who hates herself for being meek and shy, is half-time secretary to Prof. Fol-some. She agrees to deliver some invitations for the professor's wife, but while in a fit of tears over the job a handsome stranger comes along and gets her story from her. He destroys the invitations and deposits them in the trash basket. Her fiance's grandfather, Admiral Dun-can, calls on Zorie and fairly forces her to accept a job writing his memoirs of the Spanish-American war. Aboard the steamer, Samoa, en route to Hawaii, she dances with Steve, brother of her flance, Paul Duncan. Steve is the handsome stranger who had destroyed those invita-

CHAPTER VII

Zorie got up and latched the door again. She again tested the latch.

When she was awakened in the morning, by the phone ringing, the door was open again, but no longer banging, because the ship had stopped rolling.

She waited for Amber to answer it, but Amber did not awaken. She was lying on her back. Her face, in the clear, cold light of early morning, was shocking. All color was drained from it, and it was completely real-real pletely relaxed. Her mouth was open a little and she seemed hardly to be breathing. Fascinated by what she saw, Zorie stared. It was not now the face of a ruthless, imperious girl, but that of a girl with no illusions, no faith, no hope.

Zorie snatched up the phone as it started to ring again.

The admiral's voice said heartily: 'Good morning, Zorie, good morning! It's a beautiful day—a fine day for work-hm? What do you say we get to work as soon as you've had a bite of breakfast?"

"All right," Zorie said in her melodiously meek voice.

She found the dining-room, which was almost empty—it still lacked eighteen minutes of eight a. m.—and a steward directed her to a small table against the wall.

The waiters did not seem to have much to do, but it was a long time before one of them came to her table. He looked insolent, and when he asked for her order, he was almost rude.

She presently felt eyes staring at her. She glanced up. At a table two removed from hers sat the man with scrubby red hair and powerful sloping shoulders-the man she had seen last night outside her room lighting a cigarette and, later, at the Palm Room bar with Winthrop

His stare was so absorbed that it did not disconcert him when her eyes met his. They were expressionless. His long dark face was expressionless. He was searching and searching her face. It was not admiration. It was the most intense concerted inquiry.

Zorie felt the heat of embarrassment and resentment flash into her cheeks. She looked away. A waiter brought him his breakfast. Its main dish was a large thick steak. He carved it and ate it with a ravenousness that appalled her. His expression was bestial. He ate swiftly, bolting the steak, gulping his coffee. Now and then he stared at Zorie. He presently lighted a cigarette, got up and left.

Zorie was finishing her cold coffee when Paul came in and sat down in the empty chair across from her. He looked as if he hadn't slept well. He was haggard and gray and his eyes had the blurred look of suffering.

"Darling, look," he said. "I'm terribly sorry about last night, but this whole thing goes much deeper than you may suspect. I admit I'm jealous of Steve. I've always been jealous of him. But it isn't just that. I know that you haven't had much experience with his kind, and I was so afraid he'd turn your head."

He looked at her with a tentative, hopeful smile. She felt sorry for Paul; sorry for his unhappy, clever, analytical mind.

"I know how he affects women. But I should have had enough brains to see then, as I do now, that you're much too wise, much too fine and balanced to let a man like Steve turn your head."

"Yes, Paul," she said gravely. "The reason the admiral is so disgusted with Steve," Paul went on, "is that the United States Navy is a tradition in our family. A Duncan has been a naval officer in every generation for a hundred and thirty years. John Paul Jones Duncan, for whom I was named, was an officer on a Yankee corvette when he first saw the Islands. "There've been Duncans present at every important American naval engagement-1812, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, the last war. My father went down with the Invincible, you know, at Jutland. Grandfather, with all his faults, is a damned fine patriot. And he wanted one of us to carry on the tradition. It's a proud tradition, you see. So Steve went to Annapolis, and Steve, in turn, became a lieutenant, j.g.

Am I boring you, Zorie?" "No," she said hastily. "Of course you aren't boring me." Her eyes had no doubt betrayed her. She was looking inward again. She was seeing Steve, tall and splendid, on the bridge of a battleship. It was where she had intuitively seen him when they stood beside the telephone pole in the rain. "I feel so terribly sorry about it," admiral, and I feel sorry for Steve, too. And for you, Paul."

He was still looking at her uneasily. "You aren't sore at me for blowing off last night?"

"No, darling," she said gently. He seemed greatly relieved. Her tenderness for Paul had returned. She could forgive him for losing his temper last night. She was gratified that he had spent such a bad night. He wasn't, after all, taking her for granted.

As she looked at him, smiling, his brother became unimportant.

And when Paul said softly, "Darling, you know I adore you," she felt her heart lift up and glow with response. And that-and not the reckless physical feeling she had for Steve-was love.

Paul went to look for someone who would play paddle tennis with him, and Zorie went down to B Deck and the admiral's suite.

Steve opened the door. He smiled in a lazy, friendly way, and his eyes, bluer than she had ever seen them, held a twinkle, as if they shared a secret. He wore blue lounging pajamas and he reminded her more than ever of a great, lazy, dangerous cat.

"Get out of here," his grandfather said shrilly. "Stop annoying me."

"Courage, my brave," he said with a conspirator's air. "He's in there. Waiting. And it's going to be pretty tough."

Admiral Duncan, in white ducks and a short-sleeved white shirt with no necktie, was pacing up and down the lanai. He was holding a hand ful of scraps of yellow paper.

"Sit down, my dear, sit down!" he cried. "It's a fine morning for work, isn't it? I've decided to skip my early years and begin with Annapolis. I'll just start with my first years there-hm?"

Her pencil flew across the pinklined pages. He never paused to spell proper names. Punctuation, he ignored.

Steve stretched out in a long bamboo chair and put his chin on his hand and smoked cigarettes. He kept his eyes half-closed.

He said, after a half hour of it 'Admiral, nobody will want to read that junk. If you must write a book, why not the story of the family? Begin it with your recollections of early days in the Islands. That's a story. It's wonderful stuff."

Zorie wanted to say, "Oh, boy! Do I agree with you!" But she prudently said nothing.

"I'll get to that," the admiral said irritably. "You won't have space for it," Steve drawled. Paul came in. He glanced into the lanai, turned and started out. "Wait a minute," Steve halted him. "The admiral has been dictating nothing but hooey. We'd like to have your opinion.' "I don't want anybody's opinion," the admiral barked. "Count me out of this," said Paul.

"Zorie," Steve said, "read some of that last stuff to Paul." While the admiral fidgeted, she read several pages of it.

"Well," Steve said presently, what do you think of it, Paul?" "I have a new slogan," Paul answered. " 'Avoid controversies and you won't wear out so fast.' I've been up on the bridge with the skipper. He thinks we're going to have war with Japan any minute. What's your opinion, Admiral?" "Not for a while," the admiral said. "We have them on the run. Our Far Eastern policy is stiffer than they expected. We've called their bluff. At the proper time, our navy will go out there and blast them off the Pacific-hm?"

Zorie was watching Steve. His expression was dubious. hope," he murmured.

"Kuruso and Admiral Nomura are a pair of beggars," the admiral went on. "They were sent to Wash-trade. They're on their knees because Japan is terrified of our striking power."

Steve was shaking his head. "Japan is playing smart," he said. "She isn't afraid of our striking power. She has plenty of striking power of her own. The popular idea that Japan is a pushover is a mistake. I don't trust Kuruso and Nomura and I'm glad the Hawaiian Station is on battle alert."

"What's your answer to that, Admiral?" Paul asked. His face was sober but Zorie saw the malice in his eyes.

The admiral suddenly glared. "You're trying to distract me from my book!" he said angrily. "I won't have these interruptions! Clear out, both of you!"

Paul sauntered out, but Steve stayed.

"Zorie," he said, "what's your opinion?" "Of war with Japan?" she gasped.

"No. The book." "I'm only an amanuensis," Zorie said promptly. "Well, that's an opinion. Your book stinks, Admiral.'

"Get out of here!" his grand-father said shrilly. "Stop annoying

"Look," Steve said patiently. "You want an interesting book, don't you?" 'I'm going to have an interesting book!" "Why," Steve said gently, "not start with the family background? That's where all autobiographies start. Tell us about the first Duncan-John Paul Jones Duncancoming to the islands in 1824, giving up his commission and landing in Honolulu with eighty-five cents which he ran up into the finest sugar plantation on-" "Everybody knows that story," the admiral angrily interrupted.

"Do you know it, Zorie?" Steve asked. "No," Zorie said meekly. "There you are!" Steve cried.

He resumed his dictation. But it had nothing to do with early days in the Sandwich Islands. It dealt with his pranks at Annapolis.

It was almost noon when Steve, who had been lounging all this time in the long chair and gazing out over the sparkling blue sea, again interrupted.

"Your amanuensis is a wreck, Admiral," he said. "Go out and grab some fresh air, Zorie. I have a feeling that all this fascinating material will keep."

Zorie was relieved and grateful. She didn't want to be in the same room with Steve any longer. She couldn't keep her eyes off him, or her thoughts away from him.

"Take a turn on deck, my dear, and come back after lunch," the admiral ordered.

Zorie crossed the other room and opened the corridor door. A man was bending down close to the door. It was the beefsteak eater-Mr. Lanning's friend. There was a cigarette in his mouth. He flicked the wheel of his lighter and lighted it. Zorie stopped, with the door open, with her hand clutching the knob. There was no question in her mind that this man had been bending down, with his ear to the door, listening.

Her impulse to call Steve was so strong that she whirled about, with her mouth open. But she changed her mind. The man with scrubby red hair and powerful shoulders was Mr. Lanning's friend, and Mr. Lanning was Steve's friend. And she intended to ask Steve no more questions about his friends . . closed the door firmly, walked past the man and went on deck.

She looked about the ship for Paul and found him stretched out in a steamer chair reading a thick book by Anna Freud. She wanted to tell him about the eavesdropper, but Paul was obviously displeased by her interruption. He kept glancing

He was again being inconsiderate. He had evidently forgotten his morning's anguish. Having reassured himself that he had nothing to fear where-Steve was concerned, he had returned her to her niche in his mind-a niche that was doubtless labelled, "Zorie, mine, nothing to worry about." She lunched alone and returned to the admiral's suite. She was disappointed-and glad-that Steve wasn't there. The admiral was down on his hands and knees in the lanai with a large sheet of wrapping paper spread out before him. On it was a crude, elaborate diagram in soft pencil. Steve walked in. Steve wore a soft white shirt without a tie, and flannels. He peered over Zorie's shoulder.

"What is it?" he asked. "The Battle of Manila Bay," his grandfather answered. "What," Steve asked coldly, "was the Battle of Manila Bay?"

"Get out of here!" the admiral

Steve held out his hands imploringly. "Zorie, I ask you! Is this stuff the admiral's been dictating to you pure bilge, or is it pure bilge?" "Zorie!" the admiral cried. "Hasn't he a lot of nerve telling us

DAVID ANOINTED KING

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 16:1-5, 11-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.—I Samuel 16:7.

Outward appearance, by which man judges, is almost always deceptive. God knows the heart and is able to evaluate a man correctly. In calling David, the ruddy shepherd boy, to be king, God cut across the ideas of men, but He was, as always, right. I. A Man from God's Storehouse

(v. 1)-"I have provided."

God's great storehouses are full of blessings, material and spirit-ual, but He also has a great and constantly replenished reserve of men and women from which He calls and sends them forth. The thing we must guard against is the setting of hindrances in His holy way, either in our own lives or in the lives of others.

A man power shortage is very serious, for it simply cuts off the stream of production without which action becomes impossible. There should never be any shortage of man power in the Lord's work, and there would never be any if all His creation were willingly subject to Him.

God was ready to set aside Saul, and He had David ready. Samuel the prophet was still grieving over Saul's failure. In a sense that feeling for Saul was most commendable, but it could not go on.

When men, even of our own families or circle of friends, persist in rebellion against the Lord, we must not let our grief hold us back, but move on with the man of God's

II. A Man Who Had to Be Sought vv. 2-5)-"Send and fetch him." Usually those who are quick to offer themselves for an important place are not the ones for the place. And those who are sitting around doing nothing but waiting for some ones to choose. "Let the office seek the man" is the highst ground, even in politics; surely it must be the proper proce-honor to come to them, are not the dure in spiritual activity. David might well have wanted to be at the place of sacrifice and the feast that day, but since all his family were there, and someone had to care for the sheep, he did it. A man like that, hard at his work, is well worth seeking when something important needs to be done. The interesting story of Samuel's effort to find one among Jesse's seven sons (vv. 6-10) is well worth reading. Samuel still had the idea that a king must be prepossessing and able to thrill men by his appearance. He should have learned better from his experience with God put him right (v. 7), and we do well to renew our thinking on that point. The world is in a place where many leaders must be chosen in the months and years just ahead. Will we be eager and willing to have God lead us in our choice? Or will we be swayed by personal interests or political expe-

III. A Man of Spiritaality (vv. 11-13)-"The Spirit of the Lord came upon David." The Holy Spirit, ever active in all periods of Bible history, became the abiding presence in the believer's heart after Pentecost, but during the Old Testament period He came on chosen individuals for a particular work. As David was anointed king the Spirit came upon him for that service. In spite of his failings (when he forgot the Lord) David was throughout his reign a spiritually-minded man who wanted God's will and His glory to be uppermost. God never calls a man without enabling him for his task, and the chief and indispensable enabling is that of the Holy Spirit's power. Like David, we may enter upon a Godappointed responsibility without fear or question, simply trusting the Holy Spirit to take, transform, empower, and use us for God's

IV. A Man Willing to Serve (vv. 14-18).

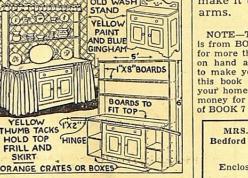

Upon Saul there came tremendous moods of despondency. These were "from the Lord" (v. 14) in the sense that God permitted His disobedient and rejected servant to suffer the result of his self-will and failure. How awful it is for anyone to be out of the will of God and conscious of His disapproval.

To help Saul in those dark hours David, the sweet singer of Israel, was willing to serve with his voice and his harp. How many thousands of times David has served all the generations since with his psalms. He was a man of gifts, gladly given for the Lord and for others.

Bear in mind that while David was not yet publicly crowned, he was already anointed to be king, Yet he was ready to serve the one whose place he was to take even in his hours of dejection and hateful ill-will.

It's Quite Simple to Expand That Old Wash Stand to Fit Large Space

By Ruth Wyeth Spears

IT IS easy enough to make a small serving table out of an old wash stand but, when there is a large wall space crying for an imposing piece of furniture and nothing but a small wash stand on hand, the problem is something else again. Here you see the solution achieved with odds and ends of lumber, a pair of wooden boxes, a little paint and some stand at the center of it all.

The lower sketch shows how the carpenter work was done. Note stand to cover the irregular line, paper. also the hinged arms so that the skirt may open out, and the piece had written: "Bless the soldier across the top of the stand to who wears these socks.'

of their height. "Look at me," said Tom. "I'm six feet two and a half in my stockinged feet."

"All right," put in Dick. "I'm six feet five and three-quarters with my hat on."

"And I can beat the lot of you," added Harry. "I'm seven feet eight—with my umbrella up."

In Old England

A country doctor on his rounds nar-rowly escaped running over a Home Guard writhing in apparent agony in the middle of the road. Stopping his car he got out, bent over the man, and asked, "What's the matter? Where's the pain?"

"There isn't any pain," the man replied. "This road is supposed to be a deep river, and I can only swim on my back."

Going Strong

"And how are you getting on at school, Jimmy?" "Oh, fine! I'm learning words

Bakers' Yeast

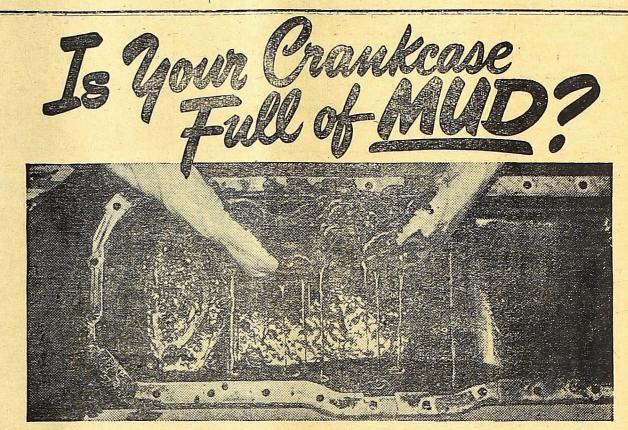

Backbone of the yeast industry is bakers' yeast, generally grown in molasses. More than 248,000,000 pounds will be made in 1944, mostly for civilians. This material, containing some 70 per cent moisture, sold m bulk for about 13 cents per pound in 1939. The vitamin content of bakers' yeast is low, only about one-third that of bayers! third that of brewers' yeast, but it is possible by changing the nutrient to produce a high-vitamin bakers'

Poultry Ration

Experimental work has shown that poultry require somewhat less phosphorus and calcium in their feed when vitamin D is amply supplied than when minimum amounts feed by adding extra amounts of this are used. This means that vitamin D can, in part, compensate for a lowered phosphorus content in the vitamin. However, this does not imply that by adding plenty of vitamin D the phosphorus and calcium content of feeds can be disregarded.

A few simple, sturdy garden tools, well cared for, are all that most gardeners require to do good work. Tools used for hand preparation of the soil are a square-nosed spade or spading fork and a steel-tcothed rake. These and other metal tools, such as wheel hoe, pruning shears and knife, lawn mower, and wheel-barrow, should be cleaned of dirt, and the working parts wiped with an oily rag after use. Tools should be kept in a dry place, such as a ga-

The Men Doing Our Fighting are Doing a Lot of Thinking

They are wondering what will happen when they return. Will there be jobs and opportunities to get ahead?

Michigan, under Republican leadership, already has the answer to that question.

The present Republican administration has created the office of Veterans' Affairs to help and advise veterans. Large appropriations have already been made to aid veterans in emergencies and for an adult education program. Michigan's rehabilitation arrangements are unequalled by any other state in the union.

At a recent state convention, the American Legion men who know what is being accomplished have gone on record as follows:

"Be it resolved that the American Legion in Convention assembled at Grand Rapids, Michigan, August 11, 1944, go on record as commending the Governor and members of the 1944 Michigan State Legislature for their sincere interest in the returning veterans and the comprehensive program presented which includes the creation of the Office of Veterans' Affairs to provide veterans with information, advice, direction and assistance through coordination of programs and services in the fields of education, health, vocational guidance and placement, together with mental care and economic security; to also establish community counseling centers for referral to all Service Agencies."

PRESIDENT AND WILLKIE Only insiders know it, but after the President held his press conference denying he had sent a letter to Wendell Willkie, Judge Sam Rosenman and Steve Early rushed up to his desk and remonstrated that he had made a bad mistake. They were afraid FDR had rebuffed the man who had gone down the line for him 100 per cent on taxes, foreign policy and the war.

"They caught me a little unprepared on that one," the President admitted ruefully. "However, I tried to tell them it was a personal question. I didn't want to embarrass Willkie by letting people think he and I had a political deal."

Later, the President repeated to some of his cabinet that he hadn't expected the question at his news conference. Explaining that he wanted to talk to Willkie about postwar peace plans and foreign policy, not politics, he indicated that he would go ahead with his plans for the talk regardless of what had hap-

The President was quite irked that news about his letter to the former Presidential candidate had leaked out. Only a few people knew the letter existed. The carbon copy was not filed with his regular cor-respondence, and the first draft of the letter had been written in his own handwriting for Grace Tully, his secretary, to copy.

Despite this, Willkie began to get queries about the letter two weeks after he received it. The news men making the inquiries cited White House sources, said they had the tip from Presidential secretaries. Willkie made no comment, never admitted receiving the letter, but he got the impression that the White House wanted the story out.

Therefore, you could have knocked him over with a feather when the President replied to news men last week that he didn't know anything about writing Willkie a let-

Immediately after the White House denial appeared in the press, Willkie's phone began buzzing with Republican friends warning him that Roosevelt would always kick him in the teeth. They urged him to come out for Dewey.

ARMY DEMOBILIZATION PLAN Here is the inside story on White House-war department plans for demobilizing part of the army after the defeat of Germany. The war department is planning to release about 2,000,000 men immediately ifter a German armistice. Under this plan, the army will set up a point system for every man in the service, and men with sufficient points will be retired. Here is now the points will be calculated: 1. For each month in the service, every man will receive one

2. Each month overseas will count an additional point. 3. For each battle hone man will receive four points. 4. The congressional medal of honor or legion of merit will count four additional points. 5. Each bronze star denoting service in battle will count four additional points. 6. For every child, a soldier will receive eight points.

7. Married men without children will also receive eight extra points.

There are still several important gaps in this program which the army and the White House have not yet filled in. There still is no special credit for age. However, it is al-ready decided that, because the army will have a greater need for air men in the Pacific, a separate system will be set up for discharging air corps veterans. Of course, the basic point which everybody wants to know is: "How many points has not yet been determined. It has been determined, however, that at the end of the Atlantic war. the navy does not plan to release any of its men.

will a man need to get out?" That

It can also be revealed that President Roosevelt is anxious to discharge hardship cases first.

When the President discussed this plan recently with several senators, they asked him how he planned to handle the problem of policing Germany and other occupied enemy territory after the armistice. He replied that he hoped to do so by using men who have learned to like the army, plus professional soldiers who were in the army before the selective service program got under way. He also plans to use men who have had no overseas experience and

Fighting Ships Being Built on Great Lakes

Fighting ships and ocean cargo | shallow water are a consideration. vessels are going to war by way of Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, and on down the Father of Waters to New long, built on the Great Lakes, are reaching salt water by way of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. Cities and villages in the heart of the Midwest are getting glimpses of frigates - 306-foot submarine hunters for the American and British navies -and cargo vessels 3381/2 feet long, but of light draft, for use in shallow waters.

The ships are built at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wisc.; on Lake Superior, Milwaukee, and Sturgeon Bay, Wis.; on Lake Michigan; and Lorain and Cleveland, Ohio; on Lake Erie, in yards under the jurisdiction of the U.S. maritime commission.

Imperative need for these vessels appeared in 1943. Frigates, fast and maneuverable, were needed for convoy duty. These cargo vessels, smaller than the maritime commission's standard C1 type, are desired by the navy particularly for island operations where narrow ports and Shipyards along the coast lines were operating at full capacity building large vessels. The yards Orleans. Vessels more than 300 feet on the Great Lakes appeared to be the logical choice for construction of the building facilities, but the completed vessels could not get to sea by the usual route through the eastern lakes into the St. Lawrence river. The canals around the rapids in the upper St. Lawrence would only accommodate ships up to 259 feet in length. Another way had to be found to get these ships to salt water. The possibility of taking the ships down the Illinois and Mississippi that Chicago's bridges over the Michigan with the Illinois river, to avoid scraping bottom.

The canal problem was solved by and shipping enough ballast to get under the bridges. The masts removed at Chicago are replaced at New Orleans.

The sterns of the frigates had to be raised for the long river trip. Airthese new type vessels without dis- filled steel drums, 9 feet in diameter ruption to the commission's over- and 20 feet long, did the trick. The all program. The Lake yards had rear part of the ship was practically lifted out of the water by four pontoons, a pair welded and bolted on either side.

The vessels proceed through the Drainage canal to Lockport under their own power. Here the pontoons are installed.

After the pontoons are attached the vessels are taken in tow by pusher-type vessels, much used on the Illinois - Mississippi waterway rivers was explored. It was found and are pushed through the 600-foot lock and lowered 41 feet into the Drainage canal, that connected Lake Des Plaines river and move on down into the Illinois river. Here were too low and that the normal begins the trip across the middle of nine-foot channel in the rivers was Illinois and to the Mississippi just not sufficiently deep for the sterns above St. Louis, and on to the sea. At New Orleans the pontoons are removed and shipped back to Lockremoving the masts on the frigates | port for another trip.

Pawnbrokers Find War Brings Business Boom

PORTLAND, ORE. - Wartime salaries and increased employment haven't cut down business in pawnshops. Most of them reported a 50 per cent increase over the pre-war period, with people continuing to pawn everything from luggage to glass eyes. Customers part with jewelry first, then clothing.

Wartime Protein Substitutes Tested

Corn Gluten Mash With Linseed Meal Effective

Using not more than four pounds of the usual protein feeds in 100 of chick starter, compared with 12 to 16 or more before the war, University of Wisconsin specialists have devised rations giving results comparable to those of prewar times.

The basic wartime ration, which worked tolerably well, proved somewhat deficient in vitamins. It included: ground yellow corn, 45 lbs.; wheat bran, 15 lbs.; wheat middlings, 15 lbs.; alfalfa leaf meal, 5 lbs.; meat scrap, 4 lbs.; soybean oilmeal, 16 lbs.; limestone grit, 1.5 lbs., granite grit, 1.5 lbs.; iodized salt, 0.5 lb.; sardine oil, 0.5 lb.; and manganese sulfate, 0.8 lb.

When the protein feeds were three pounds of a special fish meal, with vitamin content preserved, and 16 of soybean oilmeal, the results were as good as with prewar protein combinations.

The basis ration was improved by using, instead of sardine oil, from 1 to 2 per cent commercial vitamin D powder of a kind which contains whey solubles and fish liver solids, and which therefore carries B vitamins as well as vitamin D.

Due to soybean oilmeal, it was found that part of the soybean oilmeal can be satisfactorily replaced by corn gluten meal and linseed meal, although a chick ration should not contain more than 5 per cent

One of the best protein feed combinations employing "substitutes for the substitute" proved to be meat scrap, 4; soybean oilmeal, 6; linseed meal, 5; corn gluten meal, 5.

Although a chick starter carrying 20 parts of protein feed in 100 is satisfactory where pullets are to be raised for layers, there is an advantage in using more protein where fast growth is highly important. In producing broilers it is well to use 4 parts of meat scrap and 20 of soybean oilmeal, instead of 4 and 16.

Agriculture In the News

Bees' Importance

More than 10,000 years ago man was using beeswax in mummification and the coffins in which the embalmed bodies were placed were made airtight by means of beeswax. Before the war the main use for beeswax was in cosmetics - lipsticks, cold cream and rouge. Now its number one use is for water-proofing and protecting shells, belts, coils and machinery, as well as airplanes.

Today as 10,000 years ago the bee very essential use, the pollinizing of flowers to aid in the increased production of fruit and many forage crops. While always recognized, the value of honey as a sugar substitute, has increased materially during the war.

Beeswax has played another important part in commerce, it has been employed in the making of artificial flowers and other articles of art. Its present war uses, however, have discouraged further development along this line.

Hog Cholera Danger With the large number of pigs now on farms increasing the opportunity for hog cholera and other infections to spread, farmers in the important pork - producing middle - western states are immunizing their animals against cholera at an earlier age than in the past, according to U.S. department of agriculture reports. A small proportion are reported to have feceived treatment before weaning, but veterinarians recommend about two weeks after weaning for the best and longest lasting results. Immunization of pigs at about ten weeks is expected to result in smaller losses from hog cholera, as well as less danger of checking growth by means of the treatment when they are older, and especially while being fattened for mar-

Laying hens now average 142 eggs annually, or twice as many as they laid 20 years ago.

Coccidiosis in Lambs Coccidiosis in lambs may be successfully prevented by the addition of ground crude sulphur to their feed in proportions ranging from 0.5 to 1.5 per cent of the ration, the U. S. department of agriculture has determined by experiments in cooperation with large feeding establishments. Coccidiosis is a parasitic condition that often has serious if not fatal consequences. It is commonly acquired from infected pastures or feedlots.

A NY time you crawl out on the end of a limb, you've got to be ready for the limb to crack. We moved into that position recently when we attempted to name an alltime National league outfield.

In the wake of this nomination we "heard the shots fired around the world," includ-ing the South Pacific and the European front. Our nominations-were Fred Clarke of the Pirates, Terry Moore of the Cardinals, Mel Ott of the Giants and Jimmy Sheckard of the Dodgers and the

Cubs

Then the fusillade opened — "What about Zach Wheat of the Dodgers?"

"What about Ross Young of the Gi-ants?" "What about Stan Musial of the Cardinals?" There were others-George Burns of the Giants, Mike Donlin of the Giants, Wildfire Schulte of the Cubs, Circus Solly Hofman of the same team, Roush of Cincinnati, Klein of Philadelphia, not forgetting Paul Waner of Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, Medwick of the Cardinals, Dodgers and Giants.

These were among the leading counter-attacks thrown at our top selections, covering only the last 40 years. That's as far back as we feel like walking, or looking.

In spite of the heavy barrage thrown in our direction, we still stick with our original pick, admitting that Mike Donlin, Zach Wheat, Paul Waner and Pep Young would be serious challengers.

Here is our testimony: Fred Clarke and Jimmy Sheckard, oldtimers, are better than the modern crowd knows. Far better. Terry Moore is the best defensive outfielder the National league ever looked at, a ball player with a fiery spirit who was also a strong man on the offensive side, a normal .300 hitter.

I don't have to tell you any more about Mel Ott, the lone National leaguer who could match the best of the A. L. in power. Leave off Mel Ott and you slip in a machine gun for a howitzer or a navy 16-incher

American League Better

I can name you two sets of American league outfielders who for total value outclass the pick of the Na-

Here they are: No. 1-Cobb, Ruth, Speaker. No. 2-Joe Jackson, Di-Maggio, Ted Williams.

This second American league outfield is much better than any top outfield we can pick from the National. There can't be any argument over Cobb, Speaker and Ruth, or Ruth, Cobb and Speaker. And they have only a brief nod over Jackson, DiMaggio and Williams, especially on the run-making side.

I don't believe my fervid assault-ers can pick a National league outfield as good as the second American league trio I have named. Those who think they can would make poor scouts.

Bill Dickey will tell you that Ted Williams was the greatest hitter he ever saw and Bill played with Ruth, Gehrig and DiMaggio. DiMaggio was something more than a great hitter. Joe was a great ball player, about 50-50 with Tris Speaker on de-

Into Deeper Trouble

Here is a race where we ran poor last. A marine sergeant sent us this problem from somewhere in the Pacific, a problem starting an uproar with several hundred dollars bet:

man up took a swing at the third strike. He missed the strike but the ball struck his shoulder, bounded away, and he ran to first.

It seems that with two out the next

The marine sergeant claimed he was out. The infantry didn't think

I agreed with the infantry. Trusting foolishly to memory and intuition I figured he must be safe. I wrote the sergeant to this effect. Now, Ford Frick, president of the National league, writes me that I was wrong.

"The batter was out," he says. "If on a third strike the ball touches any part of the batter, he is out automatically.

I still can't understand why, as on a third strike the batter can run on a ball thrown into the dirt or on a wild pitch. I only hope the marine sergeant doesn't sue me and I can only promise that on the next matter of rules I will consult Ford Frick before attempting to make any decision.

Golf for Cripples

The most remarkable golfer I recall was one who had both arms cut off just at the two shoulders. He swung the club head with the shaft of his club held between the chin and neck. I've forgotten his name but he used to play around 100.

There have also been cases of men totally blind playing at least fairly well with caddies to show them the right line and estimate the distance for the next shot. One blind Canadian soldier broke a hundred

Set Up 'Ye Old Gun Shoppe'

In "Ye Old Gun Shoppe," part of an ordnance unit attached to the 32nd division in New Guinea, all size small arms are repaired by trained ordnance men. The unit does light and medium maintenance work, repairing everything from large artillery pieces to the smallest watches. This is one of the first units to be set up as the troops move ahead.

Captured 700 Nazi Prisoners

Sergt. Rodney Cloutman, 26, of Athol, Mass., (left) singlehandedly captured 400 Nazi prisoners, outdoing the famed Sergeant York. Like York, he was armed only with a rifle. Capt. J. R. Willingham, Tuscaloosa, Ala., (right) captured 300 Germans by circling overhead in plane and herding them to the Allied armored columns who took charge. Due to this exploit, he has been called the "flying cowboy" of the American Air forces. The German prisoners stated that they were tired of fighting and in addition were afraid of being fired upon.

Funeral of 'The Powerful One'

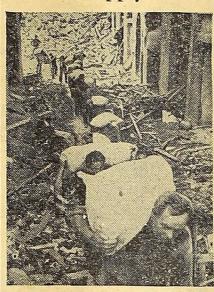

Killed by mortar fire in the town square of Florence shortly after the Allies entered the city, the body of "Il Potente" (The Powerful One), leader of the Arno division of the Garibaldi patriots, is being borne through the city while townspeople salute from the sidewalks. Entry of Allies was signal for outbreak against Fascists.

Collaborationist

A French girl, resident of Laval, France, who allegedly collaborated with the Nazis when they controlled the town, is paraded about the streets marked with a swastika, after the liberation of the village by American troops.

Flour Supply Line

Italian patriots form a supply line to carry flour across the blasted Ponte Vecchio to where it was badly needed on the other side of the river. The Germans blew up the historic bridge to prevent its use by the advancing Allies.

Captured Weapons

Chinese soldiers who captured Tapa, one of the Jap strong points near Lungling on the Burma road, look over a mass of weapons and supplies abandoned by the Japs as they fled to the hills before the advancing Chinese in Salween river campaign. Chinese soldiers have put these arms to good use.

Fashions With the New Fall Look

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

EAVE it to the college girl and her teen-age, keen-age sister to sense new fashion trends almost before they really happen. The college girl this year discovers more than anything else that the fashion atmosphere is so heavily charged with a spirit of change that one has to think and to plan from an entirely different viewpoint.

There's a change taking place that is almost revolutionary from the carefree "sloppy Joe" manner of dress which was quite the thing last year but is quite taboo this fall. There's a new poise, a new dignity, a new feeling of culture and refinement and feminine charm about campus and classroom clothes this campus and classroom clothes this year. Perhaps it is the standard set by the neat and snappy costumes of our women in service that has turned the tide. Whatever the reason for this definite change in back-to-school fashion trends, it's up to the style-alert college girl to assemble style-alert college girl to assemble her wardrobe with an eye to good clothes, simple in line, dependable in quality and tuned to a life of useful, helpful activities as well as classroom study.

Ready for all you "sweater girls" are the neatest, smartest cardigans and long-waist slipovers ever. The colors are lush and you can get the ing a pullover of one bright hue topped with a cardigan of another. Then too, there is a new sweater out that interknits a full-blown rose patterning up and down the front

Your coat this year will be a real show-piece in the parade of college fashions, not alone because it will take on generous lines with special attention given to back fullness and to roomy sleeves and a general air of youthfulness, but it will make its debut this season in a veritable | your first fall chapeau. blaze of color. The coat pictured overcoat" look that keys right up to come-what-may in weather.

Slim-fitted classic black gowns are getting an enthusiastic response from the college girl this season, for "date" and what's going on for "date" and what's going on socially in campus environs. This swing to sleek sophisticated clothes is reported from all college shops and departments. The dress above in the illustration, by Claire McCardell, who so notably and successfully caters to college girl tastes, is typically an exponent of modernism. typically an exponent of modernism, that makes sophisticated simplicity its theme. It is of black jersey, has a long-torso middy-like overblouse, and is ever so swank for dress-up occasion.

The far-sighted freshman to the left knows that color holds despotic sway in the fashion field today. So she sees to it that her skirt-andshirt twosome makes a wild splurge of color. For this reason she tops a gay plaid skirt with a dashing red gabardine shirt.

This neat and sleek 1944 look which college girls will be dramatizing to the limit during the coming months calls among other demands for the tidying up of their hairdos. Which is why those cunning color-bright Dache nets so admired this summer will be making news on the campus this fall. Each most delectable contrasts by wear- girl in the trio pictured is, as you no doubt have observed, wearing a net on her sleek-coiffed head.

The girl to the left wins approval on and off the campus with her deep chignon enmeshed in a Chinese red net and large red grosgrain bowwhich tunes to the red of her gabardine shirt. The sophisticate in black holds high her sleek head enmeshed in a white net. Take a tip from the college girl wearing the smart coat and enmesh your hair in a bright Chinese green net when you wear

Belted-In Gray Coat

This coat is interesting in that it has the new short length, is belted in after the manner of the officer's coat and is carried out in tones of gray. It is a favorite with the college set. Gray this year is one of the leading colors and coats of gray cloth trimmed in gray fur are outstanding in the fashion picture. The fur that lends enhancement to this stunning model is fine lamb processed in a most attractive ombre effect. For a casual coat that will carry distinction on the campus and wherever it goes, this coat will prove an ideal choice.

Lovely Fabrics for Fall Wedding Gowns

The autumn bride is assured her dreams will come true in regard to the traditional beauty of her wedding gown. This season brides will be gowned picturesquely in heirloom satin or rich damask, or in handsome faille or tissue taffeta. There is a new and lovely material called tissue satin, and there is the stately stand-alone bengaline. Many of the new wedding gowns are being shown in pastel shades. There are portrait types that revive the Renaissance elegance of seed-pearl embroidered panels. Much attention is given to flattering necklines. The sweetheart type outlined with pearls is charming. The narrow high band which gives such distinction to Chinese dresses is a feature of some of this year's bridal gowns.

Indian Jewelry in Fashion

Native craft Indian jewelry has a charm all its own which women of today recognize to the extent that they are wearing with pride lovely bracelets, earrings and fingerrings of silver set in turquoise. The very wide bracelet is a favorite.

Glittering Evening Wraps

There will be a big display of beautiful evening wraps at opera and social events this winter. A very charming type is the jacket that is short and boxy, made of warm woolen. It will be enhanced with bead and sequin embroidery in allover spaced designs, such as diamond shapes, dots or stripes.
