Household Hints

To avoid losing a handkerchief placed under a bed pillow, try sewing a pocket on one side of the pillow case.

Spaghetti, macaroni, noodles, rice, are high in carbohydrates and should be counted with the cereals and breads, not as vegetables, when planning and balancing your menus.

When your shoes are wet, crumple newspaper and pack in the shoes. This will absorb the moisture and also help keep the shoes in shape. Do not place too near the fire.

To sprinkle clothes for ironing, use a clean whisk broom or a bottle with a perforated top.

When washing fails to remove stains on your oven try using ammonia. Saturate a cloth pad, place it over the stain, and let it stand. After about two hours, you can wipe away most or all of the stain. Wash the oven thoroughly with soap suds after using ammonia.

Three tablespoons of light molasses substituted for three tablespoons of the liquid used in making bread pudding will add much to the flavor of the pudding.

Destruction of Hamburg

By Walter Taub
 (WNW Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Four hundred refugees from Hamburg are now in Sweden, eyewitnesses of the greatest havoc that ever smote any human settlement. The first attack on Hamburg was delivered on the night of July 24. The attack was concentrated against anti-aircraft batteries, with excellent results. Most of the batteries were silenced in a few minutes.

Then, say these eyewitnesses, came an absolute novelty in the history of bombing—bearing witness to the scientific care devoted to planning the attack. Special reconnaissance planes appeared over the city, picking out certain industrially important sections with green flares dropped by parachutes.

These flares hovered like bunches of grapes in the air and aided the bombers coming in afterward to drop their explosives in a square around the section thus marked, so that buildings for whole blocks collapsed and all roads and communications between that section and the remainder of the city were choked off.

This was not done to prevent the inhabitants from getting out, but to hinder the transfer of firemen and fire-fighting apparatus from other sections in the effort to save war-important buildings and their contents.

When communications were thus closed, there began a rain of incendiaries that spread fires over such a large area that practically the whole section was drowned in flames. The work of air defense on this and the following nights was enormously hampered by this simple but effective means which, as far as I know, was applied here for the first time.

'Dazzling Paper' Dropped.
 Mrs. Anna Johansson, a refugee in Malmoe, refers also to "sheets of paper, black on one side and dazzling silver on the other, dropped by thousands from the bombers." Twenty-five other Hamburg Swedes attest to the correctness of her statement. Air-defense searchlight beams were reflected all ways from these sheets, thus being prevented from reaching the raiding aircraft with full intensity and making the job of locating them much more difficult.

The first assault was directed at the inner town. The free port, covering an area of more than 3,500 acres, naturally was not spared during this 90-minute attack, but not until the next raid on Sunday, a day later, was the most devastating blow directed at this pride of Hamburg.

That Sunday, Hamburg displayed an unusual appearance. Even in the forenoon, giant clouds of smoke and dust enveloped the whole town, darkening the sky. Then the sirens screamed, and a big formation of American bombers reduced to ashes the continent's biggest shipyards.

These were the plants of Blohm and Voss, Vulkanwerft and Howaldts-werft—where the biggest steamers are built, repaired and docked.

Monday night, during the fresh British attack, the big gas plant in the harbor section received a direct hit. That terrible explosion deprived the city of gas.

RAF Keeps Promise.
 That evening, none among Hamburg's 1,700,000 inhabitants was willing to retire to bed, for the RAF had dropped leaflets promising a repetition of Sunday's raid on Tuesday. Hamburgers, from whom Hitler was once compelled to admit he had received the most "no" votes, always listen to the British radio and they know, therefore, that "the British keep their promises."

On Tuesday morning at 11:30, the few remaining sirens screamed. The attack began at 12:30. The raid lasted only half an hour, but it sufficed to convert Hamburg into a veritable sea of fire. With the central mains destroyed, hundreds of thousands of those leaving the shelters would have given a fortune for a glass of water. The heat was unbearable, in a wind storm like a typhoon. The giant bonfire resulted in a rapid consumption of oxygen. Terrible fire storms resulted in areas where a few minutes earlier complete calm had prevailed.

Wednesday morning, the city like a mass of fire lay in ruins and ashes. Sections housing 300,000 people were razed to the ground.

The main railroad station, Saint Georg, was a terrible sight on Wednesday, with charred railroad cars on sidings and unrecognizably smashed automobiles.

A Swedish girl saw people blazing from phosphorus cast themselves into water—but the phosphorus burned there equally well. Lime was strewn on the corpses scattered about the streets, and the odor of death lay heavy over the whole town.

Liquor From Rug

New Jersey liquor board agents literally wrung evidence out of a rug—enough, anyway, to cause a woman to be fined $15 on a charge of possessing untaxed alcohol. Raiding the woman's home, agents found several broken bottles on a carpet which was suspiciously damp. They decided on the squeeze play.

This is a 'Corker'

Here's a story that may well be termed a "corker." Recently Robert E. Adams of Shreveport, La., mourned the disappearance of $40—his whole week's pay. He considered himself a "hard-luck guy." A happy ending came later, however, when he found the money—in his cork leg. Adams said he apparently had put the money in his trousers pocket in which there was a hole, and the money fell through into the artificial limb.

Urge to Kick Cop

The Very Rev. Edmund J. Reilly of a Brooklyn church found a note on the collection plate signed "Patrick Gunn," inviting the good man to step outside after mass for a fist fight . . . In Minneapolis a pretty woman walked up to a policeman and without ado kicked him smartly on the shin. He said "ouch," and she let him have another. Her explanation for such quaint conduct was simple. "All my life," she told the judge, "I've wanted to kick a cop."

AXIS MORALE IS CRACKING

Military reports that have leaked out of Germany in the past two or three weeks indicate quite definitely that Nazi morale is cracking. These reports, through channels which cannot be revealed, were quite definite even before Propaganda Minister Goebbels delivered his gibe-awards speech warning that saboteurs on the home front would be beheaded.

Reports also are definite that the German army no longer has the reserves, no longer has the fighting backbone for a long war. Resentment against Hitler boils beneath the surface in the German army. German soldiers will keep on fighting, and are toughly trained, desperately hitting adversaries. But their heart isn't in it anymore.

All these factors, plus powerful wallops by the Allies, have created an atmosphere in which anything might happen. It is an atmosphere not unlike that which existed in the autumn of 1918. There are those in high places who think the war in Europe might be over anytime this winter, depending entirely on Nazi morale.

But in Asia the war is moving at a snail's pace. In Burma, though the rains are already over, nothing has happened. Many observers think that nothing will happen until late this winter, and that the real drive through Burma toward South China will be reserved for a year from now—the fall of 1944.

WILL ROGERS IN LONDON

Congressman Will Rogers of California, son of the cowboy humorist, came back from London singing the praises of American-British co-operation in England.

American troops, which he described as the new "Army of Occupation," live off the fat of the land and are treated royally by the British. There is nothing too good for them. Only trouble is they occasionally take a girl away from a British Tommy.

Will's father was a frequent visitor in London, and everyone remembered him. So it was like old home week for the young congressman from California.

BRITISH IDLE OIL

Maine's eagle-eyed Senator Brewster met Gen. B. B. Somervell, chief of the army's service forces on the Pacific island of Fiji, immediately tackled him on the dynamite-laden, all-important question of why the U.S.A. was supplying nearly 70 per cent of all Allied oil, though we have only 25 per cent of the world's oil reserves.

"Right around the Persian Gulf," reminded Senator Brewster, "the British have oil refineries and limitless quantities of oil. Why don't we get more oil out of the Near East instead of hauling it all the way from Texas?"

"We are rushing refining equipment to Arabia as quickly as we can," replied General Somervell.

"Yes," countered the senator from Maine, "but why use precious shipping space carting refining equipment half way around the world when the British already have a refinery at the Gulf of Persia. The manager of the Anglo-Persian oil company told us that his refinery could produce 60 per cent more oil. Why not put it to work instead of exhausting our own oil reserves?"

"Furthermore," Brewster continued, "the crude oil from Persian wells is so good that it can be pumped right into ships as bunker oil without refining. If we don't get busy and use it, we'll wake up after the war to find the United States with no oil left, and dependent on the British Empire."

CABOOSE SLEEPERS

Cornfed Senator Ed Johnson of Colorado got his start as a railroad telegrapher, still proudly carries a union card. So he was well qualified to preside over the War Mobilization committee when A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, testified on manpower and other railroad problems.

Whitney objected to the policy of some railroads in refusing to let train crews sleep in idle cabooses. Trainmen away from home frequently can't get hotel accommodations, but railroad officials argue that it is unsanitary and also dangerous for them to sleep in "cabs," which sometimes have to be switched.

"When I was a working trainman, we always lived in our cabooses," Whitney said, "not because rooms were not available at hotels, but because it was more convenient."

"Many's the time I have slept in cabooses myself," reminisced Johnson.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

American doughboys in Iran have found a good way to dodge U. S. military police and get out of camp at night. They take advantage of the Mohammedan custom of veiling their women, and slip on a full-length, cover-all veil which Iranian women wear from head to toe. Military police have been instructed to protect Iranian women and prevent all flirting, so they don't dare stop a veiled figure to ask her (or him) to lower the veil, and see whether an American doughboy is behind it.

Italian Scenes Preceding New War Declaration

Thirty-five days after surrendering to the Allies, Italy declared war on her former Axis partner, Germany. Marshal Pietro Badoglio announced the declaration and said that German ferocity had "surpassed every limit of human imagination" at Naples. In picture above, British anti-aircraft units are shown covering the arrival of troops near the Chiunzi pass, gateway to that city. Inset: After the fall of Naples, Italians mobbed a car carrying three fascist generals who had been in charge of defenses there. The generals had co-operated with the Germans and required Allied protection from the angry Italian masses.

Yankees in Germany Fare Better Than Civilians

A visiting delegate of the War Prisoners Aid of the YMCA made these photographs of captured American soldiers at a German prison camp southeast of Berlin. The prison camp fare plus weekly 1½ pound food packages from the American Red Cross give the interned Yankees a better diet than that of German civilians. Top left: Prisoners receive Red Cross food parcels. Bottom left: American prisoners lined up before the mess hall. Some wear British uniforms because theirs were worn out or destroyed in battle. IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 31

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON ABSTINENCE (International Temperance Sunday)

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 10:1, 2, 8-11; Proverbs 31:4, 5; Luke 1:13-16. GOLDEN TEXT—Beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink—Judges 13:4.

Total abstinence from all alcoholic liquors is the only sensible and effective policy for Christian people. Some, who want to use alcohol themselves, like to stress the Bible's teaching of temperance. They point to the use of wine on the part of people in biblical times, although they fail to note that more often than not it was non-alcoholic. (See "The Bible and Wine," published by Loizeaux Brothers.)

Another thing they ignore is that we live in a different day with a mechanized society, when alcoholic beverages are offered through high pressure advertising and in highly distilled and potent form.

What we are most interested in is what the Bible teaches about the matter. We note that—

I. For Spiritual Obedience (Lev. 10:1-2, 8-11).

In the religious life of a nation one expects the leaders to set the example for the people to follow. Two things we may rightly demand of those who serve the nation in its religious life: (1) a vision of God and obedience to that vision in life and service, and (2) the exercise of sound, God-guided judgment in the affairs of the people.

But note what happens when the prophet and the priest turn to wine and strong drink. They err in vision (Isa. 28:7). That is, they have no clear concepts of divine truth, and lead the people into error. Further, we see that "they stumble in judgment."

To every true servant of God comes repeatedly the opportunity and the need of rendering judgment, that is, of advising and counseling those to whom he ministers. If his mind is befuddled by the use of alcohol (or, for that matter, by any other kind of worldly indulgence) he will "stumble," and cause his people to stumble.

A sad incident is related in Leviticus 10:1, 2, of the sons of Aaron. We are not told directly that they were intoxicated, but it is implied in the fact that there is an immediate injunction against the use of wine by the priests (Lev. 10:8-11).

II. For National Order (Prov. 31: 4, 5).

It is a notorious fact that the liquor interests strongly influence the political life of a nation. (See "The Wrecking of the 18th Amendment," by Ernest Gordon.)

While political leaders may make sanctimonious protestation that government agencies are not influenced by the liquor interests, it is common knowledge even to those who are slightly informed that the two are closely associated.

The result of that unholy alliance is rightly described in Proverbs 31:5—"They . . . forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted." Much of the sad disorder in the body politic is traceable directly to the door of the makers and sellers of alcoholic beverages.

It is a depressing and disturbing thing when the leaders of a nation are known to lean on alcoholic stimulants—the broken reed on which man can only be pierced. The destructive influence of their example can be imagined.

III. For Personal Usefulness (Luke 11:13-16).

John was to be born into a life of such blessed usefulness to God and man that he was to be a "joy and gladness" to his parents, "great in the sight of the Lord," and instrumental in turning "many of the children of Israel . . . to the Lord."

Such a life is worthy of emulation on the part of every young man and woman. What is the secret of it? Undoubtedly, fine Christian parentage had much to do with it.

Other elements also entered in, such as rearing and training, but of great importance was the fact (v. 15) that he was not to be driven by the false stimulants of this world, but by the infilling of the Holy Spirit of God. No "wine nor strong drink," but being "filled with the Holy Ghost"—there, young people, is the secret of a happy and useful life.

Note that John was to be "great in the sight of the Lord" (v. 15)—nothing finer or more distinctive could be said about a man. That greatness simply could not exist along with indulgence in "wine nor strong drink." Being filled with the Spirit precludes the use of intoxicants.

Let us bear that in mind when we are tempted to be led astray by the smooth arguments of those who talk "temperance" as a ground for indulgence. Our boys and girls—yes, our men and women—need a constant warning against the evils of alcoholic liquor. (See Alcohol, a Deceiver, Depraver and Destroyer, published by Moody Press, Chicago.)

PEAKING OF PORTS

By Bob Melham. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

IN A recent piece dealing with Frankie Sinkwich, top college football player of 1942 who signed recently with the Detroit Lions, we were guilty of underestimating the educational and cultural aspects of the National Football league.

We said that "there have been plenty of big names in college ranks who failed in their professional careers. In fact, most of the top professional teams consist of individuals who never bothered going to college."

We were wrong. Just how wrong is proved by a gently demonstrative letter from George Strickler, able director of public relations for the league. His correction:

"Since Dick Schweider left the Bears several seasons ago there has not been a single player in our league who has not had three years of college football experience. This fall a number of promising youngsters, whose experience had been limited to high school football, went to the various camps and as far as I know now—pending a final check on the approved rosters—there is only one left.

"All other players now active in the league have been to college. Last year, 91 per cent of our players had college degrees."

We apologize to the erudite players of the National league. However, we were never guilty of underestimating their football playing abilities.

Football's Future

Further word comes from Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference, who is exceedingly optimistic concerning the future—immediate and distant—of college football.

College football, according to Major Griffith, has been kicked around since Pearl Harbor by "peacetime enemies and other self-appointed pallbearers," but has survived its various acid tests with flying colors. He feels that the 1943 season is destined to be one of the most successful.

According to Major Griffith, football's greatest victory since the United States entered the war has been over influences, both within and without colleges, that would banish the game from the American scene even in peacetimes.

"Many of the old peacetime arguments against football have been revived since Pearl Harbor," Major Griffith recalls. "One of the fallacious arguments of the opposition was that if a handful of boys were not allowed to play in intercollegiate competition—such as football, basketball, track and baseball—more students would get a chance to participate in widespread intramural activities.

The Old Argument

"Since Pearl Harbor this argument has popped up to show that if football, which admittedly conditions varsity team members, were abandoned on an intercollegiate scale, more of the men students awaiting call by the armed forces would benefit physically from de-emphasized intramural sports.

"The argument is no better in wartime than it was before the war. Such schools as Michigan, Minnesota, Indiana, Purdue and others which are carrying on their intercollegiate schedules have intramural programs just as comprehensive—if not more so—than schools which have abandoned intercollegiate programs."

The "give-the-game-back-to-the-students" cry is little more than sound and fury. It is recalled that at Harvard university, where 1943 intercollegiate football was dropped, students organized their own team and challenged Yale.

The thought wasn't original with Major Griffith, but he summarized it excellently when he noted that "football and other intercollegiate sports were started originally by students. College administrations later assumed supervision over the games, to exercise a much-needed control."

The point is a good one. Intercollegiate athletics were not a faculty affair in the beginning. College officials began to supervise football when it was in the doldrums—when vicious mass plays were accounting for far too many casualties.

THE "Sunflower" is one of the easiest of the quilt designs to make—the diamond-shaped pieces are easy to cut and a block works up quickly. Use brown-flecked percales, tiny patterned cream and yellow calicoes, grass-green and leaf-green cottons. Do the center in vivid yellow. Quilt has 12 pieced blocks, each 14 inches square—12 plain blocks.

To obtain cutting patterns for the Sunflower Quilt (Pattern No. 5161) complete piecing and finishing directions, amounts of all materials specified, send 16 cents in coins, your name and address and the pattern number.

A new portable photographic flashlight, using a mercury lamp about the size of a cigarette, goes on and off in one millionth of a second, and it can "freeze" the action of a wheel making 70,000 revolutions a minute, says Collier's. While the life of this lamp is only one second, it will provide a million flashes or the number used in 10 years by 20 busy newspaper photographers.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

In the 45 years between 1889 and 1934, the output of rubber plants jumped from half a ton to 98 per cent of the world's supply—1934 shipments were 1,000,000 tons. The first official record, that for 1899, shows that four tons of rubber were produced from 4000 acres under cultivation.

The greatest enemies to the long life of natural rubber are sunlight, heat, oils, greases and solvents. The ultra-violet rays of the sun penetrate the surface of rubber, causing it to oxidize; heat causes deterioration, and oils develop swelling and softening, making the rubber more susceptible to damage.
