The experimental house, being pictured in the newspapers, as scientists seek to trap sunlight and store it in the cellar for winter use, is traceable to Dr. Cabot. In 1937, he gave Har-vard university $615,773 to carry forward some of his ideas about storing solar energy. A year later, he gave a similar amount to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the same pur-pose. And now Prof. Hoyt C. Hottel of M. I. T. has his sun-shine bungalow built, with a heat trap on the roof, sluicing sunshine down into the cellar. Perhaps with a winter supply of sunshine, put up like jelly or preserves, nobody would want to start a war.

He has been a generous patron of aviation, learning to fly a seaplane in his late years, inventing a system by which a plane can pick up fuel in flight, and is now governor and former president of the National Aeronautic association. He has endowed various branches of research, including botanical studies.

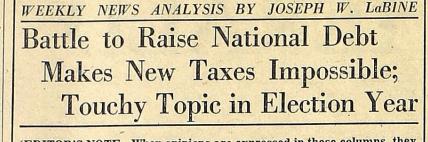

A native of Boston, he attended M. I. T. two years, was graduated from Harvard in 1882, and laid the basis of his fortune manufacturing lampblack in Worthington, Pa., in 1887, branching out in gases and carbides.

Next spring the national debt will reach its $45,000,000,000 legal limit. To circumvent the issue or force an increase through a hostile congress during an election year will provide such a test of political etiquette that the New Deal will have little stomach for a tax-boosting campaign. If anything, it will be smart politics to slash expenditures.

There were signs in late November that such attempts might be made. One by one, administration spokesmen purred for the press: Said Mississippi's Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee: "Receipts are showing up fine. The way they are coming "Receipts are showing up in gladdens our hearts. If . . . we can cut down expenses somewhat, we may get along without a tax bill."

Said Utah's Sen. William King, fresh from a White House conference: "The President evinced great interest in a policy that would prevent large deficits.

EUROPE: Mad War

Spies, parachutes and trade conversations made bigger news than actual warfare as Europe ended the third month of its strange war. And if any deduction could be drawn from this mad sequence of illogical activity on a hundred fronts, it was that Europe is already pretty sick of war, more and more convinced that nobody wins. The new "weapon" Adolf Hitler threatened during his speech at Danzig took form in a new sea mine to the picture. National defense, which last year cost $1,500,000,000, may easily reach $3,000,000,000 this year and would thus wipe out the boost in tax receipts. Relief costs are predicted at $1,000,000,000 against $1,400,000,000 this year, a comparatively small cut. Summed up, the budget will probably hit a rough $9,000,000,000, which still fails to reverse the spending trend.

The allies were more successful in other branches of warfare. No one knew how many French-British planes had been lost, but 20 Nazi airships were allegedly shot down in two days' warfare over the West-ern front. At sea the French destroyer Siroco sank two German submarines within three days. While Berlin was genuinely worried by disorders in the Czech province, where eight students had been purged, the Nazis were making the most of another disorder. Heinrich Himmler, chief of the feared Gestapo, announced simultaneously that a German named Georg Elser and two British intelligence officers, Mr. Best and Captain Stevens, had been arrested in connection with the Munich beer hall explosion which almost cost Hitler's life. Food Allergy Or Appendix? Hard to Tell

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON WHEN a hurried call is sent to a physician to attend a patient with vomiting and severe abdominal pains, his first thought is likely to be that the condi- TODAY'S tion is appendici-tis and, if life is to HEALTH be saved, immedi- COLUMN ate operation is necessary. It is certainly a wiser choice to operate than to wait too long and allow the appendix to burst.

But vomiting spells and severe pains in the abdomen may be due to poisoning by a certain food to which the patient is allergic or sensitive. Instead of sneezing, large hives appearing on the skin, swollen face, thickened tongue and mucous membrane, the food may cause such severe abdominal pains that pus in the gall bladder or in the appendix may be suspect-ed, which conditions require immediate operation.

The symptoms of food allergy may appear on the skin, stomach and intestines, nose and throat, bladder, nerves and elsewhere in the body. In most cases the patient and family know that food allergy or sensitiveness exists because there have been previous attacks of head colds, migraine or one-sided headache abdominal upsets, hives and other symptoms which cleared up promptly with or without treatment by use of adrenalin

- epinephrine - or Dr. Barton other remedies.

Nourishing Foods Disagree.

I have spoken before of the work on food allergy reported by Drs. Walter Alvarez and H. C. Hinshaw, Mayo clinic, in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The foods that most commonly disagree with people are really among the most nourishing foods eaten. The list in the order in which they cause symptoms in any group are: (1) wheat, (2) chocolate, (3) eggs, (4) milk, (5) beans, (6) peas, (7) potatoes, (8) tomatoes, (9) corn, (10) beef, (11) onion, (12) pork, (13) fish, (14) nuts.

Is there any simple way that one can find out which food is causing the symptoms that so much resemble appendicitis or serious abdominal trouble?

The taking of cod liver oil to build

Cod Liver Oil Is 'Bottled Sunshine' Lights of New York by L. L. STEVENSON

Hurdy-gurdies were banished long ago by an order of Mayor LaGuardia-now and then some bold soul does bootleg a little music and takes a chance with the cops—and little German bands have disappeared even in Yorkville. Bells on the carts of junk dealers are restricted by law to a certain size—many wagon operators use the legal sized bell but instead of one have a number— and barkers in front of movie houses and elsewhere must not raise their voices. The blaring of loud speak-ers on Cortland street—the Radio Row of the past-were muted when wireless changed from build-yourown to a-dollar-down-and-the-restoccasionally. Since the elevated has been razed there is quiet along Sixth avenue. In the not distant future there will be similar stillness along Ninth avenue.

One familiar street noise still remains. By judicial decision, it is entirely legal. In fact, it has been held judicially, it is a helpful sort of sound, especially to the ears of housewives. The reference is to the tinkle of the bell of the scissorsgrinder. The matter came to a head recently in Coney Island court. A zealous patrolman brought before Magistrate Jeanette G. Brill a knife sharpener he'd found in the Fort Hamilton section of Brooklyn. The charge against him was violating the administrative code by ringing a bell to attract the attention of housewives. There didn't seem to be much question about the man's guilt as the bell had been brought into court with him. As a matter of fact, he admitted that he had been ringing it when apprehended.

The scissors-grinder didn't pay a fine or go to jail, however. Magis-trate Brill found him guilty but didn't impose any sentence. Her ruling was that housewives welcome the sound of knife sharpeners' bells. To that, she added that New York wouldn't be New York without them. And so the culprit went out to ring his bell some more. But not in midtown. I've been carrying a dull knife for weeks just because I haven't heard the tinkle of a bell.

Midtown Manhattan's most dangerous zone is the area between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth streets and Sixth and Seventh avenues. The assertion is based on a study of Roosevelt hospital's first 2,000 ambulance calls made public recently by Dr. Joe R. Clemmons, director of the hospital. Five surgeons, attached to the ambulance service which went into effect July 5, said that more calls came from that area than from any other locality be-tween Pennsylvania station and Sev-enty-second street, with the busiest time of the entire day between four and six p. m.

A combination of pedestrian crowds and heavy motorcar traffic was given as the reason for the prevalence of accidents and illness in that section. Speaking as one who has been swirled about by midtown crowds after offices, stores and other places have closed, and especially as one who has escaped taxi death by inch fractions scores of times, I am inclined to believe that the analysis is entirely correct. As a matter of fact, almost always when I'm in that section in late afternoon, I hear the siren or bell of an ambulance.

Mr. Douglas is in the midst of a strictly orthodox aviation career, without any stunting or barnstorming. A Brooklyn boy, he was grooved quietly through the M. I. T. and into the Glenn Martin plant, as chief engineer. He will get an important niche in aviation history as the designer of the first plane to lift its own weight. That proved him an expert on the pay-load, an advantage which he has pressed hard.

He was in the U. S. signal corps at the start of the World war. In 1920, he founded the Plane Manufacturing company which later became Douglas Aircraft.

York.

For 60 years he has carried a clothes-pin as a symbol of his personal salvation. He and his father made clothes-pins. An old lady bought some and gave him a Bible. He was 18 years old then, had never slept under a roof, and was unable to read, but he taught himself with the Bible. He is a small, spruce, compact man, with broad shoulders and the general look of a successful business man. He thinks the great evangelists, Dwight L. Moody and Charles G. Finney, helped to end other depressions and that the way out of this one is the path of a new faith for the multitude.

His name was Petulengro, and he couldn't spell it when he first learned to read. He believes great wars and disasters will end when we have become "masters of small things," but that faith and religion must be of ever widening scope. It must be persuasive rather than militant evangelism, he insists. (Consolidated Features-WNU Service.)

aly and Germany. Even Britain, trying to make friends in the Far East, was rumored about to capitulate. But Jap Premier Nobuyuki Abe realized Chinese resistance was not easily broken. Threatened he: "Japan will keep troops there until China is entirely free from the Communist menace."

Another menace was the U.S. At Washington, Undersecretary of State told his press conference that Americans in China-especially at the Tientsin British concession-are being molested by the Japs. He also emphasized that the U.S. still insists its citizens have every right to pursue their commercial enterprises in China, regardless of Ja-up resistance to colds and other infections is now a well-established custom in many families and preparatory schools. This is especially true during the days when there is not much sunshine. Cod liver oil is sometimes called "bottled sunshine.'

A few years ago surgeons found that in old injuries to bone, where infection was present, scraping away the dead bone and tissue and filling the space with cod liver oil brought about more rapid healing. This cod liver oil treatment for old wounds is now a recognized procedure in many countries.

A still further use for cod liver oil in what may be called a "surface" infection is recorded by Dr. I. A. Manville, Portland, Ore., in Northwest Medicine. One of the mean and persistent afflictions is ulcerative colitis, an ulcerated condition of the large intestine or colon. There is alternating diarrhea and constipation with pus and blood, symptoms which resemble cancer, as there is also the loss of weight. Treatment by injections of boracic acid and other preparations bring disappointing results in many cases. Manville's Method.

Dr. Manville devised a method of applying the cod liver oil to the lining surface of the last two or three feet of the large intestine (colon). The apparatus is composed of an ordinary paint gun as used in applying paint by the spray method. The only difference is that the nozzle is especially designed so that the tip will barely protrude beyond the end of the sigmoidoscope-the instrulast few inches of the bowel for examination purposes. The air pressure is adjusted by the use of an air pressure reduction gauge so that it is barely sufficient to deliver a spray at the top of the nozzle. After

Have Odd Yule Rites preparing the patient with a cleansing enema, the sigmoidoscope is inserted full length, the nozzle of the spray gun placed in position, and the pressure released. The entire apparatus is slowly withdrawn, thus leaving a thin coat of cod liver oil applied directly to the lining surface of the lower bowel.

SPAGHETTI WITH CHIPPED BEEF (Recipes Below.

Old Fashioned Hospitality

With Thanksgiving back of us and winter ahead perhaps this is an excellent time to ask ourselves some searching questions—to be answered just by ourselves.

Do we as homemakers really enoy neighbors and friends? As they ass our house on our street do they hink of us with a friendly warmth? Or have we, perhaps unknowingly, allowed ourselves to be so busy, so concerned about the tasks of the day that we have forgotten that after all the biggest joy in living comes because it is the privilege of each one to "live in my house by the side of the road and be a friend to man." Let's entertain then, but let's entertain simply, informally, inexpen-sively. And thinking that you might like to do just this, I have collected for you this week a number of my favorite recipes for just such easy entertaining. Please note the little hints that are attached to each of the recipes.

Spaghetti With Chipped Beef. (Serves 4)

This recipe is particularly nice for a one-dish meal when guests arrive unexpectedly.

1 large (24-ounce) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce 1 5-ounce jar chipped beef

1 cup fat

Heat spaghetti. Frizzle the chipped beef in the fat until crisp and brown. Then place the chipped beef in a border around the platter and pour the spaghetti in the center. Garnish with parsley or watercress.

Oven Fried Chicken. (Serves 4)

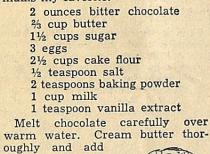

Oven fried chicken is one of the dishes that is particularly simple the beans. Add catsup, and then cover with remainder of baked beans. Sprinkle with brown sugar, and top with bacon strips. Bake in hot oven, (400 degrees) for 30 minutes. Serve at once.

Every year new and delicious pop corn recipes appear, to make new friends for this old favorite. Here is a treat for your family and friends:

Caramel Corn

1/2 cup water 2 tablespoons butter 1/2 tablespoon vinegar 2 quaris pop corn 1 cup white sugar 32 cup white corn syrup 2 tablespoons Borghum

Combine all ingredients except the corn. Cook until syrup becomes brittle when tested in cold water. Pour over popped corn, stirring the corn while pouring. Turn on to buttered platter.

Nigerian Law

Going to law among natives in northern Cameroon and Nigeria, West Africa, means going to the nearest crocodile pool. Disputes are settled by the disputants entering the pool, in the presence of witnesses, and trying to swim across. The truthful man, the natives believe, will succeed; the other will either refuse to swim or be eaten by a crocodile.

CHAPTER XVI-Continued -24-It was on the way home that Jane had said to Baldy: "I feel like a selfish pig."

"Why, my dear?" "To take your precious prize before it is cold. It doesn't seem right." "It isn't a question of right or wrong. If things turn out with these new people as I hope, I'll be painting like mad for the next two months. And you'll have your work cut out for you as my model. They like you, Jane. They said so." He had driven on steadily for a time, and had then said, "I never wanted you to marry him."

"Why not, Baldy?" He turned his lighted-up eyes upon her. "Janey-I wanted you to have your-dreams-" She had laid her hand on his arm in a swift caress. "You're a dar-ling—" and after a while, "Nothing can take us from each other, ever, Baldy.' Never had they drawn closer in spirit than at this moment. But they said very little about it. When they came to the house, Baldy went at once to the garage. "I'll answer that letter, and put in a good afternoon looking over my sketches." He did not tell her how gray the day stretched ahead of him—that golden day which had started with high hopes.

Jane changed to a loose straight frock of orange cotton, and without a hat, feeling actual physical freedom in the breaking of her bonds, she swung along the path to the little grove. It was aromatic with the warm scent of the pines, and there was a cool shade in the heart of it. Jane had brought a bag of stockings to mend, and sat down to her homely task, smiling a little as she thought of the contrast between this afternoon and yesterday, when she had sat on the rim of the fountain and watched Adelaide and the peacock. She had no feeling of rancor against Adelaide. She was aware only of a great thankfulness. She was, indeed, at the moment, steeped in divine content. Here was the place where she belonged. She had a sense of blissful escape. Merrymaid came down the path, her tail a plume. The kitten followed. A bronze butterfly floated across their vision, and they leaped for it-but it went above them-joyously towards the open blue of the sky. The two cats gazed after it, then composed themselves careful-said, "never." He stood up. "Jane, I could make you happy." He held her hand as she stood beside him.

She looked at him and knew that he could not. Her dreams had come back to her-of Galahad-of Robin Hood . . . the world of romance had again flung wide its gates . .

After Towne had gone she sat for a long time thinking it over. She blamed herself. She had broken her promise. Yet, he, too, had broken a promise.

She finished mending the stockings, and rolled them into compact balls. The little cats were asleepthe shadows were stretched out and the sun slanted through the pines. She had dinner to get, for her return had been unexpected, and Sophy had not been notified.

She might have brought to the thought of her tasks some faint feeling of regret. But she had none. She was glad to go in-to make an omelette-and cream the potatoesand have hot biscuits and berriesand honey.

Planning thus, competently, she raised her eyes-to see coming along the path the two boys who had of late been Evans' close companions. She spoke to them as they reached her. "Can't you stay a minute? I'll make you some lemonade.'

They stopped and looked at her in a way that startled her. "We can't," Arthur said; "we're going over to the Follettes. We thought we might help."

She stared at them. "Help? What do you mean?"

Sandy gasped. "Oh, didn't you know? Mrs. Follette died this morning .

Evans had found his mother at noon, lying on the couch at the foot of her bed. He had stayed at home in the morning to help her, and at ten o'clock she had gone up-stairs to rest a bit before lunch. Old Mary had called her, and she had not answered. So Evans had entered her room to find that she had slipped away peacefully from the world in which she exaggerated her own importance. It would go on without her. She had not been neighborly but the neighbors would all come and sympathize with her son. And

Evans, with his arms across their shoulders, drew the boys to him. 'It was good of you to come." "Miss Barnes said," again it was Sandy who spoke, "that perhaps we might get some pine from the little grove. That your mother liked it." "Miss Barnes? Is she back? Does she know?'

"We told her. She is coming right over.'

Baldy drove Jane in his little car. As she entered she seemed to bring the light in with her. She illumined the house like a torch.

_She walked swiftly towards Evans, and held out her hand. "My dear, I am so sorry."

"We came back unexpectedly." "I am so glad-you came." He was having a bad time with his voice. He could not go on ... Jane spoke to the boys. "Did you ask him about the pine branches?

Just those, and roses from the gar-Towne." "You always think of things-" "Baldy will take the boys to the grove, and do any errands you may have for him." She was her calm and competent self-letting him get control of his emotion while she di-

Baldy stopped at that. He could not speak here of the glory that encompassed him. He had said, "If death should come to us, Edith? Does anything else count?" And she had said, "Nothing." And now she was coming and they would pick roses together in the garden. And love and life would minister to a greater mystery . . .

When Baldy and the boys had gone, Jane and Evans opened the windows and pulled up the shades. The house was filled with clear light, and was cool in the breeze.

When they had finished, Jane said, 'That's all, I think. We can rest a bit. And presently it will be time for dinner.' "I don't want any dinner."

They were in the library. Outside was an amethyst twilight, with a young moon low in the sky. Evans and Jane stood by the window, looking out, and Jane asked in a hushed voice, "You don't want any dinner because she won't be at the other end of the table?"

"Yes." His face was turned from her. His hands were clinched. His throat was dry. For a moment he wished he were alone that he might weep for his mother.

And then Jane said, "Let me sit at the other end of your table."

He turned back to her, and saw her eyes, and what he saw made him reach out blindly for her handsympathy, tenderness—a womanly brooding tenderness.

"Oh, Evans, Evans," she said, "I am not going to marry Frederick

"Why not?" thickly.

"I don't love him." "Do you love me, Jane?"

She nodded and could not speak. They clung together. He wept and was not ashamed of it.

And standing there, with his head against her breast, Jane knew that she had found the best. Marriage was not a thing of luxury and soft living, of flaming moments of wild emotion. It was a thing of hardness shared, of spirit meeting spirit, of dream matching dream. Jane, that afternoon, had caught her breath as she had come into the darkened hall, and had seen Evans standing between those slender lads. So some day, perhaps, in this old house—his sons! THE END.

of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for December 3

CUNDAY

That which gives us even greater concern is that many who are Christians, who really know the Guide and who have the Guidebook, are also declaring themselves to be utterly bewildered. What is the reason? Obviously that they have not read the Book and have not talked with their Lord.

Our lesson for the coming Lord's Day touches on one of the problems which causes many Christians to question God's love and care. They find that their efforts to testify for Him by word or life meet with a violent reaction from a bitter world, and they discover that such a life involves personal sacrifice and frequently results in even the members of their own families turning against them. Can this be God's way of dealing with His people? The answer is found in His Word. The Christian is to be

I. Fearless in a Hostile World (vv. 24-28, 32, 33).

Note carefully that he is not to be silent (vv. 32, 33). We deny our Lord when we fail to speak for Him when we ought to do so. Christianity is not something to be hidden in one's own bosom, a fire to warm one's own soul. It is good news which is to be proclaimed even from the housetops.

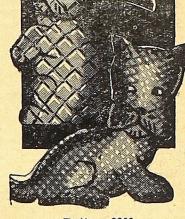

But, someone will say, when I do speak there is opposition; they call me names, they threaten to kill me. Yes, and what of it? "The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his Lord" (v. 24). They called Jesus a devil. They even crucified Him. Should we then expect to be borne to glory on flowery beds of ease? God knows all about this, yes, even about the hidden and whispered plottings of evil men (v. 26). He will deal with them and judge them in due season.

We need not fear men. The most they can do is to kill the body. Let us consider the eternal God, who not only may take the life out of the body, but is also able to cast both soul and body into hell (v. 28). God is not as a theory, a bit of pious imagination. He is real. He

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and cure it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medi-cine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"? If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day-and drink plenty of water-you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

He had had no lunch, so old Mary fixed a tray for him. He did not eat, but drank some milk. Then he and Rusty took up their restless wandering through the silent rooms. By TALBOT MUNDY

• Lynn Harding, a beautiful American girl, is vacationing in India as the guest of the Maharanee and Maharajah of Kadur. Two men enter her life: Carl Norwood, a level-headed officer of the British army, and charming, unscrupulous Prince Rundhia, heir to Kadur's throne.

In the inevitable conflict between the age-old customs of the East and the conventions of the West -made even more exciting by Norwood's efforts to settle a boundary dispute among the natives-Prince Rundhia pits all the craft and guile of Oriental philosophy against Norwood's Western code.

Lynn, attracted by something different in both men, watches breathlessly as the battle of wits and brawn works itself out to an overwhelming climax as dramatic as anything Mundy has ever written.

is all-powerful. Why then should we be fearful if we serve Him in faithful devotion?

II. Fearless in Personal Life (vv. 29-31).

It is one thing to be bold in the midst of battle. It is quite another thing to be fearless in the quiet of one's own room, or of one's own heart. Satan is expert at that point. He comes to us with his The iris of cats and some other humiliating accusations of our unanimals has an area called the worthiness, yes, of our worthlessness. Sadly enough our own knowledge of ourselves confirms his dismal judgment. But wait! If we are Christians we are not our own. We are bought with a price, the precious blood of Christ. We belong to Him. He is our advocate with the Father. Let Him meet our accuser. What does He say? He tells us that He has numbered the very hairs of our head (v. 30), that even a dying sparrow concerns Him, and that we are worth more than many spar-rows (v. 31). We are His and He is our Saviour, Friend and Brother. Let us look up and be without fear. III. Fearless in the Family Circle (vv. 34-39).

Here, after all, is the acid test of discipleship.

Christ did not come in order to stir up needless strife between members of the family, but He well knew that divisions would come as the result of true discipleship. Men who are ordinarily kind and cultured in their dealings with their friends and families but who do not know Christ, can become like veritable demons against any one in that circle who hears the call of Christ and follows Him.

No human tie, no matter how intimate or precious, is to be permitted to stand between the individual and his devotion to Christ. If it does, Christ is evidently no longer first. He is no longer Lord of all in the life, and if He is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all.

While it seems almost paradoxical to say it, Scripture teaches and experience demonstrates that if you keep your life for yourself and your own interests, it will die in your very hands and you will lose it. If you give your life in glad abandon to God, on the other hand, you will receive it back from Him transformed, enriched, and glorified by His grace and blessing.
