W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, Flying Fortress pilot, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men are killed in Old 99 before the Fort could get off the ground. The step by step escape to Australia is described, and how Christ-mas day is spent by U. S. flyers in Australia. But Kurtz is worrying about two Forts on a mission. Radio report comes from Schaetzel saying he'd be in after dark with one body aboard and have ambulance ready. General Brereton lands on Batchelor Field and orders all bombers moved to Java at once. Kurtz reaches well camouflaged field in Java, with load of bombs. Describes social system of the Dutch.

CHAPTER VIII

"Next day we headed out over the Java Sea toward Borneo and, following instructions, found a likely looking river, dropping down to low altitude, and began following it back upcountry, and then, just on schedule, we made out Samarinda Field in the late-afternoon sunlight in spite of its camouflage. And it was the best job we'd ever seen, better than Malang. We'd had practically no time for camouflage at all in the Philippines. But here the Dutch had hewed this field out of the teeming jungle-uprooted the stumps, leveled it off, planted it with grass, and then covered it with wooden sawhorses that would knock the stuffing out of any plane that tried to land through them. Only when you circled the field, out came a crowd of natives on the run-I suppose they were wild men of Borneo the Dutch had tamed. They would remove the sawhorses only from that particular runway you were supposed to use, and the minute your wheels touched the ground they'd start recovering the runway behind you.

"Right away we went to pilots' meeting, where we lined out the mission for Davao Bay.

"The Japs, we knew, seldom flew at night, but we were flying in a V of V's. Jim Connally, George Schaetzel, and I made up the third flight, which, I might point out, is the dirty spot, because in those days you could expect most Jap attacks from the rear. Then we started that long climb for altitude-which means safety for the Fortress, a hell of a big and vulnerable target near the ground.

"But while we are still climbing, George Schaetzel is lagging. Engine trouble, we later found out. George drops out entirely, which leaves Jim Connally and me alone to handle the "Presently the formation levels off, and then ahead of us we see an enormous black mass of weather in what is left of the dwindling twilight. It's laid out horizontally right across our path-starting at about 12,000 feet, it seems to go on up forever.

"So what do we do? Our orders are to keep in formation, so we can all hit Davao at the same time, and not go over dispersed at intervals, where the Zeros, rising at the first alarm, can slaughter the stragglers.

"But if we go into this cloud bank, maybe it goes on for miles and we'll lose each other inside of it, and never be able to assemble for the at-

"The leader decides we'll try to go around it, so, turning, we fly parallel to it. But it seems endless, and after flying for forty-five minutes, we see that in this attempted detour we've wasted precious gasoline-our margin of safety to get to the target and get home is down to almost zero.

"Which means we can't go on. "We returned to Samarinda, landed, gassed up, and then without any rest or sleep started to take off again for Davao at midnight. This time we were sure we wouldn't

"Again we run into thick fog," went on Frank, "when we go up next night. My co-pilot Collvin and I fly alternately—our eyes smarting and streaming from the strain and staring through the windshield at those formation lights of the planes ahead, not daring to lose sight of them for fear we will then be lost and alone in the night. As dawn breaks I see Broadhurst's Fortress by the number on its tail. It is too late to go on into Davao, just two of us, so we turn and start mournfully back to Samarinda.

"At one o'clock in the morning we again took off on the long flight to the target-between four and five hours. For the first few hours we were lucky. The clouds were well stratified and we flew between two layers of them, so we didn't have to fly both weather and instruments. This time we arrive at the previously agreed point where we are to make that 120-degree turn and come directly in on Davao, and as we swing up and over for that sharp bank, I get my only glimpse of the target, which ordinarily the pilot never sees in detail. From where he sits he can only see the sky and the distant horizon ahead. It's the bombardier who can look straight down and a little ahead, who pulls the plane in over that tiny pinpoint to be attacked. But now I'm about to see it for myself-just one look when my wing is cocked high in the out of the tilted side window, the tect his tail and his gunners can and then-oh, lovely, lovely sight!a big boat sitting well offshore surrounded by a protecting circle of destroyers, all of them motionless, not a wisp of smoke coming from a funnel. We've caught them asleep with no steam up, the Japs are snoring—like so many Pearl Harbor brass-hats—this is what we've been waiting for! waiting for!

"But now comes a change. Over my interphones I hear Stone, bombardier of the lead plane, calling to Combs, who is leading us.

"'Do you mind if we change over, sir?' he asks. 'I see our real target

"We've now roared in almost to our bomb-release line, but Combs agrees. We bank up and change over, now heading apparently for lower Davao Harbor.

"Peering out of the window on the bank, I get one glimpse of it and now understand the reason for the change-the most tremendous concentration of ships I ever saw in my life. Everything, big boys, cruisers of all sizes, transports, submarines, destroyers, gunboats, bunched in there dotting the water so thick we couldn't possibly miss-but now we're on our bomb run, and I'm steadying the plane down to go on the PDI. (Pilot's direction instrument,) To you it's just one of many wavering needles on this big instrument panel. But it's hooked up with the bomb sight in the compartment

below. The bombardier has his sensitive fingers on those controls, keeping the target ahead framed in the cross hairs. Every time he moves them a fraction of an inch. the change is registered in that PDI needle on my instrument panel. I can't see the target, of course, but if I follow the needle I can't miss it.

"Now our nerves are tightening up. I glance fleetingly ahead and see Cecil Combs in the lead plane, going over the target. Since we're bringing up the rear, Cecil is about nine miles away, and his big For-tress looks about the size of a wren. That sky ahead is filled with dirty soot-gray ack-ack puffs, making a spotty layer above him. The Japs on the ground have cut their fuses just a little too long to pick off Cecil, but I know that in a very few seconds more I'm going to get a closer view of this ack-ack. I pray Cecil's bombardier won't miss, although he's too far ahead for us to see his bombs leave. 'Damn it, Stone, now lay 'em down the alley, boy.' But that kid won't miss; he's one of the best bombardiers in the business. Now he's laying his train, Pearl Harbor style, on those Japs, who are lying there without steam up -only again I'm raging. Here we are, with a Pearl Harbor setup for a target, but only ten of us, while the Japs hit Hawaii with many scores.

"My navigator has laid aside his tools in the compartment below, and now comes crawling up through the trapdoor to squeeze back through the bomb bays, between the rows of bombs and gas tanks, into the radio compartment, where he'll man a machine gun against Jap fighters.

"There's no interphone talking now except between gunners. We've broken radio silence-the hell with it now. We see them down there and of course they see us up here. Anything we can do to bring the formation in right is okay. So now the earphones crackle with the excited cross talk of machine-gunners, all peering out their windows on the lookout for Zeros.

"I take a quick glance out of the side window to make sure I'm not ahead of Jim. I've got to stay even "And then I get my only glimpse with him so my gunners can procity still asleep, the upper Bay of protect mine. And I wonder how in Davao silver in the first dawn light, hell that first flight has done, but and then—oh, lovely, lovely sight!— don't dare look up to see if Combs has turned off the target yet. I must stay glued to that needle-my co-pilot is glued to it too, giving me the corrections on my run.

"It must be as carefully timed as a violin duet. My bombardier below there needs the gentle touch of a violinist on his controls and I must follow with equally gentle pressures on the rudder. If he gets excited, and in correcting an error, moves his controls too far, then, following that weaving needle, I'll push a pedal too far and we'll throw the Fortress out of her groove.

"I'm almost praying he won't do this. 'Come on, boy,' I mutter to him, 'don't let it run down your leg, now-don't overcorrect!'

"Now I take the risk of just one glance away from the needle through the windshield to see the second flight just going in on its bomb-release line. The ack-ack fire, which for the first flight was too high, is now breaking below the second flight. That means they'll see they've bracketed us, and next time they make a change in fuses down below—about the time our third flight is going over-they'll have us square.

"Just then I hear a gunner shouting over the interphones:

"'Fighters, coming up at nine o'clock!' I can't see them yet—wonder where they're coming from. Maybe off a carrier. Then why didn't we make a run on that? Maybe Cecil did, and missed. Maybe my bombardier sees it and we are making our run on it. No, I think, they're probably off the ground. The Japs have probably got the countryside around Davao laced with landing strips by this time-the enterprising little so-and-sos.

(Lay your watch down on the table in front of you. At twelve o'clock the hour hand points straight ahead. At three o'clock it points to the right. At nine o'clock it points to the left.)

"Now my own gunners are talking: 'They're coming up in a long, slow spiral, like hornets out of a nest-coming up so straight you can even see their bellies. I get the first rumble of the antiaircraft fire as the ship flutters. A quick glance ahead shows the puffs are right on our level now.

"Then I get mad again. Because it said in our schoolbooks that the Jap antiaircraft fire couldn't hit anything above 18,000. Here we are, laying it to them from almost twice that altitude, and they're putting it right back up to us.

"Then I get a feeling of exultation. Because down under us and not far ahead now is that Jap Pearl Harbor setup-big ships with stonecold boilers. Now they must be running frantically around the engine rooms trying to stoke the fires and get steam up, knowing while they're hurrying that it's too late-just as they knew at Pearl Harbor, but all you can do is hurry, so you do it only ten of us—got them where they had Old 99 just about a month ago.

"Then I jump, for the ship quivers from a burst of fire from our own .50-caliber guns. Then quickly another and another. Zeros coming up, banking to come in and rake us with their fire? But when nothing is said of them over the interphones, I know my boys are only firing little bursts to warm the oil in their guns, making sure the guns won't jam when we are really hit by fight-

"Suddenly the plane's nose lurches upward and to the left, and hardly have I straightened her out onto even keel when she tries to make another twist. It's the blast from the ack-ack fire-invisible billows of air sent out by each explosion, and now it's as rough as though we were bouncing in a Model T over a Missouri dirt road three days after a

"At my side my co-pilot, who has been looking out through the windshield, hollers: 'Jim's bombs are on their way.' I don't dare take my eye from the needle.

"Just then I get the click from my own bombardier. Our bombbay doors are open now-I feel the slight drag on the plane, and with my rudder correct for it, and then that double click on the interphone which means he's telling me: 'Ship level, Frank, please.' And I don't answer except with my feet so firmly but gently on the rudders, giving him that absolutely level bombing platform he has to have if we're to hit the target.

"And at last the precious amber light glows on my instrument panel, which means he's now actually flicking the bombs off, one by one, and I keep my feet so softly on the rudders that they hardly touch, so as not to give the tiniest sidewise throw to the bombs. Up in the cockpit we hold our breath. We know down below the bombardier is flicking them off-four 600-pounders at half-second intervals.

"Then as he calls, 'Bombs away!" at that split second we quit working for the Government and begin to work for our wives and families. Because that means the last bomb has left the plane and we can now close the bomb-bay doors, and our objective is now only to get home

Easter Costumes Are Prettied With Most Intriguing Neckwear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

signers have been dreaming up rafts of adorable ruffly, frilly, frothy phantasies as well as strikingly original and chic novelties with which to dramatize the 1944 spring fashion picture.

So take this cue and see to it that your Easter costume goes excitingly frou-frou with masses of billowy frills and other lovely lacy neckwear, or that it takes on swank with the myriads of versatile novelties in way of dickey, gilet and weskit fashions and other cunning tidbits like button-on rosettes and bows such as they are showing in neckwear departments this season.

The neckwear program certainly fascinates with its wide scope of ideas, catering as it does to every mood, from the simple practical neck fixings to effects that dazzle with their glamour and feminine prettiness. It adds zest to the vogue that you can individualize your Easter costume with striking novelties, such as the new black lacy dickeys and other all-black neckwear items so fashionable this season. Black is always sophisticated. It ever has a way of lifting something drab and prosaic into something intriguing.

Why not give your Easter garb a fillip with a softly ruffled collar of jet black sheer inserted with a narrow Venise type black lace, such as anyway. Well, we've got them where is shown below to the left in the ilwe wanted them, even if there are lustration. Here is an example of what a black sheer-with-lace frilly neckpiece can do in way of adding eye-appeal to a simple print frock.

The new vogue for smart neckwear made of gay checked taffeta is being hailed with delight by the young at heart. The youthful ruffled gilet pictured upper left in the group is destined to prove a favorite with the teen-age set. This model of red and white checked taffeta is particularly gay and pert when worn with Sally Victor's new bowler hat one of the hits of the season) made (one of the hits of the season) made of the same check. Placed way back on the head, as you see, is the way to wear it.

Portrait ruffles of delicate lace as shown to the right above never fail in flattery, whether you are young or not so young. You will be beguiling on Easter day in this very lovely collar of double tiered lace in pearly white. This exquisite lace collar is one of those pieces you'll treasure as a priceles. treasure as a priceless possession, in that it can always be relied upon to add an air of refinement and ladylikeness to one's appearance.

Like a breath of spring is the Easter outfit that prettifies a flower colored print frock with a crisp touch of lacy lingerie at the throat. The ultimate is reached when the gay print with its petal-edged jabot of embroidered organdy is topped with a springtime posy hat by Sally Victor, as shown below to the right.

Other items sold at the neckwear counter that will add eye-thrilling interest to the Easter costume include intriguing fantasies such as frills and ruches of fluffy stuff designed to fill in your low-scooped necklines, either the popular deep U-scoops or the square-cut lines. There are many other sentimental whiffs of lace and enchanting delicate embroidery in way of cunning tidbits such as button-on rosettes, bows and butterflies. Neckwear in the voguish new Venus pink is sell-ling at sight.

Two-Tone Gray

Gray as a color for suits, dresses, coats and the background tone for prints, also for smart headwear, is riding on the crest of the wave this spring. The suit pictured uses gray wool, accenting smooth shoulders and a cut which smartly defines the waistline. It also features a onebutton fastening for the jacket which is a favored style gesture this spring. The gray note is accented in use of a darker gray for an artful inset in the jacket top. The

Washable Cottons Chic and Practical

Cottons were never more in demand than now. The big idea this spring is the very new suits in dark colors or lush shades or in beguiling pastels made of a weave that looks exactly like handsome sturdy linen. An orange-colored linen jacket worn with a slender brown linen-like skirt reaches the ultimate' in chic. Smart too is the black or navy jacket suit made of these linen-like cotton weaves. You will find in the wash goods section many new types such as specially-woven ginghams and checks and novelties in screen prints, also the now-so-popular balloon cloth. Crisp waffle piques abound in the new collections. Great emphasis is placed on chambray which designers are making up in adorably feminine styles that take on little lace edgings and flattering low-cut necklines filled in with little ruffles and sometimes drawstring effects. It behooves the woman who has taken up the home-sewing hobby to know her fabrics and a visit to the wash goods section offers a liberal education.

Cunning Capes Designed

For Cover-Up Tops

Rumor has it that we will be seeing lots of cape costumes from now on. Smart for about-town wear is a navy dress topped with a fulllength navy cape. The same repeated in oxford gray with silver buttons on the dress and silver earring clips and a silver clasp fastening for the cape makes a stunning spring outfit. Because of the new sleeveless vogue, designers have turned to creating cunning capes for cover-up tops. Also print dresses are topped with plain color capes idea of two-tone gray is being exlined with the same print as makes ploited by several leading designers. the dress.

Mr. Carr Found Friends Unsympatheticat Late Hour

The late William J. Carr of the state department had occasion once to call at the house of a friend late at night. He rang the doorbell. After a long wait, a head was poked out of a second-floor window. "Who's there?"

asked a voice.
"Mr. Carr," was the reply.
"Well," said the voice as the window banged shut, "what do I care if you missed a car? Why don't you walk, and not wake up people to tell them about it!"

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

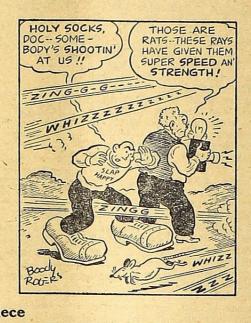

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes having seathers to frequent times burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recomended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

ALCOHOL AND WPB

A mysterious hand has reached inside the War Production board to hald the war Production beautiful by the war Production board to hald the war Production beautiful by the war Production by the war hold up a new method of alcohol production. The process, developed in Germany, is the distillation of alcohol from sawdust and wood

All over the U.S. A. there is a great surplus of sawdust and wood scraps from saw mills. In some areas, its disposal is a problem. But in Germany, some 30 plants are in operation turning sawdust not only into alcohol, but yeast and cattle

This same process has been tested at a U. S. forest service pilot plant at Marquette, Wis., and recently plans were all set to open a commercial plant at Willamette, Ore. The Vulcan Copper and Supply company was scheduled to do the job, and J. Alfred Hall, borrowed from the forest service by WPB's office of production research and development, actually had gone out to Oregon to inspect the proposed Willamette site.

But now something has happened. The alcohol division of WPB is reported to be quietly throwing monkey wrenches into the works.

For two long years, WPB's alco-hol division had blocked the sawdust alcohol method for the obvious reason that the big alcohol com-panies are entrenched with the Cuban molasses method. Their plants are near the Atlantic seaboard, where molasses is readily accessible. They don't want competition from the lumber regions of the South and Northwest. But finally, because of the desperate alcohol shortage, they were overruled and the Willamette plant was authorized.

However, queer things happened. When the Willamette application was sent by registered mail to WPB, it was "lost." WPB refused to act without the "original" application, so valuable weeks were wasted ar-

Then, an engineer named Levy, who had had experience with the sawdust method in Germany, was brought here from England. This time, the Willamette application papers were ready. But another hitch developed. WPB suddenly found some of Levy's credentials unsatisfactory, demanded an FBI investigation. The FBI cleared him, but still the WPB's alcohol division is holding things up.

AIR WAR OVER GERMANY

Strange as it may seem, the present problem of the U. S. and British air forces over Europe is not so much to locate the targets but to locate German fighter planes. Nazi fighters have been so reduced in numbers that they are being held back, apparently for the second front. Allied bombers occasionally make a complete mission to the Continent without meeting any opposition in the air.

This is good news, but it prevents heavy attrition of the Luftwaffe unless the German planes are sought out on the ground.

As American fliers put it: "We've done a birth-control job on the Luftwaffe." In other words, they have struck manufacturing plants so successfully that fighter production is way down. This applies both to twin-engine and single-engine fightbeen struck systematic and devastating blows.

Air forces officials have figures on the exact amount of that "birth control," but the figures are highly confidential. British as well as American officials are delighted with the results, and the British are now admitting the superiority of American precision bombing in knocking off certain targets.

Germans Avoiding a Fight.

In the text book of air power, after you have attacked the enemy's aircraft industry, you aim at the en-emy's planes in the air. And that is what the RAF and AAF are trying to do now. But the Germans are avoiding a fight. They are try-ing to check losses by keeping their planes on the ground.

Occasionally, returning pilots con-radict this. "The man who says tradict this. the Luftwaffe is licked is just plain crazy!" And they have battle wounds for evidence. Explanation is that the Nazis concentrate fighter strength over one important target. Air experts say Germany is now in the desperate plight England was in at the climax of the blitz of 1940-41. The British now admit that, if the Germans had come over a few more times, they would have broken the back of England. But the Luftwaffe simply couldn't stand the terrific losses.

William Malcolm Dickey into the navy, the New York Yankees lost the last man of an era that made the champions the most famous club in baseball.

Bill Dickey played with Babe Ruth. Lou Gehrig was his room-mate, and in more recent years there were Tommy Henrich, Joe DiMaggio, George Selkirk, Johnny Sturm, Buddy Hassett, Red Ruffing, Ken Sears, Phil Rizzuto, Bill Johnson, Charlie Keller and others who made the Yankees the champions of

When Manager Joe McCarthy re-ceived word of Dickey's status he

Exactly how much the loss of Dickey will affect the Yankees remains to be seen, but most observers believe that it will rank with the biggest, comparable to the loss of DiMaggio, Keller or any of the others who are in service.

Dickey's Rating

Unquestionably Dickey deserves ranking with the best catchers of all time. He shared in nine World series cuts and appeared behind the bat in every contest of the Yankees' last eight series. Only Ruth appeared in more World series, and Dickey's feat of playing on seven winning clubs tied a mark held by Ruth and Gehrig.

The only uniform that Dickey ever wore in the big show was a Yankee uniform—and he wore that for 16 seasons. The veteran, who will be 37 years old in June, received the plaque as player of the year at the recent Baseball Writers' dinner in New York. He holds the major league record of catching 100 games or more for 13 consecutive seasons. or more for 13 consecutive seasons and batted over the .300 mark in 11 seasons. His lifetime average is Apparently the Yankee front office had seen the handwriting on the wall. Joe Glenn, a veteran, was purchased from Kansas City just a few days before Dickey was inducted. The club also has the services ers. Plants making both types have of Bob Collins and Mike Garbark, rookies with little or no big league experience, and maybe Rollie Hemsley, a good catcher but a man who says he would sooner be farming than playing baseball.

All-Important

When the news was given to Mc-Carthy he wanted to say he was sorry to see Dickey go. But he checked his words for fear they might be misunderstood.

As the manager of a baseball club it is inconceivable that McCarthy should be glad to see Dickey go. A catcher is all-important. A winning ball club must be strong through the middle, from the catcher's box through center field.

The trend of the times was evidenced by the fact that, when news of Dickey's induction came, the only catcher in the Yankee spring camp was Claude Larned, a councilman from Pleasantville, N. Y., where he has a gas station. Larned is not even trying out for the team. He was around only because he likes baseball and happens to be a friend of Paul Krichell, the Yankee's No. 1 scout.

The mighty have not fallen, but their troubles are as numerous as those besetting the seven other clubs of the league. And that alone is most unusual.

CHRIST'S VICTORY OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT: I Corinthians 15:41-58.
GOLDEN TEXT: Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ .- I Corinthians 15:57.

"If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain" (I Cor. 15:13, 14).

In other words, the truth of the resurrection is an indispensable foundation stone upon which the structure of Christian doctrine rests. Beware of those who would spiritualize or explain it away!

The facts are there—fully proved and dependable; there is no need for doubt or question.

In our lesson we find:

I. The Great Change (vv. 41-50).

Since it is obvious that our present bodies are not suitable for the spiritual world (v. 50), and that there comes, sooner or later (and altered by the spiritual world). most always, it seems, too soon!), an end to their existence, there must be a radical transforming change. This takes place in the resurrection of the body.

To make such a blessed-and to the human mind, almost inconceivable-truth clear, Paul uses the effective method of comparison and contrast. Following his skillful use of the illustration of the sowing of grain, which dies that it may live again (I Cor. 15:35-39), he gives us a picture of the resurrection body.

That which we must put away in the silent earth at the end of life's day is a natural body, weak and lacking eternal glory (v. 43). It has already shown the evidences of decay and corruption, which we know shall be completely manifested in a short time. Marvelous as it has been as an earthly body, it cannot go with us into eternity (vv. 47, 48), for it is natural and not at home in the spiritual world.

Note, then, the great change that takes place. In the resurrection, the body for the eternal activity of the believer stands out as glorious, incovrupt and incorruptible, powerful, spiritually quickened, and heavenly. What more could be said?

Here we stand amazed and at the same time encouraged by the revelation of what God has in store for us who believe on Christ. Death does not end all-it is only the beginning of real fullness of life and usefulness for the Christian. And all that is because of-

II. The Great Victory (vv. 51-57).

Death is an enemy, indeed man's great enemy. There are those who have tried to deny that fact, to explain it away. They talk about death as "the great adventure," etc., but when one actually comes to face it, the truth is realized. It is an enemy. But in Christ, death is a conquered enemy. The blessed message of Easter day is that "death is swallowed up in victory" (v. 54). Death could not hold our Lord (v. 57), and He was the "first fruits of them that sleep" (v. 20). This assures us that because He lives, we too, who believe on Him, shall live. So death has lost its sting, and the grave its victory (v. 56). With Paul we cry out today from the depths of our beings, "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (v. 57). This is a day of joy, of singing, of victorious faith. But the joy of Easter is not simply something to warm one's heart.

III. The Great Incentive (v. 58) Living for Christ and serving Him in this world is our greatest privilege, but we are all so human that we need encouragement. We need an incentive.

The Bible speaks much of the rewards of God to those who are faithful, and gives many assurances that we are not engaged in a vain task. At times it seems as though men only reject, and the work of the Lord moves but slowly, if at all. Let us not be discouraged or disheartened. We follow and serve a victorious Christ, One who has triumphed over death and hell. What we do for Him is never done in vain.

Note the helpful thought here. We are to be "unmovable," and yet "abounding." That seems paradoxical, but it is not, for it is only the life steadfast and unmovable at the center which can abound at the circumference.

That center is the resurrected Christ, and when we are established in Him, we are ready to live the abundant life for Him.

Easter is a glad day for a believer, but it is a sad day for the unbeliever. He may attempt to maintain an outward appearance of joy, but he will know in his heart that the niessage of the day is definitely not for him. And yet it is, for today he may by faith take as his Saviour the Risen One and enter into fullness of joy in Him.

So many people "celebrate" Easter all their lives, year after year, but never truly "keep the feast." May many such friends make this Easter day, 1944, the beginning of a new life in Christ!

Culling Flock Boosts Production of Eggs

Hens That Don't Lay Merely Waste Feed

Because of the rise in feed prices and the decline in egg prices, poul-try growers should thoroughly cull their laying flocks and maintain as high egg production as possible, says C. E. Parrish, in charge of Poultry Extension at North Carolina State college.

He suggests that flocks be culled at night, when the birds will be disturbed as little as possible. Using a flashlight, the grower can take the loafers from his flock and save on feed costs. The non-laying hens show a pale, dry comb, which is shrinking up and scaly. The face has a yellow tint. In the beak and eye-ring, the yellow color reappears when laying stops.

"Most heavy breeds and all yellow-skinned varieties of poultry show these changes in pigmentation, bleaching out, except such white-skinned varieties as Orpingtons," Parrish says.

He points out that the comb of the laying hen is soft, warm, waxy and full of blood. The face is bright red, and the beak and eye-ring is bleached out and white.

"In culling hens, late molters should be retained as breeders if the grower plans to reproduce his flock from the present group of hens," advises Parrish. "Cull out but do not sell out.'

"The non-laying hens or pullets which are culled from the flock can be used at home or canned for fu-ture use, or they can be placed on the market."

Parrish warns that poultry not fit for food should be killed and buried deeply, as a disease control

Packers' Cattle Buyer Needs Rare Judgment

The chief cattle buyer of one of the world's largest packing-houses in Chicago says that steers are of uncertain character. A pure-bred steer may or may not be as choice meat as some unregistered critter. And there is always a difference in carcass yield even from two cows of the same weight.

This buyer has no system but says he examines "a steer's conformation, fat and quality. A choice steer is broad over the back (where the top quality meat comes from), 'blocky' in appearance, with no hip bones showing and with a full development in the brisket and the lower part of the hindquarters."

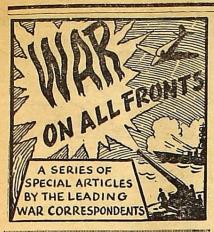

Each buyer has his own personal rule of judgment, he says, but he thinks "the hip tells the story." Once he has found a steer whose meat he rates as choice, there is the question of just how much cow is meat and what to pay for same. When about 62 to 65 per cent of the animal can be turned into beef, he figures he has a bonanza; 55 per cent is average.

Buying is closely related to demand, which is related to the national market and daily changes, he explains. "How to buy a steer" is not learned in 10 easy lessons, but must be learned again each day by consulting main office facts on different market demands and prices. "If we need the meat," he says, "we meet the competition," and he must bid against other com-

When I turned on the cross leg of my mission, I heard Fryatt, another of our pilots, phone the ship: "Contact—attacked sub"—then he broke off.

I pressed my earphones tighter to hear his next report, figured where I would be in about 20 minutes, and wrote down the position. Straining to hear Fryatt's voice on the intership phone, I almost jumped when Wojcik called: "Mr. Fowler-what is that down there?" I looked, and saw a white streak. It might have been a destroyer, or another whale. But it wasn't.

"We're in the money," I called back. "Arm everything—let's go." Wojcik said: "Roger-r-r," and I checked my guns. Bucholz, my gunner, gave his a burst, and I threw my heels down to lose speed. We came in low-off the sub's port quarter. She was moving steadily forward. I don't think they saw us until we were on top of them.

I went in again, and Bucholz strafed the decks of the cripple. Then those Jerries let us have it. Their fire cut across our tail; I dived and saw their tracers go over me. Wojcik shouted: "Boy, that was close!" I did some fancy maneuvering to keep out of range.

Bucholz was bouncing all over the back end of the plane, but he kept firing. The sub was shooting wild now and a spray of bullets was hitting the water. When I pulled up again and looked back, the sub was settling at the stern. My aerial had been shot away and I had lost combeen shot away and I had lost communication with the carrier, but I could hear another pilot reporting: "Ship from Bill—do you receive me?" and the answer. So I knew they were sending help.

When Bill arrived, I went in again to pull fire away from him so he could unload his bombs. The sub was still firing, and I heard Wojcik "It's getting pretty hot." Bucholz sprayed the conning tower with bullets. Bill dropped his load and pulled out. He looked at us and grinned as he went by.
Sub Went Down.

The sub moved forward its own length and went down before Bill called me—"Return to ship." I dropped a smoke bomb to mark the spot before I went back, but we didn't find an oil slick and there was no evidence we had made a Back on our base ship I found that Fryatt's sub hadn't fired on him before submerging, so I felt I had the edge on him. Hodgson, another pilot, had attacked a sub a few minutes before I sighted mine. He had fired on it and strafed the gun crews, but the sub dived be-fore he could finish the job.

Up to this time we had had no excitement; in fact, things had been so monotonous aboard ship that I had asked for a transfer. The skip-per said: "Monk, you still want that transfer?" I almost said: "Hell, no!" Then I thought: "Just a flash in the pan, may never happen again." I said: "Yeah, let it go through." Nothing further happened for a while. Sometimes, for a little fun, we would scream down on the ships in our destroyer escort. We always kept several rolls of toilet paper handy for these "token bombings."

Farm Accidents Slow Up Production, Warns WFA; A Million and a Half Workers Hurt Last Year

Falls, Burns, Poisoning and Gunshot Wounds Lead List of Casualties.

Need for increased food production in 1944 demands the greatest efficiency from America's farms, says the War Food administration. Safety measures, since they aid peak production, become not only a sound investment for the farmer but a war program he cannot fail to carry out in the national interest. When accidents halt work, cut down the farm force, or destroy food and equipment they seriously impede the filling of urgent national food and fiber needs.

Reports show that approximately 18,500 farmers are killed in accidents each year, with a million and a half suffering injuries and some 70,000 of these being permanently disabled. Farm fires alone annually cause about 3,500 deaths.

Enormous Fire Toll. Property loss from fire is estimated to average 100 million dollars. This includes the destruction of valu able farm buildings, equipment, anithan 20 million dollars are lost each I was flying the outbound leg of year by the burning over of eight to my patrol as we approached the ten million acres of farm woodland, suspected area. Most of these accidents are due to carelessness, according to research figures, and the hazards have become greater with the increasing number of inexperienced workers on farms and the growing load that must be carried by the farmer and the farmer's family

Tractors Most Dangerous. Farm safety, says WFA, is based on common sense. Tractor accidents top the tragedy list for machinery on the modern farm, re-ports show, when care in operation and repair would reduce them to a minimum. Improper storage and handling of unused chemicals intended to kill insects often results in killing people, and workers using these dangerous but necessary essentials to growing good crops ton releasing my load. AMERICA IN ACTION

GROUND CREWS' INGENUITY
IS WHAT KEEPS 'EM FLYING

The unsung, undecorated soldiers who "keep 'em flying"—men of the army air forces ground crews— would have their full share of acclaim and medals if the fliers who man America's warplanes had their way, the war department disclosed,

The unassuming efficiency and ingenuity of the ground crewmen was hailed by fliers who have returned to the United States after months of service in battle zones around the world. Stationed temporarily at the army air forces redistribution station No. 1, Atlantic City, N. J., they cited instance after instance in which mechanics earned the right to "as much credit for the success of our missions as those of us who fly the planes.'

When there are no tools suitable for doing a job, the ground crewmen improvise them, or work mechanical miracles with hammer and wrench. When there are no parts, they salvage them from wrecked aircraft, including the enemy's, and when there is no sheet metal, they patch flak-riddled airships with C ration cans.

And there were occasions, the fliers recall, when men of the ground crews stationed close to the front lines, temporarily discarded pliers and screwdrivers for rifles and tommy guns to fight beside ground forces troops.

Typical of the comments was that of Col. William Momyer, who commands a P-40 fighter group and holds the Distinguished Service Cross. He had little to say of that and other decorations, but said of the ground

"I can't speak too highly of them. They did work that they were not trained to do and were not normally required to do. They made repairs ordinarily made far behind the lines by specialists.

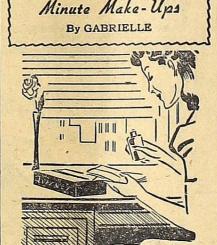

"Take our landing at Port Lyautey, Morocco, when the Allies invaded North Africa. Some of our men went in with the first waves of landing boats, and helped storm a fort. After a couple of days' fighting, in which some were wounded, they moved in at the airdrome and filled in holes in the field. Then they went to work on our planes, which had landed from carriers.

"There were no factories to fall back on for parts. If a delicate instrument failed, they just made it work. Our ground crews were always within 50 miles of the front. They were bombed constantly. At Salerno, for example, we were within artillery range for five or six

First Lieut. Martin E. Kestenbaum credited the saving of a tail gunner's life to the ingenuity of a ground crew chief who had rigged a system of inter-plane signal lights to supplement the bell alarm system on the Flying Fortress under his care. During a later mission, the tail gunner's oxygen equipment failed. Too weak to ask assistance over the interphone, he managed to lean against the signal light switch. The pilot sent help, and the distressed man's oxygen supply was restored.

Despite sandstorms and the stress of combat flying which frequently limit aircraft engine life to 25 to 50 hours, ground crews of his Marauder bomber squadron kept engines operating for 200 hours, said Capt. George V. Lane.

Another efficiency aid was turned out by a parachute repair man on New Guinea, who replaced the foot treadle on his sewing machine with a small motor taken from a useless airplane.

Where the PULPWOOD SHORTAGE hits the farmer

Over 1/4 of all pulpwood is used in packaging farm products

THE FARMERS of this country responded patriotically to the appeal for more pulpwood. They cut wood because their country needed it. Few of them stopped to think that their own business of food production was threatened by the pulpwood shortage.

Already there have been cases where packing plants were unable to accept perishables because they could not get packing materials; and the distribution of food may be seriously upset this year unless the pulpwood shortage can be overcome.

So the farmer who cuts pulpwood is not only helping his country meet a serious wartime shortage; he is also adding to his income, improving his draft deferment status, and helping to provide for the packaging and distribution of his own farm products. Cut your pulpwood now!
