Mr. and Mrs. Miller Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

A family gathering and dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Miller Saturday night honored the golden wedding anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Miller, pioneer Iosco county residents, who were married 50 years on April 29.

Mr. Miller, a lifelong resident of Iosco county, was born October 30, 1870, on the farm which was his home for years, and is now the home of his son, located in Tawas township. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Miller, early residents of the county.

It was while working as a millwright in the Loud mill at AuSable that Mr. Miller met Miss Elizabeth Bessinger, and on April 29, 1893, the couple were married at Oscoda. For five years they lived at AuSable later going to their farm home, where they lived until two years ago. Since that time they have resided at Sand Lake. Mrs. Miller, who is two years her husband's junior, was born in Huron county in 1872, and came to AuSable with her parents as a child.

During his years in Tawas township, Mr. Miller was active in community affairs. He served as treasurer of Vine school for ten years and for a number of years was superintendent at the Iosco county infirmary.

Six of the seven children born to Mr. and Mrs. Miller are living: They are: Mrs. Henry C. Schatz and Walter H. Miller of Tawas township; Mrs. T. M. Roseberry of Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. F. D. Johnson of East Tawas; Mrs. A. E. Klieves of Los Angeles, California, and Herbert L. Miller, MM12, on active duty in the Pacific area with the U.S. Navy. They have 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Dear Mom—

DEEP WATERS

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS
W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY SO FAR: Robin Dale, a young artist, goes to Moose Bay to see her fiancé, Will McPhail. Just after her arrival, Will is accidentally killed. Learning that Will's brother, Angus, blames her for his death, Robin goes to his fishing cruiser to wait for him. She falls asleep and awakes to find the boat at sea, bound for Labrador. Another cruiser comes abreast of them just long enough for them to recognize a man named Jenkins, and later they see a government patrol trail Jenkins. Shortly after they leave the next port the engines suddenly stop. They discover that Jenkins has taken over the boat. Jenkins has just said, "I forgot a while ago."

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XI

McPhail looked puzzled. "Forgot what, Jenkins?"

"You'd figure it out, give you time; and when you figured it out, you wouldn't care what you'd promised me. You'd be up for trouble, promise or no promise. Nothing doing on promises, McPhail."

Angus said in a low tone: "If I understand you, you feel that I have some personal cause for—disliking you."

"Skip it, the other man said briefly. He said: 'See here! Got a hammer aboard, some nails?'"

"There's a hammer in the tool box in the engine room, I think. Some nails in a tobacco tin in the galley."

Jenkins spoke to Robin. "Go get 'em," he directed.

Robin obeyed him. The nails were in a flat tobacco can on the shelf above the little stove. The hammer was black with grease and oil, staining her hands. It was comfortably heavy. She tried it, hefting it in her hand; and she saw Jenkins watching her from where he sat, a few feet away. He grinned faintly.

"All right," he assented. "No hard feelings. I would in your place. Come back and sit down where you were." When she was seated, he spoke to McPhail again. "You can like this or not, but here's what you'll do." He looked at Robin and chuckled and said to McPhail: "I'm giving you a break, at that. You and Miss Dale both go into the stateroom. I'll fix the door so you can't get out easy. Then I'll know where you are."

Robin said simply: "I'd like that, please, Mr. McPhail." Angus met her eyes; and she saw in his the embarrassed confusion of a boy. She spoke to Mr. Jenkins. "I'm very sleepy, already, in spite of all the excitement. Maybe it's the sea air. May I go to bed first? I can take the upper berth, Mr. McPhail. You can sleep in the lower one."

"That's sensible," Mr. Jenkins agreed. "Go ahead."

She considered how to prepare for the night. It would be a long time till tomorrow, and—anything might happen. She had in her pack heavy whipcord riding breeches, ankle length, which she sometimes wore for tramping through meadows or along the shore to find a vantage point from which to make her sketches; and she changed into them, and a flannel shirt and a sweater. The air pouring through the port was sweet and fine; but it was astonishingly cold. The weather, she decided, must be changing. She drew on wool stockings, and climbed into the upper berth, and reached the latch from where she lay and thrust the door open.

"I'm abed," she said. She could see Mr. Jenkins across the cabin; saw him look with surprise at her sweater, and she explained: "I'm sleeping in my clothes. I'm cold."

Angus came into the stateroom. His cheek was congested with rage. He closed the door behind him and backed away from it, watching it, standing beside the narrow bunk. Robin felt him like an animal crouched to spring. She gripped his arm.

"No," she whispered.

Another nail, and then another, pinned the door to the frame. A dozen of them were driven home. Then there was a curious dragging sound in the cabin. She whispered, "What's that?" She was lying propped on one elbow on the upper bunk.

"He's nailing the salmon trap over the door, the way poachers spread a net over a rabbit's burrow after they've put the ferret in." His voice was low, his lips near her ear; Mr. Jenkins was busy just outside the door. Angus said through tight teeth: "I'll get my hands on him, somehow. I know now what he meant."

"Meant by what?"

"By saying I'd figure it out. Will was drunk on alcohol Jenkins had brought into Moose Bay. He means I'll blame him for Will's death."

"Oh!" Robin had forgotten Will. It was strange to think how completely he was gone out of her heart and mind. Her cheek burned, and she lay down, hoping the dim light from the single bulb in the stateroom was not enough to let Angus see.

Jenkins spoke to them through the door. "Now be sensible, McPhail. I've fixed it so you can't get out quick enough, or quiet enough, to do yourself any good." They heard his chuckle. "You ought to like the spot you're in. Most men would change places with you in a minute. Relax, McPhail. Relax and enjoy it."

Angus stared at the panels of the door with deep burning eyes. They heard Mr. Jenkins go through the engine room and forward; heard his feet almost above their heads as he stepped up into the pilothouse to speak to Romeo there. A few drops of rain came through the open port. Robin asked:

"Where are we going? Where is he taking us?"

"He'd probably head straight offshore, south or southeast, to cross to Newfoundland. I don't think he's a navigator. We've no instruments aboard except lead and compass, anyway." Angus was silent, thinking.

Robin lay looking up at him, standing here close beside her. She watched the line of his jaw tighten, watched the muscle at the angle of his jawbone knot, and his forehead furrow. She had never noticed how his eyebrows bristled. They were, she realized, a little gray. Perhaps they were what made him seem gray; made her think of him as gray. His shoulder was lean and powerful, his neck straight and strong. She wanted to reach up and touch the curve of his head behind his ear.

"He wouldn't go offshore," he said, half to himself and half to her. "He must be planning to meet the schooner in some sheltered bay along the Newfoundland coast."

This was true. He did not deny it. They could hear the sounds of Romeo's activity in the engine room, and a grumbling of voices; and then Mr. Jenkins spoke to them again.

"You're right, McPhail," he said. "Romeo doesn't know which end of a screw driver is which. I'm going to make the Irishman do the job. He might start trouble, and you don't want that. You call to him. He'll hear you."

McPhail shouted, "Pat!" From the forecabin, divided from their stateroom by the longitudinal bulkhead, Pat answered in a great voice:

"Aye, sorr!"

"Do whatever they tell you, Pat. We're all right as long as we don't make trouble."

"Aye, sorr!" Pat assented, almost cheerfully. "I'll have us under way in no time at all." He added:

"There's dirt in the gas, I'm thinking, by the way it sounded."

They heard him ask Mr. Jenkins:

"Did ye strain the gas when ye filled the tanks a while back?" Robin remembered the tins of spare gasoline in the after cockpit. Mr. Jenkins murmured something; and Pat said cheerfully: "That's it, then. A dirty lot of gas it was. I'll be having to take the carbureter apart, like as not."

Mr. Jenkins must have been releasing him while he talked; for now the two in the stateroom heard Pat come into the engine room; heard him say, "Ye're a nervous man, Mr. Jenkins." There was a chuckle in his tones. "I never could do a good turn on an engine without a piece of eating tobacco in my cheek. There's a twist in my hip pocket and I want mightily to reach for it. Think ye your nerves would stand the strain of seeing me reach for my hip?"

Mr. Jenkins said: "Go ahead, man. Maybe it will stop your talk."

In the stateroom Angus looked at Robin, and she saw a deep excitement in his eyes, and wished to ask some questions; but he made a sign of silence, shook his head.

Dawn grayed the narrow port before at last the motor caught and ran again. When they were under way, Pat at McPhail's order once more submitted to his bonds. Then McPhail called:

"Now, Jenkins, let us out of here."

"You'll do all right where you are," Jenkins decided.

"Man, I don't want any trouble; but I'm coming out. Will you pull the nails—or shall I break the door?"

"Have I got to put a bullet through your head?"

"You'd be a fool to," Robin, tense and still, lay watching Angus, watching the play of his features as he spoke, amused to see that his expression was at once good-natured, persuasive and determined.

She thought he was like a person arguing over a telephone, whose facial play matches his tones even though the listener cannot see his countenance; yet also he was white with the strain of keeping his voice steady. "I'll play along with you, Jenkins; but I'll not stay penned in here."

After a long moment Mr. Jenkins said doubtfully: "Okay. I'll get a pair of pliers or something, pull those nails." They heard him presently begin.

Robin cooked breakfast that morning for them all. When she fed Pat, the Irishman winked at her so elaborately that she guessed he sought to convey some message; but she had no clue to what it was till an hour later the motor failed again. It was the first of half a dozen such occasions. That day they spent more time drifting helplessly in the trough of the waves than under way. Each time the engine stopped, Angus and Robin were ordered into the stateroom, while Mr. Jenkins from the cabin, Romeo from the forecabin, kept their weapons on Pat as he labored with the carbureter. Each time, the engine ran sweetly enough for a while, then coughed and died.

"I'll get my hands on him, somehow."

some place where there's no town, no port authorities. Plenty of good places, from Bay St. George clear up to the Straits. Probably he'll just run till he sights land and locates himself, and then work up or down the coast to the place he's looking for. It will take us anywhere from eight to fifteen hours to cross, depending on his compass course."

She did not speak. Compasses were nothing to her now. Angus was the center of her world, the focus of all her thoughts. He would always be.

"Our compass isn't too good, either," he murmured, his lips near her ear. "And we've no log. Unless he's good at dead reckoning, with this wind, and the tide, no telling where he'll hit Newfoundland."

She whispered: "Will the plane be hunting us?"

He shook his head. "Not unless they've stopped their boat and found out he's not aboard. That's their job, till it's done; to follow his boat, see where it goes."

Something like fine shot spilled through the port upon her blankets; something that stung coldly on her hand. She said: "Oh, sleet!"

He closed the port. "We'll be cold enough before morning. Think you can sleep?"

"I'm sure I can."

"We're all right, I'm sure. This will straighten out. He only wants to get away."

"I know." She smiled up at him, said softly: "I'm all right. Don't worry about me. I can reach the switch. I'll turn out the light after you're in bed. Good night, Angus."

He nodded in a brusque embarrassment. "Good night, Miss Dale." When he was in the bunk below her, she snapped off the light; but she did not sleep for a while. She thought, smiling a little, of what old Jeff Plaisted used to say about apple trees, and about people. She wondered whether it was because they were in danger together that she loved Angus now. He was there, three feet below her. Probably he too was awake, so near. She wondered if he was as conscious of her nearness as she was of his. Sleet lashed the closed port, spattered along the roof of the stateroom close above her head. The cruiser rolled lazily, plowing through the rising seas.

The next day began with a minor mishap and continued through ex-

Cottons Tell a Most Amazing Story to the Fashion World

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COTTONS for workaday kitchen, farm and factory wear; cottons for play clothes and sportswear; cottons for simple daytime go-to-market and school wear; cottons for your "be-pretty" afternoon and fur-lough dresses; cottons for negligee and boudoir apparel and your daintiest lace-trimmed "nighties"; cottons for your smartest town-wear suits and coats, cottons for blouses from the sturdiest shirt types to the airy-fairy, muchly be-frilled and lace-trimmed lingerie types that are making conversation this season; cottons for delectable party frocks that will vote you the "belle of the ball"; cottons for wedding and graduation frocks; and would you believe it! milliners have all of a sudden taken to creating our smartest hats of gingham, chintz, pique or "what have you" in cottons—gloves and handbags, too, of matching cottons, if you please!

We'll admit the spectacular career story of cottons sounds almost too fantastic to be real, but it's true, every word of it, in regard to the meteoric flight they have made in the fashion world right on and up to the very pinnacle of fabric fame. It is plain to be seen, why women of keen fashion sense are planning their entire late spring and summer wardrobes in terms of cottons. They know, for instance, that in the up-to-date cotton fabric department there's to be had for the buying (not expensive, mind you) a series of new 1943 city cottons in tweed mixtures that make up into as stunning town-wear suits as the model shown to the left in the above illustration. This smart jacket-and-skirt suit is made of a handsome new cotton tweed mixture in black and white plaid. The three-button jacket is in the new shorter length and has buttoned breast pockets cut on the bias. A kick pleat in the front of the skirt is for walking. Here is a suit of unquestioned "style," its wearability is assured, and it comes forth from each tubbing looking as bright and fresh and capable as new.

In making up the new plaid gingham designers never miss a "trick" in way of details that have "endearing young charms." For proof, take a look at the gay little dress to the right. Here you see an appliqued pique tulip apparently growing right out of the background of a bright plaid-with-black gingham that is ever so goodlooking. Of course there had to be a smattering of wee ruffles at the sleeves and neck, for ruffles bob up anywhere and everywhere on the new summer frocks. The ruffles are of the same cotton fabric as the bands on the skirt.

Amazing things are certainly happening with cottons in these modern times of ours. For instance, designers have this season discovered in ordinary mattress ticking fashion potentialities they never dreamed of in days of yore, as you will see if you glance at the winsome two-piece dress centered in the group. This attractive two-piece is actually made of mattress ticking. It's trimmed with—guess what!—white cotton upholstery fringe, such as is used to trim couch covers and sofa pillows. Who'd ever have suspected a humble cotton material could be so glamorous!

Seeing that peasant skirt-and-blower two-pieces continue first in favor among teen-agers and in the junior group, the outlook on cottons in that direction presents a scene of picturesque dirndls made of flower-patterned and bordered gay chintz, or of heavy unbleached muslin dyed in clear reds and greens, yellows and blues, these so combined as to achieve fascinating color contrasts. The blouses with these skirts are exquisite lingerie types with peasant drawstring necklines.

'Teen-Age Vogue

One of the most important fashions scheduled for this spring and summer is the blouse-and-skirt costume. It is not only popular with the young set, but also in the adult realm. The blouse for this charming junior dress is of white swiss voile, and it has the flattering neckline that young girls want in the smart peasant waists they all will be wearing this summer. The skirt is black taffeta, for party wear. For casual everyday wear most of the skirts are vividly colorful peasant dirndls. Exquisitely sheer and fine lingerie blouses are worn with both dressy skirts and casual wash-fabric dirndls.

Flower-Laden Snood

Highly Picturesque

The snood vogue goes on and on. If you want to blend into the spring and summer landscape of flowers and birds, sunshine and all things lovely, wear one of the picturesque head coverings so frivolously pretty, and you will feel you are going stepping into a world of romance. There are all sorts of whimsies that go to make up the new fascinators and snoods, such as sea-shells, glittering crystal beads and fluttery ribbon. Sometimes the flowers, like single daisies, for instance, are scattered all over the big-mesh snood that confines the hair. Then again a cluster of flowers is placed at each side in Chinese fashion. Some prefer a single gardenia monture atop the pompadour, with the rest of the snood left unadorned.

Peasant Fashion

The peasant trend is one of the biggest influences, running through summer fashions. Some stores are establishing a special peasant department. Blouses come first, with dirndl skirts and jumpers. Cottons for these skirts include glazed chintz, seersucker, chambray and bright-dyed unbleached muslin. Felt suspenders, belts, caps are all trimmed in gay and intriguing embroidery.

Short 'Toppers'

With the coming of milder weather the demand turns to toppers and boyish box coats in the new short length. The corduroy topper is stressed, as well as short coats in bright colors and in navy, also gray or beige, and the newest color of all is a bright gold tone.

Bride Carried High

Among the strangest wedding customs of the world are those of the Bugis tribesmen of the Celebes in the Dutch East Indies.

When a woman is to be married, it is necessary for three days before the ceremony that her feet do not come into contact with the ground. During this period she is continuously under the influence of drugs administered to her as she is carried about on the shoulders of members of her family.

The gaily enameled unit insignia you see on a soldier's lapels and overseas cap are reproductions of his regimental shield displayed in the center of the eagle on his regimental flag. It's a part of U. S. Army tradition. Traditional, too, is the Army man's preference for Camel cigarettes. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) It's a gift from the folks back home, that always rates cheers. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Chewing gum and rubber tires have something in common. They both are the products of latex-bearing trees. The chicle latex, from which chewing gum is made, has a high resin and low rubber content. Rubber latex has the reverse characteristics. Chicle and Castilla rubber trees are found in much the same areas in Central America.

Synthetic rubber tractor tires have been under tests by B. F. Goodrich engineers for close to a year. When synthetic rubber becomes available in sufficient quantities, farmers may expect such tires on their tractors.

A Russian rubber-bearing plant is now being successfully grown in the United States. Its value in the American rubber program, however, is still undetermined.

Tire recapping has proved its wartime value. But the recapping should be done before the tread rubber of the tire is completely worn.

American Submarines

By Frank Gervasi

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Dozens of American submarine commanders have made records in the Pacific. Their roster grows every day. There are proportionately more Navy Crosses in the submarine service than in any other branch of the navy, and for this there are many reasons.

The submarine is an American weapon, invented and now perfected by Americans. Our men understand what the submarine can do, and they employ it as what it is—an offensive weapon of irresistible hitting power.

Most important of all, however, is that fact that German U-men are ordered or "sent" into action in ships lacking even elementary comforts and unequipped with any safety devices.

Our men "go." They love the submarines, and spend as much time telling you how safe they are—"safest ships afloat"—as fliers will say in describing the good qualities of our planes.

Submariners and fliers are the most weapon-proud men I've met in this war.

There is evidence of the submariners' contention concerning the safety of our submarines. Since the war began, the navy has reported the loss of only six undersea boats, including the Argonaut.

Submariners Quiet About Exploits.

Concerning their exploits, however, submariners are invariably mum, and no matter how well you might be prepared to contend with a submariner's economy of words, his reticence will still surprise you.

A quiet "Very well" is the accustomed acknowledgment of all orders, disasters, communications and missions aboard ship. A torpedoman might come to the control room with news that the aft and the forward torpedo room is flooded, and he would probably obtain from the skipper nothing more than a "Very well."

This reticence, however, as admirable as the submariners' courage and ingenuity and calm efficiency, has contributed to the neglect which was the lot of the service until war came. Hidebound naval traditionalists with limited imagination couldn't see the submarine as anything more than an adjunct of the battleships and cruisers. To the horse-and-buggy naval strategists of yesterday, the submarine represented merely a scouting and observation auxiliary weapon which might, with luck, sometime surprise and sink an enemy ship.

Our Sub Force December 7, 1941.

And on December 7, 1941, we had, for a major sea power, a third-string submarine force. Theoretically we had 113 submarines, with 73 building and 23 more scheduled to be constructed. Actually, however, there were substantially less than 100 submarines in service. Thirty-five subs were of the S-type which were found to be unsatisfactory and had been withdrawn for re-fitting.

Out of the total of submarines available for duty, roughly only one-third could be spared for action against the Japanese.

With our declaration of war on Japan, the picture changed rapidly, although not fast enough to suit our submariners. In May, 1942, an additional appropriation was made by congress for the construction of 200,000 tons of submarines which are now coming off the ways in yards on both coasts at a rate surprising to the layman but still unsatisfactory to submarine commanders.

U. S. Subs Sink 82 Jap Ships.

Even the publishable figures appear to support their point of view. Up to August of last year, American submarines had sunk or damaged 82 of the 219 Japanese ships sunk by all weapons. This represented 37 per cent of the total. Our submarines accounted for 27 per cent of all enemy warships sunk, and for 60 per cent of all noncombatant shipping sent to the bottom.

The submariners' record improved as more boats entered service. The navy department has credited our submariners with having sunk approximately 180 Japanese vessels of all categories.

Written down beside the total number of United Nations ships sunk by German U-boats, the admitted 180 sunk or crippled by our own subs in the Pacific might not seem so startling. But every Jap ship sent to the bottom represents a proportionately higher loss than the equivalent in American or British tonnage.

Speaking of Sports

By Col. McShane
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

SAD as it may seem to a large number of American league baseball followers, the chances for a wide-open pennant race are almost non-existent.

For a while it looked like the Red Sox or someone else would throw a bomb into Joe McCarthy's long reign. The Yankees have lost Joe DiMaggio, Tommy Henrich, Phil Rizzuto, Red Rolfe, Buddy Hassett, Red Ruffing and several others.

Red Rolfe

Obviously the Yankees of 1943 couldn't be the team of old. Too many good men were gone. But just take a look at what they have left—it's still quite a ball club.

The Yankees should have the best pitching staff in the American league. No other team in the circuit can match Ernie Bonham, Atley Donald, Hank Borowy, Marvin Bruer, Spud Chandler and the others McCarthy has on hand. It isn't reasonable to assume that the club will manage to hang on to all of its pitchers during the season, but Bonham, Chandler and Borowy, unless called to other fields, should be good for a minimum of 60 victories.

The tougher job comes when you try to evaluate the remaining entries. But here's how we figure they'll finish the current season:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York	Detroit
Boston	Chicago
St. Louis	Washington
Cleveland	Philadelphia

The second-place choice is the disturbing factor. Back of the Yankees are four clubs which might move into the No. 2 spot. Boston finished second for the fourth time in the past five years last season, winning 93 and losing 59. But their pitching is going to be good.

Hottest Team

The Browns were the hottest team in the loop last year and have a driving manager in Luke Sewell. They finished in third place last year with 82 wins and 69 losses. It was the first Brownie team to wind up in the first division since 1929. This year's team appears strong.

Lou Boudreau, youngest manager in the major leagues, believes his Cleveland Indians have better than a fair chance of winning the pennant. But his opinion isn't shared by other managers and experts. Lou is banking on what he sincerely believes is as good a pitching staff as there is in the league.

Quite a few sports writers figure the Indians for third place. Of 74 writers conducting a recent poll, six voted Cleveland first place honors, 16 placed them second and 27 booked them for third place. The remaining votes were from fourth to seventh place.

Prospects for the Tigers aren't too bright, although Dick Wakefield, former Beaumont outfielder, may give the team a necessary shot in the arm. Wakefield, who hit .345 last season, is counted on for a regular outfield berth.

Trouble Ahead

The White Sox are going to have more than their share of trouble this season. The team has 24 players in the armed forces and six others remaining on jobs in essential industries. Still, it's a season in which anything can happen. Jimmy Dykes, White Sox boss, may not have been whistling to keep up his courage when he said that "any team able to put nine men on the field all year has a chance to win the championship."

One thing is fairly sure during these times of trouble and uncertainty—the Washington Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics are not figured as contenders for the flag.

The Senators finished in seventh place last year and, unhappily, most sports writers are enthusiastic in relegating them to the same spot in 1943. The team has little pitching and practically no infield. It does have a hard-hitting outfield including Bob Johnson, former Athletic slugger. But it takes more than a good outfield to win pennants.

Philadelphia was the next thing to a unanimous choice for the cellar spot. Sixty-one of 74 writers participating in the Associated Press survey voted the Athletics eighth. Connie Mack begins his 43rd year as manager of the A's with a team that won only 55 and lost 99 last year. Suffice it to say that the team is weak in all departments.

Unquestionably the Yankees are still the team to beat. And at this moment it appears unlikely that any team will beat them, unless a minor miracle takes place at an early date.

Of course no one can say what the draft will do to ball clubs. But, granting that all teams will share equally the blows which may fall on them, the fact remains that the Yankees have just about as much winning margin as they held last spring.

And that is enough to give them the American league pennant.

At British-American Refugee Conference

Rescue of the oppressed peoples from German-occupied lands was the main topic of a discussion at the British-American conference held in Bermuda. The principal figures at this conference are shown above. They are, left to right, George Hall, British delegate; Dr. Harold W. Dobbs, chairman of the United States group; Richard K. Law, British undersecretary of state for foreign affairs; Rep. Sol Bloom of New York, U. S. delegate; Albert Peake, British undersecretary for the home office.

Hands Across Mexican Border

No More Washday Blues for This Yank

When the Aleutian winds blow we may or may not have snow, but at least Pvt. Early Krech of St. Paul, Minn., will have snow white laundry. He rigged up this windmill washing machine in which a chain and sprocket connected to the blades of the windmill delivers power to the wooden paddlewheels in the wash bucket.

Fought All Three Axis Partners

Not every bunch of fighting men can make the proud boast of having fought both the oriental and occidental members of the Axis. Since Pearl Harbor this Flying Fortress crew, shown in front of the "Geechee" in North Africa, has blasted at the Japs, the Germans and the Italians. Commanding officer is Capt. Joseph J. Kramp, New Britain, Conn., shown at left.

'Landing' Vets

Kangaroo Victim

Maj. Kenneth McCullar, 27, above, of Courtland, Miss., outstanding master of heavy bombardment tactics, was killed in a freak accident. He was taking off on a night bombing mission in New Guinea when a brush kangaroo sped directly in the path of his bomber, causing it to explode most of its bomb load.

On to Tokyo

"Here we come, Tokyo," says a sign somewhere in New Guinea, leaving no doubt whatever about the sentiments of those who erected it. Since the execution of the American fliers captured after the bombing of Tokyo the "coming" is likely to be speeded up considerably.

Wins Hun Fund

Each flier in one U. S. outfit in Tunisia contributes to a fund before each mission. The first to run down a German flier wins the bundle. Here is Lieut. J. D. Collingsworth of Boerger, Texas, collecting.

More Eggs Per Hen, More Milk Per Cow, More Corn Per Acre

Agricultural Science Now Fully Mobilized

Science hitched to the plow is one of the main reasons for America's astonishing food productivity. Day by day the department of agriculture, in co-operation with state colleges of agriculture and experiment stations, is carrying the results of research into practical application on the nation's six million farms.

A task force, made up of some 9,000 county agents, home demonstration agents, 4-H club leaders and specialists takes the findings of science to the farmer. Practically every one of the country's 3,000 agricultural counties is served by a county agent of the agricultural extension service.

Food, food and still more food. That sums up the Food for Freedom program in 1943: 8 per cent more eggs, over 25 billion pounds of meat, 122 billion pounds of milk.

No technique making for more efficient farming, or scientific fact that will help increase the total food supply, is being overlooked. Even such a simple practice as giving a cow drinking water with the chill taken off of it on a cold winter's day can help boost milk production. The practice of milking three times a day instead of two, if generally followed and combined with feeding three times a day, for only a 90-day period, would increase production sufficiently to meet 1943 goals. In a recent feeding test with cows that had production records of around 9,300 pounds of milk a year, increases in the milk output as high as 23 per cent resulted from feeding more grain.

Systematic Tool Storage

Very Important on Farm

W. C. Krueger, extension agricultural engineer at Rutgers university, believes that every farm should have a work space or room especially reserved for repairing and constructing farm equipment.

At least a corner in some building should be set aside for the systematic storage of tools, repair parts and supplies.

"The storage of new machinery, increased use of labor-saving devices to offset the scarcity of farm help and the inability of local service men and dealers to take care of all reconditioning and repair work makes it highly desirable for every farm to be as self-sufficient as possible in this respect," the engineer says.

There are enough tools on most farms to do the ordinary repair jobs provided all of the tools are systematically collected, put into good shape, arranged, stored, and handy to use, Krueger points out. A necessary item is a solid topped work bench 2 to 2½ feet wide and between 5 and 10 feet long fitted with a four-inch or larger machinist vise and a wood vise or clamp.

The wall space above the bench is ideal for hanging tools. For a well-equipped shop these should include twist drills; auger bits; assorted sizes of machine, drift and center punches; a carpenter's hammer and both a light and heavy ball-peen hammer; an assortment of wood chisels; wrecking and crow-bars; an eight to 12-pound sledge; anvil or heavy rail section for forging and straightening; a set of adjustable socket and pipe wrenches; a size range of screw drivers, pliers, plier cutters and pinners; an electric soldering iron or pair of soldering bits; a good grinder, preferably motor driven; flat, triangle and round files of assorted sizes, together with oil and emery stones. Block and tackle for hoists, jacks and pipe rollers will also be found handy.

Recapping Available

Owners of passenger cars and commercial vehicles using tires smaller than 7.50 by 20 will now be able to get casings recapped with reclaimed rubber camel back without applying to local war price and rationing boards for certificates. However, recapping of commercial vehicle tires with truck-type camel back, which contains a large proportion of crude rubber, continues subject to present rationing restrictions.

Washington, D. C.
OVERSEAS LETTERS

Many an American mother is hearing from her boy: "Why don't you write? I haven't had a letter from home for ages." And she knows she has written faithfully every day.

The explanation is the U-boat, which the war department regrets to say caused the loss of "several million pieces of mail" during the first three weeks of March alone.

But still the mother wonders why some of her daily letters don't get through. Even if a third of them were sunk her boy should have received 20 letters in the month.

Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way. If she writes 30 letters a month all those letters may have accumulated in the Port of New York or some other port waiting for a convoy outward bound. Convoys cannot leave every day or two. So all 30 letters might go into one ship and if that ship is sunk her son will have no mail for a month.

There is no solution to this problem except to keep on writing.

COLONEL HOBBY ROSE

Col. Oveta Culp Hobby of the WAACs picked up the telephone one bright morning and called Col. William Slater of the war department's public relations branch.

"Good morning, colonel," she said.

"Good morning, colonel," he replied.

"Colonel," she said, "I have been told by a large seed company that they want to name a rose after me. What would you think of my lending my name to a rose—the Hobby rose?"

That was a new one for the colonel. He chuckled, laughed it off, and suggested that horticultural problems were out of his line.

In the end, the two colonels decided the question was too thorny to handle.

RUBBER FROM OIL REFINERIES

It has now been more than a year since far-sighted Oil Co-ordinator Ickes urged that synthetic rubber be made by converting small oil refineries, closed by gasoline rationing, instead of building the monstrous new rubber factories which will not be finished until 1944 and which require millions of tons of precious steel and copper.

After long delays the first of these converted small refineries will begin making rubber on May 1. It is the Eastern States Petroleum Refinery at Houston, Texas, and the results promise to be astounding.

Not a single new steel vessel, pump, tank, or piece of piping, so badly needed for escort vessels by the navy, have been used. Furthermore, the total new material of other types amounts to only 20 per cent of the cost of the entire job.

However, this Eastern States plant will produce in 12 months enough butadiene to make 2,000,000 tires, plus ingredients for several thousand tons of high octane gasoline per day.

Also, because it was not necessary to build new walls, roofs, equipment, this converted refinery will produce butadiene at a cost equivalent to a little over $1 per tire, based on the investment.

BRITISH DEMOCRACY

A great deal is being written on the question "What are we fighting for?" but if the American public had looked in on the Servicemen's Canteen of the National Press club on a recent Saturday afternoon, they wouldn't have to be told.

One of the guests was a British naval officer, Rear Admiral S. R. Dight, famed in the British navy for his toughness in battle, and the saltiness of his sea yarns. At the Press Club canteen, he more than justified this latter reputation to American soldiers, sailors and marines who flocked around him.

However, it wasn't until the party was about to break up that the admiral came into his own.

It isn't every day that an admiral, British or American, joins a songfest with gobs and soldiers, but Admiral Dight sang popular American airs with gusto and enthusiasm for half an hour.

Finally an American sailor called out: "Let's sing this one for the admiral—For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!"

What followed was probably the lustiest rendition of that familiar tune ever heard in the nation's capital. More than 100 soldiers, sailors and marines joined in the tribute to Admiral Dight, who looked almost as happy as if he had just won a naval battle. It was one of the things we are fighting for—democracy.

Volunteers Wanted for 'Farm Aides'

Girl Groups to Supply Nation's Farmers With Harvest Help This Year

Farmers this summer may look to some fifteen thousand young girls for the harvest-time help that is normally supplied by men. Cognizant of the acute labor shortage in farming areas, Camp Fire Girls, Inc., the Girl Reserve Staff of the Y. W. C. A., and Girl Scouts, Inc., have collaborated on an instruction booklet entitled "Farm Aides: A Guide for Group Leaders."

Defined as "a girl between the ages of 14 and 18 who works on a farm, together with other girls her age, under the leadership of Camp Fire Girls, Girl Reserves, Girl Scouts, or other responsible community organization," a Farm Aide should, notwithstanding, be used only when adult labor cannot be obtained. Girls will work only after health blanks and parents' consent blanks have been procured and satisfactorily signed and after standards of health, safety, wages, hours, leadership and supervision have been met.

Living conditions for Farm Aides will be arranged according to the location of the farms. Where cities are nearby and convenient, girls may be transported from their homes in "Day Hauls." In other instances they will live in established camps, temporary camps set up by a local sponsoring committee or private organization, or in camps loaned by the government.

Based on a Farm Aide activity report from the summer of 1942, expectations for work in 1943 include berry picking; picking apples, grapes and cotton; gathering peas, beans, etc.; digging potatoes; weeding; cleaning vegetables; and haying. In communities where farm women are needed for work in the fields, girls may perform such chores as clearing stones from the fields; cleaning barns and stables; cleaning poultry houses and food bins; feeding and watering stock; cooling and handling milk; gathering eggs; sorting, cooling, candling, and packing eggs; washing separator, milk pails, and cans; clipping hedges; painting; simple repairs; and stacking wood, tile, brick, etc.

In the household girls will be trained in bed making, carrying lunches and cold drinks to the fields, caring for children, the elderly, and sick, cleaning house, washing clothes, washing and drying dishes, running errands, ironing, mending, picking over berries for canning and selling, preparing meals, sterilizing canning jars, and table setting.

For their labor Farm Aides will be paid according to the wage standards of their communities.

It is stated by the combined staffs of Camp Fire Girls, Girl Reserves, and Girl Scouts that their greatest need is for volunteer leaders of Farm Aides, since girls cannot work without leadership and supervision. Women are urged to get in touch with the local office of one of the three organizations.

Minute Make-Ups

By GABRIELLE

You clean up your house in the spring! Well, give your face a good cleaning up! Even the dry skin, on which you "never use" soap and water, reacts perfectly to a thorough cleansing with emulsified soap. Pat on a bit of rich cream afterwards. Your powder foundation will go on more smoothly with a velvety finish if your skin is perfectly cleansed. Add cream rouge for the dry skin and powder rouge for the oily skin. A minute's grooming for your eyes and lip accent—and there you are!

AMERICA IN ACTION

VICTORY IS PHOTOGENIC

Someone had hastily chalked in the word "photo" on the fuselage of a Lowry Field B-18.

Spreading its immensity along the expanse of the runway, the big ship looked the part of the deadly bomber it had once been, but to the airman it had "lost its teeth—traded 'em for eyes" . . . which meant that it no longer carried bombs, but was used exclusively as a photo trainer.

A few of the students were more awed than anxious. One of them scuffed at an oil stain on the cement with a G.I. sole.

"Helluva lotta fuss for a couple of pictures," he chanced to remark.

The prop wash from the revving cyclone engines whipped his words back to a small leather-clad officer standing nearby.

"Son," the officer said—with a trace of Kentucky in his voice, "Remember this . . . Gums win battles—pictures win wars."

It was Col. Willard R. Shephard speaking—and the colonel makes the few words he says count. As director of the Air Forces Photography school at Lowry Field in mile-high Denver, and a veteran of many years of flying photography, he knows whereof he speaks.

In this case he's dead-level right. The authorities that will always substantiate his assertion are of the coldest, grimmest, and most reliable vintage known to this war's mankind—namely the rubble of Cologne and Essen, the battered hulks of bomb-shattered Jap vessels at Coral and Midway, and the crushed terrain of what was once unoccupied France.

Pictures win wars. No longer just incidental aid to combat intelligence, aerial photography ranks perhaps as one of the most important developments of modern warfare. The split-second click of an aerial shutter may be infinitely more important to victory than weeks of incessant bombing . . . "You can't hit 'em if you can't see 'em"—is a grand old American phrase—and it's a perfect description of the value of photography in today's struggle.

In the large scale movements and concentrations of this war which consume millions of men and untold equipment, the aerial camera is the eye of the command. Air shots which are carefully scaled and assembled into a complete picture of a sector—known to the picture-takin' trade as mosaics, mete out objectives and concealments of the enemy command which the stereoscopes of photo intelligence reveal with ease.

Propellers 85 Per Cent Efficient
Old type fixed propellers used before 1934 had an average efficiency of roughly 70 per cent. This was raised to 80 per cent with a two-position propeller, to 82 per cent with a constant speed propeller, to 85 per cent with hydromatic full-feathering constant speed propellers.

1943 Requirements Demand Increase in Hardwood Lumber

URBANA, ILL. — Production of hardwood lumber will have to be stepped up if demands are to be met and the 1943 minimum requirements of six-billion board feet of hardwood lumber made available, says J. E. Davis, extension forester of the State Natural History Survey and University of Illinois college of agriculture, and chairman of the Illinois wartime timber marketing committee.

Among the important needs are the army's programs for aircraft, motor transport, ammunition and soldiers' locker boxes. The navy and maritime commission need hardwood for ships and boats, and the lend-lease program depends on American hardwoods for aircraft, shipyards, railroads and many other uses essential to victory. Boxing and crating requirements are increasing, not alone for munitions and materials of war, but for shipment of agricultural products in our farm crop goal.

It is equally important to meet our indirect war needs, Davis says. Soldiers cannot be equipped with clothing and parachutes if our textile industry is handicapped for lack of bobbins and picker sticks. Food cannot be provided for our fighting forces if hardwoods are not available to manufacture farm equipment, machinery and implements, and railroads will be unable to transport military supplies unless supplied with lumber necessary to keep them operating.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

Your unused porch can be transformed into an ideal place to spend most of your vacation. It takes little effort, and some ingenuity to fix up a porch, but it can be done and inexpensively too.

If you want privacy while you sunbathe, put up a stockade effect fence made of a number of rolling shades. These should be anchored about every three feet to sturdy poles. The resulting fence will allow the breezes to enter, but the prying eyes of your neighbors won't get a "look in."

An open patio can be screened by running a porch shade out from the eaves, over the patio, to several poles on the opposite side of the patio.

An awning ceiling, and roller shade sides make a second living room for you. It will afford you privacy, and a cool spot to loll for hours.

FUN FOR YOUR FAMILY

By MISS ABBIE CONDIT
National Recreation Association.

Next time you unearth a collection of stubby little crayon ends, restrain your normal impulse to toss them into the wastebasket. They're still useful and certainly worthy of salvage.

Seemingly useless wax crayons can be used as stain or paint for wood; they will also produce blended marble paper or multicolored pictures on cloth. One of their main advantages is the ease with which they are used by young children. The would-be artists feel more at home with crayons than with paints, mainly because they don't spill or splash.

Instead of buying a set of colored building blocks, for instance, you and your charges might make some. Lumber companies, especially sash and mill works, usually have piles of scrap ends from which you can salvage nicely shaped blocks, gratis. Or they may amiably cut other scraps down to size for your collection. Sandpaper the rough ends of these blocks and then proceed to color them with crayons.

Wood Stain.
The effect of wood stain can be obtained by rubbing over crayon markings with light machine oil.

Suppose you want to color each side of a block a different color—a solid color with no detailed pattern. First step is to outline each edge with a straight line, then fill in the center areas with random crayon markings. These need not be too close together because the oil will later blend them into one another.

Place a few drops of machine oil on an absorbent rag and rub over the crayoned surface until the stain covers the area. Use a different rag for each color. The wax of the crayon acts as a wood filler and gives a smooth, glossy finish if rubbed with a wool cloth. Other toys can be colored by young children in this same way.

Paint-Pot Artistry.
Since crayons are soluble in kerosene or turpentine, you can use them to make your own liquid paints for coloring toys and blocks. It will save you hours of diligent searching through stores, too, now that paints are increasingly difficult to get.

Pour a small quantity of kerosene or turpentine into a paint dish and shave the crayons into the solution. Experiment with a mixture of two or three colors if you're sure they won't clash. To apply the resultant paint, rub it into the sanded wood surface with a soft piece of cloth.

PETER AND JOHN LEADERS IN THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:37-41; 3:1-8; 4:13; 18:21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus.—Acts 4:13.

Does the Church have a message for our day? Sometimes one wonders a bit, but a little thought indicates that if it does not, it is not because Christianity has failed, but because Christian people have failed to declare the eternal and powerful truth of God. The primary responsibility for any such failure must rest upon the leaders of the Church.

It is instructive to see the qualities which made the leaders of the early Church effective for the Lord. In our lesson we find Peter and John doing three things.

I. Declaring God's Word (Acts 2:37-41).

Peter had just finished the first sermon preached in the Church, which was delivered at Pentecost. The declaration of God's truth in the power of the Holy Spirit brought conviction of sin. It always does, although the outward indication of its working may not be as marked as it was on that day. Three thousand souls were under conviction and asking what to do to be saved.

What an opportunity for the preacher and his fellow worker, John. How did they meet it? By faithfully declaring the need of repentance and faith, and then of fellowship with others in the Church.

One mark of a real leader for God will always be that he preaches and teaches the message of God without adulteration, without modification, and with plainness and simplicity.

The kind of leadership which is often magnified in the Church today and which is largely made up of personal magnetism, "pep" and fast talk, is not real leadership at all. Test your leaders by their faithful and intelligent declaration of God's Word.

II. Conveying God's Power (Acts 3:1-8).

"Channels only"—that is the function of the worker for Christ, the leader in His Church. As Mary Maxwell well put it:

Channels only, blessed Master, But with all Thy wondrous power Flowing through us, Thou canst use us Every day and every hour.

Silver and gold was a scarce commodity with Peter and John, as it has been with many, yes most, of God's servants through the centuries. But they did have the blessed privilege of being channels through which the healing, cleansing, redeeming power of God could flow—and that was infinitely better.

The lame man had long since given up hope of anything better than the few coins he could beg at the temple gate. He was like many in our hard and practical age who see only the values that money can give, and thus miss the real blessing of God.

God has for men today, as He had for this beggar, that which is far better than gold—deliverance from sin and liberation from the limitations of spirit which make them content with the paltry aims of men.

Peter and John were ready to be used of God because they were men who were not too busy to pray (v. 1). Knowing the compassion of God they sought out the one in need, and by faith put the unlimited power of God to work on his behalf.

God healed this man's body, but what is more important, He healed his spirit (v. 8). We need that kind of healing for the weak-kneed, lame-ankled, spirit-darkened individuals in our communities and our churches. We will have it only as our leaders are men and women who are cleansed—ready to be channels for the conveying of God's power to a needy world.

III. Doing God's Will (Acts 4:13; 18:21).

The way of life of God's leaders is not an easy one, but it is a simple one. They do God's will—nothing less, nothing more, and nothing else. What could be more delightful?

Peter and John had spoken the truth and declared salvation to be only in the name of Jesus (v. 12). Certain easy talkers within the Church who tell us that we must not be narrow but broad enough to see salvation in all religions, had better read that verse again.

Because they had preached Christ, and for no other reason, they were imprisoned, then released on condition that they would not mention Him again. What a splendid opportunity for a smooth and comfortable compromise! They could preach but just leave out Christ. Did they do it? No! (vv. 19, 20).

Obedience to God was paramount with them, and it must be with every genuinely Christian leader in the Church. Nothing else will do, nor will it have the blessing and approval of God.

ANY pretty flowered print may be combined with the side strips of sheets that are good after the center part has worn out. A good section may be cut from the center bottom too. The diagram at the left gives all the dimensions you need for making a spread for a double bed from the good parts of three old sheets put together with six-inch strips flowered cotton material of about the same weight.

Here, the figured goods is in a pink and white pattern that is especially effective with the white muslin. It is also used to trim the curtains made from old sheets. Another interesting color note is the mats of the pink and white material used for the row of framed

Cold 'Reduces' Distance

Figuring one rail to 35 feet, engineers of the Canadian Pacific railroad have estimated that the 3,363-mile "rail distance" across Canada was "reduced" two and one-quarter miles during a cold spell last winter.

There is usually one-eighth of an inch distance between rail ends. In cold weather the gap broadens to five-sixteenths of an inch, railroad officials said.

WHY PUT UP WITH CONSTIPATION?

If you suffer from that common form of constipation due to lack of "bulk" in your diet, dosing yourself with harsh cathartics and laxatives will give you only temporary relief.

However, adding KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN to your regular diet and drinking plenty of water will not only get at the cause of such constipation, but will correct it.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is a delicious breakfast cereal that, unlike medicinal purges, doesn't work chiefly on you—but works principally on the contents of your colon.

Try KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, eat as directed, see if it doesn't help you, too!

Book of Books Still Holds First Place as Best Seller

Wars, floods, fire, famine and epidemics have played hob with this old world of ours. Even human nature has undergone change under the lash of dictatorship.

But through it all the Holy Bible has steadily held its place at the top of the list of the world's books—and we mean the books that have been written ever since man first learned to make marks with meanings.

Here in America, Bible sales reached a new high in 1942. Figures are not yet available, but it appears certain that the peak sales of 1941 have been exceeded. The American Bible society distributed no less than 8,096,977 volumes in 1941. The figure seems to have been topped in 1942. The Christian Commercial Men's association (Gideons) have purchased 4,000,000 for the armed forces.

The Bible has been translated into almost every language on the face of the earth. Nine versions are printed for the Solomon Islands alone.

Seventy feet of the Bible in Hebrew comprises the text of Genesis, Exodus and part of Leviticus, written on sheep or goat skin in China about 500 years ago. This scroll belonged to a colony of Jews whose ancestors settled around Kai-Fung.

Wasted money is wasted lives. Don't waste precious lives. Every dollar you can spare should be used to buy War Bonds. Buy your ten per cent every pay day.

FRESHMEN
Quoting Mr. Roberts: Projects have changed from winter to useful summer articles.
Dwayne Leslie, Grain Bag Holder; Clare Herriman, Milk Stool; Richard Birch, Sleeve Board; Lewis Mark, Table Lamp; Jack Rollin, Trellis; Bob Benson, Shoe Scraper; Willard Timreck, Table Lamp; Bill Ogden, Table Lamp; Peter Cuniff, Table Lamp; Frank Birkenbach, Table Lamp; Dale Landon, Table Lamp; Neil Thornton, Drafting Board; Paul Ross, Garden Marker; John Carlson, Flight Trainer Plane; Jack Perior, Garden Trellis.
The shop teacher, Mr. Roberts, made rat cages for the white rats belonging to the 10th Grade Home Ec Class.

The Home Ec Girls, making their clothing projects, have some of them completed.
Ruth Ulman, Dress; Ruth Westcott, Suit; Margaret Anschuetz, Skirt; Blanche Beaubien, Skirt; Jean Mueller, Skirt; Eileen Schultz, Skirt; Dolores Judwick, Play Suit; Audrey Ogden, Play Suit; Norma Jean Hill, Blouse; Eugenia Klemisech, Blouse.

The Freshmen Class is planning to have a Freshman-Sophomore party Friday, May 7. There will be about 65 people present including the teachers. Refreshments will be served in the Home Ec room and will be played and a scavenger hunt will be held. We are anticipating a very nice time. We are writing term papers on Biology. Each person a different subject to write on.

SOPHOMORES
The Tenth Grade Ec Class is conducting a nutrition experiment with rats which they obtained from the Michigan State College. The rats have been named Minerva, Ingabora, Joey and Charley Zeke.

The idea of the experiment is to see what a diet of water, instead of milk, no vegetables and white bread substitute of whole wheat, with meat and potatoes, will show on a rat. The rats, which we have had for a week now, are responding nicely and within two or three weeks we should see a marked difference in them. Ingabora will not eat her carrots as they are being camouflaged in some other vegetable; Joey seems a rather silent rat and nervous too; Charley Zeke doesn't realize the top of the cage is so far up and keeps leaping in that direction; and Minerva is the sweetest, though not on the good behaviour list all the time.

Jeanette Montgomery and Donna Perior have the clean-up jobs, Ardith Lake and Eunice Ross feed them, Elsie Rollin and Vera Rapp weigh them, and Rhea Rempert and Betty Roach keep in time with the graphs.
In the past week they have on an average of nine grams.

HONOR ROLL
The honor roll for the past six-weeks marking period is as follows:
Eighth Grade — Marion Krumm; Tenth Grade — Don Herriman, Larry Klinger, Ardith Lake, Jeanette Montgomery, Betty Roach, Eunice Ross, Donna Moore, Carolyn Vicinus; Ninth Grade — Beverly Bigelow, Dolores Judwick; Seventh Grade — Dick Berube, Mildred Brown, Bob Malcolmson; Twelfth Grade — Ruth Giddings, Phil Ross, Helen Krumm.

SENIOR NEWS
The dates for the graduation exercises have been set and baccalaureate will be May 23 in the High School Gymnasium. Rev. Stringer will give the baccalaureate address. Commencement will be held in the Gymnasium, May 27. Charles Hamilton of Bay City will give the commencement address.
Final examinations will be on Monday and Tuesday, May 24 and 25.

THIRD AND FOURTH GRADE
Pupils in the fourth grade having an A average for the last six weeks were:
Jerry Gracik, Carolyn Galiker, James Misener and Janet Ogden; Those having a B average were: Bruce Leslie, Dorothy Freil, Edward Wells, Harry Toms, James Phillips, Delano Myles, Lyle Groff and James Smith.

Pupils in the third grade having an A average were:
Mary Malcolmson, Rosalin Gackstetter, Lillian Pfeiffer, Wayne Nelson and John McMullen.
Those having a B average were: Elaine Latham and Harry Morley.

SEVENTH GRADE
The seventh and eighth grades had a spelling match, Friday, April 30, for class meeting. The eighth grade had three more people than the seventh grade, but the seventh grade lost one to every one the eighth grade lost. The eighth grade won. The last three on the eighth grade in order were: Marion Krumm, Norma Bouchard and Clyde Anderson. The last three down on the seventh grade side were Robert Malcolmson, Don Ginderich and Allen Anschuetz.

corn through the AAA Office, which is an important item in production and meeting the goals set up for the county.

We are sorry to inform those who have not as yet received the commercial fertilizer, for which application has been made under the 1943 program, that we will not be able to furnish this material until a later date. Our supply is completely exhausted at present but will notify those who have applications in the county office immediately upon receipt of more materials. The majority of the farms have been supplied under the 1943 program.

AAA Activities
During the months of March and April, the AAA Office received a total of 892 office calls, 780 of these being farmers and 112 non-farmers were made at the county office.

These calls were made with regard to the 1943 Agricultural Conservation program, fertilizer, farm machinery, priority ratings feed wheat, selective service and other programs handled by this office. Along with the personal calls there were 1005 individual letters prepared and sent out, 410 letters received, 178 telephone calls, 911 persons contacted in the field by Community Committees. This will give an idea of what the Agricultural Adjustment Administration activities are in Iosco county.

be given as a drench, in the capsule form, or mixed with the feed. Detailed instructions may be secured at the county agent's office.

There are several permanent sheep dipping vats available in Iosco county and, at least, two portable tanks may be secured this spring, so that every flock may easily be dipped soon after shearing time. The Whittemore Smith-Hughes high school boys, under the guidance of Instructor Frank Madaski, have one of these tanks and dipped some 4,000 sheep last year. The other tank may be secured through the county agent's office. Finley suggests that a few management practices will pay dividends, and should help indirectly in the war effort.
