TAWAS CITY

TAWAS CITY WINS 3 FROM WHITE CITY

Tawas City and Alabaster Tied for First Place in N. E. League

Tawas City won three out of four games from Alabaster at the local gym, Friday evening, February 4. The fourth game was lost to the Alabaster Junior High team.

This Alabaster Junior High team can really play a fast game of basketball. The team is composed of sixteenth and eight grade boys and they are the scippiest outfit that you could expect to see. They competed against boys from the Tawas City junior high school and outplayed them in all quarters except the second and Tawas City was leading at the half five to three.

H. DeLosh and Gordon Tate each collected two field goals in the third quarter to give Alabaster a comfortable lead which was maintained throughout the contest. The game ended 9 to 12 with the Alabaster midgets on the long end of the score.

The Alabaster reserve team has been defeated but twice this season, and it lost both of these contests to the Tawas City reserves who are still undefeated. [The Tawas Reserves led their opponents throughout the contest. The score by quarters was as follows: 2 to 1; 7 to 4; 11 to 4; 15 to 7.] Alabaster made but two field goals and three free throws. Tawas made seven field goals and one free throw. Clare Herriman again led his team in point making.

Tawas City Varsity defeated Alabaster varsity 25 to 27. The contest was very thrilling and exceedingly fast. The Alabaster team, in the early moments of the game, enjoyed an eight to one lead, but the quarter ended 10 to 9 in favor of Tawas City. Tawas continued in the lead except for a brief moment in the early part of the fourth quarter when the score was tied at 25 all. Willard Musolf soon sank another field goal to make it 25 to 27. From this point on, neither team was able to collect more points, and the game ended 25 to 27.

The Alabaster team tried in vain to stop Willard Musolf, but, through the excellent passing of his team mates, Willie was able to sink four field goals which together with three points via free throws gave him a total of eleven points.

Deering and DeLosh of Alabaster each made eight points for their team.

Tawas City and Alabaster are now tied for first place in the Northeastern High School League. Alabaster has previously defeated Tawas City at Alabaster. These two teams might meet again this season at the District Tournament which takes place in the local gymnasium, March 2-3-4.

(The Tawas Independents defeated the Alabaster Independents 24 to 18 in a game after the high school contests. Quarters, Tawas City center, lead the contestants of both teams with even points.)

IN the SERVICE

Cpl. Roland Buch, somewhere in England, in writing to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Buch of this city, about a recent furlough which he had taken to London, says:

"We took a number of tours, and I will mention a few of the things that I saw. First of all, there is Buckingham Palace, the home of the king, Westminster Abbey, the oldest cathedral in London, and believe me it really is old. Then, too, we went through the Houses of Parliament, and saw the House of Lords, House of Commons and many other rooms which were all very beautiful. While the guide wasn't looking I sat down in what is Mr. Churchill's seat. Something, eh, what? Next on program was a concert given by the London Symphony Orchestra, with John Barbirolli conducting. This was given in London's famous Royal Albert Hall. As you know that kind of music is tops with me and I really enjoyed the concert.

"Summing it all up, I really had a very enjoyable time and saw things that I can tell others about all the rest of my life. Nevertheless, I will still say there is no place like the good old U. S. A., and I, like many others have really learned what it is to love our country. Yes, not only Tawas City, or Michigan, but the whole U. S.—its government, its people, and their way of life, and above all, the most God fearing nation in the world.

"I bought a few post cards which I will mail to you sometime in the future. I did my best to buy a few souvenirs of England, but in the whole city of London I couldn't find a thing. England today hasn't anything to put on the market for the sightseer or tourist, but only those things which the people have to have and then you have to have coupons to buy that. Nevertheless, I have something in mind which I am going to make myself, and will be a very good souvenir of England. Will mail that to you as soon as I have it completed."

Jesse C. Hodder Post and Audie Johnson Post, American Legion, are assisting ex-servicemen of the present war in filling out their applications for mustering-out pay. Joseph Barkman of East Tawas and Judge H. Read Smith of Tawas City have been designated for the work. Applicants must bring their honorable discharge papers with them when seeking to fill applications.

Pvt. Walter Koepke of Camp Livingston, Louisiana, is home on an eleven day furlough.

Robert Mark, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Mark of this city has begun training as an Aviation Cadet in the Army Air Forces Training School at Yale University.

Pfc. Frank O. Hiltz, with the Fifth Army in Italy, has been awarded the Good Conduct Ribbon.

Lieut. Harold Timreck, with the Medical Corps, has been promoted to captain. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Timreck of this place, and is with the 834th Bomber Squadron at Tucson, Arizona.

Pfc. Irl Shover of Camp Ellis, Illinois, is home on furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Shover.

Pfc. Earl B. Davis is attending gunnery school at Harlingen, Texas. His address is Bk's 611, Student Reception Pool, H. A. A. F., Harlingen Field, Texas.

William B. Goodale has graduated from the Air Forces Advanced Flying School at Ellington Field, Texas, and has been commissioned lieutenant in the United States Army. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goodale of Wilber township.

According to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bronson of Whittemore, Elwood Bronson stationed at Camp Wheeler, Georgia, has been advanced to the rating of staff sergeant.

Word has been received of the safe arrival somewhere in England of Sgt. H. D. (Joe) DeLosh. (Turn to No. 2 Back Page)

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of a North Carolina newspaper, has been inducted into the army and is near the end of his basic training at Fort Bragg. He has been classified as a cook and in addition his failure to master some of the fundamentals of army life have resulted in considerable extra KP duty. Thus he is thoroughly familiar with the Company kitchen and its workings. He has also learned the finer points of "goldbricking." He is editor of a section of the camp paper. As we pick up the story, Hargrove is entertaining "the Redhead" at dinner. She is having trouble getting the waiter to bring her a glass of water and Hargrove speaks:

CHAPTER XV

"Ahem," I said. He stopped humming a little tune with which he had engaged himself, and he looked at me with kindly curiosity. "Ahem," I repeated. "Are you the waiter with the water for my daughter?"

He turned on a tight, polite little smile. "The water, monsieur, will be forthcoming. I have sent my friend Charles for the water."

The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor this afternoon came as stunning news to the men at Fort Bragg. There had been a rumor, one day a couple of months ago, that Germany had declared war on the United States to beat us to the draw, and since it was merely a rumor, there was no confirmation or denial over the radio all day long. That supposed news back then had been taken with a philosophic shrug and the thought, "Well, it's what we've been expecting."

This today caused a different war feeling. It was not what we had been expecting. To the soldiers here, whose only attention to the newspapers is a quick glance at the headlines, it was startling and dreadful.

The men who heard the news announcement over the radio this afternoon at the Service Club were, for the most part, new to the Army, with less than a month of training behind them. Their first feeling of outrage gave way to the awful fear that they would be sent away, green and untrained and helpless, within a week.

The rumor mill began operation immediately. New York and Fort Bragg will be bombed within the month, the rumors said. Probably, by that time, all of us will be in Hawaii or Russia or Persia or Africa. Green and untrained and helpless. This business of teaching a man for thirteen weeks in a replacement center will be dispensed with, now that war is upon us. You're a civilian one day and a rookie member of a seasoned fighting outfit the next.

Except for a few for whom the radio held a terrible fascination the men thought first of communicating with their families, their friends, their sweethearts. They immediately went for writing materials and for the two public telephones of the club. Almost all of the 64,000 men of Fort Bragg were trying to reach their homes through the eight trunk lines which ran out of the pitifully overburdened little telephone exchange in Fayetteville.

Miss Ethel Walker, who was acting as senior hostess for the Replacement Center's Service Club, had planned an entertainment program for the evening, but when she looked out at the tension in the social hall, she despaired. She telephoned her boss, Major Herston M. Cooper, the special services officer. "There's no use trying to put on the show tonight," she said. "Shall I cancel it? And may I turn off the radio?"

"If it's a good program, keep it," said the major. "And by all means leave the radio on. Just hang on; I'll be there in five minutes."

The major, a former criminologist and schoolteacher in Birmingham, was a lean and mischievous-looking infantry officer with a gift of gab and a camaraderie with the enlisted men. He sauntered into the Service Club, noised it about that he was going to talk, and hooked up the public address microphone.

"Here it comes," said an unhappy acting corporal. "Here comes the higher brass, to tell us the worst."

The major cleared his throat and looked over the crowd which gathered about him. "I know that this is your Service Club," he said, "and I'm a staff officer bargaining in on you. Before I was an officer, I was an enlisted man. And, as an enlisted man, I've done more KP than any man in this room."

A little of the tension passed and the major lapsed into one of his conveniently absent-minded rambles. "In fact, I went on KP every time they inspected my rifle. Couldn't keep the thing clean."

He paused. "The main thing that has us worrying this afternoon is the very same thing we're being trained to protect. It's what they call the American Way—and they spell it with capitals."

"I have my own ideas about the American Way. I think the American Way is shown in you boys whose parents paid school taxes so that you could know what it was to cut hooky. It's shown in the men who pay two dollars to see a wrestling match, not to watch the wrestlers but to boo the referee. It's the good old go-to-hell American spirit and you can't find it anywhere but here. "You and I both, when we were called into the Army, brought our homes with us. We've been thinking less about war than about getting back home after a while—back to our girls and our wives and our civilian jobs.

"Well, we know now where we stand and we don't have to worry about whether we're in for a long stretch or a short vacation. That should be cleared up now. We know that we've got only one job now and we haven't time to worry about the one at home.

"You're worrying because you're not prepared soldiers, you're not ready to fight yet. When the time comes for you to go, you'll be ready. You'll have your fundamental training before you leave the Replacement Center.

"Spending your duty hours at work and your leisure hours at worry

—that's no good. That's what the enemy wants for you."

"I guess that's all, boys."

He turned to leave the microphone, but returned as if he had suddenly remembered something.

"The regular variety show will go on tonight at eight o'clock," he said.

"As an enlisted man, I've done more KP than any man in this room," said the major.

—that's no good. That's what the enemy wants for you."

"I guess that's all, boys."

He turned to leave the microphone, but returned as if he had suddenly remembered something.

"The regular variety show will go on tonight at eight o'clock," he said.

They come and they go from the Replacement Center more quickly now, or perhaps it merely seems that they do. The training cycles have not been cut down much, but the turnover of men seems greater. Perhaps it's just that we notice the arrivals and departures more, now that war has given them grimness.

We call the train—the one that brings in recruits and takes out soldiers—the Shanghai Express. The term probably was used first by some disgruntled soldier who put into it the bitterness of a difficult transition from civilian to soldier. Now the term is used with a certain tender fondness by the permanent personnel of the Center, we who watch the men come and go.

The melancholy moan of a train whistle is heard in the distance of the night and a sergeant clicks his teeth wistfully. "Here she comes, boys," he says. "Here comes the Shanghai Express." The sound of the whistle identifies all that touches the heart of a soldier.

There was a group of new men coming in this morning, down at the railroad siding. Their new uniforms hung strangely upon them, conspicuous and uncertain and uncomfortable—new uniforms on new soldiers.

They were frightened and ill at ease, these men. A week ago they had been civilians and the prospect of the Army had probably hung over some of them like a Damoclean sword. They had been told, by well-meaning friends, that the Army wouldn't be so bad once they got used to it. The Army will make you or break you, they had been told. The Army really isn't as bad as it's painted, they had heard. All of this, in a diabolically suggestive way, had opened conjectures to terrify the most indomitable.

This morning, they still hadn't had time to get over their fears. They still had no idea of what Army life was going to be like. Most of all and first of all, they wondered; "What sort of place is this we're coming into?"

Their spirits were still at their lowest point—past, present, or future.

The Replacement Center band, led by wizened little Master Sergeant Knowles, was there to greet them with a welcome that might dispel from them the feeling that they were cattle being shipped into the fort on consignment. First there were the conventional but stirring military marches, the "Caisson Song" and all the rest. And then there was a sly and corny rendition of the "Tiger Rag," a friendly musical wink that said, "Take it easy, brother."

Just as their arrival marks an emotional ebb, their departure is the flood tide. The men who came in a few weeks ago, green and terrified, leave now as soldiers. The corporal whom they dreaded then is now just a jerk who's bucking for sergeant. Although they are glad that they have been trained with other men on the same level here, the training center which was first a vast and awful place is now just a training center, all right in its way—for rookies. They themselves have outgrown their kindergarten.

The band is at the railroad siding, this time to see them off with a flourish. They pay more attention to the band this time. They know the "Caisson Song." They know their own Replacement Center Marching Song, composed by one of their number, a quiet little ex-music teacher named Harvey Bosell. They hum the tune as they go aboard.

They see the commanding general standing on the side lines with his aide. He is no longer an ogre out of Washington who might, for all they know, have the power of life and death over them to administer it at a whim. He is the commanding general, a good soldier and a good fellow, and it was damned white of him to come down to see them off.

They board the train and they sit waiting for it to take them to their permanent Army post and their part in the war.

As a special favor and for old time's sake, the band swings slowly into the song that is the voice of their nostalgia, "The Sidewalks of New York," Yankee or Rebel, Minnesotan or Navadan, they love that song.

You can see their faces tightening a little, and a gentle melancholy look come into their eyes as the trombone wails beneath the current of the music. Their melancholy is melancholy with a shrug now. Home and whatever else was dearest to them a few months ago are still dear, but a soldier has to push them into the background when there's a war to be fought.

With the music still playing, the train pulls slowly out and Sergeant Knowles waves it goodbye with his baton.

An old sergeant, kept in the Replacement Center to train the men whose fathers fought with him a generation ago, stands on the side and watches them with a firm, proud look.

"Give 'em hell, boys," he shouts behind them. "Give 'em hell!"

THAT good-looking suit you are planning to buy—before you make your final selection it is well worth while to look up what's doing in way of the now-so-fashionable woolknits. Are the spring 1944 knit models beauties? Take a glance at the trio of woolknit fashions pictured and judge for yourself. Seen in the original, these three costumes are simply breathtaking in way of color, styling detail and figure-flattering silhouette.

The grand thing to know about the winsome little woolknit suits so conspicuously present in midseason and spring apparel showings is that the modern versions sag not, bag not and they neither bulge nor pull out of shape. Then too, their production has been brought up to such point of perfection that it takes an expert to distinguish them from woven fabric. They are, however, really knitted, which endows them with particular qualities that make them comfortable for work or play, and at the same time they are too smart-looking for words.

Town or country, traveling or wherever it goes in any climate in the U. S. A., the little woolknit suit will fill the bill. Then too, put to the test, it will be found so accommodatingly year-round in its service. Whatever the time and occasion, women are turning more and more to knit fashions as the answer to their "what-to-wear" problems.

The fact that knitted clothes pack so easily is also greatly in their favor. No S.O.S. rush to get your little non-wrinkle suit or dress pressed when you arrive at your destination. Just a little shaking out and presto, it is ready to wear instantly.

As to the models illustrated, that eye-appealing suit shown to the left is a striped tweed knit fabric in green with frosty white stripes, the freshness of its coloring breathing the breath of spring. The jacket has a convertible shirt collar and three patch pockets. The brown felt hat and the wooden bead-and-plastic necklace and bracelet worn with it contribute a touch of ultimate chic.

Centered in the group is a most attractive hundred per cent woolknit suit that has a jacket that relays the message of the importance of pastel colorings, in this instance being a combination of delectable pink, green and beige for the jacquard check. The skirt is of matching green and the hat is made of the same fabric.

A classic two-piece suit is beautifully tailored of nottingham nub, a woolknit fabric. This is in plum (important color news for spring) with pastel petit point plaid. The hat that complements this suit is of gray suede contrasted with a plum-color facing. With costume jewelry carefully tuned to the color scheme together with gloves to blend, this is a costume that will go vaingloriously right through midseason and spring.

For dining out the new fashion collections display beaded black wool suits that have a gala air about them. Some are beaded in jet, others have sequin-worked pockets and lapels, with sequin-covered half-ball buttons.

Pastel Jersey

Colorful wools, especially in lovely pastel tones, will be coming out in full force from now on. To wear under winter furs girls are choosing young-at-heart pastel wool jersey dresses made up simply, as is this model. The latest move is to trim these pastel jerseys with narrow banding done in gay peasant coloring and design. Resourceful young folks are buying this banding by the yard with a view to adding a new trimming touch to the simple little frocks they have been wearing.

Roses on New Prints
The flower of the moment in fashion's realm is the rose. It is seen blooming in realistic colors for the new prints. With the new low-neck black frocks the fashion-correct flower to wear is the single large rose. The loveliest handkerchiefs flaunt a single lovely rose in their patterning.

It's a Picturesque Skirt-Blouse Season

When we go casually about in our simple little cotton frocks we are going to look strikingly a la Mexican senorita in the days to come. It seems that Mexico has inspired designers to make up gay cottons in new and picturesque ways. This is especially true in regard to the low-cut drawstring-neck cotton blouses that are having such wide acceptance in town and country fashion circles. The shirtwaist blouse and dirdird skirt is a good "at-home" morning fashion, and to give it a Mexican dash, girdle your waistline with a gypsylike scarf, or a wide jeweled belt. With your plaid slacks wear a peon waist that has a strip of embroidered red banding running along each side of the front closing. Band the sleeves with the same gay embroidery.

New Millinery Showings Feature Sailors, Cloches

In the advance millinery showings, both little sailors and those broad of brim have a prominent place. These are of felt or of fabric, notably taffeta or faille. However, the news that is causing most excitement is the revival of the ever-becoming cloche. Watch for the new cloches, your milliner will be showing them in felts that are cunningly trimmed in felt cutout flunners. Many have the side face-framing flares pleated and folded in intriguing ways.

JESUS ON THE MOUNTAIN AND IN THE VALLEY

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:2-8, 17-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—I believe; help thou mine unbelief.—Mark 9:24.

The vision of the mountain top prepares the believer for service down in the valley. "Where there is no vision the people perish," said the wise man of old (Prov. 29:18). For want of a true vision of God, a knowledge of His truth, and the God-given constraint which makes men give themselves in sacrificial service, the people will perish in their sins.

But let men come to know the truth as it is in Christ, learn to know Him as the Son of God glorious and powerful, and then let them translate their knowledge of Christian truth and their personal spiritual experiences into the daily ministry to the needs of their fellow men, and there will be songs of salvation and joy.

I. Knowing (vv. 2-7).
The transfiguration of Christ doubtless meant much to Him in preparation for His coming death and resurrection. It was a foregleam of His kingdom glory.

In this lesson we are concerned with the experience of the disciples rather than the feelings of our Lord. Fundamental in both Christian life and service is a clear understanding of the person and work of Christ. One may come to Christ knowing little more than that He is the divine Saviour, and one may enter into Christian living with a meager knowledge of the doctrines of the Bible. But the Christian who fails to grow in knowledge will not grow in grace as he should.

God sets no premium on ignorance, in fact it is quite evident that the great blight on the Christian church today is the appalling lack of understanding of God's Word.

The disciples came to a fuller conviction that He was the Son of God as they saw Him transfigured and heard the Father say, "This is my beloved Son." They learned more plainly the truth of His coming death for the sins of all mankind. They saw in the indescribable beauty of that moment the foregleam of His coming glory. What important truths these are—His deity—His redemption—His coming kingdom. Do we have a clear grasp of these truths? If not, let us search the Scriptures.

II. Growing (v. 8).
"Jesus only." He filled their vision and their hearts. They had made spiritual progress as they had seen His glory and heard the commanding voice of the Father.

Great experiences of spiritual renewing and power are necessary to effective life and testimony. They may not be in outward manifestation, in fact they are more often in the inner recesses of the soul; but they transform men and send them forth to magnificent living for God. One wonders if much of the dearth of power in the Christian church is not to be attributed directly to the lack of such experiences with God.

The disciples had an unforgettable mountaintop experience. Even so have many others found the secret of power.

Let us remember that such privileges are not reserved for a few, they are the birthright of every Christian. Power without knowledge is a dangerous and destructive thing, but knowledge without power is a dead thing.

Let us study God's Word, but let the truth be baptized in the overflowing spiritual power of a personal experience with God.

In regeneration all that Christ is and has for us is made available. If we have not taken out our inheritance let us do it at once.

III. Serving (vv. 17-27).
One of the lessons that seems hard to learn and to keep constantly effective in the life of a Christian is that mountaintop experiences of spiritual uplift are not an end in themselves, but a preparation for service. All too often we come to regard such times of peculiar blessing, whether in the privacy of our own room or in the great conference of Christian workers, as something which should glow warmly in our own hearts, making us glad in the Lord, and not as a preparation for ministry to others.

Jesus and the disciples went up to the place of prayer, into the place of glory, and down to the place of service. How fitting is that sequence.

Much confusion exists in the church because those who have foolishly abandoned God's Word and substituted the energy of the flesh for spiritual power have been most diligent in service to humanity; while those who know and accept the truth about Christ, and who profess to believe in the power of the Spirit-filled life, have failed to serve their needy neighbors.

"But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him up" (v. 27). Verses 28 and 29 indicate that the disciples might have done the same by believing prayer.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER Tire life on rough gravel roads is about 40 per cent less than on smooth concrete pavements. This was proved by tests conducted by the Iowa State College. Soap, if developed, is to be a growing factor in maintaining motor transportation. It has been estimated that 100 million pounds of soap will be required for one year's production of synthetic rubber. Camelback, which gets its name because it originally had a hump in the center, is a growingly important product of the rubber industry. Over 20 million pounds of camelback are now being made monthly to recap tires.

To the People of this Community

KILL OR BE KILLED

United States Marines paid the stiffest price in human life per square yard for the capture of Tarawa, vital Pacific outpost.

It was kill or be killed. Your boys did not flinch when they ran into the deadliest firepower along the beaches of important Gilbert Island stronghold.

This assault, bloody and costly, is one of the many which must be made before Tokyo and Berlin are pushed into dust and ashes.

What are you doing to back up the boys? Remember these are boys from this very community, perhaps from your very home. Any home in your neighborhood which today does not display the treasury's red, white and blue 4th War Loan Shield proclaiming "We bought Extra War Bonds" is not backing the attack. Every Extra War Bond you buy becomes a direct fighter against Japan and Germany. If you could but see one on the battlefield, you would not count the cost of your slight sacrifices to buy Extra War Bonds to make each succeeding assault less costly in the lives of our boys.

You can't afford NOT to buy Extra Bonds for the 4th War Loan if you would help these boys.

Washington, D. C. SIGNIFICANCE OF RUSSIAN BLAST

Members of the diplomatic corps who have lived beside Russia and dealt with her diplomats for years point to some significant things about the Pravda report which set the world on its ear about the British negotiating a separate peace with Nazi Foreign Minister Ribbentrop.

In the first place, diplomats point out that, had the report been published in Izvestia, it would have been much more serious. Izvestia is the organ of the Soviet government, and anything appearing therein can be considered the gospel views of the Kremlin itself.

However, Pravda, organ of the Communist party, is one step removed, and anything published in it can be interpreted as close to but not necessarily representing the views of Stalin.

Thus, it was Pravda which dropped a ton of editorial bricks on the unsuspecting, well-intentioned head of Wendell Willkie, hitherto considered Russia's best friend. That editorial rebuke came after Willkie had discussed the Polish boundary question—in a manner quite sympathetic to Russia.

However, the Russians chose to rebuke their best friend as a warning to President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull that they did not want the Polish question discussed at all—not even by their friends. They could not very well come out and rebuke Hull and Roosevelt, so they chose a prominent American, one step removed, figuring Hull and Roosevelt would take the hint.

Therefore, remembering that Russian diplomatic moves are usually aimed obliquely at something on the other side of the billiard table, here is the diplomatic corps' explanation of the latest Pravda thrust against the British.

For about two years, it has been no secret that the British have hung back regarding a second front in western Europe. It is also no secret that, right down to the Teheran conference, Churchill pulled for a Balkan front or almost any other front except a western front.

PUTTING BRITISH ON SPOT

Stalin is a man who never forgets and, even if no friction had occurred at Teheran, he would have continued to be suspicious about British intentions of a second front, in view of the two years of second front debate. And on top of Teheran, plus Churchill's long stay in Africa, Stalin's suspicions may be boiling again.

Therefore, point out the diplomats, what could be more adroit than to put the British squarely on the spot by subtly accusing them of talking to the Nazis about a separate peace? In other words, after the Pravda article, the British now have to prove they want no separate peace by pushing ahead with the second front. If they delay it, then the Russians can point to the suspicion—no matter how untrue—that perhaps the British were talking to Ribbentrop after all—which, of course, they weren't.

The Pravda publication fits in, especially at this time, when there actually have been some hints in official circles that the Russians are doing so well that the Nazis will surrender soon, then we wouldn't need a second front.

It's complicated, but the Russian mind is complicated, and Russian diplomacy even more so.

SOFTENING CASUALTY MESSAGES

The war department has received many letters recently from ministers and private families, suggesting that, instead of sending casualty messages by telegram to bereaved families, they be sent to a committee of pastors in each community, one of whom would then deliver the message and seek to soften the blow of the tragic news.

So far, however, the war department has taken the position that it should continue delivery of the casualty messages by Western Union messenger boy. Army officials argue that delivery by a clergyman would cause confusion and delay, and that a clergyman might not be available at the time, or he might lack proper and immediate transportation.

Also, the army argues that a casualty message has a high priority, which means that its transmission is expedited, and this might be offset by delay at the receiving end if the message had to pass through the hands of a clergyman.

CAPITAL CHAFF

When diplomats run out of liquor, that's a story. Carlos Campbell of the Chilean embassy burst into the office of Chilean Ambassador Michieis, saying, "Don Rodolfo, please lend me a case of wine for tonight; I'm having a party!" "I can't do it," replied the ambassador. "I have no wine myself!"

In the Library of Congress, back numbers of Esquire are kept in the Delta Collection, a special collection of sex books and other erotica available to adults, not to adolescents.

Released by Western Newspaper Union. WITH the deadline for mailing out major league baseball contracts set for February 15, it is to be hoped that fans will be denied the pleasure of reading endless columns about holdouts.

Usually our sympathies are with the players who demand more money for their earnest endeavors. Their employers have them pretty well hog-tied. The boys sign the offered contract, or else. A few of them are successful in their campaigns for higher wages, but if the club is adamant the player usually stands to lose. Outstanding example of 1943 was Lou Novikoff of the Chicago Cubs, whose activities did little to endear him to the Cubs' management.

Lou Novikoff

There was an element of humor connected with the holdouts of previous years. Most of the players threatened to quit the game unless their demands were met. That threat was about their only lever. They couldn't sign with another club. But you knew they weren't going to quit, and you also knew that most of them were making more money out of baseball than they could in any other way.

The element of humor will be missing this year. The player who isn't pleased with the offer made him by his club shouldn't voice his objections too strenuously. Quite a few civilians, and no doubt some servicemen, have the idea that athletes in the proper age group should be in the armed services. That idea may be right or it may be wrong, but it doesn't alter the picture. Those same people advance the thought that if a professional athlete is 4-F, he would be more valuable in a defense plant than on the playing field.

Most observers wouldn't be able to understand why a $12,500 ball player should scream for $15,000 when a fighter pilot with half a dozen enemy aircraft to his credit can't ask for a commensurate increase in pay. The $50 a month doughboy, squatting in a foxhole, doesn't even bother thinking in astronomical figures.

Club owners have a fairly good excuse for refusing substantial boosts this year. Last season was, on the whole, rather poor, and this coming season doesn't promise to be even as good.

Too much squawking on the part of any one player will make it tough for all players—and the game in general.

Devil Dog Raiders—And Athletics

Proof of the value of athletics to the nation lies in a statement made not long ago by Capt. W. S. Lefrancois, marine corps hero who led the advance guard in a raid on Makin island last August. He said that the best devil dog raiders are "youngsters of 17, 18 and 19 who have been athletes."

"We look for athletes when we pick out men for our raiders," the bronzed officer said, "because they naturally are better suited for action. And brother, action is what those raiders thrive on."

"Fellows who have played baseball usually make the best grenade men because they have the knack of lobbing the 'ball' right to the spot for which it is intended. And when they have completed their training, our lads are experts at boxing, wrestling, judo, tumbling, fencing, swimming, knife fighting and shooting. Yes, they're pretty rugged fellows, ready for just about anything."

Athletics have a twofold purpose: To help the individual physically fit and to entertain him. In time of war the first is, of course, the most important. If athletics were to fail in this respect the entire sports program would be worthless—a complete waste of time. Fortunately for the nation, our athletic program has proved its value.

Men like Captain Lefrancois can supply the answers. The vocal minority in the abolish-all-sports-for-the-duration group would have a hard time refuting his evidence. We don't mean that the best soldiers are all athletes. That isn't true. But sports are a distinct advantage to a man whose life may depend on split-second thinking and coordination. He is prepared for emergencies.

Pigs Need Minerals For Healthy Growth

Rock Phosphate, Hay Help Supply Elements

The amount of pork produced by a certain given quantity of feed will depend on how well balanced the feed is, says F. H. Smith, nutritionist with the animal industry department of the North Carolina State college experiment station.

He points out that the feed should contain protein of good quality, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamins, and that it should be properly fed for maximum pork production.

"The practice of many farmers in confining their pigs to floored pens and feeding them rations composed chiefly of grains brings about mineral deficiencies," says Smith. "In some cases, after two or three months of such feeding, the pigs have difficulty in getting up and walking to the feed trough."

He recommends that the pigs be given a mineral mixture of equal parts of ground phosphate, steamed bone meal or defluorinated phosphate, and common salt. This mixture may be left so that the pigs may take it at will. For self feeding, the mineral mixture is made more tempting by mixing a pound of tankage or meat scrap to nine pounds of the mixture.

"Grains may also be supplemented with a good grade of legume hay at the rate of 5 to 10 per cent for fattening hogs, and 10 to 15 per cent for sows and boars," Smith says. He points out that sun-cured hay is more effective than artificial cured hay because it contains more vitamin D.

Sun-cured, legume hay provides good protein, calcium, phosphorus, and other necessary minerals and vitamins. One of the best legume hays is alfalfa—which produces high quality mineral feed supplement, in large yield per acre.

Alfalfa can be grown on any moderately heavy, well-drained, and fertile upland soils. It is not suited to bottom soils because it gets "wet feet" when the water table is high. It must be grown on good land because it is not a "poor land" crop.

Electric Pig-Brooder Can Be Easily Made at Home

Many thousands of baby pigs die annually from cold during their first critical weeks. Keeping pigs healthy and comfortable is the first big step toward a larger winter pork crop. An electric brooder will keep the little animals warm and cozy. If you cannot buy one, you can easily make one at a cost of $2 to $3.

All you need to do is to build a low ceiling in one corner of the shed. You cut a hole in the ceiling and set a big electric bulb with a reflector over the hole. The heat of the light warms the little pigs sufficiently to keep them healthy.

Electric Brooder

- Materials Needed: 1-1" x 8" x 4" piece lumber; 1-1" x 12" x 7" " " sides; 1-2" x 4" x 5" " " front; 1-1" x 4" x 5" " " bottom; -15 board feet plywood or flooring for top; 1-15 rubber-covered appliance cord and plug; 1-standard base-porcelain socket; 1-100 watt bulb for warm weather; 1-200 watt bulb for cold weather; 1-12" square piece hardware cloth; 1-1-gallon can for reflector—be sure to fix can at least 1" above cloth; 2-hinges; 1-screen door hook; -Sufficient nails and screws

Bombs, Food Pour From Reclaimed Area

Former Desert Wastes Feed 43 Million

Great Blocks of Power From Dams Help Beat Axis Production.

Firebombs of magnesium, produced with the energy of the mighty generators at Boulder dam, are raining ruin on Berlin. With tracer bullets of magnesium, from the same source, American fliers hold the bead on Jap Zeros and send them crashing to earth.

Every four-motored bomber and spirited fighter plane is 75 per cent aluminum, the important light metal reduced in electric furnaces heated with large blocks of power from Grand Coulee dam.

Potatoes, milk and dairy products in dehydrated form keep warmly clad American soldiers in the Aleutians in fighting trim for the attack on the home islands that hold the heart of the Japanese military octopus.

These and hundreds of other products resulting from the irrigation of arid and semiarid lands of the West and from the development of large blocks of hydroelectric power for major war industries emphasize the contribution to the winning of the war being made by the bureau of reclamation in whose field these essential functions fall.

The story of the activities of this agency of the department of the interior in the production of food and power for war is graphically told in the bureau of reclamation's annual report to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes.

Prewar Power Doubled. In the report, Commissioner of Reclamation Harry W. Bashore advised the secretary that the bureau's continued expansion of power production for war was a most impressive phase of the year's operation. He said that in the early days of the war the greatest single ask confronting the United States was to overcome Axis superiority in the production of planes, tanks, ships and guns.

Toward this objective the bureau offered great blocks of power, doubling its pre-Pearl Harbor capacity by June 30, 1943. On that date 1,850,000 kilowatts were installed. (During the present fiscal year this capacity has been increased to more than 2,000,000 kilowatts.)

"Most of the 900,000 kilowatts made available in the 2-year period were installed 2 to 10 years ahead of schedule, at Boulder, Grand Coulee, and Parker dams," the commissioner stated. "These giant structures were erected in times of peace as part of the department's far-sighted policy in gauging construction to keep ahead of the inevitable industrial expansion of the West. In terms of war equipment, the new generators potentially are capable of providing annually the power required to build 30 large battleships, or to construct more than 11,000 4-motored bombers."

Yanks Bagged 4,100 Nazi Planes in '43; Lost 1,150

LONDON.—The Britain based United States Eighth air force destroyed 4,100 German fighter planes during 1943 and dropped 55,000 tons of bombs on Nazi-occupied Europe at an over-all loss of less than 4 per cent, Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of the group, reported.

American losses for the year were approximately 1,000 bombers and 150 fighters.

Two American youths gaze up at a huge pile of beans which is part of a year's supply for 22,000,000 people. These beans were raised on the irrigated lands of the West served by the bureau of reclamation facilities. Potatoes for 13,000,000 persons, other vital war crops, and 1,850,000 kilowatts of power for war plants were produced on reclamation developments in 15 western states.

from additional generators at other major plants, was in a large degree responsible for the West's continued expansion in war production. With a 35 per cent increase in capacity during the year—nearly half a million kilowatts—and a 100 per cent gain in output to 9 1/2 million kilowatt-hours, reclamation plants energized industries producing aluminum and magnesium, airplanes, ships, ferro-alloys for tanks, explosives, manganese, processed foods, and other materials vital to the prosecution of the war.

Commissioner Bashore said that no less significant than power production as a contribution to fighting strength was the production of vital foods, for the armed forces and civilians at home, on the 4,000,000 acres of land irrigated by reclamation facilities in 15 western states. From these highly productive areas, once desert wastes, came enough beans to provide an annual supply for nearly 22,000,000 people, potatoes for 13,000,000, and (through alfalfa fed to beef and dairy herds) beef for 4 1/2 million and milk for 3 3/4 million.

Crop Values 100 Per Cent Over 1940. The gross value of crops produced on land served by reclamation works during the calendar year 1942 was $272,048,516, an increase of more than 45 per cent over the 1941 value and a 100 per cent gain over 1940.

In addition to power and irrigation service, supplemental municipal and industrial water is being provided for cities, military concentrations and industries. In all, nearly 5,000,000 people live in regions which look to the bureau for these services.

At the end of the fiscal year '41 projects were in operation, under construction or authorized. Fifty-two of these were generating power or supplying water for irrigation and other beneficial uses. On or near practically every reclamation project are airbases, other military establishments, and war industries.

The storage capacity of 81 reservoirs reached a new high of more than 64,000,000 acre-feet during the year, which total is 80 per cent of the storage in the West.

Conditions beyond the control of the bureau prevented it from carrying out in full the power and irrigation program it was prepared to undertake at the beginning of the war, Mr. Bashore explained. This called for increasing the installed power capacity to 3,300,000 kilowatts by 1945-46 and extending irrigation service to more than 9,000,000 additional acres, provided manpower, critical materials, and funds were made available promptly. However, to divert critical materials to other war uses, the War Production board issued stop - construction orders against the installation of 865,000 additional kilowatts, and at the end of the fiscal year had cleared construction on projects that will serve 600,000 additional acres by 1945. (Projects that will serve an additional 200,000 acres by 1945, provided materials and manpower are made

TRIXIE TEEN SAYS—

It's a bad idea to go "steady" with one boy, or to chum around with only one "Best Girl Friend." There's safety in numbers and the girl who mixes with the crowd never finds herself out on a limb all by herself. After all, a boy may be YOUR Dream Prince one day and someone else's Flutterbump the next. If you have others in reserve, you won't have time to brood about his fickleness. And in the same way even "best girl friends" are apt to have tiffs over nothing at all, and, until you kiss and make up, you'll find you're pretty lonely if you've been cold shouldering all the other girls. Yes, sir, yes, sir, Group Insurance is the best policy for a girl who wants to have a good time.

PIGGY BANK

One of the most popular pieces of costume jewelry for teens this year was the Piggy Bank lapel pin, made out of flower painted plastic in the shape of a pig with a bright new penny sticking in its side. Well, save your dollars, teens, and make your own Piggy Bank pin. Merely get a small piece of oilcloth—cut it out double in the shape of a pig. Then stuff it with cotton and sew together with the overcast stitch. Cut a slit in one side, just big enough to force a penny halfway through. Put some available, were cleared in the current fiscal year.)

Plan Postwar Projects. "While war contributions were of paramount importance during the year, attention also was focused on the problems due to arise in the postwar era," Commissioner Bashore pointed out. "In anticipation that the nation will be called upon to provide employment and settlement opportunities for returning servicemen and war workers, the bureau continued to assemble an impressive list of projects for postwar construction."

Commissioner Bashore added that the bureau had for a postwar program a nucleus of projects where construction had been halted or retarded by war conditions. On these, work could be resumed or begun promptly to cushion the impact of the transition from war to peacetime economy by providing employment in construction activities and permanent settlement opportunities on irrigated lands. So far as funds and manpower permit, the bureau is expediting investigations and plans additional projects to be constructed as appropriations are made.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

No matter how small children are they want their share in the family activities. You may find it hard to suit tasks to your tiny children, but you will be rewarded if you'll let them do something to help instead of sending them off to play.

A small child—from two to six—likes to handle things. Allow them to unpack groceries and put some of them away. He might also be allowed to put out clean towels, pick up his toys.

Children from 6 to 12 like to do grown-up things. Teach them to set the table, run the vacuum, help make beds. Don't allow the children to do the same thing too often in succession as they soon become bored. Ring in quick changes to keep up interest.

Allow a child to care for his own room, rearrange his furniture and really feel important.

glue on the end of the penny you insert so that it will hold to the cotton stuffing. Attach a safety pin on the under side with a piece of adhesive, and finish off by decorating with little flowers in nail polish or paint. Buy War Stamps with the dollar you have saved!

JITTERBUG JOOLERY

No tricks for teens' column would be complete without a few new brainstorms for your joolery box. Incidentally, and by the way, try covering a cigar box with wallpaper for your jewelry or use one of those sectional boxes that eggs come in. An old muffin tin, painted a pretty color, also helps to keep your jewelry neat and tidy.

ON THE BALL—Nothing like ball fringe jewelry for your sheer cotton blouses. Make double or triple necklaces or graduated strands, make bracelets and even rings. You get the ball fringe in the upholstery department of any store.

LOLLIPOP LOVELIES—Cover the candy part of a lollipop with colorless nail polish. Then make a little dress for the stick part. Attach yarn pigtails or a funny little felt hat to the top. Sweet stuff to wear on your lapel.

CLOTHESPIN COUPLES—Make lapel dolls out of snap clothespins, dressing them alike in couples. As each guest enters you clip a clothespin doll on him (or her) and the idea is to pair up with the person wearing a matching doll. They make cute souvenirs to wear after the party.

AMERICA IN ACTION

Salerno Campaign Reveals American Heroism

The courage, daring and initiative displayed by soldiers of the Fifth army in the landing at Salerno at the outset of the Italian invasion and in the campaign which followed are featured in a recent report received by the war department from Col. William R. Blakely, who has just returned to this country after six months as a front line observer for the army ground forces in the Mediterranean theater of operations.

Here are excerpts from his report: Lieut. Robert Carey of 156 Water Street, Waterville, Maine, soon after reaching the Salerno beach, was fired upon by three Germans armed with machine pistols. He returned the fire with his carbine, killing one of the enemy. Then his gun jammed and grasping it as a club, he advanced in the face of their fire. He swung his gun at the second and beat him into submission, but the gun broke in his grasp. With bare hands, he tackled the third man, took away his weapon and made him a prisoner.

Sergt. Manuel Gonzales of Fort Davis, Texas, discovered the location of a German 88 in the sand dunes from where it was pouring a murderous fire on the assault boats. Sergeant Gonzales crawled around the position under machine gun fire that was so close to the ground that it set on fire the pack on his back. When he reached a favorable position, he pitched several grenades with deadly accuracy at the emplacement, killing the gun crew and blowing up their ammunition.

Sergt. Gaither W. Vaughan of Coleman, Texas, was in command of a squad which was fired upon from a group of buildings across a canal which the soldiers were attempting to cross. He directed his men to fire on the buildings while he advanced toward the enemy position by himself. While working his way forward he surprised three Germans and captured them and their motorcycles. Using hand grenades, Sergeant Vaughan then charged a machine gun emplacement in the face of heavy fire, knocked out the gun and killed the crew.

An unidentified parachute infantryman found himself trapped on a hill with no cover except the body of a fallen comrade. Speaking German, he ordered approaching Nazis to the right or left to where they would come in line with American fire. In this manner he held his ground until relief came. He was individually credited with killing 16 Germans.

Germans' Rocket Gun Equals Six Howitzers

School Party

About 85 Tawas City junior and senior high school pupils met Saturday night, at the school Auditorium to celebrate their success in the recent school magazine subscription drive. A skating party had been planned but owing to the rain on Saturday made skating out of the question.

The children gathered at the Auditorium at 7:30 to play games. At 9:30 the Freshmen, Sophomores and Seniors spread a weiners and buns and pop feed for the Seventh, Eighth and Eleventh grades, who had won the contest. Due to the illness of the teachers, Mr. Wilkinson was the only teacher who arrived to chaperone the party. The pupils expressed their thankfulness that he was in good health.

All left for home at ten o'clock sharp, C.W.T. It is hoped that there will still be an opportunity this winter for the all-high school skating party.

No dance this week.

Keeping Dust From Scattering

Importance of Steel
Steel's effect upon life today is so important that we could give up most other metals—including gold—with less disturbance to civilization. Today's steels are the strongest, toughest, hardest, yet most ductile, elastic and obedient of all metals used by mankind.

4TH WAR LOAN

TREASURY DEPARTMENT
DEFENSE SAVINGS STAFF

OFFICE OF STATE ADMINISTRATOR

TO THE MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN OF MICHIGAN:
LET'S ALL BACK THE ATTACK!

That is the national slogan of the Fourth War Loan Drive. It is up to us to prove with our dollars that it is not merely a slogan. We can't win this war with brave words.

Backing the attack to the limit of our ability would mean an avalanche of dollars that would make our Fourth War Loan quota of $440,000,000 look like a mere minor objective on the tough, hard, and long road to victory.

Backing the attack means putting into War Bonds and Stamps the dollars and dimes and pennies that would otherwise go toward things we can well do without.

Backing the attack means wanting to win the war so much that we are all willing to do something about it!

Backing the attack means saying "yes" to the members of the volunteer War Bond army who will ask you to buy -- saying it quickly and eagerly so that they can go without loss of time and with quickened pulse to the next patriotic American to whom they offer the best investment in the world.

Backing the attack means just exactly what it says. The men of our fighting forces will soon be engaged in the greatest attack in the history of the world. Are we with them?

Backing the attack by buying War Bonds means that we are--

Backing the attack with dollars which mean Victory.

HOW ABOUT IT?

Sincerely yours,

Frank N. Isbey
