Agricultural Exhibits, 4-H Club Show and Entertainment

Officials of the Iosco County Fair announced today that plans for the two-day event which is to be held Tuesday and Wednesday, October 3 and 4, at Hale are now completed.

President of the association, Mrs. T. G. Scofield, said today, "Now, if our Victory Garden friends, home makers and farmer friends show up Tuesday forenoon with their exhibits the two days are sure to be Successful." Secretary H. F. Black of Renctownship, then added, "We have our bid for good weather, and if the committee rationing out this early October weather doesn't change its Miss Linda Libka, daughter of Louis Libka of this cit., is attending cessful." Then Mrs. Mable Scarlett, treasurer of the association, of Grant township, added "Our premium list, which is divided into thirteen lucky departments, offers the exhibitors $782.30 in premium money, and that is sure to attract sufficient exhibitors to earmark this 1944 fair as one of success."

Of course comments about an agricultural fair wouldn't be complete without a word from County Agent Finley, who said, "Yes, those conclusions are all correct, but that horse pulling contest which is to be great-grandchildren."

MR. WINKLE THEODORE GOES TO WAR PRATT

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-fouryear-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates a repair shop in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in 1-A. He breaks the bad news to his domineering wife, Amy, who now hates to part with him. Mr. Winkle is sent to Camp Squibb, a thousand miles from home, where he meets Mr. Tinker, a man of his own age who wants to avenge a brother killed at Midway. After graduating from Motor Mechanics school, Mr. Winkle goes home on a furlough. Amy hardly knows him, and his dog, Penelope, barks at him furiously. A short time after returning to camp both Mr. Winkle and Mr. Tinker are en route for a point of embarkation.

CHAPTER X

Between Mr. Tinker and the irreducible fact that they were actually off to one of the various wars going on, Mr. Winkle didn't sleep much that first night. He lay there precariously on the edge of the berth trying to adjust himself to the situation and regretting a little that he had not taken the chance of getting out of the Army when he had the opportunity.

This was, as the saying went, it. This was, as the saying went, it.

This was what he had trained for.

He was going to where battles were being fought. He was going to help fight them. The realization struck him so forcibly that he nearly fell out of the berth, especially when Mr. Tinker gave him an extra hard er were a team, it having been found that Mr. Tinker was good at the heavier work, while he supplied a little more skill at figuring it out.

Then, again, he endeavored to look on the bright side of it.

He couldn't overlook the drama of it, either. Here they were, several hundred men in a special train, rushing to an unknown destination to save the nation. He knew that crack streamliners were sidetracked for them. Everything made way for them. Even if you were hurrying to risk your life, that gave you a sense of importance.

He fell asleep on this thought, dreaming that he was sinking in wide waters and that he grasped at a tiny straw to save himself.

Mr. Winkle expected to marched right on a ship as soon as they reached their embarkation port two days later. But there seemed to be no such hurry as that which had brought them here.

They were given physical examinations, their equipment was inspected, and orders were issued to keep their canteens filled to the mouth.

Thus readied, they were assembled one morning and marched out through an entrance in the brick wall. They made their way along a road at the side of the harbor, in which many ships, all painted an indifferent gray, were moored. Mr. Winkle had never seen a real ship size. He wondered which would be theirs.

They were called to a halt beside the high wall of one of the larger vessels.

Orders were shouted. To his amazement and relief, they started marching back again to the staging area. This had been merely prac-

The man next to him said, "That was a close one."

Each day after that they went through the same process. The third time it was repeated there were complaints.

Even Mr. Winkle asked these questions and came not to believe in any of the marches to the ship. He took it for granted that each time he arrayed himself in his full equip- New Guinea.

ment and sweated to the pier that he would turn right around again and come back. The day they didn't stop, but kept right on marching, up the gangplank and on to the ship, he felt betrayed, cheated and fooled. To Mr. Tinker at his side he observed, "Well, I guess we've burned our gangplanks behind us."

Mr. Tinker stared at him, scowling to get his meaning. Though he didn't know the true quotation, he appeared to find something wrong with Mr. Winkle's version, or at least with the way he spoke.

"What's the matter, Pop?" he asked. "You seasick already?"

More men poured on to the ship, and still more marched along the pier toward her. Mr. Winkle, Mr. Tinker and ten others were shown below to their private stateroom. Instead of bunks, a large cabin had been stripped of its beds and other luxurious furnishings and canvas hammocks slung in tiers of three from a wooden framework.

Mr. Winkle drew one of the top hammocks, so close to the ceiling that it made him feel like a fly sticking there. They stowed their gear and investigated the quarters. One of the men opened a door and stood, frozen in his tracks.

"Come here," he said in an awed voice, "and see if you see what I'm looking at."

They crowded around him, peering over his shoulders, and saw a gleaming bathroom. "Holy cow!" another man cried.

'Ain't our suite sweet?' The ship would be totally blacked out at night, which meant no smoking on deck. No cigarette butt or scrap of paper was to be thrown overboard lest it leave a trail which could be fol-

In case the ship was hit and had to be abandoned, they were to slide down landing nets which would be lowered, and not jump overboard.

If a man fell overboard, the ship could not risk stopping to pick him

These instructions caused no evident alarm. Normally, Mr. Winkle should have had an acute attack of imagination right then and there. But it didn't come, as it hadn't lately in the learning that a great and solicitous mother, the Army, looked after his every interest. All he had to do was to trust it, obey orders, and, most important of all, keep his mouth shut.

The ship sailed that night while some of them were asleep and some of them were still adjusting their bodies to the hammocks. Mr. Winkle, listening, heard the deep throb of the engines. He put his hand against the ceiling and felt a thrumming there. The smell of oil became stronger. A low, sleepy murmuring came from other men. A forward movement became perceptible.

That was all. No one spoke.

If the others had Amys of their own to think about-and he knew a few of them had-they kept their houghts, as he did, to themselves.

In the morning they were at sea. Their own and dozens of other ships scratched a glassy mirror with continual, untired zigzags. The convoy stretched into the distance as far as the eye could see. At its outer edges they could make out destroyers and other warcraft, which kept up a worried pacing back and forth, in and out, and sometimes around in wide sweeps and circles.

It was heartening to see them and their fellow troopships. Though they knew that death was possible any instant from the sky or from beneath the water, it seemed just as impossible that anything could touch Soldiers were everywhere on the ship, the last inch of space being crowded with them. If they had little privacy before, they had none now. It was barely possible to step anywhere without walking on somebody, or putting your foot into the middle of a crap game.

Somehow they managed to move around, for the most part good-naturedly. Mr. Winkle marveled at what he and other men had been conditioned to stand. He began to have a respect for the extent that man would let himself be abused for the opportunity of traveling a long way to get killed. Despite its inconvenience and tragedy, there was a decided element of joy in war.

The favorite pastime, while standing or sitting on deck, or leaning against the rail, was speculating on where they were going.

"Australia," was proposed, "and I aim to see one of them kangaroos before, and was impressed with their | jumping around with her kid in her pocket.'

"No, sir," another differed. it was Australia, they'd told us. My cousin went out there last year and he knew from the time he left. He ain't seen any kangaroos yet, but he says the people there are hep-cats who cook with gas."

"The Solomons," a third man said. 'We took them over, didn't we? We're being sent out to hold them. I had it straight from the top kick-"

"Something tells me," another man interrupted, "we're going to be dropped off in Hawaii. I always wanted to go there, and now is it." He was hooted down on the basis that no such luck could be theirs. It was Sergeant Winkle's considered opinion that they were going to "What they got there, Pop?" he was asked. "What's your book say?" "Cannibals," he told them. He thought his guidebook had said that.

"Me," said Mr. Tinker, "I don't care where it is just so there's On the fourth day, while sitting on the deck with his back against the rail, Mr. Winkle nearly jumped out of his life belt when there was a loud explosion forward. He was lurching to his feet and had reached a crouching position before he realized that the gun crews were holding firing practice. He sank back down again, seeing other men following suit. The guns kept on chattering, sending up shells to burst high in the air at different levels. From the other ships they could see the same practice going on. It was fascinating to watch, and the noise and smell of burning gunpowder added to their sense of security.

In the midst of the racket Mr.
Winkle was startled to hear his name being called.

"Hi, Pop!" Looking up, he saw Freddie Tin-dall. In back of him were Jack and several more of the original Spring-ville contingent.

"Hello, Mr. Winkle," Jack greeted him. The boy's eyes twinkled, and he spoke as if they were meeting he spoke as if they were meeting casually on Maple Avenue.

"This," said Mr. Winkle, struggling to his feet, "is quite a place to have a reunion."

They held it, nevertheless, in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, pumping one another's hands and yelling above the noise of the guns. Freddie cried. "We've got more than die cried, "We've got more than this! Hey, Alphabet! Alphabet!"

In a moment the wizened little Sergeant pushed his way down the deck. The first thing he saw was Mr. Winkle's stripes with the "T" below them. Without raising his voice, but still making himself heard, he lectured:

"I been in the Army eighteen years. You been in eight months, and you rate with me. We ain't going to win no war that way. And look what I got in my machine-gun crew. Him," he pointed at Jack, "and him," he indicated Freddie. 'All they can do is outshoot any of them guys working them pump-guns up there. Where do you think we're headed for, Pop?"

Mr. Winkle's reply was lost in the blast of the antiaircraft guns. 'Australia!" Jack yelled.

"New Zealand!" Freddie shouted. "I told you it was India," the Alphabet said. "I had it straight from an officer as the One-A lowdown

Mr. Winkle saw that Sergeant Czeideskrowski had become one of them and, what was more, they had become one with him.

He was warmed by this, and that the others were on the ship with him. It seemed to make it still safer, and the sea smoother and even more peaceful. Yet still it wasn't quite the thing about war he sensed and for which he continued to search. There was a stir among the ships of the convoy.

Messages were exchanged by blinker and flags. Mr. Winkle's ship and five supply vessels began to take erration

Maneuvering smoothly, the six ships detached themselves from the main body of the convoy, setting off at an angle to it. At the same time three destroyers rode in the same direction, herding them. Deep-throated whistles said goodby.

It was clear now that they were going on a mission of their own. Rumor ran like fire through the ship.

They were a special task force. An urgent call had come for them from some harassed point. Plans had been changed.

Land was soon to be sighted. They would see action at any mo-

Fall-Winter 1944 Silhouette

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A whole book could be written on the subject of peplums for designers are giving them most diversified and dramatic interpretation. An eminently becoming and practical version of the popular peplum frock is shown to the right. It is especially notable in that it uses its peplum fullness at the front only, so that it can be becomingly worn under a fitted topcoat. An ornamental clip adds over-the-table interest to the softly tailored open vee neckline. Trim bracelet-length sleeves harmonize with the nicely fitted shoulder line. A narrow self-belt encircles the fitted waistline and fullness is released at the skirt front to stress the peplum folds. It is just this sort of refined looking black frock that will be beloved the entire season

In assembling the fall wardrobe a good start-off is a smartly styled little black frock that flaunts the through. A new fashion is developing in peplums in that they are being made of materials other than the fabric of the dress. Smart looking wool frocks take on peplums done in fur. Also the peplum made of lace adds charm to a simple black crepe gown. In fact, in some few shops they are selling tie-on peplums with the frock, and it would give infinite variety to one's basic dress, made of a fine rayon crepe to get together a collection of detachable peplums. The dressy fall frock of dull black rayon crepe centered in the group is noteworthy in that it features the distinctly new wide and handsome shoulder line. Something to talk about are the new shoulder lines for this season; they are so different they date your dress. Flat tucks in a smoothly rounded line provide smart hip line interest. The princess cut of the fitted midriff is decidedly flattering to the figure. Brilliant studded question-mark pins demonstrate as to the effectiveness of dramatic jewelry with the black gown of sophisticated simplicity. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Leopard Spots

A winter coat with a leopard spotted lining is the dream of youth this season. The good news to young folks who have set their hearts on having a coat with the fashionable spotted lining is that one doesn't have to buy a fur lining to get the desired spotted effect. For the coat pictured the leopard spots are printed on sturdy cotton twill. This type lining is very popular. It really looks like a real fur lining and is ever so comfortable. Her red corduroy princess dress with its white collar and silver buttons is cotton too, for cotton, you know, has come to be a year-round

Millinery Trend Is To Imposing Turbans

Something's happened to bring new glamour to the millinery picture. That something is turbans of the most imposing type, so out of the ordinary they almost startle at first glance. They declare a complete change in millinery trends. The "more hat" idea is interpreted in that they are sometimes almost bulky looking, but you will find them wonderfully flattering on the head. Already "coming events cast their shadows before" as to the spectacular use of furs milliners are making. Prepare to see superb fur hatband muff sets. Also boas and matching hats of marabou will be worn. There is a revival of ostrich in promise. So if you have treasured ostrich plumage until it would "come in style again" now is the psychological moment to bring it out from its secret hiding place. There are also fancy feather trimmings galore on the millinery program this

Bright Checked Woolens

For New Dinner Jackets Checked wools, thin and soft, employ a half inch hound's tooth black check with its blurred edge accentuating the background colors of shocking pink, bright light gold, aquamarine, and a vivid high blue. They are unquestionably the most brilliant checked woolens ever unpacked. Such materials make effective dress - parade jackets for simple sheath dinner dresses of dull black, dark brown or any other very handsome dark tone. Cut, seamed and detailed in a short, form revealing silhouette, this fabric undoubtedly makes the best of the exciting dinner jackets for fall and winter.

The postwar world is going to give a break to the man who tends a furnace. The job is going to be no more trouble than switching the dial on a radio.

The furnace of tomorrow will not take up much more room than an electric toaster.

Science and engineering, with all their wonders, have neglected the furnace. It is what it has always been, a huge, cumbersome, awesome, space-hogging apparatus full of temperament. That frustrated, broken look on the faces of countless Americans is due to furnace respon-

Shaking it down and removing the ashes has made many a man hate cellars, northern winters and the discoverer of coal.

But at last something has been done about it, and a furnace perfected that will be a thing of beauty and joy all winter. It is heralded as a robot-heatwave, a jet-heater, a jeep furnace.

You can carry it home under your

Its special appeal is that it leaves no ashes, has no grate, requires no shaking and is as self-operating as an oil burner.

It is, in fact, the coal industry's answer to the oil furnace. The oil industry has been battering the coal industry around for years without getting much opposition, but a battle is ahead.

The Anthracite Industries incorporated is the popper of the new demi tasse self-operating furnace. It only takes up a space two feet by two feet and is a simple device consisting of a couple of gears, a blower, a water pump and some blades which chop up the coal as it is automatically fed into the fire box.

It produces a terrific flame in a few seconds and is guaranteed to have mom yelling "Turn off that heat!" instead of squawking "Horace, you'd better look at the furnace again. You opened the drafts two hours ago and nothing's hap-pened yet."

There is practially no cleaning to be done. The old man can give it an annual renovating with an old tooth brush, a nail file and an eye drop-

It will be in production as soon as Hitler and Tojo are disposed of.

Swell! Now we have the furnace of the future all attended to.

But how can we get the coal of the present?

It has been almost like a sightseeing tour with me the last few weeks and I seen a thousand places where Hitler once slept and most of the towns where the Nazi supermen once stood. It looks to me like the Kraut is the fastest folding soldier in history.

I seen thousands of captured Nazis in the last couple of weeks and I ain't seen a goosestep in a a carload. Anybody who says Germany will never surrender on our terms is nuts. The ones I been seeing will surrender for a drink of water and a cool place to lay down.

This liberation business is nice but it is too fast for comfort. I would rather of liberated a little slower so we could get time to buy at least a postcard in some of them famous French and Belgium places. But if a G. I. stops to tie his shoe lace here he becomes AWOL. All my love, Oscar.

Farming Country

Although the majority of Finland's more than 31/2 million people make their diving normally by farming and dairying, the nation's cultivated areas amount to less than one-tenth of the land spread. Leading crops are typically northern-rye, barley, oats, wheat, potatoes, and hay. Pre-war Finland exported chiefly forest and dairy products; imported-in addition to machinery and industrial materials — meat, fruit, coffee, grains, tobacco and processed foods.

Timely Watering

Losses of young plants can be avoided by timely watering and by shading them for a few days after they are transplanted. The gardener who wants to make permanent shading frames instead of using newspaper or other makeshift can stretch burlap, cheesecloth or other fabric over laths or other light lumber. Legs 12 to 18 inches long make the shades easy to handle.

CONGRESSMEN TO LONDON Without any publicity, the British government has quietly moved to improve British good will by arranging air transportation for six congressmen to London. They will inspect the damage done by the robot blitz and take side trips into France.

The British embassy did not actually invite the congressmen to come to England, but made a point of letting three Republicans and three Democrats know that seats on British planes leaving New York for London were available.

First pair to go were Representatives James Richards, South Carolina Democrat, and Karl Mundt, South Dakota Republican. They were followed by Democratic Congressman Brooks Hays of Arkansas and Republican Walter Judd of Minnesota. The latter trip may be significant since it occurred only a few days after these two had introduced their resolution calling for bi-parti-san consideration of the peace terms by this country.

The last pair includes Republican Walt Horan of Washington and Democrat Chet Holifield of California. Holifield, incidentally, was planning a quick trip overseas in order to check on some lend-lease matters for the house Democratic leadership. Each pair consists of one Republican and one Democrat, with the British determined to do all they can to prevent inter-party strife in the U.S.A. from interfering with the peace conference.

The congressmen were told by the British: "We have already been host to several American scientists and educators for brief trips across, and we don't like to discriminate against congressmen.'

ALLIED SKI TROOPS

For the first time in the war, Canadian and American ski troops are due to see the sort of action they were trained for.

The first special service force, trained in mountain warfare at Helena, Mont., and in Alaska and the Aleutians, is now in southern France with the forces of General Patch. A thrust across the Maritime Alps into northern Italy will give them their first actual claims action. This see first actual skiing action. This spe-cial service force includes both Canadians and Americans, and will probably come up against German rear-guard units as the Allied ar-mies chase the Nazis toward the Brenner pass.

ELECTION IN BRITAIN

British government leaders aren't saying anything about it, but Roosevelt has been tipped off by Churchill that immediately after the fall of Germany a general election will be held in England.
In fact, Churchill's Conservative party leaders have already sent instructions down to their borough leaders to begin organizing for a national election.

sought their support for a continua- much stronger than either a tiger ment. The Labor leaders of the churchill cabinet, however, have hair around the throat. But either said no. They believe that after the war, Labor should go on its own.

Conservative leaders, however, figure that the rank and file of the Labor party will not follow their leaders but, instead, will follow Churchill.

Churchill's move in calling the general election immediately after the armistice is considered very shrewd timing. Today he is popular in England. A few months from now he may not be. The British prime minister will stand on his war record, and his cooperation with Roosevelt will not be played down as one reason why he should be returned to power. It is expected that the Conservative party will win without too much difficulty.

NAZIS IN SPAIN

Once again Nazi troops are making for Spanish soil. Members of the army which got its first taste of war seven years ago by putting Franco in Madrid, today are stealing through the French countryside below Bordeaux to be interned in Spain rather than be captured by the Fighting French. This was why the Spanish ambassador in Washington last week issued his statement barring Nazi exiles.

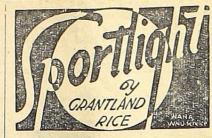

However, a real test of U. S.-Spanish policy is in the making. Some Nazi military men are already in Spain, plus French collaborationists who will later be charged with war crimes against France. It will be up to U. S. Ambassador Carlton Hayes, apologist for the Franco government, to deal with them.

HO is the top fighter in the world, pound for pound? This query covers many years, in addition to the present calendar.

On the human side our selection has always been Harry Greb-a 160pound whirlwind who in ring contests or training periods practically wrecked such stars as Gene Tunney, Jack Dempand Jack Dillon. I am referring to the Greb that had two eyes, when he first wrecked Tunand Gibbons and when he completely bewildered Jack Dempsey with his speed in a training spot.

My friend Frank Buck goes on beyond Greb or Stan Ketchel, Joe Gans or the pick of the human lot. Buck nominates the Wolverine-a 35 or 40-pound terror from Michigan and a few other northern midwestern states.

"The Wolverine, pound for pound, is the world's gamest and greatest fighter," Buck says.

"The Badger is tough, but not quite that tough. You know even a 250-pound bear doesn't match any part of the Wolverine-who is not only fast and strong, but who likes to fight. I can't think of any animal who won't give the Wolverine the right of way. What he could do to a 100-pound police dog wouldn't even be close. I can't think of a dog that a 35-pound Wolverine wouldn't wreck in a few minutes."

Our knowledge of Wolverines had been largely limited to Michigan football teams. These also haven't been any too soft. But they haven't quite been able to match their namesakes since a team known as Minnesota's Gophers have annoyed them no little in recent years.

In animal parlance the Gopher is no great killer. But he is something different on a football field.

I asked Dr. Buck just why a Wolverine is so tough. "Every part of him is tough," Frank said, "includ-ing teeth, claws, and especially

This naturally leaves the human out unless you give him a gun. The human is a rather puny animal when he isn't armed. Twenty or thirty animals would outclass him on even terms.

Among the best of the animal breed Mr. Buck includes the elephant, the gorilla, the tiger, the lion, the leopard, the grizzly and the big

"The elephant is just too big," he says. "But one of the greatest fights ever known would be between a Churchill's party strategists have tiger or a lion thrown against the already had conferences with lead- grizzly bear. They would be wellers of the Labor party and have matched in weight. The grizzly is tion of a future coalition govern- or a lion. He isn't as quick but he a tiger or a lion would have to get him in a hurry or lose the decision. And I don't think either could get him in a hurry."

"What about the grizzly, lion or tiger against a big python?" I asked. Buck had brought back a python that measured 29 feet.

'You may remember," he said, "that in the python-tiger fight picture I made, the python was on the winning side. I wouldn't want to bet on any animal against a big python. I saw one kill a leopard in just a few seconds."

Gorillas Tough, Too

Then we began talking about Gargantua, the big circus gorilla. How would he come out against anything except an elephant?

Mr. Buck admitted that Gargantua would be something to stop. Big, powerful, fast and vicious-some 600 pounds of dynamite - Gargantua would be no pushover against tiger, lion or grizzly.

We are offering these vital statistics to those who keep asking how Louis and Dempsey, or how Tunney and Corbett would come out in a swinging joust.

Our answer is that Louis, Dempsey, Tunney and Corbett would be completely outclassed by any grizzly, lion, tiger, gorilla, python or king cobra in any hand-to-hand or fang-to-fang collision.

Gene Tunney still thinks that a good fighter can lick a gorilla. I don't think Greb, Tunney, Dempsey and Louis together could handle Gargantua.

Yanks Enter Germany as Siegfried Fort Falls

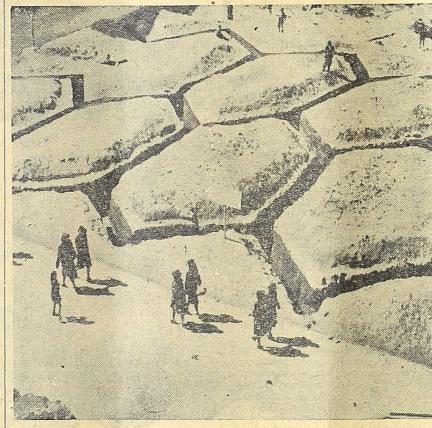

Two spearheads of the U. S. First army, under Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, enter Germany south of Aachen and beyond Trier, as Siegfried fort falls to the allies. In the first push they reached the outskirts of Aachen, meeting with opposition within the Siegfried line.

France Wrecked as German Troops Retreat

When the American Seventh army moved into Marseille, France, they found ships scuttled in the harbor as well as the city looted and buildings, bridges and rail terminals destroyed. In Paris the women and children had ripped up the paving blocks from the streets to build barricades behind which they fought for liberation of their capital before Allied forces entered the city to help them.

The slit trenches that cut up an area "some place in Italy" in a waffle-like pattern are being used by the Air WACs stationed near the headquarters of the 12th air force in Italy. This new type of trench is said to offer considerable more protection, and is harder to hit from air.

Liberators Who Came Home

Among the British forces that liberated Brussels, capital of Belgium, was a brigade of Belgians, members of which are being given an enthusiastic welcome home here by the populace of Brussels as they drove into the city. They had escaped to England, and there had been organized and trained under their own colors.

JESUS THE LIGHT OF THE

LESSON TEXT—John 9:1-7, 13, 34-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life.

John 8:12.

Light is a fascinating subject for study, and especially is that true when we speak of spiritual light. In the lessons of the next three months we are to see the light which Christ sheds on the problems of life today.

How appropriate to begin that study by recognizing Christ as the one true "light of the world." He it is who brought us out of darkness, and it is from His light that we too are lighted and become God's lights in this wicked world (Matt. 5:14-16). The story which presents our Lord as the light and the light giver is that of the man born blind. Four choices confront us.

I. Guesswork or God's Glory (vv.

Men have an inordinate curiosity about those who are handicapped or crippled. Even the disciples of Jesus had fallen into the sad tendency of seeing in one who needed their help, a case for theological speculation rather than one in whom God's glory could be revealed.

Need without power to help is a depressing thing, and may encourage man to a bit of scientific or religious guesswork. Here is a specimen-let us examine it. How did this happen? Who was responsible? But when we know the power of God, guessing and theorizing is gone. Here is help!

Jesus declared a great truth here —suffering is not necessarily the re-sult of sin, nor for the purpose of judgment or punishment. This man was here that God might show His grace and power.

Those who suffer in our day may be the means of declaring God's glory, either by His deliverance from pain and sorrow, or by His grace to bear the burden graciously and for His glory.

II. Impossibility or Obedience (vv.

"Clay cannot bring sight to a man's eyes-anyone knows that! All such a covering can do is to make the darkness of sightless eyes even more impenetrable." The blind man might have reasoned that way. He would have been entirely logical in so doing-and he would have gone right on being blind.

It is possible to thrust from you God's richest blessing by insisting that God's work be done in accord with your ability to understand.

But the blind man chose the obedience of faith—"he went . . . and washed, and came seeing." Jesus is the light of the world to those who will believe. The blind man found it so—we may also find it to be true, if we will believe. The impossible becomes possible-with God, for "with God all things are possible." Jesus said it (Matt. 19:26); let us believe it and act on it.

III. Controversy or Confession (vv. 13, 34-38).

This is a great chapter, one in which we see the glory of faith contrasted with the controversial smallness of unbelieving men. The Pharisees were religious men, but they hated Jesus (a combination possible even in our day), so they sought in every possible way to discredit Him, to deny the miracle, and to destroy the one who was healed.

Against that dark background the light of this man's faith shines the more brightly. The more they tried to confuse him, the deeper they entrapped themselves, as he answered in simple faith.

Testimony is a tremendously effective thing, even though it must cling to the elementary and blessed truth "I was blind, now I see" (v. 25). But note that he went on, and under the tender ministry of Jesus, he received his spiritual, as well as his physical, sight. "I believe"what majestic words, what transforming words, what world-shaking words! Friend, do you believe on Christ? If not, will you do it right

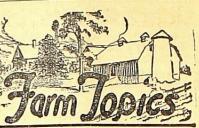

IV. Healing or Hardening (vv. 39

The same sun which softens the wax hardens the mud. The light which attracts some out of the dark places causes others to shrink farther into the shadows lest they have to give up their dark deeds and thoughts.

So it was in this case. The blind man who had faith, saw, and that sight was the sight of the soul as daily allotment of milk, butter, well as of the body. But the emccheese and evaporated milk. bittered Pharisees were only hard-ened in their sin. Because they boasted of their spiritual sight which made the ministry of Jesus unnecessary (as they thought!), there was nothing for Him to do but to leave them in their darkness.

The light of Christ, which is to shine on the problems of life in the lessons of the three months ahead of us, will either bring men to the light in faith, or confirm them in their unbelief. Which is it to be in their unbelief. Which is it to be in your case and in that of those to worms of horses. In addition it is whom you minister?

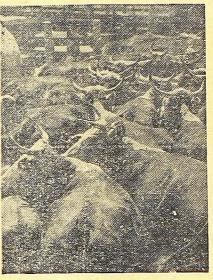

Early and Proper Marketing Urged

Prompt Cattle Sale Urged as Necessity

Farmers are urged to give some consideration to their cattle marketing plans for the remainder of the year. Because of possible market gluts, M. P. Mitchell, at Purdue university, calls to their attention the following points:

1. Low grade beef cattle may be sent to market soon, before western cattle begin to move in volume. This would include cull aged cows of both the beef and dairy types, grazing cattle that are not to be grain fed nor kept for breeding, and, in some cases, surplus breeding cattle that are now on farms in excess of the farm's normal carrying

2. Although beef cattle prices under the controls now in force may not behave normally, there are good reasons for expecting prices of most grades of cattle, except the better grades of grain fed cattle, to work to lower levels. This is especially true at the time that markets reach a glutted condition, in late summer and autumn.

3. Cattle now on grain feed probably will continue in a strong relative price position for the remainder of this year. However, costs of gains in the feed lot are high relative to market values. There is, therefore, not a great deal of inducement for feeders to hold such cattle for further price advances. Grain fed cattle, because of their scarcity, undoubtedly will be less affected by market gluts than the plainer grades of cattle on the market. Grain fed cattle will continue in strong demand.

Parasites Controlled

Phenothiazine, synthetic coal-tar chemical, in less than five years has won first place among drugs used for removing internal parasites from farm animals. Experimental work has proved that this remedy is effective against six species of worm parasites of sheep and goats, four species in cattle, two in swine, one partially effective against several other parasites of livestock.

Dept. of Interior Plans Jobs for 1½ Million Vets

More than 1,500,000 of our fighting men, as they head home from Berlin and Tokio, can find at least a year's employment on postwar projects already tentatively outlined for congressional approval by the department of the interior. In addition, if congress approves, the pro-gram would offer settlement and other opportunities affecting the lives of millions of Americans in every part of the country.

Interior's proposed projects include the opening up of a vast new irrigated farming empire, hydroelectric power development, flood control, forest protection, new mining techniques, fish and wildlife conservation and many other economically desirable developments.

New and fertile farmland aggregating as much territory as the state of Maryland would be brought into cultivation as one of the many projects of the bureau of reclamation. tion. If congress approves, the ureau will be ready to proceed with 236 projects in 17 western states.

A major portion of the building would cover a four-year period. Actual construction would provide 553,000 man-years of employment, and the manufacture of contribumaterials would require another 698,000 man-years of labor.

Construction costs are estimated at $2,952,613,000, all of which-except that portion dealing with flood control and navigation-would be reimbursable under the reclamation laws.

Most of the program has to do with irrigation projects which would 9,365,295 acres on which farming is a precarious gamble due to inadequate and uncertain rainfall.

Settlement on the newly-irrigated land alone is possible for at least 85,000 farm families, in addition to 50,000 on the semi-arid land to be furnished with supplemented water. For every additional farm family settled on the fully irrigated land another family can find a good livelihood in new or enlarged villages and cities resulting from the development.

The program should go a long way toward solving the postwar economic problem of the throngs of war workers who have migrated to the West to build ships and airplanes and other war weapons.

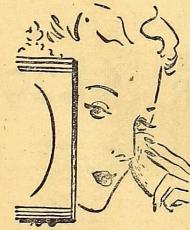

Hydroelectric power at Grand Coulee, Bonneville and other sites, has been the lodestone attracting these hordes of war workers. And cheap hydroelectric power will play a large part in keeping them there. The West, having tasted industrial blood during the war years, is not likely to be satisfied with less substantial fare when peace comes. Grazing Service.

Improvement of 142,000,000 acres of federal range lands in 10 western states to provide a more stable and dependable source of livestock products is contemplated in the postwar plans of the grazing service.

It will be ready with plans construction of thousands of small range - improvement projects, grouped into 14 major types such as water development, fencing, revegetation, erosion control, stock trails, bridges, truck trails, fire protection and the control of rodents and other predatory animals.

Rings on the postwar map of the West. Don't bother to count them, but there are 236, each representing an irrigation or power project on the postwar program of the bureau of reclamation of the department of the interior. Construction will require a year's work for more than a million men and, when completed, will offer opportunities for many estimated in the millions of dollars, other tourist-attracting facilities greatly overshadowing in the longrun the $226,000,000 estimated cost of the whole improvement program. Thousands of head of livestock, for instance, die of hunger and thirst in this expanse of semi-arid territory. Besides, the losses from unconprovide water for 6,707,639 acres of trolled depredations of predatory never-used but potentially - fertile animals, floods, forest fires and othsoil, and supplemental water to er damage from nature on the rampage are almost incalculable. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Protection of the nation's billiondollar game and fur assets and construction of facilities to furnish scientific assistance in attaining a potential annual production of seven billion pounds of fishery products are featured in the postwar plans of the fish and wildlife service.

Anticipating a resurgence of both industrial fishing and an intensified urge of the amateur Isaak Waltons and Nimrods, it has a program, costing about $115,000,000, that could provide approximately 55,000 manyears of employment spread over three years, if congress approves. Much of the work can be performed by unskilled labor, since it involves such things as the construction and development of wildlife refuges, fish hatcheries and rearing ponds, stream and lake improvement, sewage and industrial waste disposal, reforestation and improvement of wildlife habitats.

Scientific assistance to the fishing industry calls for such facilities as experimental stations and research laboratories, vessels for the development and exploration of fishing grounds and fact-finding surveys to provide comprehensive inventories of the status of the industry. An important part of its program also is the control of predatory animals.

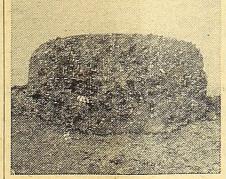

War conditions have so seriously disrupted this work, that rodents ery day after school and that's and other predatory animals are seriously interfering with sheep and poultry growing in many parts of National Park Service.

In the expectation of again playing host to millions of American vacationists, the national park service is getting ready to play its part in the nation's resurgent tourist business, which before the war accounted for expenditures equal to that of the steel industry.

Normal expenditures will require an outlay of about $11,000,000 immediately following the war, providing approximately 4,300 man-years of part-time labor. The long-range program - for parkways, secondary roads and trails, administrative, utility and residential buildings and calls for an annual expenditure of $21,500,000 over a decade, requiring annually 8,600 man-years of labor, mostly of a seasonal and intermittent nature.

National park service officials estimate that its annual outlay for improvements would average about one dollar per visitor at the 1941 rate of tourists to national park areas, containing many of nature's finest masterpieces.

Since the parks are scattered throughout the country, such an expenditure would benefit all sections. In addition to the aesthetic value of keeping our parks in tip-top condition, park officials believe that the investment in the tourist trade will be decidedly good business.

Into the interior department's list of postwar proposals has gone much painstaking study by experts in their respective fields. They are convinced that the projects which they have worked out are forward-looking but in no way visionary. Congress, of course, will have the last word.

To translate the program into reality will cost perhaps three and three-quarters billions of dollars, about as much as it costs to carry on the war for two weeks.

Q.-Where should a monogram be placed on a dinner napkin?

A .- The position of the monogram is largely a matter of choice. It may be placed diagonally across the corner, in the very center or in the space formed by folding the napkin in thirds or fourths.

Bear in mind that the purpose of the monogram is so it will be in plain view and arrange it in that manner on the napkin, remembering the design, and the way in which the napkin should be folded.

ROOMS FOR IMPROVEMENT

Your own room is your castle, if you're one of the soda fountain crowd. That's where you entertain the girls who gather for gossip evwhere you dream your fondest dreams and do your most horrible homework. That's why we like to report new tricks in decorating every now and then. Here are the latest rumors about rooms. Easy as Pie-Take two paper pie plates and cut one in half (across, not up and down). Sew the two plates together around the bottom so that the half plate forms a sort of pocket. Overcast with colored yarn to match your room. Now, decorate with decalcomanias, pictures of your favorite crooner or movie star or what not and hang with a ribbon bow on the wall just above your bureau. Keep your comb and brush in the pocket. You might cover it with the extra wallpaper left over from your own walls.

New Life for Old Dirndl-That cotton print dirndl skirt that is too short for you will look better on a dressing table than it does on you. Just open the side seam and tack around a small table. Don't remove pockets, if you're lucky enough to have them. They're handy for holding hair pins and stuff.

Built-In-Beauty-No room for a dressing table? Well, just nail a mirror to the inside of your closet door and build a couple of shelves underneath it. Wonderful place to keep all your primp-stuff, comb and brush and what have you?

Bottle Ballet—That's what the top of your dressing table will look like match your dressing table skirt) for all your lotion and perfume bottles. We saw a whole set of them and they're cunning!

DANDY CANDY

Fruit Puffs-Steam prunes over ot water until they're fat and plump. (You will be, too, if you eat too much of this angel food.) Remove pits and fill with anything you like. (Nuts make a good filling.) Roll in powdered sugar. Heavenly!

Candy Place Cards-Melt some semi-sweet chocolate and pour into a pan. When it's partly firm stand animal crackers in the chocolate. Cool and cut and use as favors for your favorite friends.

Rope Taffy-Want to make some candy stretch and s-t-r-e-t-c-h? Cook a can of condensed milk, a half cup of corn syrup and two tablespoons of peanut butter in a heavy pan over low heat until the "hard ball" stage Stir every minute! Cool on a greased pan and, when it's still warm, pull and pull and pull. You'll work up an appetite.

Adam and Eve Bars-Cut up some dried figs until you have two-thirds of a cupful. Add the same amount of chopped nuts. Melt a large bar of semi-sweet chocolate and blend with figs and nuts. Cool and cut. Tastes like something out of the garden of Eden.

ODT Releases Light Trucks For Essential Civilian Use

WASHINGTON. - The office of defense transportation resumed the acceptance of applications for the purchase of new light motor trucks for essential civilian use. ODT stopped taking the applications last month because the civilian pool was exhausted. On August 7, however, exempted government agencies relinquished their claims on the light vehicles, making some available for civilians.

HIS IS NO DREAMED-UP HEADLINE-no "tone poem" conceived on an inspired typewriter. It's the way the army explains the command "Fix bayonets-chargel", Only the Infantry has it put to them in these words. As one doughboy said:

"I'll remember those eleven words the rest of my life."

Remember? How can he forget them? They describe the climax of the Infantryman's assault-they describe the most cold-blooded action on a battlefield. Yet Infantry officers and men have advanced, countless times, to kill or be killed ... at Saratoga ... at New Orleans ... the Argonne ... New Guinea ... Salerno. There's no rescinding of this order - no retreating - no nothing but plain killing.

Right now, the men of the Infantry are closing in for the final kill. They're advancing every day-advancing to the order of "kill or be killed." Remember this the next time you see a doughboy on furlough. Remember this the next time you almost forget to write that letter. Remember it till your dying day. You can't pay the doughboy back-but at least you can be forever mindful of his role in this fight for freedom.

"Keep your eye on the Infantry—THE DOUGHBOY DOES IT!"

He contrasted Thurs.-Fri.-Sat. the heroic war stories of the last war, typified by "Over the Top" with war, typified by "Over the Top" with documentary realistic writings of this war, such as "The Raft," "They were Expendable" and Ernie Pyle's "This is Your War.' He felt that this Roger Touhy, ripped from the headimmediate civilian experience of the linees and police secret files. war through realistic books while the war itself is going on will have a great deal to do with the kind of peace that is drawn up, when the war ends. This is, also, the first time any country has had the privilege of reading actual documentary action during any war.

The second significant trend he meentioned is the new interst in books about our own country and interest in Burginson interest in Russian and Chinese books. Finally he spoke of the trend of interest toward definite religious books as 'The Robe" and the "Apostle," and the books which have in their core faith in the common man and his ability to live beyond present

In the last analysis he said in efmaterial reality.

In the last analysis he said in effect, "I have come more and more to believe that time is the only thing that any of us really have to invest. On the average most people will spend at least three years of their lives reading and it behoves them from the point of view of selfish interest to see that they get. ish interest to see that they get profitable return from that invest-ment. Reading is a form of living ment. Reading is a form of living and experiencing life, it is a determinant of much of our action. G I Gift Suggestions

Red Cross oversea workers report that the pocket size mystery book heads the list of GI preferences. A close second on the list is a windproof cigarette lighter.

Among the other gifts for which service men yearn are writing portfolios, fountain pens, small size snap shot folders, waterproof watches, "dog tag" chains of silver or non-tarnishable metal, pocket metal, pocket size games and playing cards. For the GI Janes, cosmetics, packed in leak proof containers, bedroom slippers, simple house coats, bobby pins, sewing kits, cleansing tissues, are the favorites.

The gifts should be mailed before October 15. Simple rules to apply:

1st-Do not send anything which you would not want if you were traveling or camping.

2nd—Send candy, gum or salted nuts only in air tight tins.

3rd-Do not send fruit cake to the tropics, but for other areas pack in air tight tins.
