OUTERNS DIE PROUDLY O. WHITE 64 W. L. White W.N.U. FEATURES C. WHITE THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed while feeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other For-tresses, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left

CHAPTER XVI

"The Dutch made us steel tripods for them in a machine shop, but we had a hell of a time getting anyone to dig the holes. We were flying missions and couldn't do it our-selves. So Silva and I took the truck and went into Madiun. On the street corners we saw a bunch of natives standing around picking their teeth or scratching their bottoms. We argued they must be Jap sympathizers, or else they would have been busy helping win the war.

So we pulled out our .45's, and by a coincidence they all got into that truck, and dug us some of the nicest foxholes you ever saw. After that, when the alarm would go off we could run to those foxholes and swing a gun-we knocked down five they were hitting us head-on, be-you, to the point where it even bothers the admirals. "She was, so they said, a very high Dutch socialite and had lots of money, which you might guess by how simple and expensive her eve-ning dresses were. In the daytime she wore a beautifully tailored uni-form of one of the woman's volunteer organizations. I think she drove a car for the Dutch General Staff. "Meanwhile my job was growing by leaps and jumps. In that hotel dining room you might see General

Chief, or Admiral Hart, or General Brett, who commanded the United Nations Air Force, or Van Oeyen, the Dutch Commander in Chief. I was circulating among the tables, and my brief case was so crammed with hot information I wouldn't trust it in a checkroom.

"There was a feeling of tension. Refugees had been crowding in from Singapore and Sumatra. Now there was a feeling that maybe they'd be crowding out soon. Lots of the na-tives had already left, and those servants who remained you knew were staying only because they were very loyal. But to whom? Maybe to the Dutch. Or maybe to someone else

-staying around to watch us, relaying information we knew not how, or to whom. You couldn't be sure of anything.

but still it's nice to have the most that was why I slept uneasily. Or maybe because the whole outlook for the war was so bad. I realized in the Philippines I had only been lucky, and I might never get out of Java. It was very hot, and in the distance a thunderstorm was muttering as it moved toward the city. "Anyway, I'd been lightly asleep for about an hour when a glare awoke me. It was a flashlight, held very close-a haze of yellow light coming through the mosquito netting over my face. But in this haze I could see that the same fist which held the flashlight also held a steel knife, and that its point stuck down Wavell, the British Commander in into the yellow cone of that flashlight. The other hand was just touching the edge of my pillow.

"I gave a yell and dived through that netting like a cat, but the yel-low light instantly winked out, and I was standing there alone in the darkness, while Jacquet rolled out on the other side. He hadn't been as nervous as I, and was sleeping more deeply. But just then a blue lightning flash lit up the room, and by its quick glare I saw the door into the corridor closing (I was sure I had locked it). But when I got out into the corridor it seemed empty. "Why hadn't he stabbed me? I think because he was surprised to find Jacquet there. One of us would surely have been able to make an outcry. And I thought to myself, Well, stranger, for a newcomer you're sure getting into a lot of things, because you never thought some guy you didn't know and had never bothered would ever try to kill you through mosquito netting in a place called Java.' The brief case was okay."

"And the queer thing was," said Margo, "that just at this time the report got back to America that Frank was dead. He'd been killed in a flying accident in Java. I was down in Florida by then, and the only man I could really talk to was Cliff Jensen, an Air Corps boy we had known at March and Albuquerque, and later at Morrison Field. "He was stationed near by, and now was working twenty-one hours a day for the rest of the gang who were fighting in Java. I could really talk to Cliff-we understood each other. The rumor that Frank was dead somehow reached Australia, and of course the Air Corps is a small place. In a few days Colonel Truesdell in California heard it from one of the ferry pilots, and a few days later Cliff heard of it. He didn't tell me, because he wasn't quite sure, but some people thought it had really happened.

"I could feel the difference. They were looking at me queerly now. They would say what a fine boy Frank 'had been.' Or that they were praying for his safe return. They never understand. They can't see that what you're anxious about is not the distant future, but this very night. Is he hungry? Must he go out on a mission? Maybe he's been badly hurt during the day, and you

Another suggestion as illustrated below to the left takes two nets, the hair in back caught loosely in one and screened casually on top and over the ears with the other which is appliqued to a band of maline. The maline is enhanced with flowers done in beauvais embroidery, but tiny cutout florals from chintz or a scrap of any gay print material in your sewing box will do just as well. The net arrangement is finished with a narrow ribbon looped under the chignon and brought up over the ears to tie in a tiny bow on top of the head.

the last they only tried to get us on the ground. They knew we had no protection there to speak of-no fighters and no pom-poms. They'd come in insolent as could be."

(Meaning the gunners were in the ball turrets ready to fire.)

"That was the week I got into something way over my head in this liaison work," said Frank, "but first you ought to look at that big de luxe hotel which was the unofficial capital of Java. Its lobby, bar, and dining room were crowded with uniforms-British, Dutch, and American. It looked like a Hollywood costume parade.

"It was an enormous highceilinged spacious thing, open to the soft Javanese air-little tropical birds would fly in and out of the dining room and roost on the gleaming chandeliers.

The Dutch are great eaters, and they have something they call reistaffel. You order it and then sit back and eat while twenty-three waiters line up and walk by your table, each carrying a different sauce or fish or bowl of relish or rice. I tried it once and managed to live by eating only every other course, but your true colonial Dutchman will stoke in all twenty-three into his big pot, drenching the layers down with mugs of beer.

"In the bar you might see the boys of Patrol Wing 10 in from reconnaissance, drinking Daiquiris (this hotel was Navy billeting headquarters), and often I would see my old Hollywood High School classmate John Robertson sitting there in his off hours, very handsome in his Naval pilot's uniform, and with him was the most beautiful girl in Surabaya.

"She had dark hair, and an almost ghostly pale face that was sad in repose. Then a smile would quickly light it up, and you'd wonder how you could ever have thought that. And the most beautiful legs in the city. When she'd walk through the bar clinging to John's arm and looking up at him, even the oldest and crabbiest admiral would rustle a little in his chair and lean out to give them a formal inspection. The younger Naval pilots envied John to the point where they would have hated his guts if they hadn't liked him so much.

"John was very busy and I don't

"Except that I knew they were watching me, maybe only out of idle curiosity as I circulated from one table to the other, and kept that brief case leaning against my leg when I sat at my own table. "That hotel certainly wasn't built to keep military secrets. The big high-ceilinged bedrooms had only swinging half-doors like barroomsopen to the air above and below. The barefooted native servants looked after them, only I'd catch them slipping in and out of mine at queer times of the day. But I thought I only imagined it. I also suspected they were listening in the corridor outside. One evening a couple of the pilots were down from Malang-going back the same night -sitting on my bed while we talked over new orders, and somehow a feeling grew on me we were being watched. I whispered to the others to go on talking, slipped off my shoes, tiptoed to the door. Just as I opened it I caught a glimpse of a white robe flitting around the corner. When I got out into the blacked-out corridor, I could see nothing. But then I was sure.

"That night I slept with my brief case under my pillow. In addition every bed was provided with a Dutch widow. At first the American pilots didn't know what to make of this and would kick them out on the floor. I should maybe explain that a Dutch widow is a long padded bolster, and if you sleep with it between your knees, it keeps your legs from pressing together and sweating in the tropical heat. After a while the pilots began to like them. "But that night I went to sleep wondering about the white shape I'd seen flit around the corner. It seemed about the same size as the waiter who had been staring at me in the dining room for the past three days. Only staring isn't quite the word. Because this particular little chili-picker had glassy eyes like a turtle. I could never catch them directly on me, but I had the feeling it was I he was interested in.

"Two nights later Lieutenant Jacquet came up from Malang. By the time we had finished work it was so late I suggested he'd better spend the night with me. I put my brief case under my pillow as usual. On this particular night it contained something so important I don't even think he gave her much thought, like to talk about it now. Maybe don't know it yet.

"Praying that everything will be all right during those weeks and months to come scares you-it's asking too much, you're afraid. You just pray he's all right tonight, and isn't wounded, and will get enough sleep, so he'll be strong and alert and have a good chance tomorrow.

You don't dare ask more. "Also those strong plump sunburned men who could leave their business for months to lie around on the Florida sands were very 'realistic' about the war-sure it was all a terrible mess and everything was going to pieces, offering me lots of sympathy. But what had any of them ever done to get us a decent Air Force in the past? Or what good were they or their 'realism' doing anyone now? I liked Cliff's better. He knew what the boys were up against and was up half the night trying to hurry reinforcements. Out of the little we had (and he knew how little), so they could hold what they could. Cliff made sense. The rest was a nightmare."

"When we'd first hit Java," said Frank, "we'd been full of the offensive spirit—sure we were going to roll the Japs back off the Philippines onto Formosa with those thousand planes which, according to rumor, were coming within three months. The second month was almost up now, Java was unsteady under our feet, and we'd so far received about two dozen P-40's, maybe a few more Forts than that, and seven dive bombers. Hardly fifty planes in all.

"Now we knew the offensive was out for the time being. What we prayed for was fighters-to defend what was left of our Forts and those beautifully camouflaged Dutch airfields. With fighters to hold them off, we knew we could hold Java.

"All right, suppose the Japs had moved into Timor and cut the jugular vein from Australia, so that our P-40's could no longer hop on the island chain to us on their belly tanks? Why not a carrier? Couldn't the Navy spare just one-which could load up with P-40's in Austra-lia and then, when it was still several hundred miles from Java and out of range of the Jap bombers, it could turn the P-40's loose, let them fly on in to us, and go back for another load?

Fashions That Meet

Well, for one thing the teen girl feels she just can't get along without a bright topper. The swankiest types are belted-in like an officer's coat. The young crowd likes the new sportsy, madly-colorful gingham blouses that have a rancho air about them to wear with their slacks. They're keen on bolero costumes. It's great fun ensembling the bolero with different skirts and blouses. Teensters adore the new frilly pinafore frocks with their gay cutout appliques and their miles of rick-rack trimming. They are also intrigued with the idea of dirndl skirts that crash the eye with their bizarre Mexican colors. Jumper frocks are a "must" with the young set and their newest rave is a slim figure-fitting princess date dress made of pastel or lush-colored smooth rayon gabardine.

Sleeveless Vogue Brings Demand for Bracelets

Because of the new brief-sleeve vogue, jewelers report a "rush" for bracelets. If your heirloom jewels include a few ornate bracelets, bring them out, for they are due for a big revival. This summer we will be seeing bracelets worn in spectacular display. Some will be set with color-bright stones, others designed after old-fashioned pieces. Many silver bracelets will be worn wrought in intricate chain designs.

For a long time, almost all new telephone apparatus that could be made has had to go to the Armed Services. . . . Pactory space and manpower cannot be diverted to make equipment for civilians.

Despite all that, since National Dofense got under way in 1940, Michigan Bell has added close to a quarter of a million telephones. That was made possible only by using up all our reserve equipment and by stretching to the limit the facilities we had.

We've crowded our switchboards and cables beyond their normal capacity. Where any residential service could be supplied, we've usually put in party lines instead of individual lines. And we've repaired and returned to service all usable old apparatus.

Orders for telephones essential to the war are filled promptly. Other requests for new service are handled under a definite procedure, as present users give up service. But there is a long and growing waiting list.

We believe you would want us to meet war service needs ahead of comfort and convenience for civilians. And we appreciate your understanding and co-operation.

PRESIDENT'S HEALTH When congressional leaders called at the White House for the first legislative conference following the President's return from South Carolina, he looked fit as a fiddle. However, Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley popped the question that has had the capital worried because of those wild rumors about the Commander-in-Chief's health. "How do you feel?" asked the Kentuckian.

"Great," replied Roosevelt. He added that he had got in 12 hours of sleep a night and plenty of sunshine

He was brown as a berry and buoyant as ever. However, congres-sional leaders noted that his face was a little thinner. Admiral Ross T. McIntire, the President's physician, accepts responsibility for this. Roosevelt has knocked off 10 pounds under McIntire's orders. He is still five pounds overweight according to his physician's standards, but Mc-Intire figures that this can be cor-rected by proper dieting.

NAZI CHANNEL DEFENSES

Of all the variegated defenses Hitler has conceived to block the Second Front - from rocket-guns to flame on the Channel-the one which the Allies are worried most about is the plain, relatively old-fashioned machine-gun nest.

The Nazis have developed a new type of machine-gun nest, tried it out at Cassino, and it was one reason for our failure to advance.

This pillbox is of very heavy concrete, quite small, extends only a foot or so above the ground and is extremely difficult to see from the air. The pillbox usually houses two machine guns, hitched together so that one man can fire both.

One Nazi is in each pillbox so that if he is hit only one man is lost. But it takes almost a direct bomb hit to knock him out, so air pounding of them from overhead is not too effective. These pillboxes, buried in the mountains at Cassino, were terrifically effective, and more of them are reported lying in wait behind the shore along the coast of western Europe.

DISCHARGE BUTTONS

With more than a million men now honorably discharged from the army for wounds, health or age, the question of honorable discharge buttons becomes more and more important.

It took the army some time to design a discharge button, but now that it is designed, men and officers have a hard time getting it-unbroken. The buttons are made of plastic and when mailed to veterans, usually arrive in broken pieces.

One discharged air force captain got his discharge button all right Is a'feelin' poor of late. in an envelope from Maj. Jesse C. ks assistant quarterm ster, Hill Field, Ogden, Utah. But there was no packing around it and it was in several pieces. When he wrote back for a new button, Major Hicks replied: "There are no provisions for replacing broken buttons. Therefore, we are unable to comply with your request." Note-Some of the boys think that with all the gold we have buried at Fort Knox, we could spare some for those discharged.

Drying and Compressing ten tons of raw food down to one ton, reducing the shipping space required by from 50 to 90 per cent. Compression went a step further by evicting the second space robber, air. At a time when every cubic foot of cargo space was ammunition used in the battle of the Atlantic, this victory over bulk was no minor one. It ranks with the more spectacular victories of Stalingrad, North Africa, the Marshalls, etc.,

as a major contribution to the final triumph. Food dehydration and compression may not fade out with the war. Foods processed in this manner are expected to become as important an item in the civilian postwar diet as canned goods. Fruits, vegetables, meats and dairy products lose little or none of their mineral and vitamin contént and flavor. Carrots, beets, cabbage, sweet potatoes and many other vegetables are being shipped in condensed form, peeled, cut up and ready to eat after a little steaming. They taste almost as good as when they were fresh. The process for most vegetables is simple. After being peeled and washed, they are cut up into small pieces. Carrots, beets, and so on are diced. Leafy plants like cabbage are shredded. Potatoes are sliced into strips The cut up vegetables are put on belt conveyors and run through steam driers. Some are cooked before this process, others are not. After this dehydration, they are pressed into bricks or blocks, which saves further bulk. The bricks are packed into cases ready for shipment. Fruits are similarly prepared. Apples, pears, peaches and such can

Plan to Restore European Herds

Postwar Europe's barnyard ba-bies may never get to see their fathers.

Test-tube livestock breeding may, in fact, solve the problem of quickly rebuilding depleted herds and flocks in the war-devastated regions, according to a report issued this week by the American Foundation for An-imal Health. This method of livestock breeding which was first developed on a broad scale in Russia, has already been used extensively in this country. To Europe it offers the advantage of avoiding the delays and transportation difficulties which would be involved in shipping breeding animals from this country to the reclaimed battle areas. Instead, male germ cells of various species of farm animals could be collected in this country, flown by fast planes to Europe, and used to fertilize cows, mares, and ewes of the devastated countries.

Experiments by American veterinarians have shown that male germ cells for breeding purposes can be kept active and potent for as long as 130 hours in transit, at a temperature of 40 degrees. For such shipment, the semen is diluted with egg yolk and mineral salts. In this form enough for breeding thousands of farm animals could be flown to Europe in a single plane.

"Braddock hit me once in the first round, and had he been able to follow up his advantage, this little boy might never have been the champion of the world."

It was on June 22, 1937, that Louis knocked out Jim Braddock in the eighth round in Chicago for the world title.

Billy Conn was named five times in the mythical line-up. Conn, who came exceedingly close to unseating Joe at New York's Polo Grounds in 1941, figures to be the first challenger to get a crack at the cham-pionship following the war.

Louis picked Conn as the smartest of all his opponents, the fastest, the possessor of the most dangerous left and the fighter with the best offense and defense. In Joe's book, Lee Ramey was his most courageous opponent; Arturo Godoy was the most troublesome; Bob Pastor the fastest retreater, and Johnny Paycheck his poorest opponent. He considers the hardest punch he ever took was a right landed by Al Delaney in a 1934 bout. Joe admitted it nearly cracked his jaw. On the reverse side, Louis claims the hardest punch he ever landed was the one that knocked out Paulino Uzcudun in the fourth round in New York.

STATE DEPARTMENT HARANGUE

Dignified, delightful British Ambassador Lord Halifax called on Undersecretary of State Stettinius some time ago on a secret matter. While they were closeted together, Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle, diminutive and precocious, joined them.

Soon, high-pitched scolding voices came from Stettinius' office. Callers in his anteroom could not help overhearing the harangue as it reverberated even through the heavy mahogany doors of the state department.

Finally, Lord Halifax was ushered out. Later Stettinius came out, followed by Berle, who looked a bit agitated.

'Was I too tough with him?" asked Berle.

"No," said Stettinius, "you were just right."

"I felt," said Berle, with the air of a parent who has just delivered a good spanking, "that it simply had to be done."

What it was all about was not divulged, but Berle has been carrying on long discussions and arguments with the British regarding the future air routes of the world.

JEEP INVESTIGATION

Government bureaucrats were taken for a sleigh ride behind closed doors when they attempted to justify budget requests for "investigating" jeeps, during hearings on the supplemental national defense bill. Engineering experts of the department of agriculture sprang the jeep scheme, claiming that they needed $15,000 to determine the value of the jeep for farm work "as a substitute for tractor power." It was noted that the current tractor shortage might get worse after the war.

Appliques of cut-out flowers on plain, simple materials make a very attractive seat or chair covering. Especially attractive is plain homespun with chintz appliques.

Dressmakers and upholsterers have short lengths of superb materials that you can get for a song. Liven up your rooms with new covers. The actual work, while exacting, is not too hard. Ledger Syndicate.-WNU Features.

Wind Rebuffs Enemy

Propaganda Leaflets FIFTH ARMY BEACHHEAD IN ITALY. - Nazi propaganda boomeranged one night when a shift in the wind caught up salaciously illustrated leaflets which enemy artillery was bombarding into the Allied lines and sent them fluttering back across no man's land. "No pinup girls this time," grinned Allied troops.

Cleanliness around the separator is essential.

Deep Tillage Drains Off Swamps and Water Holes

"Water holes and temporary ponds on many farms can be drained by deep tillage practices, which includes the heavy application of lime on the surface or in the subsoil," advises C. M. Nissley of Rutgers U. "This makes conditions favorable for deep-rooted crops which help to open up the soil." The practice would not be applicable to fields where the surface soil is underlaid with three or more feet of clay, however. Because of this, Nissley suggests that a hole three feet deep or deeper be dug in order to find out the character of the soil formation before remedial measures are put into practice. He also suggests that the county agri-

Smartest Fighter

More than one individual pointed out that Conn's smartness wasn't in evidence the night he almost removed Joe's crown. Boxing records show that Conn got ahead of Louis in that fight. He had piled up a comfortable lead in points. Those records also show that the Irishman became cocky and tried to slug it out with the champion. Billy Conn And that Conn was knocked out in the thirteenth round. But Louis wasn't thinking of Conn's intelligence or his I.Q. He was probably referring to his unquestioned ability to avoid punches and to move quickly, landing punches through the smallest openings in his opponent's defense.

Most smaller fighters are smarter (in that fashion) than their beefier contemporaries. They know more about all the angles of boxing than the big fellows.

Sets Things to Right PHILADELPHIA. - A trolley car crashed into two cases of milk bottles that fell from a truck. The street was covered with broken glass. Traffic stopped, Housewives came out to have a look. Mrs. Jennie Elasky, a passenger, left the trolley, walked into a house, came out with a broom, swept up the glass, glared at the other women and stepped back on the car. Traffic proceeded.

French forces, eager for another smack at the traditional foe, have taken the spotlight in the big Allied drive in Italy. They struck westward from Castelforte (1) in a sensational assault on Mt. Maio, and captured the important town of Ausonia, cutting the only road through the valley and ripping a hole in the Gustav line. To the south (2) U.S. forces drove the enemy from Santa Maria Infante, and northward (small arrows) the British Eighth army extended its Rapido river bridgehead.

Hitting Beach Behind Curtain of Fire

Landing barges carrying troops ashore in the assault on Humboldt Bay, Dutch New Guinea, move in behind a curtain of fire laid down by navy ships and planes. So accurate was the bombardment that barges swept up to the shore right on the heels of the forward moving explosives. Operations in the three Dutch New Guinea sectors are believed to have cut off some 60,000 Japs.

Summer Comes to 'Big Town'

He did this for us, but also for His own glory. That really is the most adequate explanation of grace. It was and is for His glory, a showing forth (v. 7) of the exceeding riches of His grace, through all the ages to come.

Being saved, then, is not (as some describe it) a foolish thing of little import, that takes place in some mission or little crossroads Sunday school. It does happen there, thank God for that, but it reaches clear

Jack Thought It Best Not to Bring in Shop

It was early evening when Jack and Mary were strolling arm in arm in the park. Jack noticed that she was looking rather gloomy.

"What's up, Mary?" he finally asked. "You seem out of sorts."

"I was just thinking you aren't a bit poetic," replied Mary. "You don't call me fancy names like Tom calls Joan. He says she's the apple of his eye and a perfect peach, and other such pretty things."

Jack sniffed contemptuously.

"That's all very well," he said, "but you forget that Tom works in a fruit store, while I work in the fish market."

Portable Kitchen for Nazis on Eastern Front

This picture, received through a neutral source, shows members of a German anti-aircraft gun crew snatching a few moments from Russian air attack to grab a bite to eat, somewhere on the Russian front. The food which they seem to be eating with great relish, apparently was prepared on a portable stove.

up to the highest heavens, and on into all eternity. This business of bringing men and women, boys and girls to Christ is the greatest of all occupations. Let's be busy about it! Be sure to note in verses 8-10 that it is all of grace. No works can enter into salvation. We are "his workmanship," not the result of a cooperative enterprise or creation. But at the same time do not fail to stress that we are created "unto good works" (v. 10). The professed Christian who talks about being saved by grace, but who does not live it out in the good works which God has ordained as the proper expression of salvation by grace, should not be surprised if the testimony of his lips is not believed. If we are quickened to newness of life in Christ, we ought to bring forth fruit. That is not possible in our own puny strength. But wait, the gospel which divides and quickens is also-

III. Strengthening (Eph. 3:14-19). Paul prayed for the Ephesians, but somehow one feels that he prayed for the Christians of all time, for every member of "the whole family in heaven and earth" (v. 15) who bear the name of Christ. The writer is rejoicing today that he belongs to that family, but he wonders how it is with you who read these lines. Do you belong?

Paul prayed in the Spirit, that is evident as one reads these sublime words. It is a comforting and encouraging thought, too, for Paul here asks for a Christian experience for his readers, which seems quite impossible of attainment, except for one thing. It is the power of God which is to bring it about. Prayer in the Spirit is prayer that God answers, always and fully.

So we read with confidence these magnificent, enriching petitions, and we say: "O God, make me that kind of a Christian, a real Christian."

Observe that there is to be a strengthening of the inward man by the Holy Spirit. This is not some-thing "put on" or acquired. It is God's gift.

Note also that it has a normal development, a growth in the knowledge of Christ because of an ability to "comprehend" (v. 18). Is not that our great need? We are unspeakably rich in Christ, but we do not seem to know enough to take out our inheritance.

The Greater Radios of Tomorrow Will Bear This Name ... Watch for Them!

One of these days you'll be able to buy the new radio you want and need.

And when that day comes you will find CLARION radios on display in the stores of the nation's leading radio dealers.

There you will find a line of sets so complete, and of such mechanical excellence, keen selectivity and tonal quality, that you cannot afford to miss the opportunity of testing their values.

CLARION'S post-war offerings -in both design and engineering -will represent the refinements of CLARION'S work for the armed forces in the field of electronics.

Watch for CLARION-when its farm sets, table models, portables, consoles and radio phonographs are submitted for the civilian approval which their superior advantages warrant.
