IOSCO SCHOOL OFFICERS MET HERE FRIDAY

Fine Representation at All-Day Program in Auditorium

Last Friday a very interesting meeting of Iosco county school officers was held Friday morning and afternoon at the Tawas City Auditorium. All but two districts of the county were represented at the meeting. Among the speakers were Howard Prine, of State Department of Public Instruction; M. L. Smith, director of Rural Education of Central State College of Education, Mt. Pleasant; M. J. Bates, superintendent of schools, Clare.

Howard Prine talked on "School Law and Finance." An informal discussion was held by the school officers on sources of finance, and instructions were given by Mr. Prine on a simplified form of school accounting which will be in force next year. Mr. Prine was very much surprised to learn that this form of accounting had already been initiated in the Iosco county school system by School Commissioner Russell Rollin.

M. L. Smith, of Central State College of Education, gave a very fine talk and discussion as to how the teacher and school board can cooperate on school spending and school programs in general.

Superintendent Bates of Clare gave a very interesting talk and led a general discussion on health and nutrition.

The Home Ec Class of the Tawas City High School served a very fine luncheon at noon to the entire group. Many fine comments were heard about the luncheon, especially after it was learned that the group had partaken of a perfectly balanced meal.

School Commissioner Rollin said yesterday, "We especially would like to extend our appreciation to Superintendent Wilkinson, and his band, of the Tawas City schools for entertaining the group before the meeting."

Tawas City Auxiliary Holds Christmas Party

The Annual Christmas Party of the Tawas City American Legion Auxiliary was held Monday evening. Members of the Legion had been invited and about 60 people were in attendance.

An enjoyable dinner was served at seven o'clock. The room was decorated in the Christmas motif with a beautiful Christmas tree in one corner, surrounded by gifts, which were later distributed by a youthful Santa Claus.

At the dinner, W. A. Wilkinson, superintendent of the Tawas City Public Schools, gave a short talk in which he explained the advantages of a city band for the boys and girls who had graduated from this school after taking band instruction. He said that such an organization would give those boys and girls, and any other person interested in music, a chance to enjoy band work. He volunteered to direct such a band, and co-operate in its organization.

At a business meeting of the American Legion following the party, the members voted to sponsor a city band, and Post Commander Fred Marsh appointed H. Read Smith, William Rapp and Walter Anschuetz as a band committee. This committee will report at the next regular meeting of the post in January. Anyone interested should consult with one of these committee members.

The Office of Defense Transportation today advised all persons in Tawas City planning to purchase trucks placed on sale by army salvage officers to consult the ODT Motor Transport District Office before bidding on such equipment.

Several cases have occurred in the Tawas City District which is in the 6th Army Service Command Mr. Kennedy, ODT District Manager, said where persons have purchased trucks and then found the proposed services were of a nature that would not qualify them for allotments of motor fuel and mileage, under ODT regulations.

The ODT warning on purchases of army trucks which are no longer suitable for military use also applies to would-be buyers of used trucks of any kind. Such a purchase should not be made until the prospective purchaser makes necessary, required for operating any kind of commercial motor vehicles, will be issued by the ODT for the type of service in which the truck is to be used.

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank our Tawas friends for their kindness and sympathy during our bereavement.

Merle Sweet and Ethel.

WANTED—Coarse wool buck. John R. Rood, R. 3, Tawas City.

IN the SERVICE

In telling of his experiences in India, Sergt. Jack MacMurray writes the following to Miss Regina Barkman of New York City:

Dear Friend: I suppose by the heading you think I am quite a ways from home. Well I can assure you I am. Have only been here a short time, but it seems like I have been here for months, as so many things have happened, and I have viewed many strange scenes.

We are stationed at a British rest camp for a short time, so we have very little to do. Our food here is good and there is plenty of it. They have a good show with some of the late pictures playing. One thing we get plenty of is, bananas, oranges and coconuts. We have little coffee, but plenty of tea.

The other day a group of the fellows played a game of soft ball to entertain the British boys. In return, we had the pleasure of seeing a cricket game played by the British.

We are living in tents, ten men to the tent, and sleep on wooden cots with rope springs. We went on a little march yesterday and came to a river. In the river, a truck was being washed, cattle were drinking, and people were washing clothes and themselves, so when you saw this in moving pictures, it was the truth. The people over here live that way.

Jack.

CHAPTER VII

One of the nicest things about working in the kitchen in Battery C of the 13th Battalion has been the knowledge that its number-one chow hound, Buster Charney, would drop around after supper and the conversational fat. It's like a letter from home to listen to Buster's slow and mournful drawl, and his refreshingly dry humor is a pick-me-up at the end of a long, hot afternoon.

Buster came prancing up the chow line, the other evening with a grin that started at the back of his head and enveloped his face from the nose down.

"What's eating you, Walter?" I asked him, "—besides that egg-sucking grin?"

"Leaving here, boy!" he sang. "You won't see me around for three months. And when you see me, son, you'll see stripes on my sleeves and a look of prosperity on my clean-cut Tarheel face!"

The man behind him wanted to get to the mashed potatoes, so Buster had to move on down the line, I got the whole story from one of the kaypees while I waited for him to make his evening call.

Of the 200-odd men in Battery C, two men had been selected for three months' training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. At the end of their three months, they will come back as gunnery instructors, with a non-commissioned officer's rating and a specialist's extra pay on top of that. Mrs. Walter Charney's little boy Buster was one of the two men selected.

One of the sergeants near here came back from a recent leave with one of the most glorious shiners that ever darkened the human eye.

"Run into a door?" I asked him. "Gave a guy the wrong answer," he replied simply, "or rather, the answer he didn't want."

I looked at his face; his teeth were all there and his jaw was still in one piece. I looked at his hands; the knuckles showed the marks of service.

"I was at a party," he went on, "when this fellow who lives next door to my folks wants to know 'how's the morale in the Army?'"

"Leaving here, boy," he sang; "You won't see me around for three months. Then I'll be wearing stripes on my sleeves."

"Excellent," I tell him; "excellent!" He looks me up and down sort of pitying-like and wants to know don't I read the magazine stories about how poor it is. Well, I tell him, "I spend all my time with the boys and I believe what I see more than what I read."

"He goes on from there making cracks at the Army and the country and the suckers we are for giving our time for what's not worth fighting for in the first place. I listen politely for a while, because even though I'm not in uniform I don't want to look rowdy. I stand as much as I can and then I ask him to his feet. It isn't long before his three brothers join the fight. It was one of the brothers put his finger ring in my eye."

"Brother," I told him, "that ain't a black eye. That's a badge."

"I lost the fight," he said. "You won the argument, though," I told him.

"I'd like to use the sergeant's name, but he made me promise not to."

"I told the Old Man," he said, "that I got the shiner playing baseball."

"How can I fit you into a coat," moaned Supply Sergeant Israel, "with you fidgeting around like a race horse at the post? Stand still, dern you, stand still!"

"Heavens to Betsy, Thomas," I complained, "you're getting to be the fussiest old maid in the outfit. I'm not squirming!"

"In the first place, my man," he said, "don't call me Thomas or try to get overly familiar with your olders and betters. In the second place, don't argue with me. In the third place, don't fidget in the first place. And in the fourth place, don't agitate me unnecessarily. I'm at the end of my patience with you and I ain't feeling in no holiday spirit anyway."

I buttoned the handsome winter blouse and he stepped back to inspect it with the eye of an artist. "Every time my wife gets mad at me, she has her picture taken to send to me. The picture I got today showed she's going to eat my heart out unmercifully when I can't put off my furlough any longer and I have to go home. And with domestic difficulties on my hands, I have to fit your winter uniforms."

He yanked at my coattail, straightened the collar and scratched his head. "Hargrove—37 long," he yelled to the boy at the desk.

"Man that is born of woman," I comforted him, "is of many days and full of trouble."

"Git off the platform and into this overcoat," he sighed. He held the coat while I got into it and he slapped my hand for fidgeting again.

"Sometimes I wonder why I go to so much trouble keeping you boys dressed right. Here I spend the whole afternoon wiping sweat out of my eyebrows, just to see that your clothes fit you and you won't look like a bunch of bums—which you are."

"Do you know what some ungrateful kitchen termites said the other day? He started putting it around that the Army could double itself in half an hour by filling up the extra space in its trousers. Do your trousers fit you bum?" He straightened the pleats in the back of the overcoat and gave the tail an unnecessarily vicious yank.

"Did I say they didn't?" I groaned, raising my arms despairingly. "Just because somebody else says you stretch the coat in the back so the man will think it fits right in the front, you have to go picking on me!"

"Me pick on you?" he screamed. "It's a wonder my nerves ain't completely shot! Do I come around and put signs on the door saying, 'Walk Up One Flight and Save Five Dollars'? Do I throw gunny sacks on your bed and ask you to take up the cuffs two inches?"

"With my thankless job, it's a wonder I haven't collapsed before this. I wish I was a permanent kitchen police instead of a supply sergeant." Hargrove — 37 long! NEXT!

"This battery is my baby," Corporal Henry Ussery said, loosening his belt for a real bull session. I've watched it grow from thirty-one men to what it is now. It was hard work building up this battery to what it is now, but it's worth it when you look around and see what you've done."

The assembly sighed en masse and decided to loosen its belts. Ussery was wound up again.

"When I got here, there wasn't anybody here but the instructors. We spent four weeks eating dust and running rabbits. There I was—I'd spent fourteen months learning the old drill and tactics to where I reckon I had it down better than any man in the whole Army. Then they started this 'minute Army,' with a bunch of green ignorant Yankees—and I had to teach them what they had to know!"

The bull session nodded wisely and Corporal Ussery went on. "Now, this young Corporal Joe Gantt, for instance. Now, this Corporal Gantt, when he first came in, was one of the greenest rookies in the bunch. But he snapped out of it and made corporal in four months."

"Was that soldiering," a voice broke in, "or handshaking—as the Latins used to say, mittus floppus?"

"Much as I can't stand Gantt, I'll have to admit it was soldiering. That's the way it is. You sweat your head off hammering the drills and the calisthenics and the military courtesy and guard duty and the physical hygiene and the manual of arms into them. They're all clumsy and awkward as a bear in an egg crate at first, but then you can see them, after a while, snapping into it and getting better and better. By the time we've had them thutteen weeks, and they're ready to be assigned to their posts, they're as keen and alert as a bunch of West Point cadets. They're extra good cooks and better soldiers."

"Isn't a good soldier a specialist at griping and growling?" somebody asked him.

"Griping is an art, just like gold-bricking is an art. Before you leave here, you learn that you don't enjoy griping a bit when you spread your energy all over everywhere, griping about everything. You learn to choose one thing and specialize in griping about that."

"If you want to be a specialist at griping, you have to get on your toes. You get to where your clothes are comfortable. Where you used to think the food was terrible, now you pretend that you don't get enough of it. You like the beds and by nine o'clock you're sleepy. So you have to find something special to gripe about. If you haven't got any originality at all, pick you out one special noncom and gripe about him."

"Now, you take Private Hargrove, for instance. First came here, he griped about me telling him he was carrying his rifle wrong. Now he gripes when I tell him he's carrying it right. He might have something there. He still carries it like it was a 75-millimeter gun. He's getting so shiftless, even at griping, that he can't find anything to beef about except not getting any mail. I'm going to write all his creditors, so he won't even be able to gripe about the mail."

Somewhere on the wild coast of South Carolina, the battalion in which I cook is being treated to a weekend to combine business with pleasure. We can romp in the Atlantic while we get a "taste of the field." With the wind blowing the sand into kitchens and pup tents alike, it will be nice to get back to

At night we sleep, or simulate sleep, in pup tents made by our own hands with loving care.

Fort Bragg for a taste of the food we eat. A vexed soldier here doesn't grate his teeth. He crunches them.

We made the trip here in lorries, which are the mechanical age's nearest approach in appearance to covered wagons. You've probably seen them rolling noisily but smoothly through town—large canvas-topped trucks with a folding bench down each side inside. You'd expect to be hauled out of one of them, beaten to death, at the end of a 130-mile trip. They give a tolerably bumpy ride, just tolerably.

When we started pitching camp, about a quarter of a mile back from the beach, we found the place already inhabited — by cannibals. These creatures, which masquerade as harmless flies and even camouflage as sand flies, must have vampire blood back in the line somewhere.

I don't bear any grudge against the easygoing, good-natured house fly—in fact, I feel rather cruel when I squash one for tickling me—but it arouses my pioneer fighting spirit to see a stunted horsefly light on my bare leg, make himself sassily comfortable and start draining off my life's blood. But what can you do? Slapping one only serves to make him mad at you.

At night we sleep, or at least we simulate sleep, in pup tents made by our own hands with loving care, blood, sweat, tears, two pieces of waterproof cloth, two lengths of rope, and a handful of turned lumber.

I share my little duplex with Private Warren, the new student cook who told me the story about the man at the boarding house. When I stumbled home last night, primed to the gills with a blend of sand and salt water, I discovered that we had an overnight guest! The chief cook on our shift, in the task of packing the field kitchen, had neglected to put his own field pack (tent half, blankets, etc.) on the truck, so he decided to drop over and have us put him up for the night.

A pup tent, as you probably don't need to be told, will accommodate two men, provided neither of them walks in his sleep. If three men are to sleep in one tent, at least two of them must be midgets or babes in arms. Cooks should never sleep two to a tent, because of their tendency toward plumpness.

We arranged ourselves in the tent by wrapping knees around the tent poles, putting all feet outside for the night and raising one side of the tent high enough to make a rustic sleeping porch of the whole affair.

The guest proved to be one of those loathsome creatures who pull all the covers to their side of the bed. We had quite a lot of trouble with him, since he slept in the middle and rolled up in both our blankets. We remedied this by waiting until he started snoring, then recovered our blankets, rolling our selves in them and throwing a raincoat over him.

The three-man arrangement was very uncomfortable for a while. When I finished opening my eyes by scooping the sand from them, I found that I had rolled through the opened side of the tent and spent the night under a myrtle bush ten yards down the slope.

During my first off hour, I succeeded in getting a tan which must have darkened the very marrow of my bones. My chest, back, and legs looked the color of a faded danger flag and smelled like the roast pork that the cook forgot to watch after that, the surf and the surf went their ways and I went mine

Christmas Booty

No — these Christmas packages aren't all intended for this one lone sailor at Great Lakes Naval Training station. But the satisfied look on his face is evidence that he will be opening a few of the boxes very soon.

Trimming Your Tree? Here Are Useful Tips

Ho, hum, it's about that time of year. For Santa, and for Prancer and the many tinsel packages around—you've guessed it, time to trim the tree.

This favorite indoor sport of many Hoosiers brings out all the latent abilities of chef, window dresser and wallpaper hanger. And as busy as the fabulous man with one arm and a paint brush is the Christmas tree trimmer. First, get the tree! You have it? Then stalk the room as on a safari for wild deer. What corner should the tree occupy? Over there by the piano? By a window so the neighbors can see it? Or perhaps just inside the front door.

Next obtain a strong stepladder and try it in all positions. This may come in handy when you have completed the trimming and forget that the star is to be added to the tip. With popcorn strings, tinsel, stars and what-not (usually what-not), get started. Turn to the right side of the tree. Here you will find one branch that is too long, and another too low. Add licks and work up from the lower branches. There are usually numerous pauses in the tree trimming ceremony to digest the mental pabulum offered by friends and visiting relatives. Pay no attention to this advice. It's your tree, isn't it?

Rock wool sometimes is added for the snow-like effect and diamond "dust" gives a pretty sparkle. Some trimmers of the 1890 school like to tie on ornaments and candy canes. These fall easily, however, and don't bounce. Bedecked from tip to stern, the Christmas tree holds a warmth of family interest. But the trimming—that's fun enough for a whole evening.

Greatest Yule Hymn Had Humble Origin

On a silent snow-covered night in the year 1818 on the eve of Christmas, Josef Mohr, a young parish priest near Salzburg, Austria, sat thinking of the Christmas story. Its poetry filled his soul and into his mind there rushed "Stille Nacht." The next day he asked an old friend Franz Gruber, teacher of music who played the organ in Mohr's little church, to set the words to music. The villagers of Mohr's parish were the only people who knew the song for a number of years. Then an organ builder came to the church to repair the organ and copied the song, taking it into the outer world. It was first sung at a Christmas concert in 1833.

SILENT NIGHT
Silent night, holy night,
All is calm, all is bright
Round yon Virgin Mother and Child
Holy Infant so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace.

Silent night, holy night,
Shepherds quake at the sight,
Glories stream from heaven afar,
Heav'nly hosts sing Alleluia;
Christ, the Saviour, is born,
Christ, the Saviour, is born!

Silent night, holy night,
Son of God, love's pure light
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth.

Tree Decorations
In spite of glittering decorations, the Christmas tree would only remain a dark pageant, were it not for the many colored electric lights which are deftly fastened all over it, and which, when lighted up, make it for the young people a thing of beauty and a joy—for that night at least!

Singing of Yule Carols Widely Known Tradition

The custom of singing carols from house to house on Christmas Eve is today one of the best known and most beloved features of the Christmas tradition. Wherever and whenever Christmas is celebrated it is a day of rejoicing and good cheer, and joy is naturally expressed in song.

The first Christmas carol is said to be that sung by the heavenly host when the birth of Christ was announced to the shepherds.

Toy Chest Can Be Wheeled About; Has a Combination Top and Table

TOY CHEST MAY BE MADE WITH OR WITHOUT WHEELS AND ROPE HANDLES. STENCIL THE DECORATIONS.

IT'S nice to dream about a nursery where children have all their clutter and playthings but this winter we will be thinking about ways and means for everyone to have their special interests, hobbies and pleasure right in whichever cozy room that may be heated easily. That is the way it was done in the "good old days"; and there is certainly no reason that we can't do it now with a few special ideas of our own in the way of efficiency and comfort. Why not make a gay toy chest that may be wheeled into the room? And why can't the lid be used for a play table?

You may have scraps of plywood or composition board that may be used for the chest. Even the wheels of this chest are cut out of wood, and here is a good chance to use some of those odds and ends of bright paint that you have saved.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared directions for making this chest with wooden wheels, folding table top, with full size patterns and color guide for the stenciled decorations for the sides, ends, top and wheels. Price of pattern which is No. 252 is 15 cents. Address:

NEEDED CARS NEED WEED CHAINS

Uncle Sam would have used TIRE CHAINS

Whenever Uncle Sam's military vehicles run into snow, ice, mud or sand, tire chains are put on to get them through safely and on time. • The government also recognizes the importance of tire chains for farm cars and trucks under WPB Order L-201. But military needs are so great, we urge you to repair usable old chains so long as they are safe. • If you must have new ones, buy WEED CHAINS. For the best buy ask for WEED AMERICAN BAR-REINFORCED—longer mileage, better traction, greater safety, thanks to the bridge of steel on each contact link.

Triumvirate Plans to Smash Japanese

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, representing the triumvirate of China, the United States and Britain, as they conferred in Cairo, Egypt. Decisions were reached to beat Japan into unconditional surrender and to force her to give up all the islands she has seized in the Pacific since the Sino-Japanese war in 1894, and all other territories which she has taken by violence and greed. Later, at a conference in Iran, Roosevelt, Churchill and Premier Josef Stalin of Russia were reported to have decided on a similar policy toward Germany. Germany, it was reported, would be quarantined as the world's No. 1 aggressor and thrown back inside her original borders. Unless Germany surrenders unconditionally it is believed she will be subjected to more of the intense bombing which has destroyed much of Berlin.

Speaking Sports

By Bob McShane

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

MR. WILLIAM D. COX, former president and principal stockholder of the Phillies, recently added a highly interesting chapter to the quite confusing Philadelphia story.

Cox was banned permanently from organized baseball by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis because of betting on games played by his own club. There was no charge or even intimation that he bet on the Phillies except to win, but Cox's wagering was a clear violation of the major league rule adopted in 1927, reading: "Any player, umpire or club or league official or any employee who shall bet any sum whatsoever upon any baseball game in connection with which the bettor had a duty to perform shall be declared permanently ineligible."

In banning Cox, Landis struck the most decisive blow against gambling in baseball since shortly after he took office in 1921. At that time he threw eight White Sox players out of the game because of selling out to gamblers in the 1919 World Series with Cincinnati.

Precedent Set

Cox is the first major league club president—indeed, the first front office official of any kind in the majors—to be ousted from baseball during the Landis regime.

Technically, however, Cox beat Landis to the draw. When notified to attend a final hearing on December 4, he replied that he had resigned and had disposed of his stock in the club.

ROBERT R. M. CARPENTER

At the same time the official decision was given out, it was announced in Philadelphia that the club directors had elected 27-year-old Robert R. M. Carpenter Jr. of Wilmington, Del., to fill the post vacated by Cox.

Baseball isn't inclined to grieve over the abrupt bouncing of Cox. He hadn't endeared himself to players, fans or league officials. And quite a few observers questioned his judgment when it was disclosed that he had placed a few bets on his team. It was suggested that a more fitting punishment, had his gambling proclivities been discovered earlier, would have been to make him bet on the Phils every day thereafter until the end of the season. And, better still, to watch them, too.

Cox's summary dismissal of Manager Bucky Harris caused a good deal of ill feeling. Their differences were supposedly bound up in the reported inability of Cox to locate Harris when he wished to talk baseball—which was about 90 per cent of the time.

Grand Central Station

Then, too, the playing personnel of the Phils resented some of Cox's activities. Even in spring training the clubhouse resembled the Grand Central station. Cox would barge through it with a retinue of stockholders and other amiable souls. Neither Harris nor the players were enthusiastic about this intimate audience, but charged it off to the exuberance of new ownership. But it didn't make matters more bearable.

Carpenter, the youngest club president in major league history, wants a club that will be in the fight for the first division and "not just another doormat for the other National league teams."

The new owner, a 190-pound sportsman who admits he was a "heck of a good end" at Duke university, has big plans for the Phils—but hasn't much time to formulate them. He is under a stay of induction from the army and figures on going into service in January.

Veteran Promoter

Carpenter is not a newcomer to sports. He is president and part owner of the Wilmington Blue Rocks of the class B Interstate league and owns an interest in the Wilmington Bombers of the American (professional) Basketball league and in the Wilmington Sporting club, a fight promotion outfit. He has been manager of Lou Brooks and Al Tribbiani Wilmington fighters. This background will prove valuable to him in his new capacity. At least he knows his way around.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for December 19

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

CHRIST THE FULFILLMENT OF THE LAW

LESSON TEXT—Hebrews 1:1-9; Romans 10:4-10. GOLDEN TEXT—God . . . hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son.—Hebrews 1:1,2.

The center of all Christian thinking is the fact that God has revealed Himself to man. This revelation is found in the Bible, for it is the Word of God. That is why the commandments which we have studied in recent weeks speak to us with such authority. They are not the expression of human opinion of how we should live. They are God's command which we are to obey.

The great and final revelation of God and His love was not the written Word—the Bible—but the Living Word—His Son. The coming of Christ is our lesson for next week, on Christmas Sunday. But this week we want to learn a little more of what His coming into the world meant. He was—

I. God's Last Word (Heb. 1:1-3).

Through the ages God had been speaking through the prophets, constantly revealing Himself as a God of power, justice, holiness, truth and mercy.

In different ways and at various times (v. 1) He spoke through them, but always there was a pointing forward to the One who should come. Abraham was called out to found the nation (Gen. 12), and Jacob the family or tribe (Gen. 49), in which He should come. He was to be a prophet like Moses (Deut. 18) and of the kingly house of David (II Sam. 7). All the offerings of Leviticus spoke of His priestly service. Isaiah saw Him as both the reigning and the suffering Messiah (Isa. 53).

All this was incomplete until He came; and when He did, He revealed all the glory of God. He made the perfect and final sacrifice for sin, and sat down (His work was finished) at God's right hand (the place of power).

Let us be clear about this: in Christ God's revelation is perfect and complete. We need look for nothing more. The claims of those who appear with a "new light" or some mysterious hidden power are so obviously untrue that we ought not to be at all interested.

But not only is Christ God's final Word, He is—

II. God's Best Word (Heb. 1:4-9).

The prophets and their messages thrill our souls and move us to more earnest living. But the Christ is our very life as well as our Redeemer.

The angels are God's messengers—mighty and magnificent beings, superior in their way to man (Ps. 8:5). The early church made too much of angels (as do some groups today), but Protestantism of our day has made too little of them. They are great and powerful beings who minister on our behalf and who are honored in the loyal service they do for God.

But when they stand beside the Son of God, it becomes evident that He holds a place of incomparable glory and majesty. He is the highest revelation of God, the best Word that God could have spoken to needy and sinful humanity.

We do well to think of who Christ is and what He has done. Just in this passage from Hebrews we find that He is the express image of all of God's glory; He is the upholder of all creation; He has the place of honor and power at God's right hand; He is the only begotten of the Father; His throne has been established forever, and so on.

How well might unbelievable that this glorious One is also our Saviour. This is stated in verse 3, but is developed in our next point.

III. God's Saving Word (Rom. 10:4-10).

If sinful man were only permitted to look on His glory it would be a great privilege, but it would not help him in his desire for holiness and eternal joy. There was a "great gulf fixed" between sinful man and a holy God until the Son of God became the God-man, when the eternal Word became "flesh and dwelt among us" (Luke 2:14).

Christ as our Saviour is the "end of the law" to the believer (v. 4), not in the sense that He terminates the law by setting it aside, but by completing or fulfilling all of its requirements.

Just so the Christian is set free from the law, not in order that he may disobey it, but that he may keep it in the power and grace which Christ gives him. The Ten Commandments are the law of life for the Christian because he loves the Lord Jesus Christ and wants to obey Him. We do the things which the Decalogue require not to be saved thereby, but because we thereby honor the name of our Saviour.

The unbeliever, struggling under the burden of sin, says, "How can I come to know Him?" and we find the answer in verses 8-10. It is "by faith."

There Must Have Been Politicos at the Beginning

Over a cup of coffee at the club a doctor claimed that his was the oldest profession. "For," he said, "Adam's rib couldn't have been removed without a surgeon to perform the operation."

"Yes," said the architect, "but before that the world had to be created out of chaos. And, you will admit, creation implies an architect."

"There was a politician in their midst."

"Hold on, gentlemen," he said. "You must carry it back still further—to chaos. And where there is chaos there must be a politician."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The war and the crude rubber shortage have given emphasis to synthetic rubber, but for more than 70 years prominent chemists in Europe, Russia and the United States have been working on the development of this substitute for natural rubber.

One tapper can collect about six gallons of latex from a morning's tapping on a rubber plantation. This yields about 20 pounds of rubber.

The first scientific or commercial interest taken in rubber was evidenced in 1745, when Charles Marie de la Condamine made a report on this substance to the Paris Academy of Sciences.

AMERICA IN ACTION

Wire Communications Consolidation

Domestic wire communications of the army are being consolidated into a single system to effect co-ordination and conservation of critical materials, wire facilities and manpower, the war department announced recently.

The new system is the just-created army command and administrative network, army service forces, and is being set up under supervision of the army communications service of the signal corps, of which Brig. Gen. Frank E. Stoner is chief.

Many separate communications now operated by various branches of the army will be eliminated under the change-over which, when completed, will have in operation 25 message centers—including army service commands—and 15 or more additional points close to important military installations.

The plan includes eventual abandonment of the army's radio network in the continental United States—the present traffic being diverted to the network—but radio circuits for overseas communications will be continued.

Certain communications systems of the army branches which require specialized traffic handling, such as the army air forces, will be continued, but it is planned to connect the new network with specialized nets of these other branches.

Although the consolidated message centers are to be operated by the signal corps, independent centers at other points will be combined with the branch of the army which has predominant activities operating at that point.

Order Fertilizers Now, Urges WFA

Heavy Demands Will Swamp Dealers Later

Prompt action by farmers in placing orders for fertilizers with their local dealers is being urged by the War Food Administration. Farmers are being advised, also, to take delivery as soon as their requests can be filled.

Because manufacturers and transportation systems alike are faced with manpower shortages, the WFA says it is imperative that as many farmers as possible get in their fertilizer supplies this winter, instead of waiting for spring. Ordering now will be insurance against disappointment later on, it is pointed out. The fertilizer industry asserts it will be able to get the fertilizer manufactured and delivered, if allowed sufficient time. But instead of the usual peace-time spring rush period, about six months is now needed.

With the heaviest demand in history in prospect, the present outlook indicates that in total tonnage there will be 5 to 10 per cent more fertilizer in 1944 than in 1943. There is a definite prospect for more nitrogen and superphosphate than in 1943, but a certainty of less potash, government reports show.

Plenty of mixed fertilizer is reported as available for shipment at present. Unless it goes to farms now, however, there is a possibility, says the War Food Administration, that the facilities of manufacturers and dealers may be swamped later on, so that they will be unable to make full delivery in time for spring planting.

It is reported that many local dealers can give immediate delivery on orders. Storage facilities on the farm may be met, studies have shown, by putting the sacked fertilizer on a platform slightly raised off the ground and situated so it will be protected from night winds. It is advised that sacks, wagon sheets and other materials be used to cover the fertilizer.

Under new revisions in the WFA's Food Production Order No. 5, provision is made for the addition of a few grades of fertilizer needed in some states to achieve more equitable distribution of potash in relation to nitrogen and superphosphate. The application form farmers use in obtaining fertilizer from local dealers has been simplified. Provision is also made for special measures whereby some fertilizers—new materials or of larger than usual quantity—may be directed into specific areas to encourage production of crops not given priority. Those that respond readily to the application of fertilizer, but which have not been customarily fertilized in the past, will be the most affected by this part of the order.

Counting Sheep

More sheep are shipped from Ketchum, Idaho, than from any other point in the United States, according to the Ketchum Chamber of Commerce. This year it is estimated that 90,000 animals will be sent out.

Turnips for Chickens

When turnip salad is fed in unlimited amounts, the chickens consume less mash and this, in turn, will cause the flock to slump in egg production. Not over four pounds of turnip salad should be fed to a flock of 100 birds in a day. Any feed that causes a decrease in the consumption of mash by the flock is likely to cause a slump in egg production.

Alcohol From Artichokes

Laboratory-scale fermentations of artichokes are being studied by Joseph E. Seagram and Sons of Louisville, Ky., as another source of fermentable sugars. Unlike grain, from which dextrose is obtained, artichokes contain inulin, a type of starch which, upon hydrolysis, yields fructose sugar. The enzyme necessary to break down inulin is inulase, whose presence in artichokes eliminates the necessity of adding any enzyme for conversion.

Sun Heats Home Through Thermopane During Daylight Hours; Fuel Bills Cut

CHICAGO.—Architects and engineers concerned with the construction of America's homes, have just learned something that the chicken-raiser has used to advantage for years—that rays of the sun can keep a building warm even in the dead of winter if there are enough windows to let them in.

A year's test of a "solar house"—so called because the sun's rays are actually brought into the home through use of wide expanses of glass—completed here by technical experts of Illinois Institute of Technology has proved that the sun's rays not only serve as an auxiliary heating unit in the house, but likewise, the rays eliminate necessity of artificial light during daylight hours. In addition, although not checked by scientific instruments, occupants reported improved health.

Basic features of the new architectural trend, viewed with interest by builders as an important post-war possibility, are overhanging eaves and the proper orientation of windows. These eaves shade the occupants from the direct rays of the sun during the warm months when Old Sol is directly overhead, but permit the low-hanging winter sun's rays to enter the farthest corner of the room.

The sun's rays, the institute report brought out, filtering through multiple-glazed windows—which sandwich a sealed-in, dehydrated air space between panes to form a type of glass known to engineers as thermopane—supplied enough heat, even in sub-zero temperatures, to make it unnecessary to use the regular heating plant during daylight hours. As a result of this use of the sun's rays, the fuel bills in the "solar house" studied were pared approximately one-third. The actual bills for the year totaled $120.55, whereas the fuel supplier's engineers had estimated that the cost of heating the house for the year would be at least $180.

As an example of how warm the house's occupants found "solar heating," the report cited a report of the temperature on the coldest day of the year, when outside readings ranged from 5 to 17 degrees below zero. Sun entering the living room automatically shut off the furnace at 8:30 a. m. An inside temperature of above 85 degrees made it necessary to open windows at intervals. Yet the furnace was off from 8:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Institute experts, who conducted the research in co-operation with Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company, checked a varied group of instruments daily during the 365-day period, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Duncan, of Homewood, Ill. This house, one of several similar homes designed by Architect George Fred Keck, a pioneer in modern solar design, was selected because it represents the "popular price" bracket of $10,000 or less.

In addition to the warmth brought into the Duncan home through the wide windows, increased light was also recorded.

Sun rays pour through multiple-glazed windows, heating room despite cold weather outside.

WOMAN COLONEL ENDS LONG NURSE CAREER

The longest period of service in the history of the Army Nurse corps was terminated recently, the war department announced, with the retirement of Lieut. Col. Lyda M. Keener, principal chief nurse at Walter Reed general hospital, Washington, D. C., who has completed 37 years and five months of duty. Colonel Keener was born in Greensburg, Pa., and was graduated from the McKeesport general hospital. She entered the corps in 1906.

The letter assigning her to her first station, San Francisco, Calif., was signed by Dita H. Kinney, first superintendent of the corps. The Army Nurse corps provides the finest career in the world, Colonel Keener believes. "There is no better opportunity to serve one's country and mankind. The satisfaction in caring for the sick and wounded, in aiding the recovery of mind as well as body, is given only to nurses," she says.

By NANCY PEPPER BUTTON BOX

THERE'S NO END TO THE FASCINATING TRICKS YOU CAN DO WITH BUTTONS. OF COURSE, EVERYBODY IS RAISING THE FAMILY BUTTON BOX TO STRING ASSORTED BUTTONS INTO NECKLACES AND BRACELETS. HERE ARE SOME BRIGHT IDEAS FROM THE TEEN AGE CROWD.

DOUBLE-DECKER—Want to trim up that old blouse or sweater? Fasten it with double buttons. Double buttons, chum, are large buttons, topped with smaller buttons in double-decker effect. You can work out some original combinations.

MISSING LINKS—When you need a pair of cuff links just raid the old button box again. Select four buttons of the same size and connect them in pairs with little pieces of tape.

EARRING REPLACEMENTS—Have you lost some earrings so that you are left with odd earrings that you can't wear? Just remove the tops and attach buttons to the earrings clips or screens. Plaster of

Minute Make-Ups

By GABRIELLE

The oily skin needs a lasting makeup. Cleanse the skin with soap and water. Rinse well. Press an ice cube on throat and face. Spray with mild cologne or astringent. Blot dry. Apply face powder. Press it into the skin. Brush off the surplus. Apply dry compact rouge. Brush the eyebrows until all trace of powder is gone. Use a touch of eyeshadow, blended with the fingertips.

Paris or liquid cement will do the job.

BUTTON BEANIE—Cover an old felt beanie with assorted buttons. Just sewn on helter skelter and willy-nilly. You get a costermonger effect that's really eye catching.

CLEAN SWEEP—If you have an old broom handle around cut it into narrow slices. Make holes through the center and trim with nail polish, paints or wood-burning set. Result—a set of sports buttons for your last year's cardigan.

HOLE HEARTED—While we're on the subject of BUTTONS, let's think about BUTTON HOLES, too. Cut out little hearts in felt and sew around your button holes with slits through the center so the button can go through. Or, cuter yet, cut out little lips and sew around your button holes. They will remind you to BUTTON UP YOUR LIPS when you're tempted to spread rumors.

UN-COMMON SCENTS

A ROSE MAY BE AS SWEET BY ANY OTHER NAME (SHAKE-SPEARE SAID SO, ANYWAY) BUT NOT BY ANY OTHER SMELL. IF YOU WANT TO BE AS FRAGRANT AS A ROSE TRY SOME OF THESE SCENTED TRICKS. YOU SURE ARE SWEET, HONEY!

POMANDER BALL—Scent up your whole closet by hanging a Pomander Ball in it. How do you make one? S'easy. Just take an orange and stick whole cloves all over it, just as close together as you can. Tie a ribbon around it and hang from a shelf or hanger. That's a trick your grandmother knew. Guess she was a Hep Chic, too!

NIPPY NECKLACE—String whole cloves into a necklace. Gives you a spicy tang.

GLAD PADS—The next time you make a dress or blouse, sprinkle sachet powder in your shoulder pads. The flavor lasts.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

To get the best service from your washables, several things must be considered.

Don't let the cottons and rayons get too dirty because then the required rubbing will wear them out. Sort your clothes into groups. Soak each lot of white clothes in cool water before washing. Then wash white things in hot suds—using plenty of soap. Suds are important, and if the water is foaming and frothing you can be sure your clothes are getting clean.

Use fresh suds on colored clothes—lukewarm water for protection. Rinse all clothes thoroughly in two or three waters.

What is the most welcome gift you can send to a man in the service? Well, surveys among service men themselves show that one of the favorite packages from home are cigarettes. And first choice among men in all the services is Camel, based on the actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are.—Adv.
