Tawas Boy Broadcasts World Series Games for Our Troops in Australia

World series games and recordings a week at 1400 hours, a regiment were broadcast to large and enthusiastic crowds in the various Regiments by Sgt. Edward F. Wellna of Special Service. The touch of home was welcomed by entertainment-hungry soldiers who have been out of touch with sports news from the old country.

Response was so unanimous to this form of amusement that plans are being compiled to present transcriptions of famous radio programs over the P. A. system following the conclusion of the series. The programs will be continued indefinitely.

No schedule has been drawn up as yet, but the transcriptions will probably be presented three times a week at 1400 hours, a regiment were broadcast to large and enthusiastic crowds in the various Regiments by Sgt. Edward F. Wellna of Special Service. The touch of home was welcomed by entertainment-hungry soldiers who have been out of touch with sports news from the old country.

Such stars as Bob Hope, Fiber McGee, Red Skelton and Deanna Durbin will be heard on transcription.

The P. A. system used by Special Service is one of the finest in existence and the recordings come in exceptionally loud and clear.

The above reprint was taken from the October 15 issue of a post newspaper published somewhere in Australia. Sgt. Edward F. Wellna is the son of Mrs. Alex Wellna of Tawas township. He is with the Radio Engineers.

DEER HUNTER'S BULLET FATAL TO EARL KECK

Marshall Man Charged With Involuntary Manslaughter

Earl E. Keck of Alabaster was instantly killed while deer hunting Saturday morning, when hit by a bullet fired by Dwight Taylor, a deer hunter from Marshall, Michigan. Following an inquest held Monday by Coroner John Moffatt in which the jury rendered a verdict that the negligent use of firearms had caused the death of Earl Keck, Taylor was arraigned before Justice H. E. Friedman on an involuntary manslaughter charge. His examination was set for December 3, and he was released on a $500.00 bond.

The accident occurred at about ten o'clock Saturday morning above the Five Channel dam on the North side of the AuSable river. Taylor, who had been hunting with a party of friends on the north side of the river for several days, said that he was hunting alone when he saw a deer pass through an opening in front of him. Hearing it crash through the brush he took a few steps forward, and thinking he saw the deer, fired. The bullet hit Keck who was standing about 80 feet from him. Hunting with Keck, and nearby, were his wife, and his brother, Willard Keck of Battle Creek.

Earl Keck was born April 9, 1909, in Manistee county. He was united in marriage August 29, 1935, to Miss Florence Benson of Alabaster. For a number of years he had been employed by the Consumers Power Co. During the past three years he had worked as electrician for the United States Gypsum Co. at Alabaster.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, late of the editorial staff of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has been inducted into the army, classified as a cook and has spent a large share of his "spare" moments on KP duty. He has taken time out, however, to advise prospective doughboys to "paint the town red" before induction and once in the army to "keep an open mind" as the "first three weeks are the hardest." His constant assignment to KP is the despair of his sergeant who believes Hargrove will never learn to be a crack soldier. His last experience was a rifle inspection in which he fared badly. Now he begins a new episode concerning advancement in rank.

CHAPTER IV

Selectee Joseph G. Gantt, late of Liberty, South Carolina, came out for reveille this morning with a grin you could have used for a foot rule. He held both his arms against the front of his shirt in a queerly strained posture and blushed happily every time someone looked at him.

"The heat's got the boy," I told Gene Shumate. "Looks like the best ones always go first."

"That ain't the heat," said Cookie. "He seems to have a cramp in his arms." We looked at Citizen-Soldier Gantt's arms again. Then, for the first time, we noticed two shining stripes on each sleeve. Citizen-Soldier Gantt was a corporal now!

"Heavens to Betsy," we shouted in unison for his benefit. "Is that punk a corporal?" Corporal Gantt acknowledged the tribute by joyfully changing his color to a holiday

"Heavens to Betsy," we shouted in unison for his benefit. "Is that punk a corporal?"

red. The grin widened until his ears hung perilously on the brink of his lips. It took him half the morning to sober his spirits to working conditions.

Corporal Gantt had been in the Army exactly four months. He had been an acting corporal for three weeks before he got his stripes.

Heaven grant him strength for the ordeal ahead.

The term "buck private" was explained to us this afternoon. It refers to the Old Army Game, "passing the buck." The sergeant is first called on the carpet for a mistake in his platoon. The sergeant seeks out the corporal and gives him a dressing-down. The corporal passes the buck by scolding the ears of the private. The private doesn't even have a mule to kick, so he can't pass the buck any farther. He keeps it. That makes him a buck private.

The Army, I find, has many subtle ways to trap the unwary into volunteering for work. First there was the sergeant over at the Reception Center who came through the recreation hall one afternoon calling for "Private Smith." Four men answered. All four were put to work picking up cigarette stubs.

On the call, "Anybody in here know how to handle a truck?" don't speak up. The last three were seen later pushing a hand truck up the battery street to haul rifle racks.

Corporal Henry Ussery is to date the most dangerous conscripitor. This week he came into the squadroom to ask if anyone was good at short-hand. Three citizen-soldiers admitted that they were.

"Report to the kitchen," the corporal laughed. "The mess sergeant says he's shorthanded on dishwashers."

"One of the most solemn and responsible trusts of a soldier," Sergeant "Curly" Taylor said today, "is his guard duty." Sergeant Taylor, who has been in the Army for nineteen years and probably knows more about guard duty than any man in Fort Bragg, is teaching us about guard duty now.

The soldier is called to this duty about once a month. For a twenty-four-hour period, he is on two hours, and off four hours, and he "walks" his post in a military manner, guarding the peace and possessions and safety of a part of the post. He is responsible only to a corporal of the guard, a sergeant of the guard, an officer of the day, and his commanding officer.

The guard, or sentry, is known chiefly to the reading and movie-going public by two expressions, "Halt, who goes there?" and "Corporal of the guard! Post number three!" The former, Sergeant Taylor said with his best poker-face, has given the Army considerable worry at times

According to the sergeant, the guard is instructed to give the "halt" order three times and then shoot. Over-enthusiastic rookies from the back counties, he said, had been known to go like this: "Halt halt halt! Ka-POW!" (You can believe it or leave it; I never question what the sergeant says.)

There was one rookie guard, he said, who halted him, questioned him and allowed him to pass. After he had gone several steps, the sentry again shouted, "Halt!" Sergeant Taylor came back and wanted to know—politely, of course—how come. "My orders," said the guard, "say to holler 'Halt' three times and then shoot. You're just on your second halt now!"

The other popular expression is the come-a-running call that goes up the line to the guardhouse when a guard takes a prisoner or "meets any case not covered by instruction" (General Order No. 9). If the guard is on the seventh post, he sings out, "Corporal of the guard! Post number seven!" The guard on the sixth post picks up the cry and it goes down the line like that.

There's the story about the officer of the day who questioned a new sentry, as officers of the day frequently do in order to test the sentries. "Suppose," the OD asked, "that you shouted, 'Halt' three times and I kept going, what would you do?"

The guard was apparently stumped by the question. Finally he answered, "Sir, I'd call the corporal of the guard."

The officer of the day gloated. "Aha!" he said. "So you'd call the corporal of the guard, would you? And just why would you call the corporal of the guard?"

This time the answer was prompt and decisive—and correct. "To haul away your dead body, sir!"

Heroes are born, not made.

There's one job here that is nothing but goldbricking in itself. That's the latrine orderly detail. You go to work after lunch and spend the rest of the afternoon watching the fire in the water heater and feeding it regularly—every two hours. The next morning you sweep and mop the washroom and spend the rest of the time until lunch watching the fire again. All in all, you lead a lazy, carefree existence.

There was a slip-up somewhere yesterday. I was latrine orderly instead of a KP. It was probably the mess sergeant's idea.

The boys started out after lunch for an afternoon of drilling in the warm Carolina sunshine and learning to drive trucks across ditches.

An hour later, I decided to take a casual look at the boiler. When I opened the furnace-room door, a blast of strong brownish smoke struck me to the ground. I lay there for several minutes, tapping my forehead thoughtfully, while more smoke poured out.

When it still hadn't slackened after five minutes, I crawled under the layer of smoke to the boiler. There the sickening vapor was, pouring nonchalantly through clinks in the door.

"Don't come telling me about it," said Sergeant "Ma" Davidson. "Take out the pipes and clean them. All of them."

I had to see the top sergeant to get my instructions. When I returned to Sergeant Davidson I was happy again.

"Ma," I told him, "the top kick says for you to supervise the job."

The sergeant was furious with rage and frustration. I grabbed a screwdriver and he grabbed Private Downer, who had a black mark by his name for not wearing his identification tag. The three of us started work.

First, put out the fire in the boiler. Shake it down, throw ashes on it. It still burns. Shake it down more, throw sand on it. Still burns. Close the bottom door, shake it down more, throw ashes and sand on it. Curse it. After too long, it dies.

The man who devised the system for connecting an indoor boiler and an outdoor chimney should be parched with his own pipes and stuffed with oily soot.

Unscrew a pipe, lift it gently, coax it from its socket. Easy does it. Careful there. When you have it almost out, inhale for your sigh of relief. Crash! The whole network of pipes bounces off the floor scattering ashes and soot over half the battery area.

After half an hour of scrubbing and wiping the interior regions of all the pipes, they're ready to go up again. All but one of them are in place and the last one is ready to be fitted. Careful there! Easy, now! Watch out! Catch it! CRASH!

The boys come in from the drill field at 4:30 and head for the showers. There is no hot water.

"Get a load of that Hargrove," they fume, in an unnecessarily nasty manner. "He gets a job where all he has to do is throw a shovel of coal on the fire every two hours. And then when we come in, there ain't no hot water. There ain't even no fire. Throw the bum out!"

I grinned weakly as I reported to the supply sergeant for work. "You must be that nice Sergeant Thomas W. Israel I've heard so many nice things about."

"No, little man," he said. "I'm the nice Sergeant Israel you've been running your loud mouth about. I'm the nice sergeant who always gives you the wrong clothing sizes and hides your laundry and does all those awful things you've been telling about me."

"So help me, sergeant," I protested. "I never named thee but to praise. Somebody's been trying to poison your mind against me."

"I am also the nice sergeant," he said, "who is going to let you earn your seventy cents today. Take off your fatigue blouse, my man, and prepare to sweat. Today we make progress. We are going to unpack rifles."

It seems to me that when the manufacturer prepares to pack a box of Army rifles, his cruel streak comes out at its worst. From the look of the rifles, he has his three-year-old daughter prepare a compound of molasses, pitch, and used motor oil—the gooier the better. He slings each gun into the resulting mess, sloshes it around for a while, and then lays it neatly into the box.

You use a swab about the size of a tablecloth to wipe the grease from the rifle. When you're halfway through the first rifle, you have to use the gun to wipe the grease from the cloth. When you have finished, you need a large coal shovel to wipe the grease off yourself.

There is nothing so conducive to itching as the inability to scratch. Just when the molasses-pitch-axe grease mixture covers your hand to the point where you can't see the outlines of the fingers, that left nostril starts tingling. At first it itches only a little and you decide to suffer it. So you don't wipe your hands on the seat of your trousers. Instead you pick up another rifle and your hand sinks to the elbow in the goo which wraps it. This is the stage where your nose gets peevish and impatient and decides to itch in earnest.

Finally, you decide to give in. You wipe your hands—an operation which takes a good three or four minutes for satisfactory results. You lift your hand to scratch your nose, only to find that your nose isn't itching any more.

I was doing fairly well this morning, even when you take the itch into consideration, until the mess sergeant happened to stroll by.

"Hello, little man," he sings gaily, with a horrible gleam in his eyes. "You've not been around to see me for a long time. Aren't mad, are you?"

I look at my hands, at the rifle, at the old shoe, and at the mess sergeant. I hold my tongue. Health is wealth.

"We miss you terribly in the kitchen," he coos, "even when you go griping around that my food is the worst in the Army. I just saw the first sergeant and I asked him to let you be a KP just as soon as he can spare you. Oh, we're going to do wonders to that kitchenware, you and I."

He pats me on the forehead with ominous tenderness and departs.

The sergeant yelled out of the window at me, so I dropped my broom and went upstairs.

Five paces away, he turns for a parting shot. "Blabbermouth!" he snorts.

I suppose he's good to his mother, though.

The sergeant yelled out of the window at me, so I dropped my broom in the battery street and went upstairs. He was sitting on the foot locker, thoughtfully rubbing his chin with the handle of his mess-kit knife.

"Ralph Oxford got called up to the battery commander's office this morning," he said, "and do you know what the Old Man gave him?"

"I've got a pretty good idea," I said. "If he gave him what he gave me when I got called up, it has four letters, starts with an h and ends with an l."

The sergeant closed his eyes and slowly shook his head. "Oxford isn't a sore thumb to the platoon like you are," he groaned. "Oxford got a bright red stripe to wear around his sleeve."

"Oxford's no fireman," I told him. "You're dern right he ain't," said the sergeant. "Starting with today, Oxford and Zuber and Roff and Maciejewski and Pappas and Mihalakos are acting corporals!"

I knew there must be a moral to all this, so I wanted for him to go on.

"Now, why couldn't you have been one of those six boys?" he asked.

Fashion Is in Mood for Swank Accessories and Handsome Furs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS is a season when you are supposed to dress up your basic costume with dramatic accessories and stunning fur pieces. If you have been saving a choice bit of fur, thinking that sometime it might be used to trim a suit or fashion a hat, now's the time to hand it over to your furrier or your milliner. Tell her to make you up something fetching in the way of handbag, hat, scarf or muff to wear with your suit or coat, your one-piece dress or your loveliest evening gown.

Don't throw away the tiniest swatch of fur, for even the most insignificant little piece can be fashioned into a cunning bow to wear on the lapel of your cloth coat, or to pin on the pocket of your tweed jacket. If you are clever you can make your own little fur novelties out of tidbits of seal, Persian lamb, mink or gray lamb.

There's lots doing this winter among designers who vie with each other as to who can turn out the most strikingly original ideas in hat and muff or hat and bag sets, and special emphasis is being placed upon the importance of stole-like neckpieces.

Best dressed women regard a stole of choice fur as being a necessary luxury this season, be it of the simple type or with one's smart tailleur, or the more elaborate sort for evening wear.

Of the latter sort is the exquisite white fox fur which imparts drama to the lovely white gown centered in the illustration. That fashion is in a mood for swank accessories is seen in the hair ornament made of strands of white satiny glass beads. Following the Chinese influence, it is balanced at each side, as if in salute to our ally.

With a gray suit, milady to the left in the picture wears a black scarf fox turban and a stole that converts into a muff. It may be worn as a scarf with the ends forming a muff, or it can be carried as a muff with long stole ends. This scarf-muff novelty, so practical and so wearable, is typical of the clever things being done with fur.

The suit itself is a two-piece of gray wool soft as rabbit's fur. An especially important style message is conveyed in the black silk braid that trims the pocket and front of the five-button high-closing jacket. Chapters could be written in regard to the lavish use of braid trimming, as it appears this season on dresses, hats, bags and coats. Even the cuffs of gloves are braided. You can buy neat little cuff-and-collar sets that are allover braided, which are nice to have in reserve when you need a touch to make an old dress look new.

Ensemble sets of black velvet which are quite the rage this season team "this and that" together in such fascinating "sets" as the huge black velvet bag, hat and gauntlet glove combination pictured in the group. The hat has a lace brim piped in velvet. The bag is enormous, as most bags are this year.

You can do a lot with a little when it comes to even a few inches of black velvet. For instance, you can make a little velvet patch pocket, and in jet beads trace your initial thereon. Display this as a breast pocket on your simple black daytime dress. It is well to have a big velvet bow in your accessory collection, for these bows are worn like a corsage, sometimes with a glittering brooch or clip.

Perfect for dinner and dancing with the new short evening gowns, is the accessory set shown in the inset. The fact that it is in black and white is significant, for again a sudden flair for black and white springs up in fashion circles. The hat is of white fox fur, trimmed with black wings. A black and white fox muff complements the hat.

Braid-Trimmed Hats

Newest of the new winter felts bring tidings of braid-trimmed hats. Perfect for wear with tailored clothes is a hat of gray felt as shown above. It is very outstanding because of the fact that it is trimmed with black braid, which is big news. The vogue for braid trims is becoming increasingly interesting, since designers are making lavish use of braiding this year on everything from dresses and coats to handbags and hats. The high peaked crown of the other model shown reflects Russian influence.

Lapel Pins Are Made Of Colored Leather

Birds and animals are being copied in miniature done in gay leathers for the newest lapel pins. Birds of paradise are in gold kid trimmed with scallops of green and red and finished off with a single real feather. A flamingo spreads long pink tail feathers, its plumage made of fragments of kid. The parrot is the sauciest specimen of all, done in green leather with yellow and red contrasts. This new leather jewelry also includes animals, such as a big white leather circus horse, a toy elephant and so on. School-girls like to wear these on their jackets or at the neckline of their smart long sweaters.

Collar and Cuffs Now Get Designers' Attention

Not long since it was pockets that were featured as the center of attraction in coat dress and blouse styling. But if you will take sharp note as you saunter through fashion displays you will observe that it is collar and cuffs upon which designers are now focusing their creative genius. It will be interesting to keep tab on this movement. A dress, for instance, will be sans trimming except for glittering sequin collar and cuffs. New too, are the braided collar and cuff sets.

Lace-Trimmed Calots

Both small and brimmed velvet hats are enchantingly trimmed with lace that tunes beautifully to gala occasion. These black velvet fantasies are most alluring and the tiny calot and bonnet types with their mantilla like lace drapes or halo veils of sheerest Chantilly are most alluring.

TRUTHFULNESS AT ALL TIMES

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:16; 23:1, 7; Matthew 5:33-37; John 8:42-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wherefore putting away lying speak every man truth with his neighbor; for we are members one of another.—Ephesians 4:25.

God hates all kinds of dishonesty—a fact which is emphasized by the additional commandment regarding truthfulness which is before us in this lesson.

God is truth, that is, the very essence of His nature is truth. In Him is no darkness at all (I John 1:5). Lying or false witness therefore reveals a character opposite to God. Hence we are not surprised to find in our lesson that Satan is a liar and the father of lies, and that liars are his children.

I. The Nature of a Lie (Exod. 20:16; 23:1, 7).

The commandment against false witness brings before us one form of lying—for it has to do with perjury, that is, the telling of an untruth in court.

This is one of the worst forms of lying, because it may result in the one against whom it is practiced losing his liberty, his life or his property. It may mean the destruction of his good reputation.

It is obvious, however, that the commandment covers all forms of lying, whether in business, in social contacts, in the home, or in the church. We might do well to consider what the Bible has to say about whisperers, talebearers, backbiters, and others (see Lev. 19:16; II Cor. 12:20). A man's reputation may be as easily ruined by a whispered lie over the back fence or the luncheon table as by a formal perjury in the courtroom. "Thou shalt not bear false witness" at any time, anywhere, or in any way.

II. The Practice of Lying (Matt. 5:33-37).

The people of our Lord's day (and who can say that the custom has stopped) were in the habit of telling lies and then trying to make others believe them by an oath.

They would swear by heaven, or the throne of God, or some other sacred thing, and thus try to enforce their false word by some great authority.

The liar is always under necessity of doing something—perhaps telling another lie—to cover his falsehood. When his comfort or advantage seems to be endangered because he is not believed, he brings an oath to bear upon his statement.

Jesus taught the great virtue of simple living and simple speech. A plain "yes" or "no" is usually sufficient for the situation. Qualifying words are apt to lead us astray. The life of a Christian should be so true and above board that no oath should be needed to assure one of his sincerity and honesty.

Since not all are Christians, it is a necessity that men be placed under some kind of oath or affirmation in judicial matters. Hence we need not interpret this Scripture as forbidding an oath in court.

It may be well to say a word about swearing in general. It is all too common among men, women and children. No Christian should ever be guilty of it, or that which sounds like it. We need admonition and correction at that point.

III. The Source of All Lies (John 8:42-45).

The devil is a liar, and the father of lies. Liars are members of his family. Jesus said it, "Ye are of your father the devil."

Liars had better consider their "family tree" and see how they like their spiritual father. He is lustful, murderous, and there is no truth in him (v. 44). If you belong to that family would you not like to change families and be born again into God's family?

Sadly enough the constant lying of the world seems to have infected the minds and hearts of Christians. Instead of being cleansed from this worldly defilement they carry its awful tendencies into the church. Is it not too true that gossip (which is almost always lying), false witness, the tearing down of someone's good name, is all too common in the church?

The great lie within the church, and one of Satan's prize exhibits, is the falsehood of modern religious liberalism (so-called) which is essentially a denial of real New Testament Christianity. Jesus said (v. 42) that if God is our Father we will accept Him as the Christ. The one who speaks sweet words about the example, the manhood, the leadership of the Master and who denies Him His place as God is clearly in mind here as a follower of the father of lies.

Note that in verses 45-47 Jesus challenges His enemies to convict Him of sin or of falsehood. No one has ever been able to meet that challenge.

The claims he made for Himself as the Son of God and the Saviour of the world are plain and unmistakable. If we deny them we either make Jesus a liar, or we lie ourselves, and it is obvious that the latter is the case.

Fort's Raid Schweinfurt
By Doris Fleeson

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Woman's Home Companion.)

I was lucky. By chance I walked right into preparations for one of the greatest bombing missions in history. This was the vast raid on Schweinfurt. I saw our boys take off and I saw them return.

The small world of a bomber base in England is organized with utter precision toward one end—to get those planes off the ground, over the target and home. One mission follows another and everybody knows exactly what to do or is told. Outwardly it is calm, but in the background is always one brutal fact: some of our aircraft do not return. When the planes are out on a dangerous mission, voices get shriller and men appear reluctant to abandon one another's company.

Americans and the RAF share their secret skills but not their way of life. Our base is a piece of America—food, equipment, wise-cracks. Few English faces are seen and these are usually liaison officers.

Everybody knew that the coming raid on Schweinfurt was to be something special—that there were some of the most important targets ever bombed anywhere. The Nazis are aware how vital ball bearings are to the war and the plants that make them had been tucked deep into the mountain folds of Bavaria. The Nazis knew Allied fighter planes could not carry enough gasoline to protect the invading bombers which would have to face Nazi fighter fire for hundreds of miles. But Fortresses have firepower to protect themselves and they have a bomb-sight to hit any target. Months ago their crews were handed nameless maps of the Schweinfurt targets to study. In English skies they practiced over and over again formations which would doom the factories.

Restricted to Post.

Finally the crews were briefed. But weather forced cancellation. So important was security on this raid, Colonel Harding restricted to the post every man who attended the briefing, gave special orders that they were not to discuss it among themselves and cut off telephones.

Colonel Harding gave the group final instructions. A West Pointer from West Virginia, he has ice-blue eyes, a quiet manner and a fistful of medals. The latest of these is a silver star for gallantry and achievement in leading bombing raids over enemy territory.

"Don't let the boys tell you they aren't scared on raids," Colonel Harding told me. "Nobody could be such a fool as not to be frightened when flak and fighters come at him. I've been scared plenty."

I was assured by the boys that Harding's briefing technique was okay. One thing the boys can't stand, they told me, was what they called "drip." They know what they are fighting for. What they want to be told is why the target is so important, so that if they get hurt they can feel it's worth it.

Maj. John Kidd of Cleveland led the group off the field. Three squadron leaders seconded him. "Sweating it out" is the air force's inelegantly accurate phrase for the business of waiting for the planes to return from a raid. The waiting is undramatic but very wearing.

'Happy to Be Alive.'

Outwardly all went on as before after the bombers roared down the runway at the base. Another mission went out and returned. It was a milk run over Holland. Another was briefed but canceled. After many long hours, the Fortresses came back. The gleam of a major's oak leaf on a red fez perched at a rakish angle over a grinning Irish face was the herald. The wearer of the fez was Major Egan; his simple heartfelt greeting was: "I'm very happy to be alive."

Then from all mouths tumbled out stories of the man-made hell they had been through, beginning hours before the target was reached. All agreed that nothing like it in size, venom and duration was ever before experienced in aerial warfare. All around were fighters, Forts blowing up in flame, and the thunder of guns without end. The Nazis arched strings of blinding new rocket shells.

The Fortresses battled German fighters for 2½ hours—the longest engagement in the history of heavy bombings—but they had gone over their target and got away.

A measure of the raid was the volubility of the crews who made it. Their talk lasted through their days of rest and was still going strong when I left the base. Crews are encouraged to talk, of course, not only to help get it out of their systems but to keep intelligence officers fully informed. What they say might help greatly in planning the next encounter with the Nazis.

Double Seater

A double seater makes anyone think of a runabout or a gent who has spent his life eating not wisely but too well. Instead, it's a particular kind of a job at a sewing machine, just as a trolley operator doesn't mean a street car motor-man but a lad who does the finishing and icing in a bakery.

Vitamin C

Vitamin C prevents scurvy. Keep teeth, bones, blood vessels healthy, helps prevent anemia. Daily requirements: Oranges, lemons, grapefruit, or tomatoes in any form (juice, soup, raw, canned). Also in onions, berries and vegetables. Very unstable. Destroyed by overcooking and too much water. Use raw fruit and vegetables when possible; if cooked, serve juices. Potatoes baked in skins retain vitamin C.

Dunking Old Idea

Dunking in your "bunchum" is a custom as ancient as Arabia. It was there where the world's first cup of coffee was made from some strange, bright red berries the Arabs called "bunn." The beverage became "bunchum" and was thick enough to scoop out of the bowl with bits of food. Result: Introduction of dunking to the world!

Anthologies

Sometimes poets and their publishers make considerably less money from the sale of a book of poems than they do from the fees charged for the inclusion of one or several of the poems in anthologies.

Pigeons Fly Coop

An Akron, Ohio, officer testified he knew his prisoner was drunk because his eyes were bloodshot, whereupon the prisoner calmly removed his glass eye and the judge said "case dismissed." The Messrs. Kurwoski and Stawdohr of Chicago, each claiming ownership of three pigeons, suggested that the judge release the birds which then would wing home to their rightful cotes. A window was opened, the doves flew forth—whether no man knoweth to this day.

Learn Your Journalism, Printing at Adrian

Adrian, Mich.—Outstanding among schools that teach journalism and the printing arts is the Adrian College Press equipment, which actually produces one weekly magazine (24 pages, with color), several monthly publications, a score of booklets and leaflets every week, and a large number of commercial catalogs, bulletins, and institutional prints, annually.

"Self Help Students" at Adrian, who wish to work their way through college by such practical employment, thus study their theory within sound of the tinkling linotypes and pounding cylinder presses, which they operate, outside of class hours, for a goodly hourly wage.

They have actual experience in typesetting, paper-cutting, page-makeup, printing make-ready, commercial job work and cylinder press work: They read galley and press proofs actually in process. Those training for editorial desks; actually write and edit copy for the "College World" eight page newspaper, report for the local Adrian Daily Telegram (circulation, 16,000), and plan printing campaigns for local business.

George E. Miller, former editor-in-chief of the Detroit News, and one of Michigan's most nationally known editors, was an Adrian student, from a nearby farm home. J. S. Gray, publisher of the Monroe News, and Donald Frazier, managing editor of Adrian Telegram, were Adrian students. John F. Cowan, editor of the Christian Endeavor World magazine, listed in Who's Who as author of 16 books, and Lyman E. Davis, founder of the Recorder publications for the Methodist Protestant Church, were Adrian graduates. A steady stream of Adrian students win their way in journalism and printing fields.

The unique advantage at Adrian College for all such ambitious ones is Adrian's "guaranteed working chance" at a Christian college education, whereby boys and girls earn as they learn, and get practical experience, in their chosen line, right on the college campus. Only a few of the largest universities have a printing plant to compare with Adrian.

Say it with DEEDS ... not words

WE IN AMERICA have a lot to be thankful for this year. This is the one great nation that has not been laid waste by war.

Our boys are fighting in the jungles of the South Seas and in the villages of Italy that our own Main Streets may not become battle fields. By their sacrifices they have held the warfront thousands of miles beyond our shoreline. They deserve our deepest gratitude—a gratitude we should express in work rather than in words.

Let's back up these fighting men in a very practical way. Today there is a great shortage of pulpwood. Pulpwood has a thousand-and-one war uses—from explosives to shipping containers.

And since this is a pulpwood-cutting community, we have been asked to cut an extra cord of pulpwood in honor of every local boy in service.

This is a small thing to ask of us—small in comparison with what our boys are doing. One extra cord for every boy who went to war from the pulpwood areas will be enough to meet the present shortage.

So let's resolve to meet our quota—and make sure that no boy dies because we failed.

Abnormal Tire Wear
If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by under-inflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots in the tire tread.

The Bay City Production Credit Association now has 885 members and serves farmers in Tuscola, Bay Saginaw, Midland, Gladwin, Ogemaw, Iosco, Roscommon and Alcona counties. Such rugs glow softly all over, interfere with nothing on the screen.

Most Mammals Color-Blind
It is not true, says Author Roy Chapman Andrews, that bulls get mad when they see red—all mammals except monkeys and men are color-blind. Many animals can be taught to detect slight differences of shade, but when variously colored disks emitting the same intensity of light are presented, the animals are baffled. Thus a dog sees the world, including his master, in various shades of gray, as in a photograph. But birds, fish and insects can distinguish colors.

* BACK THE ATTACK—WITH WAR BONDS! *

Washington, D. C.
GOOD WORD ON EGGS

If you like eggs—fried, scrambled, or Easter—this may interest you. The high price of eggs will soon come tumbling down. This Humpty-Dumpty event will be brought about by the sale of five million cases of government eggs.

War Food administration, responding to the prodding of critics, admits that it was putting too many eggs in one basket, for military and lend-lease requirements, at the expense of civilian requirements.

Release of this tremendous quantity of eggs won't alarm the housewife, but worries War Food experts because it might discourage production for next year.

Meantime, War Food and OPA are rowing over the price to be paid for these five million cases of cold storage eggs. WFA officials, protecting the producers, want a higher price for cold storage eggs than fresh eggs.

OPA, thinking of the housewife, says: "This is the first time we ever heard that eggs become more valuable as they get older!"

But War Food stands firm on the principle that the old eggs should bring more money. Their reason is that the old eggs were stored by dealers who were playing the usual seasonal game of holding for a rise in price, without realizing that the government was going to step in and take over at the fixed price.

In other words, War Food experts are trying to hand dealers some of the speculative profit they might have gotten, while OPA—trying to protect the consumer—wants to hold the price down.

The inside government egg debate is still raging.

COLD WINTER AHEAD

Whatever you burn this winter—oil or coal—it is still going to be cold.

The public has the impression that it is only coal which is short now. Actually, oil is even shorter, rations for this winter being based on a 34 per cent cut below pre-war consumption.

The fuel situation is so bad that OPA experts several months ago recommended coupon rationing of coal. A warm debate followed between OPA and the Solid Fuel Coordinator, in which Ickes, supported by the coal industry, opposed rationing.

But OPA experts believed coal would be short this winter and, during the summer, laid plans for coupon rationing. In August, they were all ready to go to press with millions of coupon books.

Finally, however, the coal co-ordinator vetoed the plan. Now it is too late to impose coupon rationing—partly because there is not sufficient time to print the coupons and give out instructions to local boards; also because some coal is already supposed to be distributed—inequitably—to consumers.

Thus we shall have to rely on "dealer rationing." This does not limit consumption—only strings out the supply in dribbles, making a greater delivery task without decreasing consumption.

The public believes that oil is bountiful compared with coal, and OPA is now besieged with applications for reconversion from coal to oil. These applications are being resisted, since the impression of abundance of oil is merely an illusion.

FEWER TIRES FOR ALLIES

One thing not discussed at the Moscow conference was rubber tires. If the question had been raised, Russia would have been told that tires on Lend-Lease will have to be reduced sharply.

Reason is that U. S. trucks and buses are wearing their tires down to the fabric, and Jesse Jones' long ballyhooed synthetic tires are falling behind schedule. There is plenty of new rubber, but a dire lag in tire production.

Meanwhile, bus and truck transportation has never been more vital. Last year inter-city buses carried more passengers than the railroads (680 million compared with 669 million), though they travelled fewer miles.

If they are crippled, the weight would be thrown back on the already struggling railroads. Also, many places would be without transportation, since 54,000 communities have no rail service.

The army, OPA, ODT and the rubber director's office are putting their heads together to find a way out. One solution will be a reduction of tires shipped on Lend-Lease. Russia alone was promised 500,000 this year, in addition to 2,000,000 already delivered.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Washington is plagued with an excess of traffic lights. One, near the senate wing of the capitol, is green all the time, thus serving no purpose except to confuse the public. Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan drives a midget "Standard" car, made in England. It sells for $800 new, but the general bought it for $1,000 second hand.

State department learns that one of the most distressing shortages in France is in ordinary household needles.

Yanks Press Back Counter-Attacking Japs

Japanese landings in the South Pacific, probably for the purpose of regaining the offensive, were foiled by United States forces. This sound-photo shows U. S. coastguardsmen and marines unloading supplies near a Jap warship, the Kingawa Maru, which was beached after a battle. Admiral Nimitz warned the enemy of new offensives.

United Nations Launch U. N. R. R. A.

An international agency of 33 United Nations and 11 associated powers to relieve suffering in liberated countries was launched at the White House. President Roosevelt speaks with British Ambassador Lord Halifax as Leighton McCarthy, Canadian minister, signs for his country. The new agency was named the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration.

Early Blizzards Kill 7; Delay Trains

Early blizzards which swept the central west brought about the deaths of seven persons, five of them in Minnesota, where 11 inches of snow was reported in some localities. Track laborers are shown struggling to keep switches open in the Minneapolis railroad yards. Transportation and communication systems were stricken and most trains ran late.

German Sabotage Fails to Halt Allies

German troops destroyed a bridge near Caserta, Italy, to halt the advancing Allies. Their failure is illustrated by these British soldiers who run their jeep into the river and cross without the bridge. In an effort to protect their winter line, the Germans launched a series of furious counter attacks against most portions of the Allied Fifth army.

EVEN while Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame was somberly forecasting that the Irish-Northwestern tilt could "go either way," 91 of the nation's top grid experts were casting 91 first-place ballots for Notre Dame in the weekly poll to determine the country's best football team.

And that, by the way, was the first time any football team ever received unanimous backing.

Notre Dame's football status was summed up very clearly by Lieut. Comdr. Edgar ("Rip") Miller, Navy line coach, who said that the 1943 lineup is the best of all Notre Dame teams... "probably the greatest in collegiate or professional history."

Miller, as may be remembered, was one of the Seven Mules who cleared the way for the Four Horsemen in 1924. So his words carry weight.

"We took a fine team to Cleveland," Miller remarked recently, "and Notre Dame beat us although we had a fine line and a good set of backs. The team I saw that day was the greatest in the school's history. I believe it could have beaten any college or professional team put together."

Topping Them All

"It has weight, speed, precision and has mastered the fundamentals of pass defense, downfield blocking, ball handling, tackling—everything. It tops them all."

A great deal more will be heard of Coach Frank Leahy in years to come. It is our opinion that the future will have him remembered along with Knute Rockne as a great Notre Dame institution.

Leahy views each game with gloomy forebodings. His pre-game outlook is dark and melancholy. When things are beginning to look too bright for his team he begins remembering what Holy Cross did to Boston College last year. He remembers, too, that bleak day in 1935 when a thrice-beaten Northwestern came through to whip an undefeated Notre Dame team which was on its way to a national championship.

Leahy doesn't have to remind himself not to grow too optimistic. His sad thoughts are for the benefit of others who are overly cheerful.

Just as we think Leahy is the coach of the year, so we believe Angelo Bertelli is the player of the year. Though he didn't have the opportunity to finish out the season, Bertelli proved himself to be one of the most brilliant players in Notre Dame history.

In our opinion, Notre Dame, with its superb line, its greater backfield and its dazzling speed, stood out as the best college team we've ever seen.

The Possibilities

Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech coach, whose team played both Notre Dame and Navy, declared that the Irish could beat any team he had seen this season 50 to 0 if Notre Dame kept the pressure on.

Veteran football writers of the Midwest have expressed the belief that Notre Dame, with Bertelli in action, could beat the Bears and Redskins. Unquestionably the South Bend school is very well equipped with the elements of the T-formation demands at its best. But to beat the Bears would be asking a great deal from any college team. We wouldn't know about that.

Another thing—Johnny Lujack, the young man who replaced Bertelli, is more than a fair ball player. As an 18-year-old, even Bertelli was probably no more promising. There isn't much that Bertelli did that Lujack can't do. He can pass, run and tackle. In the Army game he answered the question of how he would react in the clutch. The answer was favorable.

SPORTS SHORTS

Professional football teams, playing away from home, receive a flat guarantee of $5,000 or 40 per cent of net gate receipts.

The Cardinals were not the first club to make more errors than runs in the World Series. Connie Mack's Athletics made nine errors against McGraw's Giants in 1905, and scored only three runs in five games.

A New York statistician discloses that Whirlaway earned $4.17 a yard in the 60 races he ran while piling up $561,161.

Adjusting Carburetor, Plugs, Saves Gasoline

Tractor Engines Should Run at Top Efficiency

With the gasoline situation becoming increasingly serious due to demands for gas for combat uses, farmers are being asked by the War Food administration to cut their use of tractor fuel to a minimum.

While this request may seem extreme to farmers who have had their tractors stranded now and then by dried-up fuel tanks, W. C. Krueger, extension agricultural engineer at Rutgers university, points out that many tractors could be operated on 15 to 25 per cent less fuel through correct carburetor adjustment, lubrication, and proper setting of spark plugs and magneto.

He emphasizes that when it takes 100 to 180 gallons of fuel to plow a 40-acre field, 40 to 80 gallons to disc that field, 60 to 80 to haul a grain drill over it and 30 to 50 gallons to harrow it, a 25 per cent reduction in fuel becomes important.

Krueger offers the following suggestions for improving tractor efficiency:

1. It is a common error to believe that the leaner the mixture the less the fuel used. Too lean a mixture wastes fuel, causes over-heating, invites valve trouble. Best fuel economy results from setting carburetor at a compromise between too lean a mixture for idling and a slightly rich mixture representing maximum power adjustment. This setting can only be determined by trial under load.

2. Magneto timing is often responsible for over-heating and uneconomical operation. Since the method of setting varies with the tractor, follow the instruction book closely.

3. Set spark plug and magneto point gaps to recommended clearance occasionally. Put in new plugs when electrodes become worn.

4. Check valve tappets two or three times a season. Improper clearance ruins more valves than all other causes put together.

5. Never shut off a tractor immediately after running at full load. Valve warping is often caused by not letting the engine idle a short time before stopping so that the valves may cool gradually.

6. Operate the tractor at full load as much of the time as possible. It costs nearly as much to operate a tractor at half load as it does at full load. Maximum draw-bar efficiency occurs when the load is heavy enough to cause wheel slippage in field operations approximately 10 per cent.

Corrugated Siding Is Made Of Felt Composition

A wartime substitute for corrugated sheet steel is a newly developed composite material that may be used in practically all construction where steel was formerly employed. This siding, which is corrugated like steel sheets, is made of two sheets of heavy felt, each saturated with a resinous bituminous compound, and laminated together with a high melting point adhesive. Its light weight is an advantage for farm buildings. Under tests conducted by the Celotex corporation, manufacturers, this product has proved satisfactory in withstanding heat, cold and moisture. The corrugations do not flatten under effects of weathering.

A non-critical, emergency material, this corrugated siding is available in any quantity now, and can be used for building or remodeling.

Wasps Defeat Moths

Oriental fruit moths, a serious scourge to Michigan peaches, are being combated effectively by a species of small wasp, called Macroctonus. These wasps are being released in the orchards at the rate of 50,000 a year. The Michigan State college and the department of agriculture collaborated to find this insect enemy of the moths, and to breed it in large numbers. The fruit moths are a recent pest, having come in about 10 years ago.

Santa's Coming Despite the War

Retail Sales Expected to Run Over $200,000,000, Say Toy Makers.

Although frustrated by an expanding demand for toys and games, and a severe contraction of materials and help, Santa Claus is not going to let the Juniors down this year—despite rumors to the contrary. Like a good actor, who upon losing his old props improvises new ones, Santa is going to bull his act through, but in such a professional manner, few will suspect his backstage strain. This is the consensus of toy and game manufacturers and distributors in Chicago's Merchandise Mart, who help set the stage for the annual event.

Wrestling with a 20 per cent upturn in ahead-of-season demand for toys and games, so far this year as against the comparable period in 1942, they say chances are excellent that sales at retail will run slightly better than 200 million dollars, or approximately 10 per cent under last year's total. If demand were the measuring rod, sales would zoom way above the record quarter billion mark set in 1929, it was explained.

Speaking for the toy and game group, John C. Goodall, general manager of the Mart, said: "Holding sales at this level is a highly creditable job when it is considered the industry has had to find alternate merchandise for such toy items as metal wheel goods, electric trains and mechanical toys, now discontinued, but responsible before the war for 60 million dollars of the total annual toy and game business."

Contributing to the developing toy stringency is the quick sale, early in the year, of carry-over stock and the public's disposition to strip dealers' shelves of toy items immediately on exposure regardless of the season. Related factors include heavy buying by war factory mothers, who seek to compensate with toys and games for their absence from home, and, of course, with swollen pocket books.

The progressively tightening situation in manpower and materials is forcing some manufacturers to launch new lines of toys or revive old ones, requiring the minimum amount of materials. Like limited editions of books, these are quickly snapped up by toy-hungry retailers; hence a continual stream of improvisations is coming on the market. These and scores of new type games made of cardboard and paper will relieve serious shortages and maintain the industry in a relatively healthy condition.

Millionaires' Resort Now Soldiers' Hospital

The famous Greenbrier hotel of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was once a millionaires' resort. Today it has been renamed Ashford General hospital, and its modern facilities and spacious golf course are being utilized to rehabilitate wounded soldiers. Left: Pfc. Albert B. Manning is greeted with a birthday cake presented by a Red Cross worker. Center: Pvt. John Tribe shoots his way out of a sand trap. Right: Pvt. Bryant L. Hardin (in wheelchair) plays a game of table tennis with his brother, Sergt. William E. Hardin, who was visiting him. The hospital was named after Col. Bailey K. Ashford, an authority on tropical diseases.

dition," Mr. Goodall said.

Military slanted toys and games continue to dominate the field. Among such items are self-propelled caterpillar tread tanks, steered by handle bar in their revolving gun turrets. Built for small children, the tanks are made entirely of wood except for fiber materials on caterpillar units. The tanks are equipped with gadgets which simulate noise of firing. The newer types of toy machine and submarine guns are similarly equipped and some fire wooden bullets.

Indicative of the growing popularity of miniature airplane models, many toy railroad hobbyists are switching over into this field, since metal train equipment is out. It is estimated that there are 250,000 model railroadists while the number of airplane hobbyists already is above 400,000.

There is a new emphasis on children's gift items of the patriotic and educational type. Typical are sets of paper figures, which come flat and may be assembled to form correctly outfitted service men and women in three dimensional form.

Toy items now in a revival period, according to exhibitors, are slates, pull toys and wagons, jig saw puzzles and washable dolls. The fancy pre-war type doll is hard to find since shortages exist in more than a dozen components that went into it. These include glue, hair, glycerine, wire, enamel, silk, rayon, rubber and moving eyes.

What else is making with the little moron?

If your nose is your bad point, distract attention from it by emphasizing your good one. If you don't have a drape shape, there's always proper diet and exercise and a few less double maleds. ### What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

What part does the mother of the bridegroom play in his wedding?

Answer—On the day of the wedding the mother of the bridegroom enters the church on the arm of the head usher, just before the bride's mother enters. She sits on the right side of the church, in the first pew. After the ceremony the family of the groom follows the family of the bride from the church after the wedding party leaves.

At a home wedding the groom's mother takes a place near the improvised altar in the space fenced off by ribbons for the members of the family.

At the reception the bride and groom may receive alone, or they may receive with the wedding party, the bride's family and the groom's family. This is a matter of choice.

from the tribe, remained inside a tent. During that time they spoke to no outsiders and ate and slept in the tent.

Emerging on the seventh day, each young follower climbed a 50-foot pole and threw fruit and flowers in four directions while saying silent prayers to Kali.

As the men climbed the pole, natives with long poles stirred white hot embers in the oblong bed. After the last man climbed the pole they marched to a nearby stream where they were immersed to cleanse body and soul of any impurities, and dried in the sun.

Then at a signal from the high priest, they started the slow procession over the smouldering fire. There was not a sign of any pain and the only sound to be heard was the low chant of the fire walkers, "Brahma is with us. We are the children of God."

With the sacred ceremony completed, the soldiers found themselves in the midst of a celebration at which they were treated as honor guests.

'There's So Much Good In the Worst of Us'

Once when I came running into the house complaining about Jimmie, a playmate, Mother produced an old pair of scales and my set of blocks. "Now we'll play a little game," she said. "First, we will place a block on this side of the scales to represent each of Jimmie's faults. Now tell me them."

I named them and blocks were piled in the tray. "Tell me something good about him," said Mother. "Doesn't he let you ride his bicycle? And share his candy with you?" "Yes," I admitted reluctantly. Blocks were placed on the other side to show his good points. I started laughing as Jimmie's good qualities overbalanced his faults. Through all the years I have never forgotten that little weighing incident. Before criticizing a person, I always compare his good points with his bad.

When armored knights met, it was customary for each knight to raise the visor of his helmet as a means of identification. This gesture has come down through all armies in the form of the salute. ## Hindu Fire-Walking Religious Ceremonies Witnessed by Group of U. S. Air Corps Men

SAN JUAN, P. R. — Foot-weary soldiers who might find reason to complain about "burning dogs" should get consolation from the Hindu fire-walking ritual witnessed by a group of men from an Antilles air command base at Trinidad in the British West Indies.

The air corps men were among the first American soldiers to be permitted to look on the "Simat Hagwat," the ritual that pays homage to Kali, holy saint of India. Kali, according to their belief, is said many centuries ago to have followed the custom of walking on fire to express his faith and devotion to the God of the Hindus.

This event is the climax of a seven-day religious rite during which the Pundit, or high priest, and the 20 young men, carefully selected or transferred to others. Action applies to hogs only. Not other livestock.

The reason for this release lies in the fact that the 1943 pig crop is the largest on record in the United States. Spring marketings were 22 per cent above the record pig crop of 1942 and some 45 per cent above the spring crop of the past ten year period. It has been estimated that the fall pig crop will be some 25 per cent larger than a year ago and will therefore result in the largest hog crop raised in the United States to date. With adverse weather conditions, lowering our grain supply far below average, it has created a problem for the farmer who is marketing his farm grains through swine.

In Isosco county it has been estimated that the 1943 hog population is twice as large as the normal crop of the past five years, and with a shortage of grain, Isosco county farmers have been confronted with this marketing problem. The Food Distribution Administration set up regulations some six months ago requiring that all farm slaughtering of meat for sale was to be done under permit. In no case was a farmer allowed to slaughter for his own use more than four hundred pounds of meat, live weight, or three animals, only one of which may have been a beef. With the recently announced suspension upon the slaughtering of hogs, farmers are now allowed to butcher as many head of hogs as they wish and may sell them in any way they choose without restrictions, except that ration points must be collected for all meat which is sold or given to others. The order still restricts farm slaughtering for home use to one beef animal.

Those having sold dressed livestock in 1941 may secure a permit to continue this practice in 1943-44 at the county War Board office.
