet began secret battle games in the Pacific, a vast naval training program was planned at Hawaii's Pearl harbor, and President Roosevelt urged a cessation of foreign purchases of war materials that the U. S. might create its own reserves.

While Texas Rep. Martin Dies waved the flag to forecast all Communists and Fascists in government jobs would soon be ousted, while the American Legion in convention cut its foreign tie with the Federal Interallies des Ancien combattants, while two-thirds of the people (in a Gallup poll) said they don't believe German news reports, congress wrestled with neutrality and appeared to be making progress on a proposal to lift the arms embargo and substitute cash-and-carry.

Franklin Roosevelt's administration was winning, thanks to smart handling of the issue by Sen. Key Pittman and colleagues. To placate anti-repealists and anti-New Dealers, congress was given power which the President alone enjoys under the present act, to decide when a foreign war exists. In every other provision there was similar rigidity, so that isolationists were left with little to fight except the fast-dying issue of embargo vs. cash-and-carry. Having started the ball rolling, the White House left neutrality severely alone. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, asked for his opinions, answered Sen. Arthur Vandenberg that he had "complete confidence" in the legislative branch and that he had no "particular comment" to make.

Next day the senate foreign relations committee okayed cash-and-carry, sending it to the floor for "hell-to-breakfast" debate. This was war's effect on government. On business, the effect was a fearsome upsurge that may some day boomerang. Items:

On the farm, the department of agriculture found all larders full to bursting (July 1 wheat supplies were 275,000,000 bushels over a year ago). The year's agricultural income, once expected to slump far below 1938's $8,000,000,000 mark, may now be only 100,000,000 shy. Flour output reached a 12-year high. Railroads everywhere placed new equipment orders. Typical was the Burlington's bid for 14 locomotives. A 22.4 per cent rise in car-loadings was forecast for 1939's last quarter (compared with last year). Steel mills, America's No. 1 heavy industry, operated at 83.3 per cent of capacity, dangerously near the 85 per cent mark which steel men consider a practical level. Oil production was up. A typical late September week brought 3,681,000 barrels, a gain of 250,000 barrels over the preceding seven days. Electricity production rose, contra-seasonally, about 13.7 per cent in a week.

RUSSIA:

Dance Master

Down from the western skies at Moscow dropped a passenger plane bearing German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop. Significantly, perhaps, he gave no Nazi salute nor did his hosts offer a Communist clenched fist. Otherwise the setting was familiar, for when von Ribbentrop reached the Kremion he found it overrun with Balkan and Baltic statesmen of the type Adolf Hitler used to summon from Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. This must have worried von Ribbentrop; Russia, having split Poland's loot with Herr Hitler, was emerging as a dominant eastern European power that must be watched. Great Britain and France were confident that if left alone, Russia would give Germany more trouble than co-operation despite their kiss over Poland's prostrate form. First there was talk in Moscow diplomatic circles of a "sphere of influence" division in which Russia would control the Baltic, and Germany the Balkans. But later it looked like Russia was taking everything:

Estonia's nervous Foreign Minister Karl Selter scurried to Moscow with explanations of why an interned Polish submarine had been allowed to escape, later sinking a Russian freighter. His explanation was "unacceptable" and soon Soviet troops, warships and planes encircled Estonia. Under this pressure, and while Moscow radio attacked the Estonian government, the little nation soon found it wise to sign a "mutual assistance" pact which grants Russia the right to maintain naval and military bases on islands off the Estonian west coast. Latvia and Lithuania, her neighbors, wondered which would be next.

Turkey's Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu was there, too, and soon there were sound reports of a Russian-Bulgarian-Turkish "Black sea bloc" which would smash Adolf Hitler's hope of Balkan expansion. Rumania, between two fires, was leaning Moscow-wise and away from Berlin. Bulgaria's special envoy to the Kremlin established a Moscow-Sofia airline to be followed by a trade pact. Jugo-Slavia had a representative there, too, on a secret mission.

The only fly in this ointment was Herr von Ribbentrop and the 35 "experts" who came with him from Berlin. While Dictator Josef Stalin stayed in the background like any well-behaved master mind should, Premier Viacheslav M. Molotov called the tune that made big German dance as violently as the little Balkan and Baltic states. The mere fact that Hitler's men had gone to Moscow, and not Stalin's men to Berlin, offered good evidence that Russia has grown in one month from a silent, sulking and overgrown boy into a dominant European figure which der Fuehrer must fear.

Only strengthening this suspicion was the official German news agency's report that Russia has agreed to co-operate in an attempt to bring peace between the Reich and the allies. Obviously Herr Hitler was frantically sparing no effort to end the war. The previous weekend had brought a peace feeler from Benito Mussolini, but the result had been negative. Therefore Germany had coaxed and begged Russia into the peace effort, even though the price for this co-operation was a loss to German prestige in eastern Europe. International observers, guessing that Adolf Hitler had found himself playing with fire, decided that Der Fuehrer may yet be consumed by the fire of Josef Stalin's Communism.

Colitis Patient Must Acquire Calm Outlook

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

FOR years the patient with colitis—slight inflammation and irritability of the large bowel—was considered to have diarrhea due to certain foods he was eating. Accordingly, "soft" foods were prescribed together with an enema of oil or water daily or every other day.

Recently it has been learned that these patients are of the nervous and emotional type and, in addition to soft foods, they have been advised to try to acquire calmness of spirit by facing their problems bravely and analyzing and working out the problem instead of being worried or afraid of it.

In some ways it is unfortunate that the name colitis and its cause—emotional disturbances—have been so freely discussed, as the symptoms in some patients are not severe and yet they are afraid that they will waste away and die because of the persistent diarrhea.

Some very good advice for physicians, patients and others is given by Walter C. Alvarez, Mayo clinic, in Ohio State Medical Journal. Dr. Alvarez has done research work on the intestine for many years and has been able to show that while some healthy individuals have two and even three bowel movements daily, there are others who have bowel movements just two or three times a week and appear to be just as healthy. In regard to colitis or sensitive colon, Dr. Alvarez says:

"The more I see of persons with a sensitive colon—colitis—the less I want to treat the bowel and the more I want to treat the patient. Do not tell the patient he has colitis unless the bowel is ulcerated and inflamed. We should tell these patients with sensitive colons that they will probably always have it, that it will never injure them nor kill them and it is up to them to learn to live with it and avoid the things that make it more irritable."

Dr. Alvarez suggests a "quieting" medicine before a dinner party to prevent the bloating and desire to go to stool.

Suitable Shoes Important to Health

There appears to be a streak of vanity in all of us, both men and women. I have in mind the shoes we wear.

The age of the "pointed" toes was well past during examination of recruits, but the results were seen in the deformities—bunions on the inner side of the big toe and corns and hammer toes on the middle and outer toes, due to pressure. Still another cause was the human desire to have "small" shoes. About four of every five recruits were wearing shoes that were too short for their feet.

Fortunately, about 25 years ago one or two shoe manufacturers began supplying "sensible" shoes, which were straight the entire length on the inner side right up to and slightly beyond the big toe; the top of the shoe, while not exactly square, was "rounded" so gradually to the outer or little toe that there was abundant room for all the toes to lie in a straight or extended position instead of being "curled" up by the pointed or sharply curved shoes. These "sensible" shoes for men and women were gladly acclaimed by a great many who were much on their feet—nurses, housekeepers and office and factory workers.

Vanity May Be Dangerous. It would appear, however, that the streak of vanity in all of us, which shoe salesmen notice and pass on to manufacturers, has caused some to begin to make shoes with a little more "point"; they are "curved" on both the inner and outer sides at the top.

There is also the point in regard to women that with the present short skirts shoes are noticed more and it is only to be expected that women will wear shoes that make the feet appear small.

Now, foot comfort means nerve comfort. Many a man or woman, with a pleasant disposition under ordinary circumstances, becomes very irritable from wearing shoes that hurt the feet. If they are bound to wear shoes that are neat but not comfortable the only suggestion is that they wear a larger size. This will give some measure of relief.

Remember, our feet often mean as much to our happiness and earning ability as does our head.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Mrs. Roosevelt Becomes 56; Dubbed 'Public Energy No. 1'

On October 11, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt marks her fifty-sixth birthday. No longer surprised at her amazing energy, the nation has grown to admire her. Above: She introduces her husband at the New York World's fair grounds.

A favorite with photographers, Mrs. Roosevelt has few inhibitions. At the left she swings mightily to christen the transatlantic Yankee Clipper. At right: She presented diplomat at Arthurdale, W. Va., school, then swung her partner in the dance that followed. More active than any previous President's wife, Mrs. Roosevelt has shattered precedent. U. S. polls have rated her more popular than her husband.

She came to the opening performance of the "Lost Colony" at Manteo, N. C., riding with her party in a CCC truck. At left is the Spanish refugee lad, 12-year-old Lorenzo Murias, for whom she agreed to act as foster parent. He is one of many refugee children living in France, supported partly through private contributions.

An enthusiastic social worker, she takes an active interest in projects to care for all types of unfortunates. Income from much of her writing has gone for this purpose. Above she is shown placing a baby in the new portable incubator she presented to a hospital on behalf of the Washington Variety club.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Early this year, Germany and Italy were making vigorous efforts to swing Brazil into their lineup, perhaps knowing better than the rest of the world what lay ahead. There were disquieting reports of their progress, later offset by more comforting news and now quite definitely scotched, it would appear. The current insistence of General Pedro Aurelio Goes Monteiro that there must be continental unity in the Western hemisphere is the most definitely responsive message that our state department has yet obtained in its overtures to Latin-America.

"We must be prepared to face any eventuality," says the general, "and to ward off attacks against this continent of liberty and tolerance."

He is known as the "General Grant of Brazil," this tag being due to his suppressing the San Paulo revolt in 1932, and disclosing a penchant for co-operation with the government thereafter. Washington made a great fuss over him, when he was here last July, having prevailed-over Germany in an encounter of international tuft-hunting—Germany was readying a big party for him, but he stopped off here, instead.

Fifty years old, round-faced and amiable, he is professional soldier, but bears none of the impress of the military careerist. He moved up slowly through grades in the army, and did not become a captain until 1924. He became chief of staff in 1932, commanding an army of 65,000.

In 1936, his son, Lieut. Pedro Aurelio Goes Monteiro Jr., was killed in an airplane accident. He has one daughter.

VISCOUNT GORT, commanding the British forces in France, is only 53 years old and therefore escaped War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha's army youth movement of 1937. He was one of Kitchener's men in the early days of the World war, a staff officer, in many engagements, honored with the Military cross, the Victoria cross and the Distinguished Service order. He is rather slight in stature, with thinning hair, quietly unassuming, given to reserve in manner and quiet, easy speech.

He was trained at Sandhurst, and in the World war gained a reputation as a shrewd strategist, capable of scoring without sacrificing too many men. He is distinctly of the pre-1914 school of army tradition, and that has been a matter of considerable satisfaction in England.

Septuagenarians, whispering in their clubs, complained that this young Hore-Belisha, only 43, was raising the very devil with the army. With the sixth Viscount Gort still on the job, there is reassurance.

THERE seems to be a bit of novelty in a college course on how not to get hysterical in wartime. President Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson college, quite given to academic innovations, announces the course, or rather courses, with four faculty members teaching four courses, each yielding full college credit. Origins and inducements of war, the propaganda build-up and particularized information on any particular war which might be in the offing will be elaborated to boost calm reason and prevent "mass hysteria."

It was in 1933 that Dr. Hutchison told a state convention of New Jersey school teachers that "education in high schools, colleges and universities has become the great American racket." His idea, later expounded and amplified, is that the above is made manifest by the appalling number of college graduates who are just a jump or two ahead of the police in "defalcations, corrupt practices, municipal graft" and the like.

He is a former Presbyterian minister of Florissant, Colo., president of W. & J. since 1932.

THE FORERUNNER OF THE KING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 3:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.—Matthew 3:3.

When an earthly king visits his dominions or makes a journey to another land, great preparations are made for his coming. Everything is done to expedite his journey and to assure him of safety and comfort. The United States and Canada have recently had that interesting experience. The King of kings and Lord of Lords who in loving kindness and gracious condescension had come to earth to be our Redeemer had now grown to manhood and was prepared to enter on His public ministry. God sent John to be His forerunner to prepare the way and to herald His coming.

I. A Herald Prophetically Foretold (vv. 1, 3, 4).

The coming of John (usually called the Baptist) was of such vital concern to God that He had revealed it to His prophets hundreds of years before (see Isa. 40:3).

We should study and believe the message of the prophets. The same prophecies that pointed to John the Baptist and Christ's first coming also point to the second coming (Mal. 3:1-6; 4:1-6). We know the former took place, why should we doubt the fulfillment of the latter? We do well to take heed to the word of prophecy (II Pet. 1:19).

Let us also prepare the way of the Lord, not as John did, for his was a special ministry, but by making ways for the gospel to reach the hearts of men. We can remove hindrances and obstructions, preparing their hearts to receive Him as Saviour and Lord.

II. An Unusual Man with a Burning Message (vv. 2, 6-12).

What an arresting appearance John must have made as he emerged to the edge of the wilderness to present his startling message! God had kept him (like Moses and others) in the quiet of the desert where He could talk with him, away from the distractions of so-called civilization. This simple living had made John a striking personality, quite unusual and unconventional. The man who strives for such an appearance to attract attention is but a fool, but on the other hand unconventionality will not destroy one's usefulness if he has a message from God.

The preaching of John was a burning message of repentance. There had been no prophetic message since the time of Malachi, and in the intervening 400 years had settled down into a barren legalistic formality. John came with a simple, practical, and plain-spoken indictment of sin, which led to repentance and which made religion vital and real again.

We know that the gospel of the grace of God in Christ goes far beyond the preaching of John. But we also know that the Church needs to get back to the proclamation of a vital heart-searching message, and some genuine old-fashioned repentance. Then we like John will bring men to Christ for salvation, for sanctification, for service.

III. A Humble but Privileged Servant of Christ (vv. 13-17).

The crowning event in the ministry of John was the recognition of Jesus as He came to be baptized. He was deeply conscious of his own unworthiness for this great work and pointed to the coming Saviour as the One in whom they should put their trust (vv. 11 and 14. See also John 1:29). John was not jealous of his own position, nor seeking his own advancement (see v. 3 and John 3:30).

To this faithful and humble servant came the inestimable privilege of baptizing the Saviour. The baptism of Jesus presents a mystery which we cannot fully solve. It is certain that He did not come to be baptized for the remission of sin, for He knew no sin. The best explanation seems to be that in His obedience to His Father He was willing to subject Himself to every ordinance of God—a spirit which is not too common, by the way, among His professed followers. He was not a sinner, but He took the sinner's place, and thus He both entered upon His ministry and pointed forward to that day when God made Him "who knew no sin" to be "made sin for us" so that "we might be made the righteousness of God in him" (II Cor. 5:21).

Gracious Amid Gloom

Yet for all my Lord's gloom, I find Him sweet, gracious, loving, kind; and I want both pen and words to set forth the fairness, beauty and sweetness of Christ's love, and the honor of this cross of Christ, which is glorious to me, though the world thinketh shame thereof.—Samuel Rutherford.

Curtains That Will Fit Your Color Schemes

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE first curtains of this kind I ever saw were made of the long pieces of good material left at each side of a sheet after the center part had begun to wear. These were dipped in dye to make a soft cream color for the foundation part of the curtains. Wide stripes of gingham and narrow ones of prepared bias trimming were then stitched in place to make stripes. The chart shows the colors that were used and gives the widths and spacing of the stripes.

Of course, you will have some ideas of your own about the stripes and colors. Perhaps you can copy the color scheme of the rug in the room or the wall paper. Or colors in a picture may offer a suggestion for colors for the whole room.

In case you should want to use short lengths of goods for the foundation part of the curtains, stitch these together with the seam on the right side; then place a stripe over the joining.

There are 32 other homemaking ideas in the booklet which Mrs. Spears has just prepared for our readers. All directions are clearly illustrated. You will be delighted to own one of these new booklets. Enclose 10 cents in coin with name and address, to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill., and booklet will be postpaid by return mail.

"That's the thing for you and Del. He really loves his stock. And you and he—think of it—riding over the country—planning your gardens—having a baby or two." Edith was going very fast.

"It sounds heavenly," said Lucy. "Then make it Heaven. Oh, Lucy, Lucy, you lucky girl—you are going to marry the man you love. Live away from the world—share happiness and unhappiness—" She rose from the table restlessly, pushing back her chair, dropping her napkin on the floor. "Do you know how I envy you?"

She went to the window and stood looking out. "And here I sit, day after day, like a prisoner in a tower—and my page sings—that was the beginning of it—and it will be the end."

"No," Lucy was very serious, "you mustn't let it be the end. You must open the window, Miss Towne."

Edith came back to the table. "Open the window?" Her breath came fast. "Open the window. Oh, little Lucy, how wise you are . . ."

When Lucy had gone, Alice came in and dressed Edith's hair. She found her lady thoughtful. "Alice, what did they do with my wedding clothes?"

"We put them all in the second guest-suite," she said; "some of them we left packed in the trunks just as they were, and some of them are hung on racks."

"Where is the wedding dress?" "In a closet in a white linen bag."

"Well, finish my hair and we will go and look at it."

As they entered it, the second guest-suite was heavy with the scent of orange blossoms. "How dreadful, Alice," Edith ejaculated. "Why didn't you throw the flowers away?" "Miss Annabel wouldn't let me. She said you might not want things touched."

"Silly sentimentality," Edith was impatient.

The room was in all the gloom of drawn curtains. The dresses hung on racks, and, encased in white bags, gave a ghostly effect. "They are like rows of tombstones, Alice."

"Yes, Miss Towne," said Alice, dutifully.

The maid brought out the wedding dress and laid it on the bed.

Edith, surveying it, was stung by the memory of the emotions which had swayed her when she had last worn it. It had seemed to mock her. She had seen her own tense countenance in the mirror, as she had controlled herself before Alice. Then, when the maid had left, she had thrown herself on the bed, and had writhed in an agony of humiliation.

And now all her anger was gone. She didn't hate Del. She didn't hate Lucy. She even thought of Uncle Fred with charity. And the wedding gown was, after all, a robe for a princess who married a king. Not a robe for a princess who loved a page. A tender smile softened her face.

"Alice," she said, suddenly, "wasn't there a little heliotrope dinner frock among my trousseau things?"

"Yes, Miss Towne. Informal." Alice hunted in the third row of tombstones until she found it.

"I want long sleeves put in it. Will you tell Harding, and have him send a hat to match?"

"Yes, Miss Towne."

The heliotrope frock had simple and lovely lines. It floated in sheer beauty from the maid's hands as she held it up. "There isn't a prettier one in the whole lot, Miss Edith."

Edith, having dispatched the box with a charming note to Lucy Logan, had a feeling of ecstatic freedom. All the hurt and humiliation of the bridal episode had departed. She didn't care what the world thought of her. Her desertion by Del had been material for a day's gossip—then other things had filled the papers, had been headlined and emphasized. And what difference did it all make?

CHAPTER XI

The day after Christmas. "Baldy, darling: The operation is over, and the doctor gives us hope. That is the best I can tell you. I haven't been allowed to see Judy, though they have let Bob have a peep at her, and she smiled."

"Give my love to everybody. I have had Christmas letters from Evans and Edith and Mr. Towne. Baldy, Mr. Towne wants to marry me. I haven't told you before. It is rather like a dream and I'm not going to think about it. I don't love him, and so, of course, that settles it. But he says he can make me, and, Baldy, sometimes I wish that he could. It would be such a heavenly thing for the whole family. Of course that isn't the way to look at it, but I believe Judy wants it. She believes in love in a cottage, but she says that love in a palace might be equally satisfying, with fewer things to worry about."

"Somehow that doesn't fit in with the things I've dreamed. But dreams, of course, aren't everything . . ."

"I had to tell you, dear old boy. Because we've never kept things from each other. And you've been so perfectly frank about Edith. Are things a bit blue in that direction? Your letter sounded like it."

"Be good to yourself, old dear, and love me more than ever."

Jane signed her name and stood up, stretching her arms above her head. It was late and she was very tired. A great storm was shaking the windows. The wind from the lake beat against the walls with the boom of guns.

She walked the floor, a tense little figure, fighting against fear. The storm had become a whistling pandemonium. She gave a cry of relief when the door opened and her brother-in-law entered.

"I'm half-frozen, Janey. It was a fight to get through. The cars

"Not tonight, darling. But you may when I come home. . . . But days passed and weeks, and Judy did not come home. And the first of February found her still in that narrow hospital bed. And it was in February that Frederick Towne wrote that he was coming to Chicago. "I shall have only a day, but I must see you."

The next time she went to the hospital, she told Judy of his expected arrival. "Tomorrow."

"Oh, Jane, how delightful."

"Is it? I'm not sure, Judy."

"It would be perfect if you'd accept him, Jane."

"But I'm not in love with him."

"Bob and I were talking about it," Judy's voice was almost painfully eager, "of how splendid it would be for—all of us."

For all of us. Judy and Bob and the babies! It was the first time that Jane had thought of her marriage with Towne as a way out for Judy and Bob . . .

From his hotel at the moment of arrival, Towne called Jane up. "Are you glad I'm here?"

"Of course."

"Don't say it that way."

"How shall I say it?"

"As if you meant it. Do you know what a frigid little thing you are? Your letters were like frosted cakes."

She laughed. "They were the best I could do."

"I don't believe it. But I am not going to talk of that now. When can I come and see you? And how much time have you to spare for me?"

"Not much. I can't leave the babies."

"Your sister's children. Can't you trust the maids?"

"Maids? Listen to the man! We haven't any."

"You don't mean to tell me that you are doing the housework?"

"Yes, why not? I am strong and well, and the kiddies are adorable."

"We are going to change that. I'll bring a trained nurse up with me."

"Please don't be a tyrant."

"Tut-tut, little girl," she heard his big laugh over the telephone, "I'll bring the nurse and someone to help her, and a load of toys to keep the kiddies quiet. When I want a thing, Jane, I usually get it."

He and the nurse arrived together. A competent houseworker was to follow in a cab. Jane protested. "It seems dreadfully high-handed."

"They were alone in the living-room. Miss Martin had, at once, carried the kiddies off to unpack the toys."

Frederick laughed. "Well, what are you going to do about it? You can't put me out."

"But I can refuse to go with you"—there was the crisp note in her voice which always stirred him.

"But you won't do that, Jane."

He held out his hand to her, drew her a little towards him.

She released herself, flushing. "I am not quite sure what I ought to do."

"Why think of 'oughts'? We will just play a bit together, Jane. That's all. And you're such a tired little girl, aren't you?"

His sympathy was comforting. Everybody leaned on Jane. It was delightful to shift her burdens to this strong man who gave his commands like a king.

"Yes, I am tired. And if the babies will be all right—"

Soon they were dining in a charming French restaurant. The waiter, with the first course, interrupted them. When he once more disappeared, Frederick persisted. "I'm going away tomorrow. Won't you give me my answer tonight? After lunch I'll take you home and you can rest a bit, and then I'll come

The next day she went to the hospital and took Junior with her.

When he saw his mother in bed, Junior asked, "Do you like it, Mother-dear?"

"Like what, darling?"

"Sleeping in the daytime?"

"I don't always sleep."

"Does little Julia miss me? I think about her in the night."

Jane knew what Judy's heart wanted. "She does miss you. I know it when she turns away from me. Perhaps I oughtn't to tell you. But I thought you'd rather know."

"I do want to know," said Judy, feverishly. "I don't want them to forget. Jane, you mustn't ever let them—forget."

Jane felt as if she had been struck a stunning blow. She was, for a moment, in the midst of a dizzy universe, in which only one thing was clear. Judy wasn't sure of getting well!

Judy, with her brown eyes wistful, went on: "Junior, do you want Mother back in your own nice house?"

"Will you make cookies?"

"Yes, darling."

"Then I want you back. Aunt Janey made cookies, and she didn't know about the raisins."

"Mother knows how to give cookie-men raisin eyes. Mothers know a lot of things that aunts don't, darling."

"Well, I wish you'd come back."

He stood by the side of the bed. "I'd like to sleep with you tonight. May I, Mother-dear?"

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Save the Tablecloth.—Jars and containers left in the refrigerator should be wiped off with a cloth, nearly every day—to prevent them from leaving dark spots and rings on the kitchen table. The moisture which forms on the jars causes the spots and rings.

Drying Woollens.—To dry the children's woolen articles quickly, put them on a clean cloth and put the electric fan near them. Turn the garments frequently.

When Salt Hardens in Shakers.—Remove tops, turn upside down, fill with hot paraffin and place upside down on a smooth surface. Before paraffin becomes too hard open holes in shaker tops with a toothpick. Salt will keep quite dry in shaker when covers are treated in this manner.

Tempting Dish.—Candied sweet potatoes have a distinctive flavor if they are sweetened with honey. Sprinkle a few cashew or Brazil nut fragments over the tops just before serving.

For the Canape Tray.—Hot deviled eggs are a novelty. Stuff hard-cooked egg halves with a mixture of relish and the yolks. Arrange each half on a small triangle of buttered toast and top it with a square of bacon. Broil or bake until the bacon is crisp. Then serve immediately.

Filled Green Peppers.—Green peppers, cut in halves and simmered for 10 minutes, make tasty cases for creamed or escalloped mixtures such as macaroni and cheese or escalloped fish. After the peppers have been filled put them in the oven for five minutes or so to brown the tops.

HIGH SCHOOL

On the honor roll for perfect typed tests started this week in typing II class three names have appeared. They are Clarence Fowler, Walter Koepke and Ardith Westcott.

It is often said that school work is not practical. An effort to upset the validity of that statement is being made by the commercial department. Students in typing II class are asked to bring to class the outline for a theme to be written for English each week, or an assignment to be handed out for guidance, from this outline he types his theme. In this way the student learns to type as he composes. His work is judged in his typing class on his ability to do this kind of typing and in the English or guidance class from the point of view of the requirements in the department. Besides he is using his typing to improve the efficiency in preparing the lesson in his other subjects. The student is given an opportunity to revise and retype his original copy before it is handed in to the English or guidance teacher. Other projects are carried out in all typing classes during the year to prove that "school can be really practical."

A one work quizz covering the study of the Middle Ages was given in European history class on Friday. Best work was done by Ruth Herrmann, Elna Herman, Richard Prescott and Nona Rapp.

The botany people are being taken out in small groups in order to give them tests over the work which they have been having for the past month; that is, the identification and classification of the plants of the community.

The American history class is making a study of the "French and Indian Wars" which began in 1689 and closed in 1763. One practical point in regard to this group of wars is that their result was one of the main causes for the American demand for independence from England.

The English classes have been writing descriptions of places in or near Tawas City.

The Latin class is reading myths of Greece and Rome. The citizenship class have been studying their community. They are learning how they may be better citizens in the community.

The band has increased to 56 players, but the certainty of such a large band is not completely assured. There are some players who may be eliminated because they are not capable of keeping up their work in the band, and there are others who may be dropped if they do not show the proper band spirit. It looks like a successful year for those who are interested in music.

We have some new people in the Glee Club who show much promise. We are planning an operetta for the grades, and they have already started the work on it. We would not be at all surprised if a number of the beginners would go to Ann Arbor next spring and compete in the state contest for honors in the grade school section. We have many good prospects.

The high school baseball team was defeated Tuesday afternoon by the East Tawas high school team by the score of 7 to 6. Robert Rollin and Richard Prescott pitched the game for Tawas City.

SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES
Harold Bublitz entered the seventh grade Monday. He is from Pinconning. Our history work books have come at last.

We got out at 10:30 Tuesday morning so Mrs. Allen could go to a health meeting.

Joan Goedecke and Ruth Westcott visited our room yesterday.

Carl Lawrence is leaving for Pontiac Friday where he and his parents will live.

Mrs. Allen, our teacher, has been asked to be the Camp Fire Girls' assistant leader. The Camp Fire Girls are giving an initiation party Monday evening at seven o'clock.

We had tests in most all of our subjects last week.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
The fourth grade is preparing for a library hour on Wednesday. Each child plans to present, in an interesting manner, one book which he has read since school began.

Donald Gingerich brought Samuel Clemens "Tom Sawyer" to school and the pupils have enjoyed hearing it during story hour each day.

Donald Roberts moved last week and will attend school at Omer. We hope he likes his new home.

Third graders are using pen and ink for the first time. Most of them are writing very well. Only one ink well has been tipped over.

Invented the Bowie Knife
James Black, a blacksmith of Washington, Ark., invented the Bowie knife. James Bowie in 1800 ordered Black to make him a knife according to a pattern Bowie submitted. Black made it, but also made another on a somewhat altered pattern. When Bowie called for his knife Black offered him a choice of the two. He selected Black's pattern. Bowie's weapon gained fame, adventurers coming from distant places to buy Bowie knives from Black. When Bowie fell at the Alamo, surrounded by dead Mexicans, the knife Black had made him was still grasped in his hand.

No Cows Brought by Pilgrims
No cows were brought by the Pilgrims to the United States in 1620. The first cows imported were in 1624, by Governor Winthrop, according to Albert S. Bolles in the Industrial History of the United States. These cows were used primarily for hides, secondarily for meat, and only incidentally for milk.

Some Cannot Be Hypnotized
Many individuals cannot be hypnotized, particularly those who are strong-minded, feeble-minded or insane. On the other hand, says Collier's Weekly, persons who are especially susceptible to hypnotism may be put to sleep at once, even by a command in writing.
