Writes New Song for Tawas City Schools

Miss Senob has composed the words and music for a new school song for the Tawas City High School. She wrote the band score for it and they played it for the first time last Friday night at the game. The students voted to give the song a title, and according to the applause for it, we judge it will be a favorite for a good many years.

Three cheers for Tawas,
Hats off to you,
When Victory beckons,
You will come through,
We're all friends together,
That's why we say—
Join the chorus,
Victory's for us,
Tawas—Hooray!

Mayor Carl Babcock Gives Information on Standpipe

Your reporter upon making inquiry of Mayor Carl Babcock as to the damage suffered to the Tawas City water works standpipe last Friday, has been given the following information:

Due to the reduced water consumption and prolonged cold weather this winter, ice had formed inside the standpipe and bowl to the extent that the upper end of the standpipe became clogged with ice and eventually froze into a solid mass. Upon drawing the water down in the normal operation of the system, the ice sealed upper end of the standpipe caused

ROGERS MOTOR CO., DETROIT, TAKES LEASE

Hope to Have Machinery In Operation by April 15

James H. Leslie announced today that he is leasing his large department store building at the corner of Lake and First streets in this city to C. W. Rogers, president of the Rogers Motor Co., Inc., of Detroit. The building will be used as a manufacturing plant where from 20 to 60 people, both men and women, will be employed. Mr. Leslie said. Mr. Rogers hopes to have the plant in operation by April 15.

The Rogers Motor Co., Inc., of Detroit are large manufacturers of model airplane and marine gasoline motors. It has a nation wide distribution in these small motors, and is well known in the toy manufacturing field. The plant to be established here will be used for the wood toy manufacturing end of the business, and machinery and equipment are now being purchased for the work.

This week Mr. Rogers is at New York attending the National Toy Makers Show. On his return he will come to Tawas City and put the proposed new plant in operation. He stated, before going to the show, that the company had contracts for products which would necessitate the plant getting under production as early as possible.

James Leslie has been employed by the Rogers Motor Co. as local plant manager. He has been at Saginaw this week securing wood working machinery and material to put the plant in operation.

IOSCO COUNTY "BLACKOUT" A SUCCESS

Norman Salsbery Praises Defense Units for Work

Last Thursday night Isosco county staged its first surprise blackout. In previous practice blackouts the time was announced in advance. When the siren sounded at nine o'clock Thursday evening, every organization and unit participating was forced to start from scratch and the results were gratifying.

Norman Salsbery, commander of Isosco County Civilian Defense, said Friday, "Two East Tawas air raid wardens and I observed the blackout in the Tawas area from the roof of the Hotel Holland, and I feel that it was a success. Within two minutes after the siren had sounded, not a light in either city was visible to us. Reports from other communities in the county told of equal success, and indicate that every unit participating was on the job. I feel that Isosco county has one of the best functioning Civilian Defense organizations in the state. I wish to thank the members of the various Civilian Defense units of the county for their excellent work Thursday night, and the citizens of the communities for their fine cooperation."

Mr. Salsbery said that he was especially satisfied with reports from Tawas City where every unit in that Civilian Defense organization participated. There, in addition to the air raid wardens walking their posts in each block of the city, the members of the fire department, auxiliary firemen, auxiliary police, utility repair squad, messenger service (Boy Scouts), emergency medical unit and ambulance corps reported promptly at their stations. All members of the city Civilian Defense headquarters staff were at their post in the city hall. This gave the organization a practical tryout.

Ernest Burtzloff, commander of the Tawas City Civilian Defense organization, said yesterday, that he was gratified at the results in last Thursday's surprise blackout. He said they indicated that every member of the personnel of the several units had taken their work seriously, and had made a careful study of the information received in the various instruction classes held during the past year. He said that he believed the organization could now cope with a real emergency, and "I wish to thank the members of the various units of the Tawas City Civilian Defense and the people of the city for their cooperation."

Twin-City Garden Club

The Twin Cities Garden Club held an interesting and instructive meeting at the County Garage Monday.

Miss Leonora Haas presented garden material to be found in the Tawas libraries. Mr. Jones of east Tawas high school and 4-H Club leader for East Tawas, discussed the need of parents showing an interest in 4-H work, and urged that they attend meetings with their children.

Another feature of the meeting was an experience roll call which reverted to a question box with Wilton Finley, county agricultural agent, on the receiving end, resulting in much practical information in gardening. Mr. Finley also presented new pamphlets on gardening which will be available for the asking. Mrs. J. N. Sloan gave a short paper on Victory Gardens.

The next meeting will be held in connection with the Victory Garden meeting, the time and place of which will be announced later. At this meeting home economics and horticultural specialists from Michigan State College will be the speakers.

It was decided that future meetings of the club may be called at the discretion of the president, Mrs. C. J. Creaser, as the need arises.

$15,139 School Money Goes to Isosco Schools

State aid and tuition money amounting to $15,139.15 was allocated to the various school districts of the county during the past week according to County Treasurer Grace Miller. The money was distributed as follows:

The Philathea class met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Mathew Kienholz. A farewell gift was presented to Mrs. Frank Bonner who leaves soon for Alpena to make her home.

Leslie Nash, well known East Tawas contractor and builder, died at noon today (Friday). He had been in poor health for some time.

The Irene Rebekah Lodge will have "Fun Night" next Wednesday, March 17. Entertainment and refreshments are planned.

East Tawas P.T.A. meets next Monday evening.

Fred Wilson of Bay City has sold his East Tawas home to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weckerly of Almont, Mich. The Weckerly family expects to move to their new location the latter part of the week.

Jack Carlson will have charge of the opening service in the Methodist Sunday School Sunday morning.

Milton Barkman left Sunday for Detroit, where he has employment.

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Gurley, who have made their home in Bay City the past several months, have purchased the Jos. Blust home and have taken immediate possession.

The Ladies Literary Club will hold their next meeting March 16, at the home of Mrs. Francis Schriber.

Mrs. Elmer Carpenter returned to Mercy Hospital Tuesday for further attention for her arm, which she broke last week. One of the broken bones failed to stay in place and it was necessary to operate and put in a silver plate to hold. She expects to return home Sunday.

Dickie Lonsbury broke his left arm Sunday. He was attempting to open the garage doors which had become stuck, following Saturday's storm.

Miss Betty Harwood, who is a Senior at Central State College, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Harwood. Miss Patricia Hart of Saginaw accompanied her here.

Mrs. Mary Ann Hewson

Mrs. Mary Ann Hewson, aged resident of East Tawas, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Mills on March 8. Mrs. Hewson was born December 15, 1853, in London, England. She was the widow of the late H. J. Hewson, and the mother of six children, Mrs. Nellie Mills, Miss Hewson and Charles Hewson of East Tawas, Edmund, Frank and Harry of Detroit.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Mills home, with Rev. J. R. Colby of Christ church officiating. Burial in the Greenwood cemetery.

Red Cross Activities

Mrs. Lester Perkins, of Red Cross Reno group, turned into the production center this week, three sweaters, two muffler and ten pairs of hospital pajamas. She took three layettes for the group to finish.

Mrs. Harry Cross, president of Wilber Methodist Ladies Aid, turned in 12 little girl's dresses and skirts.

Mrs. Pauline Thompson, president of the Episcopal Guild, reports the guild is making 21 housewives (sewing kits), 21 kit bags, five pajamas and one layette for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Chris Hosbach of Tawas City has pieced five lap robes. These robes are used in hospitals for service men in wheel chairs. Mrs. Hoagabaum has also pieced a robe.

Mrs. Lloyd Borden is making a record in this vicinity with her knitting. In February she knitted a turtle neck O. D. sweater and five pairs of gloves, and turned them in to Mrs. Edward Stevens, chairman in charge of yarn. Mrs. Borden has knitted several different types of sweaters, also helmets.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the friends of Albert H. Nunn for their beautiful floral offerings and sympathy at the time of his decease. Also for the kindness of the Dorcas Society in serving dinner to the relatives and friends.

Arthur Davis and The Nunn Family.

DEEP WATERS

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

©WILLIAMS W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY SO FAR: After a chance meeting and swift courtship, Will McPhail starts for Moose Bay, leaving Robin Dale to wonder how a career girl could be so completely swept off her feet. She knows little of Will, except that he is an engineer and that he has a brother named Angus, a dour Scot who hates women. Tired of the city and eager for adventure, Robin decides to take the next steamer up the St. Lawrence to Moose Bay. Driving to the port where she is to take the boat, Robin meets a salmon fisherman, who turns out to be Angus McPhail. A letter from Will asks her to help heal Angus' heart, broken by an early misfortune.

CHAPTER III

Robin wanted, in a friendly tenderness tonight, to help heal those scars. Sitting on the edge of the narrow bunk, the letter in her hand, she remembered the lines of old pain around the Salmon Man's mouth, the dregs of stale suffering in his eyes. He was like a small boy who has been hurt in ways he does not understand.

She remembered his tone when he spoke of Will, understood the deep affection in him for the younger man; and she decided that nothing must interfere with that trip they meant to make together. Certainly she would not rob Angus of that happiness. But if Will knew she had come to Moose Bay, he would insist on staying with her. That, simply, must not happen. Before she slept, she decided what to do. The White Queen was bound on a gypsy cruise around the Gulf of St. Lawrence. She would stay aboard, take the cruise, land at Rimouski on the return trip, and pick up her car and go on her way. Will never knew she had been so near him.

Next morning she was one of the late breakfasters, and the small dining saloon was almost deserted; but before she had finished, Mr. Jenkins in his checked suit appeared and sat down beside her.

"Saw you on the dock last night," he reminded her.

"Yes, I remember." He seemed nice enough by daylight, in this safe security, with the stewards about. He seemed even nicer when he said, surprisingly!

"I'm afraid you found me annoying. May I apologize? Some friends had been seeing me off. I was a little—exuberant. I hope I didn't bother you?"

She forgave him at once. "You weren't really annoying; just—friendly."

"Too friendly," he insisted. "Let's forget last night, start fresh." He asked again whether she knew anyone in Moose Bay, and why she happened to be going there; and when she said she was an artist, he assured her she would find plenty of things to paint. She had made up her mind not to leave the ship at Moose Bay at all; but she need not tell Mr. Jenkins that. She finished her breakfast and left him busy with eggs and went on deck. There were twenty or thirty passengers aboard the White Queen, most of them for the cruise, most of them feminine. She found a group on the afterdeck tossing soft little bags of sand at a perforated board and exclaiming delightedly over their scores. The purser, a pleasant young man named Lewis, was with them; and Robin spoke to him about abandoning her plan to land at Moose Bay and continuing the cruise. He was pleased; and he introduced her to the others in the group here. A sister and brother in their later teens, Bob and Helen Marston, were the youngest and the liveliest passengers aboard; and Helen urged Robin to join in their game; but Robin said: "Later, please? I've a letter to write first."

The letter was to Will. Mr. Lewis could mail it at Moose Bay so that Will would receive it after the White Queen had gone. She told him about meeting Angus.

"And he happened to mention that you and he were going off on this fine trip together, and I could tell how much he was looking forward to having you with him. I know if you saw me you wouldn't go."

They came in sight of Moose Bay in mid-afternoon. As the White Queen drew in toward the long dock, Robin saw through a fringe of trees a considerable town on the wooded shore, the houses all brightly painted, fresh and new. The dock itself was impressive by its length, and by the fact that three freighters lay there disgorging their cargoes. She was on the upper deck of the White Queen, watching the rugged coast black with spruce, when Bob and Helen Marston came to the rail beside her. They were in bathing suits, slim and young.

"Bob and I are going swimming as soon as we dock, Miss Dale," Helen explained. "The purser says there's a landing stage we can swim from; says it will be right under the bow almost, when we tie up. Don't you want to come?"

Robin swam well, and she was an expert diver. "That might be fun," she agreed. "Maybe I will."

"We're all ready," the boy said. "You better go dress."

But Robin said she would wait till after the White Queen was tied up. "I want to see what the place looks like as we come closer," she explained.

She wanted, in fact, to keep out of sight till they had docked; for Will would certainly be at the dock to meet Angus, and Will must not see her.

The White Queen neared the dock, moving slow and slower. In spite of the fact that it was late Saturday afternoon, men seemed to be working everywhere.

Robin, on the boat deck, kept herself half-hidden for fear Will, waiting on the dock to meet his brother, might see her. The White Queen drew alongside, and Robin saw that they were slowly approaching a landing stage for small boats. That was where those children meant to have their swim. Beyond the landing stage, a man in a bathing suit poised on the stringpiece of the wharf and dived—rather poorly.

A heaving line went unreeling through the air from the White Queen to the dock, was seized there and taken in, the hawser following. Robin suddenly wanted to say good-bye to Angus. The gangplank would come aboard on the deck below where she stood; and she went in to descend to that deck. Mr. Jenkins came out of the smoking room as she passed the door; and he protested: "Thought you were getting off here?"

"No, I've decided to stay aboard for the whole cruise. It seems like fun."

He urged: "Say, you're making a mistake. You'd have a great time here. Stay over and let me show you the sights. You don't want to miss Moose Bay when you're so near."

"I'm afraid I do," she said, smiling a little. "I mean, I'm afraid I do want to miss it." She and Mr. Jenkins blocked the stairs; and here was Angus McPhail trying to pass. She spoke to him over Mr. Jenkins' shoulder.

"Goodby, Mr. McPhail. Thank you for telling me all about salmon. Have a fine trip!"

She would have offered him her hand; but before she could do so, he said goodby, simply, neither smiling nor rebuffing her, and descended the stairs to the deck below. Robin, Mr. Jenkins following her, moved out on the upper deck in time to see Angus McPhail step on the dock. She looked for Will to meet him, but another man who seemed to be a workman—Robin saw only his clothes, not his face—hugged Angus; and Robin, not listening to Mr. Jenkins' continued urgencies at her elbow, saw Angus and this man who had greeted him go toward a decrepit automobile, get in, and drive away along the dock toward the shore half a mile away, toward the town beyond.

Robin had a moment's wonder why Will was not here. Maybe he was sick, or hurt, or something! Then she realized that Will was probably at work, too busy to come to meet the steamer. Mr. Jenkins was still urging her to change her mind. She said:

"Excuse me. I'm going to have a swim here, so I'll have to change."

She left him and went swiftly to her cabin. While she was dressing, one of the youngsters called outside her door:

"Ready, Miss Dale?"

"In a minute."

"The landing stage's right ahead of us. You can go along the dock and down to it that way. We'll go ahead. You come as soon as you're ready."

"Right!" Robin agreed. "Don't wait for me."

Her bathing suit was designed for swimming, reduced to its essentials; and since she was traveling with a minimum of luggage, she had no beach robe. She came out into the companionway and turned aft toward the gangplank and saw Mr. Jenkins standing there. He was talking with Mr. Lewis, but she suspected he was waiting to intercept her, so she turned back and went toward the bow, adjusting her bathing cap. She needn't go along the dock; she could just dive off the White Queen's rail. On the forward deck when she came out there, the fore hatch was open, the cargo derrick lifting some freight out of the hold; and the men stopped their work to look after her as she passed them. She had not realized there were so many men about till they all looked at her now. To get into the water as quickly as possible, she climbed on the low bulwark forward and took the air in a swan dive, arms wide, body beautifully arched, bright and slender in the sun. She met the water cleanly, and went deep, thrilling to the cool, sweet shock of it. She arched her back and glided toward the surface, letting her own buoyancy carry her up till her head emerged.

As she came to the surface she felt, rather than heard, a heavy splintering crash. She felt its impact through the water. Then even with a bathing cap over her ears she heard sudden shouts, with excitement and terror in them. The people along the stringpiece of the dock above her, silhouetted against the sky, suddenly whirled and disappeared. They must have run toward the other side of the dock. Something had happened. A great surge of water came through the forest of piles under the dock and lifted Robin and let her down again. Bob and Helen Marston and two or three older swimmers off the White Queen were climbing out on the landing stage, running up to the dock level, disappearing. She swam swiftly toward the stage, swung herself up on it, followed them.

Men were packed along the opposite side of the dock, their backs toward her, crowding, standing on tiptoe, trying to see over the shoulders of men in front, looking down at the water. She touched one of them.

"What happened?"

He told her, with only the briefest glance. "The crane fell over the side of the dock. Fellow in it. They're trying to get him out." He spoke almost with unctious. "But he's done for, all right."

Robin went back toward the White Queen, sick and shaken. The day was so sunny and fine and fair, the sky so blue and beautiful; yet someone had died. She dressed slowly, oppressed and miserable. She went to find Mr. Lewis.

"Did they get the man out?" she asked.

He said: "No. Not yet." The purser added: "He was Mr. McPhail's brother, Will McPhail."

When Angus McPhail stepped off the White Queen, he expected his brother Will to greet him. Will was not in sight; but Pat Donohoe was here. Pat was as ugly a man as you could meet in a nightmare, with red hair that stuck up in some places like sprouting grass; with a red face and a battered nose which suggested that it had met strange fists in its time and might again; with one ear half the size of the other; with a great scar on his upper lip—a horse had kicked him there—so that his mouth would not quite close. But he had a twinkling blue eye which made you forget the rest of his battered countenance; and he caught McPhail's hand and squeezed it to a pulp, and he took McPhail's heaviest bag and heaved it into an automobile which stood with the engine running, and he said:

"Get in yourself, sorr. Here we go."

"Where's Will?"

"Waiting for you, be sure."

So Angus got in, and the car picked its way through scattered groups of men, and past piles of freight, and around switching engines, and then speeded up for the last half-mile run along the dock to the shore. There the rough new road slowed them down; they bounced and grunted; and Angus thought Pat was driving faster than he needed to. But he did not complain. He wanted to see Will. Once he asked:

"Why didn't Will meet me? All right, is he?"

"Sure, sorr, he's fine. Busy, most like."

"What's he doing now?"

Pat chuckled. "Whatever they put him to, this thing and that. He'll make a hand, that lad."

Angus nodded, pleased and happy. He said: "I see they're unloading the rollers?"

"Aye," Pat dolefully agreed. "That means the end of the job's in sight. I hate to see the rollers come. Another eighteen months and we'll be moving on somewheres else again." Pat would be engineer and navigator on this trip which Angus and Will meant to take; but he was a construction man by habit and by long love. "Here's the bunkhouse, sorr. Like as not we'll find him here."

But Will McPhail was not there. Angus, after one glance inside, said so; and Pat walked in and said in seeming surprise:

"Sure he is not, at that. I made sure he would be. We'll wait, sorr. He'll be coming in any minute now."

But if Will was not here, other men were; and one of them volunteered information. "McPhail? He was out on the pier half an hour ago, running the traveler."

Shaking Hands

The explanation of the custom of shaking hands is quite simple. Most people are right-handed, and in the turbulent days of old, when everybody even in peace-time carried weapons, the safest thing any man could do when greeting another of whose disposition he could not be too sure was to grasp his right hand. Each, therefore, had his right hand immobilized, so neither could make a sudden attack upon the other.

NEW crochet edgings! Here are four—easy-to-do and pretty when finished. All are narrow and are suitable for edging pillow slips, scarfs, luncheon cloths, etc. A lacy knit edge is the fifth given.

Filet crochet does the triangles which may be used either as luncheon cloth corners or combined as

Your Sewing Machine Put to Double Duty—Easily Made to Serve as Table

NO SEWING machine should be idle today. No matter if yours is not the newest model, keep it in good repair and include it in your decorating scheme. This sketch shows how one was fitted into a living room to look very smart and to do extra duty as a table.

Plywood or composition board may be used for the removable top, (see sketch). The top cover is of blue felt with a scalloped band stitched around it. This is quick and easy to do as it is not necessary to finish raw edges of felt. The full skirt is made of the best part of old sheets dyed a soft ecru tone. This is sewn to the seam allowance of the felt and all is tacked to the back of the removable top so that it may be removed easily. A pair of kitchen stools are painted cream color and topped with blue felt for lamp stands. Scalloped felt also trims the lamp shades and the cover of an old side chair to match the table.

Household Hints

The mirror tends to get cloudy if it is always in direct contact with the sun's rays. To clean, dampen a ball of tissue paper in methylated spirit and rub well, polishing with a soft camoils leather. Avoid touching the frame with the spirit. The same treatment is good for windows.

When washing dishes used for either raw or cooked fish, about two heaping teaspoonsful of baking soda added to the dish water will deodorize the dishes and dish cloth.

If you are about to clean garments in gasoline or naphtha, wait for a nice day and do the job outside, where it is safe.

Before icing the cake, brush it over with the beaten white of an egg.

Buy canned goods with clean wrappers and refuse anything that seems bulgy.

Homemade biscuits will be different if tomato juice or fruit juice is used instead of the liquid called for in the recipe.

Never leave medicine or beverages uncovered in a sickroom.

Peroxide of hydrogen will remove perfume stains from linen bureau scarfs.

Help your Grocer

Let's Get Behind Him and Make Rationing a Success—Start Now to use more of the plentiful NON-RATIONED FOODS

THE man who runs your grocery store has his headaches these days. For months, in the face of shortages and lack of experienced help, he's been trying to carry on... trying to give you the kind of service you've always expected of him.

Now he has a brand new problem—point rationing. He has to collect the stamps from you as well as the cash.

It's a burden for him—sure—and for you. But he knows and you know that it's got to be done. It's the only fair way of making sure that everybody gets a fair share. That's our way of doing things.

So it's his job—and your job—everybody's job—to make point rationing work... as smoothly, as efficiently as possible. Traffic jams in food stores aren't going to help anybody.

Now there are a number of ways in which you can give this grocer of yours a real hand... in a good, neighborly American way. You can shop early in the day, early in the week. You can shop as infrequently as possible—once a week only, if you can manage. You can always make sure you have a shopping list, and to have your "point values" added up before you go to the store.

And you can help yourself as well as your grocer by using the plentiful, non-rationed foods as much as you can, instead of the scarce, rationed foods. Foods such as cereals, fresh fruits and vegetables, home-cooked soups, home-canned fruits and vegetables are not rationed and they deserve an important place in your wartime meals.

Because cereals are one of these abundant un-rationed foods, we here at the Kellogg factory in Battle Creek have been doing everything we possibly can to meet the unprecedented demand for our products. We're sending millions upon millions of packages of crisp Kellogg Cereals to the boys in our armed forces. We're packing K-ration for troops in the front line of fighting. Even our machine shop is making gun parts! And we're short of help, too. There are 423 stars on the big service flag hanging in the lobby of the Kellogg building.

Other ways to help your Grocer...

1. Shop early in the day.
2. Shop early in the week.
3. Shop only once or twice a week.
4. Prepare a shopping list.
5. Add up total "point" values before going to the store.

But in spite of these wartime difficulties, we've doubled our efforts to be sure that we can supply Kellogg Cereals to the millions of American families who are depending on cereals more than ever.

Always famous for marvelous flavor, every Kellogg Cereal is made of WHOLE GRAIN or is restored to WHOLE GRAIN NUTRITIVE VALUES through the addition of thiamin (vitamin B₁), niacin and iron. With milk alone, or with milk and fruit, a bowl of crisp, delicious Kellogg Cereal gives you vitamins, minerals, protein, food-energy in one dish! And remember this about cereals in your daily meals. They're quick and easy to prepare. No cooking, no pans or skillets to clean up. Even the dishes are easier to wash. Cereals save time—work—fuel—other foods. Used in hamburger, meat-loaves, croquettes, etc., they help you stretch your meat... and they make milk go farther, too. Think of cereals as one of your best, most nutritious, non-rationed foods and think of Kellogg Cereals as the finest you can buy.

FROM O.P.A. CONSUMER INSTRUCTION SHEET

"EAT MORE CEREALS—There is an abundance of cereals and, as you know, they are mighty economical. They are nourishing and delicious—what's more, cereals can be used to stretch your rations when mixed with vegetables and fruits."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Scientists have determined that rubber latex as it drips from the trees is about 60 per cent water, 28 per cent chemically pure rubber, the balance resins, minerals, proteins and sugars. Clothing made water-proof by the use of rubber was being sold in England as early as 1791. Beads of the five and ten cents variety have a stronger influence in encouraging the Yumbo Indians of Ecuador's Oriente jungle to haul rubber out from the waters of the Amazon. Next to beads, guns and machetes put the "go" in the Yumbo. The first rubber to be imported into the U. S. was in the form of water bottles. They came direct from the Amazon district. A full grown Hevea rubber tree averages 30 to 60 feet in height and its average life is 40 years or more.

REGISTRATION NOTICE

For All Elections Held

MONDAY, APRIL 5, 1943

To the Qualified Electors of the City of Tawas City, Iosco County, Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the "Michigan Election Laws," I, the undersigned City Clerk, will, upon any day, except Sunday and a legal holiday, the day of any regular or special election or primary election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said City not already registered who may apply to me personally for such registration. Provided, however, that I can receive no names for registration during the time intervening between the Twentieth day before any regular, special, or official primary election and the day of such election.

Notice is Hereby Given That I Will be at My Office

TUESDAY, MARCH 16, 1943

Last Day for General Registration by Personal Application for Said Election

From 8 o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m. on said day for the purpose of Reviewing the Registration and Registering such of the qualified electors in said City as shall properly apply therefor.

The name of no person but an actual resident of the precinct at the time of said registration, and entitled under the Constitution, if remaining such resident, to vote at the next election, shall be entered in the registration book.

Registration on Election Day

Sec. 9. If any person whose name is not registered shall offer the right to vote at any election or primary election, and shall, under oath, state that he is a resident of such precinct and has resided in the township or city 20 days next preceding such election, designating particularly the place of his residence, and that he possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the constitution, and that, owing to the sickness or bodily infirmity of himself or some member of his family, or owing to his absence from the township or city on public business or his own business, and without intent to avoid or delay his registration, he was unable to make application for registration on the last two days provided by law for the registering of electors preceding such election or primary election, then the name of such person shall be registered, and he shall then be permitted to vote at such election or primary election. If such applicant shall, in said matter, wilfully make any false statement, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury.

Provision in Case of Removal to Another Precinct

Any registered and qualified voter who has removed from one election precinct of a township or city to another election precinct of the same township or city, as the case may be, on any registration day, as in this act provided, on application to the township or city clerk, as the case may be, to have his name transferred from the registration of the precinct from which he has removed to the registration book of the precinct in which he then resides. Such elector shall have the right to have such transfer made on any election or primary election day, by obtaining from the board of inspectors of such election or primary election of the precinct from which he has removed, a certificate of transfer and presenting the said certificate to the board of election inspectors of the precinct in which he then resides. In every such case of transfer the township or city clerk or the board of inspectors issuing such certificate shall cause opposite the name of such elector, to be entered in the column headed "Remarks" in such registration book, the words "transferred to precinct number . . . (giving the number)," together with the initials of the said clerk or some member of the board of inspectors of election, as the case may be, and the date of the transfer: Provided that any city may provide by its charter or by resolution duly approved by a majority of the members of its legislative body for the transfer of electors as herein provided on the last Saturday prior to any election or primary election at the several places of voting in the voting districts of such city instead of on election or official primary election day, and may in like manner further provide that no transfer of registration shall be received by the clerk of such city for a period not exceeding 10 days prior to any primary or election.

Dated March 1, 1943.

WILL C. DAVIDSON, City Clerk.

Red Cross Field Directors Solve Soldiers' Problems

Thousands of U. S. fighting men last year accepted the invitation to discuss their personal problems with Red Cross field directors who accompany troops to all parts of the world. This picture, taken in London, shows everyone happy after the field men had satisfactorily solved the problems of the two soldiers at the desk. Contributions to the Red Cross 1943 War Fund, now in progress, make this service possible.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The soldier stormed into the Red Cross office at a southern Army camp. His mouth was set in a hard, straight line; his eyes were cold, determined. His wife trailed him as he strode across the reception room; her face was red and swollen from crying. They were not over 22. "I need help," the soldier told the Red Cross field director at the desk. "And I need it fast."

The Red Cross field director smiled, but the soldier did not return it. "All right, soldier, let's see what's the trouble."

"If I don't get help I'm going over the hill," he blurted. "I'm on alert now—due to move out almost any minute. But I'm not going—and leave my wife with no place to stay."

Further conversation developed that the young bride was an expectant mother. She was unable to go home because of her stepfather. Her husband had no relatives with whom she could stay. And the allotment he had made to his wife had not yet come through.

Two hours later—after much conversation and planning—the soldier was shaking the hand of the Red Cross field director.

The Red Cross man had arranged that the soldier's wife spend the night at the Army camp guest house. Preparations had been completed with a nearby Red Cross chapter for her transportation back home. The Red Cross chapter in the girl's home town had agreed to see that she had proper care until the baby was born. By that time the allotment would be coming through.

In every United States military establishment, at home and abroad, the American Red Cross maintains a field director and staff to help Uncle Sam's fighting men work out such personal problems. More than 1,000,000 servicemen passed through the offices of the Red Cross field directors last year. Their problems covered all phases of life—families needing financial aid, allotments, illnesses, deaths, loss of contact with the home folks. These and other problems are unfolded in a never-ending panorama before Red Cross field directors. Almost always they are solved.

The Red Cross field director is ready to furnish information, counsel, and assistance as needed to men of the armed forces. Reaching into every county in the United States through local Red Cross chapters, these workers and local home service chairmen act on behalf of the men of the armed forces and their families in matters affecting the welfare of either or both. In addition to the servicemen aided by field directors, more than 600,000 families of men in the service received help through Red Cross chapters and branches.

Contributions of the American people to the Red Cross during the $125,000,000 War Fund appeal now in progress will help to keep and expand these services to the nation's fighting men.

Varied and often unusual are the other demands made of Red Cross field directors. Field Director William Fluharty, stationed in a remote Australian area, traveled down to a railroad junction to bring back 6,000 pounds of American magazines for troops to which he was assigned. Returning on a train, he was asked to help deliver a baby for a native woman, belatedly en route to a hospital.

Red Cross Field Director Albert S. Campbell and two assistants, David S. Oman and John J. Clancy, Jr., distributed clothes, cigarettes, soap, razors, tooth brushes, playing cards and other articles to American fighters during one of the most furious Solomon Islands battles.

Whatever the welfare and personal problems of American fighters at home or abroad, the field director, backed up by 3,755 Red Cross chapters and 6,000 branches, is the serviceman's best friend in time of need.

RUSSIAN SOCIALISM WANES

The Russians are doing more than reversing the direction of Nazi military movement. They are also reversing certain important political and social directions.

Americans in Russia now report the reappearance of shoulder insignia on the officers of the Red army—for the first time since the dark days of the Revolution.

In those days, officers who supported the Bolshevik movement tore the epaulets from their uniforms as a mark of democracy. Those who failed to do so were regarded as enemies of the Revolution, and in some extreme cases, mobs attacked them, drove nails through the epaulets into their shoulders.

There is also a change in official awards or decorations, indicating that Bolshevik scorn for heroes of the past is vanishing. Three of the most coveted decorations of the Soviet Union today are the award of "Nevski," who was a 13th century prince, and the awards of "Suvorov" and "Kutuzov," who were Czarist generals at the time of Napoleon.

Also the St. George's cross, which would have been torn from the breast of the wearer a few years ago, has made its reappearance at official functions.

The U. S. public has the impression of modern Russians as dressed in coarse, formless clothing, but reports from the USSR today state that Red army officers dress with such punctilio as to make American officers look shabby by comparison.

LITTLE AID TO CHINA

Just back from Chungking, General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the air force, gave a glowing report to Secretary of War Stimson regarding Chinese resourcefulness in battling the Japs. He was amazed and full of praise for Chinese ingenuity in repairing planes, landing in cow pastures and conserving fuel.

As far as General Arnold is concerned he would like to send the Chinese a lot more planes—though in the past he has not been too keen about it. (Incidentally, one reason for sending him to China was to win him over to the Chinese cause.)

However, despite Madame Chiang Kai-shek's graceful appearance here, despite Hap Arnold's enthusiasm, despite the President's public statements, China is not going to get anything much in the way of supplies.

Reasons Listed.

Reasons are: (1) the impossibility of opening the Burma road now with the monsoon season only a few weeks off; (2) the absolute necessity of cleaning up Africa and preparing for a drive against Hitler in Europe; (3) Chinese political dissension which requires too many aims for personal armies.

Some war weapons will be flown over the Himalayas, but not much more than in the past.

SECRET RUMPL PLAN VOTE

The vote of the house ways and means committee on the Ruml plan was secret, but inside fact is it never had a chance of getting more than five votes.

The flood of mail reaching committee members, at first favorable, turned round and showed conclusively that the country was against outright postponement of taxes. Underlying sentiment expressed in the mail was that although high taxes hurt, it was unfair to postpone too much of the war cost to the next generation.

Also the committee became more and more convinced that the Ruml plan was largely cooked up for the benefit of top bracket incomes, and if taxes were forgiven one year, it would mean shifting a much greater burden to lower income groups to make up the deficit.

This, they concluded, was just what Mr. Ruml's war wealthy clients wanted.

CURE FOR TYPHUS

By way of London has come word that the Germans have evolved a cure for the dread disease typhus. If so, it is a discovery meaning the lives of thousands of men in the eastern front. In 1914 "General Typhus" was responsible for more lives than machine gun fire, and from time to time it has ravaged the Balkans, Russia and eastern Europe ever since.

The German cure was discovered by a Dr. Van Meerdock and is a combination of atebirin and plasmochin. U. S. Public Health officials have their fingers crossed regarding the cure, but British medical circles seem to be favorably impressed.

CAPITAL CHAFF

General Eisenhower has sent word to Washington that there are too many news correspondents running around North Africa.

Budget Bureau has prepared a plan for consolidating all picture-making branches of war department—signal corps, air corps, special services, and strategic services.

The senate's 75-year-old athlete, Theodore Green of Rhode Island, eats a buttered muffin and coffee for breakfast, a bowl of soup and a glass of milk for lunch.

PEAKING OF SPORTS

By Col. McShane

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

BASEBALL has been—and will continue to be—subject to a lot of unwarranted criticism. Most of this criticism is leveled at the men who are doing the most to keep baseball the nation's number one sport—the stars.

When Joe DiMaggio enlisted he did a lot for the game, even though his action removed one of the brightest stars of the baseball world. He eliminated one of the vulnerable spots that would have been a wide open target for those who are prone to find fault.

Joe is a married man with a family. Like those with the same responsibilities in other professions, he was classified 3-A by his draft board. He was subject to the same regulations as the grocery clerk or the filling station operator. The government asks only that a man go when his draft number comes up.

But DiMaggio didn't feel that he should wait. It was common knowledge that he was drawing more than $42,000 a year for playing a game. He knew he would be forced to take too much criticism, even though his hecklers were wrong. He knew, too, that baseball in general would suffer from the attacks directed against him.

The big boys of baseball can thank Joe for his move. They can point to him when the sharpshooting gets rough. He asked no favors when he voluntarily cut his own salary from $42,000 a year to $50 a month.

There are others. Baseball can point to Ted Williams, Hank Greenberg, Hugh Mulcahy and other stars who either enlisted or went when called without searching for some means of postponement.

Notre Dame Tinge

When Arthur ("Dutch") Bergman was named head coach of the World Champion Washington Redskins, the National Football league began to look more and more like a circuit of Notre Dame alumni.

Two head coaches have been named since the close of the last season—Bergman and Gus Dorais of the Detroit Lions. Both were Notre Dame men. They bring to four the total of Irish stars who hold top coaching spots in the pro league. The other two men are Hunk Anderson of the Chicago Bears and Curly Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers.

It might be remembered, too, that Elmer Layden, president of the league, is a Notre Dame graduate.

The first Notre Dame team coached by Knute Rockne included Lambeau and Anderson on its roster. That was in 1918. Bergman was on the team the following year and Dorais returned to the campus that same year to become Rockne's assistant.

Sports in Britain

Sports enthusiasts in America, somewhat bewildered by the conflicting reports regarding baseball, football, racing and other spectator sports, can take heart from news of athletics in England.

Just about every type of sports in Britain has undergone drastic retrenchment, but continue in almost unabated variety and popularity. American and Canadian soldiers have introduced softball and basketball to add to boxing, English football, racing, rugby and cricket.

Sports have overcome most obstacles, even the one providing that there shall be no exemptions from military or civilian war service for athletes. The competitors engage in their specialties on short leaves. The leaves are facilitated officially and professional football—soccer—players still perform, and for pay.

Boxing continues to pack 'em in. Queensberry club, which houses London's weekly matches, usually is filled to its 2,000 capacity. Seats sell for as much as $55.

Cricket crowds are as great as ever. The Army-RAF competition in London attracted 20,000 each day.

Under special rules, player-club contracts are virtually non-existent. A player now can perform for the football team nearest his post, or on any team he can reach. As a result, there has been much borrowing among clubs.

There is a historically interesting story behind the naming of baseball's commissioner—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

It seems that when he was born, his folks couldn't agree on a name. The debate finally became a community problem in Millvale, Ohio, where he was born in 1866. The solution turned out to be simple. His father had been a surgeon in the Union army and had lost a leg in the battle of Kennesaw Mountain, Ga. The family merely decided to perpetuate the memory of the battle in the son.

Where Tunis Air Raid Was Plotted

The roulette table in this old gambling casino in Tunisia is the plotting room for planning the air raid on the Axis-held El Aouina field, Tunisia. This was prior to the great tank battle of Kasserine Pass, in which American armored forces, after serious reverses, hammered back Rommel's dangerous thrust westward towards Tebessa.

Flying Fortresses Foray in Solomons

Leaving fire and destruction in their wake, U. S. army Flying Fortresses carry out a bombing sortie on Japanese installations on Gizo island in the Solomons. The raid was part of a triple-pronged aerial thrust against the enemy during the fight for Guadalcanal. The starboard wing of the Flying Fortress from which a U. S. navy photographer snapped this picture is visible at the extreme right.

Jap Zeros in Alameda Naval Base

The Alameda naval air base, California, had a visitation of Japanese float-type Zeros, but no bombs were dropped. The planes, in various stages of disrepair, were shot down in the war zone and brought back for such purposes as the navy department may see fit to put them to. Photo shows a sample of what happens to these frail Japanese craft when they come under the guns of U. S. forces in the Pacific.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

BY HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 14

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

IN THE UPPER ROOM

LESSON TEXT—John 13:12-20; 14:1-6. GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no one cometh unto the Father, but by me.—John 14:6.

Calvary and crucifixion were just ahead. Jesus gathered His disciples for a time of communion and instruction as they spent their last evening together. On the morrow would come betrayal, but now they and their Lord were together in the upper room.

But even here strife and dissension had apparently come in. There was probably some difference of opinion as to who should have the place of honor. To teach them the virtue of humility Jesus gave them an example, after which He continued with the precious counsel and prayer which are found in John 14 to 17.

Our lesson presents three things which our Lord gave to His disciples and to us (see John 17:20).

I. His Example—"Do as I Have Done" (13:12-20).

The act of Jesus in washing the disciples' feet placed Him, their Lord and Teacher, on the level of the most menial servant. It was an astonishing thing that He did, lowering Himself below their level to serve them.

His application of the object lesson was equally startling. "Ye call me Teacher and Lord, and ye say well," said He. Then as learners and servants He required of them the humility which would make them eager to do lowly service in His name.

There are more than enough folk who are willing to do the nice, pleasant things in the church, where they will be given recognition and praise. All too scarce are those Christlike folk who will serve in the hidden places where darkness, suffering, disease and sin make the natural man recoil in distress or fear.

II. His Assurance—"If I Go I Will Come Again" (14:1-3).

Following His resurrection Jesus was to go to the Father. He wanted them to be prepared for that time by making known to them the fact of His coming again. In that day His own shall be received unto Himself to abide with Him forever.

The second coming of Christ is not a strange doctrine held by little groups of people who are riding a theological hobby. It is one of the most blessed truths of Scripture. The hope of the Christian—yes, the only real hope of this disordered world—is the coming of Christ to reign. The New Testament is full of plain and helpful teaching on this subject.

While we await His coming, then, is there any encouragement for us as the burdens bear down and the way seems long? Yes, He says: "Let not your heart be troubled" (v. 1). There is little question that this passage has comforted more people than any other word in Scripture.

Countless bewildered and broken souls in all lands and times have found the steady assurance of the one who has the power to give them rest and comfort.

There is good foundation for their composure of heart in a troubled world. They believe in God, and in Christ, who is one with the Father. Here is real security—infinite superior to aught the world can give.

Then at the end of the road are the eternal dwelling places. What they are like is sufficiently revealed in the fact that they are in the Father's house. How shall we reach them? That is our last point. We have

III. His Guidance—"I Am the Way" (vv. 4-6).

To Christ's declaration that they knew the way, Thomas responded with a request for a definite statement. He wanted to be sure, and Christ responded by reminding him that He, their Lord, is the "way, the truth, and the life." Surely there could be no more complete provision for the guidance of the heavenly pilgrim.

Christ is "the way." If one takes the right road he will reach the right destination though he "cannot at first see it clearly. Perhaps this is the commonest mistake of the Christian. He frets too much about what lies ahead . . . and not enough about taking the right road" (Lesson Commentary).

He is "the truth." He is the final and complete revelation of God, and is therefore the One who will lead all those who walk the way by faith into the fullness of the truth. To know Christ is to know God.

He is "the life." He is life, and He alone can give eternal life to man. There is none other to whom man may turn for life, but in Christ it is found, and from Him it may be received by faith.

We have only touched the briefest beginning of what took place on that remarkable evening in the upper room. It was a time of richest spiritual significance, of dark betrayal, but also of closest communion. We continue next Sunday.

A SERIES OF SPECIAL ARTICLES BY THE LEADING WAR CORRESPONDENTS

Building A Peaceful World

By Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

One of the great lessons we Americans will have to learn if we ever hope to build a better foundation for peace is that human beings the world over have to be approached as human beings and not as members of a race or as adherents of a certain religion—but just as people whom you may like or dislike according to their individual characteristics.

I may be a Chinese, an Arab, a Jew, an Indian, a Negro, a German, a Frenchman, or a Britisher—still I must be evaluated, if I am to be fairly judged, on the basis of being just a human being.

We have never done this in the world before—and we have never had peace in the world thus far.

Freedom From Fear.

One of our four freedoms states that we shall have "freedom from fear." Freedom from fear, of course, means that the world over, people will be protected from aggression, people will be protected from persecution because of their race or their religion.

People will be safeguarded from hunger and want, too, by an economy which takes into consideration the basic needs of all the people, the world over.

If that is going to become a reality, then the first thing we have to do is to learn to meet our fellow human beings, recognizing the fact that we will not love all of them, but we will love some, and we must get on with all, regardless of difference of race or creed.

Those who are evil will have to be restrained. We do that in our own countries everywhere.

The Chinese philosopher, Lin Yutang, says in substance, in a recent article, that our moral attitudes the world over are the important factors, not what we know or what we have, but our ability to choose between right and wrong. This may be the basis on which we shall have to develop some of our future cooperation.

Our boys in Africa and in the Solomon Islands deal with natives who haven't yet had a chance to develop a very high type of civilization. These boys are going a step beyond their first contacts in Great Britain and Australia, and wide differences will develop, but the beginning of the development is in Great Britain.

If we can build on the good will which Great Britain has toward us at the moment (largely brought about because, in the trials through which the British have gone, the generosity of the American people has made them grateful) we will be beginning a new era in the world.

Generous, Not Sacrificial.

Over here, it is hard to understand just what certain things have meant to Great Britain, because while we have given money which has sent mobile canteens, ambulances, medical supplies, clothing, food, etc., in great quantities to Great Britain, we were only being generous, not sacrificial.

We have sent old clothes, but they were things we could do without. However, the people who received them over there could not do without them.

A woman in a London crowd, for instance, one day plucked at my sleeve and said, "My little girl would have been cold if it had not been for the warm clothes the children of America sent us."

The British people show their gratitude by wanting to do things for our American soldiers. They realize that our coming into the war is a great help to their own boys who have fought in all parts of the world for the past three years. But their gratitude goes deeper than that: it touches the lives of everyone in that group of islands.

It calls out a traditional feeling which I think is ingrained in the people of the United States and in the people of Great Britain—if we have received something, we want to make a return, at least in good will.

This is a basis on which I believe we can readily and permanently build.

Well, to be really effective, the United Nations will have to build among the people of all the nations an understanding such as is now growing between the people of Great Britain and the people of the United States.

It will be slow, but the building of a peaceful world is not something to be accomplished by the writing of a treaty. It takes time to work out the relationships of men and women, but if we hope for peace, it must be done. And I think a good beginning has been made.

Hints for Housewives in Solving Wartime Meat Problems

Ways and Means for Effecting Economies Are Easy, Simple

Faced with restricted meat supplies, America's homemakers must use their ingenuity to make their share of meat go as far as possible. Home economists have developed many cooking tricks to enable them to maintain the American tradition of at least one daily meal with meat.

As a guide to help the homemaker with her wartime meat problems, the National Live Stock and Meat board has recommended the following rules for her to follow: (1) Be familiar with as many meat cuts as possible; (2) Plan menus a week in advance; (3) Cook meat at a low temperature to avoid shrinkage, obtain more servings, and better flavor; (4) Extend meat flavor with stuffings, puddings, gravies, sauces, etc.; and (5) get better acquainted with the variety meats, such as heart, kidney, liver, etc., which are highly nutritious.

Following are suggestions for obtaining three meals each from a pork loin roast and from a meat stew made with beef, lamb or veal.

PORK LOIN ROAST
1. First Meal. A pork loin roast is a delicious dish. The roast should be cooked uncovered at a temperature of 350 degrees, allowing approximately 35 to 40 minutes per pound. Serve with rutabagas and peas.

2. Second Meal. A novel and tasty way to use part of the left-over pork roast is in a pork salad as the main dish. Combine 3 cups diced left-over pork with 1 cup diced celery and 2 diced hard-cooked eggs. Add ¼ cup mayonnaise and toss lightly. Serve on lettuce leaves and garnish with tomatoes and stuffed olives.

3. Third Meal. The remaining left-over pork provides a third meal in the form of an old American favorite—Scrapple. To prepare, chop or grind left-over pork. Boil one quart of water and add 1½ cups of cornmeal slowly, stirring constantly. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon minced celery leaves, ¼ cup minced parsley, ½ teaspoon sage, and the meat. Pour mixture into loaf pan and chill until set. Slice, and fry in lard until crisp and nicely browned.

MEAT STEW, Beef, Lamb or Veal.
1. First Meal. Meat stew is a thrifty dish and can be made with either lamb, beef, or veal. Along with the meat, you'll want celery, peas, and green beans, and perhaps carrots.

2. Second Meal. Left-overs from the stew will look like an entirely new dish when made into individual meat and vegetable pies. All you need to do is make a crust for individual casseroles and cook in a moderate oven long enough to bake the crust and warm up the meat and vegetables.

3. Third Meal. The remaining meat from the stew may be ground and mixed with cooked oatmeal and egg to make Scotch Pancakes for supper or breakfast.

VARIETY MEATS
Variety meats include heart, liver, kidney, sweetbreads, tongue, tripe, and brains and may be used by the homemaker, in addition to her regular weekly share of meat. Here are suggestions for using tongue, sweetbreads, and liver.

Creamed Sweetbreads. Simmer 1 pound of sweetbreads for 20 minutes in a quart of water containing one teaspoon of salt and one tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice. Drain and plunge into cold water. Make a sauce by melting 4 tablespoons of butter or meat drippings and stir in 4 tablespoons of flour. Add 2 cups of milk. Salt and pepper to taste. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Break sweetbreads into small pieces and add to cream sauce. Serve hot on toast.

Liver Spoon Cakes. Simmer 1 pound of sliced liver for 5 minutes. Put through food chopper with 1 onion and 6 crackers. Add seasoning, 2 tablespoons milk, and 2 beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly. Drop by tablespoonfuls into hot lard or drippings. Brown on both sides.

Tongue. Wash tongue and cover with water. If fresh tongue, add 2 teaspoons salt. Cover and simmer until tender, allowing one hour per pound. Trim and remove skin. Slice and serve.

AMERICA IN ACTION

WEATHER FORECASTING

There's an old saying that "everybody talks about the weather, but nobody ever does anything about it!" At Chanute Field, Ill., folks talk about the weather a good bit, and they're doing something about it too.

Chanute Field, one of the army air forces technical training command's large training centers, has two weather schools—one for training weather observers and another for training weather forecasters. After having long and detailed experience as weather observers, the students qualify for the "post graduate" course in weather forecasting.

Weather plays an important role in modern warfare. It determines the outcome of important campaigns and virtually has defeated armies.

Every time an army bomber roars down the runway for a takeoff, the pilot and navigator know to the smallest exacting detail what kind of weather they'll encounter on the mission. If weather conditions are too severe on a certain leg of the flight, the navigator plots a course to circumvent the storm area.

Before the great thousand bombing-plane raids take off from England for objectives in Germany or continental Europe, there is a vast amount of careful figuring on sheets of paper. This is done by the weather forecasters who make a careful study of charts, calculate the movements of great air masses and apply intricate formulae to data relayed in from distant points.

While army weather training naturally centers on the air forces today, the weather is also a vital factor in chemical warfare, when a gas attack cannot be safely launched without assurance that the wind will not blow the gas back into one's own territory.

FUN FOR YOUR FAMILY

By MISS ABBIE CONDIT

National Recreation Association.

Of course you haven't been ruthlessly tossing wearables into the rag bag during the past year, but nevertheless it may contain a few items worth repair and renovation. At least you might well take a look at the contents.

Pass over the usual scraps of material good only for polishing furniture and pull out that dress you tucked in there two years ago. It's still in style, thanks to the frozen fashions, and probably the only thing really wrong with it is the worn part under the sleeves.

Side-Panel Dress. Get out your best shears and cut a strip several inches wide all the way down each side of the dress, starting with the sleeves and continuing down to the bottom. Replace this with a strip of material of a contrasting or blending color, so that you now have a dress with full-length side panels. Add a pocket and perhaps a belt of the same color. Your rejuvenating project is complete and the added attractions look as though they had been there all the time!

Link Belt. Belts or bracelets can be easily made from that old leather pocketbook you stuffed away in your bottom drawer. Cut links any uniform size and shape, then slit them at either end for stringing. Decorations of leather, felt, or cloth may be glued or stitched onto the links. If you use material matching your dress for the belt, press it flat before slipping the links onto it. Heavy ribbon is also good. Since no buckle is used on this belt, the string should be long enough to be looped or tied in the front. Bracelets can be made in the same manner, with smaller and narrower links.

Laced Belt. If a shabby buckle is the only reason for discarding a leather belt, remove the tattered part and cut the belt to the size of your waistline. Then lace ribbon or other material in and out of slits, cut about an inch apart all around the belt. This strip should be at least half a yard longer than the belt itself to allow for tying or looping in the front.

Lacing of material matching your renovated dress or of a complementary color will add the final note to your reconstruction program.

Leathercraft Buttons. Delving deeper into the rag bag, you may unearth an old sweater or jacket which is sadly in need of buttons. Defy all temptation to go to the five-and-ten—and make your own buttons free!

Again dissecting the old leather purse, cut the buttons to size and shape—round, square, oval, etc. Cut two matching pieces for each button, being careful to reverse the pattern so that both front and back have the same smooth surface.

You might decorate the front by sewing on a large colored bead or by sewing or gluing on a design cut from a piece of contrasting leather.

A leather loop to fasten the button to the dress can be inserted through a small hole punched in the back piece. Spread out the ends of this loop and glue to the inside surface. Then fasten front and back pieces together with strong glue and press down until dry.

These buttons may not be strong enough to bear much pressure, so it is well to reinforce them with snaps or use them simply as decorations.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

Listening is one of the most important things we do. It is just as much a part of conversation as talking—and a good listener is considered (especially by those who love to chatter) as a really brilliant person.

To be a good listener you cannot just allow the other person to talk. You must take an active part by showing your interest and being alert and animated.

You'll never be a good listener if you are constantly thinking about what you would like to say when your friend is finished talking. Put your whole mind on the other person and forget yourself. When you pay close attention to another's conversation you will have no trouble in filling in the gaps, asking pertinent questions, etc. Never ask personal questions because that is rude, but do show interest in what your friends want to tell you.

Buck Private Felt That Promotion Was Due Him

Accompanied by a driver, an American major in a motor vehicle was stopped by the sentry on guard at a cross-roads.

"Who goes there?"

"One American major, a one-ton truck of fertilizer, and one buck private."

They were allowed to proceed, but at every cross-roads they went through the same formula.

After a time the driver asked if they were likely to be stopped again.

"I guess so," replied the major.

"Well, major," said the private. "the next time we are stopped would you mind giving me priority over the fertilizer?"

Pvt. Earl Biely arrived Wednesday for an extended furlough from Camp Butler, N. C.

Miss Mary Malenfant of this city received the following letter from her brother, Pfc. George Malenfant, who is now stationed somewhere in North Africa:

February 8, 1943

Mary:—
Up to date, I have received nine letters from, including one from mother, dating from December 8 to January 8. By Now you have a good idea where I am. Everything is going smoothly. I'm getting plenty to eat, sometimes I think I get too much, because it seems like I'm putting on weight. I also get enough candy and cigarettes, so I'm well fixed on that kind of stuff. On the whole, I have very little to worry about.

I have been saving money since I've been here. I'm putting it in the Soldier's fund and it can't be drawn out until I leave the service. I expect to put more in this pay, so if the war lasts long enough, I won't have to work when I get out, just retire.

I'm not doing ward work anymore (two days a week in the hospital. All just barbering. I work from one to two days a week in the hospital, all haircuts are free, and the rest of the time I work in a shop I set up. As it is my trade, I like it much better.

I have been collecting pictures and coins to bring back with me so you can see how nice it is here.

Dad and I should be able to have quite a chat, that is if I can pick up this language they speak, although I'm having a little trouble.

In the line of drinks, there is no liquor, but plenty of wine, which I am getting tired of.

I hope I see you all soon.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

While we have not heard so much about them, our air-borne command is inferior to none. We have thousands of these especially trained troops and the glider is a necessary factor in their successful operation.

We build gliders in three types and their capacity is a military secret. The type shown here costs about $19,000 each. Buy War Bonds with at least ten percent of your income every payday and help pay for these gliders for our intrepid fighting men.

George Francis who engineered the construction of the water works system here.

We have been informed that a number of Northern Michigan cities have experienced similar ice trouble this winter with stanpipes of this type. It is feared by members of the water board that the design, viz: a five-foot stanpipe, will not safeguard against the ice condition during the more extreme winters of this locality. The present water board is studying various plans to counteract the forming of ice in the stanpipe, and prevent a repetition of this condition in the future.

Red Corpuscles Die
In the normal human blood stream, red corpuscles die and are replaced at the rate of about 150,000 a second, declares Collier's.

Let's Talk About Money

... and WAR

When you hear that bombing planes cost $335,000, tanks $75,000, anti-aircraft guns $50,000—And when you hear, too, that America needs 60,000 planes, 45,000 tanks, and 20,000 anti-aircraft guns at once—

It doesn't take much figuring to see that winning this war calls for every dollar all of us can scrape together. With our freedom at stake—our farms, families, even our very lives depending upon the outcome, we'd gladly give this money.

But we aren't asked to do that. Our Government asks us only to lend the money—to put our increased earnings into War Bonds—month after month—until this war is won. In doing so, we save for our own security as well. For we get back $4 for every $3 we invest, when the Bonds are held 10 years. And if we need the money, we can get it all back any time after 60 days from issue date. This is the American way—the volunteer way—to raise the billions needed for Victory. And the money can... will... must be raised.

So let's show them that the farmers of America are helping to win this war in two vitally important ways—by producing more Food for Freedom and by saving more in War Bonds. Make Every Market Day "Bond Day"—Invest At Least 10%.
