Willard Wright Cited for Merit

TAWAS CITY MAN GIVEN "AIR MEDAL"

Participated in Solomon Island Campaign in August

Willard LeRoy Wright, of Tawas City, was advanced to Aviation Radioman second class, for meritorious conduct in action against enemy forces, and in addition was presented the Air Medal by the President of the United States for service set forth in the following citation:

"For Meritorious achievement while participating in aerial combat against enemy Japanese forces during the Solomon Islands Campaign on August 24, 1942. Taking part in a vigorous dive-bombing attack on an enemy aircraft carrier, Wright, during return flight to his own carrier, assisted in shooting down three Japanese planes and effectively damaging one by skillful direction of fire from his free gun. His courageous devotion to duty and utter disregard for his own personal safety were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

The citation was signed by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox for the President.

Wright is the brother of Charles Wright of this city.

Dairy Meetings Wednesday, April 7

Cash incomes supplied by dairy cows and received by farmers in Iosco county not only serve to produce a major portion of the total income achieved each year, but in this particular year are fruitful in supplying much needed additional food material, according to W. L. Finley, county agricultural agent.

To review some of the labor saving practices that farmers, especially dairymen, may use during 1943, Dairy Specialist J. G. Hays and Farm Crop Specialist L. V. Nelson will be heard at meetings arranged for Wednesday, April 7. The first meeting will be at 1:30 at the Reno township hall. The evening meeting will start at 8:30 at the Tawas township hall. Everyone interested is encouraged to attend.

Dealers Prepare For 2nd War Loan Drive

Retailers of Iosco county are asked to sell double their normal quota of $5,500.00 worth of war bonds and stamps during the month of April, according to announcement made today by C. L. McLean, Iosco county chairman for the Michigan Retailers War Savings Committee.

"Big doings are scheduled for April" stated Mr. McLean. "April 12 marks the start of the biggest all-out drive to sell war bonds which has ever been attempted. Forces of the Victory Fund Committee and War Savings Committee have joined for this great drive, and since our own organization is an effective unit of the War Savings Committee, Michigan's retailers must play an important part in this program."

"We have accepted as our responsibility the doubling of our April quota. That is entirely possible, if every retailer and every retail salesperson will do his or her part to help. We retailers reach more of the people who invest in small denomination bonds than any other group."

Fire Permits Necessary

Conservation Officer A. G. Lietz gives warning to anyone wishing to burn brush and grass, without first obtaining a fire permit to do so.

The law requires a permit to burn when the ground is not snow-covered to start or have an open fire except for domestic purposes and to protect the persons or property in case of fire, without written permission. Under Act 143 P. A. 1923, Act 139 P. A. 1929.

Fire permits can be obtained from Fire Warden C. R. Brown, Tawas City, Phone 377; Charles Bellville, Whittemore; Hale Fire Tower; Bert MacGregor, Seven Mile Hill; Conservation Officer A. G. Lietz; Ranger Herman Olson, U. S. Forest Service; and the Silver Creek Fire Tower.

240 ATTEND ACHIEVEMENT DAY PROGRAM

51 Girls and 17 Boys Make Exhibits at Tuesday's 4-H Club Show

The annual 4-H Club Achievement Day for Iosco County was held at the Community Building in Whittemore on Tuesday of this week.

The celebration which was attended by some 240 club members, parents and friends, marked the completion of the 1943 winter club program in handicraft and clothing. Fifty-five young ladies were enrolled in clothing projects and 51 of this number completed all their required work and made exhibits at the Tuesday 4-H event. Five handicraft clubs with an enrollment of 21 members carried 17 of this number to completion and made exhibits at the Achievement Day program.

Local 4-H club leaders who made this program possible in their home communities are: Verneta Steadman, Taft; Elsie Roeske, Greenwood; Frances Klish, Vine; Gwendolyn Putnam, Lower Townline; Ida Dorsey, National City; Mrs. John Webb, Hale; Mary Mercure, Cottage, Miriam Greene, Schneider; N. O. Sibley, Taft; and Florence Latter, Jennie Valley, Mrs. Wolven, Dorothy Bonsecours and Frank Madaski of Whittemore.

The days program consisted of a motion picture presented by Herman Olson, Forest Ranger of the Huron National Forest, upon the care, harvesting and use of farm grown timber.

County School Commissioner R. A. Rollin served as chairman of the afternoon program and introduced the Plainfield Township High School Band which is under the leadership of John Riehm of Hale who entertained the group with several fine musical selections and vocal numbers. Visitors at the 4-H event were welcomed to the Whittemore school and community by Principal Wilson. Community singing was led by Mrs. Pederson of Whittemore. Miss Dorothy Scott, District Home Extension Agent, and Miss Dorothy Bonsecours, (Turn to No. 2 Back Page)

Prominent Tawas City Man Succumbs Sunday to Heart Attack

William C. Davidson, prominent Tawas City resident and former Great Lakes marine engineer, died Sunday at his residence here following a heart attack.

William Collins Davidson was born November 22, 1871, at Port Huron and went to Bay City with his parents when he was six years old. He graduated from the Bay City Public schools and later studied marine engineering. Shortly following this he became associated with his father, the late Capt. William Davidson, in the tug boat business, going to Grand Marais in 1894. In 1895 he was united in marriage to Miss Gertrude J. Kelly of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson resided at Grand Marais and Detroit until 1920, when they came to Tawas City and made their home, and where Mr. Davidson established an insurance business. Mrs. Davidson passed away in 1925, and he married Miss Annabelle McLean of Hale in 1927.

Mr. Davidson was always interested in civic affairs and has been city clerk and justice of the peace here for the past 22 years. He was nominated for re-election to city clerk again this spring. Through his work as an engineer on the lakes and his later business activities here, Mr. Davidson acquired a large number of friends throughout Michigan who held him in the highest of esteem. His passing will be felt by the citizens here because of his conscientious work in city affairs. He was a charter member and past master of Grand Marais Lodge No. 423, F. & A. M.

The deceased is survived by the widow; a son, W. Kelly Davidson, of Detroit; a daughter, Mrs. George W. Bass, of Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Shreve of Detroit and Mrs. P. J. Brady of Cleveland; and two granddaughters.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Tawas City Methodist church. Rev. E. C. Stringer officiated. Burial was in the Tawas City cemetery.

Among those from out of the city who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shreve of Detroit, Mrs. P. J. Brady of Cleveland, John Goward of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kelly Davidson of Detroit and Mrs. George Bass of Detroit. Also in attendance were representatives from Consumers Power company, and the insurance companies with whom Mr. Davidson had been associated for the past 25 years.

LAST RITES FOR W. C. DAVIDSON WEDNESDAY

Prominent Tawas City Man Succumbs Sunday to Heart Attack

Dr. W. S. C. Pellowe, district superintendent of the Saginaw District, held his final quarterly conference of the parish yesterday (Thursday) with a very interesting program. Hale, Whittemore and Twining churches united for the occasion.

A service of worship preceded the business meeting with the Whittemore Junior Choir offering special music. Mrs. Henry Ethrington and Mrs. Robert McCleary presented a vocal duet. Words of appreciation for the personal interest of Dr. Pellowe were given by John Webb of Hale and George Eddy of Twining.

A feature of this service was the cancellation of the mortgage on the new parsonage purchased one year ago. John O'Farrell presented the cancelled mortgage to Dr. Pellowe as a tribute to his financial assistance in the transaction.

A Service of Honor Plaque containing the names of young people who formerly attended the Whittemore Methodist church and are now serving their country was dedicated. Sixteen young people have already gone from this church to various fields of service.

Dr. Pellowe gave an important message to the assembly. During his six years in the district he has given his personal assistance at various times and his spiritual guidance, as well as securing financial assistance whenever necessary.

Family Theatre Held Red Cross Fund Week

In conjunction with the rest of the nation's theatres, the Family Theatre will begin its week long salute to the American Red Cross on Thursday, April 1.

Officially known as Red Cross Week, and organized by the War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, there are some 17,000 theatres participating in the week, it was announced by J. M. Thomsen, manager of the theatre.

A feature of a specially prepared screen tribute entitled "Somewhere in This World" in which the commentary is made by Eddie Rickenbacker. The tribute explains the functions of the Red Cross as the only official auxiliary of America's armed forces and contains considerable thrills. It was made shortly after Captain Rickenbacker's spectacular rescue from the Pacific.

The celebration will continue until the night of April 7 and the Rickenbacker subject will be shown at every performance during the week.

Local Red Cross Workers will be in attendance at every performance to assist in the celebration.

IOSCO ONE OF FIRST TEN COUNTIES "OVER TOP"

Iosco County Chapter, American Red Cross, was one of the first ten chapters to reach their quota, according to Richard F. Becker, Regional Director Chapter Service, of St. Louis, Missouri. Since then the local chapter workers have collected about a thousand dollars more than its quota.

Mr. Becker writes to A. W. Colby, Iosco County War Fund Chairman, as follows:

My Dear Mr. Colby:

We want to express to you our appreciation of your chapter's effort in completing your War Fund quota so early in the campaign. You will be interested to know that your chapter was one of the first ten to report their goal had been reached.

As War Fund Chairman you deserve great credit for this successful campaign. You, your associates and the generous citizenship have contributed materially toward the success of the greatest crusade in Red Cross history.

We feel confident all your workers will continue until every patriotic American citizen has had a chance to give.

Yours sincerely,
Richard F. Becker,
Regional Director.

DEEP WATERS

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY SO FAR: When Will McPhail leaves for Moose Bay, Robin Dale decides to follow him. On the way she meets Will's brother Angus, a downy Scot who hates women. He does not know that she is engaged to Will, and Robin realizes that she must not come between the two men. So instead of seeing Will, Robin stays on board when the White Queen docks. But Will, operating a crane, sees a girl on the deck. As he turns to look he loses his balance and is killed. Learning that Angus blames her, Robin goes to see him with a man named Jenkins, a fellow passenger on the White Queen. They talk to an ugly man, and Robin asks who he is.

CHAPTER VI

"Pat Donohoe. He's McPhail's boatman," Jenkins said. "I suppose McPhail will be back for the funeral."

"Oh!" He meant Will's funeral! Will was dead, and they were going to bury him. She had not realized death till she heard that word. She was suddenly very tired. When she suggested returning to the hotel, Mr. Jenkins, after some good-natured protest, agreed.

Robin slept and walked and slept again. At noon she rang for coffee and toast. She wondered a little why Mr. Jenkins did not come to take her to see Mrs. Free; but she was glad he did not. Slowly, during the long afternoon, she emerged from the protective numbness which had followed the first shock of Will's death, so that she could feel the keen ache of pain; and that night she did not sleep at all. The rain drove against her windows all night long, and when dawn came, there was no slackening in the storm. She stared at the slucing panes, and thought, Will would be buried today, and she hated this raw new wilderness town full of hard men, with mud underfoot and rain and gusty wind over all. When she dressed and went down, the clerk named Dave looked at her curiously.

"When will there be a boat for Rimouski or Quebec, or—anywhere?" she asked him.

He seemed surprised, and for some strange reason maliciously pleased. He said a cruise boat would touch here some time in the afternoon, bound for Quebec.

"Do you suppose I could get a cabin on her?"

"Yes. I know she's not full."

Afternoon? Will would be buried this afternoon. She could not go till then. "What time will she be here?"

"Can't tell yet," he said. "We'll get word later today." He hesitated.

"Mr. Jenkins left a message for you. Said he'd be back tonight."

"Oh! She had quite forgotten Mr. Jenkins. Thanks."

After lunch a man spoke to her in the lobby. There was something about him remotely familiar. He made conversation in a courteous way, without offense; and he spoke at last, too casually, of Mr. Jenkins.

She recognized him then as the man who had crossed the dock to look down at Mr. Jenkins' boat, when Mr. Jenkins stopped to go aboard her that first day. She asked suddenly:

"Why are you interested in Mr. Jenkins?"

"I?" His tone was too surprised. "You and he old friends, are you?"

A question to answer her question. Too many questions. She wondered with complete irrelevance, why Will had not met Angus when the White Queen docked. Why had Will stayed in the cab of the crane and let Angus drive away to shore? Why were men afraid of Mr. Jenkins? What tickets? Who was it Mr. Jenkins allowed to come in? Where was Mr. Jenkins today? Too many questions. She asked:

"Don't you know any answers?"

Before he could reply, the clerk named Dave came to her. "They don't know when the funeral will be," he reported. "Mr. McPhail's brother hasn't come back yet. They're waiting for him."

She nodded thanks, and suddenly she was dreadfully afraid that something had happened to Angus. Fear choked her so that she could not speak. She fled up the stairs to her room. Hours later the clerk knocked on her door. "Miss Dale, the funeral's passing right now."

She caught up hat and slicker and ran to the stairs and down. "The cemetery's right up on the hill," he told her. "They're just getting there." He pointed the way; and she went out into gusty wind and driving rain.

She saw Angus, his garments wet and torn, his old hat more battered than ever, his cheeks gaunt, his eyes red and sunken. He stood by the grave.

As she approached, his eyes lifted to meet hers. His eyes were bleak as winter. They made her cold. She said tremulously: "Mr. McPhail, I want to talk to you. I want to tell you . . ."

He interrupted her, in flat tones. She thought his voice was like that of a deaf man. "I've nothing to say to you, and I don't want to hear anything you can say."

She could not believe her ears. She protested softly: "But I just want you to know how sorry . . ."

He said curtly: "Be off!"

She cried in a hurt bewilderment: "But Mr. McPhail . . ."

"Then stay if you like! I'll go."

He turned on the word and strode away. Robin was suddenly angry. He needn't act so! She started after him, to tell him so. He walked so fast that, trying to overtake him, calling his name, she had to run; and she slipped and floundered in the mud.

She cried out to him, even then; but he did not turn. Pat Donohoe lifted her to her feet and with awkward hands scraped mud off her garments, and he said gently:

"Let him go, ma'am! Let the poor man go!"

Then he himself went after Angus, not seeking to overtake him, keeping ten paces behind.

When Robin came back to the hotel, her bewildered thoughts were more in order. She was no longer angry; but she was puzzled now. There had been more than indifference in Angus McPhail's eyes, and more than grief. There had been a cold and furious rage; and it was a specific rage at her! A dozen questions filled her mind.

She stripped off her soaked and muddy clothes, and she thought wearily that reasons did not matter. Clearly, she could do nothing to help him, to ease his hurt. She might as well go home. She changed into dry clothes, then went down to consult the clerk. He said the boat would dock at six or half past; would sail at nine. It was already after five. She asked:

"Can you get a car to take me down to her?"

"There aren't any taxis. Mr. Jen-dock above her. He spoke French—which she did not understand—and someone answered him, and a moment later she heard feet coming down the ladder.

Mr. Jenkins must be coming aboard; and she did not wish to see him! She stepped into the stateroom and closed the door of it behind her. A moment later, she heard footsteps in the cabin, and two voices.

She stood in the narrow space between the bunks and the fore and aft bulkhead which divided the stateroom from the compartment where the engine was. She was afraid they would open the door and find her. Mr. McPhail must surely be here soon. She dared not show herself until he came; but she herself not stand. She sat down cautiously on the lower bunk. The upper bunk was so near the lower that she could not sit upright without bumping her head, so she lay down. She was wide awake, listening to the voices, wondering what Mr. Jenkins and the other man were discussing so seriously.

She was very tired. She had not slept at all last night, very little the night before; and her eyes burned and ached. When she closed them, they were more comfortable; so she kept them closed, listening to the rapid-fire conversation in the cabin, wishing she could understand what they were saying. It began not to matter . . .

She was awakened by the opening of the cabin door, the sudden flood of light in her face. She rolled on her side, scrambling out of the bunk, scrambling to her feet, blinking and confused. The floor lifted and tilted under her. Silhouetted in the cabin door stood a man in a battered old hat. It was Angus McPhail's hat. The man was Angus McPhail.

But the engine was running! They were going somewhere! The boat pitched under her feet, and she almost fell, staggered, caught at his coat to save herself. She cried:

"Heavens to Betsy! What happened? Where are we?"

He said in a harsh, grating tone: "Three hours out of Moose Bay toward Labrador!"

Three hours out of Moose Bay toward Labrador! The light was in Robin's eyes, blinding her. Angus McPhail was a dark silhouette in the doorway; and his dry tones were like the rustle of dead leaves in an icy wind. Three hours out of Moose Bay . . . She wrinkled her brows, peering into his shadowed countenance, trying to understand this incredible thing he said. She protested, in a half whisper, "Three hours! But didn't you know I was here?"

The boat was pitching and tossing. She clung to his coat to keep from falling down, till he freed himself, drew back. Then she stumbled into the cabin, sat down on one of the benches by the narrow table. Angus moved aside to let her pass; he stood above her, his legs spread, his head a little bowed; and when he did not speak she said, still vague with sleep:

"Then you'll have to take me back, won't you? I'm sorry to make so much trouble."

He was so long in answering that she began to be fully awake. When he did speak, he said in a strange blurred voice: "You came aboard. I didn't ask you. You got yourself into this. Get yourself out!"

His lips were twisting strangely. She asked in a puzzled wonder: "Are you trying to frighten me?"

He echoed in a dry scorn, "Frighten you?" His husky, low tone was more alarming than a shout. She remembered, now fully awake, his violence at Will's grave. It had been more than the madness of grief. It had been, definitely, anger at her. She lowered her head so that he might not see terror in her eyes; and she sat thus, with her face hidden, trying to guess some reason for his anger. It was possible that Will had told him about their love for one another; but even that could not wholly explain his rage now that Will was dead.

Before she could find words, he asked suddenly: "What did you want aboard here?"

She looked up at him. "Why—just to speak to you. Just to say—the words people do say to those who are grieving."

His voice rose a little, dry and harsh as rust. "Couldn't you speak your piece ashore? Why were you so sure you'd be welcome in my cabin? Why should you think I wanted you?" His fists were tight at his sides. "Curse you, if it's men you're after, go forward in the fore-cabin! Maybe Romeo and Pat will let you share their quarters. I won't."

His very extravagance steadied her. She looked at him in quiet appraisal. It was not fair to treat what he said as though it were said by a sane man. She asked: "Have you eaten anything these three days? Have you slept at all?"

"Hah! There's a woman for you! Feed the brute. Put him to bed. He'll be in better humor in the morning."

"Please!"

"If you expect me to take you back to Moose Bay—you're due to be disappointed."

"Did you know I was aboard before you left there?"

He said, almost sullenly: "No. Not till half an hour ago."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

He said curtly, "Be off!"

kins will take you, won't he? He'll be back any time now."

Mr. Jenkins was nothing; but if he knew she was leaving, he might annoy her with urgencies to stay. "Oh, no!" she said hurriedly. "I'd rather he didn't know I was going."

The clerk nodded as though approvingly. "Sorry, I thought you were a friend of his. I can drive you down, myself, after six o'clock. I'm off then for half an hour."

She thanked him. She arranged to leave her muddy garments to be cleaned and forwarded; then returned to her room to pack. At six she descended; at five minutes past, she and the clerk were in his car.

He said:

"Steamer's not in yet; but I have to be back at half past, and there's no one around to take you down later."

"I can wait on the pier," she assured him. "If Mr. Jenkins asks where I am, don't tell him, will you?"

"I didn't think you looked like a friend of his," he said. When they reached the end of the pier, the steamer was not yet in sight. They sat in the car till he had to leave. When she was left alone, Robin looked toward where Angus McPhail's motor cruiser and Mr. Jenkins' boat had been tied up two days ago. Mr. Jenkins' boat was gone; but McPhail's was there. She walked that way and saw that the cabin scuttle was open, so he must be aboard.

She decided to make one last attempt to talk to him; and—shaking a little at her own temerity—she descended the ladder and called his name into the cabin.

But no one answered. She was disappointed; but if he came before the cruise boat docked, she might still make him listen to her. She decided to wait for him; so she climbed up on the dock again and brought her bags to the head of the ladder that led down to his boat, where they would be under her eye.

A workman passed and said, "Hi, babe!" She wished she need not be so conspicuous. Then it began to rain again. It was silly to stand here and be soaked. She climbed down the ladder and took shelter in the cabin to wait for Angus there.

She heard an engine murmur and then bark more loudly as the reverse gear took hold. Another boat was mooring just off of this one. It must be Mr. Jenkins, returning; so she kept out of sight. Then she heard Mr. Jenkins' voice on the

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 4

PETER AND JOHN BECAME DISCIPLES OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—John 1:29-42; Mark 1:16-20. GOLDEN TEXT—And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.—Mark 1:17.

Personal faith in Christ is the heart of Christian experience. Since persons are won by other persons it was vitally important that the Lord choose the right disciples at the very beginning of the Church. Outstanding among the twelve disciples were Peter and John, whose lives and letters we study during the next three months.

The manner in which they became disciples is of unusual interest—and is instructive as well. We will observe that our Lord is working in much the same way on the Peters and Johns of our own day. They came to Him by way of

I. Testimony—They Heard About Jesus (John 1:29-34, 41).

John, who modestly refrains from naming himself (v. 40), heard about Jesus from John the Baptist. His testimony is notable for its pointed presentation of Christ, and its unmistakable desire that they follow Him. John was an important man with a vigorous message, but he recognized that his only real business for God was to point men to Christ. He enjoyed having men follow him, but only that he might lead them to Jesus.

In doing Christian work we should learn to be our testimony that we may magnify Christ, and not ourselves. We must be careful to win men to Christ, and not to ourselves or our cause or church.

Peter was brought to Jesus by his brother Andrew. Andrew was a quiet, modest man of whom we do not read that he preached a single sermon. But he did do personal work (see John 6:8, 9; 12:24, 22). He has been called "Andrew the finder." May "his tribe" increase. We need more like him.

Hearing about Jesus is not enough. There must be the next step, the indispensable personal meeting with the Lord.

II. Experience—They Saw Jesus (John 1:35-39, 42).

The necessity of a personal experience with Christ is so clearly stated in Scripture that one can only marvel that it is so neglected in many churches today.

Neither John the Baptist nor, later, Andrew was content to tell about Jesus. They brought John and Peter to the Lord. John said, "Behold the Lamb of God" (v. 36); and Andrew "brought him to Jesus" (v. 42). These sum up the soul-winner's duty. We must bring our family, our friends, yes, the stranger with whom we deal, into the presence of Jesus.

He will look into their eyes and into their souls and see in them all the gifts and graces which may make them useful to Him (v. 42).

John was the brother of James and Peter the brother of Andrew—just two humble fishermen in the sight of men. But Jesus saw in them two of the most useful men who have ever lived. Let us give Him a chance to deal with our friends and acquaintances.

Hearing and seeing are both excellent, but they lack one final step—and here it is—

III. Action—They Followed Jesus (John 1:40; Mark 1:16-20).

First of all they followed Jesus in becoming believers on Him as the Messiah. That experience of John's we find in John 1:40, and of Peter's (by inference) in verse 42. There is no salvation apart from that act of the will which follows a knowledge of Christ.

In the passage in Mark we find Him calling them to leave their secular calling as fishers of fish to follow Him and become fishers of men. Before they could become what He wanted them to be, they had to do something—rise up and follow Him.

Their unquestioning response indicated their faith, but, more than that, it showed that they were the kind of obedient men who could be used of the Lord. Jesus might have called His disciples from the learned and the mighty. But one wonders whether they would have been willing to respond without argument, and to learn of Him without prejudice or preconceived ideas of theology.

God must often pass the mighty and the noble of this world, and call those who are foolish enough to believe Him and obey (read I Cor. 1:17-29). The reason is given there—"That no flesh should glory in his presence." The glory belongs to the Lord, not to His servants.

Because they did obey they became "fishers of men." He led them, trained them, encouraged them, blessed them, and used them.

A disciple is a "learner," but he is learning for a purpose. Learning for its own sake, as an ornament or a selfish pleasure, is always a sad thing, but with the disciple of Christ it cannot be that if he rightly knows Christ.

The disciple is to win other disciples. That is the very heart of Christian witness.

How to 'Sew on a Button' In the Spring, 1943, Manner

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Buttons are being used extensively to put drama into the simple fashions growing out of rationing and priority rulings. Also, when it comes to revamping old clothes as so many home-sewing women are doing these days, buttons are veritable miracle workers.

Luckily there is no scarcity of buttons, and the new spring assortment is irresistible. Bright colored fruits done in plastics are studded with rhinestones, giving them a jewelry aspect which is most intriguing. Pastel pearl novelties are as pretty as bonbons or the frosting on a cake. Plastics are knotted into buttons for coats and suits. One-color buttons are styled in graceful bow-knots while gay little leaf and flower types are stylized for print frocks.

Yet, the new button originals are exciting, and probably more than any other decorative, as well as useful, feature, they help the homemaker to set the mood of the dress. According to the buttons you chose you can glitter in gala fashion or be sedately tailored. You can be dignified and elegant, or colorful and whimsical.

Since we must be thrifty these days, an urge is taking possession of those serving on the home front to do their patriotic bit by making the most of what they have. It is considered quite the smart thing to do nowadays to re-vamp old dresses that have become somewhat outdated in appearance. The accompanying illustration visualizes new and exciting ways to bring drama to clothes that have hung this many a day in forgotten release, forlorn and almost forgotten.

Starting at the upper left corner and identifying the little sketches by the letters—(A) Here frayed buttonholes have had every trace of their worn edges outwitted by appliqueing three-inch square patches of contrast fabric over the old buttonholes. Center each patch with a dramatic button with a cherry-spray motif. Try this, it's a grand idea! (B) You can button your hat into smartness. Use the newly-designed pearl originals. They are rimmed in high colored plastic. Not only will they re-style last year's hat, but they key to the color scheme of smart accessories.

(C) Yarn rosettes are popular among decorative fashion whimsies this season. Crochet inch-deep loop of colorful yarn around each buttonhole. Buttoned up, the button becomes the rosette's center.

(D) Cheer up a dark sports jacket with gay colored French knots. Repeat the high color in new buttons. Plastic buttons styled in artful knots is a good choice.

(E) Soften a severe neckline with a tiny turned-down collar. For interesting detail use three "tie on" buttons styled in mother-of-pearl plastics.

(F) Pastel yokes offer clever make-over ideas. Treat your last-season's frock to a new yoke. Add button originals that repeat the color of the frock to give striking detail to the light yoke.

(G) Since fashion is button-wise this season, shorten an out-at-the-elbow sleeve, finish it off with a banding and pointed tab cut from the fabric scraps. For drama sew an important looking button on the pointed tab. Or you can dress up a bell sleeve by giving it a slash to the elbow, to better show off a frill of wide lace. Add two pretty flower-patterned button originals as sketched.

(H) Pastel buttons on a pastel vestee are effective. Slash a V-neckline down to the waist. Make it feminine and 1943-ish with lovely buttons in water lily motif.

The girl in the center of the group so smartly hatted for spring, is wearing a dress that flaunts charming halved-apple buttons in realistic colors. You can also get these decorative fruit plastics in peaches and cherries.

Beautiful Quilt Made From Scraps of Silk

MANY an old-time art is being revived today and the art of making old-fashioned crazy patch quilts is one that fits into our times. All you need is scraps of silk and odds and ends of embroidery thread. The pieces are sewn to a foundation of light weight cotton material with a variety of embroidery stitches.

This colorful patchwork may then be used for a new cover for a comforter. Another idea is to cover a worn blanket with it.

Horse in Need of Conditioning Now

Important Factors In Care of Horses

Since the horse has returned to stay—for the duration at least—farmers should start now if they want to put their animals into top condition before spring work begins.

According to the department of animal pathology and hygiene at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, good feeding is essential, but consideration should also be given to methods of ridding horses of internal parasites. Bots live in the stomach, while roundworms, strongyles and other parasites live in the small and large intestine and, during certain stages of development, in other body tissues.

The best time to treat horses for parasites is during the winter months. Carbon disulphide is effective in ridding horses of bots and roundworms. Phenothiazine, the drug now so widely used for the control of internal parasites of sheep, is particularly effective in removing strongyles from the digestive tract.

There is, however, an element of danger in the treatment of horses for parasites. Such matters as correct dosage and methods of administration, as well as care given before and after treatment, require the skill and judgment of a veterinarian. A few farmers have used parasite control measures upon advice of a veterinarian for many years.

Two other things, trimming the feet and removing sharp corners from the teeth, should be taken care of before horses are harnessed for field work. These jobs can be done at the same time the horses are given treatment for parasites.

Hardwoods

At the U. S. Forest Products laboratory at Madison, Wis., new wood uses have been uncovered which have been adopted by industry. Among these are wood plastics, made by heating millwaste with acids which convert it into a molding powder for floor tiles and switchboard panels.

Corrugating board for shipping containers is made from chestnut chips discarded after tannin is extracted. Black jack oak and red gum may be substituted as chestnut wood disappears through disease.

Over 200 recent buildings have utilized glued and laminated structural beams and arches which are made from cheap, low-grade small-sized boards put together under pressure. Prefabricated houses are being marketed with panels for walls, floors and roofs made from plywood glued to light frame.

Strong papers are being made for wrapping from maple, birch and aspen. Cellophane is made from pulped wood, treated chemically to convert it into jelly. This is filtered through narrow slits to become transparent sheets.

At a California lumber mill, red wood sawdust, chips and shavings are compacted under pressure into small logs sold for fireplaces, dining cars and ship galleys. Shredded red-wood bark, known as Palco wool, is being marketed for insulation. When finished, it is a fluffy material resembling a mass of red hair.

More Farm Machinery

Success in meeting farm production goals for 1943 will be dependent to a great extent upon getting the last possible ounce of help from machinery. Every piece of power farm equipment should be given a general overhauling to make certain it will be ready to operate when needed. Efforts also should be made to make community work schedules for tools which will not be used full-time on the farms of their owners. All this will help our war effort.

The 2nd War Loan Starts April 12

13 billion dollars must be raised!

THE GOVERNMENT of the United States is asking us to lend it 13 billion dollars in the next few weeks. We can do it. And we must do it. Every American must realize the truth:

In this, our toughest war, we've made a good start. We've trained a lot of men—made a lot of weapons—built a lot of ships.

But it's only a start. No man or woman among us would contend for a single instant that we're doing enough now to win this war!

We've Got to Build More!

We broke all records building 8 million tons of shipping last year. But grim-faced Army and Navy men will tell you that the 18 MILLION tons we're building this year still won't be enough!

We've Got to Fight More!

From now till this war is won, America must be on the offensive. In ever-increasing numbers, your sons, brothers, husbands must go into actual battle. Our losses have already begun to mount—and they will not grow less.

And We've Got to Buy More War Bonds!

Sure we're all buying War Bonds now. But we've got to help pay for our increased fighting and building . . . We've got to match, as best we can, the sacrifice of those Americans who are toiling and sweating on a dozen battle-fronts—with the bloodiest yet to come. The blunt fact is this: to keep our war machine going, we've got to dig up 13 billion extra dollars this month. 13 billion dollars over and above our regular War Bond buying!

In the next few weeks you may be visited by one of the thousands of volunteers who are contributing their time and effort to this Drive. But don't wait for him. Make up your mind now that before this drive is over, you're going to march right down to your nearest bank, Post Office, or place where they sell War Bonds, and do your duty. And don't ever forget this: in doing your duty, you're doing yourself one of the biggest favors of your life!

For United States War Bonds are the greatest investment in the world—bar none. They're investments tailored to fit your particular situation. And they give you the chance of a lifetime to order and get the kind of world you want to live in after this war. Every cent you put in War Bonds now will help to guarantee plenty of peacetime jobs making peace-living for every one of us.

For your Country's sake—for your own sake—invest all you can!

There Are 7 Different Types of U. S. Government Securities—Choose The Ones Best Suited For You:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9% a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, $1000, $5000, $10,000, $100,000—also $1,000,000 if registered. Redemption: Not callable till June 15, 1964; thereafter at par and accrued interest on any interest date at 4 months' notice. Subject to Federal taxes only. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other Securities: Series "C" Tax Notes; 7/8% Certificates of Indebtedness; 2% Treasury Bonds of 1950-1952; United States Savings Bonds Series "F"; United States Savings Bonds Series "G."

Washington, D. C.
SOPHOMORE CONGRESSMEN
 The President's heralded meeting with congressional freshmen had an unheralded sequel on Capitol Hill. Day after the White House party, 19 second-term house Democrats held a luncheon in Speaker Sam Rayburn's private dining room, at which there was considerable good-natured, and some not so good-natured, grumbling about the President's relations with congress.

Object of the luncheon, arranged by Rep. Oren Harris of Arkansas, was to enable the second-termers to "console" each other for not being invited to the White House for a party when they were freshmen.

Among others, Rep. Sam Russell and Eugene Worley of Texas took great delight in joshing Rayburn: "Sam, why can't you get us an invitation to the White House?"

However, the luncheon took a serious turn when scrappy Rep. Edward Hebert of Louisiana lambasted the White House for not consulting with congress on new legislation, and criticized his colleagues for submitting to White House "dictates." Observing that only 26 of the 45 Democratic freshmen of the last session survived the November elections, the Louisianaan declared:

"If a lot of us had paid more attention to our constituents instead of to White House advisers, there wouldn't be so few of us here today. In the last year of Huey Long's tenure, he controlled both houses of the Louisiana legislature completely except for one man. But Huey didn't try to ram through any bills without letting each man know what was going on and making him feel like he had a stake in the program. We in congress haven't been treated like that."

Hebert said he held no enmity against the House leadership, adding to Rayburn:

"I've always been very fond of you, but I've never been able to vote for you on a national ticket. I hope I will be able to cast my ballot for you next year, either as top man or running mate on the Democratic ticket."

This brought loud cheers from the luncheoners and blushes from Rayburn, who responded with a fatherly lecture urging those present not to let personal animosities influence their actions in congress.

AMERICAN BOMBERS
 Despite the criticism you may hear of American planes, U. S. air-men who have studied the current bombings of Europe say privately that one American bomber is worth five of the British.

American planes are heavily armed and heavily armored. Able to protect themselves, they operate in the daylight, with precision bombing, whereas the British planes, flying at night, must lay down a pattern of bombs over a whole area, hoping that the principal target will be hit.

British planes can carry a heavier load of bombs, but the fewer bombs carried by the American planes are more effective because they go straight to the target.

Further, American planes have suffered fewer losses proportionately than the British, both operational and combat losses.

In fact the American contribution is so important that the all-out bombing of Germany must await the availability of more U. S. planes.

Most people think there is a heavy concentration of American planes in England now, and that the current round-the-clock bombings are the big show. Neither is correct.

There was a concentration of U. S. planes in England last summer and fall, made with intended publicity. This had the effect of sending the Nazis scurrying all over western Europe to mend their defenses. Then U. S. air strength was pulled out of England for the mission it had been intended for—the invasion of North Africa.

U. S. air strength in England is now being built up again, and when the time comes, the two air forces combined will stage the show intended to knock Germany out of the war.

MEXICO BARS MIGRATION
 No one is advertising it, but Mexico has slapped a temporary ban on the recruitment of its workers for farm jobs in the United States.

This was expected to be one of our big sources of farm labor in the Southwest. However, no Mexican laborers have been imported in more than a month, despite feverish efforts by the Farm Security administration to bring in approximately 50,000.

Mexico is not keen about the recruiting program, and some time ago notified the state department that it was reserving the right to specify the sections of Mexico where labor could be recruited. Reason given was that Mexico couldn't afford to have labor drained from industrial sections.

Meanwhile the Farm Security administration has submitted orders for 6,000 Mexicans, but is still waiting for an okay to begin recruiting. Note: So far we have imported 5,300 Mexican farm workers under 30-to-90 day work contracts.

Capt. Joe Foss and His 'Flying Circus'

One of the hottest fighter squads in the South Pacific area is a marine outfit known as the "Flying Circus," led by Capt. Joe Foss of Sioux Falls, S. D., top American ace of the war. The squadron has bagged more than 60 Jap planes, and Foss himself has more than 26 confirmed victories. Foss, smoking his characteristic cigar, is shown in the center, while around him, reading from top left around the bottom to top right are, Oscar Bate, Greg Loesch, Tom Furlow, Roger Haberman, Frank Presley and Bill Freeman.

Good Will Tour

Seven South and Central American republics were on the good will itinerary of Vice President Wallace, for discussions with representatives of the various countries. These men accompanied Wallace on the good will trip: left to right, Laurence Duggan, adviser on political relations, department of state. James D. Le Cron, and Hector Lazo, assistant director in charge of exports. Vice President Wallace is seated.

Young Early on K. P.

Stephen T. Early Jr., 19-year-old son of President Roosevelt's secretary, is shown taking his turn at dish washing in a Camp Croft infantry training battalion. Young Early was inducted on March 2 at Camp Lee, Va. He was called while attending Staunton, Va., military academy.

Pledge Help for Paralysis Fund

Movie stars at the White House pledge help for the paralysis fund. Shown, left to right, are Lloyd Richards, production co-ordinator of picture "Forever and a Day," all profits accruing from which will be turned over to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. C. Aubrey Smith presented the pledge to the President. Next in line are Roland Young, Brian Aherne, Mrs. C. A. Smith, Ruth Warwick, who plays the lead in the picture; Lady Warwick—and President Roosevelt.

Road Mine Exploded Under His Lorry

Dazed and hurt, British lorry driver Leonard Orchard, is assisted by a comrade after his lorry struck a land mine in North Africa. This action took place in the western desert during one of Gen. Bernard Montgomery's victories over the enemy, in co-operation with the royal navy.

U. S. Fliers 'Daddies-by-Adoption' in China

Doing things in traditional open-handed American fashion, soldiers stationed in China have adopted homeless Burmese orphans, providing them with food and board. A group of fliers is shown here, each with his little charge astride. They seem to be enjoying themselves immensely.

Seeks Closer Ties

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, who flew here for a series of conferences designed to clear the way for meetings between all the United Nations on problems arising out of the war, is shown arriving at the White House. Last year Eden negotiated a 20-year alliance between Britain and Russia.

Victory Slogan

John F. Noon, Detroit defense plant worker, is tossing a thumb proudly at the slogan that won him first prize in a slogan contest. "You can't spell victory with an absent T" was the bon mot that scored for Mr. Noon.

THE day of power baseball, symbolized in recent years by the New York Yankees, seems to be passing. The old fashioned game, with a revival of run-scoring strategy, is coming back. And for two reasons:

- (1) The topnotch home run hitters are going to be missing.
- (2) The rabbit baseball is gone—at least for the duration.

With the real power hitters like Hank Greenberg, Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio in the armed services, the long hits will be considerably fewer. Other muscle men are in a retiring mood, and still others figure they can get their best licks in by working in a defense job.

Remaining Hitters

There will be some good hitters on deck. Mel Ott has led his league in home runs. Dolph Camilli, Charley Keller, Bill Nicholson, Ernie Lombardi and Rudy York get distance, but they never managed to get up there with the leaders.

Even if the power hitters were back it's far from certain they would be getting distance-as-usual. The dead ball is re-appearing. It's an ersatz number of unusual construction. As you know, (or do you?) golf balls are covered with a gummy, resistant substance called balata. This material is being reprocessed and used in baseballs for purposes of elasticity. Early experiments left much to be desired and the manufacturer is still experimenting.

The importance of the rabbit ball is beyond question. The records show that nobody came close to the 20 home run mark until Babe Ruth totaled 29 in 1919—when the lively ball is said to have made its first appearance. In 1927 Ruth racked up 60 circuit blows.

Double Threat

Only twice has Ruth's home run record been in danger. Jimmy Foxx threatened with 58 in 1932 and Hank Greenberg with 58 in 1938. If conditions had been the same as when Ruth set his record, both might have broken his mark. Immediately after Ruth boosted the total, several parks started adding barriers which brought new obstacles into the paths of the heavy hitters. St. Louis, for instance, erected a right field screen which interfered with the home run production of Foxx and Greenberg. They both dented it with hits that earlier would have been home runs.

When the Bambino set the record a ball that hit fair and bounced into the stands was a home run. When Foxx threatened in 1932 that same ball was good for only a two-base hit.

From now on it is likely that one run will have an importance that it has lacked for at least 20 years. Teams tried for clusters of runs. They won ball games. Hitters figured there was little use in trying to steal a base and risking the chance of being thrown out. Why try a hit-and-run or squeeze play when there was a good chance of the batter socking the ball out of the park?

Chop Hitters

With the appearance of the dead ball the chop hitter will be the most valuable. It will be up to him to "hit 'em where they ain't." They'll play for the single runs because single runs are going to mean more. More emphasis will be placed on coaching. Players will have to be taught how to bunt and how to run bases. Extra base hits will come through speed and agility. Sliding will be important. Ty Cobb used seven different slides. The modern player uses one. Speed and deception will play important parts in this year's game.

Power baseball will give way to a more scientific game. It shouldn't hurt baseball in any way.

SPORTS SHORTS

More favorites won races at Chicago's Sportsman's Park last season than at any other race track in the land.

Luke Appling of the White Sox will be working for his 1,000th run and 2,000th hit this season. He has 962 American league runs, 1,868 American league hits.

Joe DiMaggio didn't hesitate when asked who he thought was the best center fielder in baseball. "The best," he said, "is Dominic—even if he is my kid brother."

U. S. Sub in Jap Waters

By Lieut. Slade Cutter, U. S. N.

Our United States submarine had been operating against the enemy in the vicinity of Japanese-held islands when, one afternoon, our captain, Lieut. Parks, called me to his cabin.

I thought his eyes gleamed with unusual excitement, but he only said casually, "Good news, Slade," and handed me a wireless he had just received. I held it to the light and read: "Proceed at once to the coast of Japan—"

Sometimes it is difficult to repress an impulse to whoop with delight, and this was one of those times. This was the moment we had lived for, the moment every submariner dreams about.

A Surface Engagement.

We turned and cruised steadily westward. The Japanese coastal patrol system extends many miles to sea and is painstakingly thorough. The first time we got very close to shore before we were spotted. Just before daylight, as we were preparing to dive, a patrol boat came at us with its guns spitting. We didn't want to waste torpedoes—we were a long way from replacements—so decided to fight it out with our deck guns. It was our first surface engagement and it proved almost disappointingly brief. One of our first shells struck the enemy's magazine and he simply disintegrated. We cruised over the area, but found no survivors.

Sink Tanker in 3 Minutes.

A day later, in the same neighborhood, we spotted a big tanker about sunrise. After some maneuvering we gave him three torpedoes. All were hits. The third struck aft, and must have exploded his boilers. There was a terrific blast that threw parts of his bridge clear over his mainmast, and he sank in three minutes and four seconds. He went down by the stern, his bow rising high in the air, to give us an excellent view of the rising sun painted on it. We surfaced and cruised among the men in the water, intending to give them emergency supplies, but a bomber came winging out from the land and we had to dive.

At this time we were in the busy steamer lane between Yokohama and Singapore where important targets might be expected. So, when Lieutenant Pleatman saw a heavy smudge on the horizon, we hurried over to investigate. It proved to be a troop transport of 13,600 tons, heavily loaded with men and supplies and escorted by a large destroyer. It was headed for Singapore.

Sink Transport and Freighter.

We had a ticklish problem. The destroyer was weaving a zigzag course which could not be predicted. It was a long time before we could maneuver into a position off the transport's port beam. We gave her two torpedoes. Both hit. Before we could turn, the destroyer was coming for us full speed, following down the torpedo tracks. We dived and maneuvered to safety. When the destroyer had to leave us to pick up survivors, we raised our periscope in time to see the transport settle slowly on an even keel.

An interisland freighter was our next target. We decided to attack with our deck gun to save torpedoes, so surfaced at point-blank range and let go. We had fired 17 rounds, when three things happened simultaneously: Our gun jammed with a projectile wedged in the barrel, their ship caught fire, and the Japs surrendered by striking their colors and running up a weird assortment of white cloths ranging from sheets to underwear. They took to their rafts, and their ship continued to burn until she sank.

During the daylight we cruised along the sea lanes at periscope depth seeking worth-while targets. Nights, we would surface in a quiet spot, usually in the lee of one of the many small islands, to charge our batteries. It was there that I smelled for the first time the strange, haunting fragrance of the Japanese forests. At dawn we lay offshore for a long time, watching the people.

Lieutenant Conole, standing periscope watch one morning, electrified the ship by reporting: "Target off the starboard bow!"

As we moved up to let her have it, we discovered that she had been masking an escort destroyer. He was on her opposite side; we couldn't hope for a more favorable opportunity. Without delay, we fired a bow torpedo. It had barely left the tube when the destroyer swung sharply and came charging toward us. We fired another torpedo into his path. What followed was a submariner's dream.

U. S. Steel Reports 1942 Production 28 Per Cent Greater Than World War I Peak

United States Steel Corporation's Annual Report for 1942, reporting attainment of a steel ingot tonnage production 28 per cent greater than in the peak year of World War I, has just been released as "a production story—and a financial story—of a great war effort."

Production by U. S. Steel in 1942 of more than 30,000,000 net tons of ingots as well as the manufacture of a steady flow of products entering into thousands of items used in prosecuting the war were described by Irving S. Olds, Chairman of the Board of Directors, in his review of the year contained in the Corporation's forty-first annual report.

The victory parade of steel ingots was listed as only one of several principal contributions of U. S. Steel to the war effort. These contributions were enumerated as follows: "First, a record volume of steel and other materials needed not only for the fabrication of essential war products but also for the creation of new facilities to make such war products has been produced. Second, the technical ability representing many decades of accumulated research and experience has been made available for the requirements of the Government. Third, the construction and operation of vast new facilities for the Government in connection with the war effort have been undertaken. Fourth, millions of dollars of steel ingots were expended for various facilities contributory to the war effort."

A one-page condensation of the financial record of the Corporation for the year describes in simple language what disposition was made of the $1,865,951,000 received by the Corporation from sales of its products and services during 1942. Employment costs of $73 million in 1942 were 25% greater than for the previous year; 1942 taxes of $204 million were 21% more than in the preceding year, while dividends to stockholders remained unchanged. "The amount carried forward for future needs of the Corporation was 78% less than in 1941."

Among achievements cited is the development of the airplane landing mat. The serious problem of handling plane landings on hastily built air fields was solved with the war-time invention by Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, a U. S. Steel subsidiary, of a landing mat, consisting of portable interlocking steel sections. It was pronounced the outstanding development of the year in the field of aviation by the Chief of the Army Air Force. As mass production methods were evolved other companies were licensed to use the process, and thirty smaller manufacturers are now producing these landing mat sections in quantity.

The report reveals that in 1942 one subsidiary, Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, completed nine destroyers for the Navy Department in shorter building time than any other shipyard in the country. A new shipyard built by this subsidiary for the Navy Department began operations five months after ground was broken. A fully equipped shipyard for the production of the latest type of tank landing craft was constructed and is being operated for the Navy Department by American Bridge Company, another subsidiary.

An interesting comparison of the use of U. S. Steel's own resources and of Government funds for the expansion of emergency facilities undertaken by U. S. Steel from June, 1940, to the end of 1942, shows that the ratio of U. S. Steel's investment to the use of Government funds was 6% of its own money to every dollar of Government funds used. This compares with a ratio for all industry of 2% of private funds to one dollar of Government funds. In this expansion program, U. S. Steel's private investment was $230,000,000, as compared with $436,000,000 of Government funds expended, making a total of $718,000,000 expended in the program.—Ad.

Children Aid Mothers

Children are shouldering many responsibilities to help mothers who are busy at war work. Once they realize the importance of running errands, attending to the baby, washing dishes, and keeping their rooms in order, they do these jobs willingly and efficiently. The war emergency may impose extra burdens and deny them many taken-for-granted childhood privileges, but it is also fostering cleanliness habits, good judgment, and self-reliance far beyond their years.

Import Hog Bristles

Before the war the United States imported every year about 6,000,000 pounds of hog bristles from northern China, Manchuria and Russia. Whole families in these countries made their living by plucking the bristles by hand from slaughtered hogs. Hogs raised in America have equally good bristles, but few have been collected here in the last 50 years because it was impossible to compete with the cheap hand labor of Russia and the Orient.

Strip Fiber for Rope

In the Philippines, abaca leaves were decorticated by hand by holding the leaf between a stone and a dull knife which stripped the leaf of its pulp. The comparatively high cost of labor in the Americas makes this practice impractical. Before the war, the Netherlands East Indies was beginning to present stiff competition with the Philippines through mechanization of the fiber industry.

Time Needed in Washing

Washing in a machine can be overdone as well as underdone. The ideal length of time for woollens is two or three minutes. Silks and synthetics take three to five minutes. For cottons and linens, five to ten minutes usually is sufficient, but five extra minutes may be added. Any article not clean within these time limits should be washed in fresh suds a second time.

Efficient Use of 'Lefties'

Although left-handed men in some war plants are assigned to jobs where their handedness can be used to best advantage, as in tightening bolts on the left-hand side of a production line, little attention has been paid to utilizing most effectively left-eyed men and women.

Soldiers Like Beverages

The best selling beverages around army camps are coffee, milk, malted milk and bottled soft drinks. In a sampling of two army combat divisions, taken last summer, 57 out of 100 men were found to drink nothing alcoholic, 34 drank only beer and only nine drank hard liquor.

Forest Supports Church

Danville, N. H., has the quaint custom, dating back to colonial days, of supporting its church with the profits of a town forest which has yielded sufficient income to pay the preacher, build the church, and create a bank balance of $10,000.

The Midnight Express:

Walt Disney's "Victory Through Airpower" film, taken from Sever-Sky's book, is being blocked by brass hats in Washington . . . Because it reveals what everyone can savvy at a glance—that planes are the best weapons today . . . Bill Stout, who designed the first Ford planes, is working on what they hope will be the flivver of the air after the war. A tiny hundred h.p. job as simple to manipulate as the Model T . . . Mr. Whiskers just collared a woman agent here whose operations were right out of a spy film. Posed as a Navy nurse with all the proper apparel, etc. Worked the midtown bars, talking to servicemen, and had even married three of them.

Bob Burns, the ex-farmer, has done a series of recordings for the Dept. of Agriculture, to encourage the growing of peanuts. They are christened: "Nuts to you, Adolf!" . . . The cigar rationing for troops at Guadalcanal: Two cigars weekly. In Africa they get four . . . Although he's been in the Army a year, Carol Bruce sends her manager 15 per cent of her wages.

The sets for the film, "Attack by Night," will be replicas of actual Norwegian towns—with OWI supervision . . . Hollywood's veteran cameramen, now in the Army Signal Corps, are taking six-week refresher courses. They must "learn" how to hold a camera "correctly." And to develop negatives! . . . Mary Pickford will adopt children, according to coast buzz . . . The Mills Brothers start a trek back to the Big Time with a choice spot in "Reveille with Beverly" . . . Geo. Lowther, who does the "Superman" program, was the first page boy hired by NBC.

The Navy reminds girls that a WAVE or SPAR may request other assignments besides paper or desk work. The duties are varied. Aerographer, for instance, or radio communications, storekeeper, parachute rigger, and so on . . . Elton Britt, a singing cowboy, recorded "There's a Star-Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere." Made him a high bracket man. To date: 900,000 records.

The Wireless: R. Harkness, the Washington reporter for WEA, was puzzled by the to-doodle about Russia not advertising the aid from her allies. Harkness revealed that Pravda, the Soviet newspaper, published a full report only recently . . . The Hays office ruled that Fascists in films shouldn't have American accents. He should listen to the Quisling shortwavers, whose accents are as American as hot-dogs . . . You'll twirl your dials a long time before you catch anything more Hip-Hip-Hurray than Paul Robeson putting the big baritone to "Ballad for Americans" . . . The crossfire act banged over by Crosby and Hope would have been good for a dozen straight weeks at the Palace on Broadway.

The Magazines: The war has landed right in Vogue's lap. That mag tells its flabbergasted readers, mostly ex-motorists, one of the grimmest truths—that it's hard to read on a bus. Gad, sirs, is this America? . . . New Republic's Manny Farber tags Saroyan's flicker, "The Human Comedy," a chocolate soda made out of words . . . Newsweek scrubs away all the Congressional hullabaloo about bureaucracy and states it is all a build-up for the '44 elections . . . The startling rise of juvenile delinquency is the problem threshed out by Ella Winter in the current Collier's. The antidote for the wave of knee-pants criminals, the author reports, is more playgrounds, dancing activities and other healthy forms of relaxation to keep them occupied. Remember Mrs. Roosevelt wanted to do that, and was howled down by some "enraged" Congressmen?

It happened in front of the New York Sun where some Newspaper Guild pickets were parading and distributing leaflets. A police car drove up, and a tough-looking Sarge got out . . . The pickets expected him to break up the line and seize the leaflets, as had happened so many times before. But he merely brushed by and went into the Sun offices . . . When he came out puzzled pickets asked: "Aren't you gonna do anything?" . . . "No," he said. "They said you were blocking the sidewalk. I told them I managed to get into the building. They wanted to know about the leaflets, and I reminded them about the Freedom of the Press."

Jimmy Cagney, according to a letter he wrote to the Norwegian Embassy, revealed that he is part Norwegian. It will be published in a book by one of the Norwegian diplomats . . . Ever since Cagney married, he has given his wife something green for St. Patrick's Day. This year the gift, as green as was a stack of gov't war bonds . . . Newspapers, which have debunked wild rumors of clothing rationing, haven't been read apparently. Stores complain of "clothing runs" every weekend.

Mountain Romance

By BARBARA BENEDICT
Associated Newspapers.
WNU Features.

DAPHNE slipped upon a loose stone and sprained her ankle as she and David were coming down the mountain. David had picked her up gently and carried her the rest of the way to the base. He called the hotel from the camp there, asking them to send up a car. During the drive, she sat leaning against him, and once he thought she had fainted.

A doctor was called that night, and the injured ankle bandaged.

David sent Daphne flowers the next morning—and that was the last she heard from him. She was surprised that he didn't visit her. She was astonished, when, on the day following, she hobbled down to the lobby and he wasn't there to greet her. The day wore on and her astonishment became wonder and, later, curiosity. She asked whether he was in his room. The clerk told her that Mr. Stearns had gone.

Checked out? Daphne stared. Checked out? When?

The clerk had exhausted his supply of information. Mr. Stearns had checked out, that was all.

Daphne was stunned, alarmed, disappointed, faintly angry.

At first Daphne tried to find some logical explanation for it. She went over in her mind every detail of their association since that day they had met, a month before, on the summit of Green mountain.

That was the beginning of their friendship. David told her that he was a construction engineer. What did he like to do? Well, climb mountains for one, and swim and play tennis and take long walks and sit on lonely mountain peaks, and meditate about the universe and life and the planets.

Crazy? Well, if those things were crazy then there were two crazy people stopping at Mountain Glen. Because that's what Daphne liked.

Thus did each find in the other so many things of common interest. There followed delightful, happy days of climbing and hiking, of tennis and canoeing, of whipping fast mountain streams and stalking wild game with cameras.

Days and weeks of it, each hour more enjoyable than the one preceding. Two people in a universe of wonder, watching life go by.

To Daphne it had been a glorious interlude to the humdrum existence to which she was accustomed. Something that was making a lasting impression on her memory; something she would treasure always.

And now the end had come. Sitting on the sun-drenched veranda of the Mountain Glen hotel, she went over every detail of all that had happened, tried to piece things together and arrive at a logical explanation of David's mysterious departure—and failed.

A week passed; Daphne's ankle mended. She was allowed to walk about the grounds. Frequently she looked up at the peak of Green mountain resolved that she would have to get away from it all.

And so at the end of another week, Daphne packed her things, wired for a reservation and took the early hotel bus to the tiny railroad station. The train whistle interrupted her thoughts. She sighed deeply, turned away and picked up her bags. The great locomotive swept by and stopped, a white-coated porter descended the steps of the single Pullman car and dropped his footstool. Daphne was on the verge of swinging aboard when a pair of masculine legs came down the steps toward her, and she paused.

She waited, instinctively looking up. And then her heart turned completely over. The man was David, and he was looking at her queerly.

"Daphne, you're—of course you're not." He turned to the porter. "Here, give me those bags. Miss Cardwell is not taking this train."

"Why, of all the—"

He grasped her arm and hurried her across the platform. "Save it," he snapped. "I know the answers anyhow. Besides, I've got to ask you something."

"Oh, you have! Well, why didn't you ask me two weeks ago, instead of running off so impolitely—"

"I had to run off—to summon up enough courage. You see," he stopped and faced her. "You see, I didn't have the nerve. That Platonic friendship of ours was all right, but it had its drawbacks. I just couldn't take it, I guess. After all, I'm only a man."

Daphne's heart was pounding wildly, but she said: "Whatever in the world are you talking about?"

"Just this, being a man, I fell in love with you. Well, it was a question of whether I'd better risk telling you and losing your friendship altogether, or trying to keep going as we were. Then that day you sprained your ankle and I had to carry you down the mountain and you rested against me all the way back in the automobile—"

"But I didn't sprain my ankle. That is, I didn't intend to. I meant just to twist it a little so you'd have to carry me—and then in the car I leaned against you because I thought that if I did—well, of course, being a man, you wouldn't understand those things. Men are stupid."

Far down the track the southbound footed a farewell to Mountain Glen. It seemed to remind David of something, because he stopped staring like a speechless idiot, and took Daphne in his arms.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Seed-bearing pods high up in rubber trees when ripe go off with an audible pop. The pods, about the size of a goose egg, contain formations of gas which explode when ripe and throw the seed as far as 100 feet.

The French call rubber caoutchouc from an Indian term meaning "weeping tree."

Ninety per cent of roadside flats that plague car owners can be avoided. Checking air pressures while tires are cool, before inflating will show up tubes that are losing an abnormal amount of pressure due to slow leaks.

Temperatures, topography and types of roads as well as driving habit of owners account for wide variations in mileage from identical tires. These factors may account for a tire turning in from twenty to twenty-five thousand miles of service in Chicago whereas from seven to eight thousand miles may be the mileage it will render in Texas.

Diner Was Quick to Recognize an Old Friend

As a man entered a restaurant and sat down at a table the man already there looked up with a smile of recognition.

"Pardon me, sir," he said, "I think we met a fortnight ago."

After a brief glance of inspection, the other man shook his head negatively.

"Sorry," he said, "but I don't know you."

"Maybe not. I don't know you, but I recognized that umbrella you're carrying."

"That's impossible, sir! A fortnight ago I had no umbrella."

"No," came the quick retort, "but I had!"

Just Neighbors . .
 That is how we wish the people of our community would think of us—just neighbors. We are standing by in case of emergency giving you not only sympathy but practical assistance in the hour of your greatest need.

We could not continue to work in an atmosphere of grief if we did not know that our service to the community was necessary and helpful.
