SUPERVISORS START POST WAR PLANNING

County Building Plans To be Prepared by Bay City Man

At the June session of the Board of Supervisors, which ended Thursday, it was decided that Isosco county's contribution to the nation's post war planning would be the securing of plans for a new court house. The proposed court house to be built at such time following the present war as the people of the county shall decide. In anticipation of the future necessity of building a court house, the Board of Supervisors had some years ago established a sinking fund which now contains about $32,000.00 in government bonds.

During this week's session of the board, a contract was made with Joseph C. Goddeyne, architect, of Bay City to prepare preliminary plans for the proposed court house. When the preliminary plans are approved by the State Planning Commission, Mr. Goddeyne has been authorized to complete the working plans.

To encourage planning for post war projects the legislature of Michigan authorized the use of $3,000,000 to be divided among the various governmental units to be used for such plans. The allotment for county purposes here is $2,444.38. The action of the board this week allows the county to participate. The board of supervisors had authorized the Buildings and Grounds Committee to secure an architect and submit tentative plans at the June session. After certain recommendations were made by the board and county officers, the tentative plans were accepted. The Buildings and Grounds Committee includes Fred Brabant, chairman, William Fitzhugh and George Vaughan.

The proposed court house building as indicated in the tentative plans would cost about $150,000.00. It would be built of brick with limestone trim, and be fully modern in its construction and arrangements. Two stories high, it would have a 92 foot frontage and extend back 75 feet.

In a 15 to three vote, the board at this session equalized the roll at the assessed valuation, which is $9,153,190.00.

The board authorized the county treasurer to purchase $2,000.00 in War Bonds.

At a meeting of the Tawas City Board of Education, held Thursday evening, Dr. J. J. Austin was named as president of the board. George Myles, secretary; and Orly Westcott, treasurer. The Board of Education has the following members: J. J. Austin, George Myles, Orly Westcott, H. Read Smith and George Prescott, Jr.

IOSCO PEOPLE INVITED TO WAR EXHIBIT

Half Holiday Declared By Mayor of Tawas City

"We invite every person in the county to the Tawas City Park next Wednesday afternoon to see the seven Army Ducks which will be here for your inspection," Mayor John D. LeClair of Tawas City said today. "Wednesday afternoon is being declared a holiday by Tawas City.

"The Ducks are being shown here under the auspices of the War Finance Committee of the Treasury Department so that you can see what the money from the War Bonds you have purchased is producing, and gives you a fine opportunity of viewing these amphibious trucks so successfully used by our boys in the invasion of Italy, France and the Islands of the Pacific.

"The caravan will arrive here Tuesday evening and an exhibit will be made that evening at the State Park, East Tawas. Included in the evening's program will be a band concert and pep talks on the 5th Invasion War Bond Drive.

"Wednesday at the Tawas City Park, the Ducks will make trips out into the bay all afternoon, and you can 'ride to sea' in a truck. Bring the children so that they can see and ride in an Army Duck."

The Amphibious Ducks, furnished by the Transportation Corps of the Army Service Forces, visit Tawas City on Wednesday, June 23, and rides will be given at the Tawas City Park. The visit is sponsored by the United States Treasury Department War Finance Committee, and its purpose is two-fold to stimulate the sale of war bonds and to show this modern equipment to the people whose war bond purchases pay for them.

The Duck is in charge of Captain William L. Halsey, with 1st Lieut. Edward P. Brady of the Public Relations Office at Charleston, S. C., Port of Embarkation. The unit is commanded by Major Russell F. Oakes, Chief, Office of Technical Information, Office of Transportation, Washington, D. C.

All personnel with the group belongs to the Transportation Corps. The 12 MP's are from the Hampton Roads Port of Embarkation, the Duck crew, consisting of three officers and 21 enlisted men, are from Camp Gordon Johnston, Carrabelle, Florida, where all Army amphibious training takes place; the three enlisted men who take care of clerical and enlisted work are from the TC training group at Indiantown Gap, Pennsylvania.

After its Michigan tour the group will proceed to the Army Service Forces "Weapons of War" exhibit, which opens at Grant Park, Chicago.

The transportation corps of the Army Service Forces is the principal using service where Ducks are concerned, and it was due chiefly to the now retired Chief of Transportation, Brig. General Theodore Dillon, that they were "born."

Each of the seven duck will carry 18 people. Every purchaser of a War Bond will be entitled to ride out into Tawas Bay aboard one of these ducks.

Golf Course Open

The Tawas Golf course is now open with Joseph Bouchard as caretaker and manager. The course is in good shape and the Golf Course Committee made ticket sales drive in the two cities yesterday and today (Thursday and Friday.)

QUEENS DIE PROUDLY

By W. L. White W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed while fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Forts, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the squadron flies to Java, where they go on many missions over the Philippines and the Java sea. The boys in Java hear what happened to the Maribeach and the Houston and morale sags. The Dutch blow up their ammunition dumps, and the order comes through to evacuate. The little Dutch navy fights a losing fight in the dark. Java collapses. Sgt. Warrentz never gets his money.

CHAPTER XIX

"When I said I hadn't got it, he said it ever did come through, I wasn't to open it until he got back, or something like that. He'd meant every word of it, and yet now it seemed he didn't want me to see it. I couldn't understand. But it didn't seem to matter. Because what did any letter matter, now that we could talk, all we wanted to, around the world?"

"It was long after midnight when we finished," said Frank. "But it was some satisfaction to know it would cost the Japanese maybe five hundred dollars, and I only hoped I'd be out of Java so they couldn't collect from me."

"Then I got back to work on the Dutch military, who of course were up all that night. They knew what was coming tomorrow even if the civilians were only beginning to suspect. It was two o'clock in the morning when I got Major Fisher out of bed with the news that already the landing barges of one flank of this invasion force had been sighted right off the beach."

"After a final desperate call to the Dutch General van Oeyen, he agreed our boys might leave, turning their P-40's over to the Dutch fighter pilots, provided that before they went they strafed the Jap landing barges. Without verbal orders from the Dutch commander, they would not have gone."

"So I rustled two cars and a truck to transport them, and by four o'clock we were headed for Gnor. We got there a few minutes before dawn, to find our boys were up and out on that final mission, although they did not know it was their last."

"Again we telephoned Van Oeyen in Surabaya to tell him the orders had been obeyed, and he told us reluctantly to bid them Godspeed and good luck; they had fought the good fight, and those who returned from this mission were now free to go to Australia. If there was a way."

"I hoped there still would be. The Colonel had told me the day before that if I could get them across Java—to Jockstrap—by noon, they would find three Fortresses which he had ordered back from Australia to pick them up. However, he couldn't guarantee that these Forts would dare wait on that field beyond noon."

"As we stood on the Gnor Field of course I got tense. Would those kids come back alive and in time to get across Java by noon? If we were late, would the bomber pilots get jittery and maybe pull out without us? Not that I'd blame them, for today no plane would be safe on any field in Java."

"The Dutch pilots are grave, but they make us welcome."

"Then comes the roar of P-40's and here is the first flight—in out of the Rising Sun as though fleeing from it. Jack Dale is its leader. We grab them. What happened?"

"It looks bad, they tell us. There were so many barges. And when they started spraying them, the barges threw up horrible cones of fire, in great masses. There was a cross fire, too—from Jap shore batteries, already landed. At last they had set their ugly, crooked teeth into the fair white coastline of Java."

"Then Jack said, in a low voice, 'When in hell will we get out of here, Frank?'"

"I said I had news for him, but just then the next flight comes roaring in—it's three Hurricanes flown by Dutch pilots, all that is left of the Dutch Air Force this final day, except of course they had planeless pilots who were to take up our abandoned P-40's."

"Now here's the third flight, buzzing in low—P-40's this time, and the American boys still have their old spirit left because they buzz up the drome, come roaring in right over the roof of the operations office—for a fighter pilot it's like knocking at the door. They're still the old 17th Pursuit Group—or what's left of them."

"I looked at the P-40's. They are so full of holes they should be condemned—there is hardly one the Dutch would dare take up again. We were leaving them little enough."

"Now my boys are gulping coffee. They grab an apple each and sandwiches to take along, and I suppose it's time for goodbyes. Captain Anamaet, leader of the Dutch fighters, tall, thin, dark-haired, with a finely chiseled face, nervous like many fighters, is standing silent at one side. His Dutch boys are with him."

"What can we say? Our American boys have fought with them like brothers for weeks. We're now making a dash for safety."

"Anamaet is the courageous one. He walks forward, puts up his hand, and says simply, without a quaver, 'Thanks for all you have done. We have tried, but we are finished.' Gravely, and with no bitterness."

"I ask him why he and all his boys don't come out with us. We'll find room for him in the planes. Then we can continue the war from Australia. He shakes his head."

"Now our boys are loaded in the truck, and presently we're out on the main highway, headed across Java, but just then we hear a familiar drone—Jap dive bombers. Smelling their way into Java, they've finally found this field. It's only luck they hadn't found it before. Our boys crowd against the tail gate of the truck to watch them peel off one by one, assume that 40-degree angle toward the ground, let go the little egg, pull out of their dives and then—r-r-r-umpf, the bomb takes hold. It punctuates the lesson we'd been trying for days to drive home to the Dutch infantry generals—that the field was now untenable. It was only the weather which kept the Japs out of it yesterday."

It was two o'clock in the morning when I got Major Fisher out of bed.

"But now we have worries of our own. There are seventy-six of us in this little caravan—fifteen of them pilots. We have only one road map, so the drivers' instructions are to drive carefully and stay together. It's a long drive at the speed we can make. A close squeeze to make it by noon. Then, in spite of the road map, we get lost—not badly, but two or three times we must backtrack. Then I see we'll never make it by noon. The boys, tired from many weeks of fighting, try to doze standing up in that jolting truck. I don't sleep, but I have nightmares. At every crossroads I wonder if lightning-fast light Jap tanks mayn't come sliding in on us. Even if we had time to turn and run before they open fire with their turret guns, they would have cut off our escape to Jockstrap."

"My wrist-watch hour hand seems to race. These tired boys, bouncing in that truck, trust me. The Air Corps got them in here; now the Air Corps is getting what is left of them out. They don't doubt that a big bomber will be waiting with its door open on the Jockstrap runway to take them to Australia. Suppose we get there to find the bomber pilots have waited past the rendezvous hours, and then gone on back to Australia empty—and we look at a vacant field knowing the Japs are closing in behind us?"

"My watch hand races toward noon and we're still hours from Jockstrap, but I have an idea. We're not far from what shows on my map as a fair-sized town which should have telephones from which, while the boys have lunch, I can call the Colonel and tell him we're on our way—that those bombers must wait."

"The town is a sleepy little place built round what at a quick glance one might mistake for a Middle Western courthouse square. War hasn't touched it, and you'd think could never come. In the hotel they stare at our uniforms—they're the first American ones they've seen. The boys order, while I hunt a telephone to call the Colonel at Jockstrap."

"But minutes tick by and they can't locate him. Nor anyone else who can deliver a message that we are coming, and those bombers must wait. 'Do I waste more time calling? Or do we hurry on, hoping we'll get there before they are frightened from the field? That seems more sensible, so we forge on. I haven't the heart to tell them I couldn't reach the Colonel.'

"They're all tired in the cars, there's no wrestling or kidding, which is amazing for fighter pilots."

Finally I know from the map we must be approaching Jockstrap. But on what side of the town is the field? We can't waste precious minutes uselessly fighting its narrow streets."

"Then, to one side, I see leaping flames and a column of smoke. That's all the marker you need to find an airdrome at this stage of a war. I tell the driver to steer for the smoke and he'll find the field."

"And at first it seems all to have been for nothing. There are the hangars, split wide open—six or seven Forts burning merrily. Also the water tower is hit. Professionally, I admire it as one of the best bomb runs I've ever seen. The Japs seem to have made a perfect job of cutting off our retreat—but not! There remains a single Fortress!"

"It seems Lieutenant Vandevanter managed in the nick of time to get her off the ground, and flew out to sea until the raid was over. Luckily they sent only bombers, and no Zeros which could shoot him down. Here he is now, perched on the edge of the field."

"But at the utmost he can carry only a third of us. I dispatch about fifty in the trucks to Madiun Field, hoping it isn't blown up, and that two Forts the Colonel tells me are due in from Australia can get them out."

"And now we have a bonfire of everything we couldn't take with us, but which we don't want the Japs to have—all our photographs, every official paper, the entire records of the 17th Pursuit Group for the Java and Philippine wars. It all goes up in those flames on Jockstrap Field forever—except what the few remaining boys standing around that fire can remember of what the others did. We even chuck in a few bomb sights that were kicking around—for luck, and for kindling."

"But just as the flames were leaping highest, the air-raid siren started to scream. We dived for a drainage ditch, and I think I got my worst scare of the war. Because up above were two Zeros approaching, and down here on the field was our solitary Fortress—our last chance to escape—sitting in front of God and everybody (including those Japs) mother-naked and defenseless. How long I held my breath, staring up into the sky, I couldn't say now. But for some reason they hadn't dived on us yet, and then when one rolled up to let the other take a picture I realized it was only a recon flight, to take the damage they'd done a few hours before."

"I began loading the boys into that plane. But I did one final thing. I couldn't forget Captain Anamaet, standing there on that Gnor Field watching us pull out, and if I'd wanted to, the others wouldn't have let me. So with the Dutch liaison officer there at Jockstrap, we made arrangements that if tomorrow night we could get any planes through from Australia, they would circle our old bomber field at Malang. The liaison officer was to notify Anamaet, so that if his Dutch fighter pilots could get there, and Malang wasn't by then in Jap hands, they would light a bonfire on its field as a signal that it was safe for our Forts to come in and pick them up and take them out to Australia, where we'd have another chance to fight the war together."

"We kept the date. The next night Captain Bill Bohnaker and Eddie Green slipped through to Malang. For forty-five minutes they circled our old field. But there was no bonfire. Maybe Anamaet's boys had died during the day, giving their all for Java. Maybe they'd got to the field just ahead of the Japs and were now prisoners, unable to light their bonfire but listening in the darkness as Bill and Eddie circled and circled above them. What happened we never knew. But I'm glad we couldn't have foreseen that darkened field at Malang as we all climbed into our own Fortresses, turned off the Jockstrap field, and headed east for Australia, flying into a rising moon."

"Nothing much was going to happen on that flight to Australia," continued Frank, "although we couldn't know it. All had to cram forward for the takeoff, of course, for with that big load in the rear we'd never have got her tail up. We manned battle stations, and only after we were halfway across the ocean did the gunners leave their turrets. I rode up in the pilot's compartment, and there were at least seven of us there, three sitting on the floor."

"At two o'clock in the morning we sight the coast in the moonlight, which gives it a ghostly hue. It's just flat desert, but finally we find the little town of Broome. We circle it and finally a flare path breaks out below—they're tossing kerosene flares out of a moving auto to show us the runway, so we circle and come in."

"I couldn't sleep. The mosquitoes were making me groggy, and also I was thinking of our planes circling Malang Field for Anamaet. After a while I got up and looked out the hangar door. The first pale dawn was breaking over Broome, which I could now see consisted of a general store, a gas station, two houses, and this hangar shack—perched out here on the edge of nothing, where the red sand desert of Australia meets the blue salt desert of the sea."

New Everglaze Finish Keeps Wash Fabrics Crisp and Fresh

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS summer the big excitement in the world of fashion is the high style rating given to wash fabrics. Never a season like this for chic, handsome washables that are being made up as stylish as if they were highbrow silks or wools.

The big idea these days is to wear ginghams, swisses and the now-so-popular glazed chintzes styled to a nicety, also organdies, piques, nets, and fine batistes or any smart "what-have-you?" washable weaves, to your swankiest dance parties and gala events. Furthermore, suits tailored of fresh gingham, of gabardine, percale, crinkly seersucker or rayon-and-cotton shantung weave, likewise dresses made of the same, are the smartest about-town costumes of the season. You'll love the new color-fast all-black weaves so voguish this summer. Black liners are ever so good-looking, also sheer-chiffon types, and the greatest hit of them all is the black eyeleted sheers and piques.

In view of the fact that so many grand and glorious washables are so easily available, also that they tune to every occasion, it's no wonder that fashion-alert women have taken to planning with utmost enthusiasm their entire wardrobes this summer in terms of stunning washables. They are especially encouraged to do this in that modern wash fabrics have been made so absolutely dependable with just one "latest improvement" after another these late years.

Nothing less than wonders have been performed in regard to processing wash materials so that the guarantee-label makes are non-shrinking, non-creasing and non-fading. And that is not all, for something excitingly new has happened in that an amazing everglaze finish has been achieved that gives gay and lovely chintz a gloss that stays lustrous through repeated launderings.

The winsome frocks pictured are charming indeed in themselves, but the best part of their story is that you can buy them with perfect confidence, knowing that the fabric that makes them has the new everglaze finish, which not only resists soil but is dependably washable, keeping as fresh looking and crisp as a daffodil from morn 'til night.

The dress to the left is smartly styled and will be good for the entire summer because its pretty fabric will go valiantly through careful washings, retaining its original luster and colorfulness. In the center is a junior dress so light and gay in spirit it makes every day a vacation because it keeps radiantly fresh and crisp regardless of many tubbings. The woven plaid dress to the right also has the washable everglaze finish which makes it dependably wearable.

It pays to keep up with the news on cottons for there are so many surprises, such as for instance a series of dark background sheers beautifully printed in gay florals. These make up stunningly into dressy afternoon gowns.

An interesting news item about simplest seersucker and percale dresses is that we used to think they should be made up without furbelows for utilitarian wear but this year just take a look at them showing off in a great way with cunning ruffles and soft bows tied here and there, and some most lovely lace-trimmed percales in summer dress collections.

Vogue for Checks

Fashion is certainly living a checkered career these days. Designers are especially intrigued with the idea of making up smart ensembles in chic black and white check taffeta. Pictured is a striking twosome of hat and dress worn by Lisette Veree, who stars in "The Merry Widow" this season. Her pet sailor hat of checked silk flourishes a bow of self checks. The dress carries a distinctive style message in that there is a smattering of sequins embroidered on the chest pocket. Note the face-framing arrangement of the veil.

Dark Crepe Skirt Topped With Pastel Cotton Jacket

A new fashion is born this spring and it's carrying on in a big way now that summer has arrived. It is the slim black skirt that is topped with a white pique basque button-up jacket. The style holds good with jackets of pastel cotton gabardine or of linen or any suitable wash materials.

Capes Short and Long On Fashion Program

Watch for the new capes. They are making their way to the front in the fashion realm. Some of the latest three-piece tailored ensembles done in smart tweeds and other wools are composed of skirt, jacket, and a cape of varying length, the smartest being about three-quarter depth. The cape ensembles are newer looking than the topper variety. These capes make ideal summer wraps in that they can be thrown over the shoulders so easily. Cape dresses are also a new fashion theme. Smartly gowned women are choosing black crepe frocks either short or long that have a low-cut neckline and little or no sleeves. These have a graceful cape accompaniment that when worn gives a street effect, and when removed one is gowned for formal occasions. With many print costumes a cape takes the place of a bolero.

Matching Hat, Bag, Shoes Are All in Corded Theme

One of the big successes last season and this is the handsome corded handbag. The corded theme is adding new laurels to its fame, in that stunning ensembles of hat, bag and shoes are now to be had all worked out in high fashion. The corded hats are either neat berets or calots. The shoes are beautifully designed pumps all of the corded scheme. If you happened to have a corded bag of your own why not add corded pumps and a chic little corded capeau.

White Jewelry for Summer

White jewelry is making the big hit for summer. The flattery of white earrings is already known and this summer you can match them up with flattering necklaces and bracelets and pins and lapel clips. It is going to be a big season for white all the way through, in matter of gloves, shoes and accessories.

For you to make

DON'T be colorless at your household chores. Embroider colorful zinnias on this flattering pinafore. They are a needlework magic, they're done so quickly.

Embroidered pinafore. Pattern 820 contains a transfer pattern of embroidery necessary pattern pieces; directions for apron.

Household Hints

Never throw away bones left from a roast or shoulder. Put them in cold water, and if cooked several hours, a very good soup may be obtained with the addition of diced vegetables.

It is easier to shorten a sleeve from the top than the bottom. This eliminates making a new packet and taking off and putting on cuffs.

If iodine-stained linen is soaked in a solution of ammonia and water, a teaspoon of ammonia to a pint of water, the stain quickly will disappear.

To restore faded upholstery beat the dust out, then brush. Apply a strong lather of castile soap with a hard brush, wash off with clear water, then wash off with alum water. On becoming dry, the colors will look as well as ever.

House paint often peels when paint is applied on wet woodwork. If wood is dry when painted, and afterward is wet from the back, paint may peel off. Distinguish between paint which comes off in small chips and that which comes off in long strips. The former may be caused by inferior paint, the latter indicates that the paint was good but the foundation poor.

Apple butter spread on freshly made ginger cookies or gingerbread combines two favorites. Try it for a hurry-up luncheon or supper dessert.

Always remove the ice from trays when defrosting a mechanical refrigerator. Wash the trays in plenty of warm water and soap-suds. Scald, cool and refill with water to freeze. You will then have clear, tasteless ice cubes.

A HANDSOME pair of cushions to brighten up your living room may be made from things on hand or from remnants of silk. Eighteen inches square is a good size for the cushions and, if you have an assortment of cushions of different sizes, it is easy to transfer the filling into ticks of the size you want. Stitch and turn, leaving a four-inch opening in one side. Rip a smaller opening in the old ticking; sew the large opening over the smaller one and then work the filling through.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Alcohol base butadiene is expected to provide an important portion of the synthetic rubber used in the U. S. In 1944, one instance where alcohol and the automobile go well together!

Passenger car tire shortage is expected to continue well into the summer months, at which time synthetic tires may make their appearance in growing numbers. That's why extreme tire care is important now.

In 1910 crude rubber sold for an average of $2.06 a pound in New York. Since September 12, 1941, it has been fixed by a government agency at 22½ cents a pound. In 1932 the average price was 3.4 cents.

Musical Hindus
The Hindus of India are believed to play more different kinds of musical instruments than are found in all other countries together, says Collier's. Because almost all of their earliest instruments have remained in use, these people now have several thousand, including some 300 varieties of orchestral drums. In fact, their most popular is still the vina (a guitarlike instrument with seven strings) which was invented more than 1,200 years ago.

THIS EXPLAINS WHY TELEPHONES ARE SCARCE

Here is a telephone "central office" in the South Pacific. The Marine Corps operator is putting through calls between headquarters and advanced posts.

Every move our armed forces make is co-ordinated by countless telephone instruments, miles and miles of wire. As the pace of war increases, the need for this equipment grows greater and greater.

Unfortunately, it is impossible to equip our fighting men, and still meet all requests for service at home.

Orders for telephones essential to the war effort are filled promptly. Other requests for new service are handled under an authorized and equitable procedure, not subject to exceptions, as present users give up service. But there is a long and growing waiting list.

We regret if you have been seriously inconvenienced. But we appreciate your patience and understanding.

TAWAS CITY

ORDINANCE

An ordinance to regulate and control food handling establishments within the City of Tawas City, to provide for the sanitary maintenance of food handling establishments and for the inspection of said establishments, and to provide penalty for violation thereof.

The City of Tawas City Ordains: Section 1. No person, firm or corporation shall engage in the business of food handling hereinafter defined within the City of Tawas City without a license therefor as hereinafter provided. This ordinance shall be construed as applying severally to the different classes of persons licensed hereunder.

Section 2. Any person, firm or corporation desiring to engage in food handling as hereinafter defined within the City of Tawas City, shall make application in writing for permission to do so to the City Clerk of the City of Tawas City upon blanks to be provided by said City of Tawas City. Said City Clerk shall require every such applicant to state in writing upon said blanks:

First: The applicant's full name, residence and post office address, and whether such applicant is an individual, firm or corporation and engaged in business as such.

Second: The location of applicant's place or places of business, together with the place or places where food handling is conducted, as hereinafter described.

Third: The average number of persons employed in connection with said business during the year prior thereto.

Fourth: The names and addresses of the owners of the premises used by said applicant in connection with said business, and if under lease, the terms of said lease.

Fifth: An agreement that said applicant notify the City Clerk of the City of Tawas City of any intended change of location as required in subdivision Second of this Section before making such change.

Sixth: An agreement that the applicant will allow the said City Clerk of the City of Tawas City or Health Officer of the City of Tawas City or of the Michigan Department of Health, or any designated representative thereof, to enter upon said premises at a reasonable time for the purposes of making inspection of said place of business relative to compliance with the terms and conditions of the ordinances of the City of Tawas City.

Seventh: Such other information as the Council of the City of Tawas City may require from time to time.

Section 3. Upon the signing of such application by the applicant, or some person duly authorized by him in writing, said City Clerk shall notify the Board of Health of the City of Tawas City or representative of the Michigan Department of Health assigned to the City of Tawas City, State of Michigan, who shall make or cause to be made an investigation to ascertain whether such applicant and the place of business, in which said applicant proposes to carry on said business is properly equipped in the manner required by ordinance, and whether said applicant is in a position to observe, and is willing to observe, the terms and conditions of the ordinance of the City of Tawas City, and said applicant shall agree to permit such Health Officer or representative of the Michigan Department of Health of the State of Michigan, or any member or representative thereof to go upon the premises and to make the sanitary inspection to determine whether said place of business meets the requirements of this ordinance and if it shall appear to said officer after such investigation that said place of business meets the requirements of this ordinance, and that the applicant is in position to comply with the terms of this ordinance, if he is licensed to do so by said City of Tawas City, then said officer shall endorse upon such application a favorable report and transmit the application to the Clerk of the City of Tawas City, who shall issue a license to any person complying with the provisions of this ordinance, in such form as shall be authorized by the common council. Each license issued shall be for a period not exceeding one year, and shall expire on July 1st of the year following date of issuance. Each applicant shall pay an annual license fee of $1.00 prior to the delivery of the license to such applicant.

That if said officer shall make and file an unfavorable report, then and in such case said City Clerk shall refuse to issue license to said applicant and thereupon it shall be unlawful for said applicant to engage in any business in violation of the terms of this ordinance.

Section 4. The City Clerk shall number each license consecutively in the order of their issuance and the licensee shall at all times have said license displayed in a conspicuous place in said food handling establishment. Licenses shall not be transferrable. No license shall be issued until the application therefor has been approved by said Board of Health. Any license issued may be revoked by action of the Common Council of the City of Tawas City when it is found after a report from the Board of Health that the licensee has failed to observe and conform to the terms and conditions of this ordinance. Upon revocation of such license and notice of such revocation in the form prescribed by the Common Council, it shall be unlawful for such individual, firm or corporation to carry on or engage in such business without license.

Section 5. Definitions.

(a) Food handling herein designated shall mean restaurant, coffee shop, cafeteria, short order, cafe, luncheonette, hotel kitchen and dining room, tavern, sandwich shop, soda fountain, camp kitchen and dining room, and all other public places where food and drink is prepared and served to the public.

(b) The term "employee" shall mean any person who handles food or drink during preparation or serving, or who comes in contact with any eating or drinking utensils, or who is employed at any time in a room in which food is prepared or served.

Section 6. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall on conviction thereof be liable on each and every offense to a fine of not more than $100.00 or confinement in a county jail for a period of not more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

Section 7. Should any section, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase of this ordinance be declared unconstitutional or invalid for any reason, the remainder of said ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

Section 8. The Health Officer of the City of Tawas City is hereby empowered to enforce the provisions of this act and to prescribe and enforce such rules and regulations necessary to carry out the intent of this ordinance, as adopted.

Section 9. The Council deems it necessary for public health and safety that this ordinance be given effect beginning July 1, 1944.

Passed and approved this 5th day of June, 1944.

We do hereby certify that the within and foregoing ordinance No.

113 was adopted and passed by a majority vote of all the aldermen elect of the City of Tawas City, at a regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of Tawas City, County of Iosco, State of Michigan, convened and held at the City Hall in the said city on the 5th day of June, 1944.

Washington, D. C. UNPROMOTED COMBAT FLIERS

One thing that gripes the boys at the front is the way a lot of the desk officers in the war department and others here at home seem to get promotions more rapidly than the boys who are up on the firing line. Some of them feel so badly about it that they aren't anxious to come home, though given opportunities of furlough, because they are out-ranked by their old friends at home.

For instance, most of the new pilots just arriving in England are second lieutenants. They haven't been on any missions at all. Meanwhile, men who have been in England for two years, and have been flying over Europe constantly, still remain second lieutenants.

"How many do you have?" asks some newly arrived pilot who has flown twice across the channel, each flight being a mission.

TIRE-RATION PROBE

The Office of Price Administration is quietly probing several cases of tire ration violations which promise to be sensational. They go right into some of the biggest tire companies of the country.

One of the big tire companies is being probed on a charge of having failed to void the tire ration certificates turned in to them by retailers. In other words, when a retail tire store or garage sells a tire, it has to send back to the tire manufacturer the certificate issued by the OPA ration board. However, the OPA is tracking down reports that these tire certificates, instead of being stamped as used, are going back to the dealers, or else remaining with them in the first place. Thus, they are able to sell more tires without requiring more certificates in exchange.

Another big company is being investigated by the OPA for buying up new tires of various makes from dealers and later reselling them through the company's own stores at considerable loss. Even though not the tires made by this company, the loss was considered a good investment because it got motorists into the habit of trading with this company's retail stores.

There may be some startling news breaking on this soon.

GERMANY'S SMART CHOICES

U. S. experts who have studied the Nazi military setup to resist invasion figure that Hitler—or whoever did the picking for him—was smart in his selection of German military leaders. Three of the best men in the German army have been given the job of combating what the Nazis know is the death thrust at Germany.

No. 1 is Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt, considered the best strategist and over-all commander in Germany. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, immediately under him, is the best man for lightning moves and panzer tactics.

Finally, Colonel General Heinz Guderian is considered the best tank commander in the German army.

U. S. experts, who believe in looking facts in the face, classify these three as among the top military brains of Europe.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TO END?

It looks as if daylight-saving time were going to be abolished without giving the President a chance to block the repeal.

Several resolutions have been introduced to abolish war time, as a result of protests from farmers in agricultural areas. These are now before Representative Clarence Lea of California and his Interstate Commerce committee, and it looks as if one of them would be reported out and passed.

If so, it cannot be vetoed by the President, for the original bill establishing war time provided that it was to end six months after the war, or upon a concurrent resolution by both houses of congress.

This latter provision precludes a veto, since resolutions are not subject to being overruled by the White House. In fact, Congressman Lea wrote his original daylight-saving bill in this form for the specific purpose of heading off the White House in case Congress wanted to abolish war time.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Congratulations to Lieut. Harry B. Paul Barnhart for bringing laughs to the boys in the South Pacific with his army show "Stars and Gripes."

Every day the state department condenses foreign news developments for its officials both at home and abroad. It is one of the fairest news summaries in Washington.

The navy is starting a school of government, similar to the army's at Charlottesville, Va., to train men to govern occupied territories. Some navy men are wisecracking that they don't need to train governors of occupation because the British take over all Pacific possessions as soon as we capture them. (The Solomons and New Guinea were largely British before the war.)

Long before this war began, the department of agriculture experts were experimenting with rubber plants at an experimental station near Miami, Fla., working with some 150 acres of rubber-producing plants and trees. Today, all that work is paying off. Through a scientific method of grafting developed by these experiments, the yield of a rubber tree has been multiplied from seven to ten times. The normal yield of a single tree is three pounds of latex. The grafting process has increased this yield to from 21 to 30 pounds.

However, the Miami station is not a rubber plantation. It is merely a nursery where agronomists graft the buds and bud sticks to sturdy stock and nurture them until ready for transplanting. They are then shipped to plantations in Central and South America, where they mature in time to yield enough rubber per tree for two auto tires every year. The Miami station is now turning out 90,000 saplings annually.

This sapling was "top-budded," or grafted toward the top of the tree rather than near the bottom, as is more customary. This picture was taken only six weeks after the grafting, but already strong shoots have sprouted from the buds.

To be sure of getting high grade stock, the scientists at the station raise the young rubber plants, of several species, from seeds. These seedlings must be grown in hot-houses, because even the Florida climate is not warm and wet enough for these tropical plants, in their early stages.

Cuttings from the young plants are placed in cutting boxes, a method which speeds up propagation tremendously, for each piece takes root and becomes a plant. These are set out in the nursery, where they grow for several years until they reach the sapling stage. At the proper time, slips from trees of known high sap yield and resistance to disease

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

To invite people to a simple luncheon and bridge, either telephone your guests a few days in advance or write them informal invitations as follows:

"Dear Jane:
Will you lunch with me on Thursday, the tenth, at one o'clock? We will play bridge afterwards.
I hope you can come, and look forward to seeing you.
Sincerely yours,"

Impromptu luncheons, gotten together on the spur of the moment are fun and very little trouble. Even with food rationing there are many things you can serve without spending your precious points. So don't hesitate to get your crowd together.

Western Union Knows Gustav Line 'Secret'

NAPLES.—The Germans' Gustav line originally was known only as the "G" series of fortifications and, when telephoning, the Nazis referred to it as "G" for Gustav, an Allied staff officer said.

Eventually the line became designated as Gustav by both the enemy and the Allies.

Here are saplings a year or two after the grafting. The "host" or original tree has been cut off, so that all the strength goes into the shoot.

are grafted to the young trees. When the grafted tree becomes old enough to stand transplanting, it is carefully dug up and packed for shipment to a rubber plantation in south or central America.

According to Dr. Earl N. Bressman, director of the newly established Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences at Turrialba, Costa Rica, the product grown in the Americas can survive competition of synthetic rubber and rubber grown outside the Western hemisphere. Dr. Bressman predicted production of crude rubber at 10 cents a pound and said that synthetic types would run from 30 to 40 cents a pound.

Tests must be made on the quality of rubber being produced by the trees and vines which are allowed to grow to maturity as controls. The picture shows raw rubber. The sap of a Madagascar vine was allowed to drip onto a piece of linoleum and dry. Pure rubber is extremely elastic and stringy.

Industries Now Get More Power From Soft Coal.

Coal production last year reached an all-time high of 589 million tons, compared to the former World War peak of 579 million tons made in 1918. Half the mechanical energy of the nation is now supplied by bituminous coal, with anthracite providing 8 to 9 per cent and oil 30 per cent.

Despite the record bituminous output of 1943, consumption was 33 million tons greater, the deficit being taken from surplus stocks. Domestic consumption alone was 595 million tons last year, but exports totaled approximately 27 million tons, an aggregate consumption of 622 million tons, according to the Index.

Fuel value has also been increased as the result of progress in mechanical cleaning and combustion efficiency. Electric utilities, for example, needed 3.22 pounds of bituminous coal to produce one kilowatt hour in 1919, but in 1941, this had been reduced to 1.34 pounds. The railroads needed 164 pounds of coal to haul a ton of freight 1,000 miles, as compared with 111 pounds in 1941. Fuel per passenger car mile was reduced from 18.1 pounds to 14.9 and enormous savings were made in by-product coking and in the iron and steel industry.

Research in bituminous coal combustion has resulted in at least two innovations which may be widely utilized after the war. One of these is a smokeless-type stove designed for bituminous coal. Another is a new style of mechanical stoker which comes under the classification of "fully automatic." Developments in aviation and the Diesel engine should decrease the proportion of cheap fuel oil available for competition with coal. While increased efficiency of bituminous coal-heating units should reduce coal consumption in individual cases, it should also widen the market for bituminous coal.

Two-Man Foundry Makes Farm Tools

Charles and Abraham Auchey, respectively 73 and 69 years old, are the proprietors and sole employees of what is probably the smallest farm equipment factory in the world. It is called the Codorus Foundry and Machine Shop of Codorus, York county, Pennsylvania.

Located in an area which boasted an ironworks as early as 1770, the present foundry is, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute, in many ways like the primitive ironworks that once served the needs of people in hundreds of communities in the eastern states.

For well over 80 years the Auchey brothers and their father before them have been turning out farm implements and gear. Their establishment never grew great or made fame for its owners outside its own region, the fertile Seven Valleys of Southern Pennsylvania. But it has lasted.

The glare from its cupola, lighting up the night sky, is a familiar spectacle in that countryside. The small industry has become so much a part of tradition in York county that no farmer for miles around starts for the city when a piece of farm machinery breaks down. He comes to the Codorus foundry to have repair parts made, just as his father and his grandfather used to do.

About a ton of iron is cast monthly at Codorus. In terms of tonnage or dollars this is nothing much, but it satisfies the Auchey brothers and their customers.

Charles and Abraham Auchey have grown old with the foundry. Both were born in sight of it, as were their sons and daughters and most of their grandchildren.

In its heyday at the turn of the century, the shop employed eight men and produced such complicated apparatus as threshing machines. Now it is a two-man shop, except when times come to melt and cast, every three or four weeks. Then sons and sons-in-law come from their farms and nearby city homes to help the aging brothers with the heavier work.

Neighbors also gather to assist in the casting. The rusty old cupola, installed by the father, roars and trembles as the hot fire melts the pig iron. When the glory hole at the base of the cupola is opened, the smoke-filled foundry is lit with a dull red glow. The fiery molten iron gushes forth into a ladle as big as a washtub. The iron is dipped out in smaller ladles and poured into the sand molds which lie about on the foundry floor.

The Rambling Rhymster

By LES PLETTNER

Bells
In the morning bells are ringing,
O'er the song that birds are singing;
In the trees where boughs are swinging,
In the fresh new world outside.

Calling men to meditation,
To a quiet contemplation,
Then to busy animation
In the dewy morning tide.
And in evening they are telling
Of the time of rest, and swelling
In clear tones o'er roof and dwelling,

Bringing peace to troubled mind.
They are calling to devotion,
Calming fear and harried notion,
Drifting through the airy ocean,
With a message soft and kind.
All serenely are they sounding,
In tranquility abounding,
Back from house and hill redounding.
To inspire human clod.
Bringing peace past understanding,
In their gentle, kind demanding,
As their tones go forth expanding,
Like a clarion call to God.

must be a reason in back of it all. Won't someone tell us?

In the Red—It's no news that the boys are wearing bow-ties like mad—or like Sinatra. But it definitely is bad news that they're wearing red satin bow-ties. This report comes from a town in Massachusetts, and we always thought that New Englanders were conservative!

Lipstick Kisses—Have you seen the cellophane covered pieces of paper that boys are pinning to their sweaters or lapels? Not just any paper—but paper on which their dream girl of the moment has implanted a lipstick kiss. Of course, everybody tries to guess who the girl is from the shape of the lips.

Look Before You Leap—The leap year rush has been so terrific that, in self-defense, some boys are wearing little signs that say "Taken" on their lapels. The more daring youths flaunt a sign that says, "Available." Don't crowd, girls—walk, do not run to the nearest male.

Pin Heads—That's what you can call a boy who wears his felt hat with the brim folded up against the crown in front and held in place with a big safety pin.

SEW 'N' SEWS

Here are the fashions that nimble thumbs are making for themselves these days. Gals that are smart are haunting the fabric departments of their favorite stores to get the pick of the new cotton crop for their summer dirndls. As the mare said to the doe, "Wouldn't you?"

Black Taffeta Dirndls—The newest date dress for the Sew-Your-Own-and-Wear-'Em gals is a black taffeta dirndl skirt with a sheer white cotton or rayon "picture" blouse with that alluring low neckline. No pattern needed for the skirt. Just cut the required width, shirr and stitch to a waistband—the way we've shown you in Calling All Girls.

Paint on Your Trimmings—We've heard about skirts of unbleached muslin trimmed with hand painted designs, instead of embroidery. It's a trend, girls. We've seen lots of grown-up fashions for spring and summer with hand-painted decoration. You teenagers are always ahead of the times. There are special paints now available for use on fabrics. Have you seen them?

For Girls Who Twirl—And who doesn't when the juke box beats 'em eight to the bar? Sew a colorful founce around the bottom of your slip and your twirls will look more graceful. Anyway, you won't get that feeling that your underwear is showing.

TRIXIE TEEN SAYS:

It's fun to be frightened before a party. While you're fastening up that dreamy date dress you feel hot and cold all over; your heart is up in your throat and your hands are definitely on the clammy side. That's because every party is a challenge. Will you be popular? Will that special Joy Boy cut in? Will a new boy or two ask you for your telephone number? Or—Perish Forbid—will you be a mathball? Will the stags say, "Caution-Blind-alley" when they see you coming on the dance floor? It wouldn't be half so much fun if you knew the answer beforehand!

Improved Milking Method Saves Labor

Massaging Udder
Stimulates Flow

Because of the labor shortage on dairy farms, many dairymen are looking to a new, faster method of milking. An improved system is described by Dr. George E. Taylor, extension dairyman at Rutgers U. The important steps, he says, are these:

1. Start milking at approximately the same time night and morning.
2. Have all equipment in readiness for use before starting to milk.
3. Properly prepare each cow just prior to milking by washing and massaging the udder with chlorinated water heated to 110 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit.
4. Remove a few streams of milk from each quarter into a strip cup just before putting the machine on each cow.
5. Examine and massage each quarter just before milking is completed, pulling downward on the teat cups at the same time.

"Preparing each cow properly for milking makes for cleaner milk and a more pliable udder and stimulates the cow to give down her milk more promptly," Dr. Taylor says. Drawing a few streams of milk into the strip cup is equally stimulating to let-down of milk. It discards a little milk that is low in fat and high in bacteria and detects gargety milk at its source. Many dairymen find that hand stripping is no longer necessary.

"Young cows and first calf heifers respond and adjust themselves more readily to the improved milking method than older cows. Even older animals will become accustomed to faster milking, but it may require a little more time and careful handling."

Patch of Culinary Herbs Helps Fill Spice Needs

If you are planting culinary herbs for the first time, start with a few varieties. Select such old-time favorites as dill, sage, parsley, sweet marjoram, chives, and caraway that can pinch-hit for some of the seasoners now cut off because of shipping conditions.

Plant only what you can use to good advantage. Garden space is at a premium this year and seeds—even of herbs—are none too plentiful. Flavors and odors of most culinary herbs are highly concentrated, and only a very small amount is needed to season a quantity of food. Overplanting means a waste of time and energy as well as a waste of soil and seed.

Most herbs will do well on any rich, well-drained garden soil. All annual herbs and most of the biennials and perennials are grown from seed, but the mints, pennyroyal, tarragon and chives are propagated by cuttings or by division.

Homemade Egg Cases

To convert a citrus fruit box to an egg case, nail a 1/2-inch strip of board to the end boards and the divider, to make the box deep enough to hold the standard 30 dozen eggs. A 1/2-inch strip along each side also helps to make the box safe to use. Homemade boxes of half-inch lumber will last for years, if the farmer collects the empty ones each time he delivers eggs locally.

Million Farm Boys in Service

About one million farm workers have been inducted into the armed forces since 1940 when the selective service law became effective, according to War Food administration figures. During the past year approximately 250,000 were inducted from agriculture. In addition to the loss of these men, many others have left farms for various reasons and several million have withdrawn from agriculture without changing their residence.

Let's Face Facts

Congress Must Provide
Method of Bargaining
Over National Income
By BARROW LYONS
WNU Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.

During the war a revolutionary idea has possessed the American people. It is that we can have an economy of abundance, if we have intelligence enough to organize our economy so that it will produce a national income of about 150 billion dollars a year.

Barrow Lyons appeared in the programs of all of the important farmer organizations and in the resolutions of most labor conventions. Organizations of manufacturers have accepted responsibility for operating industry at a level to produce something like this income.

How revolutionary the idea may turn out to be can be gathered from one glance at the figures for national income over a period of years. Before the present war the highest national income occurred in 1929, when the figure climbed to 86 billion dollars.

But in 1941 national income mounted to 97 billion; and in 1942, under the stinging lash of Japanese aggression, we threw ourselves into production effort which lifted income to 122 billion. Last year we achieved 148 billion—53 per cent greater than in 1929 and more than double the volume in World War I.

The fact that we can produce goods and services in quantities never before dreamed has been fixed in our minds so that it never can be forgotten. With the natural resources at hand to produce in abundance, and the will to work, why can we not produce always all that we need to enjoy life to the fullest? That is a question everyone is asking.

In fact, there is general belief that perhaps we can do so. This soon will appear in the platforms of both major political parties. In all probability, Republicans and Democrats will promise an economy of abundance, if their candidates are elected.

But there are many sober men who point to the tremendous borrowing that has supported our war activity, and who declare that we cannot continue to operate on so high a level unless we continue to borrow just as heavily as we are now borrowing, or continue to tax as heavily, or do both.

One can predict without hesitation that if borrowing or taxing continues at present rates after the war, that there will be an outcry such as we seldom have heard.

One can as surely predict that if we do not continue to borrow and tax on a huge scale, production and national income will decline. And unless there are mighty powerful checks on price increases, influences now at work will bring about inflation that will devastate the purchasing power of everyone.

We had a hint of what labor's reaction is likely to be, when the navy department threatened to cut back production in the Brewster airplane plants.

It is clear that if millions of men are without jobs and lose their purchasing power, that the demand for farm products will fall away. In 1932 net income to persons on farms from farming operations dropped to 2.3 billion dollars, and farm income was only 5 per cent of national income. Last year net farm income was almost seven times as great as in 1932—more than 14 billion dollars—and almost 10 per cent of a national income three times as great as in 1932.

Nothing could be clearer than that farm income and the income of industrial workers are inseparably bound together. Also, that unless there is a strong demand for farm products, their prices, left to the mercy of the sensitive open market, will slump.

To meet this threat, farmers demand that prices of farm products be maintained at parity, thus protecting the purchasing power of the farm dollar—although not insuring farm income, which depends on the volume of goods sold as well as on price.

Parity has become the primary goal of farm leaders—an idea for which they will fight to the last ditch. It is an idea worth fighting for, but it requires extension to include the wages of labor and the profits of industry, if it is to effectively protect national purchasing power.

Yanks on Way to Invasion by Air and Sea

By air and sea the army and navy of the Allied countries join in invasion of French coast. The U. S. paratroopers reflect confidence as they fly over the English channel en route to the invasion of Europe. They were among the first assault troops to land on the continent. More than 4,000 vessels were employed in the initial landings. The landing craft, one of newest types, is shown loaded with American troops about to sail for somewhere in France during the first days of invasion.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE POWER IN SIMPLE LIVING

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 1:8-16, 19, 20.
GOLDEN TEXT—But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's dainties, nor with the wine which he drank.—Daniel 1:8.

"Dare to be a Daniel,
Dare to stand alone
Dare to have a purpose firm,
Dare to make it known."

Remember how we used to sing it in our Sunday Schools? Possibly some of us still do. The thought of the song assuredly needs to be emphasized anew.

The "times are out of joint." Millions of men and women are meeting new problems and temptations. The standards of life they learned in home and church or Sunday school are not too easy to maintain.

Many are hearing that old excuse for laxity. "Man, you're in the army now," or "Don't forget you're not at home with Mother; you're in the navy." Civilians have similar tempting excuses for careless living, drinking, etc.

Our lesson is a timely one. It presents Daniel as having—
I. A Courageous Purpose (v. 8).

Daniel and his three Hebrew companions were among those carried captive to Babylon. As promising young men, they were selected to receive an education in the wisdom of the land, at the king's expense and in preparation for his service.

The king provided for them the delicacies of his household, thinking thus to keep them strong and in good health. Daniel recognized that many of these things were unclean according to the laws of his people. He also knew that to eat such food and to drink the intoxicants provided for them would be to injure his health and cut down his ability to learn.

It was no easy thing to ask to be excused from what the king had commanded, not to do what everybody else was doing; but Daniel had a courageous purpose "in his heart."

But Daniel had the wisdom to be tactful about his convictions. He went to the king's steward with—
II. A Considered Plan (vv. 9-13).

He had something thoughtfully worked out, a fair proposal which would not endanger the life or standing of the prince who was over them. He proposed a test, and agreed, if it failed, to be subject to further orders. He knew it would not fail.

How often those who have it in their heart to stand true to God against evils, such as beverage alcohol, have no plan in mind, and are only loud and tactless in their condemnation. They make no contribution to the cause. Let us be intelligent and properly prepared.

Daniel's plan put a planned diet and water over against rich foods and wine. It was a case of simple living against "high" living, and the result was a foregone conclusion. Those high in positions of authority in the field of diet tell us again and again that we need simple, well-balanced meals. And science is definite and clear in its condemnation of alcoholic beverages.

Daniel's test period resulted in—
III. A Convincing Proof (vv. 14-16).

Ten days proved the point. Daniel and his friends were fairer and fatter than the others. They were vindicated in their courageous stand for what they believed to be right. Simple living demonstrated its value.

Think what a fine testimony the experience of Daniel must have been in that great group of young princes who were at the king's table. So we also may give good witness for our Lord by our loyalty to right standards. Often it is true that those who outwardly scoff at them are secretly moved to respect those who consistently stand for what they believe.

We need to cultivate in our young people the high courage which will enable them to stand against the constant temptation to partake of alcoholic beverages and to face with intelligent courage the clever propaganda of the liquor sellers.

Note that Daniel and his friends did not lose by their decision—they gained. They reached—
IV. A Commendable Position (vv. 19, 20).

At the end of the training period the king gave these young men examinations. Note that in technical knowledge, "I. Q." and in personal characteristics, Daniel and his comrades were superior to all the rest. That is in accord with the findings of modern science in the matter of the use of liquor.

Is it not almost unbelievable then that the advertising of the liquor interests, suggesting that liquor is a desirable thing from a personal, social, and business viewpoint, is permitted? The facts are all on the other side.

Strange too is the tolerant attitude of our nation and especially of many in the church toward that which is known to be destructive and detrimental. It is an appalling commentary on the extent to which our standards have been lowered or forgotten.

The rotation plan of granting furloughs to men who have been serving overseas, in accordance with needs for troops in specific theatres of war, is now in operation.

Gordon Myles left last week to report for duty at Bremerton, Washington. He expected to visit his uncle, George Myles, at North Powder, Oregon, for a couple of days. Gordon has just completed a month's leave spent here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Myles, after about two years in the New Guinea area.

Teamed together on the same Flying Fortress crew at the Alexandria (La.) Army Air Field are two Michigan aerial gunners who will soon go overseas to do their share in defeating the enemy. They are Sgt. Earl B. Davies, 28, armorer-gunner, of Tawas City and Sgt. Kenneth P. Kettinger, 26, gunner, of Jackson. Sgt. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bing of this city. His wife, the former Miss Jean Robinson, lives at Tawas City. He is a graduate of Tawas City High School and attended Central State College at Mt. Pleasant.

Both Wolverines are members of a Flying Fortress crew trained by the Second Air Force, which has the task of readying four-engine bomber crews for overseas duty. More than 300 officers and enlisted men, veterans of aerial warfare on all theatres of World War II, direct crews through training missions that simulate actual combat.

The new address of William M. Musolf, seaman 2nd class, is T6-S Bks. 611-L. S., Service School, U. S. N. T. S., Great Lakes, Ill. He has been a patient in the Naval Hospital at Newport, Rhode Island, for several months, but has recovered and is now feeling fine.

Pfc. Fitzhugh Prescott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Prescott of this city, was graduated last week from the Army Air Forces Flexible Gunnery School, Laredo, Texas, a member of the AAF Training Command. He is now qualified to take his place as a member of bomber combat crew. Along with his diploma he received a pair of Aerial Gunner's silver wings and a promotion in grade.

Pfc. Prescott arrived in the city Saturday for a visit with relatives here and his parents at the Prescott ranch.

Boatswain Robert Brookbank left Friday to return to Key West, Fla., after spending the past ten days with his wife at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Seifert.

Selective Service Board

BULLETIN

HOW THE NEW DRAFT REGULATIONS AFFECT PULPWOOD CUTTERS

PULPWOOD CUTTING is one of the 35 essential activities listed by the War Manpower Commission and designated by Selective Service Headquarters as a guide for local draft boards in considering applications for occupational deferments.

If you are of draft age and are cutting pulpwood, you may be entitled to deferment providing you are—

1. Regularly engaged in cutting pulpwood and in 26-38 age group or
2. An essential farm worker of draft age, 18 through 37, and cut pulpwood part-time or
3. Now 4-F but cut pulpwood regularly and wish occupational classification of 2-A or 2-B as an essential war worker.

Your local Selective Service Board is the judge of your essentiality, subject to review by your State Selective Service Director, and will treat you squarely. But you should know that the government recognizes pulpwood cutting as an essential activity.
