Good Riddance BEAT IT,

THE STORY SO FAR: After a swift courtship Will McPhail starts for a summer job at Moose Bay, leaving Robin Dale to wonder how a career girl could be so completely swept off her feet. She knows little of Will, except that he is an engineer and that he has a brother named Angus, a dour Scot who hates women. Robin decides to follow Will to Moose Bay. But she doesn't see him. Shortly after the White Queen docks, Robin goes swimming. As she stands on the deck Will McPhail sees her. In that moment he loses his balance and the crane in which he is riding falls into the water. Angus McPhail blames Robin for Will's death.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER V

The purser found a car; and he was putting her bags in it before she saw that Mr. Jenkins was driving. Mr. Jenkins said, in a pleased tone: "Decided to stay, have you? Say, you change your mind, don't you? You're right, though! It's a great place. I'll take you to the hotel." Mr. Lewis helped her into the car. She thanked him, and Mr. Jenkins started toward shore. She looked straight ahead, not as a defense against him but because she did not want to see what the workmen were doing; but almost at once he pulled over to the side of the dock and stopped and pointed. "That's my boat down there." She saw a gray motor cruiser, long and low with a high deck forward, moored beside the dock. "Care to go aboard her?" he asked. "She's comfortable, neat as a pin.

"I'm rather anxious to get settled. Do you mind?"

"I have to stop a minute, myself. You'd better come see what she's like.

"I'll wait here."

So Mr. Jenkins dropped down to the deck of the cruiser and disappeared into her cabin. A man came purposefully across the dock to look down at the boat, and then at Robin; and Robin closed her eyes and was very tired. When Mr. Jenkins got in beside her again, and she opened her eyes, the man had disappeared.

"We're pulling out Monday," Mr. Jenkins told her, driving on. "Say, I'm glad you're staying. I'll show you the town tonight. You'll get a kick out of it." They were approaching the landward end of the dock. "Tough about young McPhail. The kid got fancy with that crane and it killed him. You can't monkey with those babies." The car jolted over the rough road, and suddenly he used the brakes and stopped and spoke to a man walking toward the dock. The man was dressed like a workman, but he looked at Robin in a way she felt. He said to Mr. Jenkins: "I was looking for you." Mr. Jenkins asked the man a curious question. He asked: "Got the tickets?"

The man grinned faintly, and looked at Robin again. "All collected, yeah," he said. Mr. Jenkins nodded.

"Then we'll

eled drive before the hotel. "Here you are, sister. I'll carry your bags. She followed him indoors. At the desk Mr. Jenkins said to the clerk: 'Give her a good room, Dave.

"That corner room, second floor, is empty, isn't it?" He winked, but Robin was registering, did not see him. The clerk named Dave looked admiringly at her bowed head and pursed his lips in a soundless whistle. He called a boy, and Robin turned to thank Mr. Jenkins; but he went with her toward the stairs, the boy with her bag and packsack preceding them. At her room, she thought for an alarmed moment that Mr. Jenkins was coming in; but he put a key into a door opposite hers. "I'm just across the hall," he said. "If you get lonesome, sing out. Want to take a walk before dinner?" "I think not."

"I'll see you at dinner, then." She locked her door and told herself that he was just friendly. She heard a steamer whistle, and went to her window and saw the White Queen departing, and that made her feel lost and alone, and she lay down, and for a while she cried, lying on her face across the bed. She cried, very quietly, for a long time. Then she began to think about Angus McPhail. It was to find him and try to comfort him that she had come ashore. He would undoubtedly be staying at the hotel, so after a while she went down to the office to enquire for him. "Is Mr. Angus McPhail staying here?" she asked. "Mr. McPhail?" He seemed sur-

"We'll catch him at his boat when he comes to bed."

"Mightn't he be there now, please? "Well, it's easy to find out." They drove out the long dock. Under floodlights, men were busy at the spot where the barge and crane had sunk. Mr. Jenkins went down a ladder nailed against piles to the deck of what he said was McPhail's boat; but the cabin scuttle was padlocked, and he climbed the ladder again.

"Nobody home," he reported. "But he'll be along. See here, if you don't want to mix with that crowd of drunks in town, let's wait on my boat till he comes."

"Do you think he'll come here?" "He's bound to. Either here or the hotel.'

"We might find him quicker, if we-kept hunting, mightn't we?' A group of men, singing as they came out along the dock from town, approached and saw Robin. Mr. Jenkins was on the other side of the car, hidden from them. They stopped beside the car and pressed near, and one of them demanded cheerfully of his companions: "Say, do you see what I see?" He spoke to Robin. "Kid, you've come to the right place. You're going to have lots of friends here.' Mr. Jenkins moved around in front of the car so that the headlights struck him fair. He said to this man: "Do I know you, buddy?" His tone was quiet enough, but the man stared at him and mumbled sudden apologies; and he and his companions went hurriedly away. Robin said in some surprise:

'Why, they were afraid of you!" "I told you I'd take care of you," said Mr. Jenkins. "You're pretty enough to start a riot, you know. But you don't want to do that. We'll keep you out of sight. Come aboard my boat while we wait for him." In the end she consented. His boat proved to be almost luxurious. He began to talk about the trip toward Labrador upon which he was about to start; said it was a pity she thing this year.

could not go along. "You'd be mightily interested, and you'd see a lot to paint, up that way." "I'm sure I would." "I wish there was some way we could manage it." He seemed to have a sudden inspiration. "See here, Marm Freel has been after me for a year, wanting to go up there. I go once a month, selling my line. let 'em in tomorrow." He added: "I'll be taking a walk tonight. I might see you." "Okay," the man assented. "I'll

The road, with a railway along one side to carry freight from the pier head to the town, rounded a rocky point where the whole face of the precipice had been blasted away to let it pass. Robin began to be interested, to ask questions. Wherever a trickle of water came down the steep slopes, there were signs warning passers not to drink the water; and she spoke of them. He nodded. "That's all bog water," he explained. "It'll make you sick. They cut a tunnel six feet square through that mountain up there and they bring water down from Bear Lake now." They approached the first buildings; and he pointed to one. "There's the police station. Five cops. They'll stay indoors and have a poker game tonight."

"Why?" "Saturday night. Three thousand men out for a good time can use up five cops pretty quick."

"Oh! What do they do for a good time? Movies?"

He laughed. "Liquor up, mostly. No women here. Drink, and gamble and fight.'

She remembered a passage in Will's letter which had puzzled her. "What's 'alky?' Alcohol?" "Sure."

"But why don't they drink whisky, or beer, or something?" "Can't get it. Alky means smaller bulk, so it's easier to run it in, and the men get quicker action when they drink it. Here's the mill. They set up the machinery first and then build the mill around it. Here's the warehouse where they'll store the paper. You could play football in it. It's big enough."

"Imagine enough paper to fill it! Where will it all come from?"

'They've a tract of spruce here two hundred miles square. It'll take fifty years to cut it, and by that time a fifth of it will be big enough to cut again." He spoke as of a personal achievement. "This is big business, sister. They've spent a million dollars a month here now for over a year; building churches, freezing plants, schools, houses. There's the bank." The car bounced and groaned over bumps in the raw mud of the road, weaving among tractors and workmen and scrapers and teams, to turn at last into a grav- Phail."

prised, as though his preconceptions were somehow shaken. He repeated stupidly: "Mr. McPhail, the fish-eries man? Why-no, ma'am." "Oh! But-where would he be likely to be?" "I don't know. He has stayed here, before." This clerk named Dave, she decided, was a little stupid. She asked: "How soon are you serving dinner?

"Ready now," he said. Then he asked: "Want to wait for Mr. Jenkins?'

"Oh, no!" Why should she resent that question? It was natural enough, since she and Mr. Jenkins had arrived together; but the clerk's tone annoyed her. She went into the dining room; but before she could order, Mr. Jenkins appeared and without invitation sat down at her table. "Well, everything all right?" he asked. She hesitated. "I want to see Mr. McPhail. The one who was on the White Queen. Do you know him?" "Met him today. I'll find him for you. He might be on his boat. It's tied up, out by mine. We'll take a look after dinner." She could discover no good reason for refusing his insistent helpfulness; and-she needed help. After dinner, the clear twilight soft and beautiful, the sunset's afterglow bright across the water below them, she and Mr. Jenkins began their search. They went in the car, and Robin was a little startled to see so many men everywhere, milling to and fro, shouting now and then

"Freel hasn't seen him," he said. "We'll try the bunkhouse." While he was inside, a fight started not far off, and men raced to form a shouting circle around the combatants. Mr. Jenkins, returning, had news at last. "They say he went for a walk," he reported. He looked toward the yelling crowd. "Want to see that fight?"

She shook her head. "I'm really awfully anxious to find Mr. Mc-

He gripped her arm with one hand, jerked a thumb over his shoulder toward the men busy above the wreck of barge and crane. "If it's Will McPhail ye're wanting to see-ye'll not want to see him. The diver's just got him loose yonder. They'll be bringing him up now."

Mr. Jenkins appeared beside he spoke quietly. "Hello, them; Pat."

The big man turned. "Eh, Mr. Jenkins." He touched his forelock; but Robin saw that it was with respect, not fear. "Where's McPhail?" Mr. Jenkins asked. "Yon?"

"No, his brother." There was a wail of woe in the big man's tone. "Eh, the poor man has gone to walk the black hurt out of him.' 'Back tonight?" "Back Monday noon," he said.

The ugly man looked down at Robin again; and he shook his head. 'Let her not," he said grimly. "Let her keep herself hid from the eye of him. Let her keep herself away." He turned and stalked off along the pier; and Robin watched him, strangely shaken. There was something mystic and uncanny about the man; an enigma in his tones, and an eerie wail of grief when he spoke of Angus McPhail. Mr. Jenkins, beside her, said:

"Well, we're wasting time, then.' "Who is that man?" (TO BE CONTINUED)

Short Sleeves Offer A Fashion Surprise

A surprise vogue is being ushered in this spring. It is the dress with short sleeves, some so short they merely cap the shoulder. This new styling is being interpreted in end-less ways. Of course the trend has to do for the most part with fash-ions for the younger element.

The technique has many varia-tions, such as elongated shoulder lines, or the band extension that gives a deep armhole effect. Frilly lace-edged ruffles also will serve, and many unique treatments will develop as the spring and summer fashion picture unfolds.

You will find the new brief-sleeve vogue reflected especially in sportswear, in afternoon dressy prints and notably in the new black lace-trimmed sheers.

Print Furlough Suit Is

A Frilly New Concoction

The "furlough suit" has all the characteristics of a suit in its styling but it takes on a very gala look because of the gay charm of the print crepe of which it is made. Also it takes on a lavishment of frilly white or pastel frilly neckwear or opens over a gilet that boasts of an utterly feminine lacy jabot. It is apt to have jeweled buttons, too, and you are supposed to top it with a beguiling millinery confection with gloves and bag attuned to the prettipins on, worn right on the back of ness and colorfulness of the costume the head. ty on silt loam and sandy loam soil types of varying fertility levels. On one silt loam plot where 300 pounds of an 0-20-20 fertilizer were applied per acre in 1941, the grain yield was 51.9 bushels compared with 31.1 bushels per acre on the unfertilized field. The 1942 hay crop on the fertilized field was 5,493 pounds, as against 1,186 pounds-or an increase of 4,307 pounds per acre.

A sandy loam plot treated like-wise with 300 pounds per acre of an 0-20-20 yielded 25.2 bushels, compared with 19.2 on the untreated plot.

Eliminate Hazards!

Unless soldiers on the farm front are careful, an army of nearly 4,500 farm workers will be killed this year by mechanized equipment and livestock.

"That's why we say that heroism isn't confined to the front battle lines in this war," farm families were told by E. W. Lehmann, head of the agricultural engineering department, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

The shortage of labor, inexperienced machine operators and use of older machinery will aggravate the situation for the duration.

In Illinois alone, nearly 300 farmers lost their lives in producing and delivering food to market in 1941. Thousands were crippled for life; more thousands were crippled temporarily.

Accidents during wartime are not merely family and community tragedies. Many times they are the result of criminal negligence. Accidents that kill and injure American food-for-freedom producers aid the enemies.

Agricultural Notes

Sudden changes of temperature in dairy barns or in poultry houses reduce production of eggs and milk. Cows and hens do not work overtime to replace shortages from the day before.

WPB has assigned top priority rating of AA-1 to assure delivery of critical material necessary for manufacture of farm machinery included in the current program.

'FLYING MINUTE MEN' (The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, is awarded this week to the Civil Air Patrol.)

This brass ring goes not to one man but to 68,000 men and women. They are members of the Civil Air patrol who have been fighting the war in little single-motor planes flying within the boundaries of the United States, and who carry the torch for the future of civil aviation in this country. How long they will be allowed to carry that torch is the important question. At present they are orphans of the storm—carrying mili-tary responsibilities without mili-tary standing. They fight subma-rines, but they had to fight for weapons first. The army and WPB are slowly throttling them by refusing new equipment or repair parts. Thus in order to keep their gradually deteriorating machines going, the Civil Air patrol is almost certain to be swallowed by the army.

The army has been wanting to take over because civilian fliers in wartime are considered a nuisance by the military—with justification in some cases.

Youths and Fathers.

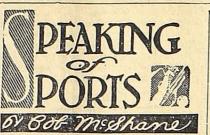

But the owners of 25,000 private planes thought they had something to offer. The younger ones went into military service. Others, many being married men with families, organized the Civil Air patrol, which for more than a year has been flying the coastal waters and maintaining a courier service throughout the United States.

These are the "Flying Minute Men." At first their submarine patrol was merely a spotting job. If they spotted a submarine, they were supposed to radio a shore base and then hover around waiting for a bomber to come to the scene of action. But they had so many heartrending experiences, that they clamored for bombs of their own. They would dart low over the water, discover a submarine location, radio to a shore base, hold the contact, hover and pursue-and then sometimes lose the prey because the army never came along.

For months they called in vain for bombing equipment. War depart-ment insisted that no civilians are allowed to carry weapons, and thus the Civil Air patrol should not be the Civil Air patrol should not be armed. The army would not even release life rafts, and as a result several CAP pilots have lost their lives on submarine patrol. Finally the restriction was waived, and today these little single-engine planes carry small bomb racks, bombs, and bomb sights. But they have not been allowed to reveal the success of their submarine patrol. War department calls it "military information," and inmarines-without indicating the re-

ALTHOUGH every big-time sport has suffered from necessary wartime restrictions, golf has taken some of the hardest whacks of all. Occasionally a few paragraphs concerning golf creep into the sports pages. They usually deal with some well-known player whose induction into the service merits a short story.

Or perhaps a champion is playing a modest benefit match in some part of the country. Major tournaments are out. Even the PGA decided against its show for this year. The North and South tournament at Pinehurst will be played, but entrance requirements are on a unique basis. If a player is under 38 he can't play unless he is in uniform, on leave. For the first time an adult championship has an age limit—excluding the senior matches. Most of the golf pros are rather young, and few have children. The circuit tours mean a roving existence and the boys usually wait until they've grown older and made their stake before starting a family life.

The Civilian Game

Big time golf is out until the war's end. And civilian golf is confronted with problems which are going to be difficult-and, in some cases, impossible-to solve. Fairways are not easy to maintain, and help is difficult to get. Civilian golf likely will run to week-end play.

It probably won't be unusual to see John H. Duffer help keep the course in playable shape. Some private clubs have organized workermember committees. It is entirely possible that these committees will be successful in many localitiesparticularly smaller towns and cit-

Golf took a terrific boom after the last war. Most of the great stars came to the frontincluding Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen. Golf's winter tours were inaugurated and became an important part of the game. Those days saw the game's most op-ulent period. There was nothing unusual about a $5,000 tournament. Big Bobby Jones ones paid from $10,-000 to $15,000. Yet the greatest of them all-the National Open-paid only $1,000 to the winner. As an indication of the times, Walter Ha-gen signed as pro at St. Petersburg for $30,000 for the winter season a record price.

The situation wasn't too healthy. Golf clubs were transformed into sists that CAP shall say no more than that they have "attacked" sub-more like night clubs with gymnastic facilities available upon request. Every locker held its quota of liq-

THE APPEARANCES AFTER THE RESURRECTION

LESSON TEXT-John 20:19-31. GOLDEN TEXT-I am alive for everpre.-Revelation 1:18.

The most important day in all history was the first day of the week following the crucifixion of Christ. Then He appeared to His disciples as their risen Lord. All the hope of all mankind for all eternity depended on His victory over death.

By eventide news had come to the disciples of His resurrection, and half in hope and half in uncertainty they had gathered to talk over these matters. Fearful of the Jews, they met behind closed doors. All at once He was there-the Lord Himself. What a wonderful change came over them as He made Himself known to them. They went

I. From Fear to Gladness (vv. 19, 20).

Their eyes had been upon their enemies and they were afraid. Now they "were glad, when they saw the Lord." We need to learn that lesson. If we look within we are ashamed and discouraged. If we look around us we are confused and fearful. If we look to Christ we are glad and strong. Notice that their joy was not based only on an emotional impulse. They saw Christ in His resurrection body-the very One who had died. The evidence was there before them. Now they could understand the things He had said to them. The whole realm of spiritual truth was now in focus again, and they were glad. So are we when we really see Christ

II. From Weakness to Strength (vv. 21-23).

The disciples who were called to be witnesses for Christ had lost their testimony when He died on the cross. Unbelief and discouragement had so weakened them that they were in hiding instead of being out proclaiming His truth.

Now the risen and victorious One sent them forth with the Father's blessing. They were empowered by the Holy Spirit, and given great au-thority (v. 23). Note that it was given not to one man or to the lead-ers, but to all the disciples. It was "a declarative right, and it belongs to every true disciple. These who to every true disciple. Those who have received the gift of the Holy Spirit are in a position to declare to men that their sincere repentance brings forgiveness" (Douglass). The opposite is also true.

The Ghetto In Warsaw By Tosha Bialer

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

My husband, my son and I are the only persons in America to have es-caped from the ghetto set up by Germany in Warsaw. The amazing set of circumstances by which we escaped cannot be told, because it would mean death to all who aided us.

Of those whom we left behind, I can say little. This is the third winter they will have passed through, and how many will survive I cannot say. There can hardly be many left now of the 600,000 that were once there.

I, who lived with them through dark years, who shared their bitter fate, humbly bear witness to their martyrdom. Anything I may say or write about it is in memory of those who died, a tribute to the courage and determination of those who are still living. I join with them in a prayer for a new world in which they will resume their place as free human beings.

Location of the Ghetto. The ghetto, as set up by the Nazis after they took possession of Warsaw, included the oldest and most deteriorated sections of the city, a district that had been an eyesore for years and should have been torn for years and should have been torn down long ago. It comprised many blocks completely destroyed by bombing, without a habitable build-ing left standing. With intentional foresight, not one park, playground or public garden was included behind the high ghetto walls. There was no access to the river banks. The no access to the river banks. The modern Jewish hospital, the Liberal Jewish Synagogue and the Old People's Home were left outside. The Germans were set on our destruction. With cold logic they concluded that overcrowding, inadequate housing, malnutrition and reduction to subhuman standards would save them the trouble and ammunition required to massacre half a million people outright.

Against this situation, the Jewish Council, a religious committee, took over the responsibility as best they could. The president was a Mr. Czerniakow, a fine man. I say "was" advisedly, because a few weeks ago we learned that he committed suicide when the Germans directed him to draw up a list of 100,000 people for deportation.

Subs Sunk.

But we can reveal that submarines spotted by CAP observers have actually been sunk. The authority for this statement is Maj. Gen. Follett Bradley of the army air corps, who also emphasizes that these "Flying Minute Men" have provided their own planes, tools, radios, and other equipment.

A year ago German submarines were sinking merchant ships within sight of the Atlantic coast. This brazen activity ceased after establishment of the Civil Air patrol. The submarines were driven into deep waters, for the small planes, flying low and flying slowly, were able to do a better job of spotting than big patrol bombers which whizzed past the scene too rapidly for close observation.

WHY THE JAPS KNOW

Here is an excerpt from the interior department's annual 1941 report, which indicates why the Japs know so much about the Aleutian Islands:

"The floating plant Kosei Maru, with auxiliary craft consisting of 9 trawlers, was engaged from May to August, 1940, in taking halibut and cod in Bering Sea about 100 miles northeast of the Pribilof Islands, with one additional trawler during the last week or two of the season. The vessel was reported to have left for Japan toward the end of August.

"This is the eleventh consecutive year that Japanese floating plants have operated in these waters, the number of vessels having varied from one to four, with the usual complement of tenders." Note: Under international law it is impossible to prevent foreign fishermen from fishing in foreign waters. * * *

MERRY-GO-ROUND

C War Transport Czar Joe Eastman says he gets a bushel of letters and postcards every week suggesting that he bar Mrs. Roosevelt from traveling . . . Old Washington observers who have seen previous Presidents suffer from getting out of touch with the nation, wish FDR had two Mrs. Roosevelts to keep him posted about U. S. sentiment. Any President who loses contact with the people is finished, and every President, especially in wartime, has to keep close to his desk, uid refreshments. Club officials were in an expansive frame of mind.

The depression changed the picture. Almost all clubs were forced to retrench-some of them closed. Players didn't have the money to spend and golfing costs became more moderate.

The end of this war won't see another era of gaudiness. Today's players represent a truer cross section of the public as a whole. More and more workers are playing the game, and they aren't going to give it back to the playboys.

Such a situation augurs well for the game. With such a huge investment in the sport, it would be worse than folly to allow its appeal to be narrowed. Two USGA officials -George Blossom, president, and Joe, Dey, secretary-have compiled some amazing figures for your inspection.

Their figures show that a known total of 2,351,000 play the game on 5,209 golf courses comprising more than a half-million acres. It has been estimated that the clubs used more than 600,000 caddies.

The wages paid to caddies ran more than $30,000,000 a year. These figures haven't included the amounts paid to thousands of professionals, greens keepers and other workers needed by each course.

Statistics tell only part of the story. Golf has a big advantage over any other sport. It provides exercise for player and spectator alike. The average spectator following a big match gets fully as much exercise as the player. His ditch-jumping six-mile hike definitely is good for the muscles. And the gate receipts of the major tournaments help boost golf as big business in any man's language.

When war was declared in December of 1941 the investment in golf was estimated at $726,000,000. This includes land, courses, clubhouses, etc., and is only a part of the total outlay which runs far more than a billion dollars.

Despite the huge investment, golf is no longer only a rich man's game. It is only because it is a game for the masses that so much money has been spent on courses. Golf has been a lifesaver for thousands of men-and women-who need exercise and relief from business complications and worries.

brethren a serious disservice by being absent from the meeting on the evening of the first Easter Day. When he did appear he had only doubts to contribute. Let those who make a custom of absenting themselves from the place and hour of service beware lest they do likewise.

His doubts were honest ones-and God always meets such questions, honestly and intelligently. When the evidence was before him, the heart of Thomas leaped the chasm from doubt to faith in one cry of complete devotion (v. 28).

It is significant that down through the ages many doubters have been won to Christ by the proof of the resurrection of Christ, which is by the testimony of historical scholars "the best authenticated fact in all history." The risen Christ stands before men today and says, "Be not faithless but believing." May many respond with Thomas, "My Lord and my God."

IV. From Death to Life (vv. 29-31).

Christ arose from the dead not just to show that He had power to do so, but, as Paul puts it, "for our justification" (Rom. 4:25). The reality and dependability of the entire plan of salvation hinged on the return of Christ from the dead. Had the grave held Him, His claims of deity and of the ability to forgive sin would have been entirely discredited. Because He lives we shall live.

The experience of regeneration is therefore likened in Scripture to a passing from death to life (John 5:24). Thomas saw the Lord, and believing, passed from doubt to faith. We cannot see Him now, but we have the blessed privilege of believing and thus receiving life (vv. 29, 31).

This was the mssage which the now radiant and empowered disciples went out to preach. The book of Acts tells us how effectively they did it, and shows how much of their preaching centered on the fact of the resurrection.

The command and the commission was not to them alone, but also to all of us who believe in Christ. May God take out of us the fear of men, overcome our weakness, and send us out with renewed faith to make this life-giving message known to our fellow men.

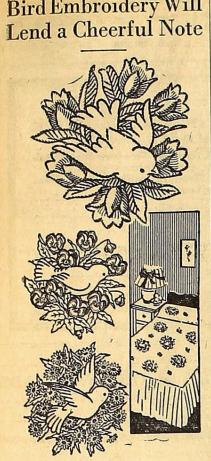

All business with the outside world had to be handled through the Commissar for Jews of the German government. I never saw him. He was a remote personality, but his shadow fell deeply across our lives. A court building was the only place where our world met the outside world. Here Jew and Christian were allowed to see each other for the last time. Here men terminated old partnerships started by fathers or grandfathers. Here husbands and wives met to say good-by, to see each other no more. For the Nuremberg law has been applied in Poland, and marriages between Jews and non-Jews had to be dissolved. We had no electricity, no radios, no telephones, no musical instruments, no street cars. The post office would handle nothing but postcards, and every card was examined by a German censor. Our official bread allowance was five pounds per month.

One morning we woke up to find a number of Jews lying dead in Kupiecka street. They had been caught outside the wall, shot down, and then the bodies thrown into the ghetto. We never knew whether they had passes or not. The Germans never bothered about little technicalities like that.

For our own sake and that of our families, we were always terrified at any harm coming to our jailers. Day after day we saw friends and relatives murdered in retaliation for deeds in which they had no share, no knowledge. On one occasion a Polish policeman had been killed while on duty. The Gestapo carried out an extensive search, in the course of which a building at 9 Nalweki street put up a stubborn resistance for several hours. When the defenders were finally overcome, 53 male inhabitants of that building were dragged out and shot.

Early in 1942, batches of deportees from Germany began to arrive, five or six hundred at a time. After being despoiled of whatever they had, they would be moved on. We were told they were to go to a "reservation" near Lublin. Actually, most of them left in charge of "Externi-nation Squads." According to the stories, these squads had several ways of disposing of their charges. One was to shut 50 or 60 of them up in a truck and then fill it with poison gas. Another was to leave them starving by the roadside. Or, simply machine-gun them.

American Red Cross Worker in Great Britain.

LONDON .- Long hours, exacting work, incessant demands on tact and ingenuity fail to daunt the tireless American and British women working side by side in the American Red Cross clubs in Britain. The thousands of U. To find out his identity, the guest must ask questions of the other players, but only questions which can be answered with "yes" or "no." Such questions might be "Am I a soap?" or "Do people smoke me?" Indians of the Amazon River re-gion made the first rubber over-shoes, which were imported into the U. S. in 1800.

Mistakes of many kinds can cut into the rubber conservation pro-gram, as is indicated by the fact that normally 180,000 pounds of rub-ber was used annually in the manu-facture of pencil mark erasers.

Before vulcanization was discov-ered in 1839 rubber goods hard-ened like rock in winter and moited in summer. Early rubber goods manufacturers suffered se-vere financial losses because of the unreliability of their prod-ucts. That was many years ago.

A check of the tires on 500 vehi-cles recently disclosed that 80%, were under-inflated, even to the ex-tent of from 10 to 15 pounds. This is a heavy waste of rubber because it has been found that 30 per cent under-inflation permits the return of only 74 per cent of the mileage built into a tire.

Many people will not be Vegetables are considered high labor crops by farmers who are already short of help. It will be next to impossible for commercial growers to increase their production with less help than they have had in years, and many vegetable growers have gone into defense jobs or joined the armed forces. "I am aware that many people have had indifferent success with their home gardens in the past and have decided that they can buy their vegetables cheaper than they can raise them. They may be disappoint-ed if they expect to find adequate supplies on the market," Mr. Babcock warned. "Help on planning and caring for a garden, for one is available for you.
