TELLS HIS CUSTOMERS ABOUT ALL-BRAN

And How It Helped Relieve His Constipation!

Here's a really enthusiastic letter you'll want to read:

"I'd suffered for years with constipation Took everything from salts to castor oil, and felt run down, always taking so many and felt run down, always taking so many physics. Then, two weeks ago, I found out about ALL-BRAN. Since I've been eating ALL-BRAN, I have needed no physics, and am starting to feel like a new man. I'm telling my customers on my milk route about your wonderful product." Mr. Leon Swartz, 1738 N. Wilton St., Phila., Pa.

What's the secret of such reports of ALL-BRAN's results? Simply that ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of certain "cellulosic" elements—lack of which in sufficient quantities is a common cause of constipation! They help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic contents for easy, natural elimination. ALL-BRAN is not a cathartic! It doesn't "sweep you out"!
It is a gentle-acting, "regulating" food! If this is your trouble eat
ALL-BRAN regularly, drink plenty of water. See if you don't cheer its welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

And learning, too this was their first day of real fighting, and there is just a hell of a lot about war that you can't find in any book and that they can't teach you in maneuvers. Buzz Wagner, the best fighter of them all, would have told you that.

"Buzz, with a single P-40, had done a job that ordinarily would be assigned to an entire squadron. (A fighter squadron is 25 planes.) Buzz had been sent out in the early morning full of ammunition for his six .50caliber guns and with 30-pound fragmentation bombs under his wings, so he was ready to tackle almost anything he saw.

"He was out over the sea north of Luzon, sitting on the overcast, when suddenly a terrific ack-ack barrage came snorting up at him through the cloud layer. There was so much of it Buzz figured it must have been at least a Jap battleship shoveling it up at him, so he was pulling off to the south-still staying above the cloud layer-when he spotted four Jap fighters high above him. He was tempted to dump his bombs-which would give him more speed and maneuverability-and go up there to tangle with them, but those bombs, according to his brief-

"But all of a sudden about three bushels of red-hot Jap tracers came whizzing by his cockpit. He pushed the stick forward to nose her down, and then in a climbing turn to the right pulled her back up into the sun-and then he looked back to see that two of the four Jap fighters had detached to work him over.

"They were coming hell-for-breakfast, so he pulled a cute maneuverthrottled back suddenly to let them go roaring on by him, and then opened up on their vanishing tails. His first burst put them both on fire. Those good old .50-calibersthe P-40 had six of them and when they speak, they do all the talking.

"Remember all this time Buzz hadn't dumped his bombs. They might easily have cost him his life, but his job was to get to Lingayen Field, where he had a rendezvous with Lieutenant Russell Church. "As he approached Lingayen, first he saw Russ, who fell in on his wing, and then he saw his target -all those Jap planes on the ground lined up just like it was for an ordinary peacetime Saturday-morning inspection. I want you to get this-to see it isn't only the American Air Force which gets caught with its pants down and its suspenders trailing.

"They started the long glide down, circling the field, and then Buzz peeled off and started in on them. Russ was to follow, but at a good distance, so he wouldn't pick up in his propellers the fragments of Jap planes tossed up by Buzz's frag bombs.

"So down they went-Buzz first, then Russ, just skimming the field. As the first target came into sight Buzz let go first one and then the other of his 30-pound fragmentation bombs, and looking back over his shoulder, he saw old Russ was just coming in behind him. Buzz went on across the field and then pulled up sharply to watch Russ' bombs go right down the line. Russ' tail was on fire from Jap ack-ack, and he to keep wandering right on over onto knew it, but he stayed dead on his its nose in a shell crater. Those run, making direct hits on those phony alerts were a constant strain, | neatly lined-up Jap planes, and then -Buzz still watching-Russ pulled fifteen minutes later. I've since up at the end of the field in a slow wondered if maybe fifth-columnists half-roll and-went in. Buzz says it's just possible Russ was able to bail out-he couldn't wait to be sure, for now he was getting ready for his second run, all alone. He came in on this second pass through the Jap ack-ack with his six .50-calibers pounding away at those parked planes-some were already burning from the bombs he and Russ had dropped-crossed the field once, and had banked to come in for a third pass when Jap tracers began whizzing past his cockpit from behind. He looked over his shoulder to see that the last two of those four Zeros were diving on him. Of course there was nothing he could do but push his throttle up to the fire walljamming on all the gas his engine would take-and try to get away.

> (Air force slang meaning his plane went into the ground.)

"Inch by inch he pulled away from those Zeros-he looked back at the field once and saw about six good fires going-and Buzz said it was damned lucky he got back to the field, because he could tell the boys that a P-40 could outrun a Zero at sea level. Remember, though, he said outrun, not outmaneuver.

"In those days everybody was learning stuff that wasn't in the book, and passing it on. Everybody had to learn, which is why we don't get bitter at being mishandled at first.

"But Buzz always hated to talk about himself. 'Did you hear about the Rat?' he asked me, very excited. The Rat of course was our old friend Lieutenant Sam Marrett, who had picked up this nickname at Randolph Field because of his pointed nose and small face. 'The Rat took four winglings out on patrol, and they were laying back above a hillside on Lingayen when they spotted a Jap landing party, so they climbed to get altitude and then peeled off out of the sun onto it-the Rat leading, of course—in one long string, each picking his barge. What happened no one knew for sure. But one of the Rat's bullets must have touched off the magazine racks in the Jap barge he picked, anyway the barge blew right up in his face, and the Rat's plane disintegrated. But the other four kids continued on their runs, first dropping their frag bombs, and then strafing back and forth-they had Japs diving off those barges in every direction.'

"That day," said Frank, "my job was the tower, not going on missions myself or even listening to gossip. A little after noon I happened to be looking up at the overcast toward the roar made by one of our planes which I thought maybe would be trying to come in when suddenly I saw a parachute blossom just under the overcast-and another-and another. I counted eight, so it must be a Fortress-but no ninth. Instead, at the very end of these eight I saw a dark object go hurtling into the ground. One of our Forts, but whose? I didn't find out until evening that it was Colin Kelly. He'd been out there following his briefing that I'd heard that morning, which was to attack Jap transports and their naval escorts. He'd laid a direct hit square on the very biggest target any pilot could hope for and had been on his way home-had been about to let down through that overcast onto Clark Field-when two Jap fighters, who had been hanging on ever since he left the convoy, hit him. They put a lucky incendiary into his oxygen system, and of course it started to burn like cotton soaked in gasoline. But Colin wasn't rattled. He gave the regular orders over the interphone system for the other eight boys of his crew to climb into their chutes and abandon ship.

"Now a part of this procedure in a Fortress is that the pilot must be the last to leave. It's the same in the Navy, except that it's sometimes just a gallant gesture, particularly when the captain can't help much by staying, and if the ship does go down under him he can float away from the bridge in his life jacket, and pretty soon someone's giving him a slug of rye and a brisk rubdown in the wardroom of another

"But in the Air Force it's the real McCoy. Because if a Fortress is on fire, somebody has to stay on the stick to keep her level and right side up while the other eight make their jumps. That somebody is the pilot, and that's one of the things you must be ready to do in order to wear those pretty silver wings on your chest that the betterupholstered girls stare at in the better-upholstered bars. "Well, Colin stayed on the stick as his plane dropped with its oxygen system flaming, and all eight got out, and I suppose carefully counted one thousand-two thousand-three thousand like it says in the book. before they pulled their cords and their chutes blossomed.

"But by the time the last one was out, and Colin got his own chute on and opened his top escape-hatch window above that fume-filled cockpit and crawled up through it-well, he cleared the plane all right, but he was so close to the ground that he never had a chance to crack his

JESUS BETRAYED, DENIED AND CONDEMNED

LESSON TEXT: Mark 14:10, 11, 53, 54, 66-72; 15:12-15.
GOLDEN TEXT: He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief.—Isaiah 53:3.

The time had come! Jesus was about to be condemned and crucified; and though sinful men thought thus to rid themselves of the One who had pierced their hypocrisy and unveiled their unrighteousness, His death was, in the providence of God, the giving of Himself for our sins. What He endured as He went to the cross is enough to break one's heart, for here we see the denial, betrayal and compromise of men. I. Christ Sold for Money (14:10,

When one sees the awful things which have been done and are being done for money in this world it becomes clear why the Bible repeatedly calls it "filthy lucre." "Money! How many awful things have been done for money. How many dishonest officials have secured high places in government by money! How many people have lost their lifesavings because some shrewd, crooked broker schemed to take their money away, because he wanted it. How many millions of people have been kept in poverty because men cared more to increase their wealth than they did to relieve the distress of those who worked for them . . . Money is what keeps the dance halls going; a lust for money is what keeps our breweries and distilleries open; it is money that makes men want to produce lascivious plays and motion pictures" (W. M. Smith).

Fundamentally, it was the love of money that made Judas betray his Lord. "What will ye give me?" was his question (Matt. 26:15).

But money is not the only price with which men may be paid. We find next-

II. Christ Deserted for Comfort (14:53, 54).

Peter would not have risen to the suggestion that he sell his Lord for money, so Satan was too smart to stir his loyalty by such a suggestion. He used another method with Peter.

Things had become very difficult for our Lord. He was led away to be falsely accused and subjected to persecution. It was no longer comfortable to be at His side, as it had been when He fed the multitude and healed the sick, and silenced His enemies.

This was cold unpleasant business. Why should Peter get mixed up in it? After all he could just as well keep a safe distance, and besides it was warm at the fire. Oh, yes, the enemies of the Lord had kindled it and stood around it, but that didn't need to make Peter an enemy of His—or did it?

How many Christians who would meet with hasty and courageous denial the suggestion that they sell their Lord, have betrayed Him by warming themselves at the fires of this world. III. Christ Denied for Fear (14:

Peter, the staunch defender of our Lord, who had assured Him that no matter how cowardly the others might be, he would stand fast (Mark 14:29), now quails before a servant maid. He curses and swears to try to strengthen his words of denial.

What had happened to Peter? He had become so at home by the fire of the enemies of his Master that he was afraid to confess his relationship to Him. He had followed so far off that He had lost touch with the Lord, and was again like the Peter who on another day looked away from the Master's face and feared the boisterous waves (Matt. 14:30).

Peter was afraid, and he denied his Lord. How many there are who are like him. They tremble before an unbelieving world, and fearing the scoffing of poor, weak, sinful men, they deny their Lord.

It is time that Christian people took courage and stood up for the Lord in all times and circum stances.

IV. Christ Condemned for Convenience (15:12-15).

Pilate found no fault in Christ. He had no desire to condemn Him. He wanted to set Him free. But it proved to be politically inexpedient. To stand by his convictions concerning this innocent person would have greatly inconvenienced him in many ways. So "wishing to content the multitude" he delivered Jesus to be scourged and crucified.

Men and women today are willing to condemn Christ anew because to submit to Him and hear His name would require of them a sacrificial living which they are not willing to give. So they pass Him by, and go on to a Christless eternity.

It costs something to follow Jesus -to stand true to Him in a rejecting world. One wonders at times whether this is not one reason why God does not send a revival to the Church. We are probably not willing to bear the inconvenience. It would upset our regular order of life.

NIGHT RATES

NOW BEGIN AT 6 P. M.

Effective March 1, night long distance telephone rates were set ahead one hour and now are in effect at 6:00 o'clock in the evening. They continue until 4:30 o'clock in the morning.

That arrangement was reached through mutual agreements by the Telephone Company with the Michigan Public Service Commission and the Federal Communications Commission.

The added hour for night rates gives men and women in the armed services a longer low-rate period in which to call home.

Washington, D. C. SHOE FIGHT

A hot fight is raging backstage between the WPB and the OPA over shoe leather. Inside fact is that the shoes you are wearing are inferior not entirely because the best leather is rightfully being allocated to the armed forces. That is only part of the story.

Another reason why your shoes are inferior and your shoe bill higher is that certain industry moguls in WPB's leather and shoe branch have been blocking a program to prolong the wear of civilian shoes by the application of wax and oil treatments to soles. The process costs only two or three cents a shoe, but many manufacturers don't like it because it isn't flossy enough. They say that consumers prefer shoes with a high, light polish on the sole, though they admit that this polish robs the sole of some of its wearing quality.

Bureau of Standards experts have testified at hearings of the senate war-mobilization committee, headed by West Virginia's Sen. Harley Kilgore, that the use of oil (by actual test) prolongs the life of shoes 14 per cent, while soles treated with wax preparations last from 30 to 41 per cent longer.

This has been corroborated by leading industry spokesmen, including Paul C. Wolfer, a vice president of the Douglas Shoe company, who is a consultant in the standards division of the OPA. Wolfer not only urged general adoption of oilwax treatments but intimated that the government should crack down on the shoe industry and require it.

In addition to cutting down the nation's shoe bill, another factor Wolfer emphasized was wartime conservation of leather. So far, however, the OPA has made little progress in selling the oil-treatment idea to the WPB. Some manufacturers have adopted the sole treatments voluntarily, but only on a very lim-

The big shoe companies, OPA claims, are antagonistic. In this, they have the potent backing of the WPB's leather and shoe branch, headed by Lawrence B. Sheppard, a vice president of the Hanover Shoe company.

Before the Kilgore committee,
Sheppard expounded at length on "manufacturing difficulties . . . lack of conclusive tests," and other objections to a government order requiring the oil treatment of soles. His statement was effectively contradicted by other witnesses, who brought out that tests had been adequate and that facilities for sole treatments could be installed throughout the country with little difficulty and at small cost.

NOTE: The Kilgore committee has finally sent a hot note to Donald Nelson demanding that he issue an order to compel the general adoption of sole treatments by shoe com-

DESK ADMIRALS

The navy is doing a magnificent job whenever it goes into action in the Pacific, but members of the Truman committee are not convinced that this is true of all the desk admirals or their flunkies in Washington. Among other things, they are casting a curious eye at the manner in which Adm. Ernie King and his staff preserve the myth of being "at sea" when actually they sit at desks in Washington.

To make the myth more realistic, Admiral King lives most of the week on a yacht in the Potomac. It is a small yacht and his multitudinous staff has no room to live there with him. However, they draw extra pay for the hazards of life "at sea."

So when payday arrives, the paymaster carries a satchel down to Admiral King's yacht to pay off the staff. The paymaster knows full well that the men are not on the yacht. However, he goes through this ritual, then comes back from the yacht to the navy department, where he finds the men and gives them their pay.

STEEL-WAGE DISPUTE

Hard-working Will Davis, chairman of the War Labor board, is having a tough time selecting a panel to settle the vital question of wages in the steel industry. He proposes a panel of three, one representing labor, one the steel industry, one the public, with three alternates. But though he has called up all sorts of people and literally begged them to serve, their patriotism seems deficient when it comes to labor disputes.

Meanwhile, the steel companies, faced with retroactive pay for whatever wage decision is finally handed down, are getting restless.

W HEN Cecil Isbell, one of football's ablest passers, left the Green Bay Packers last fall to become assistant coach at Purdue, most observers figured that his old battery mate, End Don Hutson, would spend much of his future playing time merely attempting to snare those long tosses.

But Hutson proved the weakness of the old argument that a receiver is only as good as his passer. The Isbell-Hutson combination was probably the greatest in football history, but Hutson managed to do right well without Isbell.

When Hutson's name was entered on the official books of the National Football league as 1943 pass-receiving champion, it was the third consecutive year he had won that honor. And it was the sixth time in nine years of professional ball.

It's hard to believe, but during those years he scored touchdowns on 21.6 per cent of the passes he caught-one touchdown on every five catches. That is one of the finest efficiency records ever posted.

1943 Record

League records show that Hutson, who came out of retirement in 1943 to play one more season for the Packers, nabbed 47 passes during the regular 10-game schedule for a total gain of 776 yards and 11 touch-

Hutson, who is scheduled to become an assistant Green Bay coach in the fall, raised his three all-time records a little higher over the heads of competitors, increasing his total of receptions to 384, number of touchdowns on passes to 83 and yards gained to 6,310.

The former Alabama star set one new record during the season three weeks after Wilbur Moore of the Washington Redskins had given him something to work for. Moore topped the yards-gained mark on October 31 against Brooklyn when his seven catches gained 213 yards and two touchdowns. Hutson came back—also against Brooklyn—to collect 237 yards on eight passes, two of which brought scores.

The eight catches against Brooklyn plus eight more against New York, enabled Hutson to beat out Joe Aguirre of Washington for the championship.

tremendous purses."

It is Hogan's idea that the $50,000 purses will come from businesses interested in national advertising. But we're a little skeptical when he states that the trend will be away from the carnival atmosphere now surrounding many of the major tournaments.

Obviously advertisers want to invest their money in events which will give them the greatest return for each dollar spent. If they think the addition of a few circus trappings will increase interest in the event being promoted, then those trappings might as well be taken for granted.

"Practically all of the name players who carry the professional game and make the tournaments," Hogan said, "have no appetite for the wild hurdy-gurdy tournament and they won't play in them if there is money to be made at other places. The kind of tournament they love is the Masters, which Bobby Jones started at Augusta, Ga. It was run with the restraint that golf has to have to be perfect. Even the people who came out to watch the matches understood and appreciated the game."

All of which is very true. But don't forget the between-halves entertainment offered at football games and the extra inducements offered by theaters. Those "extras" are to build and hold interest.

Most dyed-in-the-wool golf fans would like to see the razzle-dazzle eliminated in tournaments. But that isn't necessarily true of the public in general. Crowds want color-and if it is lacking in golf tournaments it will be found somewhere else.

Secrets

By FAYE McGOVERN McClure Syndicate-WNU Features.

"PLEASE," Chu Teh begged her old neighbor, "do not take the children away."

He looked at her imploring face in consternation. "But they might reveal to the enemy where their elder brother, San, is hidden. We had no time to burn his wrecked plane. Hardly was there time to secrete him here. Only after dark will it be safe to move him."

"No. No. They will not speak. And I have heard the enemy will not harm us so long as we remain peace-

Her neighbor sighed deeply. "Very well. I will go lest my presence make them suspicious."

Chu Teh turned quickly back to her baking. With her husband dead her children were her whole world. She could not bear to have them away from her-especially with the foe so near. She went to the rear door of her small cottage and called, "Chan! Lotus!"

A boy of eleven, and a small girl appeared from behind a ramshackle stable. Both were incredibly dirty. The boy carried a length of hollow bamboo, and Chu Teh knew he had been playing his favorite guerrilla warfare game again with small Lotus. But there was no time for reprimands.

"Guests are coming," she said with feigned brightness, "and we are going to play 'secrets.' Remember avaging to the part of th ber—evasions, yes, but no lies. And the one who fails gets not one sweet cake. Now do all of you understand, my little ones?"

Covetously the children eyed the delicacies cooling on the table. Seldom were they allowed even a taste, for their mother sold them for a living. At the sound of approaching steps Chu Teh said quickly, question is, 'Where is San?' "

Young Chan's eyes sought hers so swiftly she realized he appreciated the significance of the question, and felt a pang of fear. In his intense desire to prove how clever he could be in outwitting the enemy he might easily blunder into revealing San's hiding place. She looked at him pointedly. "Even when we are asked, 'Where is San?' we will not tell, will we?"

"Noooo," said small Lotus. Young Chan reached toward the table, then turned abruptly toward the rear of the house.

Chu Teh stiffened as five Japanese soldiers entered without knocking, their glances darting everywhere. 'Where is the one called San?'' demanded the leader, with typical Jap curtness.

But there was only a deathly si-

"You—his mother," he shot at Chu Teh. "Where have you hidden him?" "My son is with his ancestors," she said with gentle dignity, and put refreshments before them.

"Then where is the body?" the spokesman sneered. "You there, small girl. Tell us lest I cut off your ears."

He took hold of Lotus roughly. The child's frightened eyes sought ners, and quickly the largest cake. "Yes, small Lotus," she said brightly. "Where is San?" The little girl vaguely flung out a small hand. "They took him away."

Suddenly Chu Teh realized Chan was not there. If he had run to the ancient graveyard over the hill to warn San he would surely be seen, he thought.

"Enough! We will search the place!" Pitchfork tines prodded deep into the rice-straw rick. Seeing soon that the tiny house afforded no hiding place the soldiers headed for the rickety stable.

Behind the barn, thatch missing from its roof, a shallow pit told his mother that Chan had practiced breathing through the hollow bamboo while buried beneath straw and

The soldiers held a hasty consultation. Then Chu Teh was told they were satisfied and would leave. With horror she saw that they took the path toward the ancient cemetery. First they would make certain that she had told the truth. Why had she mentioned that San was with his ancestors! With only caved-in graves to hide in they would undoubtedly discover him, she thought in horror.

She waited for an agonizingly long time, then crept after them, and almost fainted at the sight of a freshly covered grave. They had found him and-Chu Teh moved nearer. But wasn't it odd for the enemy to make food offerings? There was one of her own sweets.

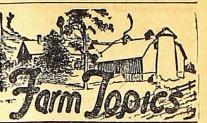

"So this is where you lead us!" It was the sneering voice of the soldier behind her, and she realized they had deliberately left her alone in order to follow her.

She burst into tears and rocked back and forth. "Aye, and here my son is buried. You can see I did not

The man looked at her huddled figure, then spat contemptuously, rasped an order, and the unwelcome visitors stamped off toward

Chu Teh sat motionless for a while. Then very carefully she leaned over and whispered, "San, my son, are you all right?"

"Yes, Mother, thanks to my clever little brother," answered a muffled voice from a barely perceptible protruding stick of hollow bamboo.

If Land Needs Boron It Shows in Alfalfa

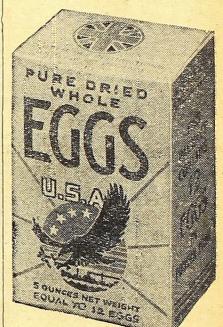

Yellowing Leaves Is Usual Danger Sign

It is just as important to have a sufficient supply of available boron in the soil as it is to have nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and other nutrient elements, although only an extremely small amount of boron is required for normal plant development, according to C. H. Stinson and E. E. DeTurk of the University of Illinois.

Of the common farm crops, legumes require more boron than do grain or grass crops and thus are more sensitive to a deficiency in the soil than are the latter.

Symptoms of boron shortage are more frequently observed in alfalfa than in other legume crops. They include a shortening of the upper internodes and the appearance at the uppermost nodes (joints) of lateral shoots that frequently extend beyond the tip of the central shoot, producing a rosette effect. In advanced stages, the terminal bud may be dead. Yellowing or reddening of the leaves is generally, but not always, present.

Boron is usually applied as borax, which is one of the common water softeners used in the household. It contains 11 per cent boron. Alfalfa growers who have observed symptoms suspected of resulting from boron deficiency may first try fertilizing a small plot in the field with borax for one or more years at the rate of 25 pounds to the acre. A 20-ounce box of borax that can be bought in a grocery store will provide enough boron for an area two rods wide and four rods long. It can be spread conveniently with a handhorn seeder. If used at rates greater than 25 to 35 pounds an acre borax may injure or even kill the

Eleven - Acre 'Hothouse' Yields 6 Crops a Year

Mr. David Lowe, who lives near Edinburgh, has a gardening project said to be unique in the United Kingdom. To sum it up, Mr. Lowe has 11 acres underlaid with steam pipes and covered a foot or so above the surface, with glass panes set in frames. By shooting steam into the ground once a year, he "boils" the soil, killing all weeds. Each acre gets 100 tons of fertilizer and decomposed straw a year. He gets from six to eight crops a year-a fantastic yield of lettuce, turnips, carrots, cauliflower, leek, onions, beans, and a lot of other things. In the short summer the glass is removed and the plants watered with warm water from overhead sprinklers. It is said his crops grow together in "wild joy." It sounds like it. Mr. Lowe appears to have raised the old hothouse and forcing bed to its highest efficiency. It must cost money, but the Lowes of the Edinburgh country have never been in business strictly for fun. His scheme seems likely to stir up almost as much excitement as our own Mr. Ed Faulkner provoked by his recent campaign against the moldboard plow. Maybe Mr. Lowe and Mr. Faulkner could get together on a project to feed tomorrow's world.

His crime? He had organized the Metal Workers' Union and was one of the leaders of the trade-union movement in Jugoslavia.

He was caught early in 1929 and jailed. He was released four years later with gray in the soft waves of his brown hair, ulcers in his stomach and a dream in his brain.

Leader of 300,000 Fighters. Today, at the age of 55, he stands at the head of an army of 200,000 and possibly 300,000 oddly uniformed but uniformly determined men and women known as "Partisans," who have proved everlastingly that slave men may win battles but free men win wars.

Today Josip Broz is the military and spiritual leader of a movement which has broken the Nazis' hold on the Balkans, obviated an Allied offensive in southeastern Europe until the main German armies can be crushed in the East and West, and has given new meaning to the words "A People's War" and "The Four Freedoms."

To his army and the guerrilla bands and to millions of Jugoslavs in freed territory and the outside world, Josip Broz is known as Tito. "Ti" means you and "To" means this. Broz has few idiosyncracies or mannerisms to mark him apart from other men, but one of them is the habit of prefacing an order with "You do this." Hence his name. It is pronounced Tee-toe. To the Titos of this world and their followers must go an indefinable measure of credit for the victory that will be ours.

To one particular Tito--he who was born on a 30-acre farm near Zagreb of a Croat father and a Slovene mother-must go most of the credit for the rebirth of Jugoslavia and the immobilization of the German armies in the Balkans, and the setting into motion of a revolution in southeastern Europe which might provide a permanent solution to the problems of one-third of the people of that continent.

Mikhailovitch Helped. What credit isn't Tito's must be given to Draja Mikhailovitch, who unfortunately chose, at one stage of his dramatic career as liberator, to turn from killing Germans to taking part in civil war and only sporadically resumed the bigger job.

Tito is of slightly more than medium height, broad-shouldered, longarmed and sturdy-legged. His head sets low on his shoulders and it is a remarkable head. In profile, it is the head of a poet and philosopher who is also a skilled craftsman-a Cellini perhaps. Full face, it is the tough, determined visage of a triplethreat halfback.

A side view of this prodigious proletarian shows a high forehead. bulgy shaggy brows with a deep crease between them, capable of eloquent frowning. Tito's nose is long, slightly beaked, with thick nostrils. He has a straight, kindly mouth, good chin and a heavy workman's neck. There is what some would call an American Indian cast in his features.

Face to face, he looks remarkably like a clean-shaven Stalin, the effect being accentuated consciously or not by the cut of his unadorned broadcollared tunic.

He speaks matter-of-factly, in a low, well-modulated voice, looks directly at you as he talks and never speaks until you have finished what you have to say. He talks, they say, to each individual in an audience, moving his eyes deliberately from one person to another.

He smokes innumerable cigarettes, chain fashion, from a small holder. Far from being "a man of steel," he is capable of great emotion.

Mourns for Dead.

"When something really bloody happens," a man who spent months with him in Jugoslavia told me, "he's knocked out. No hysterics, no pyrotechnics. He just retires quietly for hours, as he did the night he got word that his friends Milosevic and Kovasevic had been killed.' Out of their affection for Tito, the people have fashioned a legendary man of extraordinary courage and endurance who rides a white charger and walks uphill to spare its strength, who is always at the head of his guerrilla detachments.

In the Infantry You March, Fight Do Much More

WITH SECOND ARMY ON MA-NEUVERS, Somewhere in Tennessee.-"What do you do in the in-Everything. This new army is called an army of specialists, and it is. But your infantryman specializes in everything. He's a Jack of all trades.

Take the infantry regiment. It's the smallest self-contained fighting

It can repair its own arms, within limits, and its own trucks. It carries its own gas, and knows where it can get more. It carries its own ammunition, and has more supplies located. It sets up radio networks, and wire nets which can be used for either telephone or telegraph. It can call for help from planes, by spreading panels on the ground. It can signal with flares, or colored smokes.

If the enemy ever uses gas, the infantry is fixed to decontaminate its equipment and even the ground over which it moves. And if the enemy ever tries to use gas, the infantry can soon be ready to send some back at him. It can screen its movements with thick smoke.

It can feel out the enemy's movements with its own equivalent of mechanized cavalry, the regimental reconnaissance troops who travel afoot or in agile jeeps, carrying machine guns for sting.

What It Is. An infantry regiment is approximately 3,000 men and two years of

A regiment is hours spent at calisthenics, until muscles protest and tongues hang out. It's countless breathless gallops over obstacle courses, until the weary infantryman thinks he can go no fartherbut he can. It's mornings of tossing his companions around, and being tossed, in jiu jitsu classes. It's endless sessions of tumbling, a childish-appearing sport that may save his life when bullets are flying and he's got to hit the dirt quick, without injuring himself. It's physical fitness tests composed of exercises designed to strain every sinewagainst time. It's little four-mile forced marches in 50 minutes, with the infantryman's full load of 87

It's learning to do things the army way. It's polishing buttons, and shining shoes. It's being restricted for the week-end because the soles of the shoes under the bed were dirty. It's picking out the dirt in the cracks of the barracks floor with a pin, and polishing the tops of the light shades, so an inspecting hand will find no dust. It's washing his own clothes, and shaving every day. It's polishing his mess kit mirror-bright, and tooth-brushing the screw-heads of his rifle to get the last fleck of dust. It's mopping floors, and KP, and fatigue details.

Brain Work Too.

An infantry regiment is grinding hours on dull classroom subjects. It's a constant hammering on map reading and the use of the compass. It's instruction in military courtesy and discipline. It's classes in military law, to teach him his rights and duties in the army. It's radio code practice until the ears ring, and laying air-ground liaison panels until he sweats, with the temperature at zero. It's many, many days of studying pictures and dia-

Births in Bermuda Hit All-Time High of 955

HAMILTON, BERMUDA.-The increasing pressure of Bermuda's po ulation on an area shrunk by Uni States bases is emphasized by figures revealing 955 births last year among an estimated 35,000 permanent residents within 1,800 square miles. This 955 represents an alltime high and is made more complicated by the fact that about 21 per cent of the births are illegiti-

Finds Speedy Star

Dr. Frank K. Edmendson of the astronomy department of Indiana university measures the velocity of a newly discovered star that rockets through space at a speed of more than half a million miles an hour. Dr. Edmondson discovered this star through the measurement of astral bodies from photographs taken under cooperative arrangement between Indiana university and the University of Texas McDonald observatory. Located in the Milky Way, this new star is traveling away from the sun, according to Dr. Edmondson. Where it is going, nobody knows, but in the words of its discoverer, "it certainly is on its grams of enemy tanks and planes, and uniforms, and those of his own army and its Allies. It's drilling in message writing, in expressing himself so he won't be misunderstood. It's memory training, so that oral messages can go through when written ones aren't safe. It's countless lectures and demonstrations on field sanitation and first-aid. It's dryas-dust talks on the care and cleaning of clothing, the care and cleaning of equipment, the care and cleaning of weapons, the maintenance of motor vehicles.

It's constant practice at taking his weapons apart, and putting them together again, until he can do it in the dark. It's innumerable talks on tactics and then footsore days spent on practice in them.

It's days of the slow, steady work of field emergency mapping. It's nights spent walking compass courses, where an error lands him in the swamps, and perfection takes him through briars instead. It's the long hardening hikes at night when even the relief of a smoke is denied. It's hundreds of slit trenches and foxholes, dug in rocky and rooty ground. It's hours spent in observation posts, scanning a distant landscape for a tiny movement that may mean life, if seen, and death, if not. It's months of close order drill, until he falls into his proper spot without coaching and moves like a machine. It's hot afternoons of extended order drill-jumping up, rushing forward, plunging down, rolling over, inching forward.

Supper at 2 A. M. It's hours spent on the "dry line" until the perhaps aching bones and muscles drop naturally into the cramped positions from which a rifleman shoots best. It's many days on the range, lying in clammy mud or stifling dust, while the dust devils or the pouring rain make the target dance. It's running the bayonet course until his reactions become automatic. It's afternoons spent on the grenade court, until he can hit the half-hidden corner of a window. It's the long crawls and creeps that twist around. toughen protesting muscles for the time when he must crawl toward the enemy. It's that long crawl over the infiltration course, with machine gun bullets skimming the usual ribbon or yarn. top of his helmet, wire grasping him like unfriendly claws, and dynamite bursting in his face.

It's gas mask drill, to give speed against the time that may come. It's scouting and patrolling, and observation of things that aren't just natural, to make a woodsman of him. It's tent pitching, and conquering the maze of straps and canvas that make the infantry pack. It's camouflaging himself and his vehicles. It's fortifying a position, in not enough time and with inadequate tools.

It's the long hikes, when he learns to get by on a canteen of water a dusty. It's maneuvers, with no sleep, mouth. wet blankets, muddy and icy ground and dirt, and wet clothes. It's eatchow truck couldn't get to him sooner, and breakfast an hour earlier, because the truck must go back being down landing nets, and learning how to get out of a landing boat or

SOLDIERS SPEND $30,000,000 MONTHLY FOR BONDS

Soldier war bond purchasers are setting aside approximately $30,000,-000 a month from their pay to help buy the arms they are using with such devastating effect against the enemy, the war department has an-

One out of every three army men and women is investing in war bonds, according to the army war bond office of the army service forces at Chicago, Illinois. Between April 1 and November 30, 1943, they invested $197,086,568.

An estimated 1,005,505 bonds were issued in December, the bond headquarters announced, and a new peak is expected to be reached in January, with the issue of some 1,520. 714 bonds to army investors.

A large majority of the army investments are of small denominations. During November, 40 per cent of those investing in war bonds set aside $3.75 each from their monthly pay. Purchasers in this group will receive a $25 bond every five months. Another 26 per cent allocate $6.25 each per month, and receive a $25 bond every three months. Slightly more than 6 per cent allot $12.50 monthly for a $50 bond every three months.

In terms of the total amount of money invested by purchasers, the most important single bond-buying plan is that under which the soldier. per month from his or her pay for a $25 bond. More than a fifth of all army investors favor this plan, it was announced, and those in this category invested a total of $11,485,-452 in war bonds during November.

Six per cent of all army investors set aside monthly sums ranging from $27.50 to $375, it was disclosed. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Through 3 Wars

War is an old story to D. B. Perry (right) and Augustus F. Klasi, president and oldest employee, respectively, of an Ithaca, N. Y., war plant. Klasi, a toolmaker, has been with his company a half-century; President Perry, since 1897. They have worked through the Spanish-American and World wars and into the present conflict. A dab of nail polish on each will look like a cherry. Paint the cones, themselves, with colorless nail polish to preserve them and to discourage mice. String on yarn to make a necklace or wear singly as a lapel gadget.

BABY BEADS-The cutest idea yet in identification bracelets is to ask your mother for the little name necklace they gave you at birth in the hospital. Most mothers save them for sentiment. Shorten it slightly, if necessary, and wear around your wrist.

HEMLINE HINT-Edge your slip with lace and wear it just a tiny bit longer than your dress or skirt, so that the lace will peep below. Or, sew the band of lace inside your skirt hem, letting just the edge show

PENCIL POINTERS-Collect old pencil stubs. Tie yarn tightly around the top of each and attach to a braided yarn chain for a necklace. Cover the tips with nail polish.

PAPER BEADS - Cut colored pages from magazines in narrow strips. Wind each strip separately around a pin to form a long bead; then cover with shellac. Remove the pin and after the heads are dry, string them into a necklace. It's an oldie, but still a goodie.

What to Do

Nothing pleases the fastidious housekeeper more than a house full of closets-a place with a spot built in for everything.

Perfection is hard to achieve, but it is possible to have a place for everything-and everything in its place, with a little thought spent on the closet space we have.

Make a closet where there was none before, by curtaining off the corner of the room with floweredchintz. Match the valance to the ones over the windows.

Make or buy closet ensembles so your closet can be kept in order. Clothes hangers, hat boxes, giant shoe bags, all made from a pretty cotton gabardine to harmonize with your bedroom walls. Umbrella holders too are practical, and neat looking and can have a tiny pocket at the bottom to hold rubbers.
