TAWAS CITY

TAWAS CITY WINS 3 GAMES FROM HALE

Hale at Whittemore and Tawas City at AuGres Next Friday

The Tawas City High School basketball teams journeyed to Hale, Friday evening and took three games from the west siders. The Tawas boys and girls enjoyed playing these games in the new gymnasium at Hale.

The Tawas City Reserves defeated the Hale Reserves 25 to 8. The Hale Reserves were leading at the half 6 to 8, but two substitutions were made, and the Hale boys were unable to add to their score.

The reserve team was greatly handicapped by the absence of two regular guards, Olen Herriman and Neil Thornton, and a forward, Clare Herriman.

The Tawas City Girls defeated the Hale Girls 25 to 3. The Tawas City regulars and reserves alternated at the end of each quarter. The Tawas City Reserves showed excellent ability in handling the ball. They did not make quite as many points as the regular players, but they did excellent defensive game. Incidentally, the Hale girls made their three points in the third quarter when the regular players were being engaged.

The Tawas City Varsity defeated Hale Varsity 53 to 22. Roy Landon and Willard Musolf, Tawas City forwards, collected 17 and 20 points respectively, while Vernon Hill, center, collected 10 points during the time in which he played. The Hale boys collected four points out of nine attempts at free throws, and the Tawas boys collected five points out of ten attempts.

Pearsall, Hale center, after having made three points for his team in the first three quarters, was compelled to leave the contest because of personal fouls. Shellenbarger was high score maker for the Hale boys. He shot four field goals and one free throw for a total of nine points.

The boys and girls of Tawas City wish to thank Superintendent Meeker, Coach Kesler, and the people of Hale for their fine sportsmanship and hospitality.

Latter-Benjamin

Miss Donna Latter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Latter of Reno township, and Roy Benjamin, son of James E. Benjamin of West Branch, were united in marriage at the Reno Baptist church, Sunday, January 30.

Miss Gladys Thompson was maid of honor and Frederick Latter acted as best man.

Rev. James Switzer, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony before a company of about 160.

"No Cause for Action" in Suit Against Keiser

Judge Herman Dehnke gave a decision last Monday of "No Cause for Action" in the $100,000 damage suit against H. J. Keiser as agent for the Sensation Magazines, Inc., brought by Mrs. Nellie Brooks of this city. The case against Sensation Magazines, Inc., was held open.

The suit grew out of a story written about Mrs. Brook's work in bringing about the arrest of Mrs. Winnifred Moshier in the Kenyon murder case which appeared in Real Detective Magazine published by Sensations Magazines, Inc. Mrs. Brooks claimed the story was false, and that its publication and its sale here had destroyed a business for her, and that the worry about it had impaired her health.

T. George Sternberg was attorney for Mrs. Brooks and Judge H. Read Smith represented Mr. Keiser.

Boy Scouts

Our Scout troop gathered a large amount of paper last Saturday, and sorted and bundled it last night at their weekly meeting. Their Scoutmaster puts the troop in charge of one of the members at each pickup and also at each sorting and bundling, and each member earns honor points for attendance and work performed. If work is performed at a regular meeting, the points are awarded double.

The points earned by the members are as follows: Don Gingerich 63; Allen Brown 54; Al Yanna 47; Francis Yanna 47; Dick Matchure 47; Don Britting 38; Dick Berube 36; Paul Rutterbush 36; Lloyd Hughes 31; Don Westcott 26; Peter Cuniff 19; Lewis Mark 18; Jim Rahl 14; Jim Lanski 8; Dwayne Leslie 6; Neil Libka 5.

Your attention is called to the news story in this paper about ex-Scout Nelson Thornton. He was kept afloat in deep water off Tarawa by the paper containers around his grenades.

THE PAPER PICK-UPS WILL BE CONTINUED UNTIL THE PAPER SHORTAGE IS OVER.

IN the SERVICE

John Hopkins of 339 Cheswood Road, Drexel Hill, Pennsylvania, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Polly Hopkins, to Kenny Smith, in the United States Coast Guard, of Tawas City, now stationed at Glynco, Georgia. The wedding date has been set for February 15, at St. Charles church, Philadelphia.

Word has been received that Pvt. Herbert Ziehl has arrived safely in England.

Owen Small, A. R. T. 2-C., stationed at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Patuxent River, Md., arrived home Wednesday to spend ten days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Small.

Leonard Barnes has been honorably discharged from the U. S. Army and is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes. His wife, who has been residing in Milsap, Texas, is here with him.

RECOGNITION RECEIVED FOR EFFICIENCY

Local Aircraft Warning Post Praised For Work

The following letter was received by L. H. Braddock in recognition of the efficient service of the Tawas City Aircraft Observation Post:

HEADQUARTERS CENTRAL AIR DEFENSE REGION FORT BRADY, MICH.

January 26, 1944

Mr. L. H. Braddock, Chief Observer, Tawas City, Michigan.

Dear Mr. Braddock, Now that the Aircraft Warning Service within the Central Air Defense Region has been ordered deactivated, it becomes my very pleasant and proud duty, on behalf of myself and the entire staff and United States Government, to express our thanks and sincere appreciation for the excellent service you have rendered as Chief Observer in the Aircraft Warning Service in the defense of your country. Your fine cooperation at all times with Army representatives and your conscientious devotion to duty in the discharge of your responsibilities have been a source of genuine gratification to this headquarters.

We feel that our mission has now been accomplished, and we are most grateful to you for the part that you and your loyal Observers have played in bringing this region to the high state of efficiency which it reached and maintained. We feel that you and your Observers can feel a keen sense of personal satisfaction in a job well done. I am confident that you will continue to lend your every exertion to America's War Effort.

In recognition of your patriotic service, I am pleased to present you with the Chief Observer Merit Award, which you will find enclosed herewith. I hope you will wear it with the same degree of pleasure I take in awarding it to you.

Please bring this letter of appreciation to the attention of your observers.

Gratefully yours, C. A. CASSADY, Lt. Col. Commanding. Chief Observer Braddock is now presenting Merit Badges to the observers in the local post who served more than 100 hours.

Iosco Reaches 45 Per Cent Mark In War Bond Sales

H. E. Friedman, chairman of the Iosco County War Finance Committee, announced today (Friday) that the people of this county had purchased 45 per cent of its $187,000 War Bond quota. The drive still has some time to go.

At the National Gypsum Co. plant, the employees averaged a $100.00 bond each during this drive.

Among the large purchasers of War Bonds during this drive are:

U. S. Gypsum Co., $20,000.00.
Michigan Bell Telephone Co., $3,000.00.
Iosco County, $5,000.00.

Wants Servicemen's And Women's Names For County Memorial

Residents of Iosco County are requested to send the names of their men and women who are in military service to Russell H. McKenzie, county clerk. At the recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors, the Building and Grounds Committee was authorized to erect a Memorial on the court house lawn.

It is the desire of the committee that the name of every man and woman who is in the service be listed on the honor roll which will be a part of the memorial.

In sending the names to the county clerk, print or type the first name, middle initial and last name of each person to go on the honor roll. Your assistance in this matter will be appreciated.

Rededicate Hemlock Church Friday, Feb. 11

A re-dedication of the Hemlock Road Baptist church will be held Friday evening, February 11.

A six o'clock chicken supper will be followed by a short program which will consist of songs, music, recitations and a brief message by the pastor. At this service the Service Flag will also be re-dedicated. Four new stars will be added.

A free will offering will be taken to go toward the building expenses. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Greenwood School to Dedicate Service Flag

Greenwood School will dedicate its new service flag on Friday afternoon, February 11, 1:15 o'clock. The service flag is a gift to the school by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Patten. They are presenting it in memory of their son, Staff Sgt. Willard Glenn Van Patten who attended Greenwood school. An honor roll of Greenwood boys in the service will also be placed in the school.

The dedication program is as follows: "The Spirit of the Flag," pageant by school children. Presentation—School Commissioner Russell Rollin. Benediction—Rev. Paul Dean.

IOSCO BOY IN FIRST WAVE AT TARAWA

Relates Experience to Correspondent on Transport

(The following news story was written by Staff Sgt. Richard J. Murphy, Jr., 107 E. Woodbine Ave., Chevy Chase, Maryland, a Marine Corps Combat correspondent, aboard a transport in the Pacific.)

The son of the publisher of the Tawas City (Michigan) Herald was wounded in battle for Tarawa and is now on his way to a rest camp.

Pfc. Nelson E. Thornton, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy N. Thornton of Tawas City, waded into shore with the first wave of Marines to hit Tarawa beaches November 20.

"The water was pretty deep" Pfc. Thornton explained, "I'm a rifle grenadier, though, and the paper containers on the grenades in my pack helped to keep me above water. We had to get out of the landing boat because of the heavy Japanese fire.

"Dodging sniper fire, we walked in the water beside the pier until we got on the beach, there a line was being formed and I went into it.

"We started a push across the island. Machine gun fire and mortars kept popping at us from a blockhouse near the landing strip. We went around it and kept on across."

Pfc. Thornton spent that night in a cocconut grove near the other side of the island. The next morning the Marines found they were trapped between two units of Japs.

"They were firing at us," Pfc. Thornton went on. "A lot of them were in the trees around us. A mortar shell got me. It landed between my foxhole and another one, wounding three of us. I got some shrapnel in my cheek and behind my ear. It didn't knock me out, and I didn't notice it until I could feel the blood. One of the Marines patched it up."

That afternoon Pfc. Thornton, with the three other wounded Marines, made a break for the first aid station. They had to cross the landing strip, which the Japs had well-covered with machine gun fire.

By dodging in and out of shell holes, Pfc. Thornton and one of the other Marines made it safely. The remaining two were hit by machine gun fire and had to be dragged out.

Pfc. Thornton's wounds were bandaged and he was brought aboard this ship.

A graduate of Tawas City High School in 1941, Pfc. Thornton has worked on his father's paper ever since he was "that high." His last job was operating a linotype machine.—U. S. Marine Corps.

Twentieth Century Club members and guests enjoyed an evening meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson.

The program on Peace and Post War Planning was led by Mrs. A. A. Bigelow, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Evans of East Tawas, who gave an interesting paper on "World Federation and World Peace." Mrs. Bigelow presented the questions and answers on "Why We are in this War," and brought out what must be done after the war and that we must not fail in leadership, for a lasting peace.

Mr. Wilkinson sang two numbers, "Recessional" by Kipling and "Deep River," by H. T. Burleigh. The program ended by singing two patriotic songs—"America, the Beautiful and Battle Cry of Freedom."

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends for the kindness extended to us in our bereavement. Also the Tawas Businessmen and the many friends for the beautiful flowers.

The Buch Family.

His Ideal

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former newspaper feature editor, has been inducted into the army and is nearing his completion of basic training at Fort Bragg, N. C. He has been classified as cook and in addition his failure to master some of the fundamentals of army training have resulted in considerable extra KP duty for him. He has also learned the finer points of "goldbricking" and "shooting the breeze." Hargrove has become a popular figure at the camp, and these duties have kept him away from a lecture series. As we pick up the story, his sergeant is assigning him once more to KP for this infraction. Hargrove is trying to explain. He speaks:

CHAPTER XIV

"Sergeant, for days I round up news from battery reporters. There is always too much or too little. When there is too little, I have to write what is needed. When there is too much, I have to choose which battery reporter is going to horse-whip me for leaving his copy out."

"The chaplain is right up the street," the sergeant said.

"Then I have to edit all the copy, delete all classified military intelligence and take out all nasty cracks at first sergeants. Then I have to write headlines for all the stories and place them in whatever space I can find for them. Then I must draw everything up into pretty little pages. This is tedious and nerve-racking work."

"The chaplain will give you a sympathetic ear," the sergeant said. "I will give you only KP. Does anything you are saying relate to what we're talking about—why you weren't in the mess hall yesterday afternoon?"

"I was getting around to that, sergeant. On the day before the paper is issued, I have to go into Fayetteville to keep a careful watch over the printers, to see that they don't put Third Regiment news on the Fourth Regiment page. If I am not there, they may even mix headlines and put church notices under 'Service Club Activities.' It is necessary that I be there."

The sergeant coughed. "I feel for you, Private Hargrove. I deeply sympathize. I wouldn't think of putting you on KP."

"You wouldn't?" I gasped eagerly.

"Don't interrupt," the sergeant barked. "As I was saying, I wouldn't think of putting you on KP—if you hadn't committed a breach of etiquette by failing to RSVP the invitation. You didn't tell us you weren't coming. Or why."

I was dozing peacefully at my typewriter the other morning when there came a knock on my elbow and a bright young voice shouted "Hey!" at me. I looked up into the impish, cheerful, and unquenchably mischievous face of the boss' daughter, Miss Sidney Winkel, age four.

"Let's be reasonable, Pvt. Mulvehill," I said; "As you know, I am working on Capt. Winkle's sympathies to get a furlough."

Miss Winkel was dressed like the Navy and looked entirely too energetic for such a drizzly morning.

"I'm to be the Valentine," she said, "and Johnny's going to take my picture and you're to take me up to the Service Club and carry Johnny's things for him and wait for him to get there so you'd better put on your jacket and cap and let's go."

"I'm going to have my picture taken with Spud Parker," she added. Spud Parker is the general's son and is considered quite an eligible bachelor by the younger set.

"There's Tom in the cafeteria," she said. "Let's go see Tom."

Thomas James Montgomery Mulvehill, Pfc., was apparently making his morning rounds in search of news. He was, at the moment, engaged in his daily research in the Service Club's toast and coffee.

"Hello, sis," he said. "Hello, McGee. Pull up a chair. McGee, get the lady a drink. Something tall and cool. Such as a chocolate milk. What's the deal, sis?"

"I'm to be the Valentine," she said, "and Johnny's going to take my picture and old Hargrove has to take care of Johnny's stuff until Johnny comes and I don't like him anyway because he makes faces and sticks out his tongue and says sticks and snails and puppy-dog tails that's what little girls are made of and he's not my boy friend anyway."

"No punctuation," I said. I wagged my ears and stuck out my tongue at her.

"The next time I come," she said, "I'm going to bring some soap and every time he sticks out his tongue I'm going to put soap on it because it isn't nice to stick out your tongue." She emphasized her statement by paralyzing my wrist with her fist and sticking her tongue out at me.

"Let's have no unnecessary vibrations, McGee," said the Lieutenthomas, looking up reproachfully over his glasses. "Coffee is five cents the cup." He beamed at her. She beamed back at him.

"I have seven boy friends," she said, raising one forefinger delicately and rubbing the other against it in a highly jeering gesture. "I have seven boy friends and you're not one of them and you're not anybody's boy friend." She hit me this time on the elbow and I made a horrible face at her.

"Myaah," I said. "Who wants to be your boy friend anyway?"

"I wish you wouldn't blow smoke," she said. "It makes me cough and it's not nice to smoke anyway. Old cigarettes!"

I wearily crushed my last cigarette in the ash tray. "Women, the eternal reformer," I sighed. "It wasn't like this in the Old Army."

Miss Sidney Winkel took off her sailor cap and arranged her big red hair ribbon. "You're a nasty old thing and you're not nice like Johnny and Tom and Lieutenant Meek and Captain Wilson and all my other boy friends," she said. After a pause she added, airily, "And Major Long and Captain Quillen, too."

"Myaah," I sighed, wrinkling my nose more violently.

"Oh there's Johnny," she suddenly cried, "and he's going to take my picture and—" She tripped off with a bewitching smile for Bushemi and a running line of babble.

"No punctuation," I said to Mulvehill.

"It's a woman's world, McGee," he said, reaching for another slice of toast.

"Get him away from me, Bushemi!" roared Private Thomas James Montgomery Mulvehill. "He's got that gleam in his eye. Get him away!"

"You're just being difficult, Lieutenthomas," I told him. "Just sit down and relax." The Lieutenthomas laid his enormous frame on the bunk and started slapping his knees in utter despair.

"What kind of deal are you trying to swindle this time?" he asked.

"Let's be reasonable, Private Mulvehill," I said, patting him reassuringly on the shoulder. "As you know, I am now working on Captain Winkel's sympathies to get a furlough sometime in February . . . the first half of February."

"I know what's coming," he screamed. "And I won't do it! I can't do it!"

"Now, as you know, furloughs are laden with little expenses—necessary little expenses. To help me along with the load, Sergeant Sher and Private Bushemi have already made philanthropic little loans. I have your name on my honor roll here, Lieutenthomas. What's the donation?"

The Mulvehill cringed and edged away. "What do you need—from me?"

"Well," I estimated, "I should say that ten dollars."

"Great gods and refugee children," he gasped. "Ten dollars he says yet! Why don't you ask me for my life's blood? Six dollars he owes me already and now he's asking—oh, I can't stand it! I can't stand it! Take him away!"

"My life's blood," he moaned. "Where's the six I lent you two months ago?"

"That was only five weeks ago," I reminded him gently, "and I've already paid two of that back. Three weeks ago I paid it back."

"Yeah," he protested, "but you borrowed it back the next day." He rose and paced the floor. "What are they doing to me? My life's blood they would draw from my veins? Thirty-six measly little dollars a month I make—and he wants ten dollars! Maybe I'm Winthrop Rockefeller I should lend out ten dollars a clip! Thirty-six dollars, and he wants half!"

"You see, Lieutenthomas, a sad and work-worn creature—an Alice sit-by-the-fire whose only hope for the future is in the faint glimmering hope of a furlough. Day after day, week in and week out, I have worked my frail fingers to the shoulder blade to make things pleasant for you and Bushemi and Bishop. I have patched your quarrels with the mess sergeant. I have saved you from the terrible wrath of provoked Rebels. I have sat here at night, sewing buttons on my blouse so that you wouldn't have to wear it hanging open on your merry jaunts to town. Money could not pay for the things I have done for you and Bushemi. And now this. Ten dollars between me and spiritual starvation—and no ten dollars. How sharper than a serpent's tooth!"

"Don't talk like that, Hargrove," he said, his voice cracking. "Put me down for ten."

There was a little note stuck in my typewriter when I came back from prowling for news. It looked like Private ("One-Shot") Bushemi's typing. "The stockholders of the Union of Hargrove's Creditors," it read, "will hold a business meeting this evening about seven o'clock in the latrine of Barracks No. 2, Headquarters Battery. Please be present or we will beat your head in."

It was the day before my furlough, so I got the general drift. The vultures who were contributors to the furlough would probably stand around frowning and figure out some sort of budget for my vacation. I could picture the blue-nosed demons slashing away at my enjoyment.

The meeting had an unexpectedly small attendance: Maury Sher, mess sergeant of Battery D of the Third and chairman of the ways and means committee of the Union; Private Bushemi, principal stockholder and president; and Private First Class Thomas James Montgomery Mulvehill, chaplain.

Private Mulvehill beamed. "Sergeant Hart sends his regrets. He has a heavy heavy in Lillington. He is with us in spirit, though."

"Come in, drip," said Bushemi.

Sergeant Sher got down to business. "I've got to hand it to you, son," he said. "Gone through this much of the month and still haven't tried to get any of your furlough money back from the chaplain! We're all proud of you."

"Shucks," I blushed. "'Tweren't nothin'. I was able to bum a cigarette here and there."

"McGee," said Mulvehill, clearing his throat, "you leave tomorrow for New York, where there are many snares to trap the unwary. Don't buy any gold watches in the park or any stolen furs anywhere. You know, I presume, about buying the Brooklyn Bridge."

"Now, we don't have any restrictions about the way you use your money," said Bushemi. "Only last time you spent too much money on taxicabs. You'll have to use the buses and subway more this trip. All the shows you want to see, all the books you can buy—but taxicabs only for very special dates."

"Little man," she said, "will you please ask the waiter for more water?"

"Somebody has been exaggerating this taxicab—" I began.

"Taxicabs," Sher broke in, "only for very special dates. You may go to the opera once if you sit downstairs and twice if you sit in the Familie Circle. You are not to buy more than six theater tickets. In uniform, you can see all the movies you want for two bits each."

"And be conservative in tipping the waiters," said Mulvehill, tapping his glasses on the window sill. "Very conservative. Short-change them, if necessary."

"Tell him about the budget," said Bushemi, with unnecessary impatience.

"As the matter stands on the furlough deal," said Sher, "you owe Bushemi 22 dollars, me 10, Mulvehill 10, Hart 10. That's 52 dollars. Counting the ten you'll wire Bushemi for before the week's over, it's 62. With what money we have taken from you and given to the chaplain during the past few weeks, you should make out all right."

"Must I be treated as a child?" I asked.

"When you get back broke, McGee," said Mulvehill, "you are not to eat breakfast at the Service Club. You are not to take out any post exchange books. You will get your cigarettes from Sergeant Sher, who will ration them out to you as per budget."

Sergeant Sher, Private Bushemi, and the other members of the Union of Hargrove's Creditors would have been quite pleased at the sight. Instead of spending their money lavishly on taxicab sightseeing trips and expensive shows, I was dining quietly in a conservative grillroom with the Redhead. We weren't even discussing ways to spend their hard-earned money.

"Little man," she said, "will you please ask the waiter for more water?"

"I beg your pardon," he said, rather unctuously. "There is a fifteen million gallon shortage in water at this very instant. On the other hand, madame, all supply ships to Great Britain use Scotch whisky as ballast for the return trip. Perhaps madame would like a glass of Scotch whisky?"

The Redhead lifted an eyebrow. "I wonder," she said, "what they use in the finger bowls here—rubbing alcohol? I do not want Scotch whisky. I want water."

"It is as madame wishes," the waiter said, bowing from the knees. He walked away and returned again to lean against a post. The Redhead drummed her fingers on the tablecloth.

"Don't be afraid of him," said the Redhead. "Call his bluff."

Fashion Favors Picturesque All-White, Long-Skirt Formal

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FORMAL evening styles and dance gowns to wear throughout the midwinter social season dramatize anew the eternal loveliness and feminine flattery of pure white. To be sure there are pastels here and there and a few blacks for spice, but in general the trend is toward an all-whiteness that seems to reflect the season's sparkling snowy landscape.

The styling of these airy-fairy frocks is romantic and picturesque with swirling skirts below tiny waistlines or slender sheathlike types of siren grace. Bodices, draped or describing subtly molded lines, accent the lithesome grace of youthful figures, and important above all else is the overwhelming preference shown for the long-skirted gowns, very décolleté and sophisticated.

Fabrics favored are the fine rayon sheers which are priorities-free up to eight yards around a hemline, the dainty white rayon nets, marquisesettes, chiffons and laces which especially endear themselves to the heart of the party girl, because their rayon-whiteness is permanent, no matter how many trips to the dry cleaner a frock may make. Less full-skirted styles inclining more toward the sheath silhouette are made in striking white rayon satin, rustling rayon taffeta or sleek rayon jersey.

Decorative silver embroidery is used effectively for trimming many of the new formals, and for variation there are gowns which use silver lace to border the hemline and to outline the décolletage. A favorite bodice treatment in the sheer rayon net and marquisesette gowns uses wide or narrow shoulder straps, heavily encrusted with sequin, crystal or brilliant embroidery, on a draped or shirred camisole bodice, as instanced in the brilliantly embroidered shoulder straps and midriff section applied to the entrancing frock shown to the right in the illustration. The off-shoulder draping of this snowy white rayon chiffon gown continues the becoming line of the softly gathered bodice.

Other gowns derive their quota of fashionable glitter from fine rayon-and-silver lame fabrics used to fashion sleek-lined bodices above full white skirts. A queen-of-diamonds gown of this type as pictured to the left is most charming for midwinter parties. Here the sparkle of harlequin-patterned rayon and silver lame teams with the pure white of fine rayon net. The gracefully draped top of the haltered basque is complemented by new-style folded arm cuffs to create an interesting off-shoulder line.

Fur or feathers appear here and there to add keen interest to the all-white vogue. White ostrich is dramatic when drifting in long plumes with cleverly planned casual effect over the full skirt of a stately gown in crisp white marquisette as shown centered in the trio. Silver bullion vine and leaf embroidery complements the soft masses of ostrich. The narrow shoulder straps and front bow of the shirred bodice repeat the silver contrast note.

Sophisticated gowns in pure white with off-shoulder décolleté are beloved by debutantes this season. Classically molded sheath gowns in exquisite white rayon satin, jersey, or lovely white rayon lace often favor deep cut sweetheart necklines banded with white sequin or glittering crystal embroidery. Frothy white capes of the same fabric as the gown may be worn over the low-cut necklines.

Gay Winter Wear

You can make fun out of snow shoveling if you are dressed for it as charmingly as is the outdoor enthusiast pictured. Her sweater is of white and red wool in cable stitch with a ruffled collar and a drawing waistline. The skirt is red jersey with pockets outlined in green braid. The knitted cap keeps the ears warm and sends a warm glow straight to the heart of admiring onlookers.

Lingerie Dickey's Are Exquisitely Sheer

It's important news that exquisitely sheer dickeys made of the finest of organdies and laces lavished with beautiful needlework will be worn with the new spring suits. These are fashioned by American designers in that fine French technique that every woman covets and adores. There's that indefinable something about these new vestees and dickeys that gives to one's suit "class" and distinction. The initial displays of these lovely lace embroidery and organdie fancies are a treat to the eye. You know the moment you see them where a goodly part of your clothes budget will be spent. One very wearable model has a low-cut square neckline with a wide ruffle that is hand-tucked instead of gathered, that flares about the square neck in billowy whiteness. There is a fill-in at the low-cut front of daintiest hand embroidery. Another dickey in this collection is a combination of lace ruffles with a yoke inset of finest hand embroidered organdie, the handwork being of that type that bespeaks the art of expert needlewomen.

Animal Head Lapel Gadgets

A series of wee animal heads made of fur are among the lapel gadgets that have caught the fancy of youth this season. One of the most interesting is in black fur in the shape of a cocker spaniel's head with bright felt strips dangling from about its throat. Exotic little pasted feather birds also make colorful lapel ornaments.

JESUS FEEDS THE MULTITUDES

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:35-44; 8:1-9.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.—John 6:35.

Hungry! That word describes the crying need of the greater part of the world's population. Men who have vaunted themselves because of their ability and ingenuity have brought the nations of the earth into such awful confusion that even God's abundant provision cannot reach the needy ones.

God is concerned about man's physical need just as truly as He is about spiritual needs. This story brings Christianity into action on a level that all will appreciate—the need of food for the body. It works there as it does everywhere.

The supply of every need of man is God. "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4:19). Countless Christians have found it to be true that we may trust God—completely—and for everything.

The stories of the feeding of the two groups of people show the wrong and the right attitude toward man's need. In two approaches to the problem the disciples were wrong. Then Christ showed them the right way.

I. They Can Take Care of Their Own Need (6:35, 36).

"Send them away"—that was the plea of the disciples when the multitude of those who had followed Him became hungry. The people were there because they were interested in Christ. They had come in a hurry (v. 33) and had not brought food. The problem was on the disciples' hands, and they sought the easiest way out. Let them shift for themselves—"Send them away."

The church has followed their example in dealing with the social problems of the people down through the years. The result is that being denied fellowship, comfort, and help by a church which was too busy building up a vast organization or a beautiful order of worship, the common people have responded to the appeal of political leaders who have provided a substitute for what the church should have given them.

When Jesus put upon them the direct responsibility to feed the people, the disciples changed their "slogan" and said:

II. We Should Like to Help, but We Cannot (6:37).

Reckoning hastily on what a small boy had brought for his lunch (trust an alert boy to be ready!), the disciples soon demonstrated that it was impossible to feed this great throng. (See similar reasoning in Mark 8:4).

Logic is such a devastating thing when it operates apart from faith in God. They were absolutely right in their reasoning and in their calculations, but they had forgotten the one factor that really counted. Jesus was there, and Jesus is God, and God is omnipotent.

As we face the need of the world now and after the war, we wonder how the peoples of other lands can be fed without depriving our own land of what it needs. It is a great problem, and we ought to pray for those who must work with it.

But let us not forget that all that we have comes from God, and that He is able to do "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think" (Eph. 3:20). The Christ who multiplied the loaves and fishes is our Living Lord today, and ready and able to do it again.

III. Jesus Said, "I Have Compassion on the Multitude" (6:38-44; 8:1-9).

He started right. Instead of shutting His heart against the tender desire to help, He let His love for the people control. Then instead of magnifying the difficulties, He multiplied the provisions. And lo, there was enough for all, and to spare.

"He commanded . . . and they did all eat" (vv. 39, 42). When God speaks, all the limitations of the finite disappear, and the needs of men are fully met—with "twelve baskets full of fragments" left over!

Note the orderly manner in which our Lord met this situation. Five thousand men, with women and children to swell the throng, were seated on the grass. Jesus took the loaves and fishes and blessed them. You who forget to return thanks at the table, notice that quiet and meaningful act. Then He broke the loaves and divided the fishes. No doubt they were multiplied as the disciples passed them out to the people.

God is able to do that very thing even in our day. Perhaps not in just the same manner, but surely those who serve Him have marveled as they have seen that "little is much when God is in it." Let those who labor in difficult places with limited resources take heart—and trust God.

Note the care with which the fragments were collected for future use. It took this war to teach America how shamefully wasteful it has been.

ON THE HOME FRONT
with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS horse head is a copy of an Early American hobbyhorse. It is full of dash and spirit yet it is so simple that the original craftsman probably cut it out with an ordinary hand saw and a pocket knife.

A toddler bike is more up-to-date than a hobbyhorse because we know now that it is better for tiny tots to learn to use their legs than to get a sense of motion by rocking. The bike is easy to make of scraps of lumber; or when you have cut out the head and stenciled it on a broomstick as shown at the upper left.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared an actual size pattern (No. 257) for this authentic Early American hobbyhorse head and also all the parts of the toddler bike. The pattern includes stencil designs for painting, a color guide, and complete directions. Pattern is 15 cents postpaid. Address:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A Wisconsin truck driver recently received a tribute from the Office of the Rubber Director because he risked his life to save the tires on the trailer of a tractor-trailer unit he was driving. The trailer caught fire, but the driver jacked it up and removed the tires while it was ablaze.

The far-reaching influence of the rubber situation will be appreciated when it is known that close to 40% of the motor vehicles ever made in this country were still in service in December, 1941. More than half of them were owned by families with incomes of less than $30 a week.

Automatic Oxygen Masks Cut Worry, Guesswork

Unlike all other oxygen masks which must be regulated by the wearer, the latest type, now being made for United States military airmen, works automatically and eliminates a great deal of worry and guesswork, says Collier's.

At all altitudes up to 38,000 feet, it supplies the flier with the proper mixture of air and oxygen, the flow of both being regulated by valves which, in turn, are controlled by atmospheric pressure.

Importance of Steel

Steel's effect upon life today is so important that we could give up most other metals—including gold—with less disturbance to civilization. Today's steels are the strongest, toughest, hardest, yet most ductile, elastic and obedient of all metals used by mankind.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

A pelorus, used by the Navy, is a device which fits over the surface of a compass to enable the operator to take bearings on distant objects. It has split hair sights, has been in use for many years . . . and costs approximately $125.

These instruments are essential equipment to every American ship which comes out of the shipyards. With the scores of ships now being completed each month, we need many of these instruments. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will help pay for them. Invest at least ten percent of your income every payday in these interest bearing Government securities.

What is a Mammal

One of the commonest popular errors of zoology is the notion that the whale is some sort of fish. It is not; it is a mammal which went to sea. The whale is warm-blooded, has a well-developed brain, and in all other respects shows a far higher organization than any of the fishes. Its young are born alive, and are suckled and cared for by the mother as with land mammals.

Navy Has Foot Trouble

Even the navy has its foot trouble. The United States Naval Reserve corps has decided that among the specialists eligible for appointment are chiropodists, or podiatrists. Action of the navy in appointing chiropodists follows the report of the Council of the American Medical Association that "chiropody is a department of the healing service and it has its basis in scientific and demonstrated knowledge and satisfies a gap that general medicine has failed to fill."

Battle Courage

Capt. De Foney, U.S.N.

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with The American Magazine.)

One of the first things to understand about military courage is that you cannot apply a yardstick to it in advance of action. Human fortitude cannot be measured like the tensile strength of a bar of steel. Only battle can write the answers. Often as not, a lion turns out to be a lamb in combat, or a lamb a lion.

For several months I served on one of the biggest aircraft carriers in the Pacific. On this ship was a downy-faced 18-year-old kid whom we called Babe. He was a timid, introspective sort of boy who read books in his bunk at night, stammered when you spoke to him, and, while he was a member of a 50-caliber gun crew, he appeared to be just about everything a fighting man shouldn't be.

Then, one azure morning, we were attacked by enemy dive-bombers. Down they came, peeling off one by one and lancing straight at the carrier. We had fighters up, and our heavy anti-aircraft slammed at the Japs like a hundred doors, but the kids back of the long file of 50-calibers just waited. During long, desperate seconds they simply had to stand and take it.

I was watching Babe anxiously. He looked sick with fear. I wouldn't have been surprised to see him collapse at his post.

But he didn't collapse. As the bombers screamed into range and the 50-calibers blazed into action, the scared kid suddenly became a man—a cool, efficient, and entirely deadly man. He never faltered for an instant in the performance of his duties.

Wartime Emotions.

When the attack was beaten off, Babe was transformed. His face was flushed, his eyes bright, and he danced up and down on deck in a kind of unholy ecstasy. "We got one of 'em," he shouted jubilantly.

That illustrates a point which many noncombatants do not understand about war. It was largely discipline and training, of course, which enabled Babe and his comrades to stand fast during the terrible seconds when the Japs dived straight at them, but, once they were able to strike back, they were immensely strengthened by an emotion which old-time writers used to refer to as "the fierce joy of battle."

There comes a time, however, when the mental and nervous fatigue which results from constant risk-taking can, if continued long enough, sap the fortitude of the bravest.

The case of Johnny Allen was like that. Razor-keen, spunky, a blue-eyed kid with a triangle of ginger hair on his forehead, Johnny had everything a fighter pilot needs. There wasn't anything in the air he was afraid of, and on the ground he was invariably good-natured, happy-go-lucky, always up to some amusing deviltry.

After his arrival in the Solomons, Johnny went on hazardous operational missions day after day. Often he would be in combat two or three times in 24 hours.

After a few weeks of this, Johnny's personality underwent a marked change. In an airplane he seemed just as daring as ever, but he stopped enjoying life. Instead of horsing around with fellow pilots after a flight he would go off in a corner and read. He grouched a lot. One night he flew into a rage and took a poke at his best friend merely because he had scattered some equipment on his cot.

Rest Cure.

The squadron's flight surgeon had a quiet talk with Johnny. He broke down and bawled in the middle of it. The flight surgeon knew the symptoms. What really ailed Johnny was fatigue. He wouldn't admit it even to himself, but his nerve was gone. The surgeon sent him back to a hospital for rest, followed by leave.

When he returned to the squadron he was himself again, as brave and cheerful as ever, but if the doctor had not acted promptly Johnny might have suffered a nervous crack-up which would have cost his life, and possibly those of some of the men who flew with him.

Modern Improvements.

In the amphibious warfare of the Pacific, one of the chief dangers to a flier is that of running out of gasoline and being forced down at sea or over jungle, and, in the first months after Pearl Harbor, many a kid lay awake nights thinking about these hazards. Today they worry less about them. They have been taught how to survive in the jungle, and they know that they have 7 out of 10 chances of being rescued if they are forced down at sea in the vicinity of the group of islands where fighting is now going on.

Buoys Visible for Three Miles; Make Night Sea Landings Safe

As steady as a lamp post is the buoy pictured at right. Its green and blue lights make it visible for three miles. A rubber floating device supports the lighting mechanism.

CAN BE LIGHTED FROM AIRPLANE

Immune to Shock; Looks Steady In Rough Sea; Will Flash For 500 Hours.

AKRON, OHIO.—An ingenious buoy, for night airplane landings at sea, is a vital wartime product which will have far-reaching results in the advancement of America's aviation after the war.

Night landings at seadromes, once a hazardous undertaking, have become a safe and routine operation as the result of the buoy, developed by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. As steady as lamp posts and visible more than three miles away and from 4,000 feet high, the buoys are now being used by the navies of the Allied nations to mark the landing lanes for seaplanes which otherwise would be limited to daytime flying.

"The rubber buoy will enable post-war passenger and freight planes to land with safety at seadromes which previously permitted only daytime operation," said Chairman John W. Thomas of Firestone. "Small inland lakes and rivers will provide safe landing places at all hours. Raw material or finished products will be taken by air freighters to and from locations—such as isolated mining operations which have been inaccessible to other forms of air transportation."

Also Daytime Marker.

When not used for marking night landing lanes, the buoy may be used as a daytime marker or a mooring buoy.

The lights on the buoys may be operated manually or by radio. Through the use of a secret frequency the lights may be turned on from the plane by the pilot himself.

An outstanding advantage over seadrome markers previously used is that the Firestone buoy is immune to shock. Wings or pontoons of seaplanes may strike the buoy without damage to either.

Although the buoy might be tossing in a rough sea, it looks stationary in a rough sea, it looks stationary to the incoming pilot. It flexes under wave action so that the center of buoyancy is altered and the light unit remains practically stationary.

This mechanism consists of a light, standard and battery container. The light is capable of operating 200 hours continuously without battery replacement, and 500 hours when the flashing type is used.

Remove War Paint From Planes to Add to Speed

WASHINGTON.—The war department has ordered removal of war paint from virtually all army air force planes to lighten them and to add to their speed. Combat commanders recommended the action, the announcement said. Only specialized planes in use overseas will retain camouflage paint. In the United States nearly all planes will come off the assembly lines with natural metal color.

Psychiatrist Says Infants Need Fondling

Infant care has become "a highly mechanical procedure" with attention focused on formulas and cleanliness, while the baby's mental functioning is completely ignored, Dr. Margaret A. Ribble asserts in "The Rights of Infants," a study of hundreds of infants and their parents just published by the Columbia University Press.

Declaring that "our highly impersonal civilization has insidiously damaged woman's instinctual nature and has blinded her to one of her most natural rights," Dr. Ribble, a practicing psychiatrist and a research fellow for the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, warns that the natural impulses of an infant cannot be summarily dammed up or snuffed out when their expression becomes inconvenient for adults.

Food and general hygiene for babies have been overemphasized by modern science, to the complete exclusion of emotional and social reactions, with the result that the child is actually thwarted in his mental development, Dr. Ribble charges. Poor relationship with the parents leads to reactions in the infant which tend to become the basis of adult personality disorders, she holds.

Infants Need 'Mothering.'

What infants need is more of the old-fashioned "mothering," Dr. Ribble declares, adding that the rocking chair and the cradle should never have been discarded from the nursery. "Mothering includes the whole gamut of small acts by means of which an emotionally healthy mother consistently shows her love for her child, thus instinctively stimulating his psychic development.

"Obviously, feeding, bathing and all the details of physical care come in, but in addition to these duties, which can easily become routine and perfunctory, we mean all of the small evidences of tender feeling—

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

What things should a child first be taught about good table manners?

Answer—A child should be taught to sit comfortably at the table. He should sit in the middle of his chair with his feet away from the chair rungs.

He should be required to sit erect, not to lean over his plate nor on his elbows. He should not be permitted to toy with the silverware or napkins—nor to touch the bread unless to eat.

He can be taught the correct use of the napkin as soon as he graduates from the bib. From the very first you may teach him the correct use of silverware—and its position on the table.

fondling, caressing, rocking, and singing or speaking to the baby. These activities have a deep significance."

Separation of a mother and baby is obviously damaging to the infant's mental security, Dr. Ribble says, commenting that many mothers plan to go back to work in the third month. "The baby's fundamental breathing, feeling, and eating functions are well under control, but the more subtle and delicate adjustments between the emotional and perceptive life are just beginning."

JAP, NAZI MATERIAL YIELDS BATTLE SECRETS

Captured enemy signal communications equipment, gleaned from world battle fronts, is being turned against its former owners through expert study that reveals secrets of Nazi and Japanese production techniques and psychology, the war department revealed.

In the past year, the enemy equipment identification service of the signal corps, army service forces, has identified, cataloged and studied more than 10,000 pieces of enemy signal material.

The identification service has found, for example, that German design was frozen five years ago. Although the freezing made for speed in production, obtained further through interchangeability of parts, it has boomeranged—the Nazis are unable to keep pace, at least in this line, with the rapid-fire technical developments of the United Nations. Basically, the German equipment is sound, but often too bulky for completely efficient field service.

German psychology is clearly revealed in the equipment handbook furnished each Nazi soldier. Given minute instructions about each piece of equipment, nothing is left to the German's imagination. He can't make many mistakes if he follows the instructions, but at the same time he is not likely to be able to adapt himself or his equipment to fluid situations.

The majority of Japanese radio sets are handmade of inferior materials—much of the materials having been purchased on U. S. distress markets during the depression. The Japanese signal equipment is generally small and can be carried into jungle action, but as one returning officer remarked: "If the stuff won't work in battle—and often it doesn't—it doesn't matter if it's smaller and easier to handle than ours."

The identification service trains other signal corps troops in the utilization of captured equipment.

Deer and Antelope Don't Play, So We Can Get Enough Meat for the U. S. A.

Home on the western range in 1943 was a long way from being the idyllic place made famous by the popular song, it was disclosed recently in the annual report of the grazing service of the department of the interior.

Need for vastly increased quantities of red meat for America's armed forces overseas, as well as men and women war workers on the home front, has brought radical changes to the public range, the report states. Disillusioning enough, there are on the range today very few, if any, deer and antelope at "play" or otherwise. They've voluntarily departed, or been chased away so that beef cattle can get more forage. In fact, even the number of range sheep has been reduced to make way for additional cattle, while thousands of horses have been shipped from the range country for the same reason.

Through the cooperation of 22,000 ranchers in 10 western states with the grazing service, an increase of 80,000,000 pounds of red meat moved out of 58 grazing districts in the fiscal year 1943, as compared with 1942, the report shows.

But "home on the range" definitely isn't quiet any more. Not since the military began to use them as aerial gunnery practice areas. Lately, too, access roads have come to the grazing lands. Resources of the lands in the form of strategic minerals and other raw material are being tapped by access roads in order that production be increased and that minerals which were formerly imported be mined at home.

But here's the low-down on the range 1943-style right from the pages of the report:

"Numbers of sheep from grazing district ranges have been reduced. The forage which they formerly used has been devoted to other livestock under 1,650 war emergency licenses, for short seasons, in favor of 270,000 head of livestock. This revised use of the range saved limited supplies of cultivated feed on many western ranches. There is an increase of 57,000 head in numbers of cattle on the range over last year, bringing the total to 11,000,000. This will help maintain production.

"Room on the range for extra cattle is provided by planned marketing of surplus horses. Since the introduction of the automobile and tractor, many horses have been abandoned by their owners and left to themselves on the open parts of the range. These horses are being gathered and sold as farm work stock in other areas and those not suited for work are sold to processing plants for their meat, hides, and by-products. Fifty thousand horses have been shipped from the range country."

PEAKING OF SPORTS

By Bob McShane
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DESPITE shortages of equipment, caddies and traveling equipment, golf play in 1943 was only 28 per cent below that of pre-Pearl Harbor 1941.

The executive committee of the United States Golf association revealed recently that membership in the association dropped from 758 clubs a year ago to 703, but that 27 other clubs joined the public links division.

Golf in general can take a bow for its showing during the past year. Certain groups, apprehensive about the future, had voted to curtail activities almost to the vanishing point. Immediately after the declaration of war there may have been reasons for such a drastic step, but the time for that is removed. It is distinctly not to their credit that they have made no attempt to resume at least a part of their former programs.

The drawing power of golf is evidenced by the fact that 483 reporting clubs raised $174,408 during 1943 for war charities with club tournaments and sold $8,548,920 in war bonds. Bob Hope and Bing Crosby, golfing-radio artists, were given special recognition for their help.

Certainly it is impossible for golf to carry on all of its former activities. A large number of the top flight professional stars are in service. But the same is true of baseball, professional football and all other sports. They haven't thrived in the sponge. Neither should golf.

The Future of Outdoor Sports

A few short weeks ago one of the nation's leading sportsmen voiced the opinion that Americans may be expected to spend $3,644,000,000 a year for recreation within five years of the war's end.

This figure, based on a national income of $135,000,000,000 which economists have agreed will maintain our national economy, is more than twice that spent for recreation in 1935 and 1936.

This huge amount of money—representing 3.3 per cent of all consumer expenditures—will be spent for all forms of recreation. It is obvious that hunting and fishing loom large in plans for future sports activities. And it is just as obvious that many localities have given too little thought to the future.

Sportsmen's groups in Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin—in fact, in almost all states where fish and game are comparatively abundant—have done much to guarantee good fishing and hunting for the future. They have cooperated with conservation groups, governmental and private, and have done whatever possible to assure good hunting and fishing for fellow sportsmen in time to come.

Cooperation

Several states have done a good job in conservation matters. They should and can do better. Any sportsmen's club worthy of the name is willing to cooperate wholeheartedly in any kind of venture aimed at furthering the cause of hunting or fishing. Politics have no place in conservation but, sadly enough, few states are simon-pure in this regard.

Theorists have attempted to explain that it is impossible for a lake to become "fished out." Their reasons are varied and interesting. But outdoor men in almost every section of the country can demonstrate otherwise. From their own experience the veterans can prove the difference between "then and now."

The same is true of wild game in almost all forms. In certain hunting areas the unfortunate individual who fails to bag a deer, for instance, need only lay his money on the line and a local poacher will fill his needs.

Many newcomers will be included among postwar fishermen and hunters. Millions of servicemen have learned to live out of doors and, despite the horrors of war, a large percentage of them have learned more about nature than they would have during peacetime. When they return they will give more attention to activities which take them outdoors. That means hunting and fishing, camping, hiking and canoeing.

For the most part, state conservation groups will do everything possible to take care of existing natural resources, but those official units need the active cooperation of every man interested in wild life.

True cooperation can come only with an increased appreciation for our resources and less wholesale spoiling of them.

FREE SPEECH HOLDS US TOGETHER

THROUGHOUT our more than 150 years as a nation we Americans have constituted an ever-growing family. Not always a happy family but always with a family spirit that would brook no outside interference in our inner family quarrels. We fight among ourselves, get into each other's hair, kick each other on the shins, until a third party attempts to step into the picture on the side of either contending faction, when, as a family, we forget our petty disagreements and unidely turn on the intruder.

The keystone in our structure of government is our right of free speech. With that right we lambast, to our heart's content, the acts of those we have selected to govern us. We divide into family factions of those who approve and those who disapprove. We exercise our family right of criticism and our differences are represented by parties between which we divide. Our arguments and fights are a family privilege. They began when the nation began. They will continue so long as our Bill of Rights continues.

So long as these internal arguments and lambasting criticisms represent what each faction believes to be for the best interest of the family as a whole, the family will continue to live and prosper. When either major faction forgets the interests of the whole and centers on the advancement of a minority in the family, when the interests of the farmer, or the worker, or the representatives of wealth, or any other minor faction of the family, is promoted at the expense of the family as a whole, the family will disintegrate and die.

It was such disintegration caused by the promotion of the interests of minority factions at the expense of the whole that so weakened France and caused the French family to fall an easy prey to the Germans. The French family has not yet united against the common enemy. In the face of peril to the whole it insists on continuing its family quarrels. Each faction of the family persists in putting its petty interests above the interests of the whole. Should that continue it will mean the end of the French family.

Should the same thing happen in America, should any one, or more, of the minority factions of the family persist in securing advantages that would prove detrimental to the family as a whole, the American family will disintegrate and die. We can continue to fight among ourselves over ways and means of promoting the common good but, if we are to live, we cannot promote the selfish interests of minorities in the American family at the expense of the whole.

STOP SPENDING LEAKS RIGHT AWAY

ALONG IN 1917 and '18 we wailed at the terrific cost of war and wondered how we could pay the war bills. We sent up quite a howl about waste and after the fighting was over congress investigated. That investigation demonstrated that, to some extent, our howls had been justified. There had been waste, inexcusable waste.

World War I, from the time we entered it until June 30, 1921, 2½ years after the fighting ceased, cost us the now seemingly insignificant sum of $25,729,000,000. That, in reality, was but a bit of loose change.

In the present conflict we are spending real folding money. We have been engaged in it for about two years, and have actually spent, up to August 1 of 1943, the enormous sum of $110,853,000,000, with an additional 9½ billion paid out by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which we also pay. To all of that congress has added appropriations of well over 200 billion more that is now in the hands of the spending agencies.

In the expenditure of such vast sums, there is bound to be some waste. It would be well to find the leaks now, and stop them, rather than wait until it is all over, as in World War I. Waiting until it is all over, a 10 per cent leak would mean a loss of a sum equal to the increased taxes the treasury asked. It would take less effort to find and stop the leaks than to induce John Q. Public to dig down into his pockets for another 10 or more billions of taxes. It would also be more appreciated by the voters at the elections of 1944. That was an inducement to congress.

BUYING WAR BONDS demonstrates our faith in the future of America.

WAR CONDITIONS have stopped much of the winter migrations of the Pas and Mas of the northern states farms to favorite vacation spots in the South and West. The armed services or war industries have taken the Johns and Wills of the farms, and the Pas, regardless of the hard labor of the summer and fall, must keep the farm fires burning and the livestock fed through the winter months. Willingly they lay their vacations on the nation's altar of sacrifice that the Hun and the Jap may be defeated.

Small Soybean Mills Increase in Midwest

Local Plants Save Long Freight Haul

Small soybean processing mills, big enough to handle the beans grown within a radius of five to ten miles, are being built in many parts of the Middle West. Many are owned by farmer-cooperatives.

In Iowa a recent survey showed that mills are being constructed in 16 communities with several more in the planning stage. Some will be operated in conjunction with country elevators, others as independent enterprises. Eight of these sixteen will be cooperatively owned.

A new solvent process, simple, safe and cheap, has been developed by Dr. O. R. Sweeney, Iowa State college chemist, which he says is well suited to small processing plants. The solvent method now in use is dangerously explosive, so only large factories that can employ the most skilled operators now use it. The hydraulic press method, used by most plants, requires heavy capital outlay.

Small Mills Can Succeed.

But the small local mills, extracting oil by the new process and employing the neighboring farmers during the off-season in the fall and winter, can compete with the big mills by their lower costs, and saving in haulage. Another advantage during this war period when feed is scarce is that farmers can get soybean meal easily from their local mill. As it is now, many stock raisers find it difficult to get back even the meal from their own beans because of freight congestion. It is reported that soybeans from the northern states are sent to cottonseed plants in the south, or other distant points, from which it is difficult to get any meal back.

Postwar prospects for soybean products are giving rise to much anxious debate. Such questions as "What will happen to soybean acreage, now reaching nearly 12 million acres, after the war? How will trade with Manchuria, a surplus soybean growing area, affect the price in the U. S.? How will soyoil be able to compete with cheap palm oil and coconut oil from the East Indies and the Philippines? Will there be too many little and big mills built in the U. S. to handle the reduced volume?" These questions are bothering both soybean growers and mill operators.

Different Opinions.

Edward J. Dies, president of the National Soybean Processors association, Chicago, is quoted as saying that the big processors can operate more economically, and the little fellows will be squeezed out when the going gets tough. But down in the country, there are different opinions.

W. E. Simonson and his family have a country soybean processing mill at Quimby, Iowa, where they grind and make 30 to 40 tons of soybean oilmeal and 10,000 pounds of oil a day. Ever since 1937 the mill has made a profit. Farmers come with their beans and take back the pressed-out bean meal. The oil is shipped to the big terminal refineries.

Simonson admits that too many small mills may be built—just as creameries were overbuilt a few years ago.

"But," he added, "the small mills that survive will be able to outlast the big outfits. Why? Because our advantage is in saving freight, in lower buying and selling costs, in lower taxes, in lower labor costs. As the price of oil goes down, these savings will become more important, not less."

Kaffir grain or milo is another energy feed belonging to the sorghum family which can be used to replace either corn or barley in the dairy ration. Kaffir grain contains more fat than barley and more protein than corn.

Buckwheat can be used to a limited extent. Although it is high in fiber and somewhat unpalatable to dairy cattle it could be used up to 20 per cent of the ration if necessary.

"NO MORE TROUBLE WITH CONSTIPATION!"

Says Long-Time Sufferer Who Tried Laxative Cereal!

If you, too, are disappointed with pills and purgatives, be sure to read this unsolicited letter!

"For several years I was afflicted with common constipation. I tried various remedies, but got only temporary relief. Several months ago, I started eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN each morning, drinking water freely through the day. I have since never had the slightest trouble with constipation. My gratitude to KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN." Mr. H. M. Riley, 11 E. Division Street, Chicago, Ill.

Scientists say KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really "get at" a common cause of constipation—lack of sufficient "cellulosic" elements in the diet—because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements! They work by helping the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative. Doesn't "sweep you out!" It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food.

If you have constipation of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you, too, don't cheer its welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

SCHOOL NOTES

FIREMAN'S DANCE
There will be no regular Saturday night dance as usually sponsored by the school, but a Fireman's dance is to be held instead, and will be sponsored by the Tawas City Fire Department, and not connected with the public school.

LIBRARY NEWS
Over a hundred National Geographic Magazines have been received for the library.
The librarians are putting pockets and cards in books which need them, also repairing some of the old books which most of the children like to read.

SOPHOMORES
The Sophomores are planning on presenting a minstrel show about the end of February. The entire class will participate and of course we are hoping for success. We are also hoping for a good attendance by the townspeople. The exact date will be announced later.

8th GRADE NEWS
The boys in the shop finished their book-ends and tie racks. They are now working on door stops.
The Home Ec girls have nearly completed their sewing project.
Marion Klinger is out of school with the measles.

We are reviewing our history. We had a test the other day.
On our semester tests everyone did quite well.
Our teacher, Mrs. Goldsmith, is unable to be with us this week because of the death of her brother. Miss Braddock is substituting.

1st and 2nd GRADES
We are building a postoffice in a corner of our room. We will mail our Valentines at the postoffice. The kindergarten will use it, too, and the second graders will sort the mail.
Lots of us have the measles this week.
We have been pantomiming "The Three Bears." Miss Braddock plays music on the piano to match the action.
The first graders are reading many pre-primers now and are enjoying finding words they know in newspapers, magazines, on signs, etc.

7th GRADE
The boys in the shop, having completed their book-ends and squaring up stock, are on tie racks and door stops.
The girls in Home Ec have completed cooking and are now starting on sewing.
We have two new pupils in our class this semester. Their names are: Vernadean Frank and Elgie Pinkney.
We were sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Goldsmith's brother.

The 1943 costs were $1,184.12. A greater portion of this was given to loans and grants where no other aid to the dependants of service men could be found. The types of cases covered were maintenance in families, emergency transportation and hospitalization.
The fact that 72 cases were investigated in a recent three month period accounts for the increasing cost and obligations of Home Service.
Other yearly expenditures included telegrams sent to secure furloughs and furlough extensions for our boys amounting to $242.00; telephone calls $171.00; and postage $32.93. Both costs are mounting due to needs for promptness and greater number of claims and benefits hand led.
To insure this greater speed and promptness in investigations and to eliminate transportation, Mrs. Ruckle has appointed an assisting committee:
Mrs. N. Brown, Alabaster.
Mrs. W. Pringle, McIvor.
Mrs. Wm. Curtis, Whittemore.
Mrs. Francis Schriber, East Tawas.
Mrs. Peter McPhail, Oscoda.
Mrs. Deuell Pearsall, Hale.
While the primary obligations of the Red Cross Home Service has been to assist our men and families in the armed forces in obtaining allotments, claims, benefits, furloughs, and dependency discharges, it will be interesting to know that through this medium, messages have been put through to foreign countries.
Mrs. Fred Marsh of Tawas City received and answered a message to her relatives in France.
Mrs. Peter Stasinos of East Tawas sent and received messages from her brother and sister in Greece. This required one and a half years.

Leo Dumont and Mrs. George Dumont and Ethel Rose of Oscoda were Tuesday guests of the formers sister, Mrs. Fred Landon and family and mother, Mrs. J. R. Dumont.
Mrs. Otto Rahl spent Tuesday in Bay City with her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Rahl and new baby born February 1.
Pfc. Jas. Berry and Mrs. Berry of Fort Derry, California, arrived Monday on a furlough with relatives in Tawas City and vicinity.
Mrs. Evelyn Stewart has returned to her home in Detroit after a weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Frank. She leaves this week for a visit with her husband, Clyde Stewart, quartermaster, third class at Norfolk, Virginia.
The Womens Society of the Methodist church met with Mrs. H. J. Keiser on Thursday evening.
Little Dennis Lott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lott of Bay City was operated on for mastoids Thursday morning.
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Groff a 9 pound boy on January 29. He has been named Gerald Russell.

No. 3 Continued from First Page.
Mr. and Mrs. Russell McKenzie have purchased the Kermit Gurlley home, located on the corner of Washington and Locke Sts. They plan to move to their new home at once.
Mrs. Eugene Lange of Grosse Pointe is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. J. Bergeron.
Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Merschel returned from Detroit Monday after attending the Cleaners Convention.
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cadorette a daughter, January 28. She has been named Mary Jo.
Miss Alma Hill has returned from Ann Arbor and re-entered school.
A number of ladies met with Mrs. R. V. Boulder Wednesday and sewed kit bags.

Mrs. Archie Graham and Mrs. Arden Charters and two children spent Wednesday in West Branch.
Mrs. Blanche Karr and son, Billy of Lincoln spent Tuesday in town.
Mrs. William Wery and Mrs. John Barrington were callers in East Tawas Friday morning.
Mrs. Don Iddix and son, Terry and Miss Theda Charters of Standish spent the week end in town.
The Junior Club met with Mrs. Elgin O'Farrell Thursday night with Mrs. Dornace Belleville assisting hostess. Mrs. Wayne Grimm was the speaker of the evening. Four guests were present. A delicious lunch was served.
Mrs. John Bowen left Sunday for Midland for several days stay with her daughter, Mrs. Clifford Freeman and infant daughter.
Mrs. Helen Ruckle returned the past week from a four months visit in New York city with her daughter, Mrs. Pat Jordan and husband.
The March of Dimes party at the high school Monday night and money collected through the week in the March of Dimes banks netted about $32.00 to be turned in by the committee.
The Whittemore P.-T. A. will honor all past presidents, and observe Founders Day at its meeting next Tuesday evening, February 8, which is the 20th anniversary of the P.-T. A. The meeting will start at eight o'clock. A very good program is being arranged of a play, musical numbers and vocal numbers. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone.
Mrs. Frank Madaski entertained the Birthday Club Tuesday evening. Mrs. Ray Portor was the honored guest.
Arden Charters was at Hale Friday night where he refereed three basketball games.
