THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes on an assignment to Puerto Rico where Pete Wilcox, a reporter on her father's paper, is stationed as a U. S. Army intelligence officer. On the boat she meets a young Puerto Rican, Miguel Valera, and an en-gineer named Richard Taussig, of whom she is suspicious, although she does not know that he is actually a German agent ordered to destroy Puerto Rico's water supply. At the hotel in San Juan Anne's luggage is searched, and she suspects Taussig. Anne and Mr. Taussig have been invited to dinner at the home of the Russell Porters. Sue Porter and Anne went to school together.

CHAPTER VII

"It's early, Miss Heywood," Mr. Taussig said as they came into the lobby and Russell's car moved out of the drive. "Why don't we have a night-cap together?"

"Oh, thanks a lot," Anne said.
"But I've really—"

"I'd like to talk to you, Miss Hey-wood," Mr. Taussig said quietly. Mr. Taussig was looking at her

'All right," she said. "In the

He waited for her to sit down, and signalled the waiter. He might be making a mistake, he thought. "I may as well come to the point at once, Miss Heywood," he said Anne's throat tightened.

"All right," she said. "What is it?"

The waiter put their glasses down on the table. Mr. Taussig raised his. "-To our better understanding, Miss Heywood.' Anne raised hers. She was aware of what Barbara had called the veiled scrutiny behind his impregnable lenses.

"-It is your interest in me that confuses me slightly, Miss Hey-Anne looked at him blankly. "What do you mean, Mr. Taussig?" "Oh, not interest d'amour, Miss Heywood. I don't mean that. I mean interest in my . . . shall we say, belongings? Last night, for ex-Anne sat perfectly calm and completely controlled while the whole bottom of a kind of lovely dream inside her dropped out in shattered fragments. Miguel had told him. "I was just returning the compliment, Mr. Taussig," she said. Her voice was calm and detached. She thought she saw him start, but she

"May I ask what you mean by that, Miss Heywood?" he asked qui-

"You went through my bags yesterday, didn't you, Mr. Taussig? He was staring at her in open and undisguised astonishment. Anne misunderstood. What if she was wrong? What if it hadn't been he at all? She didn't know-she was only guessing, actually.

He recovered his composure in an instant. If she had lied, he wouldn't

"-What makes you think I did such an incredible thing?"

"Your thumb prints, Mr. Taussig," Anne said. If she'd been wrong, he could deny it, and she would apologize.

He thought quickly, His hands had been moist from the heat. He

"I think you've jumped to a very hasty conclusion, Miss Heywood. You have a bag just like one of mine. The porton put yours in mine. The porter put yours in my room. I opened it, but I closed it at once, of course, and had the porter take it to your room and bring mine to me. You'll find there's usually a simple explanation for most things, Miss Heywood."

"Then I apologize profoundly, Mr. Taussig," Anne said. "I'm glad we talked about it."

She got up and held out her hand. She could see the indecision in the cold blue gleam of his eyes fastened on hers. He wasn't sure whether she was telling the truth or not. And she knew he had lied.

Anne lay in the luminous half-dark under the oblong tent of cheesecloth around her bed, trying to think without feeling . . . trying to separate the things she knew from the things she suspected but did not actually know, without coloring them with her own emotions.

"But I'm not wrong about it," she Actually there were only two other things she really knew, when she came down to it. One was that Taussig had opened her bag and gone through her letters and had not told the truth about it. The other was that Miguel had told him she was in his room,

The rest of it was in that dangerous border line of intuition and suspicion. That was what she had to watch. Still, even Barbara French had recognized what she called Taussig's veiled scrutiny.

Anne shook her head. It didn't do any good to go over every detail of a day or two days the way she was doing. "Night's a magnifying glass anyway," she thought. She reached down, pulled the thin blanket up from the foot of the bed, and settled back into the pillows. She wasn't going to think about it,

She closed her eyes. Just as she | did the telephone on the table beside her jangled stridently. It rang again before she could pull the mosquito netting out from under the mattress and free her arm.

"Hello," she said. "I'm sorry." It was Pete's voice that came from the other end. "I was just wondering about you . . . if you got home all right. I hope I didn't wake you up."

"Of course," she said at last.
"Don't tell me it's part of your job to check up and see the tourists are all properly in bed every night. What are you doing up at this hour yourself, Captain Wilcox?"

"I've just been to a meeting of the Falange, my child," Pete said cheerfully. "It's called something else now, but it's the same old leop-ard with the same old spots. Go back to bed. I'm putting you on the Clipper tomorrow, remember."

"You mean you're taking me out to dinner tomorrow night. I'll see you about six. Good night, dear." Anne put down the phone and wriggled back under the net. She sat up, crossed her legs under her and sat staring through her filmy gauze box at a lighted ship moving across the window in the silver ocean beyond the reef.

"The Falange. Of course. I never thought of that."

A whole new pattern wove itself quietly in front of her. For the moment she forgot Miguel and Rich-ard Taussig and herself. Here was her story. It was what she'd come down to get. In the curious way that better newspaper people than she'd ever be stumbled into things, she had stumbled right into what she was hunting for, entirely without knowing it.

Diego Gongaro was Spanish. Don Alvaro was Spanish in everything but the place of his birth. The Falange was the conservative organization that had bound the old Spain and colonial Spaniards together, especially during the civil war that had changed the mother country from a republic to a totalitarian power. It was through the Falange that the Axis dominated Spain . '. . and it was the most important-sometimes actual, sometimes only potential-Fifth Column in Latin and South America. She tried to remember all the things she'd read about it. It was made up of the wealthier conservative-which down here would usually mean anti - democraticgroups. It was supposed to be the stronghold of the idea of Spanish Empire. At one time, when there was still peace in the world, it hadn't meant much more than the various foreign associations in the States had meant. Or people had thought it hadn't, including most of its members, probably. In times like the present it meant something very diftold herself. "I saw it. It's one of the things I know . . . even if I don't know what it's all about."

present it meant something very in ferent. That was why in Puerto Rico it had been disbanded . . or officially it had been. Apparently there were still remnants of it.

Anne lay down again and closed her eyes. Don Alvaro was old Spain. Diego Gongaro's wife, who was Graciela's mother, had been killed in the Spanish civil war. Miguel's or-ders had been cancelled by the War Department. Maybe it all added up

Maybe what it added up to was Richard Taussig.—Except Miguel
. . . not Miguel. It was all back again from where it had started.

Richard Taussig gripped the open window ledge of the crowded stationwagon with one hand and hung on to his guide book and his yachting cap with the other. He was in one of those new vehicles known locally as public cars that provide a vast network of cheap transportation for the Island and make taxi-drivers and chauffeurs a political bloc that and she wasn't going to think about no party dares to ignore. At the moment the car was careening ma-niacally across the narrow perilous causeway out the Bayamon Road from San Juan. On the right the garbage dump smoked with evilsmelling pervasiveness. Beyond it, in the shallow head of the bay, two dredges pumped softly and monotonously, filling the murky oozing swamp that stretched on the left of the road, making firm new land for the U. S. Navy. It was dotted with a couple of thousand oranges just then, where a truck had gone off the road, and just behind it a station wagon like Mr. Taussig's had gone wagon like Mr. Taussig's had gone like a dive bomber motor-deep in the mud, its rear wheels still going around. A constant stream of khakicolored Army trucks and open field cars trundled noisily past it, and private cars darling in and out, trying to pass what sagmed to Mr. ing to pass what seemed to Mr. Taussig to be an already solid line into town.

An accident would be easy enough, he thought-up in the hills where there was no soft cushion of mud and slime. He frowned. There were certain complications he expected and did not mind. He was used to accidents when necessary, though he preferred to avoid them. He was even used to the emotional equation that women sometimes brought in . . . but not on the level that the girl in 110 across the hall had presented. He was more used to the kind of thing he was headed for

The public car stopped on the side of the crowded road under an almond tree.

"-Caparra, senor." The driver pointed to a low shedlike group of buildings just beyond a rickety fence. They looked more like subterranean mushroom sheds than the ruins of the villa of Ponce de Leon, the first governor, who built his first capitol here four centuries ago, before he abandoned it and Puerto Rico to go on his search for the Fountain of Youth, and found instead Florida and death.

Mr. Richard Taussig was only superficially interested in the blue and yellow tiles and in the story of the Indian Cacique and the great Conquistadore who is still heard, and even seen, clanking up the ghostly stairs in his battle armor. He tipped the caretaker enough to make him remember him but not enough to make him suspicious, and made his way along the shaded road under the Indian almonds and flamboyants to a roadhouse. There he drank a bottle of cool pale ale in the garden and read his guide book. That was for the record too, in case one was being kept. So far as he knew, no one had followed him; but deviousness and plausibility were a habit as much as a plan, and in the halfworld that Mr. Taussig operated in. overconfidence was more dangerous than wasted time.

"I can get to Rio Piedras-to the University-out this way?"

He tipped the waiter and pointed to the left fork of the road he had come on. "And to the Tuberculosis Sanatorium on the way?" The man nodded.

Gracias, senor." "If I walk along a public car will stop for me?'

"Si, senor." Mr. Taussig set out, walking slowly. The road was less crowded than the other branch. Nevertheless he walked past the blue stucco house set behind a great hedge of red and pink hibiscus, because a cart loaded with sugar cane was passing it just then. When the road was empty he turned back, went quickly through the tall gate in the hedge and closed it securely behind him. Diego Gongaro's car stood in the drive. Taussig glanced at his watch. He had allowed himself forty-five minutes to compensate for the temperamental disregard of time that was another complication of the Latin scene that irritated his precise mind. He had not wanted to arrive at the house of Diego Gongaro's mistress until Gongaro was there himself. He was disturbed about her, just as he was disturbed about Graciela. In fact, there were too many women in all this altogether for his liking. All except little Mrs. Porter. So far as he could see, she was the one simple aspect of his problem. His impulse had been to go see her that been to go see her that morning, but he had rejected it. It was best to let the first move come from her.

He went up the steps, reached out to ring the bell beside the irongrilled door, and stopped. From inside he could hear loud and hysterical weeping. It stopped abruptly, and a woman's shrill voice cried out in rapid Spanish:

in rapid Spanisn:

"But why? Why, Diego? Why not let all of that alone? Why endanger yourself and me and your family? What is there to gain that—" She stopped as suddenly as she had begun. A heavy chair moved, there were sharp steps on the tiled floor. Taussig stepped back, came across the porch again, scraping his rubber-soled shoes on the tile, and rang the bell. In a moment Diego Gongaro came from an inner room through the portiere made of colored glass beads and short lengths ly as he opened the grill. Whether

"Come in," he said. "I am happy to see that it is possible for you to be late also, my friend." (TO BE CONTINUED)

Cunningly Styled Cottons Tune to Many-Purpose Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

satile cottons these days! Whether you work or whether you play, designers have taken it upon themselves to turn you out in cunningly devised, intriguingly styled cottons that enter into the spirit of every environment and every occupation, no matter what, this summer. It's lots of fun these style creators of ours are having, making up chambrays and ginghams, seersuckers and sprigged dimities and glazed chintz and a host of other equally interesting cotton weaves that will tune picturesquely and faithfully to where you are and what you are doing. No matter whether you are working in a factory, manipulating a typewriter, driving a truck, enter-taining in a USO center, watering and weeding a Victory garden, giving a barbecue party in your own backyard or moving with rhythmic grace up the church aisle to the strains of a wedding march, it's cottons you'll be wearing if you are properly style-minded.

Now that most of us are destined to be stay-at-homes during the days to come because of traveling difficulties, it is with utmost enthusiasm that designers are letting imagination have full play in creating clothes that, while practical and functional, are of the "be pretty" type that make women look their most attractive selves. Which calls to mind the importance of that field of at-home fashions - the brunch coat. In the brunch coat, cottons bright with color, show off for all they are worth; the more color, the merrier. The girl centered in the picture is wearing a most attractive brunch coat, just such as should be included in every summertime wardrobe. It is of rose-strewn cotton oxford cloth and

In the costume shown to the left the colorful chambray skirt registers a most exciting new idea in the use of quaint ribbon-run beading to edge the capacious pockets and the free-and-easy hemline. With its demure and flattering white peasant blouse it is appropriate for a barbecue party, a walk or just summering on the home-front lawn. And she can sit on the grass if she wants to because bug and grass stains will 'come out in the wash" of a cham-

Modish Black

Fashion decrees dark beauty for a sultry summer. You'll look cool and feel cooler in this linen-textured spun rayon garnished with crisp eyelet of pique. It's a smart choice for your conservation - conscious wardrobe, because it is made of stabilized fabric. Among the per-formance qualities for which this fabric has been approved are seam of fine bamboo. He smiled cordial- strength, non-shrinkage and stretchage and a high degree of color fasthe was unaware that his caller had ness to hand-washing and perspira-heard the end of the scene, or was tion. The eyelet embroidery touch heard the end of the scene, or was simply unconcerned, Mr. Taussig could not tell.

"Come in," he said. "I am happy rayon. A wide-brim black or matching navy hat makes for ultra high fashion this summer.

Wartime Hats Have

Changeable Trims For hat-conscious girls and war brides who are making trips to camp, the big packing problem is hats. The story of crowded trains and lack of porters is well known this summer. Sally Victor, known in every style center the country over, has evolved the idea of one basic shape that becomes you most, supplemented with half-a-dozen or more trimming changes that require no special knack in adjusting. With this comes a double-ruffle brim of straw lace mesh which slips right over the crown of a straw or felt shape. Take it off in a jiffy, and in your ensemble you'll welcome a sequin beaded band that fits about the crown and so on. The grouptrims include a feather sweep that can be clipped on, and other items that tune to time and occasion.

Fringe Trimming Shown In Advance Displays

The newer incoming fashions bring the news of fringe trimming. Advance displays highlight afternoon and evening black crepes handsomely trimmed in fringe of varied description. The most exciting news, however, is that fringe is turning up in the sportswear realm. Loop-yarn fringe leads with fringe formed of self-fabric cord being a close second. Suede slashed into fringe trims the new leather jackets, hats and accessories. Upholstery fringe is used on smart cotton frocks. Also entire little hats are made of either straw or wool fringe sewed row on row.

Motifs From Mexico

Accessories reflect a decided Mexican influence in color and motif. These Mexican inspired items include gay Mexican straw hats, Mexican plaid straw bags, and the Mexican peasant blouse in white cotton.

Abnormal Tire Wear

If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by underinflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots in the tire tread.

Washington, D. C. GERMAN-ITALIAN ANTAGONISM

With the invasion of Sicily, the question of whether Germany and Italy can pull together as a team now becomes something much more than a subject of amusing wisecracks. The basic hostility always existing between them-both the armies and the people—may now prove to be the fatal fault in the United States diplomats and newsmen who lived interned in Italy until May, 1942, recall many an ex-pression of Italian resentment documented truth about what Franagainst the Germans.

On the night before the interned Americans left Rome to return to guy. the U. S., a group of newspapermen, including Richard G. Massock of the Associated Press, visited a restaurant called Biblioteca, which had them before the days of internment. The place was packed, largely with Germans, but when the head waiter recognized them, he hustled some diners off, to make room for his old American friends.

An Italian at the next table mumbled something about Germans intruding, whereupon AP's Massock spoke up: "We are not German!" "Excuse me," said the Italian, indicating clearly that to call a man a German is a fighting word.

This prompted another Italian to come to Massock, the first American he had seen for months. With an affectionate embrace, he said: "Please give my kind regards to President Roosevelt!"

TANKS AND POTATOES

The army doesn't like to say too much about it, but the United States now has an embarrassment of riches with respect to tanks. A year ago, and for at least a year before that, there was great clamor about speeding production of this weapon with which Hitler overran the con-

However, both the invasion of Sicily and raids over Germany now make it apparent that the weapon with which we shall take back the continent is not the tank but the

Tanks were needed for the campaign in North Africa, and a year ago they were the most important weapon in the arsenal in preparation for the landing of November 8. But fewer tanks were expended in North Africa than had been expected, and we still have most of those which were sent to that theater. Further, there will be less demand for tanks in Europe than in Africa, because of shorter distances and less mobility.

A tank factory closed down in Ohio last week, a fact which normally would have caused great alarm. But it passed almost unnoticed because of the fact that we now have miles of tanks standing in line waiting to be used in whatever theater may require them.

NAZI AIR STRENGTH

Air force experts are commenting on the fact that German air activity is stiffer in every theater of the European war. More German planes have been rushed to Italy, are also active on the Russian front, and are more active over the European continent in combating Allied bomb raids than at any previous time in the war.

Experts believe the Germans have put up all their air strength. This is highly significant, for it means they have taken everything they have, leaving no reserves.

Thus every loss inflicted on the Luftwaffe in any of these theaters represents a decline from the minimum required for a defense of the continent. And when you cut a force below its necessary minimum, you are bringing about its downfall.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

PACIFIC WAR WILL TIGHTEN

Operations in the Pacific have met with glorious initial successes, and American forces will push on from one island to another, in a campaign which will have no permanent pause.

But don't look for a continuation of one-sided warfare much longer. We made our first landings in places where the Japanese were weak and where resistance was not substantial. But as we advance farther, resistance will become stiffer, and the progress slower.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Magic Lanterns: Take "For Whom the Bell Tolls" as a hearty action flicker, and you've got something to like. The acting of Ingrid Bergman, Gary Cooper, Katina Paxinou and the cast is big time. It all holds together fine. But if you want Hemingway's story, which called Franco some of the things he is, this isn't your dish. All very proper and sparing of the Fascist feelings . They kept cautioning us that it looked tough ahead. Then they'd have to report the fabulous progress that had been made . Bob Trout debunked the idea that the Sicilians were Fascist-haters who would jump right in on our side. He cited a dispatch from John Gunther to prove his point. Gunther reported that on the first night three Allied sentries had their throats cut.

Fancy Fox Hole

THE average individual who fol-lows baseball rather closely knows that Tyrus Raymond Cobb was the greatest hitter of all time, with a life-time average of .367. But how many can name the runner-up, the second best?

As frequent a guess as any is Babe Ruth. But the Babe didn't rate second. Neither did Honus Wagner, nor Tris Speaker or George Sisler. That place of honor belongs to Rogers Hornsby, who turned in a batting average of .358 in 22 years of service. Cobb won American league batting honors every single year from 1907 through 1919. His top year was in 1911 when he hit .420 for Detroit. As a matter of statistical information, Cobb played in 3,033 games, was at bat 11,429 times and accounted for 4,191 hits and 2,244 runs.

Lifetime Rankings

Hornsby led the National league in batting during 1920, '21, '22, '23, '24, '25 and '28, He set the modern National league record for the highest batting percentage, .424 in 1924. He played in 2,256 games, was at bat 8,173 times, made 2,930 hits and 1,579 runs. A much - debated subject is the lifetime ranking of the Rogers game's leading hit-ters. It's the kind of Hornsby an argument that breaks out in army camps, in drug stores and on the golf course. Here are a few of the marks, established by players with from 15 to 25 seasons' active

Keeler was the greatest scientific hitter of all time. In explaining his success as a place hitter, Wee Willie (height, 5 feet, 4½ inches; weight 140) made the famous remark, "I hit 'em where they ain't." He didn't have the power of a Ruth or a Hornsby, but his place hitting more than made up for that lack.

Ruth, the game's greatest home run hitter and certainly the greatest drawing card of all time, compiled a record of 714 home runs during his career, hitting 40 or more in 11 different years with the New York Yankees and establishing a record of 60 round trippers in the 1927 sea-

Ruth's Record

The Babe appeared in 10 world series encounters, seven of them with the Yanks, and in most of these his bat played a highly important part. He smacked 15 home runs in world series play alone and finished his career with a series batting mark of .326. In the 1928 series his batting average was .625, an alltime high.

Babe Ruth Lou Gehrig long will be remembered, and for a variety of reasons. He was much more than a power hitter. He had an unsurpassed devotion to the game and was without peer as a true sportsman. His outstanding performance - most consecutive games played, major league record-2,130, starting June 1, 1925. He played in 2,164 games, was at bat

Napoleon Lajoie batted with the best of them through 21 years of action in the National and American leagues. He hit for a mark high over .300 in a majority of his seasons, and hit the exceptionally high mark of .405 in 1901.

8,001 times, made 2,721 hits for 1,888

Home Run' Baker

Lajoie led the American league in batting on three separate occasions and smacked 13 home runs, a big total at that time, in 1901, to lead the league in that category. Remember, too, that in 1913, J. Franklin Baker, third baseman for the Philadelphia Athletics, earned the name "Home Run" Baker and made his name a household word by hitting 12 home runs.

Two moderns have had a chance to move into this select society. They were Ted Williams and Joe Di-Maggio, now in the army. Williams' four-year record is .356, and Ted was just finding himself in contrast to the veterans listed.

DiMaggio's seven-year record is .339. Unquestionably these two hitters had the chance to move into the all-time list until war came along.

Mel Ott, with .310, plus over 450 home runs, is the standout among those left. And that isn't overlooking Bill Dickey with .312.

Children of Mars

By Quentin Reynolds

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

In Russia, they call their Boy Scouts "Pioneers." They have no uniforms, no recreation, no time to play. But they are very proud of the job they are doing to speed vic-

I stood the other day on the embankment, looking across the river toward the Kremlin and its towers and mosques. I could feel the warmth of the sun and I knew that summer finally had come to Mos-

At home, the kids would be getting out baseball bats and gloves and hurrying to the nearest vacant lot. Here in Moscow, the youngsters just out of school were hurrying to the embankment across the narrow river outside the Kremlin. They laughed and yelled, and then a soldier gave an order and the laughter stopped. The kids lined up. There were about 60 of them, one-third girls. Not one was more than 14. The soldier gave crisp orders. The kids marched smartly up and down the embankment. They marched by twos and fours, with their drillmas-ter barking out military commands.

They drilled for one hour-these children of Mars—and then they were dismissed. When their time came, these youngsters would already have considerable basic military training. Today they had been in school for five hours and they had drilled for one hour.

It's Children's War, Too.

The children of Russia are organized into a society called Pioneers. It's much like our Boy Scouts, except that girls also are admitted to membership.

When school is done and drilling is finished, they go into homes and help. Each housewife now has to run her own home by herself. There's no servant problem in Moscow; there are no servants.

If her children are very young, her problem is a difficult one. This is where the Pioneers enter the picture. Each group of Pioneers is assigned to a city block. They find out which families need help. They go into homes and do what is needed.

The Timur Group. Within the Pioneers there is a secret group, the envy of all the others. These are called the Timur. Some years ago, a moving picture depicted a boy named Timur who powers. visited the dirty homes of mortals and merely by waving a wand would make the house immaculate. If there was wood to be chopped, why, that was a cinch. He'd wave his wand again and there would be a neat pile of logs all ready for the

When the family came home to find the house clean and wood piled in the bin, they would know that Timur had been visiting. Timur was a great favorite with Russian youngsters, and the Pioneers adopted his name for their secret society. They work much as Timur worked. A family is finding the burden of carrying on too heavy. Perhaps the husband is at the front, and his wife works in a factory all day. This is true of thousands and thousands of families in Russia. Nurseries take care of the children while a mother is working, and she picks them up on her way home. Then she has to prepare dinner for them. She has little time for housecleaning or wood chopping.

Vigilant youngsters will report this to the Pioneers. A flying group of Timur lads will descend on the house, give it a thorough cleaning, scour the pots and pans, beat rugs, wash and dry any dirty dishes, chop enough wood to last a week-and then vanish.

The housewife comes home and looks at her now clean and tidy house and thinks that the age of miracles has come again.

Typical of the way in which Timurs operate is the care they take of an aged invalid, father of the well-known Soviet inventor Peter Bostivan. Both Bostivan and his wife enlisted and are at the front. The woman who normally took care of the household went into a munitions plant, and the old man, quite helpless, was alone.

The Timurs heard of it and today they are in the house getting his hot tea and black toast ready for breakfast. They take turns giving up their lunch hours to prepare his food. In the afternoon they do his marketing and housecleaning. In recognition of this, Bostivan recently wrote a glowing letter of thanks. Although discouraged by military authority, the children have actualy done a job in combat at the front. Sometimes military leaders cannot help themselves. I met 15-year-old Vassia, who was just back from the front. He was a baby-faced kid.

This glorified fox hole was constructed near the temporary headquarters of an American medical unit in North Africa. Sergt. Joseph V. Ward poses beneath the sign

Neighbors Unite To Save Harvest In Ogden, Utah

Socialites and Students Join Business Men in the Fields.

"We'll save the crops for victory." This is the slogan that today unites the community of Ogden, Utah, in a common aim.

Faced with a labor scarcity which the government authority recently characterized as "the most acute in the country," the people of Ogden have banded together to assure preservation of its 1943 harvests for use of the armed forces, the Allies and civilians behind the lines.

Four large military installations, which require thousands of civilian workers are the primary factors in the shortage of workers needed to harvest and process the 80,000 acres of foodstuff in this area. There-fore, the usual army of workers needed in the fields, the can-making factories and the canneries will not answer "Present" this year.

Where, then, does Ogden expect to recruit its 1943 Crop Corps to "Save-The-Crops-For-Victory"?

The answer lies in the spirit of a city united to do a wartime job with all its community heart and every ounce of its available community manpower and womanpower.

From the president of the Chamber of Commerce down to high school freshmen, Ogdenites are mobilizing their own Crop Corps to work side by side with the United States Employment service in what probably is the greatest job they ever have attempted.

This year, the army of harvest workers is being recruited among society women, lawyers, bankers, business men, and white collar employees to whom work in a factory is as foreign as orange-picking to an Eskimo. High school students will pitch in and even young children will help harvest the smaller

Surgery at Sea Aboard an Army Transport; Doctor Operates Twice, Then Is Operated On

Modern equipment, sanitary conditions and the exercise of constant surveillance to keep patients cool despite tropic temperatures, have made surgical operations aboard United States troop transports as safe as though they were performed in a modern hospital ashore. Five operations within 48 hours were recently performed on one craft carrying troops to the South Pacific. Dr. Alexander S. Angel, lieutenant (MC) USN, performed one appendectomy, assisted in another, and became the patient in a third. Left: Lieutenant Angel operates while a friend of the patient watches and a seaman keeps in contact with the bridge-ready to sound the alarm in case of an emergency. Right: Lieutenant Angel gamely accepting the irony of his situation, relaxes on the operating table for a preliminary examination before having his own appendix successfully removed.

triotic organizations, urging them to volunteer leisure-time hours to save the harvest. The response to these work-pledges has been more than heartening, according to Robert Shelby, manager of the employment office here.

To spur friendly rivalry among civic clubs, the American Can company here has offered a trophy to the civic club which rolls up the greatest number of man hours in the can-making and canning plants on the basis of membership.

Heads of women's organizations have appealed to their memberships to devote as much of their leisuretime as possible to helping to turn out the millions of cans needed for packaging the foodstuffs and then helping to process them.

Provide paper and pencil to all guests and have them pencil their initials lightly on the backs of their papers. Then ask each person to draw the outline of his foot (with or without his shoe). When all are finished, the leader collects papers and distributes them again. Guests are asked to write a character description just from the appearance of the outline. Papers are then relayed to the original owners, and guests find out just what kind of people they

GOD SHOWS HIS PEOPLE THE WAY

LESSON TEXT-Exodus 13:17-22; 15-17-GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation.— Exodus 15:2.

The destinies of the nations are in the hands of God. Warriors are mighty in battle, counselors are quick to declare their wisdom, and diplomats are clever in the manipulation of wealth and people. But when they have all exercised to the limit their ingenuity and power they have only succeeded in bringing us 'blood, sweat and tears' as the portion of all mankind.

Israel was about to be delivered from the bondage of Egypt, and God through His leader Moses was ready to be their guide. Even so He guides every believer in Christ. We may learn three things from this lesson. I. God Has a Plan (Exod. 13:

There was a direct, easy road along the coast of the Mediterranean up to Canaan, but God with His pillar of cloud and fire did not lead out in that way.

How strange that He should take them by a longer, more difficult way! Not at all. He knew the danger of the easy way. It was there that the warlike Philistines would be lying in ambush. Such immediate conflict would discourage Israel and tempt them to return to the fleshpots of Egypt. So He took them the other way.

Note that God's guidance for them was one of intelligent planning, not just impulse or chance. He knew what to do, and He did it, for their

God has a plan, not only for the nations, but also for individuals, for your life and mine. Let us find His will for us, for it is good, acceptable and perfect (Rom. 12:1, 2).

Note the honoring of the faith of Joseph in God's promise (v. 19). The memory of his assurance was a blessing to his descendants, and they honored it and him. What will our descendants have to say about our faith in God?

II. God Provides Guidance (Exod. 13:20-22).

God's plan is made known to His people as they follow Him step by step. This means that there must be guidance, moment by moment, if His plan is to be worked out. He gives such guidance and it is only when His children fail to follow it that the pattern of life becomes con-

The field of divine guidance is one in which Christians have widely divergent experiences. Some know the er holds a cobra by the neck with vergent experiences. Some know the sweet, unconfused daily experience Opinions differ as to whether or not of God's hand upon them, caring for even the minor details (or are they minor?) of life. Others have known the directive power of God in some life crisis, but not in the ordinary affairs of life. Many, and perhaps most, think of divine guidance as a spiritual theory of which the preacher talks, but know nothing of it in their own lives.

What makes this great difference? Faith-or the lack of it. Those who trust God accept and receive His blessed leadership moment by moment. It is as simple as that. Others reach out and take it when the pressure of life makes them cast themselves on God. Others simply muddle along "doing their best," which is not their best, for God is not in it.

The pillar of cloud, which became luminous at night, was ideal for the guidance of Israel. It provided shade by day from the hot sun, and a sure guide in the darkness of the night.

III. God Gives Joyous Victory (Exod. 15:17-22a).

Israel soon came against the insurmountable barrier (humanly speaking) of the Red sea. Then Pharaoh, regretting that he had released them, came up after theman impossible situation, and the people began to berate Moses. This time he stood fast in his faith and said: "Stand still and see the salvation of Jehovah"-and it came!

Then followed the song of victorious joy, which Moses wrote and the people sang. Deliverance brings joy, and forget it not, God is able to deliver those who put their trust in Him.

The application to our spiritual lives is a blessed one. Setting out on God's way does not mean that one will not have trials. They come, and quickly. We do not get farther than our Red sea when the world sees an opportunity to draw us back and comes charging at us from the rear, like Pharaoh. What to do? Trust God, and He will drown the Pharaoh who pursues you in the very Red sea which is now your difficulty. He will bring you through dryshod if you count on Him.

Fearful, fretting, fussing Christian, why not "stand still" and let God work out your salvation. You cannot bear the burdens of all the world. He can, and will set you free so that you too may go forward

To Our Customers..

Due to conditions beyond our control, we are forced to discontinue our home delivery of milk and cream for the duration.

We will deliver fresh pasteurized and raw milk and cream to all independent grocers in East Tawas and Tawas City daily.

We are equipping the stores with HANDY CARTON CARRIERS for the convenience of our customers who purchase milk or cream at the stores.

We greatly appreciate your patronage in the past and trust that you will continue to use our quality dairy products.

As soon as conditions permit, we will resume home de-
