Iosco Attorney Has 60-Year Law Practice

On the 17th day of March, 1883— 60 years ago Wednesday—N.C. Har-tingh was admitted to the Bay County Bar. He took the bar examinaion before Judge Sanford Greene, with Judge Maxwell, Judge H. H. Hatch and T. A. E. Weadock on the examining committee. That was a long time ago, and practically all of the attorneys practicing law in this section and in Bay County during those early days have passed on.

He did not start practicing law for several years after passing the bar examination for he was a court stenographer for the counties of Gladwin and Arenac in the Bay Circuit, had in 1882 been appointed court stenographer in the 23rd Circuit, and had studied law to perfect himself in that work. For a few years he was associated in Bay City with Curtis E. Pierce, at the time, circuit court commissioner.

In 1887 Mr. Hartingh moved to the court of the beautiful and Arena and Arena and Arena and the things which will be a full day meeting, starting at 10:30 E. W. T., with Dorr Stack, assistant superintendent of public instruction, in charge. County School Commissioner Russell Rollin will act as general chairman.

In 1887 Mr. Hartingh moved to Among the things which will be Tawas City and established his law taken up at this meeting are: Adversarias and all tractions and all tractions and all tractions and all tractions are the statement of the statement practice and abstract office. He was ministrative school problems, School court stenographer in the 23rd finances, transportation of pupils, Judicial Circuit until 1921. Among shortage of teachers and the Nationthe circuit judges with whom Mr. all Farm Youth Program. Hartingh worked were: Judges Tutte, Simpson, Connine, Kelly, Emerick

After sixty years Mr. Hartingh is still active in his office here, and The Tawas Herald wishes to congratulate him on his long career as court stenographer, attorney and contractor of the beautiful flowers, cards and gifts I received during my illness at the Omer Hospital.

WORKERS Oscoda - AuSable Goes Out And Doubles $300

Quota

PRAISES IOSCO

Iosco county residents and neighborhood War Fund workers in particular, are drawing high praise this week from Red Gross War Fund Chairman A. W. Colby who has directed the campaign. The quota, $3,100.00. double that of last year and set by national officials has been and set by national officials, has been oversubscribed in a 15 day drive. There will still be returns from a few districts, which are expected to boost each over its respective quota, but at present due to bad weather and gas restrictions, a few are just short of their respective goals.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Main of Detroit spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hatton.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Toms were their past record of always providing the Plint on Friday by the to be met.

While Mr. Colby again gives much credit to the donations of groups which are still coming in, he calls attention to the fact that Nada Mills, director of the campaign in the Oscoda and AuSable area and his workers, have through last minute efforts dooubled their quota, and thereby, shoving the county "Over the Top" by the end of the 15 day period. "Over the Top in 15 Days" had been promised by A. W. Colby.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good heath is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

men watching its operations; and when Pat braked to a stop, the men laughed at something. Will, in the crane's small cramped cab, was in the act of lifting one of those heavy crates, to swing it out over the edge of the dock and lower it into the

She dives from the boat, and as she comes to the surface, she hears a crash.

"Too heavy it was, to be sure." "No heavier than the other loads he'd been handling." Angus reached his cold conclusion. "If Will hadn't looked away at the wrong timehe'd be alive. He saw that girl diving off the White Queen. He looked at her and forgot to stop the swing.'

Pat said apoiogetically: "I was looking at her myself, sorr. Who would not? She was a sight to see for any man. Ye'll not blame him for it, sure.'

"Blame him?" Angus choked with a hard rage. "No, I don't blame him! But Pat—that girl killed Will!" "Her, sorr?" Pat protested. "Sure she just went for a swim. Can a girl be helping it if men are made go, just the same." Half an hour later Angus McPhail threw the raw new town behind him, tramping strongly away into the trackless forest. There were trails and work roads, but he ignored them. He plunged blindly straight ahead, bulling through underbrush, scrambling up bluffs or sliding down swamps. He had in mind no destination. He sought only complete physical exhaustion. He walked till it was full dark; and he was drenched with his own exertions before at last he stopped, and absently built a fire and boiled the kettle.

When the purser told her that the crane, toppling overside, had carried Will McPhail to his death, Robin's reaction was not emotional. It was physical. She seemed to be stiff in the grip of an icy cold; and she knew remotely that her lips felt dry and hard, and that her cheeks crawled as though small live things were burrowing in them. She was conscious of every physical part of her; conscious of the business of life going in all her veins and arteries, in her nerves and sinews.

Her hands brushed the walls of the companion, and she knew she was going toward her cabin, groping her way like a blind person, recognizing by instinct the narrow door, opening it, shutting it behind her. She looked at herself in the mirror; at this strange person who was at the same time so familiar. That was her face in the mirror. It seemed unchanged. She had seen it a dozen times a day for twenty years; she could not discover in it now any new line, any new mark or cut or bruise. She wanted to cower and cover her head with her arms as though to avoid flying misfor the crane, like as not. Sure and siles. She felt herself the target for they're working everything here things unseen.

Will was dead.
Will McPhail, that gay, laughing, black-haired young man with the irresponsible light of lively mischief in his eyes, was dead. She re-membered how she had seen him, first, asleep on a park bench, a folded newspaper in his hands like a lily in the hands of a corpse. He might have caught cold, might have caught pneumonia and died from that folly of sleeping out the June night in the open air. But of course he had not died. There was too much life in him. Why, he could not be dead now. The purser was wrong. He must be wrong. Will could not be dead. Not Will Mc-Phail.

She smiled to herself at the purser's folly in supposing that Will could be dead. Out of nowhere, fragments of sentences came to her. She must have heard what the purser was saying without knowing it; she seemed now to be listening to him as he told her what had happened.

"Will McPhail, yes . . . running the crane, sitting in the little high cab, lifting crates off the flat car . . swung one load out too fast, and it pulled the crane off balance . . . started to tip . . . when one of those things starts to go, you can't stop it . . fell on top of the barge . . smashed the cab, with him inside handle them all right as long as the operator didn't let them start swinging ... Angus McPhail's brother

It was some time before, as her cloudy thoughts like muddied water began to clear, she really remembered Angus. He was there in the background for a while, a figure with something gray about him, with still eyes that were grave and stern. Robin sat down on the narrow bunk; she lay down on it, lying on her back, her arm across her eyes. Her cabin was very quiet. It was on the side of the White Queen away from the dock, so that any sounds of activity there came to her remotely. She thought, it's just as well I decided not to stay here, not to see Will, because now of course I couldn't anyway, because he's dead.

Then she remembered that the White Queen would be sailing in a little while. The cruise would go on, and she, Robin Dale, would play games with the people aboard, chucking little sand bags at holes in a board, playing "Going Round the Mountain," dancing telling riddles; and she would come back to Rimouski in two or three weeks and pick up her car there and return home, or perhaps to Perce, to make some more sketches. Back to Perce, she decided. The drive along the Gaspe coast was beautiful, was worth doing again from the opposite direction. Her stunned thoughts drifted back along that road, trying to fix upon scenes here and there, trying to find some anchorage in the chaos that was now her world.

It was then that Angus McPhail came fully into her thoughts. The salmon pool and Angus McPhail. The hotel at Madeleine and Angus McPhail. Quai Rimouski and Angus and his battered old hat, and his battered old heart and the gray shadow of an old pain in his eyes.

Angus McPhail loved Will, too. Robin wondered why she did not begin to cry when she thought of Angus, and then she remembered that Angus would not weep. There were no soft tears in such a man. He was hardened and tempered to grief. He was a little boy running up and down the shores looking into dead faces, into the pale faces of the drowned, finding at last his mother's face among them. He was a young man in love, looking happily forward to his wedding, till on the eve of their marriage the lovely woman who would have been his bride revealed herself as treacherous and damned. He was a gray man with quiet eyes who loved his brother more than all the world, in that deep way which can only come from long devotion and long service. But now Will was dead, and Angus was alone, robbed of everything. Thrice he had loved. Three times the one beloved had been hideously torn away.

Robin forgot herself, forgot Will too. Angus, as soon as he larded from the White Queen, had gone ashore. He could not have known then that Will was on the dock. It was strange that Will had not met him; but if there was an enigma in this fact, it did not matter now. The important thing was that Angus had gone directly ashore, so he could not have seen the tragedy. Perhaps he did not know, even now, that Will was dead. But someone, soon, would tell him.

She wished to go to him, to share this grief with him, to weep with him for Will, who had been all the world to Angus as he had been to her. She wanted to find Angus and somehow to comfort that gray, quibe willing to listen; he would understand.

She packed her bag, tied her damp bathing suit to the straps of the pack-sack so it would not wet her other things, and found the purser to tell him her change of plan. "I've decided to stop off here, after all,"

Why Not Make Over Clothes You Were About to Discard

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE days before the war you might have relegated your old wool, cotton and silk dresses to the rag-bag, but at this urgent moment, knowing as we all do that the armed forces are of necessity making increasingly heavy demands on all textiles, patriotic women will be glad to invest in a yard more or less of new fabric that will put a discarded dress back into circulation.

This does not mean that your reclaimed clothes must wear a pathetic "made-over" look. Not in the least. Just know that you can do a professional job of dressmaking and achieve new 1943 smartness, for you no longer need let inexperience in cutting and fitting keep you from making clothes that will bring a thrill of patriotic satisfaction every time you wear them. You can plan and work with confidence now that in almost every community there is a sewing center where experts will show you how easy it is, in a few wartime budget lessons, to conserve fabric and to achieve a perfect fit with a thermoplastic dress form that is an exact sculptured reproduction of your own figure.

In the above illustration see a "before" picture (inset to the upper right) and an "after" of a remodeled dress that has been given a 1943 look.

Before ripping it apart it is wise to visualize the remodeling possibilities in a dress. In the instance of the gown pictured, it was decided that new sleeves and a yoke would revive the bodice, and that the skirt would achieve a new-thisseason look by bringing it around to the front and giving it a slight fullness. Also, the moth-eaten front turned to the back could be seamed in gore fashion to eliminate the holes. The skirt also could be given a pegtop look with slot pockets accented with the contrast material. The next step was to select a pattern that would guide in making these changes, also to buy the yard of contrast material for yoke and sleeves.

Cut your yoke and sleeves out of the new fabric according to the pattern only after you have made pattern adjustments on your own dress form. Pin and fit the skirt pieces also on the plastic form. Then place the slot pockets in position. There's only the stitching left to do, always remembering that painstaking pressing as you go along is one secret of success in turning out a perfect sewing job.

And now for a few extra suggestions for giving any dress that needs an up-lift in the way of "the touch that tells." Note the little sketches here and there in the picture. Be-ginning at the upper left corner, here is a simple dress that has been glamourized for after-five gala wear by giving it a deep U-shaped neckline enlivened with four-inch wide lace ruffling (tinted to match the fabric of the dress), repeating the lace about the short sleeves. Next, below, an unmanageable neckline has been given a pleated jabot, the outlining of the elongated waistline with matching ruching adding a final note of chic. A good way to dramatize a low neckline is to ruffle it with a narrow edging of eyeleted embroidery as sketched in the lower left corner. The real stroke of genius is in the unique ruffling being carried down the center top seam of the kimono sleeves. The concluding sketch shows a square-cut neckline prettified with a soft double ruffle across the front. There's a real thrill in the unusual way the ruffling is sewed into the sleeve and shoulder seam.

Suede Jacket

Here is a fetching costume for town or country. It's South Ameriet, grief-scarred man. If she told him she too had loved Will, he would angora and cashmere mixture of angora and cashmere mixture of navy, light blue and red, with a blue overplaid. The jacket is red suede, and worn with sports skirts it will be smart the entire summer through. The jacket is lined with the plaid of the dress. The red bag, shoes and gloves tune to the smartly styled hat which flaunts large exotic red poppies.

Here's a Grand Way To Make a New Hat

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Here is a lightening accessory gesture. A wisp of a colorful veil, two short hatpins, a single large flower or a cluster of blossoms and presto! milady has a beauteous evening chapeau. Here's how.

Supposing your color scheme is fuchsia red, your hairdress is pom-padour-high. You bring the veil over your face, you draw both ends of the yard length up to the top of your head at the back. You anchor it there with one of the pins.

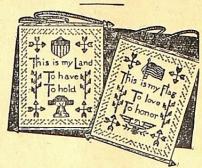

Now as you stand at your mirror you find just the strategic point where the flower flatters most in among the sprightly veil ends. Position the big poppy or rose or cluster of fuchsia toned blossoms firmly right there. The ensemble will be perfect if you add a corsage of matching flowers to your simple black frock and wear fuchsia colored gloves.

White Scarf Prepares the Fashion-Wise for Spring

All signs point to a big scarf season. More white than ever is the report on scarfs. The demand is attributed to the prospect of dimouts in coast towns and where war activities are going on. The advice to "wear white at night" is being taken seriously in many communities. From the esthetic point of view women take delight in the flattering square head-scarfs. Sequin and flower-bedecked versions are ever so popular. This season a revival of lace scarfs is being staged, although these are essentially for evening wear. They are shown in squares, triangles and the long panel all colors.

The groundwork for the conversion of American industry to war production started as long ago as 1922 when the Army and Navy Munitions board was set up, and the army established ordnance offices in 13 important cities throughout the country, says Collier's. Even the navy has its foot trouble. The United States Naval Reserve corps has decided that among the specialists eligible for appointment are chiropodists, or podiatrists. Action of the navy in appointing chiropodists follows the report of the Council of the American Medical Association that "chiropody is a department of the healing service and it has its basis in scientific and demonstrated knowledge and satisfies a gap that general medwine has failed to fill."

Vitamin C prevents scurvy. Keep teeth, bones, blood vessels healthy, helps prevent anemia. Daily requirements: Cranges, lemons, grapefruit, or tomatoes in any form (juice, soup, raw, canned). Also in onions, berries and vegetables. Very unstable. Destroyed by overcooking and too much water. Use raw fruit and vegetables when possible; if cocked, serve juices. Potatoes baked in skins retain vitamin C.

Forms of Genista

The different forms of genista have the common name of broom. They are spoken of as the brooms in Europe, while in America we hardly hear the name. They enjoy a sandy loam, but in every case the drainage must be good.

Muminated Aisles

Going into the gloom of dark cinema houses, people are likely to stumble, bump into others. Ushers with flashlights are nuisances; small lamps placed near the aisle floors illuminate only small areas. American Cyanamid company announced what it considers a better idea: aisle rugs treated with fluorescent dyes, bathed by invisible ultraviolet radiation from small tubes. Such rugs glow softly all over, interfere with nothing on the screen.

Abnormal Tire Wear

If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by underinflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering in the tire tread.

P.-T. A. MEETING

All who were present at the P.-T. A. Meeting held March 10 at the schoolhouse, are unanimous in saying that they think it was the best ever held in Hale.

The program was opened by singing "America," saluting the flag and prayer by Rev. Mercer. Mr. Rheim and some of his pupils, Wanda Brown, Leorin Lake gave a selection of solos, duets and quartettes which were greatly enjoyed. Readings by Mr. Smith and George Lake, and a dialogue by Laferene and Eldora Bloomquist, and a short talk by Rev. Mercer followed.

Then the members were lined up in the hall. Two suit cases of clothes appeared, and a dressing race followed. Each person to dress in the garments given him, run the length of the hall with suitcase, undress and pack his clothes and return. Mr. Rheim and Mrs. Lake were the last couple, and it looked like a win for the ladies. But. Mr. Rheim has Marathon speed on a short run, and the men won easily.

Officers elected for the coming year were Mr. Smith of Logan townhip was elected president; Mrs. Olive Pearsal, vice president; Mrs. Meeker, secretary, and Esther Murry, treasurer. Three dollars were given to the Red Cross drive, and a nice collection of books for the Oscoda USO were brought from Logan.

STATE BANK of STANDISH, Clerk

JOHN P. HARRIS, Auctioneer

Washington, D. C. ENDING ABSENTEEISM

Undersecretary of War Patterson's labor advisers have a one-point program for ending absenteeism in war plants. Here is the one point: Communities should adjust themselves to the hours of the factories. Stores, banks, doctors, lawyers, plus other services should be available not merely for one shift of workers but for all shifts.

At present workers on the swing shift, beginning at midnight, find themselves out of gear with the life of the community. The greatest absenteeism is among workers on the odd shifts, and can be attributed not to indifference to winning the war but to the inconvenience of trying to live and buy food and get Johnny to the doctor, while the swing shift turns night into day.

Absenteeism is higher among women than men, which may mean nothing more than trouble with the ration board. A woman will take a day off from the factory because she has to register for canned foods, or because a child is sick in the family, or because she hasn't had time to buy a new dress at the store.

Remedy for this is nothing less than two or three shifts on the part of the services that serve the workers. The ration board, it is suggested, should come to the factory.

In many cases, war department advisers say, absenteeism is caused not by loafing but by overwork. In certain machine-tool areas, such as New England, men have been working 50 and 56 hours a week for years. They are simply exhausted.

Incidentally, this factor is the principal cause of absenteeism in Germany, where workers are worn down by unremitting labor and long

Note: There is little sympathy in Undersecretary Patterson's office for the Rickenbacker crusade against labor. It is regarded as useless and unsound to try to appeal to workers over their leaders.

NO RUSSIAN HURRAHS

American observers in Russia report that the public is not throwing its red cap in the air over current military successes. The reaction is not much different, in fact, from the reaction to losses.

"The mood of the Russian people," says one report, "hasn't changed much since last summer when they were being driven back to the Malan Nar has it changed to the Volga. Nor has it changed much from the years of peace."

It is explained that Russians have become accustomed to tumult and personal danger. For 25 years they have lived in an atmosphere of revolution, purges, and starvation. War has brought no sudden shock to them as to us.

Even in the face of the terrific losses Russia has suffered in this war, the losses forced upon Russia by her own government ten years ago remain almost unsurpassed. When the Soviet government was imposing on the people, the unwelcome system of collective farming, farmers were denied seed for planting, and a vast number of people, estimated between two and five million, starved to death.

The Russians are stolid, taking defeat or victory in their stride.

SPANISH DAGGER AT U. S. BACK Here is the lowdown on the visit of Franco's special representative, ex-Spanish Foreign Minister Beigbeder, to this country.

Franco's regular representative, Ambassador Juan Cardenas, has been sending him what he wanted to hear, rather than the truth about the way the American people have put their hearts into the war. Cardenas has emphasized the clash of personalities and inefficiency of war production which get into the headlines but is not the general rule.

When U. S. officials learned of this, they conceived the idea of bringing a special Franco envoy to the U.S.A. to get the real picture. Actually it was the war department, not the state department, which hatched the inspiration and which is taking him on a tour of war plants and army posts to drink in the real spirit of the war effort.

Note: Many high-up officials here believe Franco is an opportunist who, regardless of pledges, will jump whichever way he sees the war is going in the spring. He could, if he wished, plunge a dagger into the back of U.S. forces in North Africa. Beigbeder has a background of friendship for the United States.

In fact, of the long list of scoring records, both team and individual, the only one that Illinois failed to crack in 1943 is the one which reads: Most points one game-two teams. And the only reason they failed to crack that was the fact that their opponents weren't able to co-operate.

Farmers Urged to Guard Sows in '43

Unfortunately there can be no rationing restrictions of disease germs, so it is up to the farmers to guard their sows from unsanitary conditions that lead to heavy losses from mange, swine erysipelas, hog cholera, worms and swine pox.

According to specimens received at the laboratory of animal pathology and hygiene at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, swine pox is causing some losses in this state. While not usually a serious disease in itself, it leads to other diseases and can be a comlicating factor.

Occurrence of swine pox to any appreciable extent in the herd might be taken as a warning signal that all is not well, since it occurs under conditions favoring or fostering other infectious and parasitic diseases. Poultry

There are more chickens in Iowa than any other state, while Texas ranks second in chickens and also leads the turkey population. In 1928, there were 475,000,000 chickens on American farms but since then, the number has declined.

While the great bulk of poultry is sold alive or as cold storage fowls, there are a few commercial uses for by-products. Animal feeding stuffs are taking some packing house trimmings such as legs, visceral fat and heads. Food for pet cats and dogs uses killing plant offal to some extent. When research has gone further, it may be possible to extract therapeutic products from glands of chicken heads and recover gelatine from chicken legs which would have surgical uses. Scientists believe that the available supply of 20,000 tons of feathers might be used in plastics. Goose feathers have long been marketed for pillow stuff-

It is possible now to obtain dried whole egg, dried egg yolk and dried egg albumen. These products are imported but might be produced here. Non-food uses of eggs are getting more at-tention. The tanning industry may be able to utilize more low grade eggs. Manufacturers of frozen or dried egg materials have thousands of pounds of egg shells which are used only to a small extent as chicken feed and fertilizer.

Stepping Up Egg Yield
Feed your chickens a good laying ration if you want to get maximum egg production. A good laying mash is one composed of 200 pounds ground yellow corn; 100 pounds wheat bran or rice bran; 100 pounds meat scraps or shrimp meal; and 100 pounds ground oats. Where meat scraps are used in place of shrimp meal, add one pound salt to the mash mixture. One hundred laying hens will consume between 23-25 pounds of this mixture.

BURMA

By Daniel De Luce

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Greatest reservoir of fighting manpower to whip the Japanese lies in free, unoccupied China. For five years the Chinese soldier has proved himself every bit as courageous and clever as his Japanese enemy. He has hung on in the face of discouraging odds, lacking modern weapons and an air force. ern weapons and an air force.

Anglo - American arsenals should eventually be able to furnish him with these new arms and give him the support of a combined armada of airplanes.

However, "the day" is indefinite. In 1943? Perhaps longer. There is a lot of spade work to be done, for a great Allied offensive on the Asiatic continent.

It is required chiefly in Burma. And it is being planned right now by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, General Wavell and General Stil-

Allies Need Burma.

The transfer of a thousand bombers and a thousand fighting planes from America to China could be made in seven days. But once having got the air fleet to China, the Allies would be little better off than before, unless they had Burma.

For the air force would need fuelnot a few thousand gallons flown laboriously over the Himalayas, but many thousand tons.

And where is the oil for the future planes of China? In Bur-ma. "Oh," you say, "weren't the Burma fields scorched by the British? Or was that just another newspaper story?'

Yes, the Burma fields were scorched, thoroughly scorched. At the moment they're useless. But listen to the man who did the scorch-

"If the Japanese brought in 15,000 specialists and 50,000 tons of equipment and machinery, they could get Burma producing again within a few. months. But they have neither the specialists nor the equipment. We have both. We can soon have the wells flowing—if and when we re-capture Burma."

Scorching of Burma.

For the story of the scorching of Burma, let's begin looking into a little red cloth-covered notebook which this itinerant war correspondmite that burrows into the skin, causing great irritation, "elephant and burned down on Good Friday ent bought in Mandalay for ten anhide," loss of hair and unthriftiness. last year. I had it in a sweaty pocket of my khaki shirt when I jeeped through Yenang-tuang, oil capital of Burma, on Thursday, April 16, 1942. Yenang-taung in Burmese, means

"stream of the smelly waters." Some centuries ago, silk-skirted natives scooped up the pungent black liquid and burned it in crude lamps at home. Came the white man. In the last 60 years thousands of derricks sprang up on the drab hills. Burma oil, a million tons every 12 months, began lighting many a lamp in greater Asia. Then came the Jap. He was about 30 miles south of the oil capital and pressing hard last April when I walked into the main oil-field head-quarters and met a lean, hard, eagie-nosed English civilian loading his .38 army revolver.

He was Walter L. Forster of the Shell Oil company at Cairo. He had supervised the demolition of the Rangoon refineries the previous month, then calmly departed and was now in central Burma to finish similar assignments here.

At work or play, Forster likes dynamite. Knowing his specialty, the British government had sent him late in 1941 to Russia, to advise the Soviet engineers in their program of scorching the earth. He quickly decided that the Russians knew more than he did, but he stayed to learn their methods, and visited secret areas of the Caucasus.

He remarked afterwards that the Reds had carried out factory wreckings in one day that Anglo-American experts had forecast might take six

"But I wish the Russians could have seen our job at Rangoon," he mused. "Smoke up to 15,000 feet. Vapor up to 19,000 feet. Not a drop of oil left for the Japs, nor a piece of workable machinery."

After Rangoon was gone, Forster tackled the pipe line which had run more than 300 miles down-country from the Burma oil fields. He plugged the pipe with cement at river crossings, smashed the section pumps, wrecked bridges. Then he turned to the oil fields.

The last job, he said, was blowing up the big powerhouse.

"I've got 6,300 gallons of oil in drums stored above the transformers," he said. "Got oil piped in here to the main room, too. And the jets will turn on after the explosion. Nice fire we're cooking up!'

Lend-Lease Foods Sustain United Nations' Offensives

Food Sent Last Year Important, but Must Send More This Year

Lend-Lease food is helping to win the war-food for the Russian army's smashing blows at the retreating Nazis-food for the British Eighth army driving into Tunis-food for the munitions workers back in England.

We sent a lot of lend-lease food abroad in 1942. To sustain the United Nations offensives of 1943 we shall need to send more this yearabout twice as much, according to the Office of War Information and the Office of Lend-Lease Administration. The food we sent last year -and the food we are sending now -is important in terms of battles won. Yet it has been relatively small in terms of our total supply of food, smaller than many people may have believed.

The picture-graph to the right shows just how much we lend-leased last year out of our total supply of principal food products.

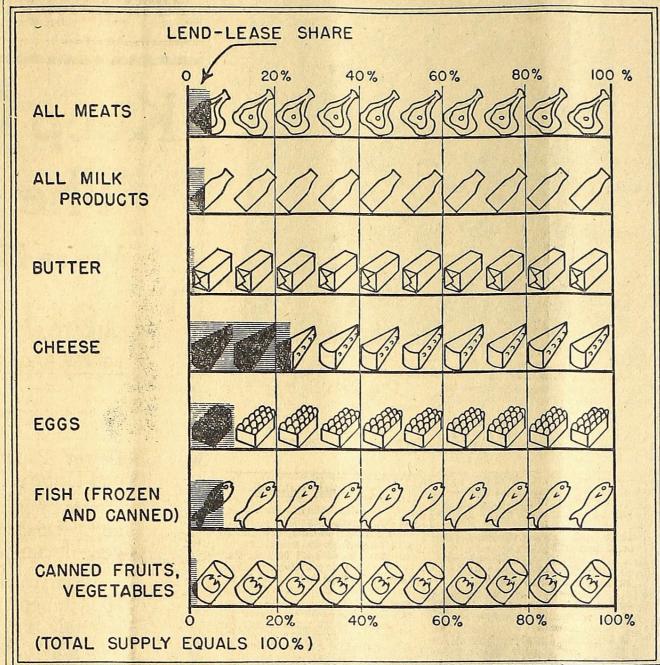

Of the five meats soon to be rationed—beef, veal, lamb, mutton and pork—we exported over a billion pounds under lendlease. That's a lot of meat, but it was only 5 per cent of our supply. Out of every 20 pounds of meat, American civilians and U. S. armed forces took 19 pounds. One pound went to our

We lend-leased a lot of cheese and dried and evaporated milk. It took over two billion quarts of fluid milk to make these and other milk products exported under lend-lease. But the grand total was less than 4 per cent of our total fluid milk supply. We kept for our own needs over 9½ quarts out of every 10 quarts of milk we produced, and we produced over 58 billion quarts in all.

Among the milk products, lend-lease took a large share of cheese-almost one quarter of each pound the United States produced was exported to our Allies.

OUR LORD'S INTERCESSORY PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—John 17:1-8, 18-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one, as we are "—John 17:11 are."-John 17:11.

There are some times and places so sacred that one is instinctively hushed into reverent devotion. When Christ prayed in holy intercession (as recorded in John 17) on the night before His suffering His disciples must have been lifted into the very presence of the Eternal One. It was a bely experience a holy experience.

He prayed for Himself, but even more did He pray for His believing followers. To know that someone is praying for us is indeed an anchor in a time of storm, a strong help in the hour of conflict or of service for Christ.

But to know that the Master prayed for you and me—that is enough to send us, like the disciples of old, out to face an unbelieving world in His conquering name. He prayed for Himself-and He prayed

I. He Prayed for Himself (vv. 1-8).
He looked up and said: "Father," and then He was ready to pray. So close was He to God that there was just this simple recognition of their communion. In Christ are we not as close as He?

What did Jesus ask for Himself? At first thought it seems a little unusual that He asked

1. For Recognition of His Divine Glory (vv. 1-5).
Why would He who had just given the disciples an example of and an admonition to humility desire to have His glory manifested? Be sure it was not a matter of selfish pride. He had finished His work (for He counted redemption as complete throughout His prayer), and now the glory which He laid down when He came to earth (Phil. 2:6-8) was to be resumed. He wants man to see Him now not only as the compassionate Son of man, but the glorious Son of God, able to save. It is right that the glory of Christ should be magnified and recognized by the whole crea-tion. He is worthy!

2. For the Manifestation of His Grace (vv. 6-8).

The Father had given Christ the heart devotion of those who believed in Him. Note that their faith rested on the name of God (v. 6), and upon His Word which had come to them and to us through Christ.

He recognized their position and standing in Him and established it before God and man. He then prayed for them (read vv. 9-17) that they might be kept in an evil world as a testimony to the grace and power of God in the human

This leads to His intercession for all believers. II. He Prayed for All Believers

(vv. 18-26). Christians are not simply the avowed adherents to a particular form of belief, they are "sent" ones. As the Father sent Him into the world, "even so send I them into the world," said Christ. Christ has gone to be with the Father, but He has left those who believe in Him as His witnesses, His representatives. For this they need holiness. He prayed:

1. For Their Consecration (vv. 18,

For their sakes He consecrated Himself. Surely if He needed it, we do far more. It is not only His will for us, but His prayer. How won-derfully that prayer was answered we see as we look back over the intervening 19 centuries, from His mmediate disciples on through the martyrs, the missionary pioneers of all ages, the faithful preachers and teachers of the gospel, yes and "livers'' of the gospel too. He knew, He prayed, God answered. Are you in that blessed host of consecrated

2. For Their Unity and Glory (vv.

There is a refreshing simplicity about the Christian faith which is utterly different from all the complications which man has prepared and superimposed upon it. Essentially it is a matter of God having sent His Son into the world to be the Redeemer of men. He and the Father are one, He and His followers are one, and so we are all one. We who today believe are included (read vv. 20-23).

This is an inward unity of the Spirit, not an outward union of organizations. The answer to our difficulty is not the dissolution of de-nominations (although there do seem to be far too many subdivi-sions, too), but the uniting of all groups in a oneness of love and devo-tion to Christ, and a united emphasis on the gospel.

There is something more here.
This unity puts Christ's followers into the place where His glory may be revealed in and upon them. It is His prayer that we should behold in our Saviour the glory which God had given Him because He loved
