TAWAS CITY RESIDENT DIES SATURDAY

Funeral Rites for Paul E. Koepke, Sr., Held Tuesday

Paul E. Koepke, highly esteemed resident of this city and former Detroit & Mackinac Railroad employee, died Saturday at the home of his son, Paul Koepke, Jr., in this city. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from Zion Lutheran church. Rev. Ernest Ross officiated. Interment was in Zion cemetery.

Paul Edward Koepke was born November 25, 1867, at Shenectady, N. Y., and came to Tawas City when a young man 18 years of age. During these early years he was employed in the C. H. Prescott & Sons mill at Tawas City and the Holland-Emery mill at East Tawas. On January 3, 1892, he was united in marriage to Miss Anna Hoshach, and they settled on a farm in Tawas township. Here they resided until 1916 when they came to Tawas City. Mrs. Koepke preceded him in death five years ago. For the past four years he has been residing with his son, Paul. Mr. Koepke has been a member of Zion Lutheran church ever since he came to the county.

CATTLEMEN HOLD DINNER AND MEETING

Suggestions Made by E. L. Benton, Livestock Specialist

Twenty-five cattlemen from Isosco and neighboring counties attended a district meeting of the Northeastern Michigan Hereford Calf Association held last Thursday evening at the Federal Building, East Tawas.

The cattlemen assembled at seven o'clock for a steak dinner at the Holland Hotel and later held their business meeting at the Federal Building. The meeting was called to order by the president of the organization, C. T. Prescott, with members and county agents present from Arenac, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Alcona and Isosco counties.

E. L. Benton, livestock specialist from Michigan State College, served as principal speaker, giving many helpful suggestions on summer feeding and management of beef cattle herds in this area. He stated that because of the extensive grain shortage during recent months, many cattle may already be suffering from nutritional deficiencies, and the shortage may not be realized by the farmer himself. When roughages grow rapidly as they did last summer, stated Benton, there may result an iodine deficiency that will be observed this spring, by the dropping of poorly developed calves with enlarged throats, and calves too weak to survive. This might easily and cheaply be prevented if potassium iodide had been fed during the gestation period at the rate of one ounce to each 100 pounds of salt. He stated that sheep suffer nutritional deficiencies much earlier than do cattle, and these losses are being observed extensively in sheep flocks throughout the state this spring. He encouraged the cattlemen to be sure and add iodide to their feed rations this fall.

Other nutritional deficiencies due, at least in part, to grain shortage, include cobalt, calcium and phosphorus. These elements should by all means be supplied to cattle and sheep rations at once.

Phosphorus and calcium may be added by feeding a mixture of one-third bone meal and two-thirds salt for the balance of the year. To this should be added one ounce of cobalt sulphate for each 100 pounds of salt and bone meal.

Benton stated that treatment for warbles and cattle lice will in turn enable the cattle to produce more food for our soldiers and more leather for their boots.

Those marketing cattle from pasture were encouraged to market in July and August as Benton predicted cheap cattle during the fall months.

Plans were formulated for the holding of another meeting in Mid-August at which time calf grading, calf marketing and other fall activities will be discussed.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, Flying Fortress pilot, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed fleeing for shelter and Old 59 was demolished before it could get off the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the squadron flies to Java, where they go out on missions over the Philippines. On one of these missions one of the motors of Kurtz' Fort is hit and they begin to lose altitude. They stay with it, however, make the bomb run and try to make Malang Field on Java, but change their minds, turn back, and are brought up at a U. S. magazine which publishes a complete diagram of the E model Fortress.

CHAPTER XI

"Pilot to Radio," calls Captain Skiles over the interphones. "Radio answering Pilot. Go ahead," answers Sergeant Boudria. "Get the emergency rations out," says Skiles, "and the jungle kits, and set them by the door."

"They'd given us up at Belem, but when they heard us circling up in the fog they went down the field in a truck, throwing out lighted flare pots to mark the runway. Our gas was so low that before the ship was parked the No. 1 engine cut out.

"Next morning we were off for Natal, and landed there at one o'clock. We were gassing up and the crew chief was supervising the loading—the natives rolling out the steel drums, and the crew chief unscrewing their tops to hurry it up—when he happened to stick his finger into one that seemed a little heavy and, by George, it was full of water! The barrel looked like any other barrel, the native looked like any other native. Of course it was sabotage, but what could you do! Brazil wasn't in the war yet. Somebody hoped that one drum of water would have brought us down with sputtering motors out in the Atlantic.

"We took off for Freetown, Africa, at ten o'clock. It was an eleven-hour flight. We stayed with the British there and got along with them fine. It was a fighter station. They gave us a nice feed and all the warm beer we could drink—it was New Year's Eve.

"Then we started across Africa, and finally sighted the Nile, and I ate dinner at the British sergeants' mess at Khartoum.

"When we got to Iraq," said the Gunner, "we began to smell the war. The British there told us not long ago the natives, led by Nazis, had revolted, and two thousand rebels had tried to take the field away from the little garrison. All the British had on it was one plane, so old it looked like a box kite—cruised about seventy miles per hour.

"So they'd taken an empty gas drum, loaded it up with brace chains, rivets, and bolts, and in the middle put a hell of a lot of sticks of dynamite and a fuse. It was so big it would hardly go into the door of the plane.

"Then they flew over the rebel army, and when they had figured the best place to drop it, they lit the fuse. But when they tried to roll it out, it got stuck in the door of the plane. The British said they were quite worried for a bit while that fuse burned on.

"Finally they jammed it through the door and on out, but it exploded about fifty feet off the ground. They said it killed about fifty rebels.

"A couple of hops later we were in Bangalore, in India, where there was a Welsh regiment stationed.

"Then we flew on down to Palembang, Sumatra, and crossed the equator in a hell of a snowstorm at 12,000 feet, with snow packing in between our engines.

"There we first saw the Dutch. Compared with the English, they seemed more rugged. But we liked them, even though they give you a loaf of bread, a hunk of baloney, and a cup of tea and call that breakfast, lunch, or dinner."

"On the seventeenth of January we had reached Java," continued the Gunner, "and were looking down on their rice paddies in a drizzle which washed everything a vivid green. Then we flew over Surabaya and up between those two conical mountains that guard the pass into Malang Field.

"Then we went down to barracks to meet the 19th. Well, there'd been quite a change. As a bunch they looked nervous and hollow-eyed, compared to the way we'd remembered them back in the States. Looked like a few of them had been drinking quite a bit off duty, maybe trying to forget what they'd been through. You had to stop and remember that those poor guys had been fighting a defensive war with those D's.

"They'd look enviously across the field at the tail guns of the new E's we'd arrived in. No doubt it was a lot better combat plane. 'Yeah-ah,' they'd admit, 'but wait till a Jap gets on your tail and then see what happens.' They all looked so tired I wondered what I'd look like after a while.

"We found out they were sending us out on a raid the very next morning—which should show how badly they needed us—so after we came back I went out to check again on my guns."

"We needed the new boys badly," said Frank. "We'd got word trouble was on the way. You see the American Navy's PB's—big flying boats—had come out of Manila, and now were operating off Java, from the big Dutch naval base at Surabaya, but mostly from coastal coves and the wide mouths of rivers. Patrol Wing 10 they were called, and a swell gang they were. Of course we thought it was God-awful stuff they were flying—those clumsy twin-engined boats with the tail sweeping up in the air—but they certainly did a job.

"They came in with the news that on reconnaissance they'd picked up an enormous gang of Jap surface ships, coming toward us down Macassar Strait. It was the same gang we'd pounded at Davao. They had to be stopped. Had to be! So the Colonel sent out everything he had, which was just six Forts, and the Dutch sent their little Navy, which couldn't scare them much alone, plus some old Martin B-10 bombers they'd bought from us before the war."

"Take-off was at 3:30 in the morning," said the Gunner. "We'd planned to bomb from a good altitude, but the weather was so bad that we had to drop down to 15,000 as we approached the target. It broke light about seven and we began to see the gray, hazy sea, and the mountains piled up on both sides of the Strait below us.

"We were about ten miles from the target when we saw that Jap surface gang. I'm not a Navy man, but I was knocked over by it. They were strung out in two lines, transports with escorts—destroyers, cruisers, battleships riding the flanks, stretching back as far as we could see. I was as bowled over as a ten-year-old kid watching his first Sells-Floto circus parade start by. Only then I thought, 'My God, here we were, only six Forts, with all this power against us!'

The next day we sighted the Pyramids and dropped down to fly behind them.

"When we sighted them we separated into two flights, following radio command, and almost immediately their ack-ack fire opened up on us. We went in in a column of V's, each flight picking its ship, and by the time we were over them, the Japs had their anti-aircraft fuses just right. Just after we'd dropped our bombs, the Jap pursuits hit us. I'd been watching them spiraling up from their aircraft carrier—in flights of three, keeping formation as they spiraled, fifteen Zeros in all.

"When they'd got their altitude, they paired off.

"Each pair would pick a Fort and go in for the attack, one hitting it from the side while the other would come in from behind. Remember, it was the first time any Zero had ever seen an E-model Flying Fortress. The one who came in from behind would throttle down to our speed and, in a leisurely way, try to shoot the tail off.

"It happens a couple came nosing up around our tail the first thing. Just like the boys of the 19th had said, they first opened up with their four little .25-caliber wing guns, getting everything nicely lined up with their tracers before cutting loose with their cannon.

"Well, our tail gunner, Sergeant Irvin Schier, waited, letting them come on in. Then just as they were about to uncork their cannon, he let them have it—knocked hell out of them. If they hadn't been dead they'd have been terribly surprised.

"We'd finished our bomb run, so then we headed for a cloud. But Major Robinson, the leader, came back with his fight for a second pass, and picked off another transport. Then we headed for home. Every Fort got back, and we'd picked off seven Zeros. For days the damned fools kept up those tail attacks, and it was the same old grind—we'd average four Zeros a mission.

"They tell it that one day five Zeros are sitting under a cloud when we come by. Four of them go in for tail attacks and are shot into confetti, so the fifth is smart—he goes home with the news. But for a while there it was a tail-gunner's heaven."

"You never forget your first battle mission," said the Bombardier, "only I of course had a bomb-sight angle on the whole picture.

"Just before we took off Major Robinson called all pilots, bombardiers, radiomen, and navigators into the hangar room for a critique. He had a new idea.

"My plane is to be in his flight. When we make our pass over the target, my navigator is to watch Robinson's bomb doors, and when Robinson's bombs appear, then he releases four of mine. I meanwhile sighting the target. Then the planes behind me release when I do. In this way we'll make a wide pattern, and get away from the target faster than by making a double run.

"We have clear weather, climbing for our altitude through a few scattered clouds, and thirty minutes away from the target we reach 30,000 feet and then level off, following the Borneo shore line of Macassar Strait. We're all at battle stations, I fiddling with my bomb sight. Presently we hear the top turret gunner over the interphone.

"Planes! he's calling. 'Formation of planes, right rear, high!' They were coming down at us from 32,000 or 33,000 feet, but from the navigator's compartment I couldn't see them yet.

"Then they peeled off for the attack, concentrating on Robinson's plane. I could hear the gunners calling these plays over the interphones—couldn't see the Zeros myself yet, but I could see their tracers going into the tail of Robinson's plane. Then we turned in on our bomb run, and I'd catch glimpses of the Zeros as they overshot Robinson, some of them coming fifty feet from his plane.

"But I'm busy on my bombing run. I've picked my first live target, a row of three transports, broadside to our line of flight. Everything else seems to be going smoothly. I can hear Charlie Britt on the top turret guns, hammering away at Zeros, and I cuss him a little because it shakes my bomb sight.

"Now we're on the run, coming in on the target, and I've set my drift in the sight, plus our true altitude and true air speed, so I can put those cross hairs on the target.

"Now the pilot and I switch our earphones over to command, so we can listen to any orders Major Robinson wants to give from his lead plane, while the copilot stays on the interphones, so he can pick up what our gunners are doing.

"And in a minute I hear it. Major Robinson is calling.

"Robinson to Flight. I've been badly hit in the tail—having trouble holding the nose of my plane down. I'm turning the formation."

"We had been coming in straight at the coast of Borneo. Now, turning, we go down the coast, the Zeros swarming around us like flies around a hunk of rotten meat.

"The first one I really saw came up from beneath us. I'd known he was there, because tracers had been coming up from under the ship's belly past my face, as if someone down under there was throwing up handfuls of live, smoking coals.

"As he pulls up out from beneath us and banks away, I get in a couple of good bursts at him with the little .30-caliber machine gun we have down there in the nose. I couldn't really see if I'd hit him or not. Then:

"Robinson to Skiles. Go ahead."

"Skiles answering Robinson, says our pilot.

"Take the lead," Robinson tells him. "I can't keep up with the formation. I'll drop behind. And slow the formation down so I can keep up."

"We're still going down the coast, remember. And now:

"Skiles to Robinson. Go ahead," comes over the interphones.

"Robinson answering."

"Do you want to make another pass at the target?" asks Skiles.

"Yes, Skiles, take the formation over the target again."

"We make our turn, the rest following, and head back.

"Just then a Zero dives down on the formation from behind, going between me and the plane on our right wing—about a hundred feet away—and then it levels off out in front of me. I happened to have the gun in the right-hand socket of the nose, so I can really lay it on him with my little .30-caliber sewing machine. It's taking plenty of stitches, but I can see my tracers slapping into his wing, close to where it joins his fuselage. He wobbles, goes into a dive. He is well out in front with plenty of forward speed, so it's almost like watching a bomb leaving my plane, which I can follow all the way down. This doesn't happen often. Usually I shoot at them, they go on back behind, and the wing gunners confirm whether I really got them or not. But now:

"Robinson to Flight. Use as your target that heavy cruiser moving out from shore."

SPRING'S in the air and fartsighted girls with an eye to week-ends are organizing their spring and summer wardrobes right now so as to be carefree when the great outdoors calls to sports and "off duty" recreation.

The big idea these days in regard to clothes is to "make your own." It is easy to sew and if you plan your costumes so that with the aid of accessories and interchangeable parts they may be made to play a many-purpose role, you'll find that a very few things can go very far. A good suit especially, plus a collection of really attractive blouses, can take you anywhere in "style."

Blouses are tremendously important this year and they dress a suit up or down according to occasion. So start sewing today. There's a whole world of innovation and fashion news you can sew into each blouse. You are limited only by your imagination, which requires practically no outlay—just planning and doing with a will.

Of course, the first step is to choose your material. Cottons are a fine bet this year. Select your cottons carefully, eyelet embroidery for one, organdy for another and a good substantial and gaily colorful printed linen for a third. Each one of these will tub perfectly and you can sew by the models pictured how pretty-pretty they will look.

The next big essential in making your own blouses is to get a smart easy-to-follow pattern. The same pattern has been used for each of the three beguiling blouses pictured, which is a good idea for the girl who does her own sewing. Using versatile materials will differentiate their appearance.

Prettiness itself is stressed in the pattern of simplicity selected for this trio of blouses. Throughout the entire style program simplicity is the big idea this spring. You see this demonstrated especially in the new blouses that feature naive low-cut necklines and quaint little puffed sleeves that definitely portray simplicity design. It adds to the lure of the blouses pictured that they are so la Mexicana in their picturesque.

The first of these blouse "lovelies" (pictured to the left) is made of a gay Mexican printed linen. It has one of the new adjustable drawingstring necklines. Tied close to your throat it is simply perfect to wear right now with your spring suit. Later on the neckline can go more décolleté. Worn with the popular dirndl skirt you'll love it. Wear it for sports or dress as the mood moves you.

A big play is being made on fine white sheers sweetly fashioned with myriads of frivolous little ruffles, beautified with exquisite handwork. Centered in the group is a lovely blouse of sheerest white organdy. The pert little ruffles go definitely South American in that they take on gay colored embroidery accents. This model has the fashionable deep U-neckline that can be drawn high or low for out and out flattery.

A dream of a blouse in spanking white eyelet embroidery is shown to the right. Wear it with a short skirt in the day—either a color-bright dirndl or a slim wrap-around crepe skirt. It makes good also as an evening blouse worn with a floor-length skirt. A self ruffle around the neck and "little girl" puffed sleeves are your guarantee that this charming eyelet model, so definitely speaking "simplicity design," will make you look your most winsome. A huge Mexican straw hat worn with this blouse will stress the picturesque note.

Poplin Plaid Suit

Town-wear cottons are quite the rage this season. Not only are they made up stunningly, but women are taking great care to see that the washables are of the everfast type that tubs perfectly.

There's style distinction in the tailoring of this chic costume, with special emphasis on the nicely detailed bracelet sleeves and the buttons. Note the extreme tilt of the smart little chapeau. It brings you the latest news as to how we will be wearing our little berets and pill-boxes and wee sailors this spring and summer—tilted way to one side!

Florals Are Motif of New Border Prints

When it comes to the new border prints only seeing is believing how really beautiful they are. We have in mind the piques and crepes and old-fashioned long cloth weaves that are usually white or a pastel monotone with enormous spaced florals perhaps only one, two or three to the yard. The full-blown rose is a favorite motif and they look exactly as if they had been hand-painted on the fabric background. They won't fade away, ease your mind about that, for the creators of everfast materials have kept thoughtfully before them that modern washables must be both sun-proof and suds-proof to satisfy the demands of the fabric-wise women of today. You will be wanting a dress of the everfast border-print gingham which has the "something different" look about it which every woman covets. In these gingham stripes and checks are woven all of a piece with a wide border banding separating the new patterns.

Matching Hat and Purse Sets in Black Velvet

Quilted black velvet purses may be matched to black velvet or feathered hats. And big rectangles of black broadcloth with mock tortoise shell trim prove just the ingredient that will make your black and brown accessories blend together into an ensemble.

If you want to be original, consider a small melon muff of velvet for gala wear, or a big important looking style with a front of ermine tails. More unusual than these are the new round feather muffs, which are completely covered by soft, smooth, beige and brown duck feathers.

Time to Band Trees

THIS is the time of the year when Victory gardeners, shade tree owners and commercial growers should be reminded to protect their trees and vines against the ravages of tree-climbing insects whose larvae will manifest themselves later on as the worms and caterpillars which often completely defoliate trees, destroy fruit, cause serious tree damage. Banding of trees which have not been infested with a sticky substance that will retain its consistency under all weather conditions is good protection and very much worthwhile. This should be done as early as possible.

SCALLOPS are in fashion. Big scallops, little scallops, pointed or round scallops; deep or shallow, convex or concave; also cut-out curves and scrolls—they are used for cornices over windows in bedroom, bath, kitchen, dining room, dinette and living room. They are used also to frame or to partly frame cupboards of many different types ranging from gay kitchen cupboards to a dignified break-front for the living room.

You can have all the scallops you want even in these times. They may be cut out of any thin wood or, if that is not available, composition board may be used. It is easy to cut simple scallop designs by hand with a coping saw.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has made a pattern with 10 basic scallop and scroll designs with illustrated directions for combining them in many different ways for windows and cupboards of all sizes. Other suggestions for using scallops for home decoration are also included. Ask for pattern No. 207 and enclose 15 cents. Address:

"I STOPPED DOSING MY CONSTIPATION A YEAR AGO!"

Says Happy KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN User

If you are still dosing your constipation, don't fail to read this unsolicited letter!
 "I'd been troubled with common constipation for years. Tried many kinds of medicines for it. Then, just about a year ago, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. I ate it regularly, without missing a day. It helped so much, I have not taken one dose of medicine for constipation since, nor have I confined myself to any diet!" Mr. S. F. Loebe, Charleston, Missouri.
 Sounds like magic, doesn't it? But, scientists say, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really "get at" a common cause of constipation—lack of dietary "cellulosic" elements—because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements! They help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic contents for easy elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative. Doesn't "sweep you out!" It's a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!
 If you have constipation of this kind, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, or several ALL-BRAN muffins regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find real relief. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Aid to Enemy
"Any American who willfully neglects to pay his taxes on time or to invest every cent he can in War Bonds is surely giving aid and comfort to the enemy. . . . We have a job to do and we are all called for service to our country. Our dollars are called to service too. John Henry Plaintiff, vs.
Hannah S. Bullis, George S. Darling, Phoebe A. Darling, James E. Watson, Elmer E. Hatch, Viola Hatch, Charles E. Hatch, their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, Defendants.
ORDER OF PUBLICATION
At a session of said court held at the courthouse in the City of Tawas City in said county on the 28th day of March, 1944.
Present: Hon. Herman Dehnke, Circuit Judge.
On reading and filing the bill of complaint in said cause and the affidavit of H. Read Smith attached thereto, from which it satisfactorily appears to the court that the defendants above named, or their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, are proper and necessary parties, defendant in the above entitled cause, and,
It further appearing that after diligent search and inquiry it cannot be ascertained, and it is not known whether or not said defendants are living or dead or where any of them may reside if living, and, if dead, whether they have personal representatives or heirs living or where they or some of them may reside, and further that the present whereabouts of said defendants are unknown, and that the names of the persons who are included therein without being named, but who are embraced therein under the title of unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, cannot be ascertained after diligent search and inquiry.
On motion of H. Read Smith, attorney for plaintiff, it is ordered that said defendants and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, cause their appearance to be entered in this cause within three months from the date of this order, and in default thereof that said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by the said defendants, their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns.
It is further ordered that within forty days plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be published in the Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said county, such publication to be continued therein once in each week for six weeks in succession.

Importance of Steel

Steel's effect upon life today is so important that we could give up most other metals—including gold—with less disturbance to civilization. Today's steels are the strongest, toughest, hardest, yet most ductile, elastic and obedient of all metals used by mankind.

How a Pulpwood Shortage Handicaps the Farmer...

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES WOULD ROT IN THE FIELDS

MILLIONS OF EGGS WOULD NEVER REACH THE MARKET

FEED STOCK AND FERTILIZER WOULD SELL IN BULK ONLY

... WITHOUT PULPWOOD TO MAKE CONTAINERS

Pulpwood helps the farmer both in the marketing and the planting of his field crops. Feed, fertilizer, seeds and other farm essentials come to the farmer in containers made of pulpwood. Fruits, vegetables, dairy products and other farm produce are packed in pulpwood wraps, liners, and paperboard boxes before they reach the consumer. And most important, pulpwood containers help the farmer feed our armed forces overseas.

US VICTORY PULPWOOD CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C.

BITTER DEFERMENT FIGHT

The backstage fight over who is to direct the deferment of essential war workers is approaching white heat. It is being waged between certain of the biggest war chiefs in Washington, having developed into a row between the army-navy, WPB boss Donald Nelson, his vice chairman Charley Wilson, and Paul McNutt.

Only the White House will be able to straighten out the tangle. Trouble began when Undersecretary of War Patterson and the army proposed that the question of industrial draft deferments be placed in the hands of the Production Executive committee of which WPB Vice Chairman Charley Wilson is chief. The army-navy, which started out by trying to cut Wilson's throat, now loves him, but continues to hate Donald Nelson. So their recommendation of Wilson to handle draft deferments was a slap at Nelson.

Nelson immediately slapped back. He and War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt went to the White House and told the President that industrial deferments were the job of the War Manpower commissioner. In fact, McNutt hinted that, if the President didn't consider the War Manpower commission competent to handle the question, he could get another Manpower Commissioner.

Donald Nelson backed him up. Since this meant taking the deferment job away from Nelson's own War Production board, it was a direct slap at Charley Wilson. Nelson even went further and indicated that Wilson and the Production Executive committee were controlled by the army.

More Civilian Goods?
This row over essential war-worker deferments also has brought to light another important inside debate over reconversion for civilian production. Chief battlers in this row are Nelson and Wilson, with the army-navy rooting for Wilson.

Wilson would like to begin production of 200,000 automobiles soon, but Nelson flatly opposes. Aside from autos, however, Wilson does not favor getting back into too much civilian production any time soon. To study the problem, he appointed a committee to formulate a policy on reconversion—which brought no enthusiasm at all from his nominal boss, D. Nelson, who disbanded the committee.

Nelson's cancellation, in turn, roused the ire of General Lucius Clay, General Somervell's chief production man, and Clay is now threatening to appoint an army-navy committee to study reconversion and make Wilson its head.

Behind this Nelson-Wilson row over reconversion is the basic conflict between big business and little business. Big business doesn't want any reconversion until it is finished with its war orders and, at present, it is chock-a-block with war orders. On the other hand, little business, which didn't get so many war orders, would like to begin right now making alarm clocks, electric irons, bicycles and a lot of small stuff which the public needs. Big business, however, doesn't want little business to get a head start.

In this row, Nelson sides with little business. His friends also claim that Wilson favors the big business viewpoint and wants to wait until the war is over, so everybody can line up at the starter's tape and get an equal start. The army sides with Wilson and big business for fear the second front may take more production than we realize.

Those are the issues. Meanwhile, some insiders, especially the army, are out again to get Nelson's scalp.

ARMY FURLOUGHS

Young Congressman Henry ("Scoop") Jackson of Washington has just been mustered out of the army to go back to congress. One of his first acts after getting into civilian clothes was to call on Lieutenant General McNair, head of army ground forces, and effect a major change in handling men about to go overseas.

He told McNair that one big gripe of the boys was that they often got no chance to visit their homes before being shipped abroad. All men were given seven-day furloughs regardless of where they lived—even if their homes were on the West Coast and they were in camp on the East Coast.

So the army has now agreed to the following:
1. No man will be sent overseas without getting a ten-day furlough.
2. This furlough provides that he will actually get ten days at home, plus time to travel from his base and back.

CAPITAL CHAFF

King Carol of Rumania is reported readying himself for a Soviet call back to Bucharest by way of Natal. The diplomatic grapevine has it that he will be reinstated by the Russians.

Loyal General Jim Ulio, who served as best man to Captain Alf Heiberg when he married Mrs. Louise Atwill, the former Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, later was kidded about his wedding duties. He replied: "If Louise can come down from four stars to two bars, I can."

HOW many fight followers remember the only time in the history of the heavyweight division that a man won the title while his opponent was sitting down?

To end this horrible mystery in a hurry, it was July 4, 1919, when Jack Dempsey met Jess Willard in Toledo, Ohio, for the world championship.

Challenger Jack—now Lieutenant Commander Dempsey of the Coast Guard—was in the best shape of his career. And he was exceedingly fortunate because that particular Independence Day happened to be one of the hottest days in the meteorological history of Toledo. Both fighters were literally bathed in perspiration as they climbed into the ring. Dempsey was considerably shorter than Willard and had given him a 65-pound weight advantage.

Jack Dempsey

Jack's excellent physical condition wasn't accidental. He had long set his sights on the heavyweight title and was willing to work hard for it. And Willard was far from his best. In fact, he verged on softness.

The First Round

Ollie Pecord was the referee. He called the two men to the center of the ring for their last-minute instructions. Then came the opening bell and the brawl was under way. Dempsey circled around for a few seconds, then uncorked a vicious right that plowed into Willard's midsection. Willard staggered and Jack followed with a left high on Willard's cheek.

Dempsey didn't overlook his current opportunity. He moved in like a wildcat. He let loose a long, hard right into Jess' stomach and Jess quivered like an aspen. Then came the most telling blow of the fight. Dempsey let loose with a left to the face that threatened to separate Willard's head from his shoulders. He went to the canvas, a surprised, sickly grin on his face.

Pecord shoved Dempsey to one side and started to count over the prostrate champion. Jess managed to lurch to his feet when the count went up to six, but he was already a beaten man. Again Dempsey moved in for the kill. A left to the head, followed by a right to the body, put Jess on the canvas for the second time. Jack waited for him to get up, which he did at the count of eight. Dempsey belted him all over the ring, the champ going down again for the count of seven. All in all, Willard went down seven times in the first round. The last knock-down came just before the bell ended the round. Referee Pecord was counting when the bell rang—and that's what caused the mixup.

The crowd was yelling so hard that the referee didn't hear the bell and kept on counting. He finished the ten count, crossed the ring and held up Dempsey's right hand in the customary salute of battle.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, hurried Jack out of the ring into his dressing room while Willard's handlers were helping him to his corner. Just before Jack got to his dressing room the officials were sending a messenger after him to come back to finish the fight.

Hope for Willard

The one-minute rest had worked miracles for Willard. But the journey towards the dressing room hadn't helped Jack's wind.

Jack coasted for the first minute of round two. The tables were turned a bit when Willard blasted through with a hard right to the chin that caught the challenger unprepared. Dempsey grabbed and held and didn't get up a full head of steam for the remainder of the round. But that first round had been hard on Willard.

By the third round Dempsey was more rested and had recovered. He didn't manage to get in a sledgehammer wallop, but he was giving Willard a terrific beating.

Willard was groggy at the end of the third round. He looked like a beaten man. Just about 20 seconds before the start of the fourth, Jess held a fast consultation with his manager and trainer. At the end of their rapid-fire chat, Willard's manager reached over and grabbed a white towel. Even as the bell rang for the fourth, the towel sailed over to the referee's feet and the fight was over.

Red Land and Sea Moves Mapped After Odessa

Swift and dramatic strokes came in the wake of the great Red victory at Odessa. By a sudden thrust at the Perekop isthmus the Russ had undertaken a move to cut off Crimea and gain Sevastopol. Action from sea, as well as land, was expected along the Romanian and Bulgarian coasts as well, following the Crimea offensive. Ships of the Black sea fleet had stood by for amphibious operations. Another move was a quick dash which cut the rail line at Ovidopol to trap Nazi forces hoping to escape.

PAUL WINS RECOGNITION FOR GENTILE CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT: Acts 15:23b-29; Galatians 2:1, 9, 10, 20, 21.
GOLDEN TEXT: Being therefore justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.—Romans 5:1.

Problems and differences of opinion need not be harmful if they are properly met and honestly settled. In the church at Antioch a question had arisen which had to be answered, authoritatively, and once for all.

The early converts of the church were naturally from among the Jews, and they carried with them into their new-found faith the traditions of their religion. Some of them did not recognize that the salvation they had in Christ was entirely by grace apart from any works of the law. They not only felt that they must observe the law, but insisted that the Gentile believers must also fulfill the Jewish rite of circumcision. This promptly raised the question whether Christ alone could save, or if men were saved by grace plus works.

To settle this matter, Paul and Barnabas went up to the church at Jerusalem, and there a great council discussed it freely, and came to a decision which was then transmitted by letter and a committee. We find—

I. Fundamental Principle Established—Salvation by Grace (Acts 15: 23b-29).

The believers at Antioch were to abstain from those things which would hinder their spiritual progress and harm their testimony. That was important and right, but it must not be allowed to confuse them regarding the basis of their salvation. They were not saved by works, no, not even by the most commendable.

Salvation is by grace, through faith, not of works, lest any man should boast (Eph. 2:8, 9). That principle, which is absolutely foundational in all Christian thinking, was established then, and is valid and blessedly true for all time.

Is it not strange, then, that all through the church's history there has been a determined effort on the part of some in the church to add something to God's redeeming grace as a ground for salvation? One would think that all the peoples of the world would rejoice in such a gloriously simple and altogether divine redemption.

It is well worth our attention to observe how the matter was handled. Observe the plain rebuke given to the teachers of error in verse 24. It is no light matter to trouble and mislead the souls of men, by injecting our worldly wisdom or our opinions, when we should be teaching the truth of God's Word.

II. Sound Practice Observed—Walking by Faith (Gal. 2:1, 2, 9, 10, 20, 21).

The life of grace is not just something to be written or talked about, or to glory in, although it is all of these. It is to show forth in the daily walk of the Christian.

Paul in Galatians 2 tells of his experience in Jerusalem, of his meeting and discussion with the brethren. It was all of vital importance to him and to the cause of Christ, but it is not the record of an academic argument, or the vaunting of a personal victory which he presents.

He rises to the high point of Christian experience, the realization of the fact that a believer has died to self. He is crucified with Christ—and yet he lives.

Yes, he lives in a newness of life which is not his own, but Christ living in him. There is the secret of real Christian living—a complete acceptance of all that Christ is, in and for the believer.

This truth is at once deeply spiritual and completely practical. Again we say, it is not something about which one theorizes. It is an actuality—something which Christians can and do live out in daily experience. It is "the life which I now live" of which Paul speaks, and that is by "the faith of the Son of God," who loved us and gave Himself for us.

To fail to receive and appropriate this grace by seeking to be made righteous through the deeds of the law is to deny the need of the death of Christ, in fact, to make it a vain thing.

Some may feel that all this is too deeply theological for them, but it really is not, for God does not expect us to explain it, but only to accept it. This is His work, and it is indeed wonderful in our sight (Ps. 139:6), but not too wonderful to receive by faith, to rest and rejoice in, and to declare to others.

Let's Face Facts

Country Areas Attract Future Home Builders, Careful Survey Shows

By BARROW LYONS
WNU Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—

There are many signs that up-to-date small towns in most parts of the United States will experience expansion that spells prosperity after the war.

Barrow Lyons

This pops out between the lines of a survey conducted by Small Homes Guide, a magazine devoted to home building, which indicates that more than a third of the people planning to build homes after the war prefer small towns and country areas.

This survey was the result of questionnaires in the magazine which almost 30,000 readers voluntarily filled in and sent to the editor. The questions were drafted on scientific principles so that unbiased answers, which truly reflected the intentions of those answering them, would be obtained. The returns came from all sections of the country, and are considered a good sample of average American reactions.

Only 3 per cent of the people intending to build homes after the war expect to settle down in large cities, the survey revealed, and 17 per cent expect to build in medium sized cities. Those expecting to build in suburban areas were 40 per cent of the total. But 24 per cent expect to build right out in the country, and 14 per cent want to build in small towns. Two per cent of those returning questionnaires did not say in what type of community they wished to live.

These answers show that many people have become disturbed over crowded living conditions in the cities during the war. Also, letters from members of the armed forces indicate that there are phases of outdoor life that appeal to them.

Aside from the psychological reasons for selecting the country and small towns, there are many economic reasons why much building will be done in rural areas after the war.

Some of the Reasons

For one thing, transportation facilities will be improved greatly. Road building on a large scale is being planned to provide employment for returning servicemen. Developments in engine design and new types of fuel will make transportation more economical and comfortable. Competition between bus lines, air transport and railways will tend to accelerate improvements. As speed is increased, distance is cut down and the country is brought to the city.

Then, there are many war industries which have been scattered around in rural areas, which will be converted to peace-time production; and there is a slowly developing movement toward decentralization of industry, which means establishment of more small plants in the country. Development of chemurgical processes, whereby farm products are used more and more as industrial materials, is on the way.

Equalization of freight rates for the south and west, which is now being vigorously sought by the Conference of Southern Governors, undoubtedly would lead to the development of country areas, which long have suffered from rate discrimination. The Department of the Interior also plans extensive reclamation projects in the west, which would tend to build up many of the Western states to support greatly expanded populations.

New Designs Wanted

One of the points brought out in the survey was a leaning toward homes of low, rambling design, which is in sharp contrast with the old fashioned, cramped, two-story dwelling with dark basement and steep stairs. This unquestionably means that more people will seek country areas where land is cheap, so that they may spread out floor plans as they desire.

Every small community should look over its resources now, to make sure it is going to get its share of the new building, and consequent merchandising, that will come to it. It should consider whether it is getting a fair break in relation to new super-highways that are to be constructed. It should have adequate schools, hospital facilities, amusement and shopping centers, police and fire protection, libraries and street lighting systems. It should have equitable real estate and taxation programs, and honest and progressive town and county governments.

There should be plans to take up the employment slack in agricultural off seasons, and an aggressive Chamber of Commerce or Community council to bring desirable industries to the town.

All of these things are important, if the merchants and bankers are to prosper as greatly as the possibilities of their location warrant.

Business analysts studying this trend see for the small town contractors a large business, and along with him the building supply dealer in the community.

'Best Wheat Award of 1943' Goes to a Colorado Man Second Year in Row for No. 1 Hard Tenmarq

Leo Lindstrom's Sample Takes Pillsbury First Prize Among 26 Entries.

By AL JEDLICKA

Situated in the northeast corner of the state, Sterling, Colo., with a population of over 7,000, bids well for the honor of the wheat capital of the United States.

For the second straight year, a Sterling farmer won the Philip W. Pillsbury grand championship for the best wheat grown in the country, the victor for 1943 being Leo Lindstrom, whose No. 1 hard winter Tenmarq variety weighing 63.7 pounds per bushel was adjudged the best of 26 samples submitted from 13 states at the Chicago Stockyards. In 1942, Lindstrom's fellow townsman, George Hofmann, won first prize with a heavy dark Northern Spring Reward variety weighing 64.6 pounds to the bushel.

In picking Lindstrom's sample, which was submitted from his 500 acres of wheat, the judges declared that it was uniformly dark hard grain of high test weight; its kernels were uniformly of hard texture; it was true to variety; it possessed excellent luster, and the kernels were uniform throughout the sample.

Inaugurated to encourage farmers to produce better wheat, the Pillsbury contest awards the winner a large trophy, $50 in cash and an all-expense tour of Minneapolis, where he and his wife can view milling and research operations.

Farmers submit samples for the contest through state grain shows or the agricultural colleges and crop improvement associations. In some states, county agents are active in urging entrance into the show.

Acceptable are the hard red winter and spring wheats, the soft red winter, the hard and soft white, and durum. They are judged according to uniformity of quality, freedom from cracked or broken kernels and discoloration, plumpness, test weight per bushel, and uniformity of kernels, which is determined by cross-sectioning, or cutting the kernels in half.

Peter Schirrick Gets Second. The second, or national reserve prize, carrying $25 cash and a trophy, was won this year by Peter Schirrick of Red Lake Falls, Minn., with a Reward variety of No. 1 heavy dark north spring, weighing 65 pounds to the bushel.

Special recognitions were won by William Franzen of Mapes, N. D., with Mindum variety of No. 1 hard amber durum, weighing 65.03 pounds per bushel; Mark Chamberlain and sons of Wyoming, N. Y., with No. 595 No. 2 soft white wheat, weighing 58.8 pounds, and Edwin Simonson, Willits, Calif., with Baart variety No. 1 hard white, weighing 64.3 pounds.

Judges this year included Prof. R. F. Crim of the University of Minnesota, Prof. J. C. Hackleman of the University of Illinois, and Prof. A. L. Clapp of Kansas State Agricultural college. Prof. K. E. Beeson of Purdue, who is president of the International Crop Improvement association, represented cooperating organizations.

Even Staid British Must Coin Few Wartime Words

"The English are self-conscious about adopting new words, which may partly explain the absence of any startling new war vocabulary in Britain," says Henry L. Menck in "War Words in England," a glossary of words encountered in British newspapers with reasonable frequency. Among them are: "badoglio," a surrender; "bae-decker," an air raid on a place of historical interest; "browned off," fed up; "chatter-bug," a civilian who spreads military secrets; "dicky-bird," a gas mask; "fitter," one who sleeps away from home to avoid air raids; "gussie," a barrage balloon; "I thengyow," a catch phrase used in unpleasant situations, i.e., the close explosion of a shell; "macon," old bacon or bacon made from mutton; "shiver-sister," a scared civilian; "telefootler," a selfish person who monopolizes the telephone; and "vackie" or "vack," an evacuated child.

American words like "snack-bar" have become popular, but "jitterbug," to the Englishman, means a nervous person.

The restoration of peace will prove which words are temporary and which are here to stay, he says. It is significant of this war that its most permanent word addition to date has been "quising."

INCORRECT ADDRESSING DELAYS OVERSEA MAIL

Fifteen per cent of the more than 25 million pieces of mail each week being sent to soldiers overseas is incorrectly or insufficiently addressed, the war department points out in cautioning the public on the extreme importance of correct addressing. This is a serious and a growing problem.

This problem could be solved easily if everyone writing to overseas soldiers would realize the necessity of including the soldier's complete address, giving his rank, full name with middle initial, army serial number, service organization and unit, APO number and the postmaster at the Port of Embarkation through which the mail is routed.

With single APO's handling the mail for thousands of troops, the service organization and unit are particularly important. They are equivalent to a civilian's street and number, with the APO representing the correct state and city in a domestic mail address. The serial number is of particular importance when, as frequently happens, soldiers of the same name, or similar name and initial, receive their mail through the same APO.

Casual acquaintances of soldiers account for more than 750 inquiries each day.

The volume of work entailed and the number of employees engaged in answering the inquiries have made the new restrictions necessary, the war department explains.

In the future, requests for information on soldiers received from persons other than those named in the aforementioned category will be acknowledged by a form card from the adjutant general.

More Germs Are Useful To Man Than Otherwise

Germs are living things, eating and drinking, moving and reproducing just like human beings. As dogs come only from dogs, so germs come only from other germs like themselves. Someone, working out their rate of reproduction, computed that one germ can become seventeen million germs in eight hours.

Most germs are useful germs; indeed, the world could not go on without them. They break up the things we have finished with—the leaves, the dead animals—and send them back to the soil. They are the scavengers of life. The war against germs is a war against a minority of disease germs, not a majority of useful germs.

and seven when I draw KP on Sunday) a lot of U. S. soil has rolled past me. Started out at Fort Custer where I won the title of "Needle Bait." Then came a train ride and I wound up in Missouri, St. Louis, Missouri to be exact. Jefferson Barracks was my new home. Here the moniker of "Jeep" was bestowed upon me. It was then that I found out that "Pvt. Hargrove" was not just a man of imagination. Next was a short trip to Indianapolis. Here was the 52nd College Training Detachment. I was classified as a cadet then. This was a happy life, even with the "white glove" inspections. Then one day there was a rude awakening. "Uncle Sammy" discovered that he had enough future filers. My fondest memories of this place were the wonderful lemon pies. Of course, using an old adage, "Not like the ones mother used to make."

The next train ride was a long one. Two and one-half days of luxury. Riding in Pullmans—pullman meaning that it was so crowded that they had to pull you to get you on. Our train puffed into Laredo, Texas. The way the engine was snorting, I believe it, too, was overcome by the Texas sun. It is so hot here that a chow time a KP comes down the line and breaks an egg on your hand. It is fried by the time you are ready to eat. There is an advantage with this method, however. You fry them to your own taste.

I am told by people here that during the summer months the temperature hits as high as 137, and I am inclined to believe it.

L. A. A. F. is a gunnery school. My duties are now those of a career gunner. This means that I have only one job. That is to take care of my 60's and plane position. The course takes eight weeks. When I finish I get three months of crew training.

Sure would like to see Tawas, but I guess it will be several months before I can get home.

Sincerely,
Hugh Precott.

Solo-Kote
OIL BASE
FLAT PAINT

For All Interior Surfaces
ONE COAT SEALS AND COVERS

Painted Wood

Wallpaper

Plaster, Wallboard
or Calcimine

SAVES MATERIAL—SAVES LABOR

Solo-Kote is a genuine oil paint that must not be confused with so-called water base paints. It is not a temporary type of paint such as those utilizing water as a base. It seals, primes and covers in one coat and is so dense that it is ideal for use on wallpaper, plaster, painted wood, wallboard, brick, metal and other interior surfaces.

EASY TO APPLY—COVERS PERFECTLY—HAS REMARKABLE HIDING QUALITIES

Solo-Kote is easily applied—perfectly smooth with unusual spread and exceptional hiding ability. Its finely ground pigments combined with Enterprise Special "Test Proved" Oils provide an interior paint that has won the acclaim of all who have used it.

WASHES PERFECTLY... TIME AND TIME AGAIN

Unlike water base wall paints, Solo-Kote may be washed time and time again. The oil used as the base of this paint has perfect resistance to water and soaps. Its ability to wash means long life and economy.
