POST-WAR AIMS EXPLAINED AT COUNTY MEET

Representative of State Plans Commission Here Monday

All governmental departments of the county, and townships and cities of the county were well represented at the Post-War Planning meeting held Monday evening at the court house. Herbert E. Hertzler, chairman of the Iosco County Planning Commission, acted as chairman.

Gale H. Gibson, representative of the State Post-War Planning Commission, explained the aims and purposes of county planning commissions. He said that Michigan had 1,000,000 people who would be directly affected by the change-over in industry after the war and that a proper public works program would prevent any widespread unemployment.

He stated that a county planning commission should act as an advisory committee to the Board of Supervisors, and co-ordinate the work and advise in the post-war projects of the governmental departments, and townships and cities of the county.

The state of Michigan has appropriated $5,000,000.00 to assist in planning these post-war projects. A portion of this has been allocated for local use in the various counties of the state. The money is to be used for preliminary engineering and making of plans. Requests for participation in this must be made before November 1, 1944. All funds not disbursed as of that date will be reportation among those who have asked for an appropriation.

Other speakers at the meeting were Dr. L. A. Wolfanger extension specialist from Michigan State College, and Herbert Berg of the Farm Management Department. A number of suggestions for post-war projects were made by those present.

We, the Republicans of Iosco county, in convention assembled realizing that the greatest growth and progress of our Nation have been achieved under the banner of the Republican party, and realizing, also, that a Republican victory is necessary in order to preserve American ideals, principles and liberties, or which our fellow citizens are fighting and for which they are ready to give the last full measure of devotion.

We urge that delegates elected at this convention to represent our party, will exercise their best judgment in selecting delegates to make nominations to the National convention, and will use their efforts to maintain harmony in Republican ranks.

We call the attention of Iosco county Republicans to the great need and care for selecting candidates at the coming Primary Election, men and women who represent the highest ideals in Republican principles, efficiency in office government, and knowledge of local needs and interests, realizing always that public officials represent the individual citizen or voter. Our local candidates are the standard bearers for District, State and National candidates.

We call on all those affiliated with the Republican party, to give their best efforts to the work before us, ever mindful of the fact that only by consistent, conscientious work can we achieve complete success and a Republican victory in November.

We urge your continued support of our Nation's war effort, as Freedom and Liberty are retained only by the blood and sweat of patriots.

ON THE HOME FRONT With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

ELABORATE box-like cornices to cover all rods and fixtures used in hanging curtains were the height of fashion in the formal rooms of the mid-Victorian period. They were often made of carved wood or of metal in intricate designs. Again they were padded or bedecked with tassels and fringe. The front of the cornice was called the face. The ends were called returns. Cornices are still used in simplified forms for our own windows and these terms are also used.

This sketch shows three different treatments of box cornices for modern windows. They all give a professional effect, yet any amateur may make them. The diagram shows grooves cut on the inside of the returns to hold wooden rods or slats to be used instead of metal rods for hanging glass curtains and overdraperies. If you already have double curtain rods, just leave them in place and fit your cornice over them. If you decide to paint the wood instead of covering it, the color may match the room woodwork or it may repeat some color in the drapery material, as shown at the right.

NOTE: This is the fourth and last of the series on modern adaptations of period curtain styles. If you are interested in making scalloped wooden cornices you will want pattern 207 which contains designs of scallops which may be used to cut dozens of different types to fit windows of any size. Pattern No. 207 is 15 cents postpaid. Address:

"ALL-BRAN WORKED WONDERS FOR ME!"

Says Constipation Sufferer

There's real hope for common constipation sufferers in this uncollected letter!

"Thanks for what KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN has done for me. I'm 75 years old. Had been taking pills and salts almost every night, 6 weeks ago. I started eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every morning. Soon I had regular movements without any trouble. I can't praise ALL-BRAN enough. It sure works wonders for me!" Mr. E. C. Zoak, Box 114, Fairbury, Ill.

How can such amazing results for thousands be explained? Scientists say it's because KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of certain "cellulosic" elements, lack of which in the diet is a common cause of constipation. They help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative. Doesn't "sweep you out!" It's simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food.

If you have constipation of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly with milk and fruit, or mixed with other cereals. Drink plenty of water. See if you, too, don't get real help! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of the Flying Fortress known as "The Swoose," which escaped from Clark Field, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Old 99, another Fortress, is struck down before it can get off the ground. The ground is littered with the skeletons of U. S. planes. No longer safe to sleep in the barracks, because Japs are photographing Clark Field, cots were moved into the middle of a cornfield. Later, they evacuate to Mindanao, and as they arrive Japs are already putting troops ashore on the island. Squadron Commander Major Gibbs goes out on a secret mission and fails to return. Harry Schreiber, the navigator, takes up the story.

CHAPTER VI

"About an hour out of Del Monte, Shorty Wheelers drops out of formation—we guess it's engine trouble and he can't keep up this rate of climb—and half an hour later Pease. As we come to the rendezvous point where we're due to make our turn and go straight in on our target, only thirty-five miles away, Lee Coats drops out—his motors we can see are weak, he can't make the altitude.

"That leaves just my pilot, Jack Adams, and Vandevanter to go on in alone. When we thought there would be six planes, we had planned to divide into two flights of three planes each. The flights were to come in on the target at three-minute intervals and at different angles.

"There are just two planes now, so Jack decides he'll pretend he is one flight and Vandevanter will play like he was the other. The two of us against this big gang of Jap ships we are closing in on.

"So, as agreed on, we come in first—flying north to south. But the overcast is so thick we have to get down to about 18,000 before we can see the target, and there it is—we're glimpsing it and then losing it and glimpsing it again through breaks in the clouds—a row of transports and naval craft escorting them.

"When we come in on the target, I'm down there in the lower jaw. But now my job as navigator is temporarily over, so I can leave it and go back to the bomb bay, where the bombs are hanging in racks on either side of a little aisle.

"Now the bomb-bay doors are opened, and light comes up around the bombs. And now the bombs are away. I lean over to look down through the open bomb-bay doors, feeling a little woozy because my oxygen mask is back by my seat in the navigator's compartment, and just before Jack Adams from his pilot's seat slammed those bomb-bay doors closed, looking down below the belly of the ship I think I see something, but then the doors slam shut and there is only blackness. So I run back to the navigator's compartment, and, boy! there they are—a whole gang of Zeros coming up after us. How did I feel? Just the way anybody feels the first time, no matter what they pretend later—it scared the hell out of me.

"There were five of them after us—climbing up and in on our tail. Our bottom gunner shot down the nearest one, but the other four kept coming in a tight formation. Jack Adams began wish-washing our tail up and down to give our top gunners a chance at them—no reason why the bottom gunner should have all the fun—and sure enough, the top gunner picked one out of that formation. That left three.

"So then Jack pulled a cute one. He throttled back suddenly and one Zero overshot us to the left, which made him a clay pigeon for our side gunner, who picked him off. Then still another came up under our stabilizer in the tail, and our bottom gunner got his second for the day. That made four Zeros down and one to go—and it was still going for us in spite of all we could do.

"We'd dribbled on down through the bottom of that cloud, and Jack was looking for a nice beach to set her down on. But there wasn't any beach—only jagged rocks with white surf wrapped around them—and we kept losing altitude.

"The hell with those, so Jack nosed her in toward land, still losing altitude fast, and then right ahead of us we spotted a big clump of trees—about sixty feet high. Well, there wasn't time for anything but a prayer, and not any long rambling one either. But Jack handled the situation beautifully. He pulled her nose up as high as he dared and just cleared those trees, and then, cutting the remaining two motors so we wouldn't have to climb out of her in flames, he made as nice a belly landing in a rice patch as you could hope for.

"You've forgotten that one remaining Zero? Well, I hadn't, because it had followed us all the way down. I crawled out as fast as I could and started running away from the plane parallel to the wing. The funny thing was Bill Railling, the co-pilot, was either stunned or felt comfortable right where he was. Anyway, he stayed right in his seat while this Zero circled and then came in, right along the line of our wing. I just had time to fall down on my chin and then it all happened in a split second. The Zero's guns opened up, so that the first slugs began kicking up the dust about thirty yards away in a straight line just a yard from my chin as she went by with a big wh-h-h-i-i-sh-sh—the slugs beating a tattoo along the length of the Fort's wing, with old Railling dreaming away there, all relaxed in his seat, right in the middle of them, and, believe it or not, the boy wasn't even scratched!

"Within three minutes of the time we crash-landed in the rice paddy behind those tall trees we were surrounded by a gang of Filipinos, all waving the longest, sharpest knives you'd want to see. But pretty soon we convinced them we weren't Japanese, so they all got helpful and told us we were on Masbate Island.

"Because these natives wanted to honor the American officers who were fighting for their country, they brought me a donkey to ride. Of course, to have refused would insult them, and yet I didn't dream the kind of a deal I was getting into. The first half-mile wasn't so bad, and I even thought I was lucky I wasn't walking and getting sore feet, like you do in the infantry. But pretty soon I began to realize, first just a little bit, and then more and more, that there are worse things than having sore feet.

"We crashed on the fourteenth of December and on the twentieth we bought an outrigger canoe for fifty pesos, and hired natives to sail and paddle us to the island of Panay, with me getting a chance to brush up on my navigating. When we were about forty miles from land I noticed the skipper of this craft of ours had crawled up into its nose and was peering down into the water. Why? Well, he explained, there were supposed to be a lot of floating Japanese mines here, and he thought it would be all right if we didn't bump any of them.

"The next day we landed on Panay, and were told the American forces were all ganged up down at its southern end, and when we got to them we reported to General Chynoweth. Then we really were in for it. Because it seemed the old 19th Bombardment Group had left Mindanao for Australia; so they grabbed us and attached us to a Filipino Field Artillery regiment, giving Jack Adams, Bill Railling, and myself a battalion to command, which we thought was going to be a considerable honor, since we were only lieutenants.

"Then we looked them over. They were all about high-school age. Half of them didn't speak English, and the job was to get them to understand you. Of course they didn't know what to do with a rifle, but this didn't matter, because we had only fifteen rounds of ammunition per man—not enough for an hour's target practice.

"The Field Artillery part of it all consisted of the name, plus six sights for old World War French 75-millimeter field guns. The guns themselves had been sunk on a supply ship in Manila Bay. The sights had been shined up and were in prime condition.

"We didn't encourage these kids to keep their rifles loaded, being afraid that if one of the guns went off in the dark they would start banging away and shoot each other and maybe us, so we gave them bayonet practice instead. Early in January they moved us over to Caygayan on Mindanao Island—we heard all the troops from all the islands were to make a stand there. But no Japs. They gave us a section of the beach a mile and a half long to defend if they came.

"Right behind our lines there was a small Jap colony. We knew they were there, of course—we'd gone through their houses looking for radio equipment, anything they might use to send information to the Davao Japs—and we posted a small guard around them. But they'd slip out and go on down to Davao to join the Davao Japs, and there wasn't much we could do to stop it. We were only a handful ourselves.

"So I was tickled to death when word came to go back to old Del Monte Field, where the planeless aviators were being assembled for evacuation to Australia, where we would get safely back into the air again.

"I got to Del Monte on March thirteenth and we were all ganged up on the field, where we were expecting B-17's to carry officers and men to Australia. At 9 p. m. we heard the motors of a plane and turned on our landing lights. But it didn't see them and kept on going. We didn't know it then, but we didn't have A1 priority, for those planes that night were intended to take out General MacArthur and his party and their baggage and records—only the General hadn't yet arrived. But we supposed the planes were for us.

"About 11 p. m. we heard another plane and snapped the landing lights on, and this time it saw them and landed. Out of the Fortress stepped Lieutenant Pease of our own 19th Bombardment Group. He told us the other plane we had heard was Godman's—it had got mixed up and bumped into the sea.

"But Pease was immediately called over by General Sharp, who told Pease that General MacArthur had been delayed, and that the plane should wait over a few days until he came.

"Now Pease didn't want to wait over for a single hour of daylight on Del Monte Field, for by that time the Jap planes were swarming over the place. Pease knew the Air Force was trying desperately to hang onto what few Forts they had left, and he realized that if he stayed over the next day the infantry would make him quite comfortable in a foxhole at the edge of the field, where he could watch his plane become the prize for a Japanese turkey shoot, for Del Monte by this time was as unsafe as Clark had been, a fact the infantry didn't seem to have quite grasped.

"So Pease explained to Sharp it would be all right with him, provided General MacArthur understood what he was getting into, that he had a fine plane here except that it had just come from the Java war and was slightly out of repair. It was too bad, for instance, that the superchargers were out, but he hoped he'd be able to clear the runway on the take-off and not slip off into a cartwheel at the end of it, spilling the General's party and all that baggage all over central Mindanao. And then, if he did take off, there was the little matter of his hydraulic system, which had gone bad on him, so when he came to land the brakes wouldn't work, and he might not be able to stop when he came to the end of the runway.

"Well, General Sharp decided that it certainly wasn't suitable, and told Pease he'd better get started back to Australia before dawn.

"'Pease,' I said, 'I'm goin' with you. You don't know it, but you got a new navigator for this trip. Because I'm not goin' to stay in this damn place no more.'

"Well, Pease agreed to let me work out my passage that way, and also said he could take off fifteen other planeless aviators if they didn't mind the risk.

"We all got in, and discovered Pease hadn't been bragging a bit about his plane when he talked to the General. It was in just as terrible shape as he had said it was; in fact, he had been overly modest about it.

"Now take a look at us in Australia. Exactly forty-eight hours after we arrived the Australians told us Radio Tokyo had broadcast, 'It is now understood the American Flying Fortresses are operating from Batchelor Field near Darwin,' and they were one hundred per cent right.

"How they knew it we never learned for sure—probably from Jap pearl fishermen, who had been thinly scattered along this Australian coast and who when war broke out went back and hid in the bush. The RAAF (Royal Australian Air Force) boys would spot their campfires at night and try to track them down, without much luck. Probably they had radio senders, and even a layman could count our four engines and recognize us as Flying Fortresses.

"The country itself is as desolate and sparsely populated as the worst parts of West Texas and New Mexico, and the most important town for a thousand or so miles is little Port Darwin, with seven or eight thousand people, sitting there on the rim of Nothing-at-All. It has wide streets—like one of those Midwestern towns built in the boom of the eighties—a good hotel which is subsidized by the Qantas Airways and reminds you of the one on Wake Island, a band which plays in a bandstand in the park, and a zoo with a few emus, kangaroos, and koala bears. No fresh vegetables, everything imported in cans. There you have Darwin.

"Batchelor Field was about forty miles back in the brush, and it consisted of a couple of runways hacked out of the mesquite (it was hard to get tools for grading or dynamite for stumps) and a hangar run by the RAAF.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for March 26

THE SACREDNESS OF LIFE (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON TEXT: Gen. 1:27, 28; Matt. 12:11, 12; Rom. 14:19-21; I Cor. 6:19, 20. GOLDEN TEXT: Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?—I Corinthians 6:19.

A high and ennobling concept of the value of human life is an important element in Christian thought. The Word of God always regards human life as sacred—a gift of God to be used for His glory, never to be exploited for gain or destroyed at will.

This important truth needs constant reiteration in a social order which is so shortsighted and sinful that it will permit the destruction of man through the sale and use of alcoholic beverages. The lesson has a real application to the liquor problem.

I. God Honored Man (Gen. 1:27, 28).

It should be of primary interest and concern to discover what the Maker and Lord thinks of His creation, man. He knows what is in man and if we learn of Him we may come to evaluate man aright.

1. He Made Him in His Own Image (v. 27).

The teaching of Scripture makes it clear that this image was not anything material or physical, but rather a likeness of personality. As God is a personal, moral, intelligent Being, so is man.

How tragic then that man will not only reject that grace, but will subject his God-given personality to the narcotic and destructive influence of alcohol.

Not only did God make man in His image, but—
2. He Gave Him Power and Authority (v. 28).

This is the very thing man is seeking, and here we learn that the only One who had a right to give it—God Himself—bestowed it upon man.

Having dominion over the entire earth, man is in a place of responsibility, not only for his own moral choices, but for the welfare of others. Think that over as it relates to the ever-growing liquor problem.

II. Man Should Honor Man (Matt. 12:11, 12; Rom. 14:19-21).

Since God has such a high regard for man, it is clear that we ought to have real respect for our fellow man. "Man's inhumanity to man" is often declared to be the world's greatest difficulty. It would not be so if God's Word were obeyed. Man would learn that—
1. He Should Recognize His Fellow Man's Value (Matt. 12:11, 12).

Property values are so well to the front in the thinking of all, that it requires no argument to convince anyone that a sheep that has fallen into a pit should be rescued. But the sad thing is that the man who would run for help to rescue a sheep in that predicament will hardly cast an interested glance at the drunk in the gutter, or lose a few minutes sleep over the girls who are going to hell by way of our countless taverns.

The plain fact is that we do not regard a man as of more value than a sheep. Many a neighborhood has been stirred to angry reprisal over the poisoning of a pet dog, but will let the liquor dealer poison men and women—all for a small license fee.

The man who loves his fellow man knows that—
2. He Should Sacrifice for His Fellow Man's Good (Rom. 14:19-21).

Paul here states a high principle of Christian consideration. He makes clear that man is his brother's keeper and must do nothing which will tempt his brother to do that which will harm him.

III. Man Should Honor Himself (I Cor. 6:19, 20).

Man is told not to think more highly of himself than he ought to think (Rom. 12:3), and that is good counsel. But at the same time he ought to think as highly of his own being as God does. He should recognize that—
1. His Body Is the Temple of the Holy Spirit (v. 19).

The Bible teaches that the moment a man believes in Christ his body becomes the dwelling place of the Holy Spirit. That means that he must never take that body in any place (such as a tavern) to do anything or partake of anything (like intoxicants) which would dishonor the Holy Spirit of God.

2. He Belongs to God (v. 20).

Men have been given a free will by God. He has given them the right of self-determination. That does not abrogate God's right to man's devotion and love.

The fact that we are free to choose should make us the more determined that the right choice should be made—that we shall glorify God in our bodies, which are His. Does it take even a moment's thought to tell us that the violation of that body (and every bit of scientific evidence proves it to be a violation) by the use of alcohol is not only disobedient, but sinful rebellion against God.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS

JANUARY SESSION—1944

The Board of Supervisors for the County of Isoco met at the Courthouse in the City of Tawas City, on Monday, the seventeenth day of January, A. D. 1944, in January Session pursuant to adjournment from the October Session, 1943.

The Board was called to order at 9:30 A. M. by the Chairman, who ordered a roll call. Present: Supervisors Benson, Brayman, Burgesson, Bellville, VanPatten, McCuaig, Sabin, Black, Schneider, Schmalz, Cross, Klenow, Look, Kobs, Brabant, Bublitz, Fuerst. Quorum present.

Communications were read by the clerk and referred to the proper committees.

The report of the Drain Commissioner was read by the clerk as follows:

Annual Report of County Drain Commissioner.

To the Board of Supervisors of the County of Isoco. Gentlemen: In compliance with the provisions of Sec. 11 of Chapter 2 of Act No. 316 of the Public Acts of 1925, I have the honor to submit my annual report as County Drain Commissioner of said County of Isoco, covering the period from the 1st day of October, A. D. 1942 to the 1st day of October, A. D. 1943.

The following named drains were left unfinished at the date of my last report: The Shaffer Extension Drain, located in Burleigh township, petitioned for by Henry Shaffer and other, described as follows: Commencing at the Shaffer Drain about 15 rods north of the County Line, thence running northwesterly through the SW¹/₄ of SE¹/₄ thence through N. E. Corner of SE¹/₄ of NW¹/₄, thence west about 40 rods, thence Northwestwesterly through the NE¹/₄ of SW¹/₄ and NW¹/₄ of SW¹/₄ of Sec. 35, thence crossing M 65 one-half mile north of County Line, thence running through the SE¹/₄ of NE¹/₄, SW¹/₄ of NE¹/₄ and SE¹/₄ of SW¹/₄ of Sec. 34, Burleigh Twp.

The necessary survey of this drain has been completed and the Drainage Districts established about one year ago.

The Parent Drain located in Sherman Township, petitioned for by Harold Parent and others, described as follows: Commencing at the corner of Sec. 27, thence following the course of highway ditch south on west side of the highway between Secs. 26 and 27, for a distance of one mile thence running east on Section line between Secs. 26 and 35, 25 and 36 to Pink Drain. The survey of this drain has been made by the Engineer, Mr. Cook, up to this time has not established the Drainage District.

On account of the scarcity of labor, gasoline, culvert tubing, bridge steel and the high cost of excavation, which has gone up about 100 per cent in the past year or so, we have therefore decided not to proceed further in establishing the above named drains for the duration of the war, but hold them open for post war projects, with consent of the petitioners, for if these drains were constructed at this time, it would bring too heavy a tax burden on the owners of lands in these Drainage Districts.

The Drainage Board of the Pink Extension Drain let the job of constructing bridge on this drain at the southeast corner of Sec. 10 in Whitney Township, Arenac County, to the Arenac County Road Commission, they to furnish all material and labor at cost and to deliver to said Drainage Board an itemized statement for all costs.

The assessment for the construction of this bridge will be made in the 1944 tax rolls.

And I do hereby certify that the above embraces a full and true report of all the drains constructed, finished or begun under my supervision, or applied for during the year now ending.

All of which is respectfully submitted. Dated at McIvor, Michigan, this 1st day of October, A. D. 1943. George W. Schroeder, County Drain Commissioner of the County of Isoco.

The above report of the County Drain Commissioner was referred to the Drains and Ditches Committee.

The committees were ordered to their respective duties by the Chairman, he balance of the Board to be at ease subject to the call of the Chair. Upon call to order at 12:00 noon, it was moved and supported that the Board recess until 1:30 P. M. same day. The motion prevailed and the Board so recessed.

Afternoon Session. The Board was called to order at 1:30 P. M. by the Chairman, who ordered Roll Call. Present: Supervisors Benson, Brayman, Burgesson, Bellville, VanPatten, McCuaig, Sabin, Black, Schneider, Schmalz, Cross, Klenow, Look, Kobs, Brabant, Bublitz, Fuerst. Quorum present.

The committees were ordered to their respective duties by the Chairman, he balance of the Board to be at ease subject to the call of the Chair. Upon call to order at 5:00 P. M. it was moved and supported that the Board recess until 9:30 A. M. next day. The motion prevailed and the Board so recessed.

January 18, 1944. The Board of Supervisors for the County of Isoco met at the Court-house in the City of Tawas City on Tuesday, the eighteenth day of January, A. D. 1944, in continued January Session.

The Board was called to order at 9:30 A. M. by the Chairman, who ordered Roll Call. All supervisors were present.

The minutes of the preceding session were read and approved. Moved by Black and supported that the dog warden system of collecting delinquent dog tax be discarded and that the old system be re-installed, which consisted of dog listing by the township and city supervisors, and that the penalty for non payment of dog tax be effective March 1, 1944, and the Treasurer of the County be instructed to advertise the change and penalty date as soon as possible. The motion prevailed by Black and supported by the Board of Supervisors and the Sheriff be authorized to sell the Dog Warden truck. The motion prevailed unanimously upon roll call.

Amusing Things Happen, Even On Battlefields

Recollections of incidents that couldn't be appreciated at the time the Fifth army was making its landing below Rome are bringing chuckles and laughs to American doughboys now that the battle has settled down to a steady, day in and day out grind.

There's the case of the unidentified doughboy who hurt his leg in a fall into an old foxhole on the first morning of the landing. Positive that he couldn't walk, he stopped some medics and asked to be carried to the rear.

The medics put him on a litter and started forward. "Where are we going?" the doughboy asked.

The medics replied: "Forward." The doughboy jumped from the litter and hastily made for the rear.

Then there's the German rookie runner who became lost while searching for a unit of the Wehrmacht. He found two foxholes occupied by sleeping soldiers. In vain he tried to awaken the occupant of one of the holes. Turning to the other, he met with success. "What unit is this?" he asked. The awakened occupant grasped the situation and took the Nazi prisoner.

Wrong Side of River. Another patrol of 11 reconnaissance soldiers still is chucking over an incident at a bridge. Riding bravely to battle rolled a German column of multi-wheeled troop carriers, bent on stopping the invading Yanks. The Yank patrol had just finished minding the bridge. They lit the fuse and retired to cover.

The troop carrier column rolled on. Three vehicles crossed the bridge when suddenly it went sky-high. Brakes squealed, Germans squealed and pandemonium reigned. Nazi soldiers severed suddenly from their comrades scrambled back through the water to the safe side minus lots of equipment. There was no humor in it for them.

Cherry Pie for Invaders. Hot rolls, apple cobbler, and cherry pie, besides hot coffee and the usual army rations, composed the menu for laboring, sweat-soaked shore engineers when they landed with the first Fifth army invaders on the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead.

The hard-working engineers consider their cook, Corp. Robert Fiedler, Lakewood, Ohio, a hero. But Corporal Fiedler puts it all down to experience.

"Our outfit has made numerous other invasions, and I learned this bakery idea from past experience," he said.

"It took plenty of preparation before the invasion. I made several extra trips to food dumps and had plenty of flour saved up for the trip. I knew the boys would like something special when we landed on those beaches. They work twice as hard during the early days of an invasion, so there is no reason why they shouldn't have a few extra treats."

Corporal Fiedler once operated a bakery in Lakewood, New Jersey. Too Tough for Olympic Star. Capt. Albert J. Mangan of Lowell, Mass., thought he got a stiff workout in 1936 when he competed in the Olympic games at Berlin.

He was one of America's entries in the walking race and he had to cover a rugged 31-mile course.

Mangan, who now is a captain of infantry, discovered, however, that the Olympic grind was "small potatoes" compared with back-breaking terrain infantrymen are now taking in stride in this jungle-bound area.

"If they ever hold a walking championship up these Bougainville jungle mountains, I doubt if anybody would ever finish," Captain Mangan, now 28, said. "That's why you have to give these soldiers here so much credit—they have to lug guns up the steep hills piece by piece."

Captain Mangan won the United States National walking championship in 1940 in Cincinnati, Ohio.

He has been overseas two years and is a veteran of the Guadalcanal campaign, plus service in Australia, New Caledonia, and the Fiji islands.

Everyone's 'Johnny' in Persia. It's "Johnny, Johnny, Johnny" everywhere in the Persian Gulf area these days.

To the American soldiers stationed there, the local inhabitants are "Johnny."

To the local inhabitants, the American soldiers are "Johnny."

In fact, "Johnny" has become as common as "Tommy" in Rudyard Kipling's famous lines:

"It's Tommy this, and Tommy that, and Tommy go away, But it's thank you, Mr. Atkins, when the band begins to play."

"It's Johnny this, and Johnny that, and Johnny won't you stay, For he's Santa to the natives there when Johnny gets his pay."

Britain's Swordfish

By Scott Newhall

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly.)

Though most Americans wouldn't believe their eyes if they saw it, the plane known as the Fairey Swordfish is one of the mainstays of Britain's Fleet Air Arm.

Every time a Swordfish goes roaring down the flight deck of a carrier and claws its way aloft, the pageant of man's conquest of the air is lived again for a few tense seconds. For, to the casual spectator, a Swordfish flying off to battle in this war looks about as efficient and dangerous as a crossbowman on his way to tackle a squad of Commandos.

A Swordfish is a large, gangling biplane. It would fit comfortably into any movie sequence of the period 1917-1918. The wings and fuselage are covered with fabric, which is originally painted in shades ranging from gray to blue, but because every Swordfish invariably has a light rash of patches on its skin, the general result is a sort of mottled shade.

The patches are the result of a curious hazard in a Swordfish's life. After some service, the fabric becomes brittle, and curious visitors find that their fingers inadvertently punch holes in the wing surface. Also, in a dive or tight turn, the fabric covering sometimes flutters in an unpleasant, nervous fashion.

Fleet Air Arm pilots, both in affection and alarm, call these planes Stringbags.

The space between the two wings is pretty well filled with struts and wires and such, and back by the tail a lot of wires come out of the fuselage and run to the control surfaces. The fuselage itself is a long, narrow structure. The three open cockpits start immediately behind the following edge of the upper wing, the pilot in the first, the observer in the second, the aerial gunner in the last. So the Swordfish looks and sometimes acts like something out of a mail-order catalogue.

Aerial 'Hilde' and Seek.

Yet, regularly, stories come back on how these planes can muddle through. For example, in the Norway campaign a Stringbag from the Ark Royal found itself on the business end of a Heinkel 111. The Swordfish, however, came back to its carrier with nothing worse than a slight case of dizziness aboard. The pilot merely dived down on a Norwegian mountain and then flew in tight circles around it. The Heinkel couldn't cut corners so sharply, so he finally gave up and flew away.

As a matter of fact, one school of Swordfish philosophy argues that the incredibly slow speed of the aircraft is an asset. The fast-attacking enemy aircraft simply cannot slow down enough to get in an efficient burst.

The Royal Navy calls its Swordfish torpedo-spotter-reconnaissance aircraft. Every carrier in the fleet has flown them off to seek the enemy and, if possible, get a torpedo into him. To be a naval seaman a plane must have a quick takeoff, a low landing speed, and carry a heavy load. And that is where the lumbering Swordfish excels.

There is no sense in trying to make a silk purse out of a Stringbag. It is painfully slow and awkward and ugly. Its performance has guaranteed that as long as the war lasts there will always be a Swordfish. It has a great record behind it. On many and curious missions this strange craft has proved its worth. The crews who fly the Stringbags have developed an odd and somewhat contemptuous affection for their planes.

Italy's Bad Luck

Swordfish flew into the Italian fleet at Taranto, putting three battleships out of action and changing the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean. They bombed Genoa early in the war, covered countless Malta convoys and put torpedoes into the French fleet at Oran. Again, Swordfish were down in the Channel fog looking for the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau when the German ships made their dash from Brest. That time only a few came back.

But it was in the wintry North Atlantic that the Swordfish did its greatest job. Stringbag torpedoes disabled the Bismarck so that the surface fleet could close in for the kill.

Stringbags have also engaged in extracurricular activities. At the time of Dunkerque, some of them were sent over the French and Belgian coasts. So they flew up and down the coast in tight formation, pretending to be fighter coverage for the troops below. Apparently they got away with it, too. In another case a Swordfish was turned into a fighter when, after the two machine guns were emptied, an observer drew his revolver and assaulted an attacking Italian plane with that. The Italian flew home across the Mediterranean.

STATE DEPARTMENT STYMIES ROCKEFELLER

Aides to Nelson Rockefeller think the administration blundered in failing to defend itself better against the charges of Latin American extravagance made by Republican Senator Hugh Butler of Nebraska. Inside fact is that Rockefeller prepared a rebuttal to Butler's blast against our Good Neighbor spending, but it was killed by the state department.

The rebuttal had been prepared as an article for Reader's Digest, under Rockefeller's by-line. Rockefeller showed it to two advisers, John Dickey and Anna Rosenberg, who both okayed it. Then it was sent to the state department.

There, Hull's public relations adviser, Michael McDermott, advised against letting young Rockefeller step out as defender of the government's foreign policy. He urged that this prerogative should be reserved for Cordell Hull alone.

So the article was killed, and the next issue of the Reader's Digest, instead of carrying a government rebuttal, carried another blast by Butler, with an editor's note saying that Rockefeller had been given a chance to reply, but declined.

So readers all over the country are beginning to think Senator Butler may be right.

LOS ANGELES STRIKE

The army, which seized the Los Angeles Water and Power system as a result of a strike by electrical workers, hopes to turn it back to the municipal authorities about the time this appears in print.

When the labor department reports on this strike, its figures will show that 2,300 men went out. Real fact, however, is that many times that number were thrown out of work by the stoppage of light and power.

Reason the war department stepped in was that the strike had closed: 84 aircraft plants; 38 navy plants; 14 army service forces plants (ordnance and quartermaster).

Though the general public knows only of such prominent cases as the army seizure of the railroads, actually the army is being forced to take over many properties tied up by strikes. It has become a pattern. Labor unions make use of it to threaten management.

Ten mills were tied up in Fall River, Mass., because of a mere jurisdictional dispute between an independent union and the CIO. The army was obliged to step in, and is still in. The same thing happened at Peabody and Salem, Mass., in a dispute in the leather industry between an independent union and the CIO. Also, the army has been obliged to take over the Western Electric plants in Baltimore because of the notorious "back-house" dispute.

War department officials are getting worried over this trend. They have become the Department of Emergency Labor. They don't like it. They want to fight the war, not fight labor.

ON THE AIR FRONT

Recently, U. S. fighter planes set up a new record by penetrating a distance of 550 miles into Europe—1,100 miles round trip.

This has been published, but what may not be realized is that fighters are working this run in relays. Three different teams of fighters go out toward the target at different times, using the following pattern:

1. The first team goes out with the bombers, and protects them halfway to the target, meeting and engaging the German fighters.

2. The second team, starting later, catches up with the bombers at the halfway mark and escorts them the rest of the way to the target. Thus, they arrive at the halfway mark without having to combat Germans all the way, and so have fresh supplies of gas and ammunition, while the first team, with exhausted supplies, turns back.

3. The third team starts still later, and meets the bombers at the target. Here they drop their belly tanks, take over the hot fighting above the target. With fresh supplies, they relieve the second team, which turns home.

Generally, the first team consists of Thunderbolts, the second team of the faster Lightnings, and the third team of the still faster Mustangs. Since all fighters are faster than bombers, they can go out and catch up with the bombers at any agreed point.

This technique has greatly extended the range of fighters and greatly increased the protection they afford for the bombers.

MEURY-GO-ROUND

Ed Stettinius says the Soviet forces have been able to maintain good communications, partly because we have sent them 189,000 field telephones and over 670,000 miles of wire—enough to go around the world 27 times. Equally impressive is the quantity of barbed wire lend-leased to the Soviets—216,000 miles of it. "It is significant," says Stettinius, "that after the fall of 1942, the Soviet army stopped asking for barbed wire in large quantities."

Women Assume New Responsibilities

Take Over Men's Jobs To Meet Food Goals

The big push will come in 1944—for farm women as well as the boys in uniform.

The farm woman's 1944 job will be new in many ways, too. To reach food production objectives, the War Food administration points out, farm families must continually change their farming operations in line with shifting developments on the home front and on the battle fronts.

Take the higher goals for egg production, for instance. That's a special concern of farm women, since about 90 per cent of the eggs come from farm flocks and since the womenfolk usually tend the poultry. The old way of increasing egg production would be merely to build additional hen houses, increase the size of the flocks of laying hens and lay in an extra supply of feed. But the 1944 way to increase egg production is to give the hens tip-top care and to build up the quality of the flocks by culling out the poor layers and buying better chicks. Such a program is calculated to result in more eggs from fewer hens, at the same time helping to economize on feed supplies.

Larger Herds Urged.

Good milk cows—well cared for—are one of the most efficient converters of feed into high quality protein foodstuffs. That is why Uncle Sam is urging farmers to increase their dairy herds by 2 per cent and to step up total milk production by a like amount.

Women will help more with this job, too—keeping records, feeding the livestock, milking and caring for the milk.

Gardening is one of the chores that usually falls to the farm homemaker. This year, as last, the aim will be a garden on every one of the nation's farms. Furthermore, families usually planting small gardens are asked to increase their vegetable plots so as to supply most of the family needs for fresh and home-canned vegetables.

The western spotted cucumber beetle. A, adult; B, eggs; C, larva. The cucumber beetle attacks almost all vegetation. It is a serious pest in Pacific coast orchards.

Stick With Your Plow, Advises Soil Expert

Farmers should think twice before they place too much reliance in widely published reports that the mold-board plow is bad for the soil and should be discarded, M. A. Thorfinnson, soil conservation specialist at the U. of Minnesota, pointed out. He says that tests of the plow vs. subsurface tillage have been conducted in Minnesota and so far the score gives the old-fashioned plow an advantage of eight bushels of corn to the acre. Thorfinnson reports that in field tests conducted on farms in erosion areas of the state, the mold-board plow had a distinct advantage over other tillage methods. In heavier soils where drifting is not a major problem, this advantage would be even greater.

For the lighter soils the one-way disc plow proved to be effective and gave the added protection of leaving part of the stubble above ground to hinder soil drifting. The "sweep" which stirs up the subsurface without turning under the stubble appeared to be definitely inferior to the plow in the tests.

Black Mold in Onions

Black mold, a disease of onions, caused by the fungus Aspergillus niger, frequently develops in spots and streaks between the outer bulb scales, usually on onions in storage. Appearance and keeping quality may be seriously injured. Affected bulbs should not be placed in storage. Sound bulbs if stored should be thoroughly dried. Black mold should not be confused with smut.

Agricultural Notes

During the first seven months of last year, 264,000,000 pounds of edible fats and oils were sent into Russia from the United States.

Norelac is the name of a new film-coating resin, derived from soybean oil, which is expected to become valuable in making containers for anything requiring moisture-proof packaging.

20 Million Chinese Are Now Facing Starvation

CHUNGKING.—More than 20,000,000 Chinese are facing starvation as the result of Japanese oppression in enemy-held areas of once thriving Hopei province in North China, Chinese reports said recently.

Many areas have become wasteland through Japanese destruction of irrigation works, forced purchase of crops at low prices and the intensified conscription of the Chinese population for labor service.

PURSE PROUD

Girls carry around more stuff in their pocketbooks than most people can pack in a suitcase. That's why they need lots of them. Of course, you will want to buy a new bag for Sunday-best (one of these jumbo felt drawing jobs would be simply wizard), but how about pocketbooks for every day? Here's how to make them out of practically nothing.

SLEEP WALKERS—Have you one of those pajama bags made in the shape of animals and fastened with a zipper? Well, take your pajamas out and use the bag for a pocketbook. Makes a cute mascot, too.

COVER GIRL—Is your old leather bag too shabby for its own good? If it's a flat, underarm shape, it's a simple matter to dress it up with a slip cover made of your dress or skirt material. Just the thing to do with the piece of corduroy you had left over after making that new jumper!

WALLET WINNERS—The sharpest girls are carrying men's wallets instead of bags to school. They usually have a place for your A.O.O.'s picture, too. Ask Dad if he has an old one. Dress it up with nail polish, felt appliques or embroidery.

BAGATELLES FROM BAGS—Don't throw out your old bags. Use the leather (or simulated leather) for lapel gadgets. It works up just as well as felt into any shape you prefer. You might have to ask the shoemaker to do the sewing for you if the leather is very heavy.

SECRETS OF JET PLANE KEPT FOR 2½ YEARS

The 2½-year period of designing, constructing and flight testing of the army air forces' new jet propulsion plane is pointed by the war department as a striking illustration in a free country of the safeguarding of security by press, civilians and the military.

The period of secrecy cloaking the plane extended from July, 1941, to January 6, 1944, during which time it was never the subject of public comment or speculation.

Throughout the more than two years, executives and many workers of the General Electric corporation and of Bell Aircraft corporation, and military personnel in Washington, D. C., at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, and other points had knowledge of the jet propulsion plane.

A number of newspaper, magazine and trade paper writers and executives also are known to have come into information concerning the plane, all of whom kept quiet.

Enemy in Dark, Too. The enemy probably also was unaware of the extent to which jet propulsion development had been carried by the United States, a fact attributed directly to the upholding of security by individuals involved.

The story of the secrecy surrounding the plane's development is not without drama. It was constructed at a secret plant on one seaboard, transported across the country, and tested on another seaboard.

The plane is still without an official public designation, but during the years of development it has been known variously as "Putt-Putt," "Squirt," "Hush-Hush," "Si-bertia," and "Super Secret."

No Propeller. The prime difference in the outward appearance of the jet propulsion plane in contrast with others is that it does not have a propeller. Once when the plane was transported by truck from one testing site to another a dummy wooden propeller was attached, successfully cloaking its identity.

When the first ship was ready for shipment across the continent for testing it was disassembled by Bell Aircraft and crated in a single box. Military personnel, living aboard a caboose, escorted the craft. The plane and its engines have been protected always by a 24-hour guard.

In later months, after the plane had been flown many times and its existence became more widely known, its security status was never violated by those entrusted with its development.

Thus, the plane earns its title as one of the war's best kept secrets, due to the voluntary cooperation of the many individuals responsible for the plane's development and construction.

It is to be emphasized that many details of the plane still are a secret which the war department expects all individuals to uphold.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

A man is always introduced to a woman, "Miss Jones, may I present Mr. Brown." There are only a few exceptions. A woman is introduced to the President of the United States, to a king or to a high church dignitary.

A woman rises when introduced to a member of the clergy, or when introduced to an older woman.

There are several correct ways to make introductions. You may say "Mrs. Jones, may I present Mr. Brown"; or "Mrs. Jones I would like to introduce Mr. Brown"; or "Mrs. Jones, do you know Mr. Brown" or simply, "Mrs. Jones, Mr. Brown."

Jap Flashlight Bulbs

Keep Britons in Dark

LONDON.—Exasperated Britons who purchased flashlights to find every bulb a dud, got an explanation recently. The bulbs were part of a pre-war consignment of lights made in Japan which the Japs used to dump in Britain at the rate of 40,000,000 a year. About 90 per cent of the bulbs were said to be bad.

Gay Wool and Chic Satin Coats Are Styled in Versatile Types

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN it comes to versatile and individualized styling of the new coats current collections show an unusual variety of types this spring. It does not matter whether you are tall or short, young or not so young. Whether you are looking for a practical utilitarian coat or a fastidiously fashioned type for dressy wear, the coat that is "made just for you" is sure to show up somewhere in this season's vast showings.

While there is an unusually wide selection of coat styles on the spring program, there are certain basic types which underwrite style-rightness in definite terms. At a recent exhibit held in the Merchandise Mart in Chicago, the three models pictured herewith were cited as representative of what's new in practical coat classics for spring.

A favorite for general wear, the model of straight boxy lines as shown to the left is recommended as just the sort of coat the woman of conservative taste will want to wear over her suit or to slip on over the little casual daytime frock. It carries a spring, 1944, message convincingly, in that it subscribes to the prevailing color craze, being fashioned as it is of a vivid green wool. You'll appreciate the comfort of its smart raglan sleeves.

The dashing spring topper styled like a pilot's coat shown to the right is proving one of those outstanding successes that simply is taking the world of fashion by storm. You see varied versions of it in every style showing. The college girls and teenagers are going all out for this type. It is smart in black, brown and navy and also reaches the ultimate in chic when carried out in the very smart gray. It is to be had in a grand assortment of other delectable shades as well. It is styled with pockets placed in the side seam, but when the coat is properly pulled forward, they are positioned just right.

For the last several seasons the casual coat with its boxy lines has been holding the spotlight in fashion's domain. However, this season marks the return of the nicely styled fitted coat as shown centered in the group. The outlook for the fitted types is increasingly promising, and it makes it the more exciting that these gracious ladylike styles make delectable color their theme. The coat here illustrated is made of a rose-colored wool which emphasizes its style prestige.

Fashion is making a big color splurge in the coat realm, it is true, but come what may, or go what may, black and navy will always hold their own in the foremost ranks of the mode. This spring, as usual, many of the smartest coats are black or navy. It's news that the directoire coat is scheduled to make a dramatic return. Another type that is making conversation is the military looking officer's coat. There is also hint of a revival of the fitted coat that is topped with a jaunty little shoulder cape after the manner of the coachman's coat.

The most sensational entry of coats made of satin into the style picture bids fair for a future of stunning models, either in full length or the new fingertip length. Failla, surah and taffeta are also mentioned as fashionable coat media.

Buttons play an important role in styling the new coats, especially the casual types. Braid trimming is also used in smart ways.

Red Cordurella

For blazing a fashion trail, the young lady above chooses a red cordurella suit with an animated piping of red with white braid. For practical many-purpose wear there is no fabric that surpasses sturdy, ever smart and good-looking cordurella. Especially refined in appearance is the pin-wale type known as cordurella. Here is another evidence of the popularity of bright-colored suits. The beauty of this suit too, is its year-round smartness.

Brief Sleeves Call for Arm-Length Gloves

Sleevelessness is everywhere in the spring and summer fashion picture. Either sleeves are conspicuous by their absence or they are exceedingly brief on many daytime dresses and blouses. Cap sleeves, strap tops, berthas, scalloped capelets and extended shoulder lines abound in the new order of things.

This might sound impossible for conservative dressers were it not for the clever cover-up tops that pay accompaniment to the majority of sleeveless-type fashions. These include bolero jackets, smart little shoulder capes, long scarf effects and a multitude of resourceful ideas. However, with the cover-up top removed, long gloves have come into utmost fashion prominence to wear with the sleeveless or near sleeveless type of dresses, blouses and sweaters. These are to be had in most enchanting colors and of washable suede fabric in 20-inch length or more.

Spring Sweaters Come In Intriguing Patterns

The spring group of sweaters fascinate with their wonderful coloring and clever new knitted patternings. You'll love the new confetti sweaters so effective in pastels that are too pretty for words. These look perfectly charming highlighted with the new flower colored plastic jewelry. The new Argyle and floral patternings are so flattering. Then there are the sports sweaters with inter-knit patternings of Indian figurines and frolicking little scotch terriers and cowboy hats and just any design to be sporty. Important colors for sweaters are oxford gray, lilac, white and peach and the new apple green which is so definitely spring-like in its fresh coloring. Sleeveless sweaters are much in demand.

Admirals may be admirable, but that isn't where the word comes from. It comes from an old Arabic word "amir-al" meaning "commander of." That's what the Admiral is, the top-ranking officer in the Navy. Top-ranking cigarette with our Navy men is Camel—the favorite, too with men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard, according to actual sales records from their service stores. Camels are a top-ranking gift, too. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.
