THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, Flying Fortress pilot, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. The ground is covered with the skeletons of U. S. planes. No longer safe to sleep in barracks, because Japs are photographing Clark Field, cots are moved into a cornfield, which is later bombed by Japs. They evacuate to the island of Mindanao. Harry Schreiber, the navigator, now takes up the story, telling how two Fortresses out on a mission to get a row of Jap transports are attacked by a swarm of Zeros. They crash land in a rice paddy on Masbate Island, buy an outrigger canoe, sail to isle of Panay and later get to Australia.

CHAPTER VII

"Well, it was nice, for a few days, to be out of danger-to start getting our dozen planes overhauled. "As quick as we could, we began flying missions. Each Fortress had brought out about fifteen men from Del Monte, and they got to work putting the planes back into shape. But the missions were terribly long. It was seventeen hundred miles from Darwin back to Del Monte-almost as far as from New York to Denver. We'd leave Darwin in the morning, fly all day, land at Del Monte after dark to be safe from the Japs, service the plane, eat, catch a little map, and then gas up in time to be off for an early morning bombing of the Jap invasion fleet off Luzon. Then back to Del Monte-it was daylight now and risky as hell, so get in quick, gas up, load bombs, and get the hell out fast and away to an afternoon target, coming back toward Del Monte in the darkness, thank God, when no Jap pursuits are hanging around, arriving about midnight, a cat nap again, gas up, and you're off for Australia.

"Think of the pilots and crews going through that grind day after day. You might fly eighteen hours straight and be out of the cockpit for only one of them.

"And yet the thing we dreaded most was Christmas. It was right ahead of us now-Christmas in defeat and on this barren, hot, dusty desert field, with no word or mail from home and no way to get word back to them. We'd send cables we knew would never be answered, because we could give no address."

"I'll put my Christmas up against the one you had," said Frank, going on with his story. "We were all feeling low. We knew there would be no letters or packages or even cables for us, so it was natural that on this hot, dry, dusty, sun-scorched Christmas Day some of us should wander over to the Australians' radio shack, just to see what little word from home we could pick up on the air.

"I should say that part of us were gone on a mission into the Philippines; two Forts, including George Schaetzel, and they now should be on that dreary, nine-hour drag back to Batchelor Field. We hoped none of them would be shot down on Christmas Day.

"The Australians were damned nice to us. They let us watch them open their packages and handed us their Christmas cards to read, and then they'd say, 'What part of the States are you from, Yank?' so we could tell them about our own families and wives or best girls if we wanted to-and most of us did. But we kept wondering about that mission, although we didn't talk about it. And of course we didn't know they had run into serious trouble, hit by Zeros at high altitude, and that Schaetzel's plane during this Christmas Day fight had been given a burst of machine-gun fire right through his radio compartment. Sergeant Killian, his radio operator, was shot through the top of the head as he was helping the gunners reload-picking up new ammunition cans full of .50-caliber belts and handing them up, and taking back the empty cans, while the gunners pounded away at the Zeros. "Two others had been badly wounded by the same burst, and since this was at high altitude, it was very serious. Because maybe the boy topples over so that his oxygen mask falls off. There isn't much you can do for a wounded man during combat at high altitude. When you have wounded men aboard, you try to get down to at least 10,000 feet as soon as you can, so they won't be under the strain of breathing through oxygen

"But there were Zeros still below them. One of the Fort's prime defense weapons is altitude, and George knew if he broke away from formation and dived down alone, he stood a very good chance of being picked off.

'So he did the right thing-stayed with the formation, only it was a hell of a hard decision to make on Christmas Day, with those poor wounded men in back, fighting for breath in the high air.

"We knew nothing of this yet, but already we were feeling pretty low, and the Australian radio operator was twiddling his dials trying to get us a program from the States so we wouldn't be homesick. We hoped maybe we'd get just a homely description of what kind of a Christmas Day it was in a typical American town that might be any of ours, and how the snow crunched under the feet of the people walking up on porches to deliver Christmas packages, and maybe hear the real American voices of some real American girls in a Christmas choir singing 'Holy Night' or 'O Little Town of Bethlehem' or some of the other old-time songs.

"What we got instead was a lot of politicians doing their stuff on war aims. They were from all over the world, sounding off all over the dial, and we argued with those Australian kids as to which ones were the corniest, theirs or ours. They insisted theirs were, but we couldn't agree, because ours were all stuffed full of roast goose, optimism, plum pudding, hard sauce, and production figures.

"But something was coming in over the CW radio (Continuous Wave, or Dot-Dash) and the Australian with the earphones on, after writing it down, instead of sending it in to his commanding officer gave me a queer embarrassed look and handed it to me. And my heart thumped, because thought it just might possibly be from Margo, although I didn't see how it could be.

"It was from Schaetzel. He'd waited until he flew out of the danger zone before breaking radio silence. He said he'd be in after dark with one body aboard and to have the ambulance on the stand-by at the field. That meant there were more wounded. It finished Christmas for us. We didn't say much,

And my heart thumped because I thought possibly it might be from and neither did the Australians. But and wandered out of the hut.

"When Schaetzel got in, his plane was so badly shot up that we decided to call it a wreck. It was a toss-up between his plane and Lee Coats', which was also full of bullet holes, but looking them both over, we decided Schaetzel's was somewhat the worse. We just had to have a wreck on the field to serve as a spare-parts reservoir to keep the other planes in the air. The old Swoose, here," and he jerked his thumb backward, "still has those tail surfaces we took off that plane. We needed everything, but most of all, we needed bomb-bay gas tanks.

"Of course we were in terrible shape. The old 19th Bombardment Group had lost two-thirds of its original strength in three weeks, and we were now reduced to about a dozen planes-about enough for a decent squadron. But there was one hopeful fact: of the two dozen odd we had lost, only two-Colin's and Jack Adams'-had been shot down in combat by the Japanese. The rest had been blown up on the ground or, like Wheless' plane, had been wrecked on the beach to save the crew when it didn't have the range to get home.

"And just about the time we were adding up this score and wondering what would happen to us next we found out, for without warning General Brereton landed on the field. we were immediately summoned to a meeting in Operations. "He's a tough, quick, cocky, fighting little Air Force officer who doesn't like to sit down when he's laying out plans or giving orders, and standing there before us, his shoulders reared back, he lined us

"He told us the United States Army Air Force of the Far East, of which he was commander, was moving all its bombers to Java, and at once. Its main base would be on a field near the city of Malang. From there we would operate out of advanced bases already prepared by the Dutch on the outlying islands of Borneo and the Celebes. From these our first missions would all be concentrated on breaking up an immense concentration of Jap transports which was gathering at Davao Bay, on the southern tip of the PhilSpring Suits and Ensembles Will Be Colorful This Easter

SPRING fashions give full promise of living up to a new high this Easter. They broadcast the message of handsome wools and other materials made up in coats, suits and ensembles that sing a spring song of lovely colors in no less exultant terms than does nature itself at the springtime of the year.

This year the big news is color, color, color. When you go to buy the new Easter costume be sure you are in a highly receptive color mood, so as to not flicker an eyelash when the salesperson brings forth "the latest" in a spring topper, or a suit ensemble in bright magenta, or a lovely lilac tone or perhaps the new saffron or tangerine shades, so smart this season. Ming blue is a favorite too for suits and ensembles, and exquisite iris in soft mauve tones registers also on the list; likewise cool looking lime and chartreuse. Golds and yellows make a spectacular showing in the suit and topper-ensemble modes. Yes, the new colors seem to be Easter-inspired, as much so as budding flowers and azure skies and all things lovely. It adds zest to the new clothes designers are preparing for us that, what with fabric conservation being so patriotically observed, there is a styling technique developing that presents an entirely new fashion outlook for the future. One reaction to the fabric-saving program registers in the new and flatteringly narrow silhouette for skirts with simple boxy lines for jackets with collarless necklines.

This year the accent is on straight simple silhouettes as expressed in Chinese mandarin lines after the manner of the collarless model, to the right in the illustration. It is being shown fashioned of suede-finished duvetyne in such unusual col-bright green or ming blue, to which a trimming of heavy twisted black cord lends new interest. This smart model with its collarless neckline and its wide loose sleeves introduces an influence which women welcome with utmost enthusiasm, because of the flattery and the fabric saving promise in its strikingly simple lines. It is also in high favor in that it can be slipped on so easily over everything from slacks to informal dinner gowns. You will find this type coat ideal to go with your new Easter frock whether it be a gay print, a pastel wool classic or a smart dressy black sheer.

There is a noticeable navy influence in the styling of the forsythiayellow, centered in the group. The boxy coat is heralded as a topnotch fashion for spring. It has slit pockets, distinctive buttons and the now-so-modish collarless neckline. The hat is in matching yellow.

When it comes to the costume ideal for Easter or for the furlough bride, there couldn't be anything prettier and more apropos than the charming costume made up of print-plus-plain as pictured to the left. It carries the message of spring in its joyous lilting spring colors. This most gracious mode shown by courtesy of Chicago Fashion Industries is made of a very attractive print patterned with a varicolored heart motif which goes to show that Cupid carries on pretty capers even when it comes to patterning a lovely spring print. The same print lines the loose box coat which is a fashion gesture of outstanding importance this season. Feminine ruffles fall softly from the V-neck to flattering effect. The sleeves are brief in accordance with latest fashion dictates. This many - purpose costume ensemble will be a treasured possession all the summer through, as with or without the coat it will tune to occasion with ladylike grace.

Navy and White

The designer of the stunning frock used the sea-gull motif of the Greek revival period for this crepe day dress. The two tones are navy and white. Interlocking wings of the fabric extend the full length of one side, thus achieving a very slenderizing effect. Fashion has turned to Greek art for new inspiration this season both in trimming schemes and in sculptural draping effects, and this will be increasingly apparent during the coming months. We will see costumes copied from the garbs of the ladies of ancient Hellas.

Amusing Motifs Are Feature of New Prints

Prints have a distinctively new look this season. A notable trend in the new crop of prints is their tendency to be patterned with amusing motifs. Among these one discovers the print that adopts colorful cup and saucer designs for its motif. Then there is the print patterned over with tiny umbrellas done in colorful mood. Figurines of Mexican inspiration abound in the new prints such as sombrero hats and colorful baskets scattered in spaced

Interesting too in fabric news is the revival of the surah silks of the long ago, also handsome necktie silks such as fashion some of the smartest suits brought out this season. Navy, black or striped faille is also a favorite medium for suits. Checked, striped and plaided taffetas appear everywhere in the

New Crochet Fantasies

Trim Accessories Hand crochet is certainly having its big moment in the fashion picture this spring. Very lovely to wear with the new short-jacket suit and the nicely styled straight-line one-piece frock are crochet ensembles that include flower motifs, in sets of three that clip on and off a foundational dickey. With these interchangeable, washable, hand-crocheted florals come lacy-crocheted gloves, the cuffs repeating the flower motif. Other crochet accessories mate a flattering lacy mesh jabot with a bandeau that repeats the crochet technique in a ruch-like coronet. This is done in pale blue with tiny crochet flowers in multicolor scattered here and there on both headpiece and jabot.

No one likes greasy soup, and now we've a double reason for not wanting it-our country needs the excess grease. One way to serve both purposes is to allow the soup to harden and cool after making, then skim grease off while cold. Reheat-the results are good soup and no excess grease. And-do not forget to bring your excess fats to your meat dealer.

Indian Chief Had His Own Idea on Contentment

An American gogetter noticed an Indian chief lolling at the door of his wigwam somewhere out

"Chief," remonstrated the gogetter, "why don't you get a job?" "Why?" grunted the chief.

"Well, you could earn a lot of money."
"Why?" insisted the chief.

"Oh, if you worked and saved your money, you'd have a bank account."

"Why?" again asked the chief. "For heaven's sake!" shouted the exasperated gogetter. "With a big bank account you could retire, and then you wouldn't have to work any more . . ."
"Not working now," pointed out the chief.

When the War Is Over

That much yearned for, almost legendary, day will mark a new era for transportation, as it will for everything

And our railroads will be ready.

We have plans for that day-plans that are realistic, forward looking, surprisingly progressive.

Michigan's railroads will join in the great change ahead.

They are picturing a future of improved plants, changed equipment, faster schedules, more efficient operation of both freight and passenger services.

The railroads have learned many things during this war period. America will benefit from this new "know how" in the days to come.

"When the war is over" America will move at an increased tempo. But no matter how much faster life will be, or how much greater will be the demands upon transportation, the railroads will be in the forefront, carrying the bulk of America's increased and accelerated passenger and freight traffic, and doing it with smoothness and efficiency.

Washington, D. C. LOOKING 'EM OVER

The other day, the White House called WPB's production wizard, Charlie Wilson, to come to see the President. Wilson went, not knowing what it was about and not knowing he was to stay to lunch. When he got there, he found himself lunching with FDR, all alone.

The conversation ranged over everything under the sun, from the problems of business management for Wilson's views on world trade, the former General Electric execu-

"Mr. President, I'm a manufac-turer, not a merchandiser."

The luncheon lasted more than two hours and, after it was over, Wilson didn't know quite what to make of it, because no very important problems regarding war production had been discussed. When he expressed bewilderment to close friends later, they replied:

"Why, Charlie, you're just a political neophyte! Don't you know what he was doing? Looking you over to see how you would do as second man on the ticket."

Embarrassed, Wilson replied: "People don't seem to know that I'm a Republican."

NOTE-Some politicos figure that the President is now looking for a conservative running mate with a Republican background who would swing votes from business. Undersecretary of State Ed Stettinius is an active bidder for the job. Some conservative groups also figure that, if they can pick the vice president, FDR will resign shortly after the war and they will be in the saddle.

ANZIO ORDNANCE

Although the problem of supply on the Anzio beachhead has been emphasized, another factor which the public doesn't realize is the problem of ordnance.
Inside that slender foothold in Italy, there must be not only kitchens and temporary hospitals but, even and temporary hospitals but, even more important, ammunition dumps and repair shops. This is the job of ordnance. A tank is no good unless it is kept in repair and it is the job of ordnance not only to build tanks, but to train men to go along with them into the field of battle to see that they are kept running.

The same is true of artillery and every other type of weapon. That is why the Anzio beachhead has to maintain machine shops and repair

It was Campbell who decentralized the somewhat moribund ordnance department shortly after Pearl Harbor, moving ammunition to St. Louis, automotive vehicles to Detroit, safety and security to Chicago, artillery carriages to Rock Island, Ill., and getting things away from Washington where, as he says, "People are always breathing down

It was Campbell who cleared the decks for the famous bazooka anti-tank gun. Though he has been criticized for not developing an air-plane rocket gun similar to the Germans' weapon, it was really General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the air forces, who failed to take action on the airplane rocket gun when its feasibility was proposed several years ago by Arnold's arch-critic, Major Seversky.

Actually, the ordnance department has to be guided by what the fighting services want. "They never get credit for the new inventions they develop," according to Assist-ant Secretary of War McCloy, "but if they ever miss one, they catch at season's end, you can now pick the eight teams in each league. Eventually you'll strike the right combination. The only precaution is not to pick more than one team in the same league on the same day. That tends to confuse your listeners.

And you must always add "as of today." Your choice of April 1 might lose some extremely valuable men overnight. On April 2 you can choose another team.

The Cubs on Paper

Back to the Cubs vs. the Reds. The Chicago club stacks up on paper as an excellent team even for a normal year. They have a sizeable list of experienced men and, fortunately enough, the list includes an entire infield. They have accumulated a good representation from lated a good representation from the minor league. In fact, some of the new boys are so good that the veterans are going to have a tough time holding their jobs.

The Cub outfield may be a thing of beauty. The club has three candidates, each of whom batted in 100 or more runs last year. Veteran Paradoxical fact is that the man for the Cubs, Andy Pafko drove home 118 for Los Angeles while hit-Bill Nicholson knocked in 128 runs done by ordnance is a former navy ting .353, and Ed Sauer drove in an

In the infield Manager Jimmy Wilson will have (with possibilities of changes) Ed Stanky, Stan Hack, Leonard Merullo and Phil Cavarretta, all more or less 1943 regulars.

The big question is in the pitching and catching staffs. Right now the Cubs have Claude Passeau, Lon Warneke, Paul Derringer and Paul Erickson. Rookies Jodie Phipps from Los Angeles, Dale Anderson of Nashville and Jim Lynn of Los Angeles should help out to a considerable extent.

The Catchers

Micky Kreitner of Nashville and Billy Holm of Los Angeles may never be the best catchers in the world. but the Cubs can feel lucky they're on the roster.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds is optimistic concerning baseball in general. His optimism halts there. The Reds' chief recently told reporters "Things are just so uncertain now I can't even tell you who will be playing (for the Reds). Bucky Walters and Ray Mueller are sure to be back. But one pitcher and one catcher doesn't make a

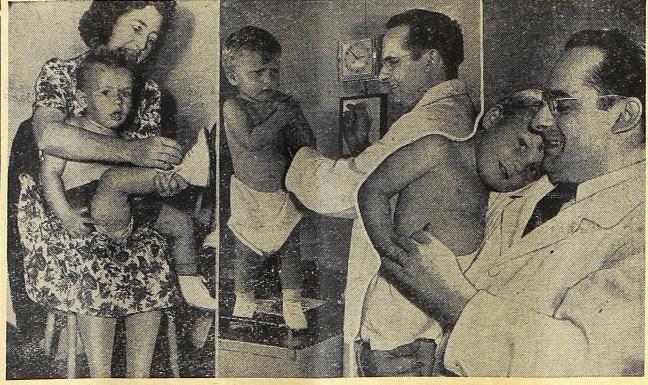

McKechnie likely was thinking of Johnny Vander Meer and Lonnie Frey, both of whom will be missing at the opening gun. Ed Miller, his shortstop, also is in 1-A and may be called before the season opens. "So is Elmer Riddle," McKechnie adds

In discussing the National league season in general, McKechnie puts on his rose-colored glasses. In that regard he differs from several other major league managers. He says:

"This should be one of the best, I believe the most interesting, seasons I've ever seen. On paper, at least, the teams are more evenly matched than before.

"And then we have these youngsters that several teams are bringing up who will compete with the veterans, like the Waner boys. It should be a good race, one of the

SAUL BECOMES A NEW MAN

LESSON TEXT: Acis 9:1-9, 13-19a.
GOLDEN TEXT: If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature.—II Corinthians 5:17.

The lives of great men inspire us with an eagerness to make our own lives count for God and for country. Particularly is that true of the life of the apostle Paul, for he combined personal greatness with an absolute surrender and devotion to Christ, which made his life doubly effective.

We recall, however, that this peerless leader for Christ was at first the bitter enemy of everything Christian and we ask, "What changed this man?" The answer isthe redeeming grace of God-but that is the story of our lesson. He became a changed man as he went-I. From Threatening to Trembling

(vv. 1-7)

The enemies of God and of our Christ are often loudmouthed and terror-spreading individuals, who, for a time, strike fear into the hearts of men. Such was Saul of Tarsus, and such are the antichristian leaders of our day. They seem to be so powerful and able to sweep all before them.

But wait! Luther said of God's archenemy, "One little word shall fell him," and it is true. See what happened to Saul. Off on his journeys of persecution and destruction, bold and determined, he met Jesus on the Damascus road, and the great threatener is found to be "trembling and astonished" (v. 6).
The Lord is still on His throne, and one day every mouth shall be stopped (Rom. 3:19), and all His enemies shall tremble before Him. Would that they would do it while there is time to repent.

II. From Persecuting to Praying (vv. 2, 8, 9; see also v. 11).

Paul utterly devoted to the rooting out of this hated sect of Christians was on his way with letters authorizing their imprisonment. It was all very official, zealous and marvelous in men's sight, until he met Jesus, and it all blew away.

Ananias, that faithful layman (may his tribe increase!), was called of God to go and speak to the stricken Saul. When he feared to go, God encouraged him (v. 15), for the powerful persecutor had now become a penitent pray-er (v. 11). That's what a face to face meeting with Jesus did for Paul-yes, and will do for any man or woman.

III. From Scoffing to Suffering (vv. 1, 13-16).

Saul doubtless gloried in the breathing out of threatenings and slaughter of which we read in verse 1. He was riding high in the seat of authority and of official approval. It was satisfying to his fleshly pride to make known his dreadful purposes of destruction and imprisonment for these helpless Christians.

Did we say helpless? Oh, no, they had on their side all the power of the Eternal One. He who touches the people of God touches the Lord Himself. Paul thought he was fighting a little sect of Christians, but found that he was fighting the Lord Himself (v. 5).

But now that he had met Jesus and was ready to turn in devotion to His sacred cause, he was to learn what it meant to suffer. Let us note well that suffering for the sake of one's faith may be entirely within the will of God, yes, and for His

IV. From Spiritual Death to Spiritual Life (vv. 17-19).

Men have tried to explain the experience of conversion on the ground psychology, as a cataclysmic change in the life of an individual who has gone through some great sorrow or trial, but it simply will not go down. There is in real conversion a regeneration which means a completely changed life.

Saul did have a sudden and moving experience on the Damascus road, but it was not just because of a blinding light and a mighty voice. It was a light "from heaven" (v. 4), and the voice of the Lord.

Saul was "filled with the Holy Ghost," and received his sight. He was ready now to be used of the Lord as the greatest missionary evangelist and theologian that the world has ever known.

This change was one which reached down into his inmost being and transformed his beliefs. The Jesus he had hated, now became his all consuming passion and love. He no longer looked to his works to save him, for now he knew the personal Saviour.

What happened within showed itself in his attitude toward those without. It always does. He now came to love the very people he had hated and persecuted, and turned every bit of his strength and ability into the task of working with them in the spreading of the gospel throughout the world.

Men and women-yes, boys and girls-today need this same change from death to life. Too long have we been trying to polish up the exterior of lives unchanged within,

'Inoculated' Legumes Capture More Nitrogen

Bacteria Living in Soil Often Impotent

Greatest need of farmers in meeting their wartime crop production goals is nitrogen—and their ablest allies in meeting this need are the legume bacteria, capable of taking nitrogen from the air. Inoculation of alfalfa, clovers, soybeans, peas and beans with selected strains of nitrogen-fixing bacteria often enables their legumes to harvest from one to two hundred pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Legume bacteria vary in their ability to aid legumes in taking nitrogen from the air. According to a report by Wayne Umbreit in Wisconsin's latest edition of "What's New in Farm Science"-"on the average, only about one-fourth of the root-nodule bacteria found in the soil are good nitrogen-fixers, one-half are fair and the remaining one-fourth poor. This means that if farmers depend on bacteria in the soil to inoculate their legume seed, under most conditions they are likely to get only from one-fourth to one-half as much nitrogen as they might with good, fresh cultures."

The roots of this red clover plant are full of nodules, showing excellent bacterial action. The clover seed was inoculated before planting.

Since there is no way of determining before seeding whether the soil contains sufficient numbers of the right kind of bacteria-and the average cost of inoculation is no more than ten cents an acre-farmers can well afford to invest in this low-cost form of crop insurance. Either the humus or agar type of inoculant gives satisfactory results. Umbreit points out that root-nodules bacteria are not "at home" in the soil—they are "refugees" there during the periods between legume crops. They may find survival most difficult in acid soils, which makes inoculation almost essential under those conditions. Even then the soil should be imed to assure successful stands of legumes.

gers university. Tests have shown that crank case and transmission oil will prevent rusting from 7 to 30 days outdoors, Krueger reports. Axle grease and pressure gun grease gave protection from 60 to 90 days; five samples of rust preventive compounds for 276 days and nine samples for 365 days

On the basis of these tests, the best type of rust preventive is the soft grease type which may be brushed on metal surfaces to give protection for 10 months to a year.

High-Bred Eggs Sell For a Dollar a Piece

Joseph H. Jones, a newspaper man, started a chicken farm near Springfield, Ill., three years ago, and now he is getting $1 apiece-not a dozen-for his eggs. They are for breeding stock. He paid $60 for a rooster and two hens from Oregon. The rooster was the grandson of Orange Blossom, a hen which laid over 1,000 eggs during her career, and one of the hens was granddaughter of a hen that laid 320 eggs in one year.

Feed Cows on Record

"In one herd of 72 milking cows, there was a saving of more than four tons of feed a month-or 117 pounds of grain a month per cowwhen the entire herd was fed grain according to milk production," Dr. George Taylor, Rutgers U. animal husbandry expert, reports. The total pounds of milk produced per month remained about the same and the total fat production was increased slightly, compared with previous months.

Wartime Shopping in Naples

By Doris Fleeson

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Woman's Home Companion.)

As a woman here in Naples and just back from the fighting front, I'm often reminded of the wisecrack that Americans are fighting the war for souvenirs. Certainly the No. 1 occupation of the Fifth army men when off duty is shopping for gifts for their women back home. The rush to buy is tremendous, despite rising prices and the fact that goods are getting scarcer. The early birds, for instance, got silk stockings. Remember? Italy was a partner of Japan. Now the popular light shades are exhausted and the few stockings left come in dark dismally unflattering shades.

Besides silk stockings, a run has been made on gloves and on coral, tortoiseshell and cameo jewelry. Back home now it ought to be easy to spot a girl with a Fifth army

It often seems to me that my most important job here is to be shopping consultant for about a hundred thousand men, all of whom need help. I am the girl who knows what's what-or that's what they tell me. My entrance into a shop, or my passing a street peddler, is the signal for all the soldiers present to rush me for advice: "Will my girl like this? Do you think this will fit my mother?"

Stockings were easy because I know they are welcome anywhere, and a quiz session with the soldier gave me a reasonable chance to guess the correct size. But I am forced to admit that the last woman I saw wearing a cameo was my grandmother, and I perspired trying to think up just what to say when a soldier held one of these ornate brooches in his hand and said hopefully: "Don't you think my girl would like this?"

If the cameo was for his mother I didn't worry so much. I figured the mother would never admit that anything her son sent her was other than just what her heart desired. But I did want to guard against having the gentleman disappointed by his girl friend's response. So I preached a strong anti-junk cam-

Lots of Gaudy Junk.

But mountains of parcels poured out of Italy, and lots of junk must have been included. The boys tried I can testify that they searched, bargained and debated for hours before they made up their "Bundles for America." Their selfconsciously pleased expressions as they sent the packages off were deeply touching. Mail means the world to them, and they were replying in kind.

Mail - any mail - is the great event. Not so much what's in a letter or a package-although that is important too, and any commander can tell which boys have whiners at home-just the getting of it is what counts. Home town newspapers are prized-the smaller the town the better. News that has a personal touch is what's wanted, and characters in small town newspapers have become real, even to boys who never heard of the place in America.

Besides being an inveterate shopper, the Fifth army lad off duty is an inveterate sightseer. The ruins of Pompeii, the environs of Vesuvius and the famous Isle of Capri are overrun. Pompeii's shattered marbles have no impact for the boys who have seen endless numbers of bombed towns, but stories about the antiquities still fascinate them.

Another popular sight is the huge Caserta, the palace which Ferdinand IV built for his consort in the 18th century. Its magnificent staircase, throne room and opera house have survived both our bombs and the Germans', and therein the army Joes and the nurses happily burlesque royalty.

Speaking of royal palaces reminds me of my Naples apartment, which I share with Red Cross girls and whatever visiting firewoman comes along-one night a dignified hospital inspector, the next night two sloeeyed Italian dancers giggling happily over their soldier audiences' enthusiasm. I'm reminded because, as the old vaudeville joke has it, my apartment and the royal palace are so different-though compared with the front it is a palace indeed.

Filled With Equipment. The rooms are piled high with bedrolls, helmets and canteens, but the beds are soft and sheeted and there is a place to hang clothes. The main room is regally spacious, marble-floored and well ventilated-the ventilation, to be sure, owing to repeated bombings. A brisk walk from the main room brings one to a bathroom where, at the price of smoky rooms and a lungful of carbon dioxide, it is possible to build a fire in a small stove and wring out of it three inches of rusty hot water.

U. S. Outposts Shoulder Their Share of War

Hawaii and Alaska Ahead of States in Bond Buying.

The 21/2 million citizens of Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, areas which comprise the outer defense rim of the United States, have played a more intimate part in the nation's war program than the citizens of any other area in the country, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes stated preliminary to releasing the reports of the governors of those regions as well as a report on the status of Philippine civilian affairs for the fiscal

Their front-line activities show that militarily these areas have acted as shock-absorbers for this country and that economically they have experienced severe dislocations, particularly Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Hawaii is now honeycombed with bomb shelters, Gov. Ingram M. Stainback has reported. Emergency hospitals and auxiliary first-aid stations, manned by volunteer nurses, have been constructed throughout the territory under the direction of the Territorial Office of Civilian Defense through the emergency fund allotted by the President to the department of the interior. The civilian population has been immunized, fingerprinted, and furnished gas masks and has been trained for fire fighting, first aid, gas defense, and other defense work. The water supply has been chlorinated against bacterial contamination. Utility installations are under constant guard.

Formerly a defense bulwark for the continental United States, Alaska has now become a thoroughfare for offensive action through the Aleutian chain.

Alaska Beats Difficulties.

Governor Ernest Gruening reported that a winter of unprecedented snowfall, severe floods, manpower shortage, and the movement of vast quantities of equipment and military personnel combined to make the year one of the most difficult from an operational standpoint in the history of the Alaska railroad. The Alaska road commission rushed to completion the Alaska highway, which connects Palmer with the Richardson highway.

Alaskans have consistently exceeded their war bond quota, the governor reported. The territory's purchases in the final month of the fiscal year ranked second in the nation, exceeding all of the 48 states with a per-centage of 114.5 and being second only to Hawaii.

From Puerto Rico, Gov. Rexford G. Tugwell reports that the shipping shortage during part of the fiscal year 1943, and its serious effects on the island's economy, overshadowed other developments. Puerto Rico's 2,000,000 people normally are dependent upon the continental United States for one-third of their food onnage, and for almost all of their clothing and other essential commodities. In September, 1942, the civilian tonnage to Puerto Rico had sunk to 7 per cent of the 1940 monthly average. Only the strenuous efforts of the insular government, the United States department of the interior, the Food Distribution administration, the War Shipping administration, and the war and navy de-

'Postwar Slump" in Virgin Islands. As the Virgin Islands were early to feel the economic uplift of the war, so were they among the first American communities to experience the inevitable retrogression as military construction drew to a close. Unemployment again loomed as an important problem at the end of the fiscal year, according to Gov. Charles Harwood. Public works projects, including urgently needed sanitation and hospital facilities, must be provided to take up the slack, he stated.

The Philippines continued to suffer the effects of enemy invasion. Intercepted broadcasts revealed that guerrilla warfare was being waged in all of the larger islands and that the mass of the population continued in its loyalty to the United States and to the Commonwealth government-in-exile.

In September, 1942, the functions and duties of the high commissioner to the Philippine Islands were transferred by executive order to the secretary of the interior. The high commissioner's office, in collaboration with the provost marshal general's office, gives special attention to various problems concerning Americans interned in the Philippines. Under Secretary Ickes' jurisdiction, plans are being prepared in consultation with commonwealth officials for a generous and effective program for the economic and financial rehabilitation of the Philippines when the enemy is ousted from the

Send him jelly, cookies, home-made fudge, or cake and include in your box a silly little verse he will get a laugh from.

If your particular man in uniform won't appreciate this type of box, send him little gifts occasionally that you know he will like. And don't forget to write often-and tell him all the local news.

Once Again Rubber Is Grown in Central America

Rubber is native to the American tropics and was introduced elsewhere only about 65 years ago. Cheap labor in the Far East made it a profitable industry, so that by 1939 almost all of this essential crop came from there. And the U.S. supply came from ports which are four to ten times the distance of Central American ports.

Experiments now going on in Central America are promising, Wild and cultivated rubber plants are now being harvested in more than one country. Costa Rica has planted several thousand acres of trees on its Atlantic coast in recent years. Honduras, Haiti and Guatemala are also harvesting rubber for use in the war.

Strange, but effective, is the Ethiopian method of dealing with persons attempting to escape financial obligations.
