'WORLD PARISH DAYS' WILL BE HELD NOV. 11-12

Meetings at Tawas City and Hemlock Baptist Churches

"World Parish Day" meetings will be held Thursday, November 11, at the Tawas City Baptist church, and Friday, November 12, at the Hemlock Road Baptist church, announced Rev. Paul H. Dean, pastor of the two churches, today. "Because of the general condition of the world this year," Rev. Dean said, "the Michigan State Baptist Convention thought it advisable to give up the denominational convention, and bring the convention to each local church. That is what we mean when we say 'World Parish Day.'"

"These parish days will be held November 11 at the Tawas City Baptist church, and November 12 at the Hemlock Road Baptist church. The program will begin at 2:00 p. m. and run through the evening. Local church members will take an active part, and the program will be taken up mainly by local talent. It will consist of special numbers in music, a special message by the pastor, "Our Church and its Larger Parish." A denominational representative from state headquarters will be here. This representative is Rev. Drury Martin, director of rural convention churches. A representative of our own Baptist mission board, who is the Rev. R. T. Capen, will be present. He has been a missionary in South China for 38 years, and left there since the war began. He will be on the program both in the afternoon and evening.

"During the day there will also be a special service for our men and women in the armed forces.

"Another feature of the program will be the 'Fellowship Supper' at six o'clock. There will be an interesting program at the tables, which will include a message from the ladies' division, one from the young people, and another from a Christian layman.

"An exhibit will also be prepared of things interesting our people. The exhibit will include pictures of former pastors, of those in the armed forces, local groups at work, old Bibles and such like. A history of the local church will be given during the day.

"Local committees are very busy laying plans for the convention comes to our church. Those on the local committee are:

Dinner Committee—Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Albert Howitson.

History of Church—Miss Patricia Braddock.

Decorating Committee—Mrs. Chas. Quick, Mrs. Walter Moeller.

"Practically the same kind of a program will be carried out at the Hemlock Road church. Of course, changes in the personnel of local will be made, but the main speakers will be the same. The committee heads at Hemlock are:

Registration—Mrs. Wm. Herriman.

Dinner—Mrs. Clarence Earl.

Decoration and Exhibit — Mrs. Miller.

Music—Mrs. Victor Herriman.

History of Church—Mrs. Victor Herriman, Mrs. Fred Pfahl, Mrs. John Burt.

"At the Hemlock service, we hope to dedicate our new Service Flag during the special services for our men and women in the service," Rev. Dean said.

"The public is invited to attend any or all the sessions of these Parish Days if they desire. To do so. Let us remember all time of services will be the slow time.

Goodale Attends State AAA Meeting

Harry A. Goodale, chairman of the AAA, attended a three day meeting in Lansing on October 18, 19 and 20, for the purpose of setting the 1944 Crop Goals and getting information on the 1944 program. Mr. Goodale was very much impressed with the way the 1944 goals are being set up, as the AAA chairmen were given the job of setting these goals up with no one higher up telling them what they had to do.

He says the AAA chairmen are in the best position to know what the farmers can do on this food production job, and know the farmers' problems. Mr. Goodale and 12 other county chairmen, all from heavy dairy producing counties, worked out the dairy goal for Michigan. They set the dairy goal for cows at 1,016,000. This is an increase of 2 per cent over 1943. They set the goal for milk at 5,500,000,000 pounds. Also they say the dairy feed adjustment program is necessary and should be continued in 1944.

Strive for Quota In United War Fund Drive

Nathan Barkman, chairman of the Iosco County United War Fund, announced today that every effort is being made by volunteer workers in soliciting funds to see that the county quota is met.

Over half of these funds will be used for the U. S. O., and every family in our county is directly or indirectly effected through their sons, brothers, daughters or sisters who are in the various branches of the armed services.

To date our county has met and passed its quota in War Bonds, and it will reflect back on us stay-at-homes if we fail to back our armed forces one hundred per cent. If you have not made your cheerful gift, it will be appreciated now. If you have already given, and wish to assist further, it will also be appreciated.

The quota for Tawas City is $600.00. Mrs. Walter Moeller has collected $202.00 in the first ward, Mrs. Jack Lansky collected $88.00 in the third ward, and to date, Mrs. Russell Rollin reports $102.00 for the second ward. Donations can be left with any one of the solicitors or their assistants.

East Tawas reports a collection of $715.00 towards its quota of $925.00. No reports have been received as yet for the rest of the county, but the committee hopes it will be possible to meet the quotas in each township and city.

The Consumers Power Co., Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and D. & M. R. R. Co., have advised L. G. McKay, treasurer of the fund that they are forwarding remittances with their donations as companies.

Miss Arlene Leslie of this city recently received a letter from Lieut. Dorothea Arnold, army nurse in Africa, which she shares with her friends. It is as follows:

Dear Arlene: Well, today I wondered if you had taken walk, as I know you don't have much gas to get around the county. So if you will, take a look up the Beach Road at the foliage of the trees, because I know the coloring is beautiful.

I am on the shores of the beautiful blue Mediterranean Sea. The Atlas Mountains are in the background, and are covered with a few pines and cacti, and cork trees. The land here, in order to grow anything, is irrigated, and so there is very little fruit, only figs at present. The oranges are not ripe yet.

I am living in a tent; work in a tent and villa, and wear a metal helmet. But our patients, in my opinion, get very good medical care. Have a lovely group of medical men, and we nurses certainly want to keep up to their standards.

Well, write when you find time. Best wishes to all.

Sincerely, Dorothea Arnold.

Lieut. Arnold's address is: 2nd Lieut. Dorothea Arnold, N 772514, 225th Station Hospital, APO 464, care of Postmaster, New York, N. Y.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

IF FIRST SERGEANT CLARENCE A. GOLDSMITH, back in the old battery where I was supposed to have learned the art of cooking for the army, ever gets his hands on this, it will provide him with amusement throughout a long, hard winter.

When he reads that Private Edward Thomas Marion Louton Hargrove, ASN 34116620, is giving advice to prospective soldiers, his derisive bellow will disturb the training program in the next regiment.

"My God!" he will roar. "Look who's learning who how to do what! My God! The blind leading the blind!"

It was once said, Sergeant Goldsmith, by the eminent vegetarian George Bernard Shaw that he who can, does; he who can't, teaches.

This, dear sergeant, is my contribution to the army and to posterity. Please go away and leave us young people to our studies.

CHAPTER I

If I were giving advice to the boys who have already been called into the Army and will go away in a few days, I'd sum it all up in this: "Paint the town red for the rest of your civilian week. Pay no attention to the advice that is being poured into your defenseless ears for twenty-four hours a day. Form an idea of what Army life is going to be like. Leave your mind open."

Two weeks from now, you will be thoroughly disgusted with your new job. You will have been herded from place to place, you will have wandered in nakedness and bewilderment through miles of physical examination, you will look upon privacy and individuality as things you left behind you in a golden civilian society.

Probably you will have developed a murderous hatred for at least one sergeant and two corporals. You will write and fume under what you consider brutality and sadism, and you will wonder how an enlightened nation can permit such atrocity in its army. Take it easy, brother; take it easy.

Keep this one beam of radiant hope constantly before you: The first three weeks are the hardest.

For those first three—or possibly four—weeks, you will bear the greatest part of the painful process of adjusting yourself to an altogether new routine. In those first three weeks you will get almost the full required dose of confusion and misery. You will be afraid to leave your barracks lest the full wrath of the war department fall upon you.

"You don't get anywhere by buying soda pop or beer for your sergeant."

You will find yourself unbelievably awkward and clumsy when you try to learn the drills and the knowledge of this awkwardness will make you even more awkward. Unless you relax you can be very unhappy during those first three weeks.

When you are assigned to your basic training center you'll really get into it. You'll drill and drill, a little more each day, and when the sergeant tries to correct or advise you, you'll want to tear his throat out with your bare hands. You'll be sick of the sound of his voice before an hour has passed. The only comfort I can give you is the knowledge that the poor sergeant is having a helluva time too. He knows what you're thinking and he can't do anything about it.

You'll be inoculated against small-pox, typhoid, tetanus, yellow fever, pneumonia, and practically all the other ills that flesh is heir to. You'll be taught foot drill, the handling of a rifle, the use of the gas mask, the peculiarities of military vehicles, and the intricacies of military courtesy.

Most of what you are taught will impress you as utterly useless nonsense, but you'll learn it.

You'll be initiated into the mysteries of the kitchen police, probably before you've been in the Army for a week. Possibly two days later, you'll be sent on a ration detail to handle huge bundles of groceries. You'll haul coal and trash and ashes. You'll unpack rifles that are buried in heavy grease and you'll clean that grease off them. You'll stoke fires, you'll mop floors, and you'll put a high polish on the windows. You'll wonder if you've been yanked out of civil life for this.

All your persecution is deliberate, calculated, systematic. It is collegiate practice of hazing, applied to the grim and highly important task of transforming a civilian into a soldier, a boy into a man. It is the Hardening Process.

You won't get depressed; you won't feel sorry for yourself. You'll just get mad as hell. You'll be breathing fire before it's over.

Believe me or not, at the end of that minor ordeal, you'll be feeling good. You'll be full of spirit and energy and you will have found yourself.

You'll look at the new men coming in to go through the same hardening period, and you'll look at them with a fatherly and sympathetic eye. They will be "rookies" to you, a veteran of almost a month.

For practical advice, there is none better than the golden rule of the Army: "Keep your eyes open and your mouth shut."

At first, probably, you'll be inclined to tremble at the sight of every corporal who passes you on the street. You might even salute the first-class privates. Then, when the top sergeant neglects to beat you with a knout they rub GI (These two letters are the cornerstone of your future Army vocabulary. They stand for the words "Government Issue" and just about everything you get in the Army will be GI. Even the official advice. This story, on the other hand, is not GI.) salt into wounds, you might want to go to the other extreme. This way madness lies.

When corporals and sergeants are to be dealt with, always remember this: Make friendships first and leave the joking until later. When it's the top sergeant, it might be best to leave the joking permanently.

It can be very easy to start your military life on the wrong foot by giving your officers and noncommissioned officers the impression that you're a wise guy, a smart aleck. Soldiers, like senators, "don't like for a new guy to shoot his mouth off."

So much for the don'ts. On the "do" side, the most important thing for you to watch is your attitude. As a matter of straight and practical fact, the best thing that you can do is to reason that you are going into a new job. The job is temporary, but while you have it it's highly important.

As, when you go into a new job in civil life, you do your darnedest to impress your employer with your earnestness, your diligence, your interest in your work—go thou and do likewise in the Army. As in your civilian job, the impression is made in the first few weeks. You make that impression, starting from the very first day, by learning as quickly as you can, by applying yourself with energy to each task, no matter how small or how unpleasant it is. You don't get anywhere by buying soda pop or beer for your sergeant.

Brodie Griffith, managing editor of the Charlotte News, adjusted his ancient green eyeshade and began glancing through a sheaf of copy.

"Hargrove," he said, lighting a cigarette, "it beats the hell out of me what fate did mean for you. Dr. Garinger down at the high school said years ago that it didn't write a formal education in on your budget. Belmont Abbey found out that you weren't destined to be worth a hoot as a public relations man for a Benedictine college. The drugstore chain in Washington said you had neither the talent nor the temperament for soda-jerking. And you certainly fizzled as a theater usher. Maybe fate don't know you."

"May I have a cigarette?" I asked, reaching before he could protect them. "Day after day I work my fingers to the shoulder blades for neither thanks nor living wage. I am the feature editor of a progressive, growing newspaper. What makes it that? My heart's blood makes it that!"

"I would fire you tomorrow," he sighed, "if anyone else could possibly straighten out the chaos you have brought to this office. In the most underpaid brotherhood in the world, you are the most overpaid, two-headed brother."

"I am the most underpaid six-armed Siva," I snorted. "Look at me! I am the feature editor, the obituary editor, the woman's page editor, the hospital editor, the rewrite man, the assistant to the city editor, the commissar for paste and copy paper and cokes, the custodian of oral memoranda, the public's whipping boy, the translator and copyist of open-forum letters, the castigator of the composing room staff, the guest artist for ailing columnists, the tourist guide for visiting school children, the press representative at barbecue suppers of the United Brotherhood of Plumbers and Steamfitters, the butt of the office jokes."

"Period," said Mr. Griffith, "New paragraph."

"I lead a terrible, turbulent life," I wailed. "I am the man forgotten by Destiny."

"If you will get your elbows off my desk," he said, "the boy can put the mail on it."

"What you need," he continued, sorting through a batch of letters, "is a tour of military service. The Army would make a man of you. I was in the Army in the last war. A top sergeant at eighteen. The Army did wonders for me."

"That's not much of a sales argument," I told him.

"Then again," he said, "if we must take up my whole busy day weeping over your sorrows, let's not burden the Army when it has a helluva job already. Concerning the whole matter, I would suggest that you apply yourself to making up the woman's page right now, lest you come down tomorrow morning and find someone else sitting in your chair. Leave my sight."

"There's not a letter there from New York," I asked, "with my

"Well, my lad," he said with faint glee, "we know what Fate means for you. You can be happy now."

name written on it in a delightfully illegible, feminine, and slightly red-headed hand?"

"Is there ever?" he snorted.

"Let's see—" and he went through the stack.

"Well, my lad," he said with faint glee, "at last we're getting somewhere. We know what Fate means for you. You can be happy now."

He handed me a long, white, innocent-looking envelope, addressed to me. The return address read, "Selective Service System—Mecklenburg County Board Number Three." The President of the United States to Marion Hargrove, greeting!

The boy across the table in the Piedmont Grill lifted both hands and clapped his brow three times. He looked at the clock, then back at his breakfast, then back at the clock.

"My name is Hargrove," I said, handing him a cigarette.

"Mine is Piel," he said. "Melvin Piel. Tomorrow maybe you can make it 'Private' on the front."

"So long as you're healthy," I said, shrugging a shoulder. "It cuts down on the income tax."

"My hay fever," he wailed. "What will I do with my hay fever? In the jungles of South Carolina for maneuverers, with my hay fever! Oy!"

"Just look at it," he said on the way to the bus station, "maybe a posthumous medal my grandchildren will get. Private Melvin Piel, who gave his life valiantly and through the nose from hay fever yet. Sneezing to glory."

The bus station on that morning in July was a pathetic picture. Four large groups of boys, reconciled to the grim and gruesome life ahead of them, were bade farewell by wailing mothers and nobly suffering girl friends who had come down to see their loved ones off in a blaze of pathos. It was pretty terrible.

The buses swung out of the terminal, through midtown, and out toward the road to Fayetteville. The boys began to feel better, shouted farewells to startled girls on the street and finally broke into raucous song. Four flowers of the nation started a blackjack game on a suitcase in the back of the bus.

Brother Piel's spirits brightened a little. His smooth voice found its way through the hay fever and emerged in song. "It's a lovely day tomorrow," he sang. "Tomorrow is a lovely day."

"Look at me tomorrow," he said, breaking off suddenly, "Hay foot, Private Piel. Straw foot, Private Piel. Hay and straw and look at what I've got. Hay fever yet! Oy, what a life I'll lead!"

"Maybe what I'd better do when I get there, I'd better tell them I'd like to go north. They could use a good man in Alaska."

"The South Pole is your meat," I told him.

"That's it! The South Pole! Boy, I'm going to love the Army!"

The tumult and the shouting died about halfway to Fayetteville. The boys became quiet and thoughtful

Shorter Lengths, Bigger Sleeves, Is the Important Fur Coat News

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS is certainly a year of years when it comes to superbly beautiful fur coats. They play up eye appeal for all it is worth and are making conversation the fashion world through.

Time was when fur coats had rather a sameness about them—"cut after one pattern" so to speak. Not so in this day and age! The modern fur coat really has news to tell. Such drastic changes in styling have taken place this season, and there are such marvels being performed in dyeing and working furs, and such artistry and ingenuity in introducing "ideas" that every woman should acquaint herself thoroughly with the smartest new trends before making her purchase.

To begin with, fur coats done in the 1943 manner broadcast the news of shorter lengths. Note that full-length is out. "Last word" models are short. Then too, sleeves bring a newsy message in that they have gone generously large, are made wide at the wrist and have added deep cuffs. Even the fastenings are being dramatized with use of novelty buttons and what is never still, frog fastenings. There are other endless enhancing points that reflect a daring play of imagination.

The models pictured show up modern fur "coatology" in its newest aspect. Gray Bombay lamb goes into the making of the dashing double-breasted coat, to the left in the group. It is a 32-inch length, and is a style that is going over big with the younger set. The deep revered collar is precision tailored to a nicety. The loose easy-fitting sleeves have the very new turn-back cuffs. The buttons are replicas of coins with Miss Liberty's head in bas-relief. Note the felt flower ear-muff trimming on the tiny calot.

The ultimate in glamour is achieved in the lovely new natural wild mink in golden honey tone, as centered in the trio. For this 34-inch coat the skins are worked on narrow ribbon to give extra suppleness. It has saddle shoulders and the new highly favored tuxedo front. The quiet elegance of this coat and its simple graceful lines are typical of the better models.

The coat to the right is treated with new and original dressmaker details that make for style distinction. The coat of muskrat (an all-around fur that can take it) is especially interesting in that it is here worked in two tones. At the throat, double loops of the darker fur tie adroitly in a big bow effect. This flattering bow fastening is an innovation that is giving coats a refreshingly new look this season. The swag pockets are also chic. The deep bell cuffs make news in that they serve as a muff when the hands are brought together. There is a drawstring arrangement in an undersleeve that snugles about the wrists, giving no chance for breezes to penetrate.

Mink, seal and Persian lamb are the three outstanding staple furs and the greatest of these is mink. It outnumbers all others. News about Persian lamb coats is that there is a tendency toward fitted Chesterfield types that is very smart.

One of the highlights of this season of unusual fur coats is the matching fur hat that accompanies many coats. A seal coat, a seal hat, a Persian lamb coat with a hat to match, and so the news goes on and on. The fur handbag, especially the drawstring type, also enters into the scheme of things. Two new youthful furs exploited are white lamb and bleached raccoon.

Bows Galore

Bows everywhere! That's the reaction that comes to one when making a sightseeing tour through neckwear displays. There's a new dickey out that makes bows its theme. The fabric used for the dickey is also an important talking point, being a nubby matelasse crepe as shown at the top. The other neckwear item is a little magic maker, and inexpensive, too. This small collar and bow (of course it would have a bow), is of a drop-stitched satin in frosty white. Try wearing it with a suit, or that basic dress that takes so kindly to pretty neckwear.

Novelty Gloves Are Brightly Colored

There is enthusiasm shown for novelty gloves. New in this class are long and also short suede gloves that are applied with velvet leaves in the identical color of their background. Gloves that range little bows from the top of the hand up through the entire length are prettily feminine.

Women are buying fabric gloves and giving them individual style accent with sequin embroidery, also with crochet ruffled edges with a cunning crochet flower at the wrist.

Colors for gloves in order of their popularity include fuchsia, gold, green, purple, wine and a newcomer in the field, turquoise blue, to be worn with the flattering little felt hats in the same shade. Of course, black and beige are still on the staple list.

Leopard Hat and Belt Dresses Up Black Crepe

The basic black crepe frock can be dressed up or down according to the accessories worn with it. The flair for leopard accessories, either the fur or simulated print that is done in authentic blacks, browns and tawny yellows is shown in smart hat and bag sets together with matching belts. There is also much use made of striped taffeta in startling black and white for dickeres, bows and other accents that give animation to black frocks.

All-Over Braided Coat

The wide use of braid is emphasized in a coat recently displayed that had been so closely braided it gave the appearance of Persian lamb.

Odd Wedding Costumes

Weddings among the Maori natives of New Zealand are a lot of fuss and feathers, principally feathers. The bride and bridegroom look like huge birds with human heads when they are decked out to "plight their troth." The man's garb is made of kiwi, pigeon and parrot feathers; the girl's entirely of kiwi feathers. Just in case anyone objects to the union, the bridegroom totes as a weapon a pole of hard wood, decorated with a carved head and wild dogs' hair.

From an old French word "mes" derived from the Latin word "missus" meaning a course at a meal, comes the Army's name "mess" for its breakfast, dinner and supper. Favorite meal with the soldier is chicken dinner—his favorite cigarette, Camel. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) A carton of Camels, by the way, is a gift that's always welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

Wells of Iraq

The pipeline running from the wells of Iraq to the Palestine shore of the Mediterranean carries an estimated 4,000,000 tons of crude oil each year.

Money Divorce Cause

Money, or rather the lack of it, is the most common cause of marital troubles, according to Circuit Judge Paul D. Barnes of Miami, and he should know, for last year he handled 4,000 divorce cases. "Willingness to live within income is the most important thing I can say to young married couples," Judge Barnes said. "The tendency to exceed income seems to be a fashion of the times, but it's probably the most disastrous habit married couples can fall into."

Dangerous Firewood

Mrs. L. Marais of Cyferkuil, Western Transvaal, picked up a piece of firewood while lighting her kitchen fire and found to her horror that she had seized a deadly night adder. With great presence of mind, the housewife struck it against the floor and battered it to death.

Sheraton's Famous Tables

The tables made by Sheraton during the Eighteenth century are noted for their fine lines and superlative decorations. All were made in mahogany and satinwood. The Pembroke, or hinged-flap table, the pouch table (sewing table) and the "cheveret" are all his designs.

Crown of Thorns

The crown of thorns, the wreath believed to be the one placed on the head of Jesus before his crucifixion, has been smooth since 1239, when the French king, Louis IX, brought it to Paris, cut off the thorns and distributed them to the churches throughout Europe.

One battle won does not win a war. We've got tougher times ahead.

MAGNETIC TORPEDO:

Here is one reason why we needed the Azores so badly as an anti-submarine base. The U-boats not only have new devices but also a new strategy and may converge around the bottleneck to the Mediterranean between the Azores and Gibraltar.

DEVICES:

Latest Nazi torpedoes are superior to the former type which exploded only on contact. New torpedoes are exploded (1) on contact; (2) by magnetic attraction on coming close to the steel hull; (3) by the vibration of the engines of the ship under attack. This makes it possible for the submarine to succeed in its mission much more frequently than before. A torpedo is much less likely to miss, since missing actual contact with the target does not now mean, as previously, that it misses the target.

STRATEGY:

Convoys have now discovered that Nazi subs are hunting in packs of sufficient number to employ the same sort of naval strategy which large units of naval vessels are able to use. A group of submarines will surface on one side of the convoy, and thus decoy the escort vessels in that direction. Meantime, another group of submarines on the other side of the convoy will approach within easy firing range and discharge their torpedoes.

Observers believe, however, that the main artery of commerce from the United States to the European theater of war—the North Atlantic run—is still so well guarded that the submarine menace is licked so far as that run is concerned. It is feared, however, that the Nazis will now strike at another vulnerable point, namely, the Straits of Gibraltar. Since these straits must be passed by all Allied merchant shipping supplying the Mediterranean theater of war, including North Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica, Italy and the Adriatic—not to mention all the shipping now passing through the Mediterranean bound for the Straits of Suez and India—this area is due for a concentrated submarine attack.

A VISIT WITH STALIN

Secretary Hull might have got some interesting pointers for his Moscow trip from Cuban Ambassador Conchoso, only Latin American diplomat who has met Stalin.

Brilliant Senor Conchoso is both Cuban ambassador to the U.S.A. and Cuban minister to Soviet Russia. Recently he came back from a visit to the Soviet capital during which he presented his credentials to Foreign Minister Molotoff, and expressed the polite hope that he might also call upon Stalin. Knowing that Stalin was one of the busiest men in the world, however, Conchoso did not press the point and actually did not expect to see him.

So he almost fell out of his ballet seat one night when someone tapped him on the shoulder and told him that Stalin would see him in 20 minutes. How Stalin knew the Cuban diplomat was enjoying the famous Moscow Ballet, Conchoso did not know.

However, he was told that a motor would call for him at the theater in 15 minutes, and he should be ready. Conchoso consulted a British diplomat, also present at the ballet, who told him that the man who had tapped him on the shoulder was the Russian chief of protocol, so he had better be ready.

It was May, but zero weather in Moscow. However, Ambassador Conchoso did not find it cold in the Kremlin. (Churchill wore a zipper-suit when he called on Stalin, and Mrs. Hull has been worrying on behalf of her husband about the cold in the Kremlin.) Only two officers guarded Stalin. One officer met the Cuban at the entrance of the building and escorted him to Stalin's office. There he was met by another officer who took him the rest of the way. There was no pomp or ceremony.

GENIAL JOSEPH

Stalin himself was not fierce, but kindly and genial. His eyes, according to Ambassador Conchoso, are deep and penetrating, but with wrinkles of humor in the corners. The Soviet premier seemed surprisingly well-posted on Cuban problems, knew something about its labor laws and its economic questions. However, he was not familiar with Cuban - U. S. relations and seemed to think that Cuba was still politically dependent on the U.S.A. The ambassador explained that the Platt amendment had been abrogated and Cuba now enjoyed complete freedom.

S. senator, will run for the house of representatives in the First West Virginia congressional district.

A dying Indian family is pictured on the streets of Calcutta where 250 persons perished daily in the worst famine to strike India for decades. The famine was reported to have killed 25,000 in Bengal within four months.

Instinct Leads Them To 'Greenest Grass'

That "the grass is greener on the other side of the fence" for the cow is more than bovine fancy.

When the cow will risk injury from barbed wire in order to get out on the highway or into another field for the grass on the other side, surely there must be some compelling force responsible, Dr. William A. Albrecht, chairman of the department of soils, University of Missouri, asserts.

"Perhaps farmers have never thought that animal instinct and soil fertility are at the basis of what may be wrongly considered just so much 'crazy cow' psychology," said Dr. Albrecht. "In this adage about animal behavior, there is given to us a significant suggestion for making our shortage of labor more effective and the farm business more profitable. Recent soil studies using animals as means of measuring soil fertility are pointing out that animal choices represent more effective gains by them, better animal health, along with more regular and more prolific reproduction.

"Lime treatments on the soil, for example, are the areas commonly selected when cows graze lespedeza in one part of the field in preference to another, as numerous farmers testify. Hogs acted similarly toward corn left in the field. The corn was left untouched where no lime was used even though the hogs passed to and fro through it. Barley has been grazed out first where 200 pounds of fertilizer was applied in contrast to that with only 100 pounds. Grains, such as corn, in the self-feeder, have been selected by hogs according to the soil treatment where the crop was grown. Guinea pigs have selected various grains with differences in choice according to the fertility of the soils growing them.

"Yes, 'the other side of the fence' is sought by the animal because its better judgment as to its nourishment, and therefore its better health, better growth, and more efficient reproduction are involved. The cows usually break out on to the highway or railroad right-of-way where crops have grown annually but have not been removed. Crops have not carried away the soil fertility. We have been alarmed about the danger that some valuable meat or milk producer might be killed by traffic. Instead, we should be recognizing the fact that by means of the more fertile soil on the other side of the fence our efforts and the animal's time can be used more effectively.

"The cows have been pleading with us to give soil improvement some needed attention but we have turned them a deaf ear. We may well profit by using these animal assays of our soil fertility as well as by calling on the chemist for soil tests.

"How can we best accomplish the job of soil replenishment? There are a number of ways. Liming is beneficial because it helps both the plants and the animals to get their needed calcium, more than because this soil treatment fights soil acidity. Calcium in limestone, or even in gypsum, phosphorus in the acid, or raw rock forms; potassium as salts; and all the other nutrient elements included on the soil fertility list, need our attention as soil treatments to make the grass greener on our own side of the fence."

Agricultural Notes

Sorghum syrup is not a good sweetener for fruits. Its flavor is apt to crowd out the delicate fruit flavor.

To render fat, cook it over very low heat until it is melted. Do not let fat smoke. Strain it through cheesecloth or old muslin. Cover the strained fat and keep it cool until used.

Baseball

JUST a year ago baseball fans were plagued by numerous fears that they had seen their last World Series for the duration. The draft status of big league ball players was an unknown factor. Washington had done little to indicate an awareness of such an activity as baseball.

The most strident of the calamity howlers forecast an early and abrupt end to the game. Both leagues would fold up before the season got well under way. The public wouldn't stand for healthy, well-conditioned men playing baseball while other men risked their lives and their futures in defense of their country.

Then, too, many gloomier individuals believed that the caliber of play would be lowered to such an extent that the cash customers would stay away in droves. DiMaggio, Feller, Greenberg and other stars of the first magnitude had gone into service. Could baseball survive such a shock?

False Argument

The latter argument was completely spurious. Baseball has managed to survive its natural losses. Didn't Babe Ruth mean as much to baseball as Joe DiMaggio? Didn't Lou Gehrig mean as much as Bob Feller or Hank Greenberg? The shock of their loss was cushioned because it was inevitable, but the final results were similar. Baseball would be in a sorry state if its fate depended on the destinies of a few widely publicized players.

Even now there are quite a few baseball followers who moan sadly of the coming year. Things look no better to them than they did last year. In truth, they look worse.

The drafting of fathers has brought acute confusion to the faint of heart who already are worrying about the 1944 World Series. They might do well to save their tears for the minor leagues—they'll probably need more sympathy than the majors.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, and William Harridge and Ford Frick, presidents of the major circuits, are quite confident the league organizations will function again next year. They know there will be new difficulties, that it may be necessary to lower the player limit and that there will be a vastly greater percentage of manpower losses.

And it isn't at all unlikely that, in order to keep the main show alive, the minors will have to function on a tighter basis than at any time in their history. It used to be a source of strength of the minors that they were included in major chain store systems. Now it becomes the source of their greatest danger.

Possibilities

Major clubs will draw from their farm clubs even if it should weaken them completely. At its worst it could mean the suspension of the International and Pacific Coast leagues and the American association. At its best it's likely to mean that those leagues will be using men who definitely are not up to standard.

Baseball men have been slow in attempting to clarify their standing. But there are signs that they want action. There is said to be growing revolt against Judge Landis' order that nobody connected with the majors may contact anybody in official Washington about any matter connected with baseball.

Baseball has been the subject of many unfair attacks in the past months. The other side of the story should be told. Club owners, managers and other officials are too intelligent to expect any undue consideration. They are looking for no more than workers in any other industry.

SPORTS SHORTS

Francisco ("Pancho") Segura, internationally known tennis player, is the son of the caretaker of Ecuador's only tennis club. His expenses to this country were paid by the Ecuadorian government.

The University of Illinois football roster includes Mustafa Eris, who played soccer in Istanbul.

Toby Cobb and Adrian Anson played the longest with the same team in the major leagues. Cobb was with Detroit 22 years, Anson with Chicago the same.

The tax assessor's office had to decide on which side of the Maryland-Pennsylvania border an elderly woman's newly purchased farm lay. Surveyors finally announced it was just inside the Maryland border.

The old lady sighed in relief. "I'm so glad," she said. "I've heard that winters in Pennsylvania are terribly severe."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

To maintain the nation's essential motor transportation system, the American rubber tire industry will be called upon to make 30 million synthetic passenger car tires in 1944. The synthetic rubber program is being geared to permit such an output without hindering the military needs for rubber.

More than 65 per cent of the war materials reaching factories in Michigan travel on rubber-tired trucks, and 67 per cent of the finished products move out by truck. Proof that our national economy is closely bound with rubber.

Resorts in Orient for United States Soldiers

Movies, Dances, Sports
In Himalayan Camps

Equipment Paid For by Reverse Lend-Lease

The American soldier in the China-Burma-India theater of operations does not lack a place to rest when he gets a chance for a few days away from battle with the Japanese.

He can go to any one of a number of camps in the Himalayas, cool and away from the broiling heat of Orient lowlands, and have free the facilities and sports that otherwise only wealthy men could afford.

One such camp, situated in the hills near a popular and famous British summer resort, can accommodate more than 500 men. It is a former British army rest camp and was taken over this year by the American army. It consists of about 45 barracks of stone and tin roof construction; is some 7,000 feet high and troops there have every comfort and convenience with absolutely no duties, for these are taken care of by a permanent staff of United States army officers, enlisted men and Indian drivers, guards, bearers, sweepers, cooks and waiters.

Isolated Site.

The only access to this particular camp is up a winding one-way road which in some places hangs over sheer drops of thousands of feet to the valley. Transportation is so difficult that all possible facilities are concentrated in the camp area: a telegraph and post office, barber shop (with haircuts free); a coffee shop run by the army; a laundry; tailor and shoemaker. An army hospital takes care of minor illnesses and emergencies; any serious case is cared for at a large British hospital in a nearby town.

Favorite sport of Americans at the camp is horseback riding. Indians from the surrounding hills bring their horses and hire them for a nominal fee—but not, until each animal and gear is carefully inspected by army authorities to see that both are in good condition.

There are tennis courts at the camp with plenty of equipment; and the same goes for baseball and softball. There are facilities for horseshoes, touch football, badminton, basketball and soccer. Streams not far away abound in fish. Indoors there is pool and table tennis; radios and phonographs and a library. There are motion pictures, most of which are American, and the programs change daily.

At night, dances are held in the British resort. Attendance requires an overnight pass, for the road is open only to ox-cart travel at night.

Camels Bring Supplies.

Much of the equipment and most of the supplies for the camp result from reverse lend-lease. Five station wagons and five lorries have been given the Americans by the British to help transport men from the railhead to the camp. Supplies come in various ways, perhaps the strangest of all being coal loaded on the backs of camels.

Other camps in the theater are much the same as this one. All are located in the coolness of the hills so troops may have a brief respite from the heat of the plains.

At one of these is a nine-hole golf course; and big-game hunting. Many an American home may have a tiger or leopard skin as a decoration as a result of innumerable GI hunts in the area.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for November 7

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-26, 38-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—I John 3:15.

Human life is sacred—and there is a very important reason why that is true. It is not because of any law of man, but finds its foundation in the fact that God created man in His own likeness and image. Because that is true, no man has any right to take the life of another for any cause except at the direct command of God. Only by the orderly process of law for the protection of society and in accordance with the Word of God may there be any such action by man toward man.

Both of these truths are declared in Scripture in God's covenant with Noah (Gen. 9:5, 6), which was made possibly a thousand years before the Ten Commandments were given to Moses.

One cannot deny that human life is held rather cheaply in many places today. War helps to create that attitude on the part of nations which makes them count boys and girls, yes, mere babies, as "war material."

But not only in war is life carelessly destroyed. We decry the "slaughter of innocents" on the highway, unnecessary death in industry, yes, even in the home.

I. The Prohibition of Murder (Exod. 20:13).

The word "kill" in this commandment is one which means a violent and unauthorized taking of life, and is therefore more properly translated "murder."

Not all killing is murder. A man may kill another entirely accidentally, or he may be the duly constituted legal officer carrying out the law of the land in taking the life of one who has forfeited his right to live because he has slain another.

There is also the right of self-defense, be it individual or collective as in war. But these are the only exceptions; let us not attempt to justify any more.

Murder is more prevalent than most of us suppose. Some years ago we were told that there was a murder every forty minutes in our land. With the general increase of crime, and of drunkenness (which so often incites murder), the current figures would probably show an increase.

Do not forget the deaths, the destruction of life, by avoidable automobile accidents. Some of these were really murder because the one responsible drove with defective brakes, dangerous tires, or while he was intoxicated. Add to these the deaths in industry caused by failure to provide proper safeguards or healthy working conditions, and by the exploitation of child labor, and we say that we should cry aloud, "Thou shalt do no murder."

II. The Provocation to Murder (Matt. 5:21,22).

Murder finds its provoking cause in the heart of man. Our Lord was concerned about correcting the desires rather than to apprehend the offender after the act had been committed. It is the better way, and the more effective one.

In this matter of murder, Jesus cut right through the outward aspects of the matter and pointed out that an angry hatred in the heart is the root of all murder. If we hate, we have murder in our hearts. Circumstances may hinder its fulfillment, but the danger is always there until we remove the cause.

Just being angry—calling our brother "raca" (the modern equivalent of which is "nobody there"), and calling him "thou fool," which classifies him as "morally worthless"—these are the three dreadful downward steps to murder. And they begin in anger.

May God help those of us who have strong feelings that we may not yield them to the devil in such anger against our brother!

III. The Prevention of Murder (Matt. 5:23-26, 38-45).

Prevention with God means more than putting up a barrier to keep us from killing. He deals with the heart, and thus puts the whole life right. It is not even a question of how we may feel against our brother. If he has against us we are to do all we can to win him. He may be unreasonable, grasping, and unfair. However, the spirit that will win him is not that of retaliation or sullen submission to the inevitable, but rather a free and willing going even beyond what is required.

It is clear from other scriptures that our Lord does not mean that wicked and unscrupulous men are to be permitted to defraud and destroy God's people. At the same time, we must be careful not to explain away the heart of our Lord's interpretation of this great commandment.

We who believe in Christ are to be in deed as well as word the sons of our heavenly Father (v. 45), loving not only those who are kind to us, but even our enemies.

America In Action

QMC PORTABLE COFFEE ROASTING UNITS

Roaster-fresh coffee is reaching American soldiers in all parts of the world, direct from the quartermaster corps' portable combination roasters and grinders that eliminate vast quantities of strategic steel and tin and save untold tons of valuable shipping space.

According to the war department, units of portable coffee roasters and grinders are now serving the armed forces in many theaters of operations making it possible for fighting men to receive steaming cups of coffee lacking nothing in strength, flavor and aroma, even though the scene is 10,000 miles away from the nearest coffee plantation.

Developed some two years ago by quartermaster corps subsistence experts, the portable units were designed chiefly to provide good fresh coffee in foreign fields. Today their value is enhanced by the great savings in space and critical material they effect.

Due to the fact that coffee expands considerably when it is roasted it is highly advantageous to ship it in its green state. When coffee is shipped green in burlap bags and roasted at overseas bases, freighters can carry 39 pounds in each cubic foot of space. On being roasted this coffee materially increases in bulk but shrinks in weight to approximately 33 pounds. Due to the volume of increase during the roasting process, however, only 22 pounds of roasted coffee can be carried in a cubic foot of shipping space. Consequently the freight space yield is 50 per cent greater when green instead of roasted coffee is shipped.

To deliver good coffee to troops at the front it must either be roasted and ground in the vicinity of consumption or roasted in the United States and shipped overseas in vacuum-packed containers. The portable coffee roaster can produce 6,000 pounds of roasted and ground coffee every 24 hours. To package that much roasted and ground coffee for overseas shipment requires approximately 713 pounds of steel and tin—about one-tenth of the weight of a portable machine. Thus one machine, operating on three shifts daily, can conserve its own weight in about ten days' operation.

In some theaters of operations green coffee is obtainable locally and by using the portable coffee roaster it is possible to eliminate the shipping problem entirely.

Furthermore, since roasted coffee deteriorates rapidly, even if not ground, and green coffee does not, the use of these overseas portable roasters greatly simplifies the coffee storage problem. Green coffee in bags can be safely stored in any dry warehouse which affords protection against the elements.

The portable coffee roaster-grinder when set up for operation is about 11 feet high and occupies a floor space of only nine feet square. It is powered by a small gasoline engine and the roasting unit utilizes coal, coke, charcoal or hardwood. Separate gas burners are provided with each unit for use in localities where either natural or manufactured gas may be available.

FOOD VALUE OF BREAD RAISED BY ENRICHMENT

MINNEAPOLIS.—New flour enrichment standards make bread a full-fledged protective food with greatly increased benefits to the American public, but rationing limitations on butter may deprive many families of these new benefits unless housewives use ingenuity in serving this traditional food, according to a bulletin from the Northwestern Life Insurance company.

Some of the best answers to her problem are: Toast, "fancier up" with cinnamon, marmalade, etc.; toast as a base for other dishes, such as asparagus on toast, eggs on toast, creamed fish on toast, etc.; toast in or with soups and stews. Sandwiches can use mayonnaise, margarine, peanut butter, cottage or other soft cheeses as spreads when butter is scarce. A plate of attractive sandwiches can be served along with the regular dinner or luncheon. Several kinds of breads on the table will increase the quantity the family uses, with benefit to the food bill too.

Post-war benefits to the health of millions of Americans, especially in the low-income brackets, will result from the new war-time flour and bread enrichment standards, the bulletin predicts.

By NANCY PEPPER WAX WORKS

Everybody knows about those necklaces made out of candle drippings—we hope. But here are some whackier wax works to keep you in a melting mood.

BROOCH BUSINESS—Pour melted wax into a miniature cookie cutter. While still soft, attach a pin in back. When hard, remove from cookie cutter and your brooch is in perfect shape. You can stick in a few colored beads before the wax hardens if you want a jeweled effect.

FBI SPECIAL—Make ten round discs of melted wax. While still soft, press each finger into a different disc to leave a complete set of your finger prints. String on yarn into a necklace.

WAX LEAVES—Just dip any green leaves into melted wax. After the coating of wax dries, string them into a necklace. Party with your cotton blouses.

Boys Meet Girls

Let's do something about that dismal first half-hour before the party really gets underway. You know? When the boys droop around in one corner together and the girls wonder if they have measles or something. Your problem? As hostess? Is to get the boys and girls together. Here's how to do it.

JIG-SAW HEARTS—Buy a package of red paper hearts at the dime store — or make your own. Cut every heart in two with a scissors, in zig-zag lines. Put half of each heart in a basket labeled "girls," and the other halves in a basket labeled "boys." Every girl and boy picks half a heart at the door and the fun begins when they try to fit the halves together to find their right partners. By the time everybody has found his better half, the ice is broken and the party is a success.

FLOATING PLACE CARDS—Collect some clam shells on the beach (don't read this trick if you're not near a beach) the next time you're having a party and make sailboat place cards out of them. How? Just stand a colored toothpick in the center of each shell (a drop or two of liquid cement does the trick) and attach a sail made out of paper. Write the guest's name on the sail, of course. You can use the shells for candies or nuts.

Maid to Measure

Give a gal an inch and she'll take a whole tape measure or ruler. What for? Tricks, of course!

NEW RULES FOR WAISTLINES—Cut an old wooden ruler into two-inch pieces. Bore holes in the ends of each piece and string together on cord or yarn for a belt.

HEM MEASUREMENTS—You're always looking for some new ideas for cotton skirts, aren't you? Try sewing a cotton tape measure around the bottom of the hem line.

Whale Can Hold Breath 45 Minutes: Blows Air

Although whales usually spend less than five or six minutes under water in a single dive, there are records of them being out of sight for 35 to 45 minutes. Yet the whale has no gills and must take its oxygen from the air and hold it in its lungs. Under water, its nostrils close and keep water from entering its lungs.

When the whale surfaces it blows out the air, which is moist and gives the appearance of a spout of water. Actually, no water comes from the heads of these monsters.

Whales weigh from 15 to 110 tons, but they are strong swimmers, bending their bodies as do fish. The whale has the largest head of any animal that ever lived.

3 tablespoons 1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran

1/2 cup honey 1 teaspoon baking powder
1 egg 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter-milk 1/4 teaspoon soda
Blend shortening and honey. Add egg and beat until creamy. Add milk and All-Bran; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift dry ingredients together; add to first mixture, stirring only until first mixture disappears. Fill greased muffin pan 3/4 full and bake in a medium-hot oven (400° F.) about 25 minutes.

PROCLAMATION

by Governor Harry Kelly

Conscious of the acute labor and equipment shortages affecting Michigan's production of pulpwood,
I am, nevertheless, earnestly appealing to the farmers, timberland owners and operators in the State to do everything within their power to increase the production of pulpwood.

The Michigan Department of Conservation is cooperating with the U. S. Forest Service in setting up a program to facilitate such production, particularly in connection with small operators and farmers.
This program is already well under way, and field representatives of the Forest Service, the Department of Conservation, the Extension Service, the Soil Conservation Service and the University of Michigan have been assigned to specific areas in the State to aid operators and farmers.

In order to get a true picture of the labor situation, the first assignment given these men was to contact all wood products and saw mill operators to discover their labor needs and difficulties. This data will be compiled and presented through the U. S.
Forest Service to the War Production Board, and should serve as a basis for remedial action by the appropriate Federal agencies.

There is no question in my mind that the producers are eager to do their part in getting out the wood if they can secure the labor. Understanding the urgency of the need for maximum pulpwood production, I am sure they will exert every effort to attain Michigan's quota.

SCHOOL

No. 1 Continued from First Page.

The Hallowe'en Dance held last Saturday night was a huge success.
When we say "huge," we mean that there was an unusually large crowd, all of whom seemed to be enjoying the evening.

No Hallowe'en party would be complete without some costumes, and this party was no exception. Among the many attractive and unusual costumes, we observed a cow, a donkey, an elephant, and unidentified "ghost," a Cinderella, who left the party just before twelve, and a negro shoe-shine boy, in the person of Walt Anschuetz.

Round and square dancing were the order of the evening, with variety lent by a Sadie Hawkins dance in which the ladies reversed the usual procedure and asked the men to dance with them.

Plans at present are to continue these dances indefinitely, or until a change of plans is announced in this paper. The admission prices are 15¢ for students and 25¢ for adults, with servicemen admitted free. Dancing begins at 8:00 EST.

The Junior Class held a party at the gymnasium Friday evening. The food committee consisted of Ardith Lake, chairman, Betty Roach and Agnes Blust. Mr. Rahl acted as committee on entertainment.
Jeanette Montgomery has been appointed news correspondent.
