Partially inflate the tube and use ordinary pure soapsuds as a lubricant in the absence of a special tube lubrication preparation. Dry synthetic tubes do not "slide" in the tire and unless lubricated may not adjust themselves properly.

Proponents of the continuance of our synthetic rubber insurance policy after the war hold that jungle growth on the rubber plantations and the probability of the Japs wrecking the plantation equipment may mean a loss of two years before normal levels of rubber production can be realized.

Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his Best of luck. "It wasn't until I'd hung up that I men were killed while fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Forts, was demolished on the ground. After escaprealized that when the 19th had left Java, there wouldn't be any way for ing to Australia, what is left of the squadme to get out. The hotel by now ron flies to Java, where they go on many was emptying fast of foreign unimissions over the Philippines and the forms-I'd bade the first echelon of Java sea. The boys in Java hear what happened to the Marblehead and the our Navy goodby. Poor old Java was being left to sink by herself, but Houston and morale sags. The Japs take Ball news, the people didn't realize it field, and all Java is caving in. Sergt. Warrenfeltz volunteers for a very danyet. Things were moving fast.

"That day we heard a big Jap force was closing in off the north coast, headed for the Java beaches. We got reports from scout planes, even from submarines, but we didn't know just how big it was. Because hanging over it was a Jap fighter screen so thick that our recco planes to clear off the field-so I sighted on | didn't dare fly through to see.

"We got a few reports from a tiny island which lies out in the Java Sea north of Surabaya, but ominously its radio went dead. We realized the Japs had put a landing force ashore there.

"That night out went the tiny Dutch Navy-it was all they had left-which pounded them under cover of darkness and then pulled away.

There's a little pause, and then there's the sweetest geyser of deck

It did some good, because in the morning we found the Jap advance guard, which had been headed right fighter screen, waiting for the main force to come on up.

"Colonel Eubank was now in Jockstrap, and by telephone I put a problem up to him. The position of our fighter pilots in Java was hopeless now-any minute their field would be hit by Jap bombers and put out of operation. I wanted them to turn their P-40's over to the Dutch fighter pilots (who had nothing left now but three Hurricanes which had been rescued from Singapore) and come on out to Australia with us where we could continue the war.

"Further air defense in Java was hopeless. We had broken camp at Malang-Jap bombers were swarming over the island.

"But Van Oeyen, the Dutch commander, wouldn't listen. He was a stout old infantry officer, and he had given orders to fight to the last.

"We had to plead our viewpoint with Van Oeyen. Yet it would be hard to explain to men who were defending their homes and families in this beautiful island, whose lives, out, but the trouble was we had when it fell, would be over. "That night, fifty miles off Sura-baya, the naval battle was resumed. The main Japanese invasion force, ringed by submarines, was headed for our beaches. At midnight the United Nations Navy moved in to throw their little all into the balance. This final night the Dutch struck no glancing blow. It was now or never. They moved in and fought them toe to toe, the Australians at their side. It was pitiful, of course, and hopeless, as all of them knew. But the gallant Dutch preferred to die fighting out in the night rather than go skulking home to wait for the Rising Sun tanks to come rattling down their streets. "Side by side, the Dutch and the Australians plunged through that outer ring of Jap submarines. The American forces took up the last defensive position, skirting the Jap back edge, firing on the run. It was our duty not to dissipate ourselves in lost causes, but to do what damage we could, and conserve our strength to strike again. "Java died that night in the gunfire which came rolling in over the water. It took until dawn for the Jap battle fleet to crunch to bits You're under your own orders,' he

They said the connection might not be made until midnight. I privately wondered if it would go through at all. Java was collapsing fast all around us.

"But I said I'd take it whenever it came, knowing I'd get no sleep that night—maybe little sleep for many nights. So at midnight I started for the telephone office. Just as I was leaving the hotel I ran into Commander Peterson of the Navy's Patrol Wing 10. By now he was almost the sole survivor. He seemed surprised to see me, told me he was just leaving for his plane-the last of the Navy was leaving Java. He asked how I expected to get out. I said I didn't know. 'Come with me now,' he said, 'and I'll take you out to Australia.' I couldn't. There was that telephone call. And also I mustn't leave those American fighters to be swallowed up in the coilapse tomorrow. So I thanked him; we said goodby.

"Walking to the telephone build-ing I could hear a dull rumble in the hot midnight air coming from far over the water. The few people in the blacked-out streets assumed it was distant thunder. I knew it was the little Dutch Navy in its final agony out there in the dark.

"Then I waited in that dim-lit mosquito-filled telephone building for that call. Sitting on a bench, with the help of a flashlight I made my notes for the call. Then I paced the floor. Each time the window opened, letting out a little light, I was sure the half-caste girl was telling me the call had been completed. I had other pressing business, but none more pressing than this. I thought of the eager face of the boy just before he went out into what looked like almost certain death.'

"From Florida," said Margo, "I could hear the telephone operators working, setting up that line all around the world, from here where it was noon to midnight in the tropics. And finally Frank's own voice. 'Have you got paper and pencil?' he asked. 'Now take down this name: Mrs. W. H. Warrenfeltz, of Hagerstown, Maryland. Her son Bud is going on a mission and he wants her to know there probably will be some money deposited to her account in the Hagerstown bank from New York. Tell her Bud sends his love to Billy, Jane, and all, and of course to her. He wants her to use half the money to buy her home, and the rest is for her to live on, and he wants her to be happy, however it comes out."

"Then I told Margo the boy was going on a most dangerous mission. We didn't know how dangerous until after he left, for his course took him right across the path of the main Japanese fleet. And now," Frank said bitterly, "this little story has a happy ending, so far as the for Java's beaches, now pulled back a little, under that bomber-andcerned. Because the five thousand dollars which Bud Warrenfeltz thought his mother was going to get, when he went out to face the Japanese fleet, was never paid. It never cleared through the New York banks before Java fell. I suppose those New York bankers were more prudent than Bud, and took no chances on Java paper. So Bud's mother didn't get any money, and even Bud himself never got through to Manila. Let's hope he's a Jap prisoner."

"After I'd written down the message to Mrs. Warrenfeltz, it seemed that Frank just wanted to visit," said Margo. "Of course it was wonderful to talk to him, because for some reason there didn't seem to be any censors clicking in on the

"The censors had all caught the boat," explained Frank. "In a few hours the Japs would have Java, so it didn't much matter what they knew.'

"But after we talked about fifteen minutes I began to worry," said Margo. "Living on an Air Corps salary, you have to think of money. As we talked I couldn't help thinking it was six dollars and a half for every minute, and I said we'd better hang up. Then he explained we could talk all we liked, because it was a government call.'

"I didn't tell her what government it was on," said Frank. "She didn't know that the Japanese were taking over tomorrow, and they would get the bill."

"After that it was wonderful," said Margo. "Frank was coming through as clearly as if he were in a pay station downtown. He told me there would be no more calls for a while, and from that I guessed that maybe in a week or so the Air Corps would be retiring to Australia. I didn't dream that the Japanese were already just off the beach, that Frank didn't know how he could get

"He talked a lot about a letter he'd written me months ago from the Philippines, a few days after the first Japanese attack, when he thought there was no chance of his getting out alive-explaining that while he'd meant every word of it, yet he'd been tired when he wrote it, so I was not to take it too seriously.

A GOOD SOLDIER OF CHRIST JESUS

LESSON TEXT-II Timothy 2:1-4, 8-12; GOLDEN TEXT—Suffer hardship with me, as a good soldier of Christ Jesus.—II Timothy 2:3.

"A good soldier"-what a wealth of meaning there is in that simple phrase. We think of our own hometown boys who have distinguished themselves in the service of their country, who have proved again that there is that in American life which can meet a crisis and do it well.

"A good soldier of Jesus Christ" is an even more significant phrase, speaking of that fine loyalty and devotion which Christians of all ages, yes, and of our day, are giving to the Captain of our salvation, our Commander-in-Chief in the great spiritual warfare going on in all the earth.

In our lesson we note that the soldier is-

I. Obedient (2:1, 2).

There is something to be done, and the soldier is enlisted for the purpose of doing it. In the case of the Christian soldier, it is to see that the gospel message which he has received is passed on to others.

Personal work is God's method, one man telling another, and another, and another. This is to be a continuous matter, not just now and then, and each one is in turn to become a soul-winner. As each one wins others and the witness is multiplied by the law of arithmetical progression, the total result is tremendous.

Why, then, has the entire world not been long since completely evangelized? Because we who are Christians are not all obedient soldiers of Christ.

II. Loyal (2:3, 4).

No soldier can serve well with a divided loyalty. He cannot be run-ning a business back home, or taking on outside interests to divert his attention. Being an efficient and useful soldier is his first and only business.

Have not the military authorities in this war asked those who are at home to keep the problems of the home and business out of the letters to men in the army? Do they not require a man to leave home and family and give his all to the serv-

The soldier for Christ must please the Lord, even though it involve bearing "hardness." It is no soft and easy business to be a soldier. "Blood, sweat and tears" are the order of the day. Shall we not do as much for our Lord?

III. Prepared (2:8-12).

Training is of highest importance for a soldier. He must know what to do, and why he is doing it. He must understand the reason for obedience and the purpose of the warfare. In other words, he must be a disciplined man, prepared to serve effectively.

The soldier for the Lord is to "remember Jesus Christ," his resurrected Lord and victorious Commander. He knows for whom and under whom he fights.

He also knows (vv. 10, 11) that the message he bears is God's Word, and will succeed even though the bearer of it suffer and die. He is prepared to die, if need be, before he will deny his Leader (v. 12)

IV. Faithful (4:5-7).

Watch, endure, work, be faithful to the very end. Such is the obligation, yes, and privilege of the soldier for Christ. Paul was able to admonish young Timothy to such complete faithfulness because he had himself exemplified these virtues in his own life.

Those who are called upon to command men must themselves be good soldiers. There is an encouraging note from the battlefields of this great war. One learns that the commanding officers are at the front, not hidden away in dugouts far behind the lines. The men take courage as they see the bravery of their officers.

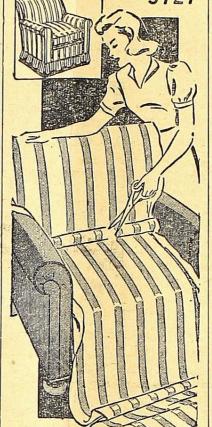

What that meant in Paul's case may be learned from the story of his life, which is condensed in a brief statement in II Corinthians 12: 23-33. He really endured affliction for Christ's sake.

V. Victorious (v. 8).

A nation at war can stand the strain and bear the agony if it can be sure of ultimate victory. The grave disappointment of losing a battle, or the deep sorrow of heavy casualties, can and will be borne for the sake of the final triumph of the righteous cause. In the battle for Christ, we know that the result will be victory. The faithful soldier shares the fruits of victory. The Christian soldier shall one day receive from his Lord and Leader a crown of righteousness. When will that great day come?

When Jesus Christ returns (Matt. 16:27). He is coming again; first for His own, and then in glorious revelation of Himself as the judge of all the world. His victory over all His enemies will then be complete, and He shall reign forever and ever.

Making Slipcovers

Stubborn particles of dirt that settle in mouldings, cracks and other hard-to-get-at corners can be dislodged by whisking with a paint brush that has been dipped in soapy water.

When light bulbs begin to darken, move them to a spot where they will not receive constant use and they will give service for a long time.

When sewing on buttons, wax the thread on beeswax or paraffin. Lay a darning needle over the top of the button and bring each stitch over the needle to make a thread shank when the needle is removed. This makes the pull come on the thread rather than on the mate-

When darning a garment, especially at the knee or elbow, place the patch underneath and stretch the material across embroidery hoops. By this method both the patch and the garment will be made equally taut. Then you can do the work easier, quicker, and without puckering.

ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL AGAIN Churchill's recent "powerhouse" speech before Commons didn't click with persons high up in the admin-istration. Actually, it brought out the growing differences between him and the President, also his spats with Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, also the importance of over-hauling U. S.-British political relations. (Administration permanent peace ideas are much nearer those announced by Eden the day after Churchill, when he went out of his way to emphasize the cooperation of smaller countries with the Big Four.) Here are some of the differences which realistic advisers inside the administration have been wanting to have straightened out with Churchill for some time:

1. American boys will never fight 1. American boys will never fight to protect India in the future, so it is foolish to let Churchill think that Britain and the U.S.A., through alliances with Russia, can help guarantee the Empire. The only protection to India must be a healthy India willing to protect herself. When FDR talked to Churchill about India two years ago, the P. M. was almost insulting.

2. The United States will insist on giving Hongkong and other former giving Hongkong and other former Chinese possessions back to China. When this was proposed by the President at Cairo, Churchill flatly re-

3. An alliance of big powers as proposed by Churchill cannot keep permanent peace in the world any more than the congress of Vienna, which divided up Napoleon's em-pire in 1815 among Russia, Austria, England and Germany.

4. President Roosevelt, so far as he has thought things out, favors a peace machinery based on cooperation with small powers as well as big. He doesn't go for Churchill's Metternich idea of balancing the world among heavily armed big

5. The old British Empire for which Churchill fought 50 years ago in the Indian northwest border wars, and in the Sudan and the Boer wars, will never come back despite his youthful memories. And the United States can never assume the drag anchor of helping to protect that kind of an empire in the future.

Finally, every time the British have been pulled into a war in the last half century, we have helped pull them out. Therefore we should have a large vote in the set-up which may make or prevent wars in the future. Some of these general ideas were hinted to Churchill during the Cairo-Teheran conferenceswith no very favorable reaction. It may be that in the near future they will be taken up again.

FULL PAY FOR RETIRED OFFICERS

Higher-ranking army and navy officers have recently discovered a neat way of retiring on full pay instead of ordinary retirement pay, which is only two-thirds as much. They go to the hospital a month or so before they are slated to retire for age, and then are sometimes able to retire with disability, which gives them full pay the rest of their

This system is based upon the fact that congress recently changed the army-navy retirement set-up in order to aid wounded men. It was provided that a veteran might retire on full pay if disabled.

However, it was the intent of congress to aid young lieutenants and lower-ranking officers who usually suffer the highest casualties in wartime due to the fact that they have to be in the front lines.

Apparently, congress did not realize that, when a colonel or a general reaches the retirement age of 64, it is not uncommon for him to have arthritis, gall stones or some other disability which can be discovered at any army hospital a few months before he retires. This gives him full pay for life.

Another interesting angle to retirement pay is that an officer getting retired pay cannot take another job from the government and get paid for it, but he can take a job with a company under a cost-plus government contract. In this case, the government pays him two salaries, except that under the costplus contract a third party hands over the money.

War Prisoners To Help Allies

Volunteer Non-Combat Units From Among Italians To Be Created.

WASHINGTON.—Creation of vol-unter noncombat units from among Italian prisoners of war, under the command of American officers, was announced by the War department.

The units, the department said in a statement, "will render services of various kinds in support of the war effort against the common enemy, except in actual combat.

Parallel arrangements are being made, "insofar as practicable, by the government of the United Kingdom," the department announced.

The army said that the action was "in furtherance of Italian co-belligerent efforts."

Commander Named.

While the units will be under the ultimate command of American officers and subject to American military law and regulations, they will be staffed by Italian officers and non-commissioned officers and "will be extended liberties and privileges not heretofore available to them."

The department said the arrangement is expected to release thou-sands of American soldiers for other duty.

Those Italians who volunteer, must be approved by the military intelligence section of the army.

Brig. Gen. John M. Eager, former chief of staff, fifth service command at Columbus, Ohio, has been named commanding general of the units.

Their training will stress instruc-tion in the English language. The present prohibition against fraternization with war prisoners will not apply between members of the Italian service units and American military personnel.

Pay Rate to Continue.

The members of the Italian units will wear easily recognizable uni-

They will continue to be paid the present rates of pay. However, a portion of this will be paid in cash and the remainder in post exchange coupons instead of the entire sum being paid in coupons as at present. The amount not paid in cash may be credited to the individual's account with the treasury of the United States if he desires.

As of April 1, this year, there were 50,136 Italian prisoners of war in this country, the War department said. The service units are not expected

Plunder of Finland Charged to reach that total, however.

By Red Army Newspaper MOSCOW.-Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, charged that German troops in northern Finland had established a frontier behind which they were plundering Finnish resources, including nickel reserves and forest wealth, and making wide use of slave labor conscripted from the Finnish inhabitants. The line virtually cuts off north Finland from the rest of the country and Finns are not allowed to cross it without German permission, the article said. "They are robbing the Finnish peasants of everything from seed to livestock," Red Star said. "The peasants are beaten and shot if they protest. The Germans are issuin, counterfeit Finnish money and thus debasing the value of the Finnish mark in northern Finland by 50 per cent. Gestapo terror completes the picture.

"The real forces of Germans in Finland are comparatively insignificant and the Germans could not exert their will by force. The so-called Lapland army of Col. Gen. Eduard Dietl includes seven divisions, two of which are Austrian."

War Prisoners in U.S.

Now Placed at 182,618 WASHINGTON. - The United States now holds 183,618 prisoners of war, the army reported in a statement of de-Nazifying captured soldiers of the Axis. Of the total, by far the largest number are from Hitler's legions-133,135 Germans, 50,136 Italians and 347 Japanese.

They are housed in 203 camps, located in all but seven states.

The War department emphasized the value of the prisoners in alleviating the labor shortage in this country, saying that their utilization, under the terms of the Geneva convention, resulted in a total of 19,300,321 man-days of employment between June, 1943, and the end of last March, this "without putting them into competition" with American labor. Their work has been of 'vital importance in agriculture" as well as in lumbering, the department reported.

Twelve Elements Control Fertility

Vital Soil Chemicals Determine Growth

Fertility was described as the "fourth dimension" of the soil by Dr. William A. Albrecht, chairman of the soils department of the University of Missouri, in a recent state-

"The soil has taken on a new meaning in the light of present war conditions," he pointed out. "Ration points on food and the scarcity of items like meat, milk and butter are giving soil a significance beyond that of mere dirt.

"Soil has long had two dimensions—length and breadth. As land, it has commonly been measured in terms of acres. The Soil Conservation service first emphasized that our lands have a third dimensiondepth. Erosion studies as early as 1914 by Dean Miller and Dr. Duley at Columbia made us see the soil profile with its rich surface being scraped away and washed to the

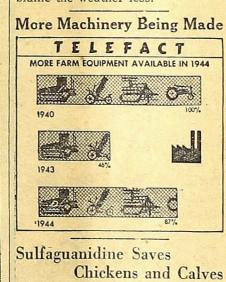

"To these three dimensions, however, should be added a fourth-fertility-for food production essentially depends on this factor.

"Crops are a form of creation. Like the Biblical story of creation itself, crops must also begin with the soil. About a dozen different chemical elements are required of the soil by any crop. These make up the ash, amounting to approximately 5 per cent by weight of the dry matter. Yet, it is this small amount contributed by the soil that determines whether the plant can gather from the air and water, by means of sunshine power, the other 95 per cent of its total content.

The Controlling Elements. "These 12 chemical elements making up by 5 per cent by weight are thus able to control the other elements which make up 95 per cent of the total weight of the plant. Consequently it becomes evident that the soil rather than the weather wields the controlling hand in crop produc-

In discussing further this "fourth dimension" of the soil, Dr. Albrecht pointed out that in a series of tests pointed out that in a series of tests for producing soybeans as a seed crop, plots without fertilizer treatment on one farm yielded 20 bushels of seed, whereas adjoining plots supplied with extra soil fertility plowed down as fertilizers, yielded 25 bushels, or an increase of 25 per cent. "When it is considered that both plots had the same weather," he concluded, "there should be little doubt that the crop depends on the soil fertility more than on the sea-soil fertility more than on the season. We thus need to see our responelbility to the soil more, and to blame the weather less.'

A new addition to the sulfa drugs, all of which are derived from coal. will soon be used to increase the nation's supply of poultry and dairy products by combatting cecal cocci-diosis, deadly disease of chickens and dairy calves, which costs farmers millions of dollars every year, according to the Bituminous Coal institute.

The drug is sulfaguanidine which, in tests supervised by the United States department of agriculture, not only prevented development of the disease in healthy birds but cut the mortality rate among infected poultry to 12 per cent of the former figure, the announcement said. In each case, the chickens were fed a mash containing from one-half to one per cent of the drug.

"One of the advantages indicated by the experiments is that the treatment builds up immunity against reinfection," the institute pointed out. 'Instead of killing all of the infecting organisms, the sulfa compound merely arrests development of the disease, thus enabling the body mechanism to build up an immunity."

Let's Face Facts Farmer Organizations

Organize Pressures To Clip Price Laws

By BARROW LYONS

WNU Staff Correspondent-

WASHINGTON, D. C. One of the hardest fought behind-the-scenes battles in congress in recent months has been the fight to il of inflation

preserve price control-to maintain the President's "hold-theline" policy. Administration lead. ers have felt that unless virtually all changes to the emergency price control act were defeated, the devwould get his hoof inside the door; and that from then on there would be no stopping him until he had pulled down the house.

This has seemed an arbitrary and dictatorial viewpoint to leaders of farm organizations. All over the country their clients, the farmers of America, have smarted from various OPA rulings. They have been determined to find some relief from those which have irked them the most. Farm leaders do not wish to destroy basic price controls, how-

But as a result of the combined attacks of business and farm interests, price control faces today one of its recurring crises. Scores of amendments to the emergency price control act have been referred to the senate committee on banking and currency, and debates be-hind closed doors have been charged with fire and brimstone.

Among the amendments which stand the best chance of acceptance are those proposed by Sen. Kenneth Wherry (R., Neb.), Republican Whip. These amendments include elimination of the 60-day limitation on the time for filing formal protests against inequitable prices, authorization for organizations as well as individual sellers to challenge in the courts price regulations, a requirement that civil enforcement proceedings be brought in the district where the defendant resides or maintains a place of business, opportunity for the defendant in price violation proceedings to plead that the price at which he sold was no higher than parity price.

Farm Group Support

Recently a newspaper release supporting the Wherry amendments was issued by the farm group and signed: "The National Grange, by A. S. Goss, national master; American Essay, and the state of the can Farm Bureau federation, by Edward O'Neal, president; National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, by John H. Davis, executive secretary, and National Cooperative Milk Producers' federation, by Charles W. Holman, secretary."

When a combination like that gets behind a measure, something generally gives way. This time resistance is unusually stubborn. The administration is fighting with all its power every move to weaken price controls -particularly proposals which would permit prolonged legal proceedings, and thus make a law that is very difficult to administer virtually impossible to administer. But it is on the legal front that the farm leaders make their princi-pal attack. Their joint statement declares:

"The legal subterfuges that OPA has employed to prevent court tests of some of its high-handed actions are destructive of the people's respect for and confidence in government : . The chief reason that price ceilings on food have been reasonably effective has been the fact that American farmers have continued to produce at the highest level in history.

"This production has been achieved in spite of serious handicaps imposed by OPA as a result of inequitable ceilings, tardily announced, indefinite and unjust regulations and widely differing and often contradictory interpretations. In many instances, price regulations and other actions of the OPA have disregarded the will of congress. The agency has refused in instance after instance, to make price adjustments required by law, even though these adjustments would have made little difference in the cost of living and would have materially increased production.'

There is not enough space in this column to go into all of the intrica-cies of this battle. The OPA has made so many blunders that it is hard to find an unbiased audience before which to defend it, despite the fact that it has been far more effective in controlling inflation than many who dislike it are willing to admit. But there are mighty few people in the organization who like their jobs. Many of the leading business men who accepted posts under the new administrator, Chester Bowles, took thankless tasks at considerable financial sacrifice.

The Office of Price Administra-tion has killed off two administrators. The turnover on its legal staff has been about 500 per cent. I have come to the conclusion that to accept a job on its staff requires just about as much patriotism as volunteering for behind-the-lines fighting in enemy territory.

W IN, lose or draw, Hammerin' Henry Armstrong always has been the fighter for our money. Pound for pound, Henry just about tops the list of all-time great boxers.

Look over the list of ring men and find one who has done what he has. The dark slugger set a record for bowling over his opponents and in so doing managed to win three world's boxing championships, holding them simultaneously.

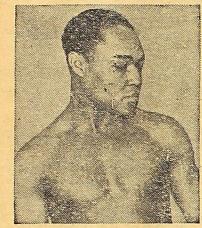

More than once the experts said Henry was through. That has been the cry for years. Henry again upset the dope recently when he knocked out Aaron Perry, a sensational comer, in Washington, D. C.

Yet Henry insists he always has been a pacifist who avoids arguments and heartily dislikes fighting. How is it, then, that a man who detests fighting can work up so much fury when he steps into the

Simple Answer

The answer is simple-and quite obvious. Henry-needs the money. He is fighting for board and room.

During his ring career the little Negro probably earned a million dollars or so. He isn't absolutely broke new, but he isn't a rich man by any standards. The disappearance of his hard-earned wealth doesn't cause Henry too much mental anguish. He remembers cheerfully how his likable ex-manager, the late Eddie Meade, managed to mess up their finances following every big bout.

Henry remembers that when the time came to split the purses, Meade always came up with a bril-liant idea for doubling their money. The schemes always failed.

Gene Kessler, a Chicago sports writer, tells of some of Meade's getrich-quick ideas:

"There was the movie, 'Keep Punching,' in which Henry was star actor, co-director and financial angel. All Henry got for his bankroll in that venture was a few souvenirs and still-life photos of himself. There was the flash-front chop suey joint in Los Angeles which packed in customers but, strangely, showed no profit. In fact, it kept Henry little ruffles are perfectly charming broke feeding the good citizens of in effect and the slenderizing lines Los Angeles from his fight purses until a sheriff gracefully closed the

Financial Venture

But Meade's greatest financial ventures had to do with the improvement of the breed. He was known to have invested an entire fight purse on one discouraged nag which ended up just where everyone else expected him to.

Armstrong retired in 1940 after absorbing quite a beating from Fritzie Zivic. He took a terrible pounding in that fight. His eyes were hammered into bloody, brutal messes. And when he retired he had only a small bank balance to show for his great earnings.

The story goes that when Henry retired, Meade took the last of his earnings and bought a race horse. It wasn't the best race horse in the world, but one day he won a $5,000 stake at Belmont. It was the first big money Meade had ever collected from the turf and the shock was too severe. He collected his money, returned to Broadway and died.

It wasn't love of fighting that brought Henry back to the ring. It was necessity, coupled with the lure of war-fattened bankrolls. And this time he is going to take care of his own finances. The total gate for his match with Perry grossed $60,000 in Washington. Other good sized gates have given him a comfortable chunk of cash.

He could retire now with enough to last him the rest of his life, but he's playing it safe and adding something extra to a bankroll that has had the unhappy experience of fading all too rapidly.

This charming gown is made of a perfectly stunning border print done in multi-striped poplin that can be tubbed successfully because of its everfast color processing. Note the freedom of the new sleeves and gathered top of the skirt, all very much a la Mexicano. "Neckery" goes very well with this dress as the many-strand necklace tells you. The necklace picks up the many colors in the stripes of the dress.

Flattery of Large Hats The large spring hats and brimmed models resembling cartwheels are flattering and easy to wear. They're to be found in bright colors and white, together with the summer classics of pale brown, beige, and natural tones.

Roses in Full Bloom In Fashion's Garden

Fashion is making a wonderful display of roses this season. If in doubt as to the flower you like best just pin a huge full blown rose at the waistline of your smart slim black frock and you will make no mistake. Roses show up everywhere in the fashion picture. Nowadays it's a large white rose or more that will trim your chapeau, for the rose is holding forth where once the gardenia was first choice. Seems as if the entire pathway of fashion is strewn with roses this season. The handkerchief with a large single rose print is new. Some of the most gorgeous silk, rayon or cotton prints make roses their theme, and it is also new looking to pin a rose on one's handbag.

Coolie Coats Take Fancy

Of High School Crowd Each season some one style in the coat section forges way ahead of all the others. This year it is the very youthful coolie coat that is in the lead. Young girls adore these coo-lie types because of their utter simplicity and their decided youthfulness. The fact that they are so easy to slip on over summer frocks adds to their prestige and they are becomingly collarless, which counts in their favor. You can get these coolie coats in "darling" colors, bright coral and light blue and pink being outstanding, as well as the modish lilac shades, gold colors and delicate greens. A white satin or ice-blue satin coolie coat makes a lovely evening wrap.

Linen Hats and Bags
Linen hats and bags in luscious

JOBS AFTER THE WAR

MUST COME FROM INDUSTRY
THERE IS A DEMAND THAT American industry be prepared to provide jobs for everyone who wants a job when the war is over. The idea as expressed by Washington bureaucrats is that if industry cannot do that kind of a job it will be an evidence of failure on the part of private enterprise and government must take over in the interest of those wanting jobs.

Just how far government is going in making such a result impossible for industry is well illustrated by the report of United States Steel for

In April of 1941 the government put a ceiling price on steel, and that price has not been changed. The government did not put a ceiling price on wages or materials. In 1941 wages in the steel plants averaged a fraction under 991/2 cents an hour. In 1943 wages averaged a fraction under $1.16 an hour. Material prices were up in about the same proportion.

In 1943 the sales of the steel company amounted to $1,976,800,000. Of that $912,900,000 was paid for labor, just under 50 per cent. Another $126,600,000 went for taxes. The dividends paid to stockholders were the same as paid for a number of years, but the one item that tells the real story was the $3,400,000 the steel company was permitted to lay aside for that rainy day when the war is over.

That $3,400,000 the company was permitted to make and keep as a reserve would pay the operating costs of its plants for less than one day. That is the reserve with which to provide jobs for the 340,498 employ-ees regardless of what the demand may be for steel.

During the year in which the company was permitted to accumulate a reserve of $3,400,000 with which to provide rainy day jobs, it paid to the unions under the check-off system, as dues and assessments for its employees a total of $2,300,000. The union is not expected to provide any rainy day jobs.

Industry keeps pace with the demand for more wages not by increased prices for its products, but by an increased "know-how" on the part of American management. In the case of steel that "know-how" supplied by management represents an increase in pounds of steel produced per man-hour from 29.72 in 1902 to 53.74 in 1943. For that "knowhow" management, those with salaries of $10,000 a year or more, received less than I per cent of the total amount paid for labor.

Under existing conditions, with practically no reserve permitted upon which to draw, out of what is industry to finance those after-thewar, rainy-day jobs?

BURDEN ON ALL BECAUSE OF 'JOB-HOLDERS' JUST ABOVE 64 MILLION people in the United States have jobs for which they are paid wages. Each 20 of those employed must dig down into their pockets to pay the salaries of a federal government civilian employee. Dividing the population into families of five each and it means that each eight families must pay the cost of supporting an extra family. Those extra for whom we must provide the food, clothing, shelter and spending money are largely employed by the more than 200 bureaus created since 1933. They are the bureaucrats whose job is that of regulating and regimenting the American people. They repre-sent the burden Senator Byrd and his committee are attempting to remove from the shoulders of the American taxpayers. But the number continues to increase despite those efforts.

AUSTRALIAN WAR BILLS ARE LOWER THAN OURS

SINCE WE GOT into the war our national debt has increased, up to December 31, 1943, by 117 billion dollars. During approximately the same period Australia reduced its national debt by 106 million dollars. While our per capita debt stands at $1,207, an increase of $119 in a year. Australia reduced her per capita from $767 to $737. Australia is also at war. Australian soldiers are fighting beside Americans in the Southwest Pacific. Evidently the Aussies have learned the secret of conducting a war more economically than ourselves. Possibly they could give Senator Byrd and his economy committee some valuable tips.

THE AMERICAN NAVY in the Pacific has demonstrated that "island jumping" is not so slow a process as the Japs or ourselves had expected it to be.

IN SO FAR AS I REMEMBER my American history we have had three Presidents with a definite and continuing foreign policy. Washington proposed that we keep out of all the squabbles of Europe, stay at home and mind our own business Monroe warned all European nations to keep out of our hemisphere. Wilson proposed that we assist in regulating all the world's
