

Farmers Advised to Check Hog Cholera

Six Common-Sense Precautions Listed

The swine raiser's old enemy, hog cholera, is on the march again—and according to all indications it is likely to be one of the greatest threats to our 1943 war goals in pork production.

Last season nearly 5,000 cholera outbreaks were reported to government authorities, and there were probably that many more which were never officially reported. These widespread outbreaks have undoubtedly left the virus of cholera in thousands of rural areas, ready to renew its attack when it comes in contact with susceptible swine. No one can say exactly what the annual cholera loss is at this time, but it is reliably estimated to be in the neighborhood of $20,000,000. That much pork, in itself, would go a long way toward meeting our increased production goals this season, according to the American Foundation for Animal Health.

So, the first advice to farmers who are co-operating in the nation's stepped-up hog program is: "Watch out for cholera." Here are a few common-sense precautions which every farmer should take to protect his drove against this No. 1 swine killer:

1. Have the entire spring pig crop immunized against cholera by the local veterinarian, around weaning time. If this is done while pigs are small, it will take less serum and virus, conserving available supplies needed to take care of this year's larger pig crop.
2. Isolate newly purchased swine for at least two weeks before allowing them to mingle with the home drove.
3. Do not let trucks or wagons drive through your hog lots or pastures. They might carry the virus of cholera on their wheels.
4. Keep out of your neighbor's hog lot, and keep him out of yours.
5. Raise spring pigs on fresh, clean pasture, away from germ-contaminated old hog lots.
6. If any pigs show signs of sickness, have the trouble diagnosed immediately, so protective steps can be taken in time.

Experience shows that one of the principal problems in dealing with hog cholera is its similarity to various other swine diseases. Typical cholera symptoms include a high fever, partial or complete prostration, lack of appetite and listlessness.

Agriculture in Industry

By FLORENCE C. WEED

Broom Corn

Vacuum cleaners, carpet sweepers and push brooms made from tropical fibers have decreased the market for the ordinary broom made from the broomcorn plant. At the same time, lower prices do not inveigle people into buying more brooms.

Broomcorn is unique among agriculture products in that the brush is the only part of the plant now used. The stalk is left standing in the field and is plowed under the next spring. Some is used for feed but is not much liked by animals.

The plant will grow in most states but commercial production is confined to small sections in Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas, Texas and Illinois. It is a highly speculative crop because it is too costly to harvest. Any bumper crop will cause violent price fluctuations. During the last ten years, prices have ranged from $37 a ton in 1932 to $164 for a short crop in 1934. About $70 per ton is the average price to the farmer.

Scientists are trying to improve the varieties by cross breeding with other sorghums. They hope to produce a variety with more palatable seeds which livestock will eat.

It would also be advantageous to develop a new kind that will not turn red as this lowers the commercial value of the brush. Manufacturers would also like a better brush without a center stem. Farmers would like one without hair on the chaff which irritates the skin of those working with it.

To find possible markets for the brush, experiments are needed to perfect methods of using the tough fiber in weaving hats and mats.

Large Cows Give More

Large cows of any breed have the advantage over small ones in milk production. However, it should be remembered that size alone does not necessarily indicate high milk production efficiency. On the other hand, it is well known that size, within the breed, is one of the important factors in economical milk production, and it is dependent both on inheritance and environment. The way the calf is fed after birth is just as important as having proper-sized calves.

African Sergeant Major Is Permitted Four Wives

Among the troops who helped drive the Italians out of Ethiopia in 1940 were sturdy native soldiers from the African Gold Coast.

The British carefully refrain from interfering with their customs. About half of them are Moslems, others Christians, but their marriage customs are peculiarly their own.

Some of the non-Christians may have as many wives as they choose in private life. But in barracks they are "rationed" according to rank; that is, one wife for a private, two for a sergeant, and four for a sergeant-major.

The Gold Coast soldier is about average height. He goes to school for an hour a day under British tutors, and serves under British officers. He lives in cement and white plaster barracks that are pin-bright. His boots shine like glass and he is scrupulously clean.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

From 1907 to 1912, guayule rubber from Mexico represented about 7 per cent of the world's rubber supply. In 1941, it was less than 1 per cent.
More than 86,000,000 motor vehicles have been produced in the United States since 1900, with an average of five tires per vehicle. That gives you an idea of the number of tires that have been made to maintain motor transportation!
A Spanish historian back in 1519 described a ball made of the gum of a tree that grows in "hot countries." He was referring to what we now call rubber.

Writer's Daughter Sends Ship to War

The SS Joseph M. Medill as it looked just before it slid down the ways of the Wainwright yard of the J. A. Jones Construction company in Panama City, Fla., to reinforce the supply line of victory ships carrying supplies for the Allies. The vessel was sponsored by Ellen Pearson, daughter of Drew Pearson, noted Washington columnist. She is a great-granddaughter of the famous American journalist for whom the ship was named. Inset at upper left: Miss Pearson just before she christened the ship. At the ceremonies her father urged workers of the Wainwright yard to greater effort.

Mechanized War Born in U. S. A.

Huge rolling war tanks pushing through houses, knocking down fences, and filling the air with singing red hot bullets—that is a picture of the way the Axis overcame some of its weaker victims until the Allies forced a retreat with the same technique. This is motorized warfare. Many have credited the Nazis with being the first to discover mechanized war equipment. But they were only the first to use this weapon. The war tank was born more than 40 years ago at the Northwestern Military and Naval academy, Lake Geneva, Wis.

The institute was also the birthplace of the armored car and self-propelled artillery piece. Some time near the start of this century, Col. Royal P. Davidson, superintendent of the academy, designed a three-wheeled contraption which looked something like a tricycle with a wide seat. In front was a steel plate through which a Colt automatic rifle poked its nose. The wheels were turned by a one-cylinder motor. The car was later converted into a four-wheeler. After a practical demonstration in 1898, the year of the Spanish-American war, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, then the army chief of staff, recommended that five cavalry regiments be converted into an automobile corps.

In 1900 Davidson designed a steam-operated car to carry a Colt automatic gun. Two cars of this design were built that year in the manual training shops of the academy. They made several trips, one as far as Washington, D. C., and were used in cadet training and maneuvers for several years.

Two combat cars called "Balloon Destroyers," manned by academy cadets, made the 2,800-mile Glidden tour from Cincinnati to Dallas in 1910, and were among the nine out of 38 cars to finish with the original motors.

Five years later a caravan of eight academy cars made a test trip to Los Angeles without accident or mishap. This cavalcade included a wireless car, a hospital car, kitchen car, and also the first armored car ever built in this country.

Penitents Still Wearing 'Tickle Shirts' in Britain

One of Britain's oldest and strangest industries, hair shirt-making, is surviving the war. In remote convents, nuns are still engaged in making the shirts for people who wish to do their penance with realism. Monks and very pious people wear the shirts, which are uncomfortable and painful.

The full-size shirts worn in olden days have nearly disappeared, and today a scapula, or a belt in which is woven horse-hair, and in some cases human hair, is worn instead.

This form of penance dates back to the saints, but only in rare instances today do laymen adopt it. The shirts are worn only a few hours a week, and not long enough to harm the skin.

A dignified man was taking home a pair of his wife's shoes which he had got from the shoemaker after they had been repaired. No box or paper was, of course, supplied, so he, slightly embarrassed, was carrying them loose.

A man opposite him in the bus watched him closely and said as he got out: "Not going to let her gad about—eh?"

He—The artists whose paintings show that angels are all women certainly didn't know women.

She—That is perhaps true. It may be that they knew only men.

These Days

"I hear you've been doing very well at school, Alfred," said the fond grandparent. "What is your best subject—reading, writing or arithmetic?"

A look of quiet contempt crossed young Alfred's face as he replied: "Don't be so absurd, grandpa! I produced the best plan for post-war reconstruction."

The Question

Mrs. Newlywed—How do you cook pork and beans?

Mother-in-Law—Huh! How do you get 'em?

When you hear a Marine called a "Leatherneck," it has nothing to do with the epidermis of his neck. Years ago the Marine uniform was equipped with a high stiff leather collar. From that time on, "Leatherneck" has been the word for a Marine. The word for his favorite cigarette is "Camel"—the favorite cigarette also of men in the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

Is it proper to call on newcomers to the neighborhood?

Answer—It is always proper to call on these people but you have no obligation to do so.

However, the newcomer must wait until she is called upon before she makes advances to her neighbors.

There is no real need to make a formal call on your new neighbors. Just be friendly and helpful. Perhaps they would like to borrow your lawnmower or stepladder—offer it to them if you wish.

When making calls remember the Golden Rule and "do unto others as you would be done unto."

FUN FOR YOUR FAMILY

By MISS ABBIE CONDIT

Here are some more games for your Fourth of July party. When you have the youngsters busy with their party in the backyard, try these games on the grownups:

Games.

Who Was I? Pin the name of some famous Revolutionary war character to the back of each player. He is then required to guess his identity by means of conversational hints from various sources, preferably by the other players, one after another, beginning at the head of the room.

Jumbled Presidents. Here is an appropriate paper and pencil game. Distribute slips with the jumbled names already typed, and give the players seven minutes to work out the names of the Presidents, and write them opposite the correct series of scrambled letters:

1. Tahsom Fmseejro (Thomas Jefferson)
2. Fatt Warhod Llamiiw (William Howard Taft)
3. Lodean Knanrfl Soroltolve (Franklin Delano Roosevelt)
4. Nachanbu Mejjas (James Buchanan)
5. Overtho Bertreh (Herbert Hoover)
6. Odologic Vinlac (Calvin Coolidge)
7. Bannrvueb Tanmir (Martin Van Buren)
8. Vetoloser Doorethe (Theodore Roosevelt)
9. Limkeny Limwail (William McKinley)
10. Rashiron Ryne Ilalwim (William Henry Harrison)

Questions and Answers. Here's another paper and pencil game for students who pride themselves on their knowledge of historical facts. The majority of them are associated with the month of July.

1. What date does July 14 commemorate? Bastille day.
2. What famous Americans fought a duel in 1804? Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton.
3. Who was the first vice president? John Adams.
4. How many signers were there to the Declaration of Independence? 56.
5. What is the St. Swithin's Day legend? If it rains on July 15, the heavens will continue to weep for 40 consecutive days.
6. For whom was the month July named? Julius Caesar.

Flags. Two entertaining July Fourth games put the amount of the guest's information regarding the national ensign to the test. Even boys and girls of the primary grades will enjoy the drawing game on this plan.

White cards having pencils attached to them with tri-color ribbon are distributed and players are requested to draw an American flag correct in every detail.

This means that the exact position of the red and white stripes must be indicated, the number of stars correctly given and so on. It won't prove an easy matter!

A humorous version of the same frolic consists in seeing who can draw the best representation of an American flag with his eyes shut.

Need Tip-Top Pilots For P-47, a Super Plane

Aviation experts say the pilot who flies the U. S. army's new P-47 Thunderbolt into combat at 400 miles an hour must function instinctively and with split-second co-ordination.

The Republic P-47 is the army's latest high altitude heavy fighter plane. It is reported to be the deadliest weapon of its type ever developed.

A pilot of the new plane is reported able to fly in excess of 400 miles per hour, perform at 40,000 feet altitude, dive at better than 700 miles an hour and operate over a ferrying range of 1,000 miles.

War department officials describe the P-47 as carrying eight 50-caliber machine guns, firing more than 100 rounds of ammunition a second.

Air force instructors and psychologists declare the pilot of such a war plane must be alert, daring and possess co-ordination-plus.

Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of U. S. army air forces, has asked the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States to help select aviation cadets. The overseas veterans' organization claims to have already enlisted nearly 20,000 cadet candidates through special physical and mental examinations paralleling army entrance tests. Men passing the VFW examinations are recommended to selective service and army cadet boards for enlistment or voluntary induction into air force training.

MILITARY METAL MEN

Getting the planes that come limping home from raids, punctured and pierced by enemy bullets, reconditioned and back into the air again in the quickest possible time is one of the big jobs of the army air forces. The men largely responsible for accomplishing this task are the sheet metal workers and welders who are trained in the schools of the army air forces technical training command.

The aircraft metal workers and aircraft welders' schools turn out the men who do just those things under almost any conditions. As one old technical sergeant puts it, "Do the job when all you have is what you can pick up and run like hell with."

Both metal workers' and welders' courses start with the same basic instruction, in the channels through which the army maintenance work is done, the cataloging of parts, the fundamentals of mechanical drawing, and the use of basic hand tools.

When the courses separate, the metal worker branches into the elements of sheet metal work, its characteristic tools and how to use them,

The properties of the various kinds of aircraft metals, solders and the like. Simple articles like funnels and cups are hand-made from drawings, and an effort is made to create enough handwork skill so that such articles can be fabricated in an emergency at the front even with a minimum of equipment, thus insuring that general maintenance work can be readily accomplished. The splicing of cables and the technique of the many kinds of fasteners used on planes are taught, as well as the testing and repair of radiators, and the bending and connecting of metal tubing.

The aircraft welders' school follows the same general course. After the introductory basic work, and elemental training on simple welds to develop manual skill and confidence, the welder, too, turns to actual work on airplanes.

By the end of his course, the soldier-welder has not merely a basic training in the trade, including gas and electric welding with all types of modern equipment, but also specific training in the welding problems most common in keeping fighting aircraft flying.

When drilled with all holes of a grain drill open, 30 to 35 pounds of seed per acre are required. To sow this amount the ordinary grain drill should be set to sow two pecks of wheat. Some farmers sow it with every other drill hole plugged up, using only 15 pounds of seed per acre. They prefer this method when seeding alfalfa with proso.

Guiley Pond Trout
Makes Rapid Growth
A brand new addition to the list of tall fish stories is the true tale of the tagged rainbow trout that gained 16 inches in length and 54 ounces in weight in a period of 29 months.

The fish, when tagged at the Guiley pond in Isosco county, was 7½ inches long and weighed two ounces. But the astonishing trout when caught 29 months later in the AuGres river measured 23½ inches in length and weighed 56 ounces. Conservation department fish men believe that the trout after leaving the Guiley pond, had gone down into the Lake Huron, as is the custom of many of the rainbow trout of that district, and then came back up the AuGres river, where it was caught. This might perhaps explain the very unusual rate of growth of the trout, according to the department's fish experts, because it is thought that fish in general grow more rapidly in the waters of the Great Lakes than in inland lakes and streams.

Bass Season
State Conservation Officers did not expect the usual large influx of fishermen to invade the northern Michigan fishing area today (Friday) that ordinarily appear here on the opening day of bass season. Many fishermen who haven't missed an opening day since they were old enough to bait a hook will remain at their essential war jobs today. Gasoline rationing will prevent others from being on the lakes at all, or will force them to go to lakes nearer home. For this reason, Conservation officers are anticipating an unusually large concentration of fishermen on the lakes in the southern part of the state, near the large population centers.

The Conservation department reports that so far this season on the designated pike lakes, which have been open to restricted fishing since May 15, the usual week end concentration of fishermen has not been evident. Factory swing-shifts and staggered work schedules have produced a situation where a few fishermen are on the lakes every day in the week instead of the former hordes that crowded the lakes on every spring and summer week end.

Double Seater
A double seater makes anyone think of a runabout or a gent who has spent his life eating not wisely but too well. Instead, it's a particular kind of a job at a sewing machine, just as a trolley operator doesn't mean a street car motor man but a lad who does the finishing and icing in a bakery.

"Cake Eating Lady"
In the seventeenth century, the "cake eating lady" was a familiar figure of English fairs. One such performer ate 12 pounds of cake in less than 30 minutes of each of six daily performances.
