James H. Leslie, well known Tawas City businessman, announced yesterday (Thursday) that he had leased the Tawas City Recreation from Charles Moeller and has taken immediate possession. Mr. Leslie said, "Our alleys are now open and we invite you to come in and enjoy your favorite sport. We plan to keep this popular recreation hall open continuously during the present bowling season."

"A league meeting will be held at eight o'clock next Monday evening at the alleys. Sponsors and captains wishing to enter teams in league bowling should attend," said Mr. Leslie. "Indications are that we shall have three leagues, Majors, Minors and Ladies. Some of the old players are away in the army or in defense work, but there are many newcomers, and by streamlining our teams, we can enjoy an interesting bowling season."

"During the second week in October we shall have our alleys refinished to conform with regulations, but our alleys are in fine condition and the refitting will not interfere with your bowling."

"There is much excellent material in the advanced class for instructors consequently you are urged to develop this talent and prepare yourself to assist others to become proficient in first aid. This is your duty."

CD Plans System for Spotting Airplanes

An "airplane spotter system" for the northern district of Michigan was arranged last Thursday at a meeting of the Civilian Defense Council held at Alpena. Capt. Donald A. Leonard of the Michigan Civilian Defense Council was in charge of the meeting, and officers from the United States Army gave instructions.

Each county Civilian Council in the district was represented at the meeting. Isoco county's representatives were: E. A. Leaf, H. Read Smith, Ernest Burtzloff, W. A. DeGraw, Norman Salsbery, John Bellon, H. E. Townsend and Nada Mills.

As outlined at Alpena Isoco county will have primary posts located at Tawas City, Oscoda and Whittemore. With the posts in continuous operation, the day will be divided into four hour shifts. Forty-two volunteer spotters will be required for each post.

During the summer season information on the movements of airplanes in this district was furnished from the forestry fire towers, but these will soon be closed for the winter. This system will be superseded by the Civilian Defense airplane spotting posts.

Dialogue Overheard at Our Courthouse

The Judge: "Oh, no doubt—I often do."

DUCK SEASON WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Opening 5 Days Earlier Than in Previous Years

While weather news censorship forbids forecasts, it can be said that the sharp break from summer weather to frosty mornings and windy fall days a week before the duck season opened was a welcome change for Michigan's army of waterfowl hunters. On Michigan's marshes, pot-holes, lakes and stream they will get their first September duck shooting in more than a decade at sunrise, Saturday, September 26.

Opening five days earlier than in recent years, the season has promise of very good shooting at local ducks whose breeding grounds benefited from the unusually wet summer as well as prospects of excellent flights of northern ducks later. The afternoon closing hour of recent years also has been lifted, and the gunners now may continue shooting until sunset.

Conservation department officials report interest in hunting, for the meat as well as sport, is high this season, but they make no estimate of the number likely to take the field in spite of unsettled wartime conditions.

Duck hunters planning to hunt on Great Lakes waters from boats are being strongly urged by conservation officers to consult U. S. Coast Guard officials to determine the need of personal identification cards or of licenses and numbers for boats of certain sizes and equipment.

Obtaining the proper credentials often takes considerable time, the officers say. Hunters may avoid delay during the season by acquainting themselves with the details of wartime regulations for navigable waters and restricted defense areas at the nearest Coast Guard Station, well in advance of planned trips.

Republican Candidates Name County Committee

In the Service

The following is a portion of a letter written by Frederick Rempert of Camp Forrest, Tenn., to his family here.

Dear Folks,
I received your much welcomed letter and I sure am always glad to hear from you.

I have been riding a lot in tanks lately, and the other day I had a chance to drive one. I like it very much and expect to be a tank driver and mechanic. About 20 miles per hour is as fast as we can drive them, so it is something like driving a tractor.

Well it won't be long before hunting season, and I am going to miss it. I recently qualified at the rifle range as sharpshooter, and would like to show dad how to bring home the venison.

With love,
Fred.

Mr. Thornton,
Just a line to say that on my return from a 15 day furlough, I was promoted to the rank of Sergeant, which isn't so hard to take after leaving your folks and friends behind again.

I really had a swell time while I was home, but it seemed rather short after being away so long. I really could have stood another 15 days.

I enjoy receiving your paper every Monday morning. Through that I have gotten in contact with some of the boys that I did not know were in the service. It also seems good to hear what the people from the home town are doing.

It seemed pretty hard to leave the little town: As for many towns and states that I've been in, I prefer Michigan and Tawas.

Well Mr. Thornton, my intentions were not to write a book so I will close and again I really enjoy reading the Herald.

I remain as ever,
Sgt. Andy R. Lorenz.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Yank Fliers and Subs Blast Jap Ships In Battles for Supremacy in Pacific; Rubber Czar Speeds Synthetic Output; Fuel Oil Rationing Covers Thirty States

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

William M. Jeffers (right), newly appointed rubber administrator, confers with War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson concerning problems to be solved in the nation-wide rubber conservation program which he heads. The former president of the Union Pacific railroad called for the co-operation of all Americans in making the program effective.

PACIFIC FRONT: Jap Ships Smashed

The Japs got a taste of American air and undersea power when aircraft and submarines struck at widely separated points on the far-flung Pacific battlefield and damaged or destroyed 18 enemy ships.

In the Solomon islands, American bombers attacking the enemy base at Retaka bay, north of the American airfield at Guadalcanal, damaged two cruisers and destroyed vital enemy shore installations.

In the Aleutians heavy army bombers and long range fighters inflicted severe damage. Included in the American score were two mine sweepers sunk, three large cargo vessels damaged, three submarines hit and trapped and "several small craft" damaged. In addition the U. S. raiders set fire to storehouses and supply dumps ashore, destroyed six enemy planes and killed or wounded approximately 500 Jap troops.

Elsewhere in the far western Pacific, submarines sank four ships and damaged four others. The successful attacks on these eight ships raised to 107 the total of Japanese vessels of all types which the navy has reported sunk or damaged by American submarine attacks since the outbreak of war.

FUEL OIL RATIONING: Forecasts 65 Degrees

Home owners in the 30 eastern and midwestern states affected by the WPB's fuel oil rationing order were told by Price Administrator Leon Henderson that domestic allotments would be pegged to a daytime temperature of 65 degrees under average weather conditions.

Approximately 3,140,000 oil-burning residential units in the rationed area will be affected by the order. The plan is designed to reduce consumption 25 per cent in the designated area.

Mr. Henderson said the amount of oil allowed each heating unit would be based largely on the floor space and the amount of fuel used last year. In order to obtain coupon rationing sheets, householders will be required to furnish local rationing boards with detailed information concerning the dwelling and furnace.

DRAFT: Fathers or Boys?

Congress was given its choice between drafting 1,500,000 youths of 18 and 19 years of age or the same number of married men with dependent families by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director.

In a statement before the house committee investigating national defense migration, Hershey said: "We are going to get 18 or 19-year-olds, or 1,500,000 men out of the family." He added that the war department has certain reasons for wanting younger men and that industry would be disturbed less by taking the youths.

LABOR DRAFT: Looms for Millions

Approximately 18,000,000 Americans faced the possibility of being shifted, hired or replaced, as Paul V. McNutt, war manpower director, told congress that the national labor shortage is becoming so acute that compulsory home front service for both men and women appears inevitable.

McNutt said the nation must find 4,000,000 new workers between now and 1943 and that a large number necessarily must come from the ranks of women and of men either too old or too young for military service.

There were 57,000,000 persons employed in June, 1942, he said, and between 62,500,000 and 65,000,000 will be needed by December, 1943. There is no "evidence," he added, that labor reserves—including women, Negroes and other minority groups—would prove adequate.

The manpower chief said he believed "the mere existence of statutory power to force an individual to serve where he is needed" would be all that is necessary to establish a system of labor allocation that would help meet the problem.

FARM MACHINERY: On Ration List

New farm machinery and equipment went on the rationed list when Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard signed an order in Washington. The present order applies to sales for the remainder of 1942. Mr. Wickard said a permanent order would be issued later governing 1943 sales and production.

The curtailment program was made necessary by military requirements, the secretary added.

"The temporary rationing system for 1942," he said, "is designed primarily to control the distribution of the limited supply of farm machinery and equipment now on hand and to assure its greatest possible contribution toward meeting the goals of our food-for-freedom program."

BRAZIL: War in Earnest

Brazil showed that it meant business in its war against the Axis when President Getulio Vargas ordered general mobilization. With a population of 41,000,000, this nation represented the largest source of untapped military power in the Western hemisphere.

President Vargas' military decree ordered all Brazilians to take home-defense training. It instructed the government ministers and all other federal, state and municipal agencies to take measures dealing with military, economic, scientific and labor measures necessary to defense.

Already in force was compulsory military service for males between the ages of 21 and 45. Men between the ages of 21 and 30 were placed in the "first line" with all others placed in the "second line." Action against Axis submarines was being steadily taken by the Brazilian air force. Internment of Axis fifth-columnists had been accomplished and Axis-owned banks, insurance companies and other enterprises had been closed.

MORE CHICKENS: To Supplement Meat

More chickens in every pot were forecast when Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard called on poultry raisers to produce 200,000,000 extra fowl this fall and winter to help counteract a prospective meat shortage for civilian use.

National poultry organizations estimated that 600,000,000 additional pounds of poultry could be produced for consumers if 200,000,000 birds were reared to a weight of three pounds each. Secretary Wickard was assured that poultrymen and farmers, utilizing existing brooder houses and other production equipment not normally used to capacity during the season would participate in the program.

MIDWAY AFTERMATH: Taps for Yorktown

Part of the price America paid for victory over the Japs in the Battle of Midway became known when the navy announced that the aircraft carrier Yorktown had been sunk after the battle as a result of Japanese bombs and torpedo attacks.

Although it had been known that the 19,900 ton carrier was put out of action during the battle, the actual loss of the vessel had been a closely kept secret.

U. S. Transport 'Wakefield' Burns at Sea

The former luxury liner, Manhattan, now a naval transport ship and renamed the Wakefield, caught fire and was severely damaged at sea. More than 1,600 passengers and crew members were removed without loss of life by U. S. warships in the convoy. In the upper left the Wakefield is shown at sea, and at right is its commander, H. G. Bradbury. In lower left, passengers and crewmen are shown jammed on rear decks awaiting rescue. Notice the rope nets which were used to climb to the deck of rescue vessel. (Navy photos.)

Unsung Heroes of Medical Corps Play Important Role

One of the most ticklish jobs which men of the U. S. army medical corps are called upon to undertake is the removal of wounded men from the inside of tanks. The method of this removal may mean life or death to the casualty. At the left you see trainees from the medical corps field service school at Carlisle, Pa., engaged in the task. The man has been successfully removed through the tank turret and is being placed on a stretcher atop the tank. At right you see a demonstration of a method of transforming a pair of skis into a smooth-running litter for transporting a wounded man over the snow.

Commando Tactics at Harding Field, La.

Soldiers are undergoing a special training course in Commando tactics at Harding Field, La. Here we see a soldier about to leave the jumping tower and dive into a blazing pool of water. The soldiers are taught to swim with a modified breast stroke, splashing water in front of them to protect them from the flames. The tower from which they leap is 20 feet high, the approximate distance of a transport's deck from the water. In case of a torpedoing, the soldiers would have to dive into the flaming water with their full packs and swim for shore.

Laugh Is on Axis

The Axis boasted that a floating drydock they had sunk at an Egyptian port would never be raised. Capt. Edward Ellsberg, U.S.N., confounded them by raising the drydock in record time. He is shown here in an official auto in Egypt.

Mexico's President Makes Wartime Report

Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, president of the United States of Mexico, makes his annual report before the congress of Mexico. This report—his first wartime capitulation of the situation—was particularly important and was addressed to the rest of the American continent as well as to Mexico. Thousands of distinguished guests heard him in person.

Flag in Solomons

Old Glory is raised over the embattled Solomon islands, eight months to the day after Pearl Harbor. This is the first territory that has been taken from the Japs since the sneak attack.

Wrap cheese in a clean cloth dampened in vinegar and keep in a cool dry place.

To prevent mold from growing on stored fat be sure the container is dry, cook until the moisture is all out when cooking down the fat for storing, keep in a dry place.

Remove tea from old tea balls, wash material and use the bags for spices where it is undesirable to have the spices in a mixture after their flavor has been extracted.

Suede garments should be kept dry if possible. If rain does catch them, let them dry away from heat, then brush in a circular motion with a wire brush. A rubber sponge or art gum will help to keep a suede jacket clean.

To prepare uncoated iron or steel for painting, wire brush it, unless it is extremely corroded. In that case, crude oil or spent lubricating oil will loosen the rust.

Wash ice cream boxes, dry them and store seeds in them with the name written on the box along with any special planting information.

Add a small onion, a pinch of ginger, a few cloves and a bay leaf as a gourmet trick when boiling corned beef.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Lieut. Gen. Bernard Law Montgomery, as commander of Britain's Eighth army, is in supreme command of Allied forces in Egypt, contesting Nazi Field Marshal Rommel's second major bid for the valley of the Nile. While General Montgomery won the DSO in World War I, he is a newcomer to headlines or citations in this war, having been a divisional commander in Palestine.

He is known as a cautious, reticent officer, highly esteemed in Downing street, according to meager accounts available here, for his tact and skill in allaying political unrest in Palestine and in neutralizing among the Arabs the clamor for a Jewish army to fight with the Allies.

On November 18 of last year, there was an army shakeup in which General Montgomery succeeded Lieut. Col. Bernard C. Paget as chief of the Southeastern command. He is only 55 years old and at the time of this transfer British newspapers noted with satisfaction that the army was calling on its "younger men."

In the years between the big wars, he was busy with staff work, said to be one of the keenest students of traditional warfare, and became a divisional commander with the start of this war. He assumed command of the Eighth army August 18. He is slight of person and sharp-featured, rarely on record with a definite commitment and never has been known to go off the deep end or get out on a limb.

Born the son of the Rt. Rev. H. H. Montgomery, he entered the army in 1908, and fought through World War I as a battalion major.

Wings for Glider Pilots

Before a student makes his first solo flight in simulated glider landing an instructor carefully checks with him to make sure that he knows just what to do. Here an instructor goes over "dead stick" landing rules with the pre-glider student.

NEWEST winged warriors of the army air forces are the G-men of the air—glider pilots—who will guide our huge troop-carrying gliders in the fore of democracy's great aerial offensive against the enemy. Gliding, until recently the sport of a few, has now become the serious war business of thousands of young men who are training to become glider pilots. Typical of the eighteen pre-glider schools now in full operation in the Middle West is the one located on the flatlands of Goodland, Kansas.

During the four weeks of preliminary training the student practices simulated gliding in small power ships, with the power switched off. He masters the technique of "dead stick" landing and in bringing his powerless plane down within a small marked area. In actual combat he will be called upon to cut loose from the towing plane thousands of feet up and miles away from his objective behind enemy lines. From then on he is on his own.

Glider pilot students leaving the operations office of the school, with parachutes strapped on.

The space marked reserved is for the army air forces silver insignia wings with a glider imposed.

This glider pilot training in the army air forces is open to men between the ages of 18 and 36, inclusive, who are graduates of civil pilot training schools, or who hold a civil aeronautics administration private air-man certificate which had not lapsed prior to January 1, 1941, or to former aviation cadets with at least fifty hours in army or navy type training planes, or veterans of at least two hundred glider flights.

Men who have had no previous flight training will be given an opportunity to qualify for glider pilot training if they are accepted for a complete special primary flight training in a civil aeronautics administration school.

These pictures depict stages of the training given at Goodland, Kansas.

Before the students are ready to make simulated glider landings, they are given meteorology and other subjects. Here students are shown the characteristics of a glider.

The idea is to land the glider as near as possible to this white marker. Here is how the marker looks to the student coming in for a dead stick landing.

Made from another plane flying alongside the students, this picture shows the training plane just as the glider pilot turned off the switch for a gliding approach to one of the auxiliary landing fields.

JOSEPH: AN EXAMPLE OF FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:1-15; 47:11, 12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

Forgiveness, opening the way for the restoration of fellowship and the showing of kindness, brought the story of Joseph and his brethren to a happy ending. Under the good hand of God the story which began with tragedy is brought to a conclusion of blessing.

Following the earnest plea of Judah, the heart of Joseph could no longer withhold itself from the full expression of affection and devotion to his family.

I. Love Overcomes Fear (vv. 1-4).

Joseph tenderly shielded the family troubles from the eyes and ears of strangers by sending out the Egyptians. It was the first step of consideration which paved the way for reconciliation. How often just the opposite is done—airing family affairs before the world, and humiliating those who may be in the wrong, thus making it difficult for them to admit their guilt.

Then, too, this was a moment too tender and delicate to be seen by outsiders. The tears of a strong man like Joseph mean a deep movement of spirit—a solemn and often a sacred moment.

It should also be noted that the brothers were afraid, and well they might be, because of their sin against Joseph. After almost 50 years these unrepentant men found themselves face to face with the one whom they had supposed they had disposed of, and they knew their sin had found them out. It always does, sooner or later, but inevitably.

How great and noble was the forgiving love of Joseph; an example to us, especially appropriate and needed in a world of hate and bitterness.

II. Grace Overrules Sin (vv. 5-8).

The guilt of these men was none the less and Joseph could not remove it, but he encouraged them by showing how God had used their evil devices to work out His own good pleasure. He can make the wrath of man to praise Him (Ps. 76:10).

It is worth stressing again that in the very hour when the prospects for Joseph's future usefulness seemed ruined, God was opening the door to the greatest experiences of his life and was preparing him to serve the thousands whose lives were saved by his wisdom and ability in the years of famine.

Nothing is more important in the life of a child of God than to be yielded to His will, unmoved by circumstances, abiding His time, responding to His guidance whether it be by the opening or closing of doors, prosperity or adversity. And herein is the marvel of it all—even sin may be overruled by God's grace for His own glory. That does not invite anyone to sin that grace may abound (Rom. 6:1, 2), but it does offer encouragement to the one who has fallen, that God can redeem the years that the locust have eaten (Joel 2:25).

Our lesson also sets us an example of how true forgiveness acts, something we need. So often when forgiveness is asked or granted there is an "I can forgive but I can't forget" attitude, which means that while hostilities have ceased, at least temporarily, there is no real friendship or the disposition to show kindness. Is there any real forgiveness at all in such an attitude of heart and mind? We fear not.

III. Kindness Provides the Best (vv. 9-15; 47:11, 12).

It might have been enough to send food and a kind greeting with the brothers to their own land, but love does not seek the minimum expression of its feeling. It asks not how little, but how much can I give or do.

Bringing his aged father and brothers into the land of plenty was not enough, Joseph also gave to them the "best of the land" (47:11). His thoughtful consideration in sending for his father (Gen. 46:5-7) was part of the same piece of kindness.

Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or riches, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families. Often they are ashamed of the broken bodies, the humble apparel, the broken or uneducated speech of their parents. They fear lest their new-found friends in the circle of wealth and supposed "position" will think them strange or ridiculous. God pity the man or woman who is ashamed of a humble or aged father and mother!

Joseph, who really had an exalted position gained by merit and by the blessing of God, never forgot his place before God as a son in the family and as a brother. Let us consider him and do likewise.

GONE to feed Nazi soldiers? Something's wrong with that picture, Mussolini. Maybe you did start out with ideals, but you got into bad company.

We have spaghetti in America—plenty of it. We send some abroad to the United Nations. We also send great quantities of tomato juice, fruits, vegetables, meats . . . and still have enough left for the home front.

Yes, it's a job. We've never tried to feed half the world before and some equipment is lacking. Our food-canning industry is taxed to the limit. But we have the finest women in the world, Mussolini; they're fighting this war with kettles and spoons, pressure cookers and home-canning jars . . . preserving food at home, each for her own family. You see, it not only means a low food cost and a balanced diet—it means that commercially-canned foods can be loaded on hundreds of "food ships" for our fighting sons and brothers.

That's typical of America, Mussolini—this nation of weaklings. Come over and learn a lesson.

AT THE Versailles Peace conference, a pretty Chinese girl, one of the secretaries of the Chinese delegation, made an earnest plea to the conference. She urged it not to award the Province of Shantung to Japan, insisting, almost tearfully, that this would open the way for Japanese aggression that would some day "destroy the peace of the world."

She was then the first and only Chinese woman to hold the degree doctor of laws, and is today Mme. Sourmay Tcheng Wei, wife of China's new ambassador to Washington, Dr. Wei Tao-ming. Slender, smartly dressed, speaking several languages fluently and correctly, she takes rank with Mme. Chiang Kai-shek and other cultured and brilliant Chinese women who have first come to the attention of this country in the war years.

She might be considered a Chinese Mrs. Miniver, who could discuss bombs from first-hand knowledge at an embassy tea party. She not only has dodged them but has used them.

It was in the revolution that established the Chinese republic that this modish little lady was a bomb-toter. Her father was a high official of the Manchu government. She stepped across ancient lines of class and tradition to fight with the young Chinese, and her special assignment was transporting and distributing bombs. Thus aiding old China to blast its way into the modern world, she helped form the new government and then, realizing that she and China needed modern intellectual equipment, she went to Paris and took her law degree at the Sorbonne. This, she later explained, was due to her deep conviction that any enlightened person of today should be a citizen of the world as well as of her own country. She now says she considers herself a citizen of the world.

There might be an idea there—an elite of world citizenry, after the war, recruited by rigorous tests of humane intelligence, forming a nucleus of world co-operation, without recceance to any given sovereignty.

Again, like the Minivers, Mme. Wei and her husband saw their house bombed piecemeal, and dodged behind trees and rocks in the woods to avoid the machine gun bullets of the Japanese bombers. Her embassy teatime talk about war and peace, if and when given, will not merely be academic. Her husband, who studied law at the University of Paris, and who is a former mayor of Nanking, comes to Washington from Vichy, where he was sent, as ambassador, last year. Mme. Wei speaks English with a slight French accent, having studied it in Paris.

We're Busy Helping
Uncle Sam

...—V...—

LAST YEAR, America's railroads moved 475 billion ton-miles of freight, history's greatest traffic job. (We'd like to tell you how many millions of soldiers and sailors we carried, but . . .)

This year the railroads may haul 50 million carloads of freight—10% to 15% more than in 1941.

We did the 1941 job pretty easily because freight shippers and receivers and the public cooperated. We can do this year's bigger job if we again get that cooperation.

This all-out war requires all-out transportation. Uncle Sam is depending on the railroads for that. We're handling 70% of his military freight. To let him down would be tragic.

So "the tall man in the high hat" comes first.

At any time now there may be one, even two or three fewer cars in your passenger train. You'll excuse it, won't you? Uncle Sam will be using them.

Or your freight may move out, or come to you, a little later than you had hoped. We're certain you'll overlook that, too. We'll be moving important things for Uncle Sam.

We knew you would. And you'll be helping him, too.

Urge to Kick Cop

The Very Rev. Edmund J. Reilly of a Brooklyn church found a note on the collection plate signed "Patrick Gunn," inviting the good man to step outside after mass for a fist fight . . . In Minneapolis a pretty woman walked up to a policeman and without ado kicked him smartly on the shin. He said "ouch," and she let him have another. Her explanation for such quaint conduct was simple. "All my life," she told the judge, "I've wanted to kick a cop."

This Is a 'Corker'

Here's a story that may well be termed a "corker." Recently Robert E. Adams of Shreveport, La., mourned the disappearance of $40—his whole week's pay. He considered himself a "hard-luck guy." Adams said he apparently had put the money in his trousers pocket in which there was a hole, and the money fell through into the artificial limb.

Most Mammals Color-Blind

It is not true, says Author Roy Chapman Andrews, that bulls get mad when they see red—all mammals except monkeys and men are color-blind. Many animals can be taught to detect slight differences of shade, but when variously colored disks emitting the same intensity of light are presented, the animals are baffled. Thus a dog sees the world, including his master, in various shades of gray, as in a photograph. But birds, fish and insects can distinguish colors.

Hale
HALE P. T. A.
The first meeting of the Hale PTA at the school house, Tuesday evening, September 22 proved a very enjoyable affair for all present. After the business meeting, presided over by President Rose Lake, the meeting was turned over to the program committee, Mrs. Herbert Townsend and Mrs. Anedna Salisbury.

A microphone made of a broomstick, tin pan and a pumpkin for a standard, decorated with red, white and blue streamers was placed in front of the Superintendent, Mr. Meeker, and he introduced the teachers, while the committee rigidly enforced the rule that everyone must use the "mike." Then several of the parents were introduced and a quiz program followed; the results of which were so unsatisfactory, that the highest prize awarded was a penny sucker dressed like a doll, and carrying a tiny can of baking powder.
Mr. Rollin, school commissioner presented the school with an encyclopedia set at the close of the program.
The P. T. A. decided to sponsor the home nursing and first aid classes, and will organize at the town hall next Thursday night.

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: A Lockheed is stolen from Norland Airways. Alan Slade suspects a "scientist" named Frayne, who is supposed to be hunting swans, but who turns out to be after bigger game. He has the plane and is using it to carry pitchblende, a valuable source of power, to the coast for shipment to Germany. A pilot named Slim Tumstead is flying for him. Surprised near their camp, Slade is knocked unconscious by Frayne's assistant, Karnell, and is taken to a deserted island by Tumstead and left there. When he falls to return Lynn Morlock, daughter of the "flying Padre," starts out in her father's plane to find him, while her father and two old prospector friends of Alan named Zeke and Minty attempt to fight it out with Frayne's crowd. Lynn finds Slade, exhausted, ragged and nearly starved, and they return to Frayne's camp to find that Zeke and Minty are in the midst of a fight with Karnell. The Padre is in Slade's plane looking for Lynn. Slade and the prospectors have cornered Karnell and are chasing him into the marshland.

"It's Tumstead. He said he was ready to give up."

CHAPTER XVIII

"Why do you say that's Karnell?" Slade asked as he strode on at Minty's side.

"It's Karnell all right," averred Minty. "Zeke told me that when he sidled back for a handful o' shells."

"Good," said Slade. "I want to meet up with Karnell."

"Make sure it ain't an unexpected meetin'," Minty warned him.

"I've got my eye peeled," said Slade. He stopped short and blinked across the ridge-crests. "What's more, I think that's our friend Zeke crawling along that hogback."

Minty stared in the direction the other pointed.

"That's Zeke all right," he admitted.

"He sees us," cried Minty as he rounded a sheltering rock. "But this is enemy territory, son, and we'd best keep under what cover we can find."

Yet Slade, he soon saw, was making no effort to keep under cover. The tawny-headed bush pilot was advancing down the slope that led to the matted bogland veined with open water. For far out on that soggy tundra, plunging along from tussock to tussock, was a heavy-shouldered man with a rifle in his hands.

"That's Karnell," cried Slade. "Don't let him get away."

Minty promptly dropped on one knee and took a pot shot at the fugitive.

But Karnell ducked in time to hear a bullet whine over his head. Then he clambered up on an island fringed with shrub-willow and faced his pursuers. Both Slade and Minty, when they saw the leveled rifle, flung themselves flat on the wet soil. They lay without moving, until the gunshot echo died away.

Karnell, looking into his rifle chamber, saw that his last shell had been fired. His shout, however, was one of defiance as he turned and leaped from his willow-fringed island to a runway of broken sedge-tuffs leading deeper into the muskeg.

He shouted again, hoarsely, as he went panting onward from sedge-tuft to sedge-tuft.

He looked for islets with a showing of clump-willow, for in those root-bound spaces he knew he could always find the promise of support. Across two of these he leaped. Then in his haste he sprang for an island of wire grass. It was a sizable-looking island and to the eye it had an aspect of solidity. But instead of being an island it was merely a floating raft of tangled vegetation, a tissue of fiber-bound peat that parted and sank under his weight.

It went down slowly. But as it went it left nothing ponderable for the groping long arms to catch at. The churning water rose to the wide shoulders. It rose to the screaming throat. Then it closed over the back-fung head and a few bubbles appeared between the tatters of fiber-bound peat that floated on the water.

Slade, clinging to a willow-clump, saw the stirred-up water grow quiet again.

"Let's get back," he said. "I've still got Tumstead to deal with."

Then he stopped short, arrested by the familiar drone of a distant plane.

He watched the plane as it passed overhead.

"That's the Padre," he said as Minty came up with him.

The old sourdough blinked after the passing wings that dipped and circled for a landing and then were lost to sight.

"I thought mebbe she was that ghost plane there's so much talk about."

Slade's laugh was harsh.

"There'll be less talk about ghost planes," he proclaimed, "when I get my hands on Tumstead."

Slade held out a warning hand as he came to the crest of the ridge. For above the scrub that furrowed the valley slope before him he detected a wisp of smoke.

"What's worryin' you, son?" demanded Minty as he leaned on his rifle.

Slade, instead of answering, moved forward until he had a better view of the valley bottom. There, in a rock bowl beside a purling stream, he saw a campfire. Squatting over it was a ragged figure, holding a skillet with a stick tied to its handle.

"Why, it's Zeke," gasped Minty. Zeke, startled by their advance, scrambled for his rifle. But the poised barrel slowly lowered as he identified the intruders.

Slade felt a wave of weakness go through his body. He realized, as he subsided beside the fire where the tea pail bubbled, that he was very tired.

"Why, Lindy, you look all in," cried Zeke, conscious of that sudden slump.

Slade stiffened his shoulders. But it took an effort.

"I'm all right," he protested. "Where's Frayne?"

"We'll go into that," said Zeke, "after I've bucked you up with a swallow o' hot tea and some sowl-belly."

"Where's Frayne?" repeated Slade.

Zeke, busy over his fire, caught the determination in the other's query.

"That's what I'd give an arm to know," he admitted. "There ain't been a pop out o' him for two hours now. But how about that orangutan mate o' his?"

Zeke showed no emotion when told of Karnell's end. He merely directed a reproving eye at his shack partner. You should've got that buzzard on the wing."

Slade found his boiled tea strong and bitter. But it washed away his weariness.

"How about the other man, Tumstead?"

Zeke blinked about at the encircling spruce ridges.

"That bird seems to be hidin' out on us, same as his boss."

Slade was on his feet again.

"I've got to save that Lockheed," he said as he reached for Minty's rifle.

"What's a Lockheed?" queried Zeke.

"Our stolen plane. The plane they've been ferrying that pitchblende out with."

Zeke reached for the battered tea pail and drank from it. Then he wiped his mouth and essayed a head-jerk toward the west.

"She's there," he announced. "And she'll stay there."

"What does that mean?" questioned the startled Slade.

"It means I snaked through the scrub and climbed aboard her. And bein' there, jus' to make sure o' things, I twisted her fuel-line out."

"You what?" barked Slade.

"I jus' anchored her where she lay," answered Zeke, "by tearin' out her feed-pipe. I emptied her tank, son. And I ain't got that smell o' gasoline out of my pants yet."

"And you didn't see Frayne?"

"Not hide no hair o' him."

Slade stood thoughtful a moment.

"Then what's he up to? He can't get out of this territory without a plane. Yet he can't use that Lockheed. And he can't skulk back in these hills for long. We've got to know where he is."

It was Zeke who spoke next.

his shoulder and started up the slope that stretched between him and the lake where his plane rested. His glance at the sun told him the long northern afternoon would soon be merging into its equally long evening. And there were things to be done before the brief hours of sub-arctic darkness set in.

It was on the crest of the second ridge that he caught sight of Lynn. She hesitated, apparently bewildered as to what course to take. But, once she heard Slade's shout, she quickened her steps and came panting up the slope.

"What is it?" he asked, arrested by the alarm on her face.

"It's Tumstead," she said. "He came to Father, just now, with a white rag on the end of a stick. He said he was ready to give up. Frayne, he claimed, was lying wounded over the hill and had to have help."

Slade's face darkened.

"Did your father believe that liar?"

"He said he had to," was Lynn's panted reply. "He's gone out to Frayne. He said he couldn't let a man die without help."

"I don't like the look of this," said Slade. "Where is Tumstead now?"

"He pretended to go back with Father. But something tells me he didn't."

"Where's your plane?" Slade promptly questioned.

"At the lakeside there," said Lynn, leading him to slightly higher ground and pointing to the expanse of blue water that could be seen through the spruce tops. "We'd been working on our radio. Father'd been having trouble in sending and found a transmitter fuse had crystallized and had to be replaced. I was back in the cabin, testing out the set, when Tumstead came down the bank and talked to Father."

Slade peered through the trees, to a lower arm of the lake. The tension went from his face when he saw the Snow-Ball Baby still moored there.

"Let's go," he proclaimed.

"Go where?" asked Lynn.

"Back to your ship," answered Slade, "or to mine. I've got some quick scouting to do around this neighborhood."

"Alan, you can't fly," she told him. "You mustn't."

Slade, looking down at her, smiled at the determination in her face.

"I've got to fly," he announced. "That's my business."

He was moving on along the ridge crest toward the lake, disregarding the restraining hand she linked in his arm.

"But you're as foolish as Father," she maintained. "You're in no condition to fly. You're tired and worn out. You've got to have proper food and sleep before you're fit for taking chances like this."

The tremor in her voice brought him to a stop. He stood looking down at her again, but this time he looked down at her as though he were seeing her after long absence. Through his dull fog of fatigue and anxiety the loveliness of her face came slowly home to him.

"I'm used to taking chances," he said, with a little of the earlier ring of iron gone from his voice.

"Then I'll take them with you," she announced. "If you go up, I go too."

His thin face softened with a smile.

"Am I worth it?" he asked, conscious of how little room for kindness life had been leaving them.

"You are to me," she said with the forlorn and final candor that walks hand in hand with desperation. She even moved a little closer to him. "I love you."

He forgot hunger and weariness as he took her in his arms and held her close.

"I have to be worth it," he told her as he smoothed back her hair. Then his laugh was brief and bitter. "They haven't left us much room for this sort of thing, have they?"

"We must make room," she protested, clinging to him. But as he lifted his head she could see the hardening light in the Viking blue eyes.

"Let's go," he said for the second time.

Feast for Fall Days—Baked Beans (See Recipes Below.)

Pulling Purse Strings

Today, let's talk about budgets. Food budgets in particular, because they will be a major item in your life the next few months as prices slowly edge upwards, as the days slip into fall and winter and the summer bargains in foods become fewer and you have to do more juggling with figures to give your family the right food, at the best possible prices.

If you are Mrs. Average America, you will be more nutrition conscious this year than last, too. This will be not only because nutrition news has sprinted into the limelight, but because the demands of wartime living upon energy have become so great that you will have to have right foods to do your most and your best.

But, how can budgeting help you to serve "right" meals, you ask. That's simple. Buy the right foods with your dollars and you can't help serving meals that are correctly balanced.

First, divide the food dollar into fifths. One-fifth, or 20 cents, should go for vegetables and fruits. Use the next fifth for milk and cheese. The third of the fifths goes for the basis of your important meals—meats, eggs and fish.

Another fifth will be set aside for breads and cereals, while the very last 20 cents is allowed for accessory items such as butter, fats, sugar, tea, coffee and spices.

General Guide. The 20-cent rule is not a hard and fast rule. It is only a general guide because prices of the different groups of food vary from season to season, from section to section. Use your judgment in spending.

Perhaps you get milk from the milkman, vegetables from the peddler who comes to your back door three times a week, eggs from the farm, and meat from a favorite butcher. Or, you may get all your food from one place. There is no one way to shop. Pick out what the best way is from the facilities available, but be sure to investigate those facilities before you fall into one pattern.

Shopping Carefully. Conservation's an important note in these times. And it's mighty important in this fascinating business of stocking up the pantry. If you plan meals for, say three days, or better still, a week in advance, you will not be trotting up to the store twice every day, or calling up your grocer whose time is at a premium and whose delivery facilities have been cut in the midst of cake baking to tell him you simply must have vanilla. Make out lists, and then shop . . . for everything you need at one time.

When the snap of autumn gets into the air, use pumpkin, squash and Concord grapes. When the drifts of snow pile lightly against your door or the weather gets at least uncomfortably cold, use root vegetables and those canned goods in the canning cupboard. In spring, strawberries, asparagus, and broilers should grace your menu. What I

Lynn Says: The Score Card: Best of bargains are found in American cheddar cheese at the present time. Production for the first five months of this year was over 50 per cent greater than for that corresponding period last year. Apples, absent from the markets and fruit stalls during the summer, in greater quantities, are coming into their own now. Apples and honey are food affinities and will help you with sugar rationed.

Fall's bounty will also include squash, grapes, and pumpkins which add economy notes and flavorsome touches to menus.

  - Baked Beans
  - Lettuce Salad
  - Chiffonade Dressing
  - Bread and Butter

Cheese Bargains

Right in line with buying what is most economical at present are the bargains you can find in cheese. Cheese is much more than something you put between slices of bread or the golden orange wedge you serve with pie or crackers. It is the most economical source of protein and as such can be used as an excellent meat substitute.

Easily digestible and easily blending with almost every kind of food, it makes even the simplest dish a distinctive one because of the flavor it imparts to it. And remember, you'll get not only protein when you use it, but those other essential diet necessities like phosphorus, calcium, iron, and vitamins B, D and G.

As American as apple pie, are the American cheese stocks which we now have on hand. You'll be kind to your budget if you make use of some of these ideas:

*Cheese and Baked Beans. (Serves 6)

- 1 large can baked beans
- 1 cup American cheese, grated
- 1 cup grated bread
- 1 tablespoon chopped green peppers
- 2 tablespoons chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon chopped onion

Place beans in baking dish. Then add all other ingredients and three slices lean bacon over top of dish. Bake 30 minutes at 250 degrees.

Tuna and Cheese Souffle. (Serves 6)

- 1 cup scalded milk
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- ½ cup grated American cheese
- 1 cup flaked tuna
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 egg yolks
- 3 egg whites
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine milk with bread crumbs and grated cheese. Flake tuna and add lemon juice, pimiento, salt and well-beaten yolks. Beat egg white stiff but not dry and fold into mixture. Turn into a buttered casserole, set in a pan of water and bake in a moderately slow (325-degree) oven 40 minutes or until golden brown.

Sugar-saving apple recipes do delightful things to fall menus, and help you get the mellow, autumn note in meals. This revives eating interest:

Honey Apple Crisp (Serves 6)

- 4 cups sliced apples
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ cup honey
- ½ cup flour
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup butter
- ¼ cup walnuts, if desired

Spread sliced apples in a shallow baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, lemon juice and pour honey over all. In a bowl mix flour, brown sugar and salt and work in butter to make crumbly mixture. Spread crumbs evenly over apples (and nuts) and bake in a moderate oven (370 degrees) for 30 to 40 minutes until apples are tender and crust crisply browned. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

I BELIEVE in nationally advertised brands. They are trusted friends in my house, for national advertising is a pledge of quality . . . a guarantee of the maker's good faith.

I am going to show my approval by observing Nationally Advertised Brands Week*. I urge you all to join me in asking for nationally advertised brands that week . . . and every time you go into a drug store. It is the surest way to safeguard the health and happiness of your family.

THESE orange crate bedside tables are useful and easy to make; they are very decorative, too, when fitted out as illustrated. These were lined with green oil cloth cut, fitted and pasted as shown. The full skirt pieces were tacked to the top of the sides and lapped a few inches around the back. A top cover with a three-inch frill all around was then added. The bedspread is trimmed with five-inch frills of the muslin and one-inch straight bands over seams and for the monograms.

NOTE: These bedside tables are from BOOK 7 of the series of 32-page booklets that Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers. BOOK 2 contains a complete alphabet for making monograms similar to the one on the bedspread. Books are 10 cents each. A hot iron transfer pattern for eight cornflower and poppy designs suitable for linens or for framing will be included with each order for two books. Address:

Are You Needlessly Suffering Constipation?

Many people think that constipation is "one of those things" you must put up with. That the only thing you can do is take a purge or cathartic—and hope it doesn't come soon again. How foolish that is if you, like millions of others, have the ordinary kind of constipation that's due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. Kellogg's All-Bran is probably just what you need! This crisp, delicious cereal has the "bulk"-forming properties your intestines need to function "regularly"! It gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it — helps you get back to normal, easy elimination. Eat All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and help free yourself from constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

1942 Mattress Program Concluded

September 11, 1942 marked the conclusion of Iosco county's Cotton Mattress program which was begun January 25, 1941.

A reward for the work accomplished over this period of twenty months, 275 families have better beds in which to sleep, and also, more comforters to keep them warm.

These families are having more comfortable rest, and that is an important contribution toward keeping up our morale and strength during these critical days when we need them so much to accomplish the work before us.

You might be surprised to know how much material was used in our cotton mattress program. Each mattress required 50 pounds of cotton and 10 yards of ticking and a comforter took 4 pounds of cotton and 10 yards of percale. The 275 families made 477 mattresses, using 23,850 pounds cotton, and 4,770 yards of ticking. 265 families made 456 comforters using 1,824 pounds of cotton, and 4,560 yards of percale. The cotton used totals 25,674 pounds or 50 bales averaging 500 pounds each. (A little more than one carload).

In addition to the opportunity for having better sleeping facilities, these families had the experience of learning the technique of mattress construction as well as methods for taking care of them so they will give better and longer service.

Should they ever need to do so, they could remake their mattresses by removing the cotton from the tick and rebuild the batt, and the mattress would then be as good as when it was new. The equipment needed for doing this work is owned by the county and will be kept for the use of families who may wish to rebuild mattresses.

For those of you who did not make a mattress, these hints on mattress care may be helpful.

1. Protect it from dust and soil by using a mattress cover which may be laundered frequently.
2. Use a mattress pad.
3. Turn your mattresses weekly—end for end one week, and side for side the next.
4. Any mattress should be sunned and aired at least every three or four months in a temperature of 78° to 80°.
5. Cotton mattresses should be sunned, aired, and beaten on both side, even more often—about every three weeks. Keep it lying flat, and off the ground.
6. Always carry mattresses by the handles. Never fold or roll them.
7. Do not stand them on end or, on the side lest the filling shift.
8. One mattress for a bed is enough. Don't stack them.
9. To store, hang by the handles from the ceiling.
10. Keep mattresses free from bed-bugs.

Let's make sauerkraut. There are many heads of good cabbage bursting this fall, which means they may not be stored successfully. It is possible to can cabbage, but that requires jars, and maybe you haven't those to spare just now.

The best kraut is made from the later slow growing, solid head varieties, which should be fully matured. October is generally the best time for making sauerkraut because the temperature is better for fermentation and storing. The ideal temperature for making sauerkraut is 70° to 80° F., and for storing it is 50° to 60° F.

Stone jars are the best container for making kraut at home. Here are brief directions for preparing cabbage.

1. Trim off outside leaves of cabbage.
2. Core the cabbage.
3. Shred cabbage—thin and even.
4. Add salt at the rate of 2 1/2 lbs. per 100 lbs. of cabbage (2 1/2 lbs of salt plus 97 1/2 lbs cabbage—this is 2 1/2 % by weight).
5. Weigh down. When adding salt, build layers of cabbage 2 to 3 inches deep, add salt, and repeat to the top of jar. Pack firmly.

Apply enough weight so that the liquid is 1/2 to 1 inch over the kraut, for that not covered spoils, and the spoilage will spread throughout the jar. Stomping kraut exclude air, thus preventing molds and giving a better chance for the development of lactic acid. The fermentation process is completed in from 10-14 days if the temperature is kept between 70° and 80° F.

Skim off all scum, for it will destroy acidity. After fermentation is completed, kraut may be kept by (1) keeping the liquid over the top of the kraut, covering with a cloth to prevent insects from getting into it, and keeping at 50° to 60° F. (2) sealing the jars with a layer of hot paraffin over the surface. Paraffin twice to be sure it is tight. The sealing prevents evaporation or mold. Keep in a cool place. (3) Canning (this method will permit keeping kraut for a year or more.)

1. Heat the kraut before putting into cans. 2. Heat the juice almost to boiling. 3. Pour hot juice over kraut. Seal jar. 4. Heat in boiling hot water bath as follows: pints, 20-25 minutes; quarts, 25-30 minutes. 5. Cool quickly. This is just as important as heating. Commonest causes for failure in kraut making are—too much salt, or uneven salt distribution.

When you cook kraut, it is best cooked slowly for a longer time. If you like it to be less acid, cook in water, and drain. Fresh kraut does not have much loss in vitamins, but canning decreases them about 20%.

Illuminated Aisles
Going into the gloom of dark cinema houses, people are likely to stumble, bump into others. Ushers with flashlights are nuisances; small lamps placed near the aisle floors illuminate only small areas. American Cyanamid company announced what it considers a better idea: aisle rugs treated with fluorescent dyes, bathed by invisible ultraviolet radiation from small tubes. Such rugs glow softly all over, interfere with nothing on the screen.

Vitamin C
Vitamin C prevents scurvy. Keep teeth, bones, blood vessels healthy, helps prevent anemia. Daily requirements: Oranges, lemons, grapefruit, or tomatoes in any form (juice, soup, raw, canned). Also in onions, berries and vegetables. Very unstable. Destroyed by overcooking and too much water. Use raw fruit and vegetables when possible; if cooked, serve juices. Potatoes baked in skins retain vitamin C.

Shallow Draft Vessel
Channel and lock improvements on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers make it possible for a shallow draft vessel to sail some 4,000 miles from Olean, N. Y., to Fort Benton, Mont.
