In Memoriam

In loving memory of Katherine Caroline Rahl who passed away one year ago, July 3, 1942.

We are longing, longing
For the hand that held our own,
Guided all our tiny footsteps,
Though our childhood days are Gone.

The hand that smoothed our pillow
And eased our brows at night,
The touch that banished sorrow,
Brought us comfort, peace and Light.

We are longing, longing
For that mother's love and care,
For the words that stopped all Grieving,
And the smile so sweet and rare.
For the heart that knew no byways
Save to love's unstinted store,
And as years press on, Dear Mother,
We are longing more and more.
The Husband, Children and Grand-children.

'A' GAS BOOK EXPIRATION DATE JULY 21

Application Blanks for New Books at Gas Stations

Application blanks for renewing basic gasoline rations are now available at most gasoline filling stations and other centrally located places and should be picked up by motorists and motorcycle owners as soon as possible, urges the Iosco county rationing board.

The forms must be filled out and sent to the rationing board in order to get the new "A" and "D" coupon books to take the place of present ones which expire on July 21. To save the public time and trouble, arrangements have been completed to handle the renewals by mail, a member of the board said today.

Early applicants will assure themselves of getting their new books before their present ones expire. Mail renewals were planned to make the task of getting new coupon books as easy as possible. There will be no schoolhouse registration this time, and car owners will not be required to come to the ration board to get their ration books. The books will be mailed back.

Autoists should co-operate by not waiting until the last minute to file their applications. This would mean delay and inconvenience to everyone concerned.

Motorists were warned today by the rationing division of the Saginaw OPA district office that all gasoline ration book covers and stubs must be saved for use in making application for further rations.

Retention of the basic "A" ration book covers was stressed because these must be produced, and signed by the holder, along with the tire inspection record, before a new ration book may be issued.

Those who already have thrown away their empty book covers and stubs probably will find themselves inconvenienced and may experience some delay while War Price and Rationing Board files are scanned for their original applications.

Mrs. Hanson Entertains Irene Rebekah Officers

Mrs. Eugene Hanson of East Tawas entertained the officers of Irene Rebekah lodge at a dinner at her home, Wednesday evening.

The dinner table was most attractive with its center piece—a tall bouquet of garden flowers, surrounded by a wreath of rose colored peonies from which extended colored pencils. Each guest was requested to remove a pencil as a souvenir, and found that it brought with it a lovely corsage, which had been concealed within the wreath. Novel place cards, each bearing a clever quotation, marked the places of the 16 officer-guests who were present.

Officers of Irene Rebekah Lodge are serving a six o'clock dinner at the hall Wednesday evening. All members are invited. The meeting Wednesday evening concludes their activities until the first Wednesday in September.

Special War Stamp Sale To Build Shangri-La

In conjunction with 5,000,000 retail sales people, motion picture employees and the newspaper boys throughout the nation, the local Family Theatre will participate in a July War Stamp Sale of unprecedented magnitude to build a mystery ship—the "Shangri-La."

131,669,275 Americans—every man, woman and child in the U. S.—will be asked to buy at least $1.00 in War Stamps to help build the aircraft carrier "Shangri-La" to re-bomb Tokyo and avenge the execution of Jimmy Doolittle's flyers—and save countless other men from the tortures of barbarism. This goal is in excess of the regular July War Bond quota.

J. M. Thomsen, manager of the Family Theatre, in announcing the theatre's participation in the "Shangri-La" campaign, also mentioned that a Victory Girl would be in the theatre lobby every night to assist in the sale of War Stamps.

Each War Stamp purchase of at least $1.00 will entitle the purchaser to affix his name to the "Shangri-La" Roster of Patriotic Americans which will be displayed in the lobby continuously throughout the drive.

CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes on an assignment to Puerto Rico where Pete Wilcox, a reporter on her father's paper, is stationed as a U. S. Army intelligence officer. On the boat she meets a young Puerto Rican, Miguel Valera, and an engineer named Richard Taussig, of whom she is immediately suspicious in spite of the fact that he looks like a typical tourist. She does not know that he is, in fact, a German agent ordered to destroy Puerto Rico's water supply. Anne knows something is wrong but doesn't want Taussig to know she suspects him. As the boat docks she and Miguel Valera are at the rail together.

CHAPTER II

She looked down again at the people on the dock. A girl was standing there gazing up along the crowded ship's rail. She was so lovely that Anne's heart sank another notch in spite of herself. She was slim and not very tall, with warm peach-colored skin and dark sparkling eyes and tawny chestnut hair. Behind her was an older man, with the same arresting quality the girl had, except that hers was an almost breath-taking loveliness and his was a rugged and aristocratic dignity that seemed to hold him completely apart from the crowd around him.

Suddenly both faces broke into an eager smile. The old man raised his hat, the girl waved her hand. Anne glanced around. Miguel Valera was waving back to them, his face lighted with pleasure.

"That's my father," he said. Anne had noticed before the pride and warmth that came into his voice when he'd spoken his father's name. She could understand it now—and yet for some reason it made him suddenly remote from her, as if the man on the dock had moved in between them there at the rail.

"—And that's my cousin Graciela. She and her father live with us. Her mother was killed in Spain in the civil war."

"She's lovely, isn't she?" Anne said.

Anne caught a final glimpse of Graciela's face as they followed the crowd below. "He doesn't know she's in love with him," she thought. "Or he doesn't care."

The reflection she caught of herself in the mirror on the landing of the stairs had a new and sudden radiance, and the touch of his guiding hand on the bare skin of her arm had a kind of magic she hadn't noticed before.

"I'm sorry the trip is over, really," she said.

"I'm glad you're going to be in San Juan. I hope you'll let me show you around."

Anne came to a dead stop. At the bottom of the stairs, coming out of the purser's office with two of the ship's officers behind him, was Captain Peter Wilcox of the United States Army. He was in tan tropical gabardine, with a tan sun helmet under his arm and an inlaid mahogany swagger stick in his hand. For an instant he looked so different she wasn't sure if it was really he; he was older and harder and more authoritative.

Then he grinned as he used to do. "Hello, Annie, I wondered if there was another Anne Heywood in this part of the world."

"Oh, Pete—it's swell to see you!" She ran down the last steps. It was swell to see him. She would have kissed him. For an instant she quite forgot Miguel Valera. But he held out his hands, so that was that. She turned back. "—Have you two met? This is Mr. Valera . . . Captain Wilcox."

The two men shook hands. Something curious seemed to happen to the atmosphere all of a sudden. It was like a cloud crossing the sun.

"If you'll get your stuff together, Anne," Pete said, "I'll be along and help you get it to your hotel."

He grinned again. "—If you'd like me to, that is."

The passengers from the ship had already registered. The clerk turned to Anne.

"Are you Miss Heywood? It's a good thing you made a reservation. It's the last room in the house. A gentleman was just asking for you. One of the passengers."

She took up the pen, wrote "Miss Anne—" and stopped. Her eyes were fastened on the top card in the stack the clerk was holding. On it was a small, curiously cramped signature: "Mr. Richard Taussig, New York City."

"You are in Room 110, Miss Heywood," the clerk said. "It's a corner room on the ocean side."

Her eyes were still fastened on the card in his hand. The room number on it was 108. She wrote, "—Heywood, Huntington, Long Island, New York," put the pen down and turned around.

Pete was waiting, looking at her. He took her arm. "—What's the matter?"

"Nothing," she said quickly. Then she laughed. "I don't know what's got into me all of a sudden. I'm just stupid, I guess."

He gripped her arm a little tighter. She looked up at him with warm laughing eyes. The idea that Mr. Richard Taussig could exude any kind of pitch in room 108 that could seep through and defile anything of hers in room 110 seemed suddenly too fantastic to her to worry about.

"I'm glad I'm here," she said softly.

"So am I," Pete said. "Now I'd like to think you came down because you missed having me under foot, but I'm still relatively sane. And you don't look as if the doctor ordered a rest. What about coming clean, Miss Heywood?"

Anne crossed the patio and sat down on the balustrade. "I'm just down for fun," she said.

He looked at her a moment. "Did you meet old Don Alvaro?" he asked.

She looked blank. "The father of the guy you were with on the ship?"

"You mean Miguel Valera?"

"I mean his father."

"Yes. I met him—while I was sitting on my trunk waiting for you. What were you doing?"

"Checking up on the passenger list."

"I keep forgetting you're in Military Intelligence," Anne said. "Do you catch spies, or what?"

He grinned. "Public relations is all I do. There aren't any spies down here, Miss Heywood. Everything's an open book. If you want a scale map of the island and all its fortifications, all you do is send ten cents in stamps to General Headquarters."

He got up. "I've got to push along. What about lunch? Twelve o'clock, Officers Club at El Morro. Any taxi driver'll get you there."

Anne nodded. Pete Wilcox waited on the gallery until he heard the door trundle shut and the elevator begin its wheezing progress upward. He tossed his cigarette into the jar of white sand by the pillar and came back into the lobby. It was empty except for a man sitting on a wicker sofa between the center arches, reading a Spanish newspaper.

Pete went over to the desk. The clerk pushed the pile of registration cards across to him. Anne's was on top, under it Mr. Richard Taussig's. Pete glanced through the rest of them quickly and handed them back to the clerk. He pushed Taussig's across the desk.

"Phone messages and callers," he said.

The clerk nodded. "And Miss Heywood would like a room on the second floor as soon as it's possible."

The clerk nodded again. The man on the wicker sofa folded his newspaper and strolled out into the gallery.

"One on eight," Pete said as he passed him. He would have liked to add "One ten," but Military Intelligence, once in motion, was like the mills of the gods, and he didn't want Anne Heywood ground exceedingly small. Heaven only knew what she'd get into before she got out.

He switched on the ignition. Something else was worrying him too, an old story he'd picked up a long time ago when he was covering Spanish speakasies. Why Don Alvaro's name stuck in his memory he didn't know, except that names and disjointed facts had a way of sticking there and were part of his luck as a newspaperman. He shrugged his shoulders. The whole thing was fantastic, probably all a speakeasy pipe-dream. The idea that Don Alvaro, or any man alive today, knew the Conquistadores' secret of San Juan's water supply, and could choke off El Morro and her sister fortress San Cristobal, was absolutely cockeyed. If he took a story of the sort to G 2 they'd have him in the nearest insane asylum in nothing flat. The water supply was certainly one of the chief strategic problems of the Island, but it was a problem in engineering, and he wasn't going to believe that the old Conquistadores had left a secret the Army engineers couldn't figure out.

He stopped abruptly as something else flashed into his mind. It was an order he'd seen a couple of weeks before, from the War Department in Washington, cancelling Miguel Valera's previous order to report for active service with the 65th Infantry at Fort Buchanan. That was all there was to it. And now he was here.

"I wonder what the hell . . ." Pete thought as he returned the sentry's salute and hurried inside.

Lieutenant Colonel Thomas J. Fletcher looked up from his desk with a slight frown. He liked Puerto Rico and he liked Pete, but he had been Assistant Chief of Staff, G 2, for only a couple of weeks, and his predecessor Colonel Mayhew liked neither Pete nor Puerto Rico.

And he had warned Colonel Fletcher. "They're all alike. They think the Army is the city desk of a yellow journal. You've got to watch them closer than you do the damn natives. They go off half-cocked. Look out for what they call their private sources of information."

It was not only his predecessor's warning that disturbed Colonel Fletcher at the moment. It was the letter on the desk in front of him. Fortunately it had come in time. If it had come a little later there might have been hell to pay in Washington, and Colonel Fletcher might have found himself back in the States teaching R. O. T. C. boys squads right.

He returned Pete's salute. "Taussig is in room 108 at the Granada, sir," Pete said. He remembered the "sir" just in time.

"You can call it off, Captain Wilcox."

Fletcher spoke evenly and quietly. It was his own fault, of course. He should have taken Mayhew's advice instead of the offence that Wilcox really had something.

"You may read this."

He handed Pete the letter. "Taussig is not only a substantial citizen—he has a very powerful political sponsor."

The letter was to Major-General Dutton, the Commanding Officer of the Puerto Rican Department. The letterhead and the signature belonged to a United States Senator whose relations with the Press had not always been free of virulent name-calling.

"My dear General," it read. "It is a very great pleasure for me to take this opportunity to commend my old friend Mr. Richard Taussig to your kind attention. Mr. Taussig is a sanitary engineer of international repute. I shall regard any courtesy you can show him as a personal favor. I believe he is especially interested in the more domestic arrangements of the military establishment, and I hope you will see your way clear to allowing him as much freedom for investigation as is consistent with the best interests of all concerned. I am looking forward to his unbiased report on the use we are making of the vast funds pouring into our Caribbean bases. With warm personal regards, I am, very sincerely yours . . ."

Across the bottom the General's aide had scribbled: "—Is dinner enough? Have arranged tour. How long is he staying?"

Pete handed the letter back. "That's all, Captain. And by the way," Colonel Fletcher smiled faintly. "Are you sure this wasn't camouflage? When you want to meet a young lady it's best to just say so, you know. That's all."

Pete sat for a moment at his desk. "If I were Lindbergh, I could resign," he thought sardonically. He unlocked a drawer and took a grimy sheet of cheap hotel writing paper out of it.

"Dear Mr. Wilcox," it began. "I take my pen in hand to say if you can take this as strictly private and personal between you and I, go ahead. If you got to turn it in to them brass hats you're mixed up with, stick a match to it. I don't want the joint wrecked any more I want to wake up in the morgue via the East River as they say. You and me are on the level. A so-and-so named Taussig is headed your way. Something's screwy, I don't know what. Two guys spilled it at the bar Tuesday night, and it's straight dope.—How's the black-eyed beauties down your way? Signed,—F. A. Schneider."

The signature was elaborate and flowing, practiced for state occasions, like the signing of liquor receipts. Under it was written "Gus."

Pete Wilcox sat looking down at his hot tip, from the keeper of one of the most disreputable waterfront dives in Hoboken. It wasn't the first one he'd got. Not one of the first he'd got. The F. B. I. had profited a number of times and no questions asked.

He shrugged. "The Army," he thought, "is different. But I thought Fletcher was different too. I guess they grow brass hats young."

He put the letter back in the drawer. After all, it was just Gus' word against a guy who evidently had friends in high places. But if Gus had gone to the length of writing a letter . . .

"I guess I've stuck my neck out enough," he thought sardonically. What was the Army formula? Keep your mouth shut, your bowels open and never volunteer. There was something in it.

"I'd better call off the pack before they put me in the guardhouse," he thought. He picked up the phone and rang the Granada Hotel.

Bridesmaids' Dresses Double As Party Frocks for Summer

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

LUXURY on a wartime budget—in a beautiful jiffy filet crochet cloth or scarf. Though it's so easy to do, yet it adds richness to table or buffet. Make jiffy-crochet articles.

ALL signs point to this summer as a record breaker so far as the number of weddings that will take place. Just because a wedding needs must be a hurry-up furlough affair, as so many weddings are during this stressful war period, does not mean that the bride and her attendants have to forego the dream-come-true joys of a memorable scene that will ever be forgettably lovely.

The fact of a war on does mean, however, that both the bride and those who will add to the picture wedding scene are selecting their gowns with a new thoughtfulness, realizing as they do that economy in dress, together with wise economy in buying, are contributing factors toward winning this war. Thus it is that American girls consider it a patriotic gesture to choose gowns, whether they be bride or bridesmaid, that will not only grace the wedding scene with loveliness, but all the summer through will serve beautifully as party-going frocks.

As to the illustration herewith it cannot be said of it, "here comes the bride" for this leading lady is not in the picture, since the purpose at this time is to portray the maid of honor (to the left) and one of the bevy of bridesmaids that will attend her majesty, wearing dresses which they have selected with the thought in mind of having them double as gala and dance frocks all the summer through.

Each of these lovely gowns is a New York creation that stresses simplicity as a badge of ultra smartness. Also emphasis is placed on the beauty of ethereal sheer white for the summer wedding. The maid of honor shows a fondness for lace such as is used for the bodice top with its flattering and fashionable low-cut square neck which is prettily sleeved with the same lace.

Note also the wide band of matching lace that is inserted at the top of the deep flounce which gives bouffancy to the skirt of diaphanous starched chiffon.

The bridesmaid also wears a deep flounced frock, as you see posed to the right. The material is a sheerest of sheer organza that is exquisitely shadow patterned in a most delicately traced all-over scroll pattern—white on white. It is a dress that any maiden with an eye for the beautiful will love to wear to parties later on. The ribbon-run lace beading is a quaint accent which fashion has revived this season all through the summer dress program.

As to the bride, she will also be gowned most fascinatingly in sheerest white. It may be pre-supposed to be a veritable froth of white marquisette, for these filmy whites are first choice for brides that are not wearing traditional satin. Vision it, if you will, as frilled, and frilled about the bodice top and down the front and all around the train with pleatings of self-marquisette, for the frillier and frothier the better, if the gowns be of airy-fairy materials of ethereal sheerness.

An idea that bridesmaids-to-be who aspire to doing the unusual will welcome, is that of styling simple white full-skirted frocks with inset apron effects that come up into a bib on the bodice, and the entire contour outlined with tiny lace frills and cross-crossed through the apron part with lovely matching Val insertion. Apron strings of self material tie in a sprightly bow at the waist in the back, the sash ends lavished with lace frills and insertion. Gowns of white organza would be charming styled in this manner, for this pretty sheer, though inexpensive, is being used for some of the choicest wedding picture gowns brought out this season.

Matching Mantilla

This beautiful sheer lace and organdy mantilla gown is reminiscent of old Spain, with its rendezvous on balconies, amid roses, while troubadours serenaded. Black Chantilly lace forms the long-torso upper part in an artfully designed silhouette. The black of the lace is dramatically contrasted by a white organdy skirt that flares from the crinoline underskirt. The piece de-resistance is the matching lace mantilla, this being a new gesture that is taking the fashion world by storm. Even colorful print dresses are flaunting matching mantillas, which are worn either over the head or about the shoulders.

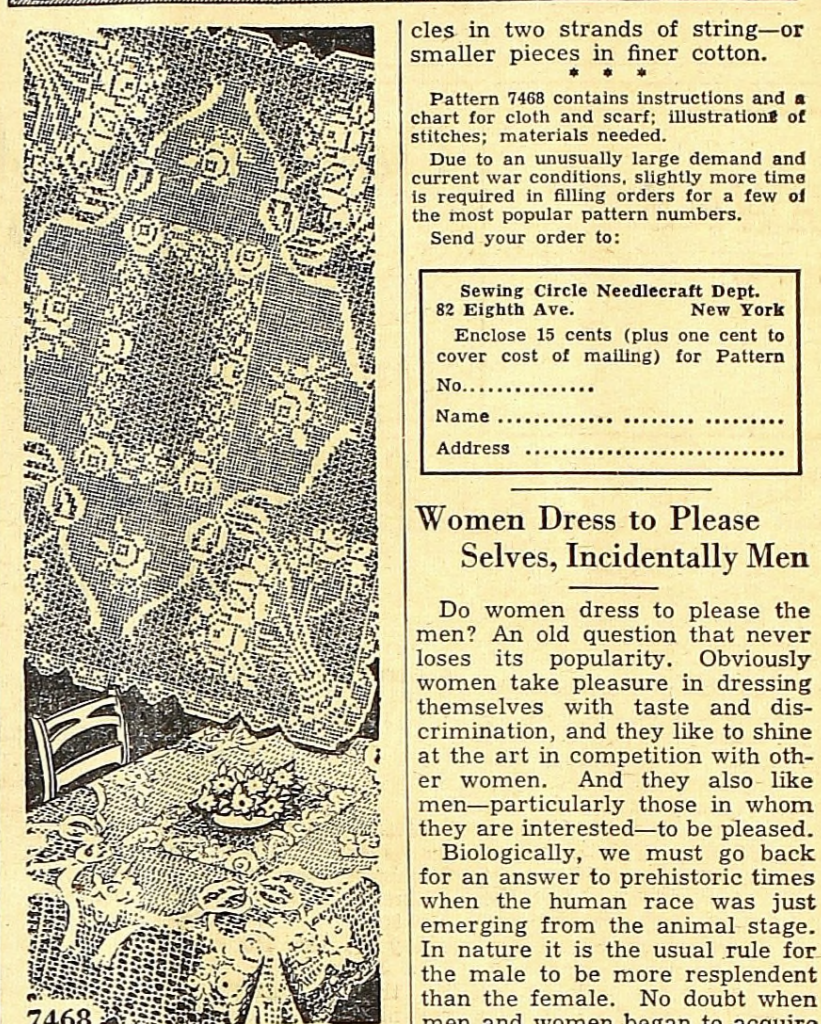

Red hats, red bags and gloves, and most newswy of all, red shoes give cheerful accent to the fashion scene. It seems women are loathe to give up the idea of red for accessories, in that they have proved to their satisfaction that of all the colors that flatter there are none that so definitely make the grade as do becoming red tones.

Beloved by teen-agers are such gadgets and accessories as the felt hat with giddy cutout felt flowers, teamed with a matching felt drawing bag. The new soldier and pig-tail pins are the hobby of young girls, at the moment. They love hair pretties in the way of bows, flowers, and even tiny birds and butterflies.

Household Hints

A piece of wax tied in a rag, and rubbed over the hot iron before ironing, will help it to run along smoothly, and prevent its sticking.

Frozen meats should not be thawed before cooking. Soaking them to hasten defrosting impairs the flavor.

Mayonnaise used on sandwiches should be thick enough to prevent its running out at the sides.

Wood siding from which moisture has not been sufficiently removed may be finished with semi-transparent shingle stain instead of a solid film of paint.

For a spring dessert how about rhubarb shortcake? Serve rosy rhubarb sauce over slightly hot biscuits made with a bit of sugar added to flour.

When stubborn particles of meat and vegetables stick to the inside of dry bread through the grinder. The bread acts as a chaser, and saves work in the dishpan.

Rub bacon fat over the skins of potatoes before they are put into the oven to bake. Then the skins will not crumble or break, and will have a delicious flavor. Eat the skins with the potatoes.

Cut two large apples and one lemon into slices without removing the peel. Add three ounces of sugar and one or two cloves. Pour over this a quart of boiling water, cover closely, and leave until cold.

Odors and Bacteria

Numerous wholesome odors that emanate from various substances or permeate the air of large areas are produced by the present or past action of bacteria, says Collier's. Among them are the bouquet of wines, the fragrances of perfumes and the flavors of fine tobacco, butter and cheeses; also the smells of the sea beach, a wood in winter, a newly tilled field and the earth after a rain.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A chain of rest stations is rising across northern Brazil along the route of workers trekking into the Amazon Basin gateway of Belem to increase collection of wild rubber. They provide medical aid and other human comforts to the 50,000 additional workers being recruited for the Amazon rubber forces.

The rubber normally used in one month's manufacture of baby pants can make 2800 rubber lifeboats for ocean-going planes.

A check of 7,200 farm-owned trucks showed that only 25 per cent of the tires on them were good; 54 per cent were fair; and 21 per cent were in poor condition.

Fight the Forgery Racket!

By FRANK J. WILSON
Chief, United States Secret Service

HERE we have in brief form the recommendations of the United States Secret Service to aid in fighting the forgery racket:

If you receive checks from the government:

1. Put a good lock on your mail box. Have your name printed clearly on the box.
2. Be at home, or have some member of the family at home, when government checks are due to be delivered.
3. Do not endorse your check until you are in the presence of the person you will ask to cash it.

If you cash government checks for customers:

1. Before you accept any government check, ask yourself this question: "If this check is returned because of a forged endorsement, can I locate the forger and recover my loss?"
2. When strangers ask you to cash government checks, insist that they properly identify themselves as rightful owners of the checks.
3. Insist that all government checks be endorsed in your presence, even if they have already been endorsed when presented.
4. Have checks initialed by the person who pays out money for them. Try to write on the check a brief description of the person presenting it.
5. Know your endorsers!

ON THE HOME FRONT

MANY an American of pioneer background can remember when all the floors in the house except the parlor were covered with woven rag rugs and carpets. Today the local weaver with a rug loom is flourishing in many communities.

The modern weaver has an assortment of colors in warp and filler that may be used with the rags that you have prepared in the manner shown here. About one and three quarter pounds of sewn rags will be required for a square yard of carpet. Rugs may be either cotton or wool but do not use both in the same rug. The rags should be soft and clean and fibers or uneven finishes should be removed. Dye white rags the colors you wish to predominate.

NOTE—It is possible to make a great variety of floor coverings from odds and ends of things on hand. Books 9 and 10 of the series offered with these articles contain fascinating new designs for hooked and braided rugs. In Book 7 there is a rug made from old felt hats and school pennants. Money Divorce Cause

Money, or rather the lack of it, is the most common cause of marital troubles, according to Circuit Judge Paul D. Barnes of Miami, and he should know, for last year he handled 4,000 divorce cases. "Willingness to live within income is the most important thing I can say to young married couples," Judge Barnes said. "The tendency to exceed income seems to be a fashion of the times, but it's probably the most disastrous habit married couples can fall into."

Listen to Morgenthau-Marshall Tell Power of Payroll Savings!

Washington, D. C.—How important is the average worker's war bond purchases out of his pay every payday in the grand strategy of the Allied High Command? Does the extent of his or her War Bond allotment have a part in determining when, where and the strength of our military blows?

George C. Marshall

The James Sayles building at East Tawas is being remodeled and re-decorated.

Any worker listening in on a recent conversation between General George C. Marshall, President Roosevelt's Chief of Staff, and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., learned the answers to these questions.

Said General Marshall: "Mr. Secretary, I want you to answer a question for me and to answer it with complete frankness. Can we military leaders plan to fight this war in an orderly way—in the surest and most effective manner—or must we take extraordinary risks for fear the money will not hold out?"

Replied Secretary Morgenthau: "General, the American public will take care of that. What they have done in the Second War Loan drive—the money they have produced and the spirit they have shown—is proof enough for me that they will not let our fighters suffer from lack of support until we achieve complete victory, no matter how long that may be nor how much it may cost."

Up your War Bond allotment out of your wages today. Figure it out for yourself how much above 10 per cent it should be.

Augusta

Augusta Travers—you know, the one who runs the little hat shop down on Main Street—she's always been dead set against gambling in any form. Never will forget when I was a kid and she found little Hammy, her youngest nephew, playing marbles for keeps out back of the shop. Took it on herself to give him a whaling and point out the evils of gambling. She's a strict woman, Augusta, real strict. Good as gold, of course. But mighty set against the lighter things of life.

Well, so you could have knocked us all over with a feather when Augusta started her gambling campaign for War Bonds and Stamps, right out in the window of her shop. First she got hold of the photographs of every boy here in town who's joined up, and pasted them on a big board in the window, with little American flags at the corners. Half the town was down there watching her do it. She left the middle empty. Then she brought out a placard she'd had printed up and put it in the middle, and this is what it said: "These are the Local Boys who have enlisted in America's War—They are betting that you are buying War Bonds and Stamps—Hitler and the Japs are betting you aren't—Place your bets inside."

My wife couldn't wait to get herself down there and inside Augusta's shop to see what in the wide world had happened to her, turning right around about gambling like that. You know my wife. She kind of likes to talk. She went right up to Augusta and said, "Augusta Travers, seems like something's come over you. Why, I never thought I'd see you running a gambling campaign in your own shop."

Mean to tell me it's a gamble whether this country buys enough bonds to win this war?" Augusta asked.

I forgot to say. Wasn't just a hat my wife brought home. Was a hat and a $25 bond.

(Story from an actual report in the files of the Treasury Department.) Remember, it takes both taxes and War Bonds (and more War Bonds) to run the War and combat inflation!

Urge to Kick Cop

Her explanation for such quaint conduct was simple. "All my life," she told the judge, "I've wanted to 'kick a cop.'"

Torpedo Junction

"Awash amidst!" "Sparks," the radio operator, has sent his final message from another U-boat victim. The lifeboats are pulling away from the doomed vessel as millions of dollars' worth of food, supplies and munitions settle to the ocean bottom in another allied catastrophe in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Millions of dollars' worth of material that was paid for by the dollars we saved and invested in War Bonds. Thousands of man hours have been lost.

We can have but one answer: work harder, save more and invest more frequently in War Bonds.

Illuminated Aisles

Going into the gloom of dark cinema houses, people are likely to stumble, bump into others. Users with flashlights are nuisances; small lamps placed near the aisle floors illuminate only small areas. Such rugs glow softly all over, interfere with nothing on the screen.

the City of Tawas City in said County, on the 4th day of June, 1943.
Present: Hon. Herman Dehnke,
Circuit Judge.
Application under the provisions mile of Crosby Road, a county road located on the North and South quarter Line of Section 33, Township

21 North, Range 8 East, in said Township of Sherman for the reason that it is not practical and costs would be excessive to maintain a permanent road on such location due to erosion of the road bed from the flow of water in the West Branch of the AuGres River along which said highway is located, as in said application set forth, and for location of a road on the North and East sides of the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of said Section 33.

It is ordered that the 17th day of July, 1943, at the court room in the Court House in the City of Tawas City in Iosco County, Michigan, at day be and is hereby fixed as the plication;

It is further ordered that notice

day of hearing.

Wells of Iraq

wells of Iraq to the Palestine shore of the Mediterranean carries an es-

Battle Wagons
When Japan attacked at Pearl Harbor we had 17 battleships in service and 15 building. We were making preparations but the war did not wait. These 32 battle wagons cost American taxpayers three billion dollars for a two ocean navy. The war seemed far away then.

Now fifty million Americans have a personal stake in this war. It has been brought home to them. That's why everyone is increasing purchases of War Bonds.

Dunking Old Idea
Dunking in your "bunchum" is a custom as ancient as Arabia. It was there where the world's first cup of coffee was made from some strange, bright red berries the Ara-bians called "bunn". The beverage became "bunchum" and was thick enough to scoop out of the bowl with bits of food. Result: Introduction of dunking to the world!

Tung Oil From China
U. S. imports of tung oil from China have been seriously curtailed by the war. The oil is used as a waterproofing and drying agent in paints and varnishes.

Hottest Man-Made Flame
The hottest man-made flame in existence is found in the nitrogen electric arc and reaches a temperature of 18,300 degrees F., says Collier's.
The heat is developed by the separation and recombination of the two atoms of each molecule of nitrogen as the gas flows through the arc at a pressure of 14,000 pounds per square inch.

Origin of 'Vaudeville'
The word "vaudeville" is derived from the gay French songs called
"Voix-de-Ville"—voices of the city —which originated in Normandy, in the valley of the Vire (Vaux de Vire).

Salt Butter as Spread

use it as a spread for bread in 1692.

WATCHERS OF THE SKY
Night and day, at lonely outposts in northern Michigan, thousands of air spotters voluntarily undergo hardship and loss of sleep to protect our industrial areas from bombing raids.
They rarely get into the headlines. Often they watch patiently through the hours without seeing or hearing a plane. But the duty they so faithfully perform is vital. In case of air attack it will be their trained eyes and ears that detect the approach of Axis bombers.
A telephone stands ready in every spotter's post. With the words "Army Flash" the spotter gets an immediate connection with the nearest army information center. And if the aircraft he reports cannot be identified as friendly, fighter planes roar into the air at once to intercept the enemy. At the same time all Civilian Defense centers in the threatened area are warned by telephone to prepare for a raid.
Citizens of Michigan who sleep soundly in their beds at home owe a debt of gratitude to the Aircraft Warning Service.

NEW FAR EASTERN DRIVE

It now seems certain that we will concentrate on the Far East to a much greater degree than most people expected.

U. S. naval officials had been privately skeptical of British co-operation in the Far East and never expected Churchill to come through. However, he and Roosevelt both agreed that the time had arrived for vigorous operations to stop the Japs before they dug in so deeply on the Pacific islands that it would take years to dislodge them.

The British have now given definite commitments regarding certain operations. This is important. It so happens that the British do not promise easily. Our own top strategists are inclined to make promises quickly, but sometimes have to explain them away when conditions change and it is obvious they cannot be kept. But the British, though awfully hard to pin down, have absolutely kept their agreements when once made.

What these commitments are remain a military secret. However, certain moves which are known to all, including the Japs, should give Tokyo plenty to worry about. For it is no accident that Admiral Nimitz, commander in the Pacific, has been recalled for conferences; or that the insatiable Australian prime minister has now said he was satisfied; or that Attu was taken.

All these straws in the wind point to hitting Japan from many different directions—Alaska, Australia, Burma and the Central Pacific.

This offensive in the Far East may be one substitute for a second front in western Europe. It may not knock Hitler out of the war quite so soon, but it may make the two wars—in Europe and Asia—finish at more nearly the same time.

SAVING UNCLE SAM'S SHEKELS
Here is a simple suggestion which would save the government millions: As the law stands, a man coming into the government cannot be hired for the figure of $5,000 or $6,000, but must get one or another of the fixed government ratings, such as $4,600 or $5,600 or $6,500.

Many a man has come to Washington from the business world in the last few years, willing to work for $5,000. But there is no government rating at that figure, so he is offered $4,600, and if he won't take that, he must be paid $5,600.

Likewise, if he is a $7,000 man, willing to work for that figure but not for less, he must be given $8,000. Literally hundreds of men have come into the War Production at salaries $500 or $1,000 more than they would have accepted, simply because the Reclassification Act of 1923 establishes the figures of $4,600, $5,600 and $6,500 with no elasticity.

The same waste results in the field of promotion. To keep good men these days, government agencies are obliged to give promotions without waiting for the 2 1/2 year period required by Civil Service.

So the agencies resort to evasion. They reclassify the employe by writing up a new job for him at a higher salary level. He might be satisfied with a $500 raise, but reclassification means that he gets at least $900 more, or even $1,500 more.

A simple change in the law would save hundreds of dollars in thousands of cases.

AMERICAN TAXI-DRIVERS
Some political prognosticators say you can predict the outcome of U. S. elections by the reaction of taxi-drivers. However, the character of taxi-drivers may go even further and be an index of the general honesty and temperament of the American people.

OWT's Katherine C. Blackburn struck a hopping mad taxi-driver in New York the other day. He had just found $1,200 in war savings stamps which somebody had left in his cab. When he traced the "fare" and returned the stamps, all he got was congratulations on his honesty and a 25-cent tip.

"I'll never be honest again!" he declared grimly.

This brought him and Miss Blackburn to the Ritz Carlton. She got out, paid her fare, and tripped into the hotel. While she was still in the lobby, somebody tapped her on the elbow.

"Excuse me, miss," said a voice, "but you left your furs in my taxi!"

On the average of once a day, somebody with a screw loose tries to see Secretary of State Hull. One such, called to explain to Hull his method of stopping torpedoes. He was stopped by a secretary.

COLLEGES AND CONGRESSMEN
Harvard, Yale and Princeton may be well represented in the state department, but when it comes to congress, a grab-bag selection of names turns up such colleges as John Carroll university (Congressman Michael A. Feighan of Ohio) . . . Baldwin Wallace college (Congressman Henderson H. Carson of Ohio) . . . Creighton university (Congressman Frank A. Barrett of Wyoming) . . . Marshall college (Congressman Hubert S. Ellis of West Virginia).

New Yorkers Are Talking About:

Richard Tregaskis, INS correspondent and author of the click, "Guadalcanal Diary," is due back soon—with a new manuscript. His royalties on "Canal" are over $60,000 . . . A few years ago he was peddling sewing machines during a Summer vacation to pay the next year's tuition at Harvard . . . Herbert Clyde Lewis was a rewrite man over at the Herald Trib not many weeks ago. One night he did a piece for the mags, but all spurned it . . . Except Whit Burnett at Story Magazine . . . Paid the top price, too . . . $50 . . . Lewis needed that $50 . . . You may have read it . . . The title: "Two Faced Quilligan" . . . 20th Century Fox bought it for $25,000—and now Lewis is out there at the studio scribbling things at $750 per . . . Jimmy Durante, however, probably never will amount to much as a litree man . . . Cosmopolitan asked him to jot down 300 words on "What Is Wrong With Women?" and he can't get started, claiming he can't find nothin' wrong wid 'em . . . Jan Valtin can't sell a line until reviewed by Mr. Whiskers.

CBS keeps its commentators on the breathless list by telling them to be ready for over seas assignment on 24 hours' notice . . . If you have $10,000,000 you can buy the Blue Network.

Life Story mag will soon unveil what it calls a racket. It will slam the fortune-tellers, allegedly preying on war mothers and kin . . . It reminds us of the wealthy man whose hobby was fortune-tellers . . . One day about 12 years ago he was having his fortune told and the teller asked: "Are you building a big home?" . . . "Why yes!" he said . . . "Well," she told him, "when it is finished—you will die!" . . . He and his family have been living in it since—but he has never really had it finished . . . Workmen are instructed to keep adding this and that to it . . . They build a new wing—or change a room—and will never really "finish it."

Add earaches: The society matron in a swank spot who audibly groaned that the war was ruining her dinner parties. She simply couldn't get initialed matchbox covers any more! . . . "Watch on the Rhine," the Lillian Hellman prize-winner, was written around actual events in the life of a man named Katz . . . A gov't film now being made is called "The Fall of Italy" . . . Joseph E. Davies refused to broadcast from Russia or write articles for high U. S. fees. "I am only a letter carrier," he said . . . Tip-off on the Argentine situation: "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" is not allowed to be shown there.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:
The Magic Lanterns: "The Russian Story" is a record of ten centuries of that nation's struggles against invaders. If you want to know how far the Nazis have strayed from civilization—watch their troops at Smolensk advancing behind women and children.

The Networks: Dinah Shore with Paul Whiteman and his wizards, Summering in the spot vacated by Edger Bergen, are as good a half hour as you'll find on the dials . . . Correspondent Wallace Carroll on "We, the People" revealed how Pierre Laval picks up a few extra francs. His print shop, Carroll reported, gets out the Nazi forgeries . . . "Easy Aces" celebrates 13 years on the air. A pair of Aces, it seems, remains a good bet.

The Magazines: Somerset Maugham in Red Book observes that when London was being bombed from sun-up to sundown, the detective novel won added popularity. Imagine that: With suspense showered on the Brits, they had to look for it in books! . . . The startler in Fortune (published by Henry Luce, her husband) is the reference to Clare Luce's "globaloney" as "ill-mannered."

Lieut. James Burchard, formerly with the World-Telegram (and now on the staff of Stars and Stripes at Algiers) is probably the first to be divorced via V-Mail . . . His wife sent him some forms to fill out, but they apparently were lost or sunk en route . . . Mrs. Burchard then put the necessary papers on a V-letter and sent them to her husband . . . He signed them—mailed them back—and the divorce was granted.

American soldiers, engaged in mopping up operations on Attu island, peek into a Japanese dugout in search of snipers. The dugout has a tent roof to keep out the bitter wind and cold of the bleak island that became a cemetery for the enemy. Most of the Japanese were killed in battle or committed suicide. Few were captured. The end of Japanese resistance on Attu was marked by a final suicidal enemy attack, early in the morning. The resulting battle was a slaughter in which it has been estimated that 50 Japanese were killed for every American. Some of the Japs struck their hand grenades against their helmets to start the detonation mechanism, then held the grenades to their chests until the explosion ended their lives. The final attack occurred in American positions above Cories Lake. One American colonel and other officers were surrounded in a tent from which they fought off Japs for seven hours. An example of the accuracy of the American's shooting was shown when the body of an Alaskan scout was found with twelve dead Japs lying in a half circle around him.

JUST why the Chicago Cubs have spent most of this season as a National league tail-end club is a question that baffles almost every baseball observer.

There is no logical reason why the Cubs should be a cellar team. General Manager Jim Gallagher has been quoted as saying he is unable to determine why the team has been eighth best most of the recent weeks of the season. Some rather smart baseball experts are completely mystified at the team's showing.

One thing is certain—and only one thing. The Cubs have lost a lot more games than they have won. One day the hitting is good and there is no pitching. A couple of days later the pitching is excellent and the hitting nonexistent. Then, the next game may see the defense crumble. Occasionally everything goes to ruin during the same game. At that point the Cubs have one of their "bad" days.

But Gallagher doesn't blame Manager Jim Wilson for the various shortcomings. He insists the Cubs have as good a spirit as any Cub team he's seen. And Gallagher, as general manager of the club, is Wilson's boss.

To date there have been no stories of club dissension—the usual prelude to a managerial change. Even the most bitter critics of the Gallagher-Wilson regime haven't hinted—at least out loud—that the Cubs are anything less than a fairly happy ball club.

Neither Gallagher nor Wilson have given up the thought that their boys will be pennant contenders before the season winds up in October. The Big Four pitching staff, including Claude Passeau, Lon Warneke, Bill Lee and Paul Derringer, have shown signs of strength recently, in great contrast to the horrible earlier weeks of the season.

It has been charged that Wilson doesn't get excited about losing. In other words, he grew too accustomed to the short end of the score during his years as a Phillie player and manager. He adjusted himself to defeat with no great pain. Gallagher denies this and insists that Wilson hates to lose as much as any manager in the big leagues.

Gallagher probably is right. No man likes to lose. And Wilson likely is as optimistic as any other manager. But his optimism has suffered many a staggering blow during the past months. Whether or not he will come through unscathed is a debatable question.

Sarazen's Donation

To a rather weird looking iron club now resting in the museum of the United States Golf association, today's low-scoring golfers owe a debt of gratitude.

The club is sort of a mongrel job which Gene Sarazen donated to golf's hall of fame for inanimate objects. It is one which helped him win the American Open and British championships in 1932 and which is largely responsible for the low scores of the present day.

The club head resembles that of a niblick, except that it has a heavy flange at the bottom. Frequent applications of lead have made it even heavier. No thing of beauty, Sarazen's masterpiece resembles something that might be carried by a sportsman-bandit.

It's the forerunner of the present-day sand iron. And Sarazen well remembers its history:

"Back in 1932 I had an idea that the sand club Bobby Jones was using, with concave space, was illegal. It was subsequently ruled so. I set about to devise a sand iron of my own.

"I finally came up with this club with the flanged sole. I made it myself. That year I broke the scoring record in winning the British Open and tied the record in winning the National Open.

"In about three weeks there were 40,000 copies of the club being made and distributed, and I think that the low scoring since that time can be traced to that club. It eliminates paralysis in the bunkers, and made the good players all masters of bunker play."

Sarazen always was a bold player, and it is said that he became so proficient with the club that he would bet he could get out of a trap and down in one putt four out of five times.

In taking the 1932 British Open, Sarazen had rounds of 70, 69, 70 and 74 for a 283 total—two strokes better than the tournament record. That same year he had a poor start in the National Open with a 74 and 76 on his first two rounds. He came in with a 70 for the third tour and fired a blazing 66 for the windup and a total of 286.

Jealousy Within Axis
By Ramon Lavalle

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with The American Magazine.)

I have just arrived in America from Tokyo. As a neutral diplomat I have seen, beyond the curtain of censorship and terror, Japan at war. I was the Argentine consul in Hong Kong when the Japs conquered and looted that city. Later I was second in charge of the Argentine Embassy in Tokyo, where I remained until recently, when I was able to leave Japanese territory via Siberia.

As soon as I arrived in Tokyo I began to notice an atmosphere of fear and dread in the foreign embassies and legations such as I had never seen in diplomatic circles before, even under wartime conditions. Strangely enough, this existed among the Germans and Italians as well as among the representatives of neutral nations.

It was caused partly by the constant spying and surveillance of the Japanese police, partly by the annoyances and insults to which all Europeans were subjected when they went into the streets (quite unlike the Japanese politeness of former times), and partly by the offensive arrogance of Japanese officialdom, fed fat with the great early victories.

I saw an official of the Italian Embassy get into a taxicab at the railway station. Three Japanese came along and wanted the cab. They reached in, yanked the Italian diplomat out, punched him and got into the cab.

Polite to Russians.
The Russians, who had a large diplomatic staff, kept very close to themselves within the spacious quarters of their embassy. Whenever they ventured out, they were closely followed by numbers of Japanese police. But the Japs, mindful of Russian air bases within range of Tokyo, were careful to preserve a correct attitude toward their powerful neighbors.

The Japs held the Italians in contempt because of the failures of the Italian troops in Europe. The Italians feared the Japs, and several of them told me that if they lose in Europe and thus become useless to the Japanese as military allies, they believe the Japanese will massacre them.

The attitude of the Germans in Tokyo toward their Japanese allies, the "honorary Aryans," is one of mingled suspicion and dislike, which verged toward uneasiness and fear as Germany began to suffer military reverses in Russia and Africa.

Last fall there were three German raiders moored at the main pier in Yokohama harbor, near Tokyo—one a cruiser and two converted merchant ships. There was also, nearby, a prize ship, captured from the British. I saw many of the German crew members from these ships shortly before they were preparing to sail.

Then one morning we heard a series of explosions, heavy enough to shake out windows. We got into the embassy car and drove across to Yokohama. The town was in confusion, with much shattered window glass in the streets, fire sirens screaming and ambulances racing toward the docks. We learned that all three of the German ships, and a tanker fueling them with oil, had blown up. The prize ship and another ship were on fire.

There was intense anger that evening among the German colony in Tokyo. It was freely charged at the German Club, that "this is the jealous rivalry of the Japanese, who are envious of the Reich, and have sabotaged our ships and killed our sailors."

About 80 German sailors were killed, 160 injured and many more missing. No word of this disaster was allowed to get into the Japanese press. What the true origin of the explosions was I was never able to find out. Some Japanese officials told me that two American submarines had crept into the harbor and torpedoed the ships. But the next day they realized that this cast doubt on the invincible Jap navy, so they changed their story to Chinese communist spies and saboteurs.

The Germans had other grievances against their Jap allies. There were many German families from Java who had taken refuge in Tokyo while the Japs were conquering the Dutch East Indies. These families owned valuable lands and properties in Java. After the Japs had completed their conquest, these Germans wanted to go back and resume possession and management of their estates.

The Japs bluntly told them this was impossible. Java was a "military zone" and would remain so indefinitely.

BEES STING AXIS BY PRODUCING FOR U. S.

They Help Make Planes, Guns, Medicines, and Also Aid the Farmer.

The house of the honey bee has gone to war.

Crushed, melted and acid treated, the beeswax that built this fragile miracle of architecture is at work in munitions factories, airplane fabrication plants and in laboratories where white-coated technicians are compounding medicines for the battlefield.

As "civilians," American bees produced almost four million pounds of valuable wax annually. Patriotic beekeepers are now studying war-time methods to speed up production and conserve all that the hives yield. Experts in the department of agriculture are aiding bee owners by research and experimentation, and encouraging amateurs with a natural interest in the honey gatherers to enter beekeeping in a modest way.

War uses could absorb an unestimated additional supply of beeswax. It is a tested weather-proof coating for munitions and other ordnance awaiting shipment to far-flung battle lines. In medical laboratories more and more of the unique substance is being employed in healing and protective ointments. Airplanes and bombers need beeswax in important—and, at present, secret—construction uses.

Civilians fighting on the home front have reason to thank the bees, too. Last year the nation's sugar ration was supplemented by more than 200 million pounds of honey.

Help Increase Yields.

As field bees search for blossom nectar to be turned into "liquid sweetness" by the hive bees, they perform the greatest of their war services—greater even than the colony's contribution in safeguarding weapons of war. From blossom to blossom the tiny workers carry pollen that speed the productive processes of plants.

For the farmer, this means an increase in the yield of more than 35 orchard, garden and nut crops soldiers and civilians eat, a dozen or more of the grass and clover crops livestock feed on, and the fiber crops that go into clothing. Daily their work is making possible the 70 million pounds of seed a war depleted agriculture must have in 1943.

Insects' help is necessary to effect pollination of many species of plants that otherwise would not seed

Always industrious, the busy bees are pitching into the war program with all the zeal of the most enthusiastic plant worker. Their amazing results are being felt on the homefront and battlefield with new and old products described in the adjoining story.

or produce fruit, no matter how well they were cultivated, fertilized and protected from diseases and pests.

Most important of the pollinating insects, the honey bee lives in mobile colony homes easy to transfer where required in the program of producing food, seed and armament for war.

Farmers, scholars and city folk for centuries have watched and wondered as the bee went his industrious way. Ancient poets praised the honey of the bees on Greece's Mount Hymettus.

On sacred altars all over the world today, none of the substances man has compounded burns more steadily or brightly in the candle of hope and prayer for the soldier than the taper moulded from the soft, flower-white wax the bee gives to mankind.

America In Action

FOOD FOR 6,500,000

It's quite a large and hungry family the quartermaster general is feeding these days—more than 6½ million men, in fact, and they all have large appetites.

There's something about fighting your way through jungles in Guadalcanal, and pushing a General Sherman tank ahead in Africa that makes you ready to eat when meal-time rolls around.

Figures recently announced by the quartermaster general, Maj. Gen. E. B. Gregory, reveal that while our fighting men, under the strenuous physical life they lead, eat more than they did in civilian life, the extra food they consume is not such a large amount when compared with the total amount consumed by civilians. In fact, the quartermaster general says the total amount of food the army buys is a minor factor in the food shortages that have been facing the country. These shortages, instead, are due principally to increased buying power, he asserted.

In general the army's food procurements do not tend to diminish the civilian supply below the available quantities during the period 1935-39. However, the increased purchasing power of the nation coupled with removal from manufacture of such products as automobiles, numerous household appliances and other popular items, has channeled vast amounts of money into the food field so that more families than ever before are attempting to buy canned goods, meat and other food commodities.

The nature of war requires that we build up reserve stocks to assure an uninterrupted flow of food to men across the seas. A 90-day supply must be on hand at all times to insure a steady supply of food to our troops here at home. That's about the same as commercial concerns maintain to supply the housewife through the grocery stores. More is needed for our men overseas. Because supply lines are long, and dangers of loss are great the army must always have a nine-month supply on hand for every soldier overseas.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

Now more than ever before can women "serve." It is up to them to save and conserve food, clothing and money. It is up to many of them to see that they buy cheaply, but wisely, so they can put the money they save in defense stamps and bonds to help the war effort.

It is up to the women, the housewives and workers alike, to make over their last year's garments, to learn new and tasty recipes for left-over foods. It is up to them to keep up the morale of the men in their family by being cheerful and uncomplaining.

Make Servicemen Happy With Letters They Enjoy

The Office of War Information offers these points for homefolks writing to soldiers, sailors, and marines—based on suggestions gathered in a survey among servicemen at home and overseas, in co-operation with the special service division of the army service forces:

- TELL HIM:
1. How the family is doing everything possible to help in the war.
  2. How anxious the family is for the boy's return.
  3. How well and busy the family is. Give details.
  4. How the family is getting along financially.
  5. What's doing in the community: News about girls (single) he knows, doings of friends, who's marrying whom, exploits of the home team and other sports events, social doings, effects of the war on the home town. Reminisce a little about past events and places the boy used to visit. Enclose clippings from the home-town paper.
- DON'T TELL HIM:
1. Your troubles. He has troubles of his own.
  2. Your complaints. He can't do anything about them.
  3. About the things you are deprived of. He can't supply them.
  4. Doleful predictions about the future. He's fighting for that future—now.
  5. Unnecessary details about financial troubles. If there are things he should know about family finances, and he is in a position to do something about the situation, tell him. But don't string it out.

China's Quads, Born on Armistice, Named for Allies

China's quadruplets pictured at left now have two names apiece. At birth in a Canton refugee camp on Armistice day, 1939, they were named Kwok-keung, Kwok-ying, Kwok-yuen, and Kwok-hing, which in Cantonese dialect means Chiu of a Strong Country, Chiu of a Heroic Country, Chiu of a Self-Ruling Country, and Chiu of a Prosperous Country. Their new names, taken from the roll of the United Nations, are United States Chiu, Great Britain Chiu, Soviet Chiu, and China Chiu. The quadruplets were brought into the world by a Chinese woman doctor on the staff of the Hackett Medical college in Canton. The babies' mother, one of a mass of Chinese refugees who had swarmed into Canton, was in her thirties. After the quadruplets' birth, she was able to nurse only two of them and a Chinese midwife nursed the other two.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

A PEOPLE IN DISTRESS

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 1:6-14; 2:23-25. GOLDEN TEXT—They cried, and their cry came up unto God by reason of the bondage.—Exodus 2:23.

Today is Independence Day. Yet much of the world is in bondage, and the rest of it in a struggle to prevent freedom from perishing from the earth.

Our lesson too is about a nation in bondage, but we learn from it that there is a way to be free. Even so we declare the way of personal liberty which is open and free.

The Lord Jesus Christ opened it at Calvary's tree and anyone who is still the bond slave of Satan may make this a great and glorious Independence Day by now declaring his faith in the Deliverer of our souls.

We begin today a series of lessons in the book of Exodus which reveal the high and mighty hand of God working on behalf of His people.

The family of Jacob—or, as the Bible calls them, the children of Israel—prospered in Egypt particularly as long as Joseph and the rulers who remembered him were alive. But they soon learned one of life's bitter lessons, that—

I. Prosperity Is Not Always a Blessing (1:6-11).

The Hebrews were a peaceful, law-abiding people. They were God's chosen people, and as He blessed them they prospered, and thus innocently they brought upon themselves the hatred of the suspicious Egyptians.

Prosperity is never an unmixed blessing. We as a nation know that to be true. Not only does it lead to a certain softening of the sinews, but all too often it results in a weakening of the moral fiber, which makes man easy prey to the attack of the enemy of our souls.

Is it not strange, then, that we should—even in times of all-out warfare—be so eager to chase the dollar that we are willing to neglect our children, forget church, live unnatural lives, just that we may make more and more money?

The Egyptians had, humanly speaking, reason to fear this great nation which was growing up in their midst. The new rulers did not know Joseph and had forgotten the spirit in which he had brought his family into the land. The leaders of the Egyptians therefore made plans which appealed to their brilliant leaders as politic and wise. But they reckoned without God, and the burdens and afflictions they placed on the Israelites only served to bring further blessing.

So Israel learned a lesson which our present sorry world can profit by, that—

II. Persecution Is Not Always a Burden (vv. 12-14).

The people of Israel did not appreciate it, but the bitterness of their bondage was a blessing in disguise. Note that—

1. It Kept Them Separate as a People. Affliction often serves to keep God's people separated from the world. It is doing so today.
2. It Disciplined Them and Prepared Them for the Hardships of Their Wilderness Journey. We too do well to remember that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," and that if we are properly "exercised" thereby, our sorrows may yield rich fruit in our lives.
3. It Threw Them Back upon God. Many are the saints of God who have found that the fiery trial, the burden so hard to understand, or some affliction of their body, has caused them to bring their burden to the Lord. We have traveled far on the road of faith when we have reached the place where we learn that "man's extremity is God's opportunity."

They had only one place to turn. They were hemmed in on every side, but, as ever, they found that the way up no man can close. They called on their God.

III. Prayer Always Brings Deliverance (2:23-25).

Does God really know when His people suffer? Does He really care? Yes, He does. "They cried," and "God heard" and "remembered." "That's all we need to know. The groaning of His people had already stirred God's gracious and tender heart. But He waited to hear their cry before He answered. Such is the law of prayer. May we not forget it. Far too often we turn to everyone and everything else, and finally, in desperation, to God. Why not turn to Him first?

Does God hear and answer prayer? Yes, but remember that real prayer is the cry of faith coming from the heart of an obedient child. God may answer other prayers, but He always answers such a prayer.

His answer may not be in accord with our opinion of what it should be, for His wisdom is infinite. He knows better than we what the answer should be. Let us trust the Judge of all the earth to do right (Gen. 18:25).

FUN FOR YOUR FAMILY

By MISS ABBIE CONDIT
National Recreation Association.

A watermelon party is fun for summertime, especially since you can save all the seeds and use them for party games. Here are some games which are especially suited for the watermelon season:

Relay Race. Divide the group into two teams. Place ten seeds at the end of each line. All players must put one hand behind them. Leader passes the seeds one at a time to one next to him, who passes it on and so on down to the end of the line. The end one places it down. The first team getting all its seeds passed first wins the relay.

Seed Scoop. Put all available seeds in a pan about half full of water. Allow each person to try to get as many seeds in a tablespoon as he can with one scoop. As soon as the seeds are counted each time, they are put back into the pan so that the next one will have an equal chance.

Seed Blow for Accuracy. Draw a circle with chalk, or if on the beach draw a circle in the sand. From a line about four feet away, allow each person five chances to blow the seeds into target. The one blowing the most in, wins. In case of tie, give them five more shots.

Seed Snap for Accuracy. Hold seed between thumb and first finger. Pinch together until seed snaps out. Each one is given five shots in which to try to snap them into circle.

Seed Snap for Distance. Same as above except that contestants get two chances to snap their seed for distance.

Frog Derby. Lay a seed on a hard surface. Take a spoon and with a motion as in tiddly winks, force the seed to jump forward. Allow two chances.

Seed Fortune Telling. Hide seeds around the room and have guests search for them for periods of three minutes. At the end of each period, each person will present his seeds to a "fortune teller" who will tell the person's fortune by numbers on a chart which will correspond to the number of seeds found. Here are some of the "fortunes" which may be included on the chart.

1. You have a weakness for loud neckties.
2. You are an eloquent speaker and would make a good lawyer.
3. You have a strong will, but don't be too obstinate.
4. Never try to walk home from a boat ride.
5. You rush in where angels fear to tread.
6. You will be lucky in love.
7. You are born with a talent for music.
8. You spend too much time admiring yourself before a mirror.
9. You are unusually smart, but lazy.
10. You will never be President.
11. You are superstitious.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

5 Ocean Navy

When Pearl Harbor burst upon us our great expanse of territory was protected by a one ocean navy of about 350 first line ships with an addition of an approximate number building.

Now we are in a five ocean war and we are required not only to pay for the building of enough ships of the line but also for hundreds of Liberty ships and auxiliary craft. The amount of money you invested in War Bonds when we had a one ocean navy was all right then, it isn't enough now. Buy more and more War Bonds.

chine, just as a trolley operator doesn't mean a street car motor-man but a lad who does the finishing and icing in a bakery.
