4-H CLUBS HOLD ACHIEVEMENT DAY IN RENO

Groups Exhibit Results of Summer Program

Mrs. Jos. Bureau and Mrs. Otto Smith, of Detroit, arrived Wednesday for a few days' visit with their mother, Mrs. Collie Johnson.

The summer 4-H Club work of Isoco county was brought to a pleasing close Thursday, October 19, when 50 boys and girls turned reports and stories over to the 4-H Club department of Isoco county.

The 4-H'ers held their Achievement Day at the Reno Township hall, with showing and judging taking place in the afternoon, while in the evening each club group contributed to the program. Exhibits were made in canning, poultry, calf, sugar beets, gardening, Potatoes, pheasant raising, forestry and forest fire study projects. During the afternoon and evening nearly 100 people, according to L. H. Rhodes, District Club Leader, visited the hall to observe the fine exhibits that had been prepared by these young farmer groups.

The evening program was opened by an explanation of club works, by County Agent W. L. Finley, who also served as chairman of the evening. Fred Latta, leader of the "Reno Hustlers" club, explained the club work that had been accomplished during the past few months by their group. The "Johnson Club" of Northern City was represented by Miss Ruth Katterman, teacher in the 4-H Club, because of conflict, were unable to be present at the evening program but were there in the afternoon. Russell K. Mead, agricultural instructor and 4-H Club leader at the Oscoda school, explained the conservation work which their club activities are centered around, giving special emphasis to the Pheasant Club which was organized for the first time this summer through the assistance of Conservation Officer George Egbert from the seven mile hill game reserve near Oscoda. Roy Lee, club member from Oscoda, explained the Deer Yard Study project which their club very successfully carried out last winter. The "Reno 4-H Club" which is led by Norman O. Sibley of Taft, presented Jack Crego as their spokesman, who explained their club activities of the year. The Reno Club is the largest of the group with 18 members carrying 31 different projects which were all completed at exhibit time. Mr. Sibley's group also presented two short one-act plays which added greatly to the merit of the program. Mr. Rhodes then explained the projects that are available for winter club activities and County Agent W. L. Finley presented the Achieve Certificate and ribbons that were earned by each group, to their leader.

Those making exhibits along with their respective ratings are as follows: Gayle Kelly, calf; A; Mertion Kelly, calf; A; John Smith, sheep; A; Shir-A; Betty Latta, sugar beets; A; and Donna Latta, gardening; B. From the "Reno 4-H Club," Annie Bentley, calf; A and poultry; A; Charles Mason, sheep; B and forest fire study; A; Billie St. James, lamb feeding; A and forest fire study; A; David Webb, lamb feeding; A; Wilfred Buck, sheep; B and forestry; Leon Buck, sheep; B; Dale Thompson, poultry; A; John Bentley, poultry; B and garden; A; Eddie Robinson, poultry A and garden; A; Dorothy Robinson, poultry A; Edward Charters, garden; B; Ella Bueschen, canning; A; Rupert Bentley, forestry; A and forest fire study; A; Roy Hutchison, forestry; B, forest fire study; A; Blair Perkins, forestry; B, and forest fire study; A; Lyle Crego, forestry; C, and forest fire study; A; Elton Crego, forestry; B, and forest fire study; B; Jack Crego, forestry; A; forest fire study, A; and Doris Robinson, forest fire study, A.

The Johnson Club finished with Kathryn Dedreck in canning; B; and Meredith Hamman, canning, B.

From the Oscoda Pheasant Club those completing their projects were: Leo Fry, Tom Fry, Clarence Oates, Fred Oates, and Leonard Sarki. The completers in the potato project were: Everett Sarki and Edward Wellna.

Mrs. Frank Nelem, of East Tawas and Mrs. Albert Hourston, of this city, returned Wednesday evening from Grand Rapids where they attended the Rebekah Grand Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Groff, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Graf and son, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Groff and little daughters, of Detroit, were week end visitors in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. J. Dixon accompanied by the latter's sister, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, left Friday (today) for their home in Bay City. Mrs. Dixon has been caring for Mrs. McLaughlin, who is ill, for several weeks. Mrs. McLaughlin expects to remain for the winter months.

Mrs. James Davis and son, of Mt. Pleasant, are visiting at the Klish home in the city. Mrs. Davis was formerly Miss Francis Klish.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sermon and two children, of Bay City, and John Hoshbach, of Bad Axe, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hoshbach, over the week end.

Roy Rouiller, of Detroit, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Wm. Groff and son, Billy, of Detroit, visited Saturday and Sunday with Wesley Groff.

Rev. and Mrs. Frank Metcalf attended the Baptist Convention at Lansing this week.

Bernard Stepanski, of Detroit, is spending the week with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray and son, Robert, Mrs. May McMurray and Mrs. Jos. Stepanski were business visitors at Bay City on Wednesday. Mrs. Stepanski, of Detroit, were guests of the former's parents on Saturday and Sunday.

Robert Mark has returned from several days' visit in Detroit and Battle Creek with relatives.

Alfred Boomer and Russell McKenzie returned Wednesday evening from Grand Rapids, where they attended the Grand Lodge sessions of Michigan Odd Fellows.

The Twentieth Century Club will hold its second meeting in the club room next Wednesday afternoon, October 25. The roll call will be current events. The District Federation report will be given by Mrs. Campbell. Hostesses for this meeting will be Mrs. Curry, Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Bright.

Many from this city have been enjoying the pheasant hunting in the southern counties.

John P. Kocher

John P. Kocher, resident of Plainfield township for the past twenty years, passed away last Friday. He was 75 years old.

John Peter Kocher was born June 24, 1864, at Toledo, Ohio. On November 29, 1888, he was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Wolf. To this union five children were born, two passing away in infancy. He is survived by the wife; two sons, Calvin, of Toledo, and Edwin at home; one daughter, Esther Murray, of Hale; one brother, Fred, of Toledo; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Harting, of Lima, Ohio, Mrs. Laura Oetjens, of Hale; and three grandchildren.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Hale Baptist church. Rev. Frank Metcalf, of Tawas City and Rev. William Byler, of South Branch, officiating. Interment was in the Hale cemetery.

Seven Utility Workers Get Conspiracy Charge

Morris S. Causley, of Bay City, president of the Utility Workers local, and six other Consumers Power Company workers were arraigned Wednesday and Thursday before Justice W. C. Davidson, of this city, charged with conspiracy to destroy company property in Isoco county. The seven men were bound over to circuit court and were released under bonds of $500.00 each.

The alleged conspiracy occurred during the recent power company strike when transmission lines were cut in Oscoda township in an attempt at sabotage. The arrests were made following an investigation by Detectives William Watkins and Fred Perford of East Lansing, Sheriff John Moran and members of the local State Police Post.

Causley was arrested shortly after he appeared Thursday morning before the authorities here in behalf of the Union workers. Officers carrying a warrant for his arrest were about to go in search for him. The other union men arraigned before Justice Davidson were: Harry Lee, of Mikado; Grant Goddard, of Mikado; Don Addis, of Oscoda; Howard Stitt, of Mio; William Retainer, of Omer; and Reuben Eddie, of Standish.

STAR A. I. A. MET AT HALE LAST MONDAY

3 Counties Represented at Annual Fall Gathering

The A. I. A. Tri-County association of the Eastern Star held their regular fall meeting at Hale Monday afternoon and evening. Miss Helen Applin of East Tawas Isoco Chapter who is President of the Tri-County association, had charge of the meeting. Grand officers present were the Worthy Grand Matron of Michigan Ethel Kronski, of Besmer, Grand Secretary Genevieve Nauman, of West Branch, and Past Grand Patron James F. May.

The afternoon program consisted of addresses by the president and the Grand officers. The school children of Hale gave selections by the rhythm band and a piano duet.

The Past Matrons' Club of Whitmore were escorts for the association officers and presented each with red roses. The worthy Grand Matron was presented with a corsage bouquet and other grand officers with red rose buds. Hale Chapter served a chicken dinner. The decorations were suggestive of the Halloween season.

The evening meeting was given over to exemplification of degrees by selected officers of three counties. Mrs. Nina May, of East Tawas, acted as Worthy Matron, and A. E. Giddings, of Tawas City, as Worthy Patron.

Short talks were given by the Grand officers and the Worthy Matron of Hale, Mrs. Mary Bevard. The next meeting of the association will be held at Oscoda next May.

An Open Letter

To the Editor of the Tawas Herald: May I have a small space in your valuable paper in regard to the Infantile Paralysis situation. There is no remote cause for any alarm in regard to same. One mild case has occurred and same was isolated until all chance of spread of infection had passed. Many authorities assert that all persons over forty years of age have had Infantile Paralysis (Anterior Poliomyelitis), the same as all have had Tuberculosis and developed an immunity. This being the case it will be seen that most cases of Polio are fortunately extremely light. In fact it has been suggested that the so called Summer Flu may be a form of it, which does not attack the nervous system.

Several mothers have called me for information on the Paralysis cases. Naturally, gossip had cases, where ever a child was sick, particularly if the physician's car was seen at that home.

Authorities are definitely decided that it is absolutely unwise to close a school for one case or two, for if not in school, children will be in play grounds or crowded in the local theatre. At school the health authorities are able to spot any children who are in ill health and give them the advise to see the family doctor an if needs be kept under close observation. There is no known drug or serum which is specific for treatment, and spinal tap is unnecessary except for selected cases.

The greatest factor in treatment is REST, absolute in bed, with proper splints applied in certain cases, as deemed needed by your doctor.

Again, let me admonish no hysteria over the situation, for as a matter of fact your child takes more chances crossing the street where automobiles speed by then do they in going to school even with a dozen cases of Infantile Paralysis.

Two weeks ago, over the week-end, at least three cars of local young people turned their cars over in the ditch, miraculously injuring no one seriously.

Please leave the Polio problem with your local Health Authorities and your family doctors. For have we not in contradistinction to other trades and professions worked diligently to ruin our own business by giving vaccinations, inoculations and serums?

Thanking you for your tolerance in allotting me this space, I am faithfully yours, O. W. Mitton, M. D.

Economics Group Met With Mrs. Chas. Timreck

The Vine Group Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. Chas. Timreck on Wednesday, October 11, with eight members present. The two leaders, Mrs. August Lorenz and Mrs. Carl Zimmerman, presented an interesting account of the September Extension meeting held at the American Legion Hall, Tawas City, at which time the first lesson on upholstery was illustrated by Miss Ruth Peck, of Lansing. Our next meeting will be held at the Orange hall, no definite date has been set, but it will be an all day meeting beginning at ten o'clock. Members will be notified by mail as to the exact date.

FARM SOIL GROUP ELECT 1940 OFFICERS

Victor Anderson Re-elected Chairman of Isoco Committee

The Isoco County Agricultural Conservation Committee for 1940 was elected last Saturday, October 14, 1939 at a convention held at the Court House in Tawas City, by delegates from all communities in the county. Victor J. Anderson of Alabaster township was re-elected chairman and Harry W. Cross of Wilber township and Victor W. Herriman of Grant township were re-elected members. Earl M. Partlo of Burleigh township and John R. Morrison of Plainfield township were chosen alternates. The 1940 term of office began immediately upon election of the members to office.

Delegates taking part in the county convention were chosen at community elections on Friday. At these elections, community Triple A committees were chosen. The following community committeemen were elected:

Alabaster Township—Chairman, A. F. Oates; Vice Chairman, James P. Miolock; Third Member, Emil Makinen.

Burleigh Township—Chairman, C. H. Beardslee; Vice Chairman, J. C. Monroe; Third Member, George A. Partlo.

Grant and Sherman Townships—Chairman, George W. Kohn; Vice Chairman, Fred C. Kohn; Third Member, George D. Bamberger.

Plainfield Township—Chairman, E. O. Putnam; Vice Chairman, Gordon French; Third Member, Thurman G. Scofield.

Reno Township—Chairman, Alex Robinson; Vice Chairman, Fred C. Latta; Third Member, Will Waters. Tawas Township—Chairman, W. Harrison Frank; Vice Chairman, Frank C. Blust; Third Member, W. E. Laidlaw.

Wilber and Baldwin Townships—Chairman, John D. Newberry; Vice Chairman, Roy Sims; Third Member, John A. Schreiber.

The community and county committeemen were selected by farmers in the townships and county to cooperate with and assist the Secretary of Agriculture in the administration of the national farm program during the coming year.

The 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program is progressing favorably with some 400 applications for payment being signed this week. Farmers receiving notices to sign their applications should give this their immediate attention. Educational meetings going out the 1940 program will be held soon.

Recruiting Officers Here Next Thursday

The President of the United States has declared that a limited emergency exists. Under its provisions the enlisted personnel of the Regular Army is being materially increased. The expressed opinion of all authorities is that an increase in our means for national defense is essential. Recruiting parties from Fort Wayne and Selfridge Field will visit East Tawas on October 26; they will include qualified canvassers who can explain the requirements and the opportunities offered for enlistment. A recruiting officer will accompany the party to make enlistments immediately. The general enlistment qualifications for the regular army are listed below. Any male who is willing to enlist and can meet these requirements will please get in touch with Dr. H. F. Burton, (1st Lieut. Medical Reserve) at his office.

1. Able-bodied, strong, active and free from disease.
2. Unmarried and no dependents.
3. Of good reputation.
4. Citizen of the United States.
5. Between 18 and 35 years of age for a first enlistment.
6. Able to speak, read and write the English language.
7. Height and weight should be proportional.
8. Men under 5 feet 4 inches in height and 115 pounds in weight cannot be accepted.
9. Applicants must have at least six natural incisor and six natural bicuspid teeth in good condition and so placed as to chew food properly.
10. If between the ages of 18 and 21, the applicant must have written consent of his parents or guardian, authenticated and witnessed by a notary.
11. For first enlistment, applicants must be able to pass the intelligence tests.

This article is in no way written to cause concern but to fulfill only the mission to bring the Regular Army up to the quota as prescribed by Congress in its last session and signed by the President.

ATTENTION—Would you like a book of self help suggestions? I have one of 64 pages and will send you one for 10c and a three cent stamp. E. R. Goodrich, 411 W. Thomas St., Bay City, Mich.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—As we get it, Amos Alonzo Stagg, now in his fiftieth season of football coaching, leads the boys in prayer just before the game starts. However, they do not pray that they may win, but that they may do their best. That would be considerable for any outfit trained by Mr. Stagg.

When his short-end College of the Pacific team turned in a seeming miracle recently by defeating the University of California, all reports agreed that the game was won on merit and not through any outside help.

As the old saying goes, "A wise old man's shadow is worth more than a young bizzard's sword." Mr. Stagg, now 77 years old, is, indeed, wise in strategy and diligent in performance. He has contributed to the game the triple pass, the fake pass, the unbalanced line, the flanking formation and several other dangerous devices, and he has come along through the era of change a jump or two ahead of his rivals in mastering and teaching the long pass and the open formation, much more adaptable than any of the elder statesmen of world politics. He says change and experiment have vastly improved football.

This writer once knew an old-timer who worked with young Amos Alonzo Stagg when he was the champion hay-shoveler on the salt marshes around Newark bay. My informant said young Stagg would figure out a nice leverage on the fork handle, and move more hay with less effort than any other man of the lot. He saved his earnings and went to Yale Theological school. After his graduation, he found public speaking difficult, turned away from the ministry and became a coach at Springfield, Mass.

In 1892, he went to Chicago and for 40 years was not only a team builder but a "character builder." He forbade liquor, tobacco and profanity, and made it stick. Seven years ago, he left Chicago because of the retirement-at-70 rule, renewed his gentle exhortations at the College of the Pacific. He keeps fit by tennis and a jog up and down the road every day.

He was also a demon baseball player in his youth, pitching Yale to five successive championships. While he is, naturally, tagged the "Grand Old Man of Football," his many admirers would take in a lot more territory.

IN OUR present attempt to remain neutral, there is much pulling and hauling over the opinions of John Bassett Moore and Professor Philip Jessup. If anybody knows what international law is, they are the two Americans who would qualify, but it is still pretty foggy, as it was 300 years ago when old Hugo Grotius left it that way. The 79-year-old, spade-bearded Mr. Moore resigned from the world court in 1923 to compile 75 volumes covering international law and neutrality in the world war.

In 1922, after 37 years of pondering these matters, he wrote:

"So long as we love glory, so long as we worship bravery, so long as we thrill at the call of battle, so long will we love war. Mothers may say that they do not raise their sons as food for cannon, but when the call comes, these same mothers will be the first to answer."

Mr. Moore vigorously opposed the Kellogg pact and all other such devices and denounced the "callow striplings" and "shallow dupes" who offer them. As befits an authority on neutrality, he parts his hair in the middle. He is probably America's most distinguished scholar and authority in this field.

FOUR railroad presidents have died in the last year. All have been replaced by younger men and by men of operating, rather than management or legal, background. Charles E. Denney, elected to the presidency of the Northern Pacific, started with a switch company, up through grades with John J. Bernet, who made railroads out of junk-heaps rather than debentures. In Lancaster, Pa., he sold papers as a boy and worked his way part-way through Pennsylvania State college as a runner for a boarding house. He is six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds and has vigor and enterprise to match.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Soviet Presses New Conquests As World Looks Elsewhere; Nazi 'Ally' Is Sole War Victor

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

RUSSIA: Cat and Mice

Six weeks after it started, the war of 1939 had apparently been won by Russia, a noncombatant. The soviet held two-fifths of Poland and controlled the little nations of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia whose German populations were repatriated by the Fatherland in what was Nazidom's most ignominious defeat. In all these countries Russia won important naval bases (see map) which gave her control of the Baltic sea and constituted a direct threat against Scandinavia. Lithuania, the last to capitulate, even accepted a part-Communist social order.

Finland was next, her delegation opening consultations in Moscow while the folks back home evacuated cities, strengthened the army and prepared to fight demands for Soviet bases on Hogland island and the Aalands.

RUSSIA IN THE BALTIC
Why fight to win a war?

(There were signs of joint U. S.-Scandinavian action to bloc Russian conquest of Finland. In Moscow, U. S. Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt was reported to have expressed his government's "earnest hope" that nothing may occur to affect injuriously peaceful relations between Russia and Finland.)

Germany's retreat from the Baltic was not Herr Hitler's only setback. While Russia offered him assistance with one hand, her ships sailed from the White sea bearing timber for England in exchange for rubber and tin, thus consummating a new trade agreement with Hitler's most bitter enemy.

If the British gloated over this apparent victory, they soon changed their minds. Red army units in the Caucasus mountains facing Persia and Turkey were reinforced. The Soviet looked hungrily at Afghanistan, British-dominated, and the gateway to British India. Capitulating to this southerly threat, Turkey rushed to initial a pact with Russia, planning to sign agreements with France and Britain the next day. Net effect would be to neutralize the eastern Mediterranean and the Black sea, freeing Russia to do as she pleases in the Baltic.

Observers agreed that if Germany wants to destroy western democracies, Herr Hitler's pact with Russia has been a good start. But like the wily cat who strikes while the mice fight among themselves, shrewd Dictator Josef Stalin may destroy a lot of other things unless Europe's war is stopped immediately.

AGRICULTURE: Report Card

If U. S. corn supplies reach 110 per cent of normal, AAA legislation requires a referendum among producers on establishing marketing quotas. For the past month corn estimates have bobbed up and down, mostly down on the strength of drought reports. But by early October enough returns were in to place the estimate at 2,532,000,000 bushels. Last year's record carryover was 546,000,000 bushels. Total: 3,078,000,000 bushels, which is about 49,000,000 above the marketing quota level. Still there would be no referendum, for on September 13 (the specified date for determination) indicated supplies were conveniently below the level. But there was every sign the department of agriculture will ask big corn acreage reductions next year, probably from this season's 94,000,000 acres to about 90,000,000, provided warring Europe doesn't buy too many hogs. Other crop news:

Cotton: In the Carolinas it was good, helped by heavy August rains and a dry September. Louisiana also had a good crop, but in Texas and Oklahoma dry heat had stopped development, caused premature opening and attracted the weevil scourge. Result: The department of agriculture cut its September 1 crop estimate by 452,000 bales. New estimate: 11,928,000 bales.

Wheat: Spring wheat estimate was increased 4,000,000 bushels over September 1 forecast. New estimate: 189,000,000 bushels. Including winter wheat there will be an aggregate of 740,000,000 bushels, plus 254,000,000 carryover. Total: 994,000,000, of which about 700,000,000 will be needed domestically.

THE WAR: From Rostrum:

Said France's Premier Daladier: "If Hitler really wants a durable peace it must be based on the security of nations, guaranteed reciprocally, without the danger of surprises."

Chimed in Britain's Prime Minister Chamberlain: "It is for Germany to make her choice . . . Either the Germans must give convincing proof of the sincerity of their desire for peace . . . or we must preserve our duty . . ."

Said Adolf Hitler: "The decision of peace or war lies with others. We simply have a grave determination to fight."

From such a hopeless deadlock there seemed no alternative except a fierce war. But the still, small voices of peace began rising everywhere. In Germany it was the mysterious mobile radio station urging that Hitlerism be discarded. In France it was a few "defeatists" who were promptly slapped into jail. But in London it was little David Lloyd George, World War prime minister who only a week before had startled commons by demanding that Britain give careful consideration to Hitler's peace offers. Arguing that a collective pact among all European nations need not be "dependent on the word of Herr Hitler," Lloyd George was rumored leading a campaign against advocates of "war at any price."

Taking a cue from the earlier speech in which Lloyd George had counseled U. S. leadership in a world peace move, Herr Hitler first had his throttled press give the British statesman a build-up, then released a plea that America might help prevent Europe's frightful "bath of blood." But the U. S. was choosy; the White House and state department would think carefully before volunteering.

At the same time, other Britons looked askance at the allies' apparent plan to wage war only on the western front. Could anybody win from such stalemated positions?

On Land

There was every indication Germany planned to open a fierce thrust on the western front, thus retaliating against spurned peace offers. Paris heard that Hitler had summoned his generals, ordered them to clear the French off Nazi territory and to drive swiftly through Belgium and Switzerland in a great offensive. The first part of this order was evidently borne out when "suicide squads" of grenadiers were thrust wave after wave against French outposts. Scouting planes appeared over the lines taking photographs. Strangely, many a Nazi raid appeared to have a solitary aim—to capture prisoners and thus get information.

man circles said Nazi planes had dropped 10 bombs in a single raid on British vessels blockading the North sea. Since the allies wanted no peace, the raids would continue. Commented the official German news agency: "The time of unqualified British control of the seas is gone forever."

(At Amsterdam, Netherlands, a Dutch seaman came home to announce he had sailed from New York on the long-missing German luxury liner, Bremen, had helped plow her through cold northern seas while she flew the Soviet flag, and helped dock her safely at Russia's Arctic ocean port, Murmansk.)

CONGRESS: Talk Fest

Washington's important news was not that the senate had refused 65 to 26 the resolution by New Hampshire's Sen. Charles W. Tobey to split the arms embargo repeal issue away from the rest of the pending neutrality bill. This was not big news because the administration bill seemed a cinch to pass whenever the final vote came.

Much bigger news was the fact that the issue of war vs. peace vs.

MISSOURI'S CLARK
"Idiotic, moronic, unpatriotic . . ."

neutrality had stirred an unprecedented free-for-all in congress and elsewhere at a time when national unity was the watchword. There was angry speech-making, too much of it, fraught with a bitterness that might have made the U. S. look slightly silly and indecisive in time of crisis.

Missouri's Isolationist Bennett Champ Clark took the senate floor to maintain that the Tobey vote was no test. He stayed to make a speech on how the President's "limited emergency" proclamation has been used for dictatorial, warlike moves. Case in point: Placing the Panama canal under military control, an action Senator Clark said was valid only when the U. S. is engaged in war, or when war is imminent.

A speech the night before by Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson next attracted the senator. Mr. Johnson had said the U. S. army is as vulnerable to German mechanized legions as was the Polish army. Commented Mr. Clark: "In my judgment no more idiotic, moronic, unpatriotic remark ever has been made . . . To compare the situation in the U. S. with the situation in Poland . . . is an attempt to alarm our people . . . which to my mind is beneath contempt."

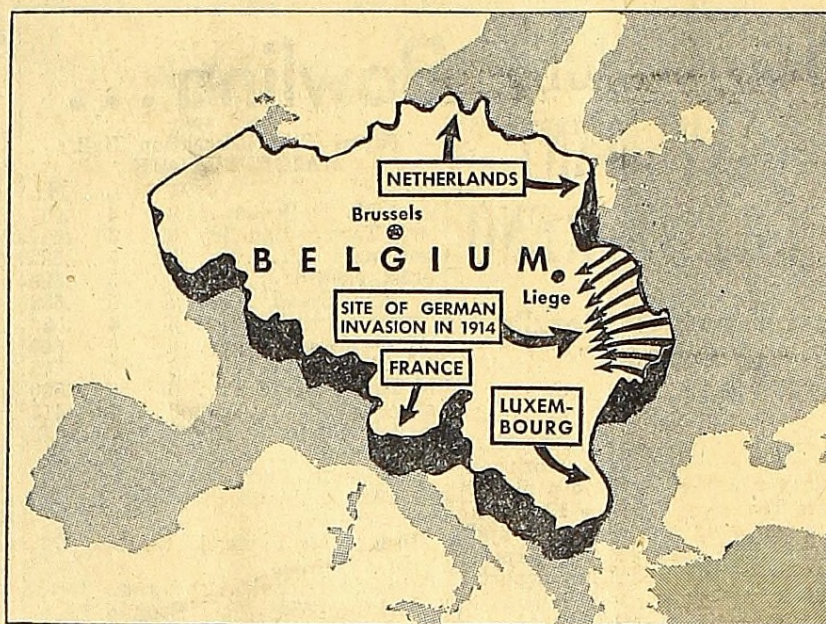

Next came Nebraska's Repealer Edward R. Burke in a speech denouncing Hitlerism, predicting a revolution for Germany and urging the U. S. to cast its lot with the allies by providing every assistance "short of supplying men and money."

Belgium Straddles the Fence, Hoping to Maintain Neutrality

Of all the little nations in Europe, Belgium has tried the hardest to preserve her neutrality, yet her job is also the hardest. Hemmed in between warring Germany and France on two sides, her soil easily violated, the land which suffered so severely in 1914 has shunned overtures from both the allies and Germany under the well-considered foreign policy of youthful King Leopold, outlined as follows in 1936:

"Any one-sided policy would only weaken our position . . . Even in case of a defensive treaty we would have to parry the first attack. It is true that, once we were overrun, the intervening powers would assure the final victory, but the fight would devastate the country far beyond the destruction of 1914-18. For this reason we must follow a 'purely and entirely Belgian policy.' This policy must aim to prevent the quarrels of our neighbors."

Reduced to football tactics, Germany might accomplish her aim by forsaking the suicidal "drive through the center of the line," i. e., the Maginot line, and instead try an "end run" through Belgium.

King Leopold (above) broke his treaty with France because history told him his country had often been the battlefield for wars between France and her enemies. Moreover, he vividly remembered the horrors of the last war when his father, the great King Albert (below), found himself helpless against German invasion. In 1914 and 1915 it was "bleeding Belgium" whose cause was so loudly shouted by the allies in seeking support from neutral nations. No doubt the Belgian "atrocities" were highly magnified by propoganda, but the invasion was nevertheless unhappy for Belgium. The photo below shows German soldiers making themselves comfortable in an estate near Liege in 1914, typical of the indignities Belgium has suffered throughout the centuries.

To prevent recurrence, Belgium stays neutral, yet is ready to protect neutrality with force. All frontiers have forts patterned after the Maginot line. Her arms is one of Europe's best, though small. But can Belgium stay neutral under pressure? King Leopold, carrying out his neutrality policy, hopes for the best.

Tests of Heart May Be Made By Individual

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

ONE of the tests to find condition of the heart in recruits for the air service is holding the breath. A healthy young man can usually hold his breath for 45 seconds and many 60 or more seconds. If the examiner is not careful, the recruit, unknown to himself, may be allowing small amounts of air to come out by way of his nose, although the mouth is kept tightly closed. By closing the nostrils with the fingers, no air can come out and the correct measurement is thus made.

Another test is to have the recruit breathe in and out in a natural manner, and after his breath is out he is told to hold his breath and not breathe in. A normal healthy adult can keep from breathing in for as long as 25 to 30 seconds.

Now this is very simple and anybody can make this test on himself by the aid of a watch. The one drawback in this test is that it should be taken under "normal" circumstances. It should not be made following a large meal or after any hard exercise. If a large meal is in the stomach there is not room for the lungs to open up completely at the bottom.

Thus some athletes (wrestlers) eat nothing after 2 p. m. with their bout at 9 p. m. If hard exercise has been taken, there is a lack of deficiency of oxygen in the blood (the system has gone into debt for oxygen for minutes or hours) and so oxygen will be needed in a shorter time than if the blood contained its usual amount of oxygen. The individual just has to breathe sooner under these circumstances.

Of course, practice enables one to hold the breath for longer periods; some swimmers are able to hold their breath under water for minutes at a time.

The thought then is that if you are young and healthy and try these simple tests when you are rested and have not recently eaten, you should be able to hold your breath 40 to 45 seconds after a "deep" breath inward, and 20 to 25 seconds after an ordinary breath outward. When one has been without food for many hours, an acid condition arises which lessens the oxygen in the blood and breathing must be done more often.

Peptic Ulcer Tendency Found

A few years ago there was much controversy between physicians and surgeons as to which was the best treatment for ulcer of the small intestine—peptic ulcer. Physicians were able to show that by resting the stomach as much as possible, by use of soft foods and preventing formation of too much acid digestive juice, many cures were obtained. Surgeons, on the other hand, advised a new opening from stomach to small intestine.

Recently a physician discussing peptic ulcer with a prominent surgeon, head of a surgical service in a large hospital, was surprised to hear the surgeon say: "I don't operate on as many cases of peptic ulcer as I did some years ago, as you medical men are curing and preventing this condition. Of course, when medical treatment fails, I still operate and also have to operate when an ulcer has healed but has left a mass of scar tissue blocking the passage of food from the stomach to small intestine."

The reason that more cures are being obtained by medicine, and fewer operations are being performed, is that both physicians and surgeons now realize that it is not the ulcer that needs to be treated but the patient himself.

No Treatment All-Inclusive.

Dr. Joseph Daly, Toronto, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, states that it is now admitted that no treatment is suitable for all peptic ulcers. "The physician no longer aims to treat the ulcer but to direct the management of the patient who has an ulcer diathesis (predisposition or tendency to ulcer) and the surgeon confines his efforts to correcting the complications that arise during the course of the disease."

That there is a tendency to peptic ulcer in some individuals and families who are of the very nervous or emotional type is shown by the following:

- "1. Ulcer patients have a tendency to excessive worry.
- "2. The symptoms disappear or become less when there is a prolonged period of relief from the wear and tear of life.
- "3. A return to usual work, worry or mistakes in diet brings a return of ulcer symptoms."

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Washing Silk Crepes.—To wash silk crepes or georgettes use warm water and white soap. Do not rub, but squeeze the garment through a good suds. Rinse several times and iron on the wrong side when partly dry.

Clothes Pins.—When clothes pegs are new they should be plunged into boiling water and left to soak overnight. This softens the wood and prevents the pegs from splitting when first used.

Washing Shirts.—To loosen the dirt on cuff and collar bands on men's and boys' shirts, scrub them with a soft brush frequently dipped in warm soapy water before putting them in the laundry tub.

Baking Ham.—The best oven temperature for baking ham is between 250 and 275 degrees Fahrenheit. This gives a most delicious ham which slices well. If a glazed appearance is desired, use a left-over sweetened fruit juice for basting the ham. This also adds to the flavor.

Tools for Carving.—For easy carving, proper tools are essential. No one can do satisfactory carving without a sharp knife; so sharpen the knife as often as necessary. A steel for this purpose usually is included with the carving set, and may be used just before serving, preferably in the kitchen.

Sandwich Filling.—Flaked salmon and chopped cucumber pickles moistened with mayonnaise make a tasty sandwich filling.

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

The war in Europe may be more than 3,000 miles away. Yet it is close to New York. In the city's population are about 800,000 who were born in countries directly affected. Many dwell in communities which are little cities within the great city. Yorkville, for instance. New York has about 335,000 Germans and Austrians. Yorkville is the representative German community. There are German signs over doors. In windows are bicycles, furniture and many other articles made in Germany with German price tags, but with amounts in American dollars. German is the language heard on the streets. German music is played in beer gardens where waiters wear German costumes and diners dance German dances. So Germany in New York in the Eighties east of Lexington avenue. Not all residents of Yorkville were born in Germany. But thoughts of even the American-born turn to the homeland of their parents. And many have relatives there. So war news is of primary interest.

A short distance down from Yorkville, in the Seventies between First and Second avenues, is Little Bohemia. It is separated from Yorkville by a strip almost solidly Hungarian. In bakeries, kolaches are displayed, with hoskas on Saturdays. There are Czech names on windows. Many of the wares displayed were made in Czechoslovakia before the flag of that country came down. Bohemian is the language talked. Pilsener is on draft in all the beer halls. The restaurants are really Czech clubs. Many dwellers in Little Bohemia are citizens. Many were born here. But there war news is of first interest. It is of all the greater interest because many residents believe that this struggle may bring the homeland back into existence.

The 200,000 English and French who live in New York, so far as I have been able to discover, are not settled in definite neighborhoods. There are little groups of course but not enough to be distinctive. Yet among them there is the greatest interest as to what is occurring across the Atlantic. In various restaurants, in clubs and elsewhere, the war is the general topic of conversation.

New York is the home of about 245,000 men, women and children who first saw the light of day in Poland. The biggest Polish settlement is down on the East Side, largely in the vicinity of Tenth street. There Polish music is to be heard and on occasions Polish costumes may be seen. The restaurants serve Polish food and even among those born here there is still intense feeling for Poland—and interest in what is happening 3,000 miles away.

There is Little Italy, of course, since New York is the home of about 150,000 of those who were born in that country. In Little Italy, pictures of Mussolini are displayed in shop windows. There are also pictures of Dante. As for Italian food, naturally that is served in Little Italy. But as a matter of fact it is served all over town and Little Italy is by no means the only Italian settlement in the city. But it is the most colorful—and the most suggestive of the land across the sea.

Of those who were born in Russia, New York has possibly 450,000—all figures are indefinite because the last census was in 1930. The heaviest Russian population is on the lower East Side. Then, too, there are many other nationalities and descendants of those who were born in the belligerent countries. Thus, a war 3,000 miles away is close to the city of the 7,000,000. But there is also this: I asked a Czech youth what he thought of the war. His reply came in Bohemian. "He's telling you," said a volunteer interpreter, "that what he thinks means nothing because now he is an American."

He said the law did not empower him to prevent sale of the machines, but added he would bring a test case in the courts on the use of them.

Mighty Pillar Honors Poilus

Monument Marks Stand of Taxicab Army of Gen. Joffre on Marne.

MONDEMENT, FRANCE.—Towering over the valley of the Marne, a granite slab of 100 feet in height has been erected to the memory of Marshal Joseph Joffre and the "taxicab army" who flung back the German hordes advancing on Paris 25 years ago. Monuments to other armies have been created on the former battlefields—the United States memorial is visible for many miles on the heights above Chateau Thierry, the Canadian stands at Vimy Ridge, while the Menin gate near Ypres commemorates Britain's "old contemptibles" who kept the pass on the frontier—but not until now has the battle which decided the World War been fittingly honored. One early September evening in 1914 a long line of decrepit taxicabs—typical Paris "corks" of pre-war days—rattled their way from the Invalides along the bumpy country roads which wind through the Marne valley toward the German frontier.

700 Taxis Used. Each cab groaned under the weight of six or seven men, dressed in the baggy blue and red striped trousers of the Paris garrison. The taxis puffed at the limit of their speed, 700 of them all told, bearing the 4,000-odd men who were to help to swing the balance in the first clash of the opposing French and German forces. They were rushing to the battlefield in response to Joffre's frantic appeal: "Send every available man by any possible means."

It was Gen. Joseph Gallieni, commanding the Paris region, who had the idea of mobilizing the Paris "cochers" to transport reinforcements. Train transport was already blocked with truckloads of troops. He summoned the taxi drivers, in great secrecy, to the Invalides, gave them their orders and they set off with their unusual fares by night to meet the kaiser's legions.

Wounded Brought Back. The fleet of taxis moved this mobile army from village to village to bring help to the sorely pressed French forces. Whenever a taxi was available, it was rushed back to Paris with wounded and loaded on more soldiery to be brought to the front to help stem the tide.

The battle of the Marne began September 6 and seemed certain to end in an easy break through to the helpless capital. A tremendous weight of man power came winding down the roads from Germany, until along the ridges and in the neighboring valleys Von Kluck had 900,000 men against Joffre's hastily gathered regulars and reserves. For four days the French took the full shock of the deadly German drive while Allied and other reinforcements, including the Paris garrison, were rushed up until on September 10 the attack was broken. Paris was saved and the first flush of the German march stemmed.

Illinois Heads Nation In Farm Machinery Use

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Illinois agriculture is the most mechanized in the country, according to an announcement by the state department of agriculture. In making the announcement, the department quoted figures from a recent survey of the American Petroleum institute. At the end of 1938 Illinois farmers had 138,192 tractors in use, while Iowa stood second with 125,308 and Texas third with 98,966. Illinois used 9 per cent of the 1,525,000 tractors in use in the entire country, he said. The survey also showed that the number of tractors in use last year in Illinois was double the 1930 figure of 70,000.

The department pointed out that four of the country's largest tractor manufacturers are located in Illinois and annually supply the great bulk of farm machinery to the United States and foreign countries.

Asserts Salt Water Fish Is Facing Extermination

WASHINGTON.—The ocean is not full of fish, a prominent geologist said, and the United States is in danger of using up what fish supplies are left on its "continental shelf" off the Atlantic coast.

Practically all fish are concentrated off the coast lines where they can obtain food, Dr. Frederick W. Lee of Washington told the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics. Extensive fishing operations are rapidly depleting the number of fish, he said, and if fishing is not regulated by the federal government "there won't be any supply of fish along our eastern coast."

The Subconscious Mind

The expressions, conscious and subconscious mind, are well defined psychological terms. The subconscious mind may be defined as anything that is neither in the focus nor in the margin of the consciousness (that is, that does not receive attention and cannot be regarded as an actual experience of the moment), but which, nevertheless, must be assumed to be influencing the mind in some way.

Genealogy of Clocks

In England clocks for rooms, as distinguished from the costly and elaborate timepieces which were used on public buildings, appear to have been introduced about the year 1600. They were known as the "lantern," the "bird cage," and the "bedpost" clocks. They usually stood on a wall bracket.

Important Fashions In Simple Patterns

THE smock-frock is really a fashion, not just a comfortable maternity dress. It's smart and young and practical. No. 1833 is a version of it that may be worn for afternoon, because the pleats, in both the smock top and the adjustable slip skirt, give it a touch of dressiness. Make it of flat crepe, thin wool or georgette.

Good for a Whole Wardrobe. Unusually useful is the pretty frock for little girls (1836) because it can be made in two ways—with round collar and frills, or with the plain square neckline. Therefore you can thriftily make a whole wardrobe for your own small daughter, by using this simple pattern again and again. School cottons, like gingham or linen, as well as challis and jersey, are smart fabrics for it.

The Patterns. No. 1833 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with short sleeves; 5 1/4 yards with long sleeves; 1 1/4 yards for the top of the slip; 3/4 yard for contrasting revers, cuffs, collar.

No. 1836 is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires 1 1/4 yards of 35-inch material; 1/2 yard for contrasting collar; 2 yards of pleating or frills.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Intricate Carving

China possesses the only ivory carvers who are able to make "puzzle balls." Starting with a solid sphere of ivory about the size of an orange, they finish first the outside ball and then, carving through decorative holes about three-quarters of an inch in diameter, make eight similar balls inside it, each smaller than and separated from the next outer one.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble? If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted breakfast cereal is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew. Eat Kellogg's All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

"Baldy," Evans said, "I don't agree with you that it was—the money. That may have helped in her decision. But I think she cares—"

"For Towne—nonsense."

"It isn't nonsense. She knows nothing of love. She may have taken the shadow for the substance. And he can be very—charming." It wrung his heart to say it. But almost with clairvoyance he saw the truth.

When they returned to the house Baldy found a message from Edith. He was to call her up.

"Uncle Frederick has just told me," she said, "that Jane is to be my aunt. Isn't it joyful?"

"I'm not sure."

"Why not?"

"Oh, Towne's all right. But not for Jane."

"I see. But he's really in love with her, poor old duck. Talked about it all through dinner. He's going to try awfully hard to make her happy."

"Then you approve?"

He heard her gay laugh over the wire. "It will be nice—to have you—in the family. I'll be your niece-in-law."

"You'll be nothing of the kind."

"You can't help being—Uncle Baldy. Isn't that—delicious? And now, will you come in tonight and sit by my fire? Uncle Frederick is out."

"I've sat too often by your fire."

"Too often for your own peace of mind? I know that. And I'm glad of it." Again he heard a ripple of laughter.

"It isn't a thing to laugh at."

She hesitated, then said in a different tone, "I am not laughing. But I want you by my fire tonight."

It was late when Evans went upstairs. He had spent the evening with his mother, discussing with her some matters where his legal knowledge helped. They did not speak of Jane. Their avoidance of the subject showed their preoccupation with it. But neither dared approach it.

On the bedside table in Evans' room lay the valentine he had bought for Jane. There it was, with its cupids and bleeding hearts—its forget-me-nots—and golden darts.

Arthur Lane and Sandy talked it over. "I wonder what has happened. He looks dreadful."

The two boys were on their way to Castle Manor. They wanted books. Evans' library was a treasure-house for youthful readers. It had all the old adventuring tales. And Evans had read everything. He would simply walk up to a shelf, lay his hand on a book, and say, "Here's one you'll like." And he was never wrong.

But of late, Evans Follette had met them with an effort. "Look for yourselves," he had said, when they asked for books, and had sat staring into the fire. And he had not urged them to stay. His manner had been kind but inattentive. They were puzzled and a little hurt. "I feel sorta queer when he acts that way," Sandy was saying, "as if he didn't take any interest. I don't even know whether he wants us any more."

Arthur refused to believe his hero inhospitable. "It's just that he's got things on his mind."

They reached the house and rang the bell. Old Mary let them in. "He's in the library," she said, and they went towards it. The door was open and they entered. But the room was empty.

That morning Baldy had had a letter from Jane and had handed it to Evans. It was the first long letter since her engagement to Towne. Baldy had written to his sister, flammily, demanding to know if she were really happy. And she had said:

"I shall be when Judy is better. That is all I can think of just now. Her life is hanging in the balance. We can never be thankful enough that we got the specialist when we did. He had found the trouble. The question now is whether she will have the strength for another operation. When she gets through with that! Well, then I'll talk to you, darling. I hardly know how I feel. The days are so whirling. Mr. Towne has been more than generous. If the little I can give him will repay him, then I must give it, dearest. And it won't be hard. He is so very good to me."

And now this letter had come after Towne's second visit:

"Baldy, dear, I am very happy. And I want you to set your mind at rest. I am not marrying Mr. Towne for what he has done for us all, but because I love him. Please believe it. You can't understand what he has been to me in these dark days. I have learned to know how kind he is—and how strong. I haven't a care in the world when he is here, and everything is so—marvellous. You should see my ring—a great sapphire, Baldy, in a square of diamonds. He is crazy to buy things for me, but I won't let him. I will take things for Judy but not for myself. You can see that, of course. I just go everywhere with him in my cheap little frocks, to the theaters and to all the great restaurants, and we have the most delectable things to eat. It is really great fun."

Since he had heard the news of Jane's approaching marriage, Evans had lived in a dream. The people about him had seemed shadow-shapes. He had walked and talked with them, remembering nothing afterward but his great weariness. He had eaten his meals at stated times, and had not known what he was eating. He had gone to his office, and behind closed doors had sat at his desk, staring.

And now this letter! "You see what she says," Baldy had raged. "Of course she isn't in love with him. But she thinks she is. There's nothing more that I can do."

Evans had taken the letter to the library to read. He was alone, except for Rusty, who had limped after him and laid at his feet.

She loved—Towne. And that settled it. "I am marrying Mr. Towne because I love him." Nothing could be plainer than that. Baldy might protest. But the words were there.

As Evans sat gazing into the fire, he saw her as she had so often been in this old room—as a child, sprawled on the hearth-rug over some entrancing book from his shelves, swinging her feet on the edge of a table while he bragged of his athletic prowess; leaning over war-maps, while he pointed out the fields of fighting; curled up in a corner on the couch while he read to her—"Oh, silver shrine, here will I take my rest."

He could stand his thoughts no longer. Without hat or heavy coat, he stepped through one of the long windows and into the night.

As he walked on in the darkness, he had no knowledge of his destination. He swept on and on, pursued by dreadful thoughts.

On and on through the blackness. . . . No moon . . . a wet wind blowing . . . on and on . . .

He came to a bridge which crossed a culvert. No water flowed under it. But down the road which led through the Glen was another bridge, and beneath it a deep, still pool.

With the thought of that deep and quiet pool came momentary relief from the horrors which had hounded him. It would be easy. A second's struggle. Then everything over. Peace. No fears. No dread of the future . . .

It seemed a long time after, that, leaning against the buttress of the bridge, he heard, with increasing clearness, the sound of boys' voices in the dark.

He drew back among the shadows. It was Sandy and Arthur. Not three feet away from him—passing.

"Well, of course, Mr. Follette is just a man," Sandy was saying.

"Maybe he is," Arthur spoke earnestly, "but I don't know. There's something about him—"

He paused.

"Go on," Sandy urged.

"Well, something"—Arthur was struggling to express himself, "splendid. It shines like a light—"

Their brisk footsteps left the bridge, and were dulled by the dirt road beyond. Sandy's response was inaudible. A last murmur, and then silence.

Evans was swept by a wave of emotion; his heart, warm and alive, began to beat in the place where there had been frozen emptiness.

"Something splendid—that shines like a light!"

Years afterward he spoke of this moment to Jane. "I can't describe it. It was a miracle—their coming. As much of a miracle as that light which shone on Paul as he rode to Damascus. The change within me was absolute. I was born again. All the old fears slipped from me like a garment. I was saved, Jane, by those boys' voices in the dark."

The next day was Sunday. Evans called up Sandy and Arthur and invited them to supper. "Old Mary said you were here last night, and didn't find me. I've a book or two for you. Can you come and get them? And stay to supper. Miss Towne will be here and her uncle."

The boys could not know that they were asked as a shield and buckler in the battle which Evans was fighting. It seemed to him that he could not meet Frederick Towne. Yet it had been, of course, the logical thing to ask him. Edith had invited herself, and Towne had, of course, much to tell about Jane.

Evans, therefore, with an outward effect of tranquillity, played the host. After supper, however, he took the boys with him to the library.

On the table lay a gray volume. He opened it and showed the Cruikshank illustrations.

"I've been reading this. It's great stuff."

"Oh, Pilgrim's Progress," said Sandy; "do you like it?"

"Yes," Evans leaned above the book where it lay open under the light, and started to read to them.

That night Evans found out for the first time something about his mother. "You look tired, dearest," he had said, when their guests were gone, and he and she had come into the great hall together.

"I am tired. She sat down on an old horsehair sofa. "I can't stand much excitement. It makes me feel like an old lady."

"You'll never grow old." He felt a deep tenderness for her in this moment of confessed weakness. She had always been so strong. Had refused to lean. She had, in fact, taken from him his son's prerogative of protectiveness.

"You'd better see Hallam," Evans said.

"I've seen him."

"What did he say?"

"My heart—"

He looked at her in alarm. "Mother! Why didn't you tell me?"

"What was the use? There's nothing to be worried about. Only he says I must not push myself."

"I am worried. Let me look after the men in the morning early. That will give you an extra nap."

"Oh, I won't do it, Evans. You have your work."

"It won't hurt me. And I am going to boss you around a bit." He stooped and kissed her. "You are too precious to lose, Mumsie."

She clung to him. "What would I do without you, my dear?"

He helped her up the stairs. And as she climbed slowly, his arm about her, he thought of that dark moment by the bridge.

If those young voices had not come to him in the night, this loving soul might have been stricken and made desolate; left alone in her time of greatest need.

CHAPTER XIII

Once more the Washington papers had headlines that spoke of Delafield Simms. He had married a stenographer in Frederick Towne's office. And it was Towne's niece that he had deserted at the altar.

And most remarkable of all, Edith Towne had been at the wedding. It was Eloise Harper who told the reporters.

"They were married at the old Inn below Alexandria this morning, by the local Methodist clergyman. Miss Logan is a Methodist—fancy. And Edith is bridesmaid."

But Eloise did not know that Lucy had worn the wedding dress and looked lovely in them. And that after the ceremony, Delafield had wrung Edith's hand and had said, "I shall never know how to thank you for what you have been to Lucy."

"Gee, but you're superlative," Baldy told her as they walked in the garden.

"Am I?"

"Yes. And the way you carried it off."

"I didn't carry it off. It carried itself."

"Are you sure it didn't hurt?" She smiled at him from beneath her big hat. "Not a bit."

The moment was ripe for romance. But Baldy almost feverishly kept the conversation away from serious things. They had talked seriously enough. God knew, the other night by Edith's fire. He had seen her lonely in the thought of her future.

"When Uncle Fred marries I won't stay here."

He had yearned to take her in his arms, to tell her that against his heart she should never again know loneliness. But he had not dared. What had he to offer? A boy's love. Against her gold.

So he talked of Jane. "She doesn't want her engagement announced until she gets back. I think she's right."

"I don't," Edith said lazily. "If I loved a man I'd want to shout it to the world."

They were sitting on a rustic bench under the blossoming plum tree. Edith's hands were clasped behind her head, and the winged sleeves of her gown fell back and showed her bare arms. Baldy wanted to unclasp those hands, crushed them to his lips—but instead he stood up, looking over the river.

"Do you see the ducks out there? Wild ones at that. A sign of spring."

She rose and stood beside him. "And you can talk of—ducks—on a day like this?"

"Yes," he did not look at her, "ducks are—safe."

He heard her low laugh. "Silly boy."

He turned, his gray eyes filled with limpid light. "Perhaps I am. But I should be a fool if I told you how I love you. Worship you. You know it, of course. But nothing can come of it, even if I were presumptuous enough to think that you—care."

She swept out her hands in an appealing gesture. "Say it. I want to hear."

She was adorable. But he drew back a little. "We've gone too far and too fast. It is my fault, of course, for being a romantic fool."

"I'm afraid we're a pair of romantic fools, Baldy."

He turned and put his hands on her shoulders. "Edith, I—mustn't."

"Why not?"

"Not until I have something to offer you—"

"You have something to offer—"

"Oh, I know what you mean. But I won't. Somehow this affair of Jane's with your uncle has made me see—"

"See what?"

"Oh, how the world would look at it. How he'd look at it."

"Uncle Frederick? He hasn't anything to do with it. I'm my own mistress."

Great Lakes Shrinking; Geologists Do Not Agree

That in the comparatively recent past our Great Lakes were much larger than they are today is no secret. And indications that the recession is continuing are easily discoverable. But just how rapidly the outlines and levels of the lakes change is another matter, and some reports made by two men from the University of Michigan invite attention to this somewhat important question, says Detroit Free Press.

Recently Dr. E. G. Greenman, archeologist, uncovered on Great Cloche island in the Georgian bay region the evidences of a great gathering of Indians at a spot which was then on the beach of the lake. But this same spot is 28 feet higher than the present beach.

Estimating that the water table has been falling for some thousands of years at the rate of a foot in from 38 to 50 years, Dr. George M. Stanley after studying the site believes the Red Men held their powwow and feast somewhere between 500 and 800 A. D.

However, all geologists are not in agreement regarding the rate at which the big lakes have been receding, and the estimate of one conservative savant would put the gathering back about 3,500 years, which would be in the neighborhood of 1600 B. C.

The difference in estimates seems in considerable degree to be a difference of opinion about the steadiness of the rate of recession. And it is quite understandable that the shrinkage may have been much more rapid just after the glaciers melted and the lake outlets were numerous and bigger than today.

Another point that needs to be taken into account is the changing tilt of some of the shoreline.

There are strong indications that not so long ago the land in the vicinity of the Straits of Mackinac, for example, was definitely lower than it is today, perhaps because the compression caused by the weight of the big glaciers still remained. And there also are indications that the land levels at the southern end of Lake Michigan were higher.

Certainly we know that lands have emerged at the Straits and have been engulfed in the regions near Chicago.

So how much of the rise of the shore at Grand Cloche and other places is due to lake shrinkage and how much is the result of the elasticity of earth which has been relieved of a great weight is quite a question.

Indeed, it's the uncertainty about all this that makes the subject fascinating.

THE CITIZENS OF THE KINGDOM
LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

Great and historic discourses are preserved with care and are read by succeeding generations with profit and interest even though they are recognized to be the utterances of weak and fallible men. The lesson before us presents what is "undoubtedly the greatest single discourse ever uttered by any teacher or statesman or philosopher in the whole history of the human race" (Smith). Take up your Bible and read the words of the text.

These verses are addressed to believers, to those who have actually taken Christ as king of their lives. These beatitudes are not a substitute for the gospel. They are not laws that the unbeliever can keep and thus be saved, for this would be utterly impossible for anyone to do, except the one who has been born again. Only he who knows and has called upon the power and grace of God in Christ can qualify to walk as a citizen of His kingdom.

I. The Christian's King (vv. 1, 2).
The words which fell from the blessed lips of the Lord Jesus on that day as He sat on the mountain-side were not the powerless declarations of an earthly philosopher or statesman, but of the Son of God who had humbled Himself and become the Son of Man who was still the King of kings and the Lord of lords. If you have not given glad and free allegiance to Him, do it now and you will then be ready to go on and learn of the Christian's character and influence which may be your possession in Christ.

II. The Christian's Character (vv. 3-12).
The eight characteristics of the Christian here presented are worthy of extended individual attention, but we can offer only brief suggestions.
"Blessed are the poor in spirit" speaks of humility as a commendable quality. How contradictory the present-day philosophy which calls for self-assertion and self-reliance. But Jesus is not mistaken. The way into the kingdom of heaven is not that of assertive self-sufficiency.
"Blessed are they that mourn." The world does not believe that statement. It shuns the house of mourning. It tries without avail to philosophize away the fact of sorrow. The Christian, on the other hand, feels with his fellow man and thus receives a blessing.

"I walked a mile with Pleasure. She chattered all the way; But left me none the wiser For all she had to say."

"I walked a mile with Sorrow. And ne'er a word said she; But, oh, the things I learned from her When Sorrow walked with me."

"Blessed are the meek." Ah, yes, poverty of spirit comes when a man rightly sees himself, and has a sympathetic touch with sorrow. Then he "inherits the earth," because he truly comes to enjoy it as a place of service and Christian growth, and not because he has a deed to a single foot of its soil.

"Note that it is the hunger and thirst for righteousness, and not the possession of it, that is blessed" (Plummer). Self-satisfied people know nothing of the glory of having such a hunger and thirst filled by God.

Time fails us to speak of the Christian's spirit of mercy which invites divine mercy; that purity of heart and absolute cleanness of mind and sincerity of purpose which enable a man really to see God even in this impure world; that Christlike spirit which makes him a peacemaker in a fighting world—yes, that spirit which makes him like the Master in sweetly bearing unjustified persecution. These indeed are the marks of the man who follows Christ as King.

III. The Christian's Influence (vv. 13-16).
"Salt" and "light"! What pungent and powerful folk are the real followers of Christ!

Salt fights against rotteness, keeps things sweet and fresh. Dr. J. H. Jowett says, Christians "are to confront rotteness in politics; they are to meet it in the realm of business; they are to make for it in the field of sport; they are to be its enemies in the crowded streets of common intercourse; they are to defeat it in the quiet and sequestered ways of art and literature; everywhere they are to provide the antidote to corruption, and they are to overcome and destroy it."

Light has one function, namely, to illuminate. Wickedness and sin always love darkness, because their deeds are evil (read John 3:19-21). If Christ really dwells in us we cannot help but shed light about us wherever we go—a divine light which drives out the darkness of sin, of ignorance, of superstition, and replaces it with the sunlight of God.

Strange Facts
Worth Quarter More Sleepers' Etiquette Rents the Earth

The ruler of Jaipur, India, the Maharaja Sawai Mau Singi Bahadur, like his predecessor, uses Sawai in his name to increase his prestige. The word, meaning "one fourth better than others," makes him a maharaja and a quarter. Lest his subjects forget that they have a 125-per cent monarch, his royal flag carries a quarter-sized duplicate directly beneath it.

When the Great Bed of Wear, which holds 12 sleepers, was presented to King Edward IV of England in 1463, he employed a special guardian and had prepared a list of rules of etiquette that all who slept in this bed had to observe for the peace and comfort of their bedfellows.

In Caracas, capital of Venezuela, a city with a population of more than 150,000, all the 600-odd street intersections have their own individual names, such as Las Gradillas or La Torre. They, instead of street names and numbers, are used as addresses.

Each time a horse show, rodeo or circus is held in Madison Square Garden in New York city, the Garden has to provide 700 tons of earth, which it rents from a local contractor at a cost of about $2,500.—Collier's.

Handy Small Table
Made of Camp Stool

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
HAVE you ever wished for a small, low table that would appear from nowhere and disappear again when you were through with it? Have you ever thought it would be nice if Father's ottoman could be folded up and put out of the way when not in use? Or perhaps you have unpacked a suit case in a guest room and wished for something other than the bed; a chair or the floor to put it on during the process?

A camp stool plus a tray to fit the top makes a very satisfactory small table to place beside a game table or to set up for your books or mending basket by your favorite chair. But be sure to dress it up so that it will look its best either when in use or when folded up and placed in some out of the way corner. A remnant of material and some upholstery braid will do the trick. Stain and wax are suggested for the base as paint might be marred in folding the stool.

The citizenship class is making Safety First posters. We hope that they will profit by these posters.
My Favorite Sport is the title of the theme which the English III class is writing. They are making outlines of it in preparation for the oratorical contest later in the year.

The keynote of one of the addresses given by Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Rhode at the Teachers Institute at Flint on Friday last week was a definition of democracy. She borrowed it from Abraham Lincoln. She said, "Democracy is a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, in which all people share both the privileges and responsibilities. Government of the people implies the privileges we get and by the people and for the people, suggests the responsibilities we all must assume." Such a principal should be the foundation of the teaching of citizenship in all our schools. It should be practiced by all adults. Our great fault today is to "take for granted" the privileges and fail to assume the responsibilities.

Because of the heavy frosts the field work of the botany class has been discontinued until spring.
The economics class has completed the text work for the first two divisions of the subject, consumption and production. The next division of the subject to be taken into consideration is exchange. This includes the very important topic of money which is known as the medium of exchange.
SEVENTH and EIGHTH GRADES
Pupils receiving "A" in history test Tuesday were Evelyn Colby, Maxine DePotty and Hugo Wagner. The seventh grade are studying construction of sentences and the eighth grade are studying paragraphing in English.

Harold Burtzloff is absent this week as he is entertaining his mumps. Every one seemed glad to be back in school after two days vacation.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
George Beimers, a third grade pupil, moved to Grand Rapids last week. He has returned to his former home. The fourth grade library hour was very interesting. Nearly every person presented a book. Pictures were shown, amusing incidents related and selections read from the books. The pupils seemed to enjoy most the presentation of Lucy Perkins' Dutch Twins by Alice Christensen.
Halloween owls were colored by all students in the room. Each tried to make his the fiercest. Richard Berube's, Donald Britting's and Donald Gingerich's were selected by the group as the best colored.
Eye tests were given Monday as part of the year's hygiene work. Four pupils were found with defective eye-sight, only one of whom is wearing glasses, it is hoped that all may wear glasses before the year ends.

PRIMARY
We all enjoyed our two days vacation last Thursday and Friday.
One of our boys had an airplane trip from Detroit to Oscoda.
Tuesday we have had perfect attendance and no tardy marks.

Factual Report of War Activities

JOSEPH W. LABINE

THE war in Europe is the one subject of interest to all our readers, but the moves on the checkerboards of the battlefields and diplomacy are not easily understood.
America is being flooded from every war-torn nation with vast quantities of propaganda for the purpose of influencing public opinion in this country. Reports of actual happenings are so severely censored, and so many false reports are issued, that it is hard to get a fair account of actual happenings.
Scare headlines appear in the daily papers of the world, only to be contradicted or forgotten in the next edition because there was no actual foundation for the statements covered by such headings.

In the Weekly News Analysis we are printing each week, our readers find a concise factual statement of events in Europe, with such interpretation, explanation and comment as will make the report of these actual happenings easily understood. It provides the most valuable coverage of the war to be found in any publication.

Weekly News Analysis is prepared for us each week by Mr. Joseph W. LaBine, a careful observer and talented writer, who has made a thorough study of European history of modern times and of European armaments.

Mr. LaBine is a product of rural America. He was born and raised in a small town and completed his education at a mid-western university, where he majored in journalism. Following his completion of the journalism course, he worked on a weekly newspaper, before going into the metropolitan field. He has specialized as a commentator and is recognized as having unusual ability in that line. His Weekly News Analysis, as it appears in our columns, presents evidence of that ability.

Our readers can confidently accept Mr. LaBine's statements of war happenings, and his comments, as the basis of their discussions of the war.

McKinley Elected, Defeated
William McKinley, elected President twice and governor twice, was previously defeated for the speakership of the national house of representatives.

Ohio's First Constitution
Either Ohio's first constitution, adopted in 1802, was flawless—or something—but not an item in it was changed for half a century.
