"You'll like this place," Pete said. A man on the sidewalk motioned him to an empty space and opened the door.

"Local touch for that old louse Hawley of The New York Chroni-cle, Miss Heywood," Pete remarked taking her arm. "You give these birds a nickel and they watch your car all night. If you don't they cut your tires, or so I'm told."

They were back again where she and Miguel had been with the girl watching them from across the street. The table they'd sat at was empty. Anne passed it quickly and went to one in the corner under the towering majolica vase. She sat down and glanced around so she wouldn't have to speak for a moment. It was funny how clear it had all been-clearer than the present moment by far. The nostalgic sentimental ballad a Mexican girl was singing with the orchestra heightened it sharply for her. The room was pleasantly crowded, gay and noisy. That seemed to heighten it too.

Pete looked at her, worried. He'd thought she would like it, because he did. And she wasn't herself at. all. He watched her eyes moving around the room, and saw them stop, darkening an instant as they reached the bar. He looked around. A man in a wrinkled white linen suit was standing there, his back to them. In the mirror Pete caught dom these days is the specialty shop or department that caters to a bride-to-be clientele. What with brides and more brides, designers are all of a dither trying to keep pace with the demand for wedding finery.

To have or not to have a picture wedding gown in gleaming satin or lace, or an exquisite white sheer styled with a traditional train of infinite grace, along with all the little ecstasies of an entrancing veil, a bonny bouquet together with an important jewel (gift of the fairy prince of her dreams); that's the problem that confronts many a bride-to-be during the present challenging wartime period.

It is surprising, so say experts who are making trousseaux their theme, how the urge persists for traditional white gowns of the dream-come-true type, and it's the summery sheers, rayons and cottons that are in the spotlight.' Some of the most beguiling are of either frosted or plain organdies, effective eyelet embroidery, starched chiffon or dainty marquisette. The inspiring thing about these 100 per cent lovely white sheers is they give maximum beauty at minimum cost. The fact that they tune to wartime budgeting and that they are made of materials not included in wartime rulings adds greatly to their lure.

Are Practical Sunback dresses have set a new record in popularity. The interest shown in them this summer has been very genuine and sincere, in that women are appreciating more and more the value of sun rays as health giving. The fact that the sunback dress is in almost every event accompanied with either a matching or a contrast bolero, or some other type of short easily removable jacket, adds to its practicality. Wearing the jacket, one has a perfect costume for general wear throughout the active hours of the day. As an outgrowth of this trend, take note of the sunback-halter styling given to a type of new blouses that are making conversation this season. You'll find these modish sun-inviting blouses comfortable to wear with jacket, skirt or slacks suits and they have an advantage over the dickey in that the Scientists have found that rubber is the only substance that can be stretched tremendously and resume approximately its original form. Too much stretching, such as in underinflated tires, causes "fatigue" -and deterioration.

The first manufacture of rubber footwear outside the United States took place in 1856 in Scotland.

If gasoline consumption is a gauge of tire wear, more miles are run in July and August than any other months. Of the gas used in 1941, 9.5% was consumed in August and 9.4% in July. February was the low month, with 6.4% of the year's total.

Old Buildings Can Be Weatherproofed

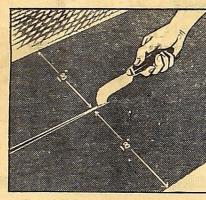

Asphalt Roofing Paper Will Seal Up Chinks

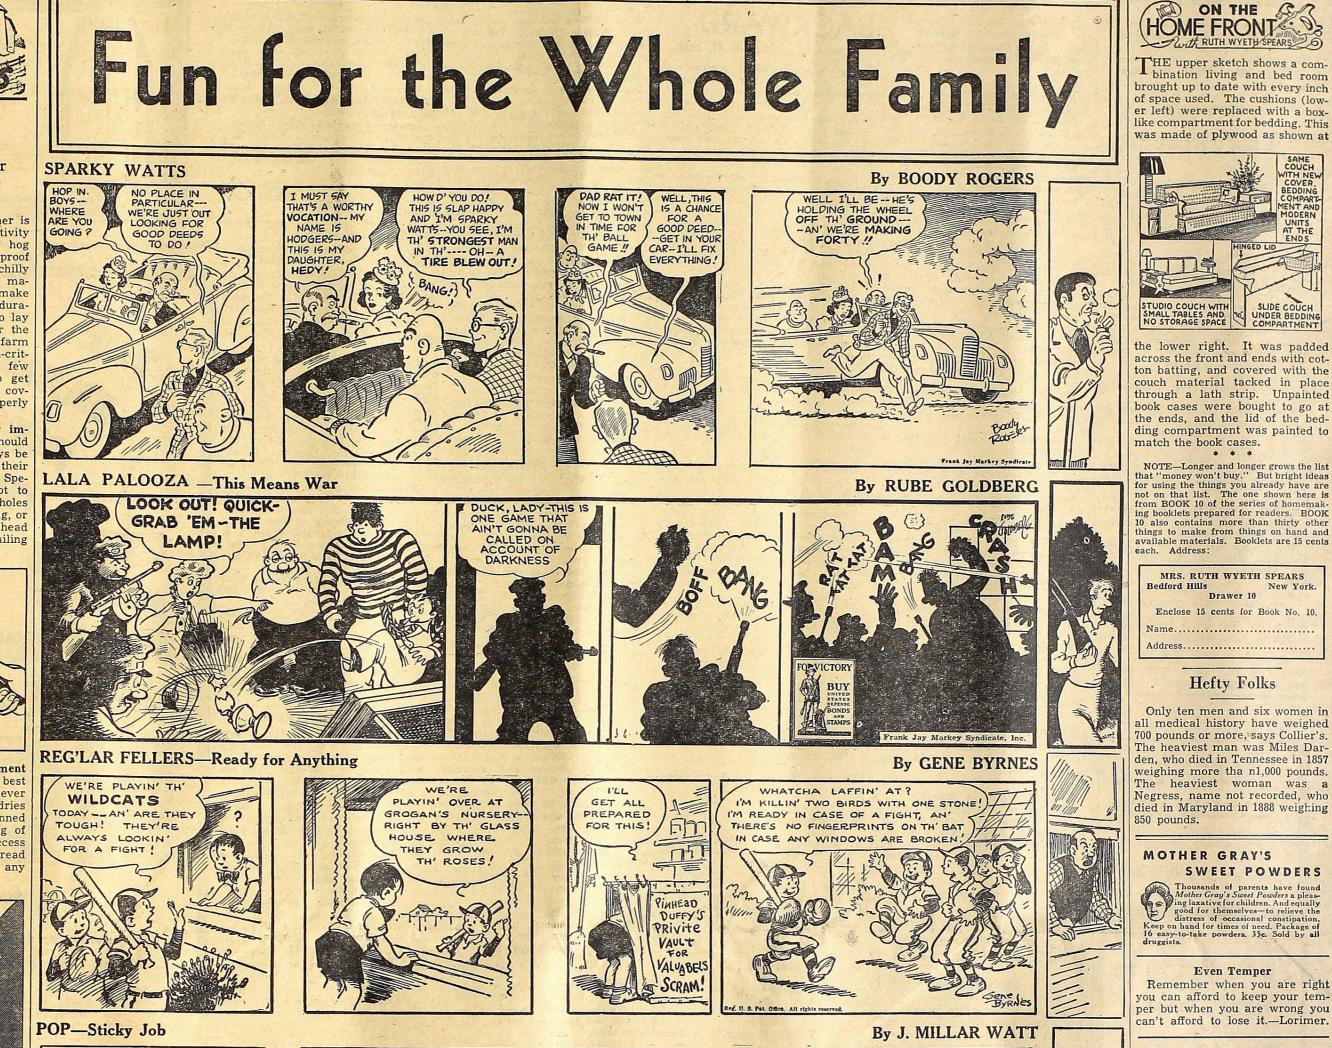

Protection against the weather is vital to the health and productivity of livestock. Poultry houses, hog houses and barns should be proof against infiltrations of rain or chilly drafts. As lumber is critical material the farmer must try to make present structures do for the duration. One way to do this is to lay asphalt roll roofing right over the old walls of weather-beaten farm buildings. This material is non-critical and easily applied if a few basic rules are followed. To get real service from the new wall covering, however, it must be properly applied.

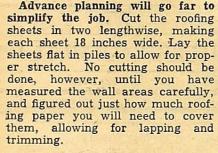

The choice of nails is very im-portant. Only rustproof nails should be used and these should always be driven in straight to prevent their tearing the roofing material. Special care should be taken not to drive them into cracks or knot holes when working over old sheathing, or they will work loose. Large head roofing nails are best for nailing laps.

Proper application of lap cement is another essential. It works best when lukewarm and should never be heated over a fire. If it dries out from standing, it can be thinned with naphtha. Tight cementing of all laps is necessary to the success of the finished job. Never spread the cement too thin or skimp any spots between laps.

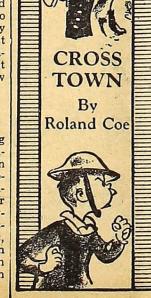

Apply the sheets vertically. Begin the nailing in one corner. Then straighten out the roofing sheet, stretch it horizontally and allow it to hang smooth. Nail from the top down on both sides, stretching the roofing as you go along. Nails should be alternated, one side and then the other, and the roofing should be allowed to hang free with no attempt to distort or shape it.

Care of the new sidewalls is a simple matter. If they are properly applied they will provide good weather protection for years to come. No painting is necessary when the roofing sheets are first put on, but to prolong their life indefinitely it is well to apply a coat of asphalt roof coating every few years.

Rubber From Wheat

Every American grain-producing farm is a potential "rubber planta-tion," says S. L. Fisher, a grain buyer for Schenley Distillers corporation. Butadiene, the principal ingredient in the synthetic rubber process, can be obtained as a byproduct in the distillation of industrial alcohol from grain. In tests, wheat from one harvest has been converted into rubber tires which were used on tractors working on the following harvest.

Gaunt, gray Bernie Baruch, whose relentless prodding of the war ef-fort has saved more lives than anyone can estimate, is worried over a lot of things besides tanks, airplanes and machine guns. Among other things he is worried over the human problem of readjusting the lives of people who have flooded cities, who have been thrown out of joint by the war.

Sitting on his park bench in La-fayette park, where he holds "offrom all over the U. S. A., dumped duration. into government offices, into crowded boarding houses, and wonders war is over.

Baruch won't tell you-but his friends will-about how he handled this problem after the last war.

He had employed several thousand clerks and stenographers in his War Industries board, and after the Armistice he began to worry about whether these girls were going back to their homes or would remain in the exciting cities.

So he sent each girl a letter thanking her for the time and loyal work she had given her country. And as a hint that she should go back to her mother he suggested: "Anyone who will apply at my office can re-ceive a railroad ticket back home." Baruch also attached to each letter a $10 bill.

The railroad tickets were paid for out of his own pocket, since the government does not pay for personal transportation, and it cost Baruch many thousands of dollars. He was a little fearful that some of the girls might have taken the tickets, then turned them is to the private the solution could have made an at-tempt. The committee chairmen re-fused to do this. However, he hoped that he might have helped to get at least a fair propor-tion out of the city and back home.

The high cost of living which the coal miners have complained about recently was substantiated by an OPA survey of company stores in western Pennsylvania.

John A. Fath, who made the survey, came back with a report of "exorbitant prices and mark-ups" and insisted that company stores, which do no advertising or sales promotion, should sell their goods at lower prices than other stores, rather than higher.

He found suits selling for $38.50 which cost the store $12.50. He found a shoe box marked $9.95, but inside the box he found the shoes themselves marked with crayon, "$6.50." Result of the survey already has been a voluntary price roll-back in the company stores. Now that the government has taken over the mines, the OPA is moving to make this company store price roll-back not voluntary, but universal.

The War and Racing

Col. Matt Winn took the farsighted view when he insisted that horse racing can do a whole lot more for the war program than it has to date. Racing supplied approximately 3 million dollars in 1942. It is Colonel Winn's contention that the amount should be doubled in '43.

GOD GIVES LAWS FOR HIS PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT-Exodus 23:1-9; Galatians 23-28; 5:13-14.

3:23-28; 5:13-14. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thy-self.—Luke 10:27.

Our God is a God of order. To have order we must have law, hence God gave His people not only the fundamental law of humanity's moral sense of right and wrong, and the Ten Commandments which are the basis of all codes of law, but also those detailed regulations needed for the law's interpretation. The law of God was not intended to establish a legalistic system of salvation by work, but, as revealed in the New Testament, it was to guide and bring us to Christ, in whom it finds its true fulfillment.

These are matters of fundamental importance and suggest the need of a careful study of our three Scripture portions.

I. The Law Established (Exod. 23:1-9).

At Sinai the Israelites were brought into the presence of God in a dramatic and solemn assembly to hear the words of God from the mountain. These were later written as the Ten Commandments on the tables of stone. Here they learned in a new way of the majesty, the righteousness, and the love of God.

The Ten Commandments are recognized as the foundation on which all legal codes, ancient and mod-ern, are built. They cover man's relation to God and his relation to his fellow man. They are unsurpassed as a comprehensive and compact statement of the moral law.

The passage in Exodus 23 gives us some of the rules and regulations for daily life which are in a sense an interpretation of the law. This portion gives us an idea of the type of laws provided by God for His people and reveals "the moral flavor of the whole divine legislation.

The thing which impresses us as we read of the divine requirements of justice toward all, of love for one's enemies, of refraining from false witness, of refusing all brib-ery, is that God's standards are very high.

God's law is good, it is right, of divine quality and perfect purity. It has, however, an even higher purpose than providing direction for life. We learn of that as we hear II. The Law Described (Gal. 3:23-

What was the purpose of the law?

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

If you should twirl the short-wave dials of your radio one of these nights and hear an announcer say: 'This is Colonel Jiro Saito speaking from Manila," listen carefully!

The voice will be that of Japan's ace undercover man, a man you should know if you are to understand how the Tokyo war lords operate, how they are using every possible weapon in their bid for world conquest-trickery as well as troops; propaganda, bribery, fifth columnism and intrigue as well as submarines and airplanes.

And more important, it will be Jiro Saito or somebody very much like him whom the Japs will call on when they are eventually forced to cry "uncle" to Uncle Sam. The Japs don't expect to win their war to conquer the world all at once. What they want now in the Pacific is a stalemate and a negotiated peace that will let them keep part of what they have taken and give them time to prepare for the next step toward world mastery.

When the situation looks ripe, they will "depose" the militarists, put in a "conservative" cabinet of business men and one-time friends of America. They will produce men like Jiro Saito to plead their case, shy, soft-spoken, "so-sorry-for-you" fellows, who will attempt to convince the United States that it was all a mistake and let's be friends again.

When you listen to Jiro Saito's smooth, cultivated voice, speaking in grammatically perfect English, with just an occasional suggestion of Honolulu "pidgin," you will be hearing a man who exemplifies Japanese deceit. Saito is a medium-sized, ro-tund man of 48, with powerful neck and shoulders and with hair trimmed close to his broad pate in traditional Japanese army style. He looks like a typical Jap, but doesn't act like one. He spent his early years in Honolulu. Started Two Wars.

There is nothing of the sword rattler or swashbuckler about him. On the contrary, he is extremely shy. Meeting him in peacetime, you would have thought him a nice, pleasant character, totally unlike the average run of Jap army officer. But Saito has started two wars and stopped one. In his wake, there has always been a trail of bloodshed and tragedy. He was—and undoubtand undoubt edly still is-the Japanese army's first expert on American psychology, its star secret agent, and a one-man fifth column. You can scarcely stick a pin anywhere in the map of Asia without touching a region that has felt Saito's influence; and for the past decade and longer, a large part of Asia has been bathed in blood. Even so, there is no blood on Saito's own pudgy hands. He always gets out of a place before the shooting and bombing start, or he goes in after they have stopped. Indeed, in nearly 30 years in the ill-fitting khaki of the Imperial army, he has never plunged his sword into one of the emperor's enemies, never heard a shot fired except on maneuvers, never commanded troops in the field. The portly colonel was very popular with the American correspondents in Shanghai. Squatting crosslegged at a geisha party, he looked like a bronze statue of a paunchy, heavy-jowled Chinese god, benevolent, but with a metallic quality about him. Saito was especially sentimental about the Hawaiian Islands, where his father was consul general from 1903 to 1910, and where Saito attended private school and McKinley high, class of 1911.

"Producing for Attack" will be the theme of the program, and it will include inspirational broadcasts by President Roosevelt and other top-ranking war leaders.

However, this isn't the only labor show on the OWI schedule this year. Another special celebration for Labor, to be known as "On to Victory" day also will be observed within the next two months.

It was conceived by Maj. Paul Hines, chief of the labor branch of the Fourth Service command at Atlanta, Ga., and promoted by Hervey Allen, author of "Anthony Adverse."

All war plants will be asked to declare an "hour off" on "On to Victory" day, at which time special "War Merit" emblems will be awarded.

Climaxing the "On to Victory" programs will be a nation-wide broadcast in the evening-according to OWI plans-featuring such speakers as President Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Generals MacArthur, Eisenhower and Doolittle and Admirals King and Halsey. Joseph Stalin and General Chiang Kaishek of China also may be invited to take part. All the speakers will have a special message for American labor.

The evening broadcast will conclude with the sounding of taps from the steps of the nation's Capitol, in memory of our war dead, and an answering taps by U. S. buglers in that the Cardinals and Browns Europe and the South Pacific.

the turf world is quite concerned about the matter. Quite a few individuals fear a reformer reaction. And their fears may be justified. Before young Alfred Vanderbilt, Pimlico, was given the nod by Uncle Sam, he came up with a revolutionary suggestion. It was his suggestion that racing give everything above operating expenses and a small percentage, to some war fund. The plan, to put it mildly, was looked upon with utter dislike.

Colonel Winn has a suggestion that shouldn't be frowned upon by the most avaricious. The present racing policy calls for a war-day program at each track. On this particular day all the profits are channeled into the war kitty. Colonel Winn believes this should be doubled and that each track give two days' proceeds.

A large segment of the population continues to regard horse racing as a somewhat dubious enterprise, connected rather vaguely with pool halls, checkered vests and broken families. The industry should set an example without waiting for pressure from the outside. Other sports have done considerably more than racing in proportion to total receipts.

It was and is a servant of God to lead the needy sinner to Christ. The word "tutor" in verse 24 does not refer to one who teaches, but the servant who saw to it that the school boy, possibly a bit reluctant, arrived at his destination.

The law convicts of sin and makes it evident to the repentant one that he needs divine help if he is ever to meet its demands. The law really puts a man in prison (kept in ward," v. 23), and makes him look to Christ to set him free.

When one trusts Christ he comes into the place of a son. He enters upon a spiritual maturity which makes it no longer necessary to have a tutor directing and disciplining him. He has entered into a new relationship by faith, and is a child of God.

Does this mean that the law has been set aside or abrogated? Not at all. Jesus Himself said, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill" (Matt. 5:17). This is our third point.

III. The Law Fulfilled (Gal. 5:13,

Paul had warned against the folly of legalism. In Christ men are free from a slavish bondage to the law. But men, desiring to substitute license for liberty, were using the grace of God as an excuse for selfindulgence and sin.

Christ has set aside all the ceremonial requirements of the law, for He became the perfect, once-for-all sacrifice for sin, which was infinite-ly superior to all the offerings of the Old Testament law. He thus fulfilled the type of the offerings. The moral requirements of the law were gathered up in Him, and in Him we have only one law to fulfill, the law of love. Obedience to that law meets all the moral requirements of the Old Testament law.

Liberty to the Christian is not a freedom to do as he pleases, not "an occasion to the flesh" that it may live in selfishness and sin. We are free only to be bound by the blessed law of love.

The tablets of stone were (and still are) important. Their laws have never been set aside or withdrawn. But in Christ God has done what He spoke of through Jeremiah the prophet, He has put His law in the Christian's inner being, and has written it in his heart. (Jer. 31:33).

"I feel more at home in Honolulu than any place in the world," the colonel told me.

By the summer of 1941, Japan decided it was time to drop the mask and take over southern Indo-China, which she needed as a jumping-off place for attacks on Singapore and the Dutch East Indies, and to protect her flank while she assaulted the Philippines.

Once again, the advance agent of empire was-you guessed it-Jiro Saito.

The colonel did his usual backstage job in Saigon, the capital of southern Indo-China. Then he emerged into the open as head of the military mission to supervise occupation of the strategic southern portion of the French colony.

The occupation of Saigon finally awakened the United States to the seriousness of Japan's penetration of southeastern Asia. But by then, it was too late. The Japanese had seized their springboards. They were ready for war.

We were soon to face the tragedies of Bataan and Pearl Harbor.

Air Aces Depend on 'Grease Monkeys'

'Keep 'Em Flying' at Battlefronts After 21-Week Course

Unspectacular, little publicized, are the grease monkeys of the United States marine corps. These men are appreciated most by the pilots whose success on every missionwhose very lives, in fact-depend upon these highly trained mechanics and aviation metalsmiths.

At the Naval Air Technical Training center in Chicago, these men behind the planes are taught the function as fast moving ground crews that keep the marine flying aces in the air.

aces in the air. "The things you learn here are the things that keep airplanes fly-ing," Maj. Joe Foss, the marine top ace of this war, said to these men. "Out on the front, there are no hangars—you're right in the middle of it all the time."

Under the command of Lieut. Col. Carlton Hill, USMC, commanding officer of the marine aviation detachments in Chicago, men undergo 21 weeks of intensive study and shop work before they go into the field.

Aviation machinists learn all there is to know about the mechanical parts of a plane. First comes a twoweeks' basic course and then more specialized work; training in the use of hand tools and a complete working knowledge of all parts of an airplane. Mathematics, mechanical drawing, blue print reading, propeller construction - these and many other basic mechanical principles are learned. Later comes three weeks of motor top overhaul and three weeks in motor assembly. The final four weeks of training take in actual line operations.

The aviation metalsmith is taught an even more specialized type of work than the machinist. He receives the two weeks' basic course, but his training in the use of hand tools is far more extensive. A full 10-weeks' course in sheet metal work follows. He makes his own tool kit, and learns to repair all metal parts of an airplane. A nine-weeks' course in welding winds up the schedule.

Ordinarily, 21 weeks of study and shopwork would make a man go "soft." But not here. These marines are kept in shape by "Accelerated Calisthenics," one of the toughest of combat conditioning courses, which includes bayonet and knife fighting, jiu-jitsu, wrestling, boxing and obstacle course races.

All this work has its compensations, for upon graduation, the top 25 per cent of the class are made corporals. The remaining graduates are advanced to Private First Class. In addition, the men have a trade which will stand them in good stead after the war.

After putting the dissembled, cleaned, lubricated motor back in the plane, these machinists go over their work with a thoroughness motivated by the knowledge that the life of an American flier depends upon them. These men are trained to work just as carefully at a front where they constantly are sending planes out to meet the enemy.

However, if you plan to wait until your return to town in the fall, you had better arrange a date early in the week before the wedding as the prospective bride will probably be very busy. Set a date, with her, before you go away.
