Saga of "Unsung Heroes" At Family Dec. 14-16

Vigorous, forceful and inspired, "Action in the North Atlantic," which opens next Tuesday at the Family Theatre for a three day engagement, tells the timely and glorious saga of the men in the United States Merchant Marine Service. Thanks to the Warner Brothers, they are no longer the "unsung heroes" of the war, and never have Hollywood's Kleig lights shone on a group of men more deserving of recognition and praise.

The plot of "Action in the North Atlantic" deals with the adventures of the Liberty ship, "Sea Witch," as it successfully reaches its destination, Murmansk, despite the efforts of Hitler's U Boats and Luftwaffe to stop it.

Humphrey Bogart, Raymond Massey and Alan Hale head a cast that features Julie Bishop, talented blond actress, and Dane Clark, a new discovery from the Broadway stage. "Action in the North Atlantic" shows Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, December 14, 15 and 16 at the Family Theatre.

For the theatre-goers who prefer entertainment in the lighter vein, the Family offers a gay and sparkling comedy to head the week's program, Olivia de Havilland and Robert Cummings head a royal recipe for romantic merriment in "Princess O'Rourke" which shows Sunday and Monday, December 12 and 13. With Charles Coburn, Jack Carson and Jane Wymah and a smart lot of supporting players, the effervescent comedy is skillfully played for a steady succession of laughs.

East Tawas School War Bond Drive is Very Brilliant Success

The "Pearl Harbor Day" War Bond and Stamp Drive of the East Tawas Public Schools ended Tuesday with brilliant success.

Starting three weeks ahead, the school set as its goal the selling of sufficient bonds and stamps to purchase a jeep on December 7. So cooperative were the students and citizens of East Tawas, $3,225.00 in bonds and stamps were sold on December 7 alone. This was equivalent to two and one-half jeeps. Norman Anschuetz was chairman of the school committee.

A feature attraction of Pearl Harbor Day was the jeep sent down from the Oscoda Air Base by Major Austin. All purchasers of bonds were given rides. This added materially to the days sales, and was a real thrill to many of the students.

This latest bond drive brings the total of the East Tawas Public Schools' participation in bond sales to around $25,000.00.

Dillon Appointed on Iosco Draft Board

Arthur Dillon of East Tawas has been appointed a member of the Iosco Selective Service Board. The appointment was made by order of President Roosevelt to succeed Frank Berzhinski, who recently resigned as a member of the board to go to Detroit where he is employed by the Federal government.

Mr. Dillon is well known throughout the county and his many friends feel that a very satisfactory appointment has been made.

The Iosco County Selective Service Board now consists of the following members: G. A. Prescott, Jr., John A. Mielock and Arthur Dillon. A meeting of the board will be called within a few days for reorganization and selection of officers.

School War Bond Sales

To facilitate the sale of War Stamps and Bonds by school children, schools may secure permission to become issuing agencies by going through the proper procedure. Information on the procedure may be secured from County School Commissioner Russell Rollin.

In adopting this plan schools will avoid the delay of going to banks or postoffices to have the bonds issued thus speeding up the actual sales. Schools contemplating this plan should do so at the earliest possible date in order that the procedure will be in running order by January 18.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has been inducted into the army and completed the first few weeks of his training at Fort Bragg. Before getting into the army, Hargrove advises selectees to "paint the town red." Once in, "the first three weeks are the hardest" so keep "an open mind." Hargrove has had plenty of trouble learning the fundamentals of army life and as a result has spent a good share of his time on KP duty. Classified as a cook he thinks it's good experience. His sergeant doesn't agree. Hargrove has learned a large portion of army slang and is about to enlighten the civilian on this score.

CHAPTER VI

When Junior comes home from camp on furlough or for the weekend, he probably will throw out his chest, pull his shoulders almost out of joint, and speak a sort of jargon entirely unintelligible to you. There is no cause for alarm; Junior is merely exaggerating to show off his familiarity with military life.

You will not be consoled by this knowledge when he begins speaking this unknown tongue. In order to understand some of his conversation, you might tear out this page and tuck it away in the drawer with your recipes and patterns.

Goldbricking is an Army term signifying in a word, loafing. In its strictest sense, it means avoiding your fair share of the work, thus making the load harder for the other boys. When Junior uses the term, however, it merely means hiding from the work in the first place or stretching an easy job out to make it last as long as possible.

Bating the breeze is the military equivalent of "bullshooting."

Police, as nearly as it can be explained, means "to clean up" or "to keep clean." Examples are kitchen police, or kappes, canteen police, and police the area.

Fatigue duty is work that is not actual military training, but a part of the turnabout method of getting the dirty work done. Fatigue clothes are the blue denims worn for extra duty. Regular uniforms are called OD's, an abbreviation for "olive drab."

GI is short for "Government Issue." GI soap is the yellow laundry soap, a GI brush is a hard-bristle scrubbing brush, and a GI haircut is the regulation style which sacrifices two-thirds of Junior's wavy locks to cleanliness and sanitation.

The PX is the post exchange, or canteen, a co-operative enterprise which sells practically everything the soldier needs. Three times a month, canteen books of credit tickets may be obtained in denominations from one to five dollars. Ten per cent of the proceeds from these are returned to the battery fund, which is used to buy nonessentials for the battery.

The old man is the battery commander, who may also be referred to among yourselves as the BC or the skipper. The top kick is a first sergeant, the chief of the battery's noncommissioned officers.

Jawbone is an apt word meaning "credit." A Jawbone corporal is an acting corporal, who has neither the rating nor the pay of a corporal.

Over the hill is an artistic way of referring to unauthorized absence. This is another expression for AWOL.

Food is chow or mess. Stew is slum or slumgullion. Salt pork, which you rarely see in the Army, is called lamb chop. "They lam it against the wall to get the salt out of it and then they chop it up into the beans."

"Over the hill is an artistic way of referring to unauthorized absence—AWOL."

To fall out, soldiers vacate the barracks quickly, before the sergeant gets really mad. To fall in, they take their places in ranks.

A yardbird is the lowest form of animal life in an Army camp. Under the common law, he is rated as one rank below a buck private. The yardbird, for this misdeed or that shortcoming, spends most of his time in menial labor about the battery area.

When Junior refers to a yardbird, you will notice, he is invariably speaking of someone else.

It was our afternoon off and we were lying around in our barracks, too lazy to dress for a movie or a trip to the Service Club. All of us were, that is, except Private Zuber. With an enthusiasm and energy foreign to a cook's afternoon off, Zuber was applying a blinding glaze to his shoes. This finished, he connected an iron and began sharpening the creases in his trousers.

"Going somewhere, I take it," asked Private Clarkin, the Jersey milkman.

Private Zuber grinned happily, and nodded. He donned his fresh clothing, gave his necktie several unnecessary tugs, and combed his hair for the twentieth time.

Private McGlauffin, late of the Minneapolis bar, laid down his copy of the Bartender's Guide and sat up on his bunk. "Didn't you know?" he asked. "Zuber's girl's come down from Rochester. They're going riding."

"That's a fine thing," crowed Clarkin. "I haven't been for a spin since I've been here. Get your shoes on, Hargrove. And straighten your name plate, McGlauffin. We must make a good impression on our guest . . ."

"You sure are a pleasant surprise, ma'am," Clarkin prattled on to the pretty girl in the front seat.

"Fancy Ben Zuber even knowing anybody like you. You should see the homely looking things he brings to the dances here."

She smiled a polite thank-you at Clarkin and glanced sharply at Zuber. "I never could even get him to the dances at home," she said. "He wouldn't even look at the girls at all. Would you, dear?"

"No, ma'am," groaned the martyred Zuber, who spent almost all his evening hours writing letters to Rochester.

"Just to look at Ben," said McGlauffin, "you'd never think such a quiet-seeming boy could raise so much devil. It constantly amazes me."

Private Zuber's girl friend's smile was not so spontaneous this time, and there was a baleful gleam in her glance at poor Benjamin. "What have you been doing, dear?" she asked with terrible gentleness.

Private McGlauffin went on glibly. "Tell her about the time you got tight in Fayetteville and tried to take the policeman's hat away from him, Ben!"

The one-girl audience was shocked. Her expression, as she looked at Zuber, was one of anxiety and doubt.

Clarkin began again. "And the terrible fight he had that time—ooof!" McGlauffin gave him a hearty dig in the ribs. To make sure that it had registered and created sufficient horrible curiosity in the feminine mind, he repeated it.

Private Zuber, guiltless but helpless, drooped his shoulders further as the terrible ride continued. "Here's the Service Club, dear," he finally said. "Shall we go in and have something to drink?" He gave the three of us a pathetically beseeching glance.

"They don't sell lemon extract in there, Zuber," I suggested. Clarkin, McGlauffin and I exchanged looks that purported to show a hidden knowledge of another terrible paragraph in the collapse of the soul of Benjamin Zuber.

We sat at a table in the Service Club drinking the sodas our victim bought for us. Clarkin looked long at his glass of water.

"The sight of water," he remarked, "reminds me of what the sergeant was telling Ben last week about daily bathing."

McGlauffin took pity on the innocent Zuber, who was dying for a cause he knew not. "We'll have to be going. We have things to do and I imagine you two young people want to enjoy each other's company."

"Yes," said Zuber's fiancée slowly. "Ben and I have SO much to talk about." Private Zuber shuddered and his shoulders slumped tragically.

"We certainly have enjoyed the afternoon," crowed Clarkin. "Lovely time."

One of the first people I looked up when I went to Charlotte on leave was Ward Beecher Threault, who writes a column of sorts for the Saturday edition of the Charlotte News.

"Well, Hargrove," began the post-card philosopher, "how's the Army agreeing with you? I've been aching to find out what you've been doing." This was a subtle slam at my column.

"Well, all things considered—" I began.

"Nothing like the Army," said Ward Beecher. "I wouldn't take a million dollars for the time I spent in it. Nobody'd offer me a million anyway. Have you got a rating yet?"

"Well—" I began again.

"Lord, did I have my ups and downs! Got all the way up to sergeant three times and was busted three times—for the good of the service." He paused to light another cigarette and I thought I saw an opening.

"Let me tell you about the trip over," I said. "We left the—" "We started a crap game on the train," said Threault, "and I had to wire home for money before I got to Rock Hill. Have you had a payday yet?"

"We'll have one—" I started.

rail. I followed another and just when I thought he'd be ready to throw it away, I asked him for the butt. The son-of-a-gun told me he had three different kinds of colds—and he threw his cigarette over the side. He didn't have another, he said.

"We landed at Brest," he said, "and we had to walk up one of the longest durned hills I've ever seen before we could drop our suitcases. The Frenchmen swarmed around us, selling everything from steamer trunks to fine-toothed combs. Twenty of us boys pooled our pocket money to buy a pack of cigarettes for fifty cents. What are you going to spend your first pay on?"

"Oh, I suppose I'll—" "First payday I had I went out and bought myself a pack of cigarettes and lay awake almost all night smoking them. Best cigarettes I ever tasted. By the way, how's the food at Fort Bragg?"

"I find it very—" "Over in France we used to take our drinking water and swap it to the French for wine. It was a toss-up which tasted worse—our water or their wine. Ah, them was the days! Like your uniform?"

"I think it's very—" "Nothing like the ones we wore. There we were, in the hottest part of the summer, with these woolen OD's, Russian high collars, wrap-around leggings, and all the works. How do you like my costume?"

"Well, confidentially—" "This field cap ain't the one they issued to me. I lost that one and had to help myself to this one. I wouldn't tell you where I got it. I used to get into more potato-peeling work for not getting this collar fixed right, too. Looks right distinguished, doesn't it?"

I looked at the modernistic clock on Ward Beecher's parlor table. I took my eyes off it quickly, lest he tell me again about how he won it at the firemen's convention.

"Well, Ward," I said, jumping desperately into a gap in the conversation. "I've enjoyed talking to you about my life in the Army, but I have to get along uptown again. I've got—"

"Sure thing, fellow," said the man of letters; "it certainly is interesting to hear from a soldier in this army. I could listen to you for hours."

When a sergeant tells you that it's the little things in life that are important, he's not just saying it. A sergeant who impresses that one corny slice of homely philosophy upon a rookie's mind is giving him one of the most important lessons of his Army life.

The soldier has a thousand and one small things to remember in his everyday life. Most of these he forgets at least once before a non-com catches them vividly on his mind with kitchen duty.

At retreat, the afternoon inspection of the soldiers, I always check everything before I fall out for the oncoever. Are my shoes shined? Is my rifle cleaned and oiled? Is my name plate pinned straight over my left shirt pocket? Can I get by with this morning's shave? Do I need a haircut? Are all my pockets buttoned? When I make sure that everything is as it should be, I sigh with satisfaction and fall out.

The battery assembles in a neat, precise picture of mass formation. The battery commander orders the top kick to "Prepare the battery for inspection!" The top kick opens the ranks and the lines straighten out to perfection. From where I stand, everything looks perfect.

The battery commander begins his inspection. Until he gets almost to me, I feel almost smug to think that for once I've stood retreat and not fallen short somewhere. To bask in my own perfection, I sneak a forbidden peek at my gun and uniform.

Then, to my horror, I see two shiny strands of stainless steel just below my belt—the chain on that daddablasted dollar watch! Your whole day can be spoiled by doodads such as that marring the neatness and simplicity of your uniform. Back to the kitchens, Dulcy!

There's one good thing, however, about forgetting to take off your nonkosher watch chain for retreat, or to put on your leggings for reveille, or to straighten the shoes under your bunk! After the first time, you remember them!

Prettify Your Basic Dress Or Suit With Glamour Accent

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A MOST encouraging season this for women who needs must keep within a limited clothes budget! If you fortify yourself with a simple basic dress or suit, or both, that you can rely upon to "go places" this winter, it's cheerio to you! To be attired as chic as the next one all you will need is an ample supply of eye-catching accessories that will dress your costume up or dress it down to occasion. The current fashion program revolves around just this—one good suit and one smartly silhouetted basic dress, supplemented with as many carefully selected choice and interchangeable accessory items "as thy purse can buy."

So important is the accessory trend that most leading stores and shops employ specialists who will guide and advise as to making perfect selections that will correlate the costume entire into a harmony of color and design. To go sightseeing in specialized accessory departments is a sort of Alice in Wonderland experience. You will be fascinated with what you see. A thrill and a surprise awaits every step of your way.

In your meanderings among these fashion displays you will come across such charming ensembled accessories as a hat-and-boa duet, as shown above to the left in the illustration. The boa of two-toned tulle, copper penny color blended with champagne, casts a cloud of misty loveliness about milady's shoulders and throat. The pert forward-tilted hat takes on a swish of the tulle whimsy. For the little evenings that go to make up a social winter season, this adorable twosome will bring glamour galore to your simple basic dress. You can carry this lovely "set" out in other exquisite color combinations, such as deep fuchsia red with purple. If you are resourceful you can easily make a similar tulle boa yourself. What's more, the dainty diaphanous furberel on the hat can be made detachable so that upon occasion it can be mounted on a comb and worn as a hair ornament. Yes, indeed, you are supposed to do just such sleight-of-hand tricks as this in order to carry out that new slogan for patriots, to "make the most of what you have." The picture to the right above fairly bubbles over with exciting interest. The story centers about the versatile use of buttons. Take a note of the jeweled button originals down the front of the smart wool jacket. And now for the big thrill! The ornament which this lady of fashion wears so effectively in her hair is made of the same gleaming buttons that fasten the dress! Here's how—simply wire or sew the buttons to a comb top, for it's smart this season, as every fashion-alert woman knows, to ensemble your hairdo to your costume. Comes now the climax to this charming button story in the amazing earrings. They are made of the same identical buttons, and you can do it yourself. Simply snip off the plastic shank of two buttons with pliers. Pry settings out of an old pair of earrings. Drop a wee bit of plastic cement into the hollow disks and press buttons into place. These button originals come in 12 jewel tones so you will be able to match them to any costume. By the way, take note of how cleverly the scalloped yoke is finished off with a hand-crochet edge done in yarn perfectly color-matched to the fabric itself. Try it on that wool dress of yours that needs a touch to give it a new-this-year look.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

White Wool Knit

Here is a white wool knit ensemble of scarf, turtle-neck sweater and matching gloves. It is a real treasure to have when the chill of winter comes on. Being white it has that about it which is very flattering. As illustrated, it is worn with a black tweed suit featuring the ever smart and good-looking black and white contrast. The black patent leather shoulder bag with its white stitching tunes to the black and white scheme perfectly.

Moire and Satin Suits For Furlough Brides

Two-piece soft suits of crepe moire, slipper satin or faille, also one-piece dresses of these attractive materials, look just right for the furlough bride. The departments that make a specialty of catering to brides who want something youthful and not too formal, are showing dresses of this sort that tune perfectly into the wartime wedding picture.

These abound in fluttery little ruffles and they make much of sprightly self-fabric bows placed on pockets and at the new-to-one-side fastenings. There is quite a little shirring used also and latest fashion reports tell of a revival of pin tucking in costume styling. Saw-tooth edges are a smart detail also, likewise self-fabric floral appliques. Aqua, gray, dusky pink and beige are favored colors, with soft blues the favorite of them all. Dresses of this type will be lovely for little evening affairs during the holidays.

Gloves in Two Colors

Gloves with wide frilled cuffs in contrasting color are new in the fabric types. The wide flare cuff lined with a contrasting color is also shown. This new bi-color scheme is repeated in the hat.

Pattern 7568 contains a transfer pattern of 16 motifs averaging 4 1/4 by 3 3/4 inches; stitches.

Government Lends Silver To Take Place of Copper

Because copper is urgently needed for war materials, the treasury department has recently lent, to several new government-owned or operated plants, sufficient silver to take its place in their power distribution lines, says Collier's. Silver thus employed will not be consumed or destroyed and can be returned after the war.

One installation in Michigan, which would have required $185,000 worth of copper, contains silver valued at $15,000,000 and, therefore, is constantly under armed guard.

SNAPPY FACTS

ABOUT RUBBER

Military requirements take the major portion of available rubber supplies for tires (for planes, trucks, and other war vehicles), treads for tanks, boats, balloons, raincoats, ponchos, shoes, surgical supplies, and hundreds of other essential military items. That's why patriotic civilians take the restrictions on their rubber use in an understanding spirit.

According to the court historian to Philip II, and recorded in 1615, Columbus was credited with having found natives bounding rubber play balls (1490-1500) and to have brought some back from Hispaniola to Queen Isabella.

What's a Mammal

One of the commonest popular errors of zoology is the notion that the whale is some sort of fish. It is not; it is a mammal which went to sea. The whale is warm-blooded, has a well-developed brain, and in all other respects shows a far higher organization than any of the fishes. Its young are born alive, and are suckled and cared for by the mother as with land mammals.

Forms of Genista

Adrian Cooperative Teaches Economics

Adrian, Mich.—What better courses on "home economics" could any college furnish than practical experience in managing and operating the college "commons" or dining-hall, the dormitories, and the housekeeping routine for both?

Every college or university supplies plenty of textbook "theory" for this course, but at Adrian College, the wartime problems and handicaps have been put to practical use for scores of young men and women in the "co-operative" eating and dormitory plan.

Tons of produce, groceries and meats have to be purchased and processed, budgeted and served, by student members. Dormitory supplies and the daily routine has to be carried on by self-help-students, anxious to work their way through college.

Students prepare the food, serve the food, plan the menus, and budget the supplies. Rebates paid back to cash customers, as a result of this economy, proves good management, and economical buying, and a self-serving efficiency, even when wartime prices are skyrocketing.

This is the first major cooperative enterprise on the Adrian campus, but it was worked so successfully, so educationally for all concerned, that other co-op plans are now being charted. An official "board" solves all the difficult problems. A faculty member presides at each common's table. Work schedules for students must fit in with curricular schedules. Only one matron, Mrs. V. L. Furbush, is required for full time service. Adrian College students have the unique experience of really helping themselves, by the characteristic "Adrian Self Help Plan."

We can't win the war without the navy; our soldier can't win unless our ships deliver; merchant ships can't deliver unless the home front provides. What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Barbed wire used by Uncle Sam's fighting forces is vastly different from that used on American farms. Army and Marine barbed wire is much heavier and the barbs, about three inches in length, are more vicious than ordinary barbed wire.

The Marine Corps pays fifty cents for each twelve yards, or 36 feet of this specially manufactured barbed wire. The Army and Marine Corps needs thousands upon thousands of feet for defensive warfare. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will insure sufficient quantity for their needs. Invest at least ten percent of your wages in War Bonds every pay day.

Abnormal Tire Wear
If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by under inflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots in the tire tread.

PRESIDENT AND NEWSPRINT

Some of the President's newspaper friends who have been consistently for him over a long period of years are now suggesting that this is a good time to turn the other cheek regarding his constant feud with the press. They suggest that he personally could step into the current newspaper shortage and take a strong stand on an issue which seriously threatens one of the basic freedoms of the country—freedom of the press.

Actually, a good many bureaucrats have been nibbling at the newspaper problem, but no one has stepped in with any forthrightness to cut red tape and solve the problem. It now looks as if only the White House could do this.

Not generally realized is the fact that newspaper shortage is due not so much to decreased woodpulp production in the Canadian forests, but to much greater use of cardboard and packing material in sending war supplies abroad. This is a terrific drain and, though U. S. publishers have patriotically cut their newspaper, they will have to cut to the bone unless energetic moves are made by the government.

The plan put forward by newspaper executives friendly to the White House includes:

1. Greater use of war prisoners in the Canadian and Maine forests.
2. More equitable distribution of newspaper among publishers. At present, the papers with the big Sunday editions have scarcely suffered at all, being able to absorb their paper cuts out of their Sunday "fat." On the other hand, medium-sized papers may have to take terrific punishment.
3. Stricter supervision of cuts by throw-aways, dodgers, comic magazines and newspaper users who have not kept such accurate records of their past consumption. The newspaper industry has suffered by its past efficiency, having kept very accurate records.
4. More emphasis on the paper salvage campaign. At present, only 35 per cent of the nation's waste paper is being collected and salvaged. The waste paper reclaiming machinery is running at only 51 per cent of capacity. Approximately 6,000,000 tons of waste paper are normally collected and sold for paper board but now only two million.

The newspapers stepped in and did a great job of collecting scrap iron when the nation needed it, but now, when the newspapers need newsprint, they themselves are somewhat handicapped in blowing their horn.

What the White House will do remains to be seen.

GOOD NEIGHBOR PEACE

Ten years ago, there was a very serious war between Bolivia and Paraguay in the jungles of the Gran Chaco. Last week, the presidents of Paraguay and Bolivia met at the border of the two countries in the Chaco, erected a large cross, and pledged themselves and their countries to everlasting peace.

The bitterness which animated these two South American countries has been wiped away, and they are Good Neighbors in every sense of the word.

Some diplomats hope this incident is a forecast that the bitterness actuating the enemies of World War II may likewise be eliminated after the passage of time.

INSIDE STORY OF HORNET

The navy department has okayed publication of the inside story of the famous airplane carrier Hornet, written as a book, "A Ship to Remember," by Alexander Griffin of the Philadelphia Record.

For the first time it reveals the spectacular operation of the ship which carried General Doolittle's bombers within a stone's throw of Tokyo. Among other things, the navy okayed publication by Griffin of the fact that, at one time, the Hornet practically acted as a substitute for Henderson Field in the Solomons. That badly messed-up airport, on the night of October 14, 1942, had only five planes left and gasoline to send out only four. So the Hornet came alongside the island, threw her planes into action and, for 36 hours, substituted for Henderson Field.

Even more astonishing is the revelation that, at one time during the low point in the South Pacific battle, the U. S. navy had only one aircraft carrier left undamaged in that entire expanse of water—the Hornet.

Factory-Made Coops Aid Chicken Raisers

Trimly Designed Houses Come in Various Sizes

Householders, moved by the red meat shortage, are being converted by the thousands into backyard chicken fanciers. The chicken "population" increases this year over last—in rural areas alone—is about 132 million head. At an all time high, the present chicken population of the country is above 500 million. No census is taken on urban raised chickens, where the rate of increase is greatest.

Interest in chicken raising, dealers say, is now spurred by the introduction and display of small ready-made houses in retail stores. As these become easily procurable in complete units or prefabricated for quick assembly, it is thought interest will zoom higher. The designs now being shown range from two-story compact types, about the size of a piano box, to large roomy ones big enough to double as hunters' cabins.

Because of the labor shortage and limitations affecting many kinds of building material, the public is finding the ready-made chicken house most easily obtainable. The commercial fabricator on the other hand may use various kinds of substitute material advantageously, or remnants and knotty pieces of lumber.

One of the smaller chicken houses exhibited in the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, was designed to accommodate nine laying hens, or 50 small chicks, and is approximately 6 feet by 3 feet and 4 feet high. The ground floor is a scratching area and is connected by a ramp to the sun deck which is equipped with three "departmentalized" nests, removable roosts, and has compartments for charcoal, grit, water and mash. The second story front is of glass, while the slanting top is built of sliding slat panels of wood. Above this is a second top which may be lifted to admit sunlight. By the lowering of this top-lid and the raising of the ramp, drafts and cold are excluded.

The larger house is 8 by 12 feet, overall height 7 feet 1 inch; in front 6 feet 7 inches, in rear 56 inches. Of the prefabricated type, it comes in eight sections. Main door is 6 feet high by 22 inches and is fitted with hinges and hasp for lock. Equipped with hardwood floors, ventilators and sliding door for chicken outlet, the house has triple windows, 4 lights each, 9 inches by 12 in size. Side walls are made of 1/2-inch Nu-wood, insulated sheeting, coated with asphalt inside and out. The roof is made of 1/2-inch Gypsum board sheeting covered with 55-pound rolled roofing.

Small Farm Engines

Get Preference Rating

Farm rationing committees of county war boards again have authority to assign preference ratings for delivery of small engines needed in essential food production.

This will apply to about 37,000 air and liquid-cooled internal combustion engines of 20 horsepower and under which will be manufactured during the current year. No state or county quotas will be established for the distribution of these engines, since the production is estimated to be sufficient to meet all essential needs.

The only distribution control will be at the county level, where county farm rationing committees will issue preference rating certificates to farmers or operators of farm machinery for hire. The certificates will bear a preference rating of AA-2, the highest which can be given a civilian product.

Good Poultry Houses

Experience has shown that the essentials of a good poultry house are a dry floor that can be easily cleaned, walls that give protection from wind and excessive cold, enough light, provision for ventilation, and, of course, a firm foundation and a tight roof. As about three-fourths of the heat lost by conduction from a poultry house is lost through the roof, the ceiling is the first part of the house that should be insulated.

Yule Accidents Mar Festivities

Christmas is usually the happiest day of the year, but at the same time it is a day in which many serious home accidents are likely to occur, unless certain precautions are taken.

In fact three times as many fatalities caused by fires occur in December as in July, when the nation celebrates with firecrackers, Roman candles and the like. About twice as many people die from burns, scalds and explosions, excepting conflagrations, during the last month of the year as compared with July, and there are twice as many firearm fatalities in the homes this month as there are in July, according to the National Safety Council.

Light-weight materials, tree decorations or even "Santa Claus" himself may catch fire from candles. If electricity is available in the home, it may be far less expensive to purchase a small set of bulbs and wiring for the evening decorations. Candles burning in windows with loose curtains are equally dangerous and should not be used.

Falls from icy steps and walks, especially when they are covered with snow, are among the most common accidents of the Yuletide season. Although it may give an unattractive appearance, scattering ashes or sand over the ice may prevent a broken arm or leg, or perhaps a fatal injury to a member of the family or to visitors.

Sharp and bulky toys left on the floor, stairs or in a doorway frequently cause injuries to those stepping on them when the room is in semi-darkness.

Highly-polished, waxed floors and icy shoes form a combination that increases the danger from falls.

Fatigue from keeping late hours during the holiday season and the hurry associated with Christmas preparations are likewise conducive to home accidents.

What Dickens Thought About Christmas

Christmas time! That man must be a misanthrope indeed, in whose breast something like a jovial feeling is not aroused—in whose mind some pleasant associations are not awakened—by the recurrence of Christmas.

Who can be insensible to the outpourings of good feeling, and the honest interchange of affectionate attachment which abound at this season of the year? A Christmas family party! We know nothing in nature more delightful! There seems a magic in the very name of Christmas. Petty jealousies and discords are forgotten;—social feelings are awakened in bosoms to which they have long been strangers; father and son, or brother and sister, who have met and passed with averted gaze, or a look of cold recognition, for months before, proffer and return the cordial embrace, and bury their past animosities in their present happiness. Kindly hearts that have yearned toward each other, but have been withheld by false notions of pride and self-dignity, are again reunited, and all is kindness and benevolence! Would that Christmas lasted the whole year through (as it ought), and that the prejudices and passions which deform our better nature were never called into action among those to whom they should ever be strangers!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRIST'S NEW COMMANDMENT

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:28-34; John 13:34, 35; 15:10-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.—John 13:34.

The "new commandment" of love which Christ gave was not new in the sense of then first being known, but new in its application (John 13:34). Only since Christ had come did men know how to love in truth.

This commandment of love was also first in time, being given before the Ten Commandments (see Lev. 19:18). Then, too, it declared the fundamental of all spiritual life, the first thing man needed to know, that God is love.

It also must take first place in man's thinking, for even as the Decalogue (Ten Commandments) is the heart of all moral law, so love for God and our fellow man is that which makes the Decalogue effective in our lives. Love and obedience go together (John 15:10).

Our lesson teaches us four things—

I. Love God (Mark 12:28-30).

Because "God is love" (I John 4:8) He desires man's perfect love toward Him. Because the essence of His being is love, He loves us, and enables us to love Him.

There is more here than a commandment or the performing of a duty. There is the recognition of a controlling principle of all life. In a day of multiplication of powerful machines and organizations, when man is "power conscious" in an unusual way, it is well to recall that the greatest power in all the world is the power of love.

Then let us not forget that all true love should rest upon fellowship with God. It has no real foundation if it does not.

II. Love Your Neighbor (Mark 12:31-34).

Everything about our relationship to Christ and to God expresses itself in our living. No spiritual truth is simply to be admired, or kept on a shelf as a cherished possession. It is to be put to work in the affairs of life.

Love for God means love for our neighbor. If we do not love our neighbor (and that means our fellow man—Luke 10:25-42) how then does the love of God abide in our hearts?

III. Love Your Brethren (John 13:34, 35).

Here we come within the circle of believers and see that the distinctive thing about their fellowship should be love for one another.

The old commandment of love becomes a new one because Christ shows that the measure of that love is to be His great love for us. How did Christ love us? With a perfect, unselfish and thoughtful devotion, which so deeply desired the very most and best for us that He was willing to lay down His holy life as our Saviour from sin.

The thing which marked the early church with glorious distinction was that in a world that hated, they loved one another, and in a world that killed and destroyed, they were even willing to die for their brethren. Tertullian of Carthage (Tunis) said, in the second century, that the enemies of Christianity said of the Christians, "See how they love one another."

IV. Love is Obedient, Joyful and Sacrificial (John 15:10-14).

Love is not an impulsive, erratic movement of man's nature which tries to make up for neglect and unkindness by occasional displays of generosity and thoughtfulness. No indeed. Love walks the straight and steady way of obedience to God's commandments.

Keeping God's law is not accomplished by reading it, or talking about it, or even learning it by heart, but by definitely practicing its precepts.

This brings joy into our lives—the real and perfect joy of Christ. How little we appreciate what this means. Our fellowship with the Lord calls for obedience and sacrifice, but that is not a burdensome, dull, distressing experience. It is a joyful one. Who counts it a trial to do that which pleases a loved one? Do we really love God? Then we will rejoice in our response to His will, yes, in any possible act of devotion.

Love draws no limiting line beyond which it will not go. Love says: "I count not my life dear, if in giving it I may bring deliverance to my friends."

We shall not question His guidance nor blush to own His name, even though the testimony may mean our death. This we shall do for Christ's sake, and for the sake of a suffering humanity.

CHILD WELFARE GROUPS STUDY WAYWARD YOUTHS

Confronted With Rising Delinquency Among Teens, State Groups Extend Program.

Evidence indicates an appreciable increase in delinquency among the 'teen-age young people, especially among girls, in areas where the impact of war has been most disruptive. Boys in gangs commit acts of vandalism; truancy from school increases; runaways become more frequent; and girls—so-called "victory girls"—are attracted by the lure of uniforms and by a false sense of patriotism.

The rise in delinquency seems to be concentrated in the larger cities, in production centers and in the vicinity of encampments. A recent survey of the situation in New York by the state board of social welfare's committee on juvenile delinquency during the latter part of 1942, for example, revealed a 22 per cent increase over normal delinquency in 13 upstate "war industry" counties in the first six months of 1942. In 39 other counties not classified as war industry areas, the slight increase which occurred in 1941 was offset by a decrease in 1942.

And according to the U. S. children's bureau, it is estimated that the number of delinquent boys appearing in juvenile courts increased about 8 per cent in 1942 over 1941, while the number of girls increased about 31 per cent, with the sharpest increase—11.5 per cent—occurring in courts serving populations of 100,000 or more.

To discover what the states are doing to control and prevent juvenile delinquency, the American Public Welfare Association and the Council of State Governments have surveyed the field. Though not complete or all-inclusive, information received is suggestive of what governmental agencies on the state and state-local levels are doing.

Child welfare services of the states are used extensively to prevent delinquency, the survey showed, their activities generally supervised by state welfare boards or departments. This approach, it is believed, can accomplish a great deal by providing needed case-work services, by acquainting communities with the needs of children, by making studies for juvenile courts, by supervising children on probation, and by providing foster-care services for children away from home.

Alabama Meets the Issue.

Alabama early in 1941 assigned special child welfare consultants and workers to communities experiencing serious disruptions. The workers assisted county welfare departments and served children affected by crowded living conditions, parental neglect, high cost of living and general unrest. Thirty-two consultants have been doing the job, with the total soon to be raised to 48.

Colorado, Indiana, Tennessee and Utah have similarly extended their child welfare services in war-affected communities. Tennessee's program concentrates energies in the vicinity of army camps and industrial areas. Child welfare services in Utah were established at request of juvenile courts in February, 1942, with four full-time workers now devoting most of their time to the placement and supervision of children—many of them delinquents—removed from parental authority by juvenile courts.

Other ways in which states assist local governments in meeting problems of juvenile delinquency indicate a wide variety of approach to the problem. Louisiana's department of welfare, for example, is aiding district judges who have jurisdiction over juveniles by helping to select trained child welfare workers for probation officers and by assisting in the training and orientation of these officers. In Indiana, the field staff of the state department, including district representatives and consultants, supervises and assists county departments in fulfilling their responsibilities for dependent, neglected and handicapped children, as well as for those on probation. And in addition, Indiana has traveling mental hygiene clinics which are available to county welfare departments.

Florida's Program.

Social protection aspects of juvenile delinquency have received particular attention in Florida, where the state welfare board through its local district boards is giving case work service to girls referred to it. In conjunction with federal agencies, local boards have given considerable help to communities where major social protection problems exist. Since areas of greatest venereal disease infection have been around military encampments, military health officers are co-operating with the public health clinics to control this aspect of the problem.

Though major responsibility for control of community conditions giving rise to delinquency rests upon localities themselves, many states are assisting to some extent, the survey showed. This has been particularly true with regard to sale of liquor to minors and the passage of laws setting up curfews on liquor sales. Many such laws were enacted this year, including the Oklahoma statute designed to separate the sale of beer from dancing by prohibiting such sale where dancing is done except under certain circumstances. Enforcement of these laws is undertaken on a co-operative basis by state and local agencies in most cases.

Provision of recreation for young people, also primarily a matter for local solution, has been given leadership by some state governments, including Washington, Massachusetts and Minnesota. Washington's department of public instruction, for example, employed a person during the summer months to direct the planning of programs for extended school services for school-age children. In major defense areas of the state, public schools have initiated extensive programs for before and after-school activities for children of working mothers, and the state legislature recently appropriated $500,000 to provide communities with extended school and child-care services. Enabling legislation was enacted by some 20 other states this year to stimulate the development of such services or to permit acceptance of federal funds for such purposes.

'BONE MONEY' SENDS DEAD CHINESE HOME

Chinese expatriates the world over save money to pay for the transport of their dead bones to China so that they may rest peacefully beside their ancestors. In Australia, 750,000 pounds a year is put by for this purpose.

They call it "bone money." When Japan went to war with China and Chiang Kai-shek badly needed funds, most Chinese gave him their bone money. The old Chinese relied on younger Chinese to send them home when they died. Normally Tong brethren or near relatives undertake this duty.

Now the "bone money" cannot be sent so it is being invested in Australian war loans.

At the last prewar check-up it was found that 6,000 of Australia's Chinese population were China-born. Since then 5,000 have arrived from Malaya, Sumatra, Java and New Guinea. They have been given "chuck gees" (permissive residence) under the immigration laws.

AMERICA IN ACTION

How Lawyers Help Heal Wounded Soldiers

How army and civilian lawyers are aiding army medical officers in bringing about the speedy recovery of wounded troops hospitalized in the United States was described in letters by army hospital commanders released by the war department.

The lawyers provide free legal advice which clears up perplexing financial problems and other difficulties which may confront the soldier. This service, provided overseas as well as at home, gives the soldier the peace of mind which is necessary for proper response to medical treatment.

Statements of medical officers demonstrate the success of a plan for free legal assistance for all military personnel sponsored jointly by the war department and the American bar association. The service was inaugurated in March, 1943.

Officers of the judge advocate general's department and other army officers who are lawyers carry on the work in co-operation with volunteer civilian lawyers.

One of the letters telling how this free legal service has proved of direct medical value was written by Brig. Gen. O. H. Quade, U. S. army, commanding officer of Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colo., who wrote the judge advocate general that:

"There are many cases in this hospital where the mental calm of the patient is an important and oftentimes a necessary condition to recovery. A large number of these patients, at one time or another during their stay here, have problems calling for competent legal advice and assistance. The prompt and satisfactory handling of such matters is a great aid to early recovery of the patient."

Pointing out that the hospital's legal assistance officer not only interviews patients in his office, but makes the rounds of the wards counseling bed patients, General Quade concludes that this service is "helping this hospital achieve its primary objective, which is the recovery of its patients in a minimum of time." MATCH BOX BEAUTIES

MAYBE YOU THOUGHT POCKET MATCH CASES WERE SOMETHING TO USE WHEN YOU WANT TO LIGHT A FIRE. WELL, TRICKY TEENS THINK THEY'RE SOMETHING SPECIAL TO WEAR.

FOR SAFETY'S SAKE, BE SURE THAT ALL THE MATCHES ARE OUT BEFORE YOU START WORKING ON ANY OF THESE TRICKS.

WAISTLINE WHIMSEY—Collect match cases from every restaurant you go to. Clip them over a narrow leather belt until the belt is entirely covered. Paste the tops down with Scotch tape so they won't fall off.

MATCHLESS LOCKET—Cover an empty match case with red nail polish, inside and out. Paste on your initials in alphabet noodles. Paste a photo of your O.A.O. or favorite movie star inside. Hang on a ribbon and attach to your lapel.

AUTOGRAPH ALBUM—Cut plain white paper to fit inside a match case. Sew to the case across the center. Wear this miniature book on your lapel for autographs, addresses or note passing in school (perish the thought!).

TRIXIE TEEN SAYS—

It's too bad you haven't eyes in back of your head. Of course, you might look a little on the weird side, but it's a safe bet you'd give more attention to your appearance in back if you could see what goes on there.

You've curled your hair beautifully around your face, but what about those straggly ends in back? Your shoes are trimly polished, but how about those crooked heels? You thought you did a good job with the leg make-up, but you ought to see the white patches and the streaks up the backs of both legs.

There's a button off the back of your dress and you must have stepped in your sagging hem in back when you cut that last rug.

And, listen, chick, those slouching shoulders certainly give you a dejected look from the rear. Watch out for your glamour both back and front—somebody's right behind you and it may be the somebody who's out in front with you.

MORE JITTERBUG JEWELRY

WHO WANTS TO WEAR DIAMONDS WHEN SHE CAN MAKE HER OWN JITTERBUG JOOLERY OUT OF ANYTHING FROM BUTTONS TO BOTTLE TOPS? HERE IS AN OUT-OF-THIS-WORLD ODDITY THAT YOU WILL SEE AROUND THE NECKS AND ON THE LAPELS OF THE NEAREST HEP CAT.

GLASSY STARES—Pocket mirrors from old handbags are dangling from lots of lapels. Frame them with adhesive or press-on mending tape and attach a piece of ribbon to each side of the top. Tie together in a bow and pin to your lapel. Just flip the mirror when you want to see if your lipstick is still on straight.

Minute Make-Ups

By GABRIELLE

If you have changed your hairdo this fall (if you haven't you should) you must redesign your makeup. Your eyebrows need reshaping or new pencilled accent. Your rouge will need new placement. Take a minute here and a minute there to try new ideas to complement your new hairdo.

Employer Puts Up Bail, Pays Fine to Keep Cook

BALTIMORE.—The meat shortage is bad enough, but to one Baltimore restaurateur the manpower shortage is worse.

Dudley C. Short, president of a restaurant concern, not only paid a $50 fine for a cook convicted of stealing ham but put up $500 bail on a lottery charge.

"It's not a case of turning the other cheek," Short told police, "I must keep my cook."

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

Midriff Frock. HOW the junior crowd loves frocks with well-defined midriff section. This one is so colorful with dramatically placed contrasting details.

Pattern No. 8465 is in sizes 9, 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Size 11 takes 3½ yards 39-inch material. 9 yards braic or ric-rac.

School Winner. THE center panel of this dress adds both height and slimness to the appearance of the girl who wears it. There's the reason why this is one of our most popular school girl patterns.

Pattern No. 8470 is in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards 35-inch material, 3½ yards ric-rac. Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Fish Lays Eggs in Plants; Trout Is Lassoed in Leap

Thread-finned fish of the Amazon river leap out of the water and lay their eggs on overhanging plants.

A trout was lassoed by a fisherman as it leaped out of the waters of a California stream. It weighed six pounds, measured 28 inches. A U. S. forest ranger has a photograph to prove it.

Blackfish which live in the weedy swamps of Alaska and eastern Siberia can be frozen in the ice for months, but when thawed out become as lively as ever.

This Fish Uses Its Mouth As Incubator, Nursery

Some fish have curious breeding habits. The curious haplochromis, for example, uses its mouth as an incubator, meanwhile going on a self-denying diet. This fish is only two to two and a half inches long, as a rule.

When the time comes for spawning, the male will make a hollow in the sand, and in this the eggs are deposited and fertilized. The female then picks up the eggs in her mouth, carrying them about this way for about two weeks until the young hatch out.

The mouth of the female continues to act as a refuge for the little fish until they are able to forage for themselves. During the period of hatching the mother does not take food, but after hatching she chews food particles fine enough for her offspring to devour.

Negro Pugilists

Negroes constitute at least 5,500 of America's 8,000 professional pugilists, both in and out of the military services. Thus their participation in prize fighting is greater than in any other spectator sport in this country.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

Girls, don't neglect your man in the service. Nothing keeps up the morale of soldiers and sailors more than do letters from home.

Keep these letters cheerful and gay. Tell him all the "little" news you know. He'll be glad to hear about your garden, and what movies you have seen. Let him know that the things he enjoyed are still around to be shared when he returns. Tell him about the things your friends are doing, and the bridge you play with the girls.

Don't tell him about that date you had with the handsome sergeant, because the thought of you out with another man will only deflate his ego.

Don't moan and groan about rationing and shortages. He is giving more than you are no matter how hard pressed you may be.

Names Are Different On Her Ration Books

SAN DIEGO.—A woman applying for a No. 4 ration book had books 1, 2 and 3, issued between May, 1942, and June, 1943.

"But the names on these books are different and none is the same as on your application for book 4," the registrar said.

"Young lady," the woman said, "haven't you ever heard of divorce courts and remarriage?"

LET'S KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

THIS community has every right to be proud of the way it is meeting the appeal for more pulpwood. We are proving that we can get out the wood. Now let's keep it coming!

This war isn't won yet—not by a long shot. Our boys will be fighting for quite a while. They will be needing ammunition, food, medical supplies—and all these things that are shipped in paperboard containers are made from pulpwood.

Pulpwood is our wartime job. Pulpwood can still be a bottleneck, holding up America's war effort. Our responsibility is to see that it does not. No boy shall die because we have failed.
