UNITED WAR FUND DRIVE ENDS NOV. 20

IOSCO NEEDS MORE GIFTS TO REACH QUOTA

Money For USO and Other War Service Activities

The Iosco County United War Fund Drive has been extended to November 20 so that every citizen will have an opportunity to contribute to this worthwhile campaign. A large portion of the funds raised in this drive will go to the USO for the benefit of our soldiers, sailors and marines now scattered throughout the world. The many activities sponsored by the USO are for the well-being of our sons and daughters, brothers and sisters who are now doing such a good job against the enemy. Everyone knows the value of this organization in keeping up the morale of our armed forces. A portion of the money will also go to help feed our allies in China, and the down-trodden people of Europe who are now escaping from under Hitler's heel.

During World War I, Iosco county oversubscribed every quota, and we have maintained that record, so far, in this war. This means we must use untiring effort if we meet this test. Arenac was the first county in the state to meet its quota. Alcona county was the third. Our neighbors are out in front.

With a quota of $925.00, East Tawas has already turned in $939.00, with a couple of subscription lists yet to be completed.

Tawas City solicitors now have collected 444.00, and are renewing their efforts to make their quota which is set at $600.00.

Plainfield township has paid in $100.00, but most of the solicitors there are still working to get just as close as possible to their quota.

Two of the Wilber lists have been turned in, as has one from the Coast Guard in Baldwin township.

The quota for every village and township is high, but this fund is raised but once a year, and is used for the benefit of our soldiers, sailors and marines throughout the world.

Detailed statements of the campaign will be published at the close of the drive.

An Appreciation

November 8, 1943.

Russell A. Rollin, County School Commissioner, Tawas City, Mich.

Dear Mr. Rollin:

The staff of the Saginaw District Office of Price Administration joins me in expressing thanks for your outstanding contribution to the war effort in connection with the issuance of War Rationing Book IV.

Through the generous contribution of time and effort by school officials, teachers and other volunteers, the Federal Government was able to effect a savings running into millions of dollars—dollars which can be put to better use in the purchase of materials of war for our fighting forces.

It is my desire to properly express my appreciation of the fine untiring efforts of the teachers, members of the parent-teachers associations and other volunteers who made this valuable contribution to the battle on the home front.

Very sincerely yours,

John F. Kessel, District Director.

County Maintains State Trunk Lines

The Iosco County Road Commission now maintains all state trunk lines within the county under contract with the State Highway Department. Under the agreement the State Highway Department pays for all material and labor used in maintaining these roads, in addition to paying a rental on the equipment, when used on the state roads. The state also pays the salary of the trunk line foreman and his transportation expenses. James McDonell, of Oscoda has been employed by the road commission in this capacity.

Most of the equipment used by the State Highway Department in keeping these trunk lines has been purchased by the County Road Commission so that the trunk line maintenance will in no way interfere with the maintenance or supervision of the county roads.

The equipment purchased is quite old. Three large Duplex trucks are 1934, 1935 and 1936 jobs respectively. Four one and one-half ton Dodges are 1938 models. This equipment is being overhauled at the Oscoda garage, where the equipment used mostly on state roads will be kept in shape.

It is almost impossible to get new equipment because of W. P. B. regulations.

IN the SERVICE

Word has been received from the Induction Station that the following men have been accepted:

- Orval G. Propper, army.

Corp. Frederick Christian has returned to his company at Seattle, Washington, after completing four (Turn to No. 1 Back Page)

Mrs. Charity Frank

Mrs. Charity Frank, aged Tawas City woman, died Monday at the home of her son, Abram Frank, following a stroke. Mrs. Frank was 93 years of age.

Charity Jane Lampman was born February 6, 1850, in Ontario. On November 26, 1872, she was united in marriage to William H. Frank. In October of 1903, Mr. and Mrs. Frank came to Tawas City. She is survived by three children, Harrison Frank of Tawas township, Abram Frank of Tawas City and Mrs. Thomas Pawell of Niagara Falls, Canada.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Saints church. Elder B. H. Doty of Midland and Elder M. A. Sommerfield of this city officiated. Burial was in the Tawas City cemetery. Her six grandsons, Oakland Frank, Emerson Frank, Wilmer Frank, LaVern Frank, Michael Frank and Kenneth Frank, acted as pall bearers.

Out of town relatives that attended the funeral were: Mrs. Thomas Pawell of Niagara Falls, Ont.; Mrs. John Mollison of Niagara Falls, New York; Mrs. Clyde Soper, Louis Frank, and Mrs. Wallace Jean of Bay City; Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Frank of Midland; Mrs. Clyde Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Oakland Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Frank, Mr. Michael Frank, all of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Singelton, Mrs. Fred Kaiser, Mrs. Levi Frank, all Port Huron; Mrs. Otto Draves, Mrs. Bert Papple and daughter of Flint.

GOVERNOR'S CUP GOES TO RENO WOMAN

Award Received for Best All-Purpose Garden In State

Two gold cups offered by Gov. Kelly for the best all-purpose urban and farm victory gardens in Michigan have been awarded to Mrs. William Groulx of Reno township, Iosco county, in the rural class and W. J. Daeschner of Birmingham in the city class.

Mrs. Groulx, whose husband works in a Saginaw war plant, operated her garden with nine of her 13 children. Three of her children are in the armed forces. The family owns a 120-acre farm.

Under the direction of Mrs. Groulx, the family have canned more than 1500 quarts of fruit and vegetables from their garden, which covered an area of nearly five acres. Besides supplying fresh vegetables of every kind during the entire summer and canning the winter food supply, several hundred dollars worth of vegetables were sold locally, and on the Bay City market.

Paul R. Krone, chief of the State Defense Council Victory garden section, said gardens considered for the governor's trophies were judged on the basis of careful planning, to use the land to the best advantage, succession planting, proper selection and balance of foods for fresh use and canning and storing. Neither of the winners received awards in the state Victory garden contest but were judged on a different set of standards.

Coal Dealers Discuss Iosco Coal Situation

E. A. Leaf, chairman of the Iosco County Civilian Defense Council, members of the defense council, and Tawas City, East Tawas and Oscoda coal dealers met Monday afternoon at the court house in this city to discuss the coal situation in these communities, and similar meetings were held Tuesday at Hale and Whittemore.

Along with other sections of Michigan, the coal situation here has reached a grave crisis. The dealers have no coal according to statements made at Monday's meeting. The dealers said that a large number of their customers had filled their bins during the summer. However, their existing unfilled orders for coal for the month totaled some 18 carloads. Orders for much of this has already been placed with the mines, but owing to the recent strike, there is no assurance of any immediate deliveries.

After a plan originated by the Michigan Office of Civilian Defense had been explained by Prosecuting Attorney Herbert Hertzler, member of the Iosco County Defense Council, the dealers at the meeting agreed to make deliveries, when they had coal on hand, to persons who had secured Coal Certificates of Necessity. These certificates will be issued to persons who state the proper official that they have been unsuccessful in their efforts to purchase coal, and that they have not more than five days supply on hand. They agree to receive one ton and pay cash on delivery. The certificate gives them priority delivery with any local dealer if he has the coal. This arrangement will be valuable in the larger cities.

The officials designated in Iosco county to issue Certificates of Necessity are: Mayor Carl Babcock, Tawas City; Mayor Henry Klenow, East Tawas; Mayor R. F. Fuerst, Whittemore; Supervisor Lloyd McCuaig, Oscoda, and Supervisor G. P. Sabin, Hale.

The P.-T. A. of the Anshuetz school will give an old time dance next Thursday night, November 18, at the school house. Come out and win your chicken. Free lunch. adv

BULLETIN

The Rowley Manufacturing Co., who recently leased the Tanner Lumber Co. plant at East Tawas, are now producing boxes for the government. A crew of men started to work this week.

M. J. Marble of Detroit has purchased Hiram's Inn and cabins, south of the border. The transaction was closed this week and Mr. Marble will take charge January 1. Mr. Pierce established Hiram's Inn about six years ago and built it into one of the popular taverns of Iosco county. His fish dinners have a wide reputation throughout the county, and the cabin accommodation are excellent. Hiram's many friends are sorry to have him leave the tavern, and wish him success in any new venture he may have in view.

RUSSIAN RELATIONS IMPROVE

The diplomatic grapevine reports that inter-Allied relations with Russia are going pretty well now. This is certainly true on the surface, and while some irritations have occurred below the surface, both sides have shown a real tendency to try to get along.

Most serious sub-surface irritation was over the Mediterranean Council, through which Russia, the United States and Britain were to confer regarding Italy, North Africa and the Balkans.

The Russians, snubbed earlier in the summer regarding preliminary Italian armistice terms, took the Mediterranean Council seriously and appointed as their representative Andrei Vishinski, the famous prosecutor in the Russian purge trials. This was the equivalent of sending the most outstanding member of the U. S. Supreme court or the leading lawyer of England.

Vishinski is a man of national stature, capable of making Mediterranean decisions without consulting Moscow. But to represent the United States on the Mediterranean Council, Secretary Hull sent Ed Wilson, U. S. ambassador to Panama. Wilson is a thorough-going, competent diplomat who can handle any routine job and handle it well. But almost no one outside diplomacy or Panama has heard of him. He has no national stature and he cannot act on his own.

Immediately it developed that Wilson was to act as a glorified messenger and report everything back to Washington. The British representative was to do the same. In other words Churchill and Roosevelt were to make the decisions, and the much publicized Mediterranean Council was to be a mere reporting agency.

This immediately roused Russian wrath. They had welcomed the Council, appointed a top man. So for a moment they considered withdrawing. However, for the sake of Allied harmony, they stayed on and are giving the Mediterranean Council a trial.

POOR 'PA' WATSON

Toughest job White House Secretary Maj. Gen. Edwin ("Pa") Watson of the White House secretariat has to tackle each day is keeping the President's appointment schedule on time.

Frequently FDR will sit talking to an old friend for 15 or 20 minutes over the allotted time, and that snarls the White House schedule for the rest of the day.

This is hard on the general's nervous system, especially when bigwigs from the war or navy departments are waiting to discuss military matters. On such occasions Watson is not above barging in and breaking up the conference.

The other day when the President's old friend, Governor Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, was overstaying his time—through no fault of his own—Watson walked in and began to parade nervously about the room.

"Well, here's the undertaker, Mr. President," grinned Kerr, catching the hint. "If one of your callers gets so he doesn't move, 'Pa' will move him."

Roosevelt laughingly motioned Watson to a chair.

"Sit down and talk to us for awhile, general," he said. "We're having a very interesting conversation."

With a sigh, Watson took a chair.

BACK TO NORMALCY

Industry's eagerness to get back to peacetime operation is seen in the deluge of mail received by the chemical division of WPB. Theme of every letter is: Unlace the straightjacket and give us a chance to expand.

This pressure hits the chemical division more than any other because of the tight control which that division has exercised over the industry, and also because of the tremendous future of plastics and other developments in the chemical field.

Controls are so tight that no materials may be bought or sold without clearance with WPB, and in the course of getting clearance, the applicant must state a lot of intimate facts about his business, including buying price, selling price, profit, and inventories.

The real meaning of the complaint is that the industry is not worried about paper work so much as it is worried about limitation on profits. Under government control, prices are held down by the fact that sales are limited to war needs, but when this restriction is removed, the demand for chemical materials will be terrific, and profits will go through the ceiling.

CAPITAL CHAFF

The Argentine government had already retracted its ban on the Jewish press even before President Roosevelt denounced the ban.

Foreign Economic administration, which does a lot of business with Latin America, is worried over the fact that its initials, FEA, mean "ugly" in Spanish.

There's a new breath of life in state department press conferences since Ed Stettinius took charge.

Jesse Jones hasn't held a press conference for more than a year.

TO ALL ESSENTIAL WINTER DRIVERS:

Check Anti-Skid Chains, Wipers, and Defrosters Before First Snowfall.

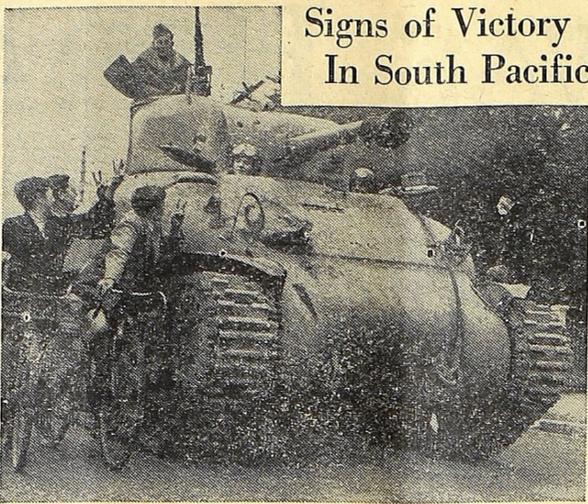

STATE COLLEGE, PA. — Prof. Amos E. Neyhart, administrative head of the Institute of Public Safety, the Pennsylvania State college, and consultant on road training, American Automobile association, warns essential drivers in 34 winter affected states they must prepare in advance with practical precautions to "get through safely and on time this crucial, wartime winter."

Having just completed the fifth annual short course for truck fleet supervisors, Professor Neyhart points out that over half of the nation's passenger cars are owned by workers in industries essential to prosecution of the war.

"While the vast majority of trucks are essential, a larger than normal percentage of passenger cars will likewise be in the absolutely essential transportation class this winter and should therefore be equipped and able to get through, and get through safely and on time, when severe snow and ice conditions arrive," he declared.

"The primary hazards of winter driving are inadequate traction and reduced visibility," Neyhart said, "and this means those who must get through regardless of severe winter road conditions should repair anti-skid chains now, since new ones are scarce, and check condition of windshield wipers and defrosters."

He pointed out that the National Safety Council's committee on winter driving hazards studies revealed that traffic accidents in snow-belt states last winter ran the mileage death rate up 24 per cent higher than the summer toll. The milder southern winter caused a 5 per cent increase in states below the Mason-Dixon line.

Signs of Victory In South Pacific

Street and highway departments, he said, have already been advised to repair snow plows because new machines are hard to get, and to attempt to forestall a labor shortage for such work as snow removal. Labor shortage for winter road maintenance will undoubtedly be serious, and Neyhart advised essential car owners in the vital northern states to take immediate steps to secure new, or repair old, seasonal winter equipment needed for their own protection in driving to work.

"Let winter help defeat the Axis, not America," he warned. "Even minor skid-wrecks, with mechanics so busy, may lay up cars for the duration, and everyone must cooperate to minimize traffic tieups due to snow and ice on the essential civilian front. Avoidable accidents and delays on the home front spell too little and too late on the battle front."

"Many newly essential worker-drivers, who formerly stayed home when roads were bad, may not be prepared for the role of war workers who must 'get there,'" Neyhart said, and advised them to "beg, borrow, or repair a pair of tire chains and otherwise check your car for winter."

AMERICA IN ACTION

ARMY VICTORY GARDENS OVERSEAS

In geometrically perfect garden plots behind barracks in the United States, in tenderly nurtured artificial cases on desert islands which exist only as army post office numbers and in the British Isles where a large but undisclosed number of American soldiers are stationed, the army has cultivated its own Victory gardens with the serious purpose of supplying the soldiers with food that they might not otherwise get.

In the first comprehensive report on army gardening activities in England, Maj. Gen. E. B. Gregory, the quartermaster general, discloses that under the Joint British-American Agricultural program, all suitable land in posts, camps and stations, British as well as American, in the British Isles, has been taken under cultivation for the production of fresh vegetables for consumption by British and American troops. The garden produce is used by whichever needs it most and neither is fussy about it. Because for every pound of food which can be produced in England, it means one less pound of food that must be shipped there, and whether it is eaten by British or American soldiers is not of great importance. What is important is saving space on ships for the men and guns and tanks necessary to win the war.

Brig. Gen. Robert A. Littlejohn, chief quartermaster for the European theater of operations, reports that upwards of 14,000 acres are now under cultivation and that another 1,000 acres probably will be put to gardens by the end of the year.

What do they raise in these gardens? Pretty much the same things that private American Victory gardeners raise except for hay and grain crops which will be utilized by dairymen to effect the grassland the dairymen have been deprived of, a sort of indirect contribution to the soldiers' diet. Altogether, the return from the gardening is expected to be about 25,000 tons of potatoes and 134,000 tons of vegetables and root crops, together with about 7,000 tons of hay and grain.

In the precise language of an official military letter, General Littlejohn says:

"Your particular attention is directed to the fact that there are frequent changes between British and American occupancy of camps, posts and stations, including air fields. For this reason it is impossible to predict exactly what proportion of the work will be done by British or American troops, or what proportion of the produce will be consumed by either. However, it is felt our mission is being accomplished for the reason that the joint program is producing foodstuffs that would otherwise have to be shipped to this country for the consumption of one army or the other. In addition, it should be borne in mind that the more self-supporting our armies are, the more food will be left for civilian consumption, both in the United States and in this country."

"Don't wait until the last minute to get ready for a date. No boy likes to make conversation with the family while you're deciding what dress to wear. And, for that matter, the family doesn't enjoy it much, either. Instead of getting your hair just so, you have to be satisfied with a few hasty dabs with brush and comb. You're in such a tizzy that your hand slips when you put on your lipstick and you look like a fugitive from a circus. You don't notice until it's too late, that your slip is dripping below your skirt. You haven't time now to sew on that loose button. Instead of sailing downstairs serenely, looking like a Cover Girl, you come tumbling down with a red face, a crumpled dress and a general feeling of not being put together. It was the early bird that got the worm—and it's the early girl that gets the boy."

"Come on Chubbin', start muggin'."
"Hi, bug, let's cut a rug."
"Get hep, you cat."

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

My daughter's 18th birthday is soon, and I would like to give her a party, but just can't afford anything elaborate. What would you suggest?

The majority of the 18-year-olds think first of music and dancing and then of food.

Have your guests all arrive at once, and surprise your daughter. You can supply music on records—and be sure the music is "hot."

The refreshments need not be elaborate.

Rooms for Improvement

Every girl wants a pretty room of her own. While you might not be able to afford one that looks like a set in an M. G. M. movie, you can certainly improve the one you have. Some tricky teens thought up these ideas and they're keen.

PATCHWORK PRETTIES—Everybody's making patchwork skirts and blouses. Why don't YOU be different and make curtains or drapes out of patches, sewn together? For a bureau scarf or bed spread, get your friends to give you small squares of any left-over materials with their names written on them. Embroider over their autographs and sew the squares together into bureau scarfs or bed spreads.

WRITE IDEA—Make drapes out of unbleached muslin. Hang a heavy pencil or crayon on the tie-back and invite your friends to sign your drapes.

CRATE STUFF—Two orange crates, stood on end and connected by a board over the top make a grand dressing table. Just dress it up with a skirt of chintz. A butter tub, turned upside down, makes a perfect bench if you make a cushion for the top and gather a skirt around it.

PINCUSHION MIRROR—Make a padded fabric frame for your mirror so you can use it as a parking space for your gadget pins.

COKE BAR BARGAIN—An old bookcase makes a wonderful coke bar for your room; cut it down if it's too high. Paint it and cover with Jabberwocky or autographs. Use the shelves for glasses, bottles and pretzels.

New Army Field Ration Called 10-in-1; It's Canned Dehydrated Corned Beef Hash

CHICAGO.—Part of a large, wooded estate north of this city was turned into a typical Italian "battle area" recently when a large group of mothers and wives of soldiers now overseas found out at first hand just what their sons and husbands are eating when supplied with army field and combat rations, and how the food is prepared.

The occasion was the introduction on the home front of the newest army ration—the 10-in-1—by the Chicago depot of the U. S. quartermaster corps. This ration has been in production for two months, but its announcement has been withheld until overseas reports disclosed its enthusiastic reception by fighting men in all parts of the world.

At this field mess, a rough clearing, flanked by dense woods, was the setting. Army trucks with cartons of the ration drove in. Field ranges were set up exactly as they are in a front line war theater. The women were equipped with regulation army mess kits. At the call, "come and get it," they lined up at the kitchens and received their food in regulation army style.

The "entree" at the meal was the army's newest dehydrated food product—corned beef hash—developed after months of research by food scientists of the quartermaster corps and Wilson and Co., Chicago meat packers.

The speed with which the dehydrated hash can be prepared—a highly important asset when a soldier's under fire—astonished the women at the army meal. Within ten minutes after the addition of hot or cold water, the hash is ready to eat. When there is a good cook around, the women learned, the hash can be fried or baked into loaves for slicing or for sandwiches.

Capt. Joseph A. Burkhardt of the Chicago depot of the U. S. quartermaster corps explains the advantages of the new dehydrated corned beef hash, recently accepted for army overseas rations, to Mrs. Geoffrey S. Gough, whose husband overseas will soon be eating the new food product.

Two cans of the dehydrated hash are included in each Menu No. 5 of the army 10-in-1 field ration. The mothers and wives at the army demonstration meal learned that this ration contains three full meals for ten soldiers, or ten days' food for one soldier.

Danger of Fire Lurks Constantly in Barns

Hazards May Be Removed By Simple Precautions

Barns generally house the farmer's most valuable livestock, equipment and feed; yet, the barn is packed with fire hazards. But to all practical purposes, all of the major causes of barn fires can be eliminated if the farmer will practice simple precautions and be constantly vigilant. The National Fire Protection association working with the Department of Agriculture, has compiled a list of these dangers.

Cobwebs, dust and litter of all kinds should not be allowed to ac-accumulate around fuse boxes where they may be ignited by short circuits or around high-speed machinery where sparks can set them ablaze. Knotting of electric cords is dangerous as it may be the cause of short circuits. The main switch box should also be far enough removed from the lightning rod cable so that bolts of lightning cannot jump from the cable to the switch box, short circuiting the wiring.

Inflammable roofs often are ignited by chimney sparks, or sparks blown long distances from brush fires, bonfires or forest fires. For this reason inflammable barn roofs should be re-covered with fire-resistant materials such as asphalt shingles or asphalt roll roofing.

Lanterns should never be placed where an animal or a workman can kick them over. They should not be hung on a twine from a dusty and cobweb-covered ceiling. They should be kept away from drafts and away from any accumulations of combustible materials. It was a cow kicking over a lantern that started the great Chicago fire, according to tradition, and many a barn has been destroyed in this way.

Smoking should be prohibited in the barn at all times. It is even dangerous to light up a pipe or a cigarette on the way out the barn door, as the sparks may be blown back to ignite combustible stores inside. Workmen are also advised against carrying loose matches.

Spontaneous combustion of hay is one of the most common barn fire causes. All hay should be properly cured before being stored in the mow and should be inspected frequently for signs of heating. Roof leaks creating moisture will start the heating process in perfectly cured hay.

In addition to these precautions, fire-fighting equipment should be kept on hand at all times to tackle any blaze that breaks out despite all carefulness. Each farm should have a long ladder, hose, buckets of water and sand reserved solely for fire use, and a fire extinguisher. To be effective these things must be kept in sound condition and in a spot where they are immediately available in an emergency.

Clear Pecan Groves

Clearing low producing trees and all foreign timber from a pecan grove often may double production in a relatively short time. According to J. F. Rosborough, horticulturist for the Texas A. and M. college, this clean-up has the further benefit of aiding in the control of certain insects and diseases, and facilitating the harvesting of nuts. In all cases, however, it should be followed through with the elimination of stumps and sprouts.

Ceylon, Africa and tropical America are expected to provide the U. S. with 54,000 long tons of crude rubber during 1943. In 1939, it is estimated, 499,473 long tons of crude were imported by this country.

Para, Brazil, was the first great rubber center. Founded in 1615, it became an important port for foreign trade about 1775. A hundred years later it was the rubber capital of the world.

Rubber obtained from a native wild vine in the Belgian Congo made Leopold II of Belgium wealthy during the 1890-1910 period. Plantation rubber development killed the Congo vine boom.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for November 14

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE SANCTITY OF THE HOME

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:14; Matthew 5:27-30; Mark 10:2-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.—Matthew 5:8.

As the divinely appointed center of man's life, the home holds a place of such importance that it is the special target of Satan's offensive. That has always been true, but it seems that in recent years the onslaught against the home has been intensified.

Books, plays, movies, magazines, all contribute their filthy efforts to break down all sense of moral responsibility. Sex is magnified, and not in any useful or normal sense, but rather for the stimulating of unholy desires and purposes, the breaking down of Christian standards of living, and the ultimate prostitution of the most sacred of all human relationships to the lowest level of which animals might well be ashamed.

All this means that this lesson should be taught with a holy boldness and plainness which will make it effective for God in our homes.

We do not like to talk about adultery and related sins. We must speak with care and tact, but perhaps the time has come for some straightforward dealing with an unpleasant situation.

I. Protect the Purity of the Home (Exod. 20:14; Matt. 5:27-30)

Any violation of the divine plan for the marriage of one man and one woman, in loving communion for the founding and maintenance of the home, is a direct violation of the law of God.

It is also a violation of the law of man. It brings serious results in the destruction of the home, and in the ruin of individual life—physical, moral and spiritual.

The words of Jesus broaden the interpretation of the commandment to cover all sexual impurity in thought, word, or deed.

We are to be firm and definite in our dealing with this temptation to moral uncleanness even though it be as painful as tearing out an eye or losing a hand. The command here is not necessarily to be interpreted literally. Tearing out an eye will not help if there is lust in the heart. The point is, go to the root of the matter, and get rid of it even if it hurts. Most of us are far too easy on our sinful impulses. We dally with them when we should destroy them.

II. Recognize Marriage as a Divine Institution (Mark 10:2-8)

The Pharisees, who had devised some ingenious schemes for getting rid of an undesired wife, wanted to get Jesus involved in the question. They put him up against Moses who had allowed divorce.

Jesus made it clear that this was not in accord with God's plan and only took place because of their sinful hardness of heart.

As a proper background for the discussion of divorce He set up the divine origin of marriage. He made it clear that marriage was ordained by God, and that it involves a holy union of two individuals which makes them one.

All those who look forward to marriage should realize that it is not a casual thing, or a merely temporary legal contract. It is a union for life—be it for better or worse, in sickness or health, in prosperity or adversity. All who are married should highly regard their sacred vows.

The high place of marriage in Christian teaching dignifies that relationship and denies the misleading and destructive theories of men.

III. Follow God's Law on Divorce (Mark 10:9-12)

Failure to observe God's law in these matters may involve a person in the guilt of gross sin. This passage and others teach that divorce is to be permitted on the one ground of adultery (Matt. 5:32).

Divorce and remarriage other than on grounds permitted by God involves the parties in the sin of adultery. Men may make laws based on the civil contract of marriage which provide differently, but man cannot remove marriage from its place as a divine institution, nor can he add to or take away from God's law concerning it.

Aware, as we are, of the laxness of some branches of the church in such matters, and the almost entire lack of standards in the world, we cannot but present the plain teachings of our Lord and urge every reader to follow the commandment of God's Word.

There can be no question that divorce is a major evil in our day. Statistics are positively shocking, but they are cold and quickly forgotten. But who can fail to see, and who can forget, the awful woe brought into American home life by divorce.

Bad as it is, the awful effect on parents is nothing compared to the nervous, moral and spiritual shock which comes to children in broken homes. And that problem is everywhere.

PEAKING OF SPORTS

By Bob McShane
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

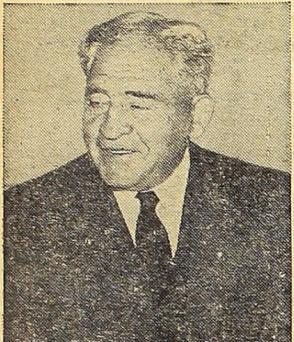

BACK in 1939, when Amos Alonzo Stagg was entering his 50th year of coaching, a widely read sports writer had this to say:

"When his record-breaking coaching service at the University of Chicago was ended by compulsory retirement in 1933, Stagg characteristically refused to quit the game and is rounding out his career in the comparative obscurity of a small campus at the College of the Pacific at Stockton, Calif., a city of 47,000, where he is regarded as the first citizen.

At 81, Stagg unquestionably is the first citizen of Stockton. But if he is obscure, so is the sun on a cloudless Fourth of July. His "obscurity" is on a nation-wide basis.

Life Begins at 71

Ten years ago Stagg decided the life for him as a football coach would begin at 71. This season the oldest gridiron warrior of them all is confusing the opposition with one of his best teams. His College of the Pacific squad won its first four games, losing the fifth, a heartbreaker, to unbeaten Southern California by a close 6-0 margin.

College of the Pacific, until now little known athletically outside its own Far Western conference, in 1932 offered Stagg a lifetime coaching berth. Stagg put Pacific on the sports map, and today in his 11th season and his 54th year of coaching he directs a team that beat St. Mary's Navy Pre-Flight, the University of California at Los Angeles, the University of California, and the Alameda Coast Guard before losing to Southern California.

What accounts for Stagg's amazing success this year? Good material is part of the answer. The navy transferred some outstanding backfield talent, including several St. Mary's College players headed by Pass Thrower John Podesto.

But a large share of the credit goes to the "Stagg system." He copies from no other coach. He conceived the flanker at Chicago in 1918 and it is a vital part of today's system. He is using some of his oldest stuff, with a few new twists, to trick his opponents.

The Development

Stagg's "oldest stuff" is really well seasoned. The Grand Old Man of the game watched football develop from the kicking stage to the carrying stage to the passing stage.

He recalls the 15-man team and the era when the center—then called the "snapperback"—had to pass the ball with his foot. There was the celebrated "maul in goal," when the runner and tackler might wrestle for 10 or 15 minutes over getting the ball grounded for a touchdown.

He saw the origin of the term "gridiron." The term was first used when the field was marked off in parallel stripes. He witnessed the introduction of interference, once strictly forbidden, and of the revolutionary forward pass.

Stagg was playing with Yale when slugging was abolished. His was the day of superschedules. His 1894 squad played 22 games. He coached during the period when indoor football was popular.

Inventions

In 1889 Stagg invented the tackling dummy. He was a member of the first team to use numerical signals. He was the first man to have the quarterback receive the ball. His fake kicks always have been a headache to opponents. The tackles-back and turtle-back plays, famous in their day, were his own inventions. His applications of the forward pass contributed much to ground gaining strategy. He was the first coach to number players for the spectators' convenience.

Stagg first coached at YMCA college at Springfield, Mass., during the time he was a student there.

That was 54 years ago.
Today Stagg is still out on the field in Stockton, turning out a great football team. Sports followers who had heard little of Pacific until this year took his recent defeat to heart. They wanted the Old Man to win. More than any other coach he symbolizes football at its best.

An undefeated season would have meant a great deal to Stagg, but defeat doesn't lessen his overwhelming pride in his boys.

25 Years Ago—November 15, 1918.

Last Monday the greatest war in all history came to an end after four years of fighting. Kaiser Wilhelm has abdicated and fled to Holland to escape the anger of the German people, who have risen in revolt. It is altogether likely that this will be the last war for hundreds of years for imperialism has received a blow from which it will never recover.

Moses Minor of Detroit spent several days in the city this week with his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Minor.

Material for the big bonfire Monday night was secured from the old partly demolished Bay Side hotel to celebrate the armistice.

The contingent of drafted men leaving here Monday were intercepted at Saginaw and returned home.

Fred Force left Monday for the Upper Peninsula where he will spend a few days deer hunting.

Albert Drager of Sherman township is visiting for a few days at Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blumenau of Whittemore have moved to Detroit.

Sgt. Herbert Rutterbush of the Marines is home on furlough.

Ralph Clute is busy threshing beans a buckwheat in Tawas township.

Carl Haight is recovering from wounds in the hospital at Bramshott, England.

Corp. Glenn Staley is reported to have been killed in Siberia on September 17. Corp. Staley was from Hale.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hesel have moved from Reno to a farm they have purchased in Ohio.

Miss Isabelle Cowie of Saginaw is visiting her home at Hale.

Jed Harrington has secured a position with the Bay City Foundry & Iron Works.

Herman Butler is visiting in Otisville and Clio.

Most Mammals Color-Blind

It is not true, says Author Roy Chapman Andrews, that bulls get mad when they see red—all mammals except monkeys and men are color-blind. Many animals can be taught to detect slight differences of shade, but when variously colored disks emitting the same intensity of light are presented, the animals are baffled. Thus a dog sees the world, including his master, in various shades of gray, as in a photograph. But birds, fish and insects can distinguish colors.

Stool Pigeons

Recently a crippled holdup man made a desperate attempt to escape from the custody of a deputy by felling him with a crutch outside of Tombs prison.

Keeps on BACKING the ATTACK with WAR BONDS

Pigeons Fly Coop

An Akron, Ohio, officer testified he knew his prisoner was drunk because his eyes were bloodshot, whereupon the prisoner calmly removed his glass eye and the judge said "case dismissed." The Messrs. Kurwoski and Stawdohr of Chicago, each claiming ownership of three pigeons, suggested that the judge release the birds which then would wing home to their rightful cotes. A window was opened, the doves flew forth—whither no man knoweth to this day.

Whale Is a Mammal

One of the commonest popular errors of zoology is the notion that the whale is some sort of fish. It is not; it is a mammal which went to sea. The whale is warm-blooded, has a well-developed brain, and in all other respects shows a far higher organization than any of the fishes. Its young are born alive, and are suckled and cared for by the mother as with land mammals.

The finest CHRISTMAS present you can give is one of Uncle Sam's WAR BONDS. Keep on BACKING THE ATTACK.

IN MICHIGAN, a thousand miles away, his young wife is in the hospital. Ever since he got excused from drill he's been waiting for the public telephone—waiting to get a call through to the doctor—hoping to hear him say, "It's a boy, and they're both doing fine!"
But the wires are crowded with calls that move armies and speed war production, calls from service men to the folks back home—and many civilian social calls.
So—patiently he waits. Waits and looks at his watch with a lump in his throat. And finally he'll have to go back to his barracks—to go to bed, but not to sleep.

If you want to do a good turn for soldiers and sailors, leave the long distance lines clear for their calls in the evening between 7 and 10. That is usually the only time they can telephone. And if you have a man of your own in the service, remember it's better to let him call you. If you try to reach him by long distance, he's often difficult to locate.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

THE STORY SO FAR: Edward Thomas Marion Lawton Hargrove, feature editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has started his story of a private's life in the army by giving prospective doughboys some solid advice on what course to pursue the days and nights before induction. He advises them to "paint the town red." On getting into the army he tells them "to keep your mind open" as the "first three weeks are the hardest." Like a job in civil life, says Hargrove, it's the first impression that counts. He has received his own induction notice and with a number of other soon-to-be-soldiers has completed the first day at camp. He is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. Carolina.

CHAPTER II

A soldier stuck his head through the door of our new dormitory and gave a sharp whistle. "Nine o'clock!" he yelled. "Lights out and no more noise! Go to sleep!"

"It has been, withal, a very busy day," I said to Piel, who was buried with his hay fever in the next bunk.

"It sure withal has," he said. "What a day! What a place! What a life! With my eyes wide open I'm dreaming!"

"It's been a little hellish out today," I agreed, "although it could have been worse. We actually saw a corporal and he didn't cuss us. We have eaten Army food twice, and, except for the haphazard way the pineapple was thrown toward the peas, it wasn't horrifying."

"I am broken and bleeding," moaned Piel. "Classification tests, typing tests, medical examinations."

The old sergeant, his face beaming sweetly, purred, "You are now members of the Army of the United States. Now, damn it, shut up."

I think I walked eighteen miles through those medical examinations. It's a good thing this is July. I would have frozen in my treks with all that walking and exposure. Nothing I had on, except a thin little iodine number on my chest.

"Funny thing about the medical examination," a voice broke in from down the line. "Before you get it, you're afraid you'll pass. When you go through the examinations, you're afraid you won't."

"I noticed that," I said. "I don't have any special hankering for a soldier's life, but I thought when I was going through the hoops this morning that this would be a helluva time for them to back out."

"The little fellow who slept down at the end got sent back," said a loud whisper from across the room. "One of his legs was shorter than the other. He's a lucky dog."

"I'll bet he doesn't think so," said Piel. "At this stage of the game, I'm glad it was him instead of me."

A dark form showed itself in the doorway. "I told you guys to shad-dap and go to sleep. Do it!"

A respectful silence filled the room for three minutes.

"Look at me," said Piel. "Won't the folks in Atlanta be proud when they get my letter! Me, Melvin Piel, I'm a perfect physical specimen."

Big Jim Hart, the football star whom I had known in high school, spoke up. "Don't go Hollywood about it, Piel. Just remember, Hargrove's a perfect specimen too. And just two weeks ago, when we were waiting out in front of the armory for the draft board examiners to get there, he had one foot in the grave."

"And the other foot?"

"That's the one he keeps in his mouth."

"Yessir," said Piel, "the Army makes men."

So we quietly went to sleep. This morning we took the Oath. One of the boys was telling me later that when his brother was inducted in Alabama, there was a tough old sergeant who was having an awful time keeping the men quiet. "Gentlemen," he would beseech them, "Quiet, please!" They were quiet during the administration of the Oath, after which they burst forth again.

The old sergeant, his face beaming sweetly, purred: "You are now members of the Army of the United States. Now, damn it, SHUT UP."

This morning—our first morning in the Recruit Reception Center—began when we finished breakfast and started cleaning up our squad-room. A gray-haired, fatherly old private, who swore that he had been demoted from master sergeant four times, lined us up in front of the barracks and took us to the dispensary.

If the line in front of the mess hall dwindled as rapidly as the one at the dispensary, life would have loveliness to sell above its private consumption stock. First you're fifteen feet from the door, then (whiff) you're inside. Then you're standing between two orderlies and the show is on.

The one on my left scratched my arm and applied the smallpox virus. The only thing that kept me from keeling over was the hypodermic needle loaded with typhoid germs, which propped up my right arm.

From the dispensary we went to a huge warehouse of a building by the railroad tracks. The place looked like Goldenberg's Basement on a busy day. A score of fitters measured necks, waists, inseams, heads, and feet.

My shoe size, the clerk yelled down the line, was ten and a half. "I beg your pardon," I prompted, "I wear a size nine."

"Forgive me," he said, a trifle weary, "the expression is 'I wear a size nine.' These shoes are to walk in, not to make you look like Cinderella. You say size nine; your foot says ten and a half."

We filed down a long counter, picking up our allotted khaki and denim, barrack bags and raincoats, mess kits and tent halves. Then we were led into a large room, where we laid aside the vestments of civil life and donned our new garments.

While I stood there, wondering what I was supposed to do next, an attendant caught me from the rear and strapped to my shoulders what felt like the Old Man of the Mountain after forty days.

"Straighten up, soldier," the attendant said, "and git off the floor. That's nothing but a full field pack, such as you will tote many miles before you leave this man's army. Now I want you to walk over to that ramp and over it. That's just to see if your shoes are comfortable."

"With these Oregon boots and this burden of misery," I told him firmly, "I couldn't even walk over to the thing. As for climbing over it, not even an alpenstock, a burro train, and two St. Bernard dogs complete with brandy could get me over it."

There was something in his quiet, steady answering glance that reassured me. I went over the ramp in short order. On the double, I think the Army calls it.

From there we went to the theater, where we were given intelligence tests, and to the classification office, where we were interviewed by patient and considerate corporals.

"And what did you do in civil life?" my corporal asked me.

"I was feature editor of the Charlotte News."

"And just what sort of work did you do, Private Hargrove? Just give me a brief idea."

Seven minutes later, I had finished answering that question.

"Let's just put down here, 'Editorial worker.'" He sighed compassionately. "And what did you do before all that?"

I told him. I brought in the publicity work, the soda-jerking, the theater ushering, and the printer's deviling.

"Private Hargrove," he said, "the army is just what you have needed to ease the burdens of your existence. Look no farther, Private Hargrove, you have found a home."

This was a lovely morning. We began at daybreak and devoted all the time until noon to enjoying the beauties of nature. We had a drill sergeant to point them out to us. We marched a full twenty miles without leaving the drill field. Lunch, needless to say, was delicious.

We fell into bed, after lunch, determined to spend the afternoon in dreamland. Two minutes later, that infernal whistle blew. Melvin Piel, guardhouse lawyer for Company A, explained it all on the way downstairs. We were going to be assigned to our permanent stations.

I fell in and a corporal led us off down the street. I could feel the California palm trees fanning my face. We stopped at Barracks 17 and the corporal led us inside.

"Do we go to California, corporal?" I asked.

"Naah," he said.

"Where do we go?" I asked him, a little disappointed.

"To the garbage rack," he said. "Double quick." He thumbed Johnny Lisk and me to the back of the barracks.

At the garbage rack we found three extremely fragrant garbage cans. Outside, we found more. Lisk and I, citizen-soldiers, stared at them. The overcheerful private to whom we were assigned told us, "When you finish cleaning those, I want to be able to see my face in them!"

"There's no accounting for tastes," Lisk whispered. Nevertheless, we cleaned them and polished them and left them spick and span.

"Now take 'em outside and paint 'em," said the private. "White. Git the black paint and paint 'HQCORR' on both sides of all of them!"

"This is summer," I suggested. "Wouldn't something pastel look better?"

The sun was affecting the private. "I think you're right," he said. So we painted them cream and lettered them in brilliant orange.

All afternoon, in a blistering sun, we painted garbage cans. The other Charlotte boys waved to us as they passed on their way to the ball park. Happy voices floated to us from the post exchange.

The straw-boss private woke up, yawned and went away, telling us what would happen if we did likewise. He returned soon in a truck. He motioned peremptorily to us and we loaded the cans into the truck. Away we went to headquarters company—and painted more garbage cans. It was definitely suppertime by now.

"Now can we go home, Private Dooley, sir?" asked Lisk. I looked at Lisk every time the blindness left me, and I could see the boy was tired.

The private sighed wearily. "Git in the truck," he said. Away we went back to our street. We stopped in front of our barracks and Private Dooley dismounted. "The truck driver," he said, "would appreciate it if you boys would go and help him wash the truck."

We sat in the back of the truck and watched the mess hall fade away behind us. Two, three, four miles we left it behind us. We had to wait ten minutes before we could get the wash-pit. It took us fifteen minutes to wash the truck. By the time we got back to the mess hall, we were too tired to eat. But we ate.

It was through no fault of mine that I was a kitchen policeman on my sixth day. The whole barracks got the grind. And it was duty, not punishment.

It was all very simple, this KP business. All you have to do is to get up an hour earlier, serve the food, and keep the mess hall clean.

After we served breakfast, I found a very easy job in the dining hall, where life is much pinker than it is in the kitchen. A quartet was formed and we were singing "Home on the Range." A corporal passed by just as I hit a sour note. He put the broom into my left hand, the mop into my right . . .

There was a citizen-soldier from Kannapolis to help me clean the cooks' barracks. For a time it was awful. We tried to concentrate on the floor while a news broadcaster almost tore up the radio trying to decide whether we were to be in the Army ten years or twenty.

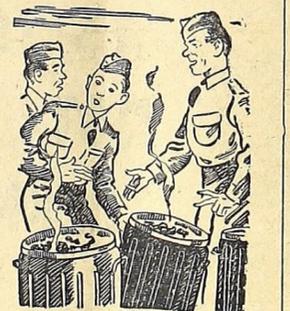

We finished the job in an extremely short time to impress the corporal. This, we found later, is a serious tactical blunder and a discredit to the ethics of gold-bricking. The sooner you finish a job the sooner you start in on the next.

The corporal liked our work, unfortunately. Kannapolis was allowed to sort garbage and I was promoted to the pot-and-pan polishing section. I was Themos Kokenes' assistant. He washed and I dried. Later we formed a goldbricking entente. We both washed and made Conrad Wilson dry.

Pollyanna the glad girl would have found something silver-lined about the hot sink. So did I. "At least," I told Kokenes, "this will give me back a chance to recover from that mop."

When I said "mop," the mess sergeant handed me one. He wanted to be able to see his face in the kitchen floor. After lunch he wanted the back porch polished.

We left the Reception Center mess hall a better place to eat in, at any rate. But KP is like a woman's work—never really done. Conrad Wilson marked one caldron and at the end of the day we found that we had washed it twenty-two times.

"When you finish cleaning those cans, I want to be able to see my face in them."

Jack Mulligan helped me up the last ten steps to the squadroom. I finally got to the side of my bunk. "Gentlemen," I said to the group which gathered around to scoop me off the floor, "I don't ever want to see another kitchen!"

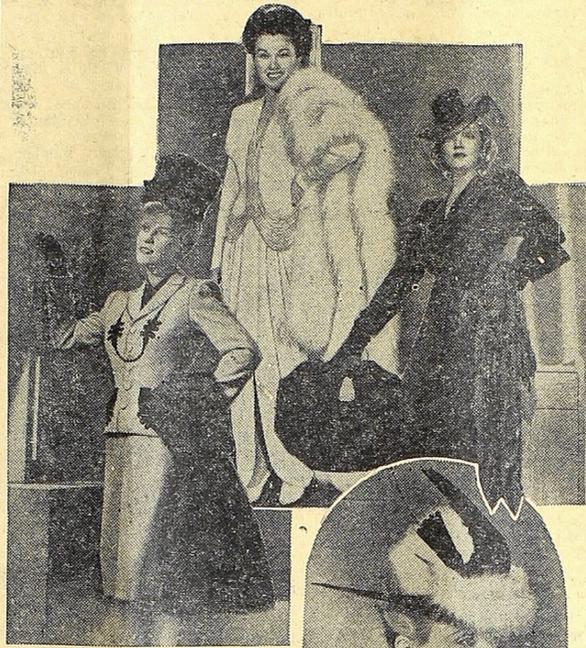

The next morning we were classified and assigned to the Field Artillery Replacement Center. Gene Shumate and I were classified as cooks. I am a semi-skilled cook, they say, although the only egg I ever tried to fry was later used as a tire patch. The other cooks include postal clerks, tractor salesmen, railroad engineers, riveters, bricklayers, and one blacksmith.

But we'll learn. Already I've learned to make beds, sweep, mop, wash windows and sew a fine seam. When Congress lets me go home, will I make some woman a good wife!

Fashion Is in Mood for Swank Accessories and Handsome Furs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS is a season when you are supposed to dress up your basic costume with dramatic accessories and stunning fur pieces. If you have been saving a choice bit of fur, thinking that sometime it might be used to trim a suit or fashion a hat, now's the time to hand it over to your furrier or your milliner. Tell her to make you up something fetching in the way of handbag, hat, scarf or muff to wear with your suit or coat, your one-piece dress or your loveliest evening gown.

Don't throw away the tiniest swatch of fur, for even the most insignificant little piece can be fashioned into a cunning bow to wear on the lapel of your cloth coat, or to pin on the pocket of your tweed jacket. If you are clever you can make your own little fur novelties out of tidbits of seal, Persian lamb, mink or gray lamb.

There's lots doing this winter among designers who vie with each other as to who can turn out the most strikingly original ideas in hat and muff or hat and bag sets, and special emphasis is being placed upon the importance of stole-like neckpieces.

Best dressed women regard a stole of choice fur as being a necessary luxury this season, be it of the simple type to wear with one's smart tailleur, or the more elaborate sort for evening wear. Of the latter sort is the exquisite white fox fur which imparts drama to the lovely white gown centered in the illustration. That fashion is in a mood for swank accessories is seen in the hair ornament made of strands of white satin glass beads. Following the Chinese influence, it is balanced at each side, as if in salute to our ally.

With a gray suit, milady to the left in the picture wears a black scarf fox turban and a stole that converts into a muff. It may be worn as a scarf with the ends forming a muff, or it can be carried as a muff with long stole ends. This scarf-muff novelty, so practical and so wearable, is typical of the clever things being done with fur.

Braid-Trimmed Hats

Newest of the new winter felts bring tidings of braid-trimmed hats. Perfect for wear with tailored clothes is a hat of gray felt as shown above. It is very outstanding because of the fact that it is trimmed with black braid, which is big news. The vogue for braid trims is becoming increasingly interesting, since designers are making lavish use of braiding this year on everything from dresses and coats to handbags and hats. The high peaked crown of the other model shown reflects Russian influence.

Lapel Pins Are Made Of Colored Leather

Birds and animals are being copied in miniature done in gay leathers for the newest lapel pins. Birds of paradise are in gold kid trimmed with scallops of green and red and finished off with a single real feather. A flamingo spreads long pink tail feathers, its plumage made of fragments of kid. The parrot is the sauciest specimen of all, done in green leather with yellow and red contrasts. This new leather jewelry also includes animals, such as a big white leather circus horse, a toy elephant and so on. School-girls like to wear these on their jackets or at the neckline of their smart long sweaters.

Collar and Cuffs Now Get Designers' Attention

Not long since it was pockets that were featured as the center of attraction in coat dress and blouse styling. But if you will take sharp note as you saunter through fashion displays you will observe that it is collar and cuffs upon which designers are now focusing their creative genius. It will be interesting to keep tab on this movement. A dress, for instance, will be sans trimming except for glittering sequin collar and cuffs. New too, are the braided collar and cuff sets.

Lace-Trimmed Calots

Both small and brimmed velvete hats are enchantingly trimmed with lace that tunes beautifully to gala occasion. These black velvet fantasies are most alluring and the tiny calot and bonnet types with their mantilla like lace drapes or halo veils of sheerest Chantilly are most alluring.

Large-Sized Vestee
The older woman sometimes has difficulty in finding instructions to make a smart crocheted sleeveless vestee. This one was especially designed for sizes 38-40 and 42. It is comfortable, well-fitted and can be worn in the house in our winter heat-ratoned rooms

Household Hints
Drafts caused by air entering under baseboards can be eliminated by tacking felt weatherstripping under the quarter-round.

Shingle roofs should be kept well painted or stained as a protection against destruction by the elements and to insure against the developments of expensive and difficult-to-find leaks.

Water spots can often be removed from polished furniture by rubbing lightly with turpentine applied on a soft cloth. Wipe dry and re wax.

After yarn has been steamed for removing kinks, wind it on a cake rack. It is not only easier to handle that way, but can readily be hung on the line to dry.

Grape juice frosting is delicious and different. Put three tablespoons grape juice in a pint bowl, then stir in 1 to 1½ cups of confectioner's sugar till mixture is thick enough to spread on your cake.

Make a sauce for cottage pudding out of left-over fruit juice by dissolving cornstarch in cold water and adding it to the fruit juice and cooking it for a few minutes.

Aluminum utensils can be cleaned by boiling vinegar water in them or cooking in them some acid food like tomatoes or rhubarb. They never should be scoured with gritty powders nor an attempt made to clean them with soda. The soda just makes matters worse and the gritty powders injure the utensil.

You're helping our troops when you save used fat in your kitchen and turn it in to your meat dealer. One pound of fat contains glycerine for 1.5 pounds of gunpowder.

and is equally comfortable for out-of-door wear under a heavy coat. Make it of wool sport yarn in American Beauty, navy blue, brown or dark green.

For complete crocheting instructions for the Larger Woman's Vestee (Pattern No. 5619) sizes include 38-40 and 42, send 16 cents in coins, your name and address and the pattern number.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Great Year-Round Tonic

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

Tragedy: She is a cleaning woman who takes care of the suite of offices occupied by a publicity concern which handles a number of night club accounts. But though the owner and staff are fully conversant with things that happen along Broadway and know much about the characters of that street, the cleaning woman was merely a motherly looking figure who came on the job each evening just as the offices were being closed for the day. Her name was known of course but that was about all. Also it long had been noted that she was so regular in her appearance that she automatically announced quitting time. The other afternoon, she arrived an hour ahead of schedule. The office manager and the staff looked at her in surprise. The cleaning woman gave an explanation: "I have to get home early this afternoon . . . my little boy was killed."

Shortage: Because so many husbands and sons have gone into the army, moving day in New York this year witnessed greater compression than usual, the demand for smaller apartments not being nearly equal to the supply. Many couples moved from apartments into single rooms and thus arose a quest for two-burner electric stoves. Since they are no longer manufactured for civilian use, the supply was soon exhausted. The ingenious made searches among second-hand stores, especially those on the East Side, and in some instances were successful. But one buyer had to pay $13.95 for a stove which, in the past, would have cost $6. He learned that the dealer, along with many others, had combed all the small towns in the vicinity of New York to buy various hard-to-obtain household articles and of course charged prices in keeping with his efforts.

Transportation: In the past, under a city ordinance, a New York taxi driver had to accept a fare, so long as he were sober, no matter where he cared to go. But in these times with the driver restricted to a certain number of gallons of gasoline, as well as the distance which he may travel, he can pick and choose. That means that those who desire to go from Manhattan to Brooklyn are out of luck. Residents of the far reaches of the Bronx fare no better. The drivers argue that, unless they can get a fare for the return trip, there is a waste of gas. Hence, an increase in subway travel. Incidentally, during the pleasure driving ban, the taxis had the streets just about to themselves and even now are "not bothered much," to quote one jehu, "by private cars."

Change: At the United States Merchant Marine academy at Kings Point, Long Island, there is a large and excellent band. The band supplies music not only for various academy affairs but, as is the case with other service organizations, plays for drills and reviews. That of course means a lot of marching since the drill field is a huge place. The band, however, does it as though the members had been hiking all their lives. As a matter of fact, many of the musicians are former members of New York night club orchestras and the drum major is none other than Jimmy Smith, well-known orchestra leader. It might be added that the bandmen no longer get their tan from barbershop sun lamps.

Service: Soldiers, sailors and marines who visit the Music Box Canteen on lower Fifth avenue now find an entirely new free service—facilities for making a few winks of sleep possible no matter what is going on around them. In the second floor lounge there are comfortable chairs and couches. To the sleepy lad, ear stoppers, scientifically designed and made of wax and cotton, are supplied. These shut out the strains of the juke box in the room below as well as noise made by players in the two adjoining game rooms. As further means of rest, a new horseshoe-shaped pillow is provided. It's known as a "fox hole pillow" and was invented by a veteran of World War I, the design being based on answers of hundreds of servicemen whom he queried about "catch-as-catch-can" sleeping, as well as his own experiences.

This and That: One small, tattered sparrow chasing three sleek, fat pigeons away from a sidewalk crumb feast spread by some philanthropist . . . Taxicabs moving into Grand Central in a solid stream . . . Yet whenever I've wanted one, none seemed available until I tipped a porter to make a search . . . and the bigger the subsidy, the sooner the end of the wait.

Here's Gift for One Who Reads in Bed

THIS bag was planned as a gift for someone who was finding days in bed difficult enough without having books, magazines and writing materials scattered about. The bag shown here was made of a remnant of heavy cotton upholstery materials in tones of green with a touch of red in the pattern. The red was repeated in the saaten lining. The sketch gives all the dimensions and shows how the lining and the outside part were made. A coat hanger was cut down to measure 12 inches from end to end and was placed between the lining and the outside; these being stitched together around the top, as illustrated.

NOTE—This bedside bag is but one of thirty-two useful things to make for the home, that are illustrated with detailed directions in BOOK 8 of the series prepared for readers. The price of BOOK 8 is 15 cents. Send your order to:
