Let every service man and woman know that each one of us will do all within our power to assist them toward an early and complete victory. When you are solicited show that you will meet this obligation in loyal and liberal giving. If you are overlooked or wish to increase your donation, you can contact your own chairman. If any remittances are sent direct to the Headquarters at East Tawas they will be credited to your district.

This campaign, to be successful, must show that you are in complete accord. Your committee wishes to thank you for your support. Let Iosco county show that we will not fail them.

He is securing new machinery for the farm as rapidly as the times will allow. In his operations this year fine crops of oats and corn were grown.

IN the SERVICE

When it comes to preparing and disguising food for hungry fighting men, Private William O. Crane of Hale, with the Fifth Army, has all the answers.

Crane, member of a mess personnel for an artillery battery in the 88th Infantry Division on the Fifth Army front in Italy, often finds it necessary to camouflage the food because even when the same thing is served twice a week the men complain.

Most of the good natured complaining comes when the 105-millimeter howitzer battery is back for a rest. When they are in the lines, artillerymen, like all good fighters, eat what they get without protest.

Among the most disguised of army foods is pressed meat loaf, "Spam." Crane said it's served about once a week in its unaltered form and then for other meals comes the garnishing.

His wife, Mrs. Betty J. Crane, lives at Hale.

Pfc. Lyle Long, U. S. Marine, writes home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Long, that he was on Palau in the South Pacific, and that there was plenty of hard work. He said that the ground was covered with dead Japs, and it was plenty hot, and that the resulting odor was something he'd never forget.

Outside of being tired, he said everything was all right.

Robert Murray, Jr., from Great Lakes Training Station, was home over the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray, Sr.

Word of the death of Robert Thomas, 18 year old U. S. Marine, grandson of John Phelps, was received Monday. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thomas, reside at Clio.

Pvt. Thomas Chestler writes his wife that he is with the American forces in Germany. He has been at St. Lo, outside of Paris, and in Holland, and now in Germany. He said he was able to talk German, and could understand the Polish refugees. His wife is the former Betty Rapp.

The following selectees will leave via bus from East Tawas, October

TAWAS CITY WINS FROM STERLING

Local Team Defeats Rose City High School Tuesday

Last Friday Coach Roberts and his baseball squad journeyed to Sterling, where they trampled over the Sterling boys by the score of 10 to 2. Despite the rain Thursday afternoon, the boys had an easy time running and sliding to the bases.

Mr. Roberts was worried about the diamond being wet, because any minute he expected to see ducks landing on the waterholes on the diamond, and the players quit playing to take pot shots at the birds.

A report from Clare Herriman tells us that he likes southpaw pitchers, and that he has five hits out of six times at bat against them. Clare was the leading hitter for Tawas against Sterling, with a double and a single.

In the first inning for Tawas, Landon singled; C. Herriman doubled; O. Herriman grounded out third to first; with Landon scoring; Herriman was thrown out at third; Bublitz grounded out, catcher to first.

In the second inning for Sterling, Cousins singled, then stole second; Bell struck out; Babois walked; McTynne doubled scoring Cousins; Babois was thrown out at third; Latta struck out.

In the fifth for Tawas, Bublitz walked, Thornton walked and Ross walked, Ogden struck out, Anderson flied to second; Ristow was safe on the shortstop's error, with Bublitz and Thornton scoring; Landon was safe on the catcher's error, with Ross scoring; C. Herriman grounded out.

In the sixth for Tawas, O. Herriman tripled; Bublitz flied to first; Thornton was safe when the catcher dropped his third strike, Ross walked; Thornton was thrown out trying to steal second, with O. Herriman scoring; Burtzloff struck out.

In the seventh, Anderson grounded out; Ristow was safe on an error; Landon flied to center; Ristow stole third, then scored on a wild pitch; C. Herriman grounded out.

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

By THEODORE PRATT

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates a repair shop in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in I-A. He breaks the bad news to his domineering wife, Amy, who becomes suddenly tender. Mr. Winkle is sent to Camp Squibb, where, after graduating from Motor Mechanics school, he leaves for home on a furlough. Amy hardly knows him, and his dog barks at him furiously. Mr. Winkle and his friend, Mr. Tinker, soon find themselves on the high seas in a huge convoy. They land on the island of Talizo and report at one of the repair shops. Some of their friends are also on the island. There is a bad mist, that might screen Japs.

CHAPTER XII

Mr. Winkle pulled his steel helmet more securely on his head and pressed on the accelerator of the car.

The jeep shot off the road and along the sand trail leading to the beach. The command car stood where it had been left, in a partially cleared space enclosed by low palms. Mr. Winkle stopped alongside it.

As they got out, he glanced at the tent, set at one side among the trees. Ordinarily, the off-duty members of the machine-gun crew would be lolling or sleeping there. It was empty.

Up on the low ridge, fifty feet away, a helmeted head appeared above the sand. It was the Alphabet. Recognizing them, he waved briefly and then disappeared.

"It ain't like him," Mr. Tinker observed, "not to be hospitable to his friends."

Mr. Winkle took their tools from the back seat of the jeep. His hands shook a little. He pulled his helmet still more securely over his head and said, "We'd better get to work."

"We can take a minute," Mr. Tinker said, "to see what's going on up there."

Reluctantly, Mr. Winkle followed him to the ridge.

They didn't receive a very warm welcome. "If you got to come here," Sergeant Czeideskrowski snapped, "get down in."

They scrambled below ground level, hunching themselves into the fox hole, crowding Freddie, Jack, and the other men who sat listening attentively or kneeled to stare out over the ocean.

Freddie, at the machine gun, whose snout pointed across the beach, greeted them, "Maybe you're just in time for the performance."

The Alphabet picked up the field telephone. He identified his post, listened for a moment and then said, "Yes, sir. . . . No, sir, it hasn't lifted yet."

He put the instrument down and told his visitors, "That was your boss. He wanted to know if you got here. Like you heard, I didn't give away you being with us, but you better get back where you belong and beat it as soon as you're through."

They went, Mr. Winkle with alacrity and Mr. Tinker with regret.

From out over the sea there came a sudden roar. Guns began to spit virtually at the same instant.

"Duck!" yelled Mr. Winkle. He dropped the wrench he was holding and dived under the command car.

Lying there, his heart beating so fast it seemed to equal the rapid firing of the guns, he expected Mr. Tinker to join him.

Instead, he heard the quick firing of a Garand. He could see Mr. Tinker's feet and part of his legs, braced to take up the shock from the gun.

The plane came over. It appeared to know exactly where to come. The firing stopped.

Mr. Winkle opened his eyes. Again he saw Mr. Tinker, who was now standing halfway to the ridge. He was reloading his rifle and looking malevolently at the sky.

The plane came back.

Once more it spit heavy death from its nose, and lighter, more gentle death from its wings. Mr. Tinker fired right back at it.

It wasn't until a moment after the plane had gone again, out over the ocean, that Mr. Tinker's arms dropped and the rifle slid from his hands.

His voice choked and gurgled when he called, "Pop . . . Hey Pop . . ."

Then he crumpled, like something stiff gone soft, folding up and sinking to the ground.

Mr. Winkle, watching this from beneath the command car, couldn't believe at first that it was actual. It had happened too quickly, too much without warning to be any different from field tactics in which picked men simulated those hit when the planes came over.

Then he realized that the plane hadn't been a friendly one. He crawled out from beneath the car and got to his feet. His legs seemed to function automatically, without any volition on his part, as he made his way to Mr. Tinker.

The blood spreading over Mr. Tinker's chest made him sick and weak. He bent and touched him, whispering his name. But Mr. Tinker didn't answer.

Mr. Winkle realized something else. When the plane went over the second time the Alphabet's machine gun hadn't fired.

From the fox hole now there came no movement. All about there was silence.

He ran to the ridge. He arrived breathing hard, not from exertion, but from excitement. He gasped at what he saw.

One of the shells from the plane's cannon had exploded in the fox hole. The bodies of the men lay about, some of them half buried. Freddie was sprawled over the gun, as if protecting it. Sergeant Czeideskrowski was on his back, his open eyes staring straight up at the burning sun and not blinking. In a tangled pile, Mr. Winkle caught sight of the side of Jack's still face.

A single thought ran through him repetitiously. How will I ever tell the Pettigrews? He asked himself. How will I ever tell the Pettigrews?

The sound of surging water made him turn his head.

Out of the mist had come a flat-nosed Japanese assault boat.

Behind it, but somewhat off to either side, were two more.

Mr. Winkle sank to his knees, both to get out of sight and because his legs wouldn't hold him up any more.

After a moment, he knew that he must do something. He realized that the whole position on Talizo might be lost if the men in those assault boats ever landed and infiltrated through the jungle.

He found himself scrabbling about in the sand of the fox hole for the field phone. It wasn't in sight.

He saw the Signal Corps wire leading up out of the hole. He grabbed it, and started pulling on it.

A broken piece of the shattered phone came into his hands.

He dropped it from nerveless fingers.

Helplessly, Mr. Winkle watched the leading assault boat come on. Now it was less than a hundred yards from the beach.

He looked back at the jeep. Unless the bullet holes through its windshield meant more than they appeared to, the car would still run. He could get back in it to give the alarm at the next post.

But by that time, the Japs would have effected their landing.

Mr. Winkle wished that it was not he who had been placed in this position. He wanted, fervently, for it to be another man, a fighter, a killer, a younger, a different, a better man than he. It flashed through his mind that it had been a mistake to draft and make a soldier out of a mouse.

He felt guilty at not having resigned from the Army. A different man here now, in his place, would have known what to do.

Then Mr. Winkle knew what to do. It occurred to him that he hadn't thought of himself, of his own safety, when considering getting away in the jeep. He had thought only to give the warning of what was happening.

Also, he saw Mr. Tinker lying sprawled out there on the ground. He remembered how he had ducked under the command car while Mr. Tinker fired his rifle. The recollection made him feel craven, especially when Mr. Tinker would never get his Jap.

He decided that he must get him for Mr. Tinker.

There were the Alphabet, Freddie, Jack, and the other men to think about, too. It infuriated him that Sergeant Czeideskrowski lay dead. It made him see red to think that after Freddie had been made into a decent person, he had been killed. His brain seared with a hot flame at the thought of Jack.

It seemed to be the most natural thing in the world to put Freddie's body from the gun. Swiftly, he examined it. The gun was intact. It needed only a new belt of ammunition.

He clawed about in the sand and among the bodies for an ammunition box. He stepped on soft flesh and didn't mind it.

Digging furiously, he found what he wanted. He stripped the nearly spent belt from the gun, and inserted a fresh one.

As he worked he knew how good and wise it was that he had been trained to operate a machine gun. He wished that he was better at it. But a rising surge of confidence made him sure he would be good enough.

The first boat was nearly at the shore. Mr. Winkle sighted the gun for the spot he figured the men would be when they stepped out. That was what he had been taught.

He still had a moment. He employed it by coolly taking off his glasses and wiping them dry with his handkerchief. He wiped his face and neck, both of which streamed with sweat.

He glanced about. This was where he would die. He had often wondered in what circumstances and in what locality it would occur. Now he knew. It wasn't such a bad place. He saw it almost for the first time, the waving palm trees, the flowering hibiscus.

He liked it. It was romantic. Amy, he thought, would be glad to know it was such an attractive place.

It occurred to him that for the first time in his life he wasn't afraid to die. He even exulted in it. He heard his voice. He was laughing. He felt released from hard, painful bonds. He knew that, at last, Wilbert George Winkle, in the flesh and not in a newspaper headline, was proud to fight.

He turned back to the gun. It was nearly time.

The assault boat beached in shallow water. Men started jumping out and splashing through the water. He could see their faces, brown, slant-eyed, expressionless. Mr. Winkle let them all get out. Then, carefully sighting, he squeezed the trigger.

There was a snap and a jerk.

The gun jammed without firing. Frantically, he worked at the gun. One finger caught in the mechanism. He tore it away. Blood spurted, but he paid no attention. He kept picking at the jammed cartridge. Finally he got it out, and a new one in the firing chamber, the gun prepared properly.

Five men had run ahead, off to one side. Mr. Winkle swung his gun around, concentrating on them first. This time the gun fired. He was astonished to see the men fall. He wasn't sure if one of them got away.

He swung the gun back, spitting vengeance at the larger group. As the bullets spat out from under his hands, a still new and greater world opened before him.

This was what he had lived for. Life had a meaning and a purpose of which he had never dreamed.

He had a mad, blind desire to annihilate and destroy the enemy. It seemed like a torrent pent up in him for years and spilling out in one overwhelming rush.

He sprayed it on the milling men down there. That burst was for Jack. That one was for Freddie. This long one for Mr. Tinker. Now one for the Alphabet. Still more for the other men. Wilbert Winkle, who operates The Fixit Shop, first married selectee in the 36 to 45 draft-age group to be called, is killing these enemies of his country. He is anxious to defend the four freedoms. It's worth any sacrifice, if need be, his very life.

Wilbert Winkle wanted more enemies to kill when all these were gone, when no one stood on his feet in the writhing, shrieking mass on the wet sand.

He saw more at the approach of the other two boats. Quite calmly, without excitement of any kind, and not realizing he was following Army procedure painstakingly taught him, he inserted another fresh belt of ammunition.

Instinctively, as if something told him to, he looked behind him, over the edge of the fox hole.

A Jap officer was stealing his way toward him. He was the one who had got away from the group of five. The swarthy little man was between the cars and the body of Mr. Tinker.

Mr. Winkle grabbed the nearest rifle. He swung it into position to fire, resting it on the edge of the fox hole.

JESUS' UNDERSTANDING OF MAN

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 12:9-21. GOLDEN TEXT—And needed not that any should testify of man; for he knew what was in man.—John 2:25.

What is a man worth? That depends on your point of view. In a museum stands a collection of small jars containing minerals, water, etc., which make up the body of a man, and which are valued at less than a dollar. But there is more to man than his body.

And that "more"—intellectual and spiritual—is what determines his real value. Jesus understood (yes, and now He understands) man, and places a high valuation on him. That is worth knowing in a world where the price of humanity is often figured on the basis of his usefulness in warfare or the factory.

Jesus really understands man. He knows his

I. Need (v. 9). The first thing Jesus saw in the synagogue was not the leaders, or the beautifully appareled rich, or the learned scribes. He saw a man with a withered hand, one who needed His help. The enemies of Christ complimented Him by expecting Him to see the crippled one—and they "watched him" (Mark 3:2), for it was the Sabbath.

Do we see the real need of humanity? Does it speak to us and prompt us to helpful action? If not, are we like our Lord and Master?

II. Value (vv. 10-12). They who would not hesitate to save a sheep in distress on the Sabbath did not want the man to receive help. Thus they put property above the person of man, and showed their low valuation of man.

The dignity of man's personality, the fact that he is made in the likeness and image of God, the great potentialities which exist in every man—all these should urge upon the Christian church the need of a new and higher estimate of the worth of a man—or a boy or a girl. Let us look at them with God's eyes, and seek to win them for Him.

III. Faith (v. 13). No doubt this man had tried countless times to straighten out that withered arm. It was the very thing he most wanted to do, but it was quite impossible. Is Jesus then charging him with the impossible, asking him to do what cannot be done?

No, for He saw in this man the desire to be whole and faith in God's ability to make him whole. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan puts it well: "We turn from a contemplation of a withered hand and look at the face of Jesus. The moment we do this, we know that the command is possible because He commands it, however impossible it may appear. To look into that face must inevitably have meant to be certain that He was not there to reveal disability, save as He was also there to put an end to it."

IV. Enmity (vv. 14, 15a). Jesus saw the good in man. He also saw the evil. He was not unaware of the hatred and the dark devices of His enemies. Until the day when He was to permit them to take Him captive in the garden, He withdrew from them, leaving them to their evil designs and their wicked unbelief.

Sometimes when we see how the wicked seem to flourish in our day, how they appear to go on without let or hindrance, we are prone to forget that there is One who "sits in the shadows," and who knows and notes not only their ungodly deeds, but also their sinful thoughts.

He knows, and that is enough for us. Let us not be seeking vengeance, nor fretting ourselves because of evil doers. God knows, and He will care for it all.

V. Weakness (vv. 15b-21). Men hesitate to admit their weakness to one another, always trying to keep up the appearance of strength and success. Well, there is no need of that kind of subterfuge with God. "He knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust" (Ps. 103:14).

Jesus sympathized with those who were physically ill and He healed them (v. 15). What comfort there is in knowing that He is present at the sick bed of every believer, and that He is able to heal as it may be His will and purpose. Only He can do it.

But there is something even more precious here. Man is weak not only physically but spiritually. His spiritual light may at times be nearly out, just a smoldering wick instead of a brightly shining lamp. We might be tempted to say that it is so weak, so disagreeable, so smoky—let's put it entirely out. But not Jesus. He will, if permitted, fan it into flame again.

Then, too, man is like a broken reed. The picture is that of a stick cut to us for support as one walks. And then it breaks—what shall we do? Break it into smaller pieces and throw it away? Yes, that is what we will do if we have not the spirit of Jesus.

Federal Criminal Cases Increase With More Laws

So many federal criminal laws have been enacted in the past 50 years to cope with the increase in crime that today the federal district courts try 90 criminal cases for every 100 civil cases, says Collier's.

The result of these laws is also shown by the average daily population of federal prisons which has increased, during this period, from 300 to about 18,600, or 6,200 per cent, as compared with only 48 per cent increase in the general population.

Yeast Fermentation

Other yeast fermentations, such as that of molasses to make industrial alcohol, yield by-product yeast, but the product is usually so contaminated that recovery is not worthwhile. However, some cattle feed consisting largely of corn protein with a little yeast is being recovered from the residue of corn fermented to alcohol as a wartime measure.

Nose Ride

If the plow hitch is too high, the tractor pulls downward on the front end of the plow but the back end of the plow tends to lift up. This causes the plow "to ride on its nose."

REGISTRATION NOTICE

General Election, Nov. 7, 1944

To the Qualified Electors of the City of Tawas City, County of Iosco, Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the "Michigan Election Law," I, the undersigned City Clerk, will, upon any day, except Sunday and a legal holiday, the day of any regular or special election or primary election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said City not already registered who may Apply to Me Personally for such registration. Provided, however that I can receive no names for registration during the time intervening between the Twentieth Day before any regular, special, or official primary election and the day of such election.

Notice is hereby given that I will be at my office

Wednesday, October 18, 1944.

The Twentieth Day preceding said election, last day for General Registration by personal application for said election from 8 o'clock a.m. until 8 o'clock p.m. on said day for the purpose of reviewing and registering such of the qualified electors in said City as shall properly apply therefor.

The name of no person but an actual resident of the precinct at the time of said registration, and entitled under the Constitution, it remaining under this resident, to vote at the next election, shall be entered in the registration book.

Registration on Election day

Sec. 9. If any person whose name is not registered shall offer and claim the right to vote to any election or primary election, and shall, under oath, state that he is a resident of such precinct and has resided in the township or city 20 days next preceding such election, designating particularly the place of his residence, and that he possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the constitution, and that, owing to the sickness or bodily infirmity of himself or some member of his family, owing to his absence from the township or city on public business or his own business, and without intent to avoid or delay his registration, he was unable to make application for registration on the last 2 days provided by law for the registering of electors preceding such election or primary election then the name of such person shall be registered, and he shall then be permitted to vote at such election, or primary election. If such applicant shall, in said matter, wilfully make any false statement, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury.

Provision in Case of Removal to Another District

Sec. 20.—Any registered elector who has removed from one election precinct of a city, township or village in the same senatorial or congressional district shall have the right to make application to have his name or primary election day by executing a request over his or her signature for such transfer and presenting the same to the election board in the precinct in which he is registered. Upon receiving such request the inspector of election in charge of the registration records shall compare the signature thereon with the signature upon the applicant's registration record and if the signatures correspond then such inspector shall certify such fact upon said request and the applicant for such transfer shall then be permitted to vote in such precinct for that election day. The application for transfer shall be filed with the city, township or village clerk and it shall be the duty of such city, township or village clerk, as the case may be, to transfer such voter's registration in accordance with the application. When the name of any street in a city or village or township has been changed, it shall be the duty of the city, village or township clerk to make the change to show the proper name of the street in the registration records, and it shall not be necessary for the elector to change his registration with respect thereto in order to be eligible to vote. When the resident house numbers of any section of a city or village or township have been changed, such change shall not affect the right of such voter to cast his vote. Corresponding change in the registration records may be made upon election day upon proper showing.

Dated, September 1, 1944.

Timely Watering

Losses of young plants can be avoided by timely watering and by shading them for a few days after they are transplanted. The gardener who wants to make permanent shading frames instead of using newspaper or other makeshift can stretch burlap, cheesecloth or other fabric over laths or other light lumber. Legs 12 to 18 inches long make the shades easy to handle.

Supply Family

One hundred asparagus plants set 18 inches apart in rows 4 feet apart will supply the average family. The Washington varieties are preferable. The plants should be set as soon as the ground is fit to work. The roots should be spread out, crowns up, in furrows 6 inches deep, but should be covered with only about 2 inches of soil. As the plants grow the furrows may be filled in gradually until the ground is level again.

Farm Hours

The United States average of 11.2 hours each day worked by farm operators is just about equal to the national average of hours between sunrise and sunset on March 1.

Administered Cheaply

Michigan county governments, on the whole, are administered most cheaply in the more populous counties, the Michigan public expenditure survey reports. By the same token, the most expensive counties (those with 10,000 population or under) are the least populous. The survey also finds that the larger the county the lower the per capita cost, the high costs in the smaller counties being due, in part, to maintaining a minimum government which could render services to a much larger county at no extra cost. In the smaller counties, roads are responsible for the greatest share of costs.

Indian Colors

Color schemes of the American Indian have so advanced in popularity, that one of the country's leading department stores recently sent representatives to Santa Fe, New Mexico, to arrange for a store-wide promotion of the Southwestern Indian color theme.

Provided Soldiers

North Carolina provided more soldiers for the Confederacy than any other state. Its military population was 115,369, but 127,000 responded to the call. Nearly twice as many Tar Heels were killed at Gettysburg than soldiers of any other state.

Richer Diet

Nutritionally our civilian diet in 1943 was probably superior to the prewar diet of 1935-39 and, with a few exceptions, the per capita consumption of the major nutrients—calories, proteins, vitamins and minerals—was as large as in 1942.

more War Bonds... even if you have to go without something else to pay for them!

5 REASONS FOR INCREASING YOUR WAR BOND PURCHASES

1. The tempo of this war is hitting its highest point. Government expenditures for war are at the peak. MORE MONEY IS NEEDED... NOW!
2. In proportion to who HAS THE MOST MONEY, individuals are not buying their share of War Bonds. America must correct this situation.
3. War Bonds provide the farmer and rancher with the financial reserve he MUST have to survive the ordinary ups and downs of farming as a business.
4. Money will be needed urgently at a future date to replace and repair farm equipment, machinery, and buildings. War Bonds will provide it.
5. War Bonds are the safest investment in the world, return a good rate of interest, are easy and convenient to buy... from bank, post office, rural mail carrier or Production Credit Association.

We Americans pride ourselves not only on knowing how to make a penny now and then, but also on how to keep one. So we get double pleasure out of our War Bond purchases. First, we're backing our men in uniform who are fighting all over the world to keep America safe and free. Second, we are building a financial reserve to meet the inevitable emergencies of such a business as farming. And third, when those Bonds mature, we will have the cash for new equipment and machinery and buildings to help maintain the efficiency and earning power of our farms.

High-Styled Wool-Knit Apparel Is Capturing Everyone's Fancy

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Washington, D. C. CLOTHES RATIONING AVERTED
Few people know how close the country was to clothes rationing a few months ago, at the peak of the war. The key figure who helped prevent it was shrewd Pittsburgh department store wizard Irwin Wolf.

Wolf and WPB boss Donald Nelson held several conferences on the problem, at which Wolf pointed out that retailers, worried about shortages, were buying all the clothes in sight, and hoarding huge amounts of one item while having no stocks of other goods.

Finally, Nelson asked Wolf to sit down with Joseph Weiner, head of the civilian supply section of WPB, John Davidson, representing the wholesalers, and Earl Reed, another key WPB official. After going over several involved proposals, they retired from the conference room and drafted a simple order which limited all retailers to the same amount of stock they had during the previous year. The proposal was immediately adopted by Nelson, and clothes rationing was avoided.

Nelson now calls Wolf's plan "one of the saviors of the civilian supply situation in the U. S."

NOTE—One effect of Wolf's program is that merchants will carry over only small amounts of "ersatz" merchandise in the postwar period, will not be stuck with poor-quality merchandise to unload on the money-flushed public.

AFTERMATH OF V-DAY

The White House has just received a confidential report showing that 63.4 per cent of American families have saved only 11.6 per cent of the money put aside by the nation during war time. In other words, the upper one-third bracket of the people tucked away 88.4 per cent.

The same report points out that, immediately after V-day in Europe, most plants which continue operating will cut overtime, thus dropping wages from 15 to 25 per cent. One of the problems officials face is a wild rush to cash war bonds, not for lush spending, but for bare necessities of workers in middle and lower-income brackets.

All these figures now have President Roosevelt concerned about what will happen in the first weeks immediately after the war. The president's economic advisers are telling him that continued prosperity in the postwar period will require his greater personal attention to domestic problems.

They figure that, if the nation can successfully come through the first few weeks after the armistice, then the demand for peacetime goods, long denied the public, will pick up national prosperity. However, the first weeks of readjustment are going to be tough.

DOLLAR-A-YEAR MEN

The full effect hasn't yet percolated down from the top but, before he left for China, Donald Nelson signed a new set of rules governing the appointment of — and the continued employment of — WPB dollar-a-year men. It has been felt first in the textile, clothing and leather divisions but gradually is beginning to result in changes elsewhere in the agency.

Dollar-a-year appointments for the war emergency period were okayed by the White House four years ago, the appointments to be made at the discretion of the agency chiefs without regard to existing law. Criticism of the early dollar-a-year appointments gradually resulted in a tightening of the policy, but Nelson never really put his foot down until last month.

Major dynamite in the order is Nelson's pronouncement that "No person may be employed on a dollar-a-year basis who would be required by his position on the War Production board to make decisions directly affecting his own company or its competitors." The same section bans dollar-a-year employment of all lawyers, all trade association officials, members of WPB industry advisory committees, or any individuals convicted of anti-trust violations.

Dozens of dollar-a-year men within WPB are daily called upon to formulate policy affecting their own industries, and consequently their own companies and competitors. At the same time, Nelson's order does not reach the even more serious problem of salaried employees in a position to make decisions affecting the companies from which they came to the government — or to which they will go when they leave Washington.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Jesse Jones, at the age of 70, has just come through a major operation, now appears to be in better health.

Maury Maverick, who spent a lot of time in France during World War I but saw little of its culture, can be given credit for the army's plan to supply competent guides to conduct servicemen on tours of historic monuments not only in France but in Egypt, Greece and every part of the world immediately after the armistice.

FOR greatest achievement in superb styling, in versatile interpretation, in chic and in charm, the fashion world should confer honors of high degree on the producers of knitted apparel. It's really amazing the way the knitted arts (both hand and loom) are entering into every phase of fashion from sports to formal evening clothes.

Never losing a "trick" in way of following up every possible fashion trend, creators of knitted apparel are interpreting the mode in all such newsworthy items as the knitted weskits which are "last word" fashion this fall, also the very new and smart lumber-jacket styles, likewise classic suits that are so superbly styled one wonders that such things can be actually achieved in knitted wear. Here they are, however, right before our very eyes, so breathtaking and so versatile that enthusiasm for wool-knits and things hand-knitted has mounted to a new high this season.

The weskite theme is taking the fashion world by storm. Shown to the left in the picture is a weskite done in a lacy knit fabric of wool and rayon. This English weskite is chic to the 'nth degree, and because these weskites are so practical and smart looking they are going over big with college and career girls. Gray is the chosen color for this swank weskite, for gray is the featured neutral for suits and sports fashions this year. Worn with fuchsia-colored gabardine slacks as is the model pictured, is one way of doing it, but worn with a tailored suit the effect is equally smart.

Centered in the illustration is a new lumber-jacket costume, a type of dress about which so much is being said and done this season. This two-piece is hand-loomed of 100 per cent wool yarn, which gives it an exclusiveness all its own. The lumberjack top is in the fashionable gold color worked with a green monogram, for to give a smart ac-

Tailored Knit Suit

This promises to be a season of seasons for woolknit apparel. The handsome suit here pictured is an outstanding "reason why" enthusiasm is running highest ever over the new knitted fashions. This superbly styled tailored suit is just the sort that women of discriminating taste are regarding as the costume-ideal to wear about town and during the round of activities a day brings forth. Chenille monotone knit fabric of wool and rayon blend, in flight gray, makes this patrician two-piece suit. Silver buttons accent the jacket.

cent designers are monogramming most everything they can nowadays. The straight slim skirt is in a handsome dark brown. The knitted hat is in matching gold.

The navy one-piece dress (also very smart in black or a lush fall color) as shown to the right is one of those love-at-first-sight fashions that will create an urge to become the owner of one "just like it." Here is a glowing example of how fascinating the new wool-and-rayon lacy knit fabrics are. A knit fabric dress as here styled makes a wonderful basic type for colorful accessories, such as the hand-crocheted wool smood and bag done in vivid Mexican colors, which milady in the picture wears with it.

Small wonder is it that college and career girls are going all out for knitted things. Scarcely a phase of fashion but what is being interpreted in knitted or fabric-knit ways. A perfect charmer in way of an around-the-clock dress is the slender one-piece done in black jersey with sleeves in gaily colorful striped jersey.

Perhaps the most outstanding triumph in this season's wool-knits is the suits that are so superbly styled, as are also the newest hand-knit suits. If there is one knitted fashion that will capture your fashion more than another it is a suit of the patrician type as shown in the present fall collections. As produced these days a knitted suit refuses to wrinkle or lose its shape though you wear it day in and day out. Then you'll be wanting knitted coordinates that team a pullover, cardigan and a weskite that will carry you through fall and winter in a blaze of color. And believe it or not, you won't be able to resist a plaid-knit weskite. They're stunning!

Furs and Feathers Lend Swank to Mode

Elegance in every detail is the keynote of fall and winter fashions. You sense this in new luxury furs, in revival of the handsome quality-kind costume suit with its lavishness of fur. The return of rich ostrich-trimmed hats is a sure sign of a new elegance. This year of gracious fashion sees also the black jacket frock enriched with jet embellishment on the jacket. Then too, even the simple little afternoon wools and jersey gowns indulge in dash of glitter or nailhead trim, or an intriguing bit of embroidery. As to the formal evening and dinner blouse, it is a thing of beauty with glitter accent and rich fabric and lavishness of embroidery. Evening wraps also give evidence of a trend to a new elegance. The story of their intriguing glitter trims and fur embellishments will unfold when the social season gets into full swing this winter.

Removal Contrast Sleeves

Smart style calls for contrasting sleeves. The girl who can sew is removing the sleeves of her last season's black frock, facing the armholes neatly so that the shouldertop extends out over. The idea is to make several pairs of sleeves that can be snapped or basted in so as to be easily removable. Bright striped jersey sleeves contrast a black gown stunningly. You can tune your black frock to dine-and-dance occasion by sleeving it with colorful sheer that extends from shoulder to wrist. Embroider this with sequins or metal threadwork in, interspersed with bright-color stones or paillettes.

Riding Wild Steers and Horses Is Risky but Profitable Game

Good Rodeo Cowboys Can Average $4,500 A Year in Prizes.

By AL JEDLICKA

Lank, drawing Ken Rogers from Brady, Texas, stood at his ease on the green turf of Soldier Field, Chicago, circling his lasso.

Off in the corrals, wild buckin' horses from Van Gray's G-Ranch pranced; hump-backed Brahman cattle stirred, and sleek, lean long-horns paced.

"This rodeo's a big business," Rogers said. "More to it than meets the eye. Down in cattle country, where everybody's got a ropin' horse like almost every kid's got a baseball glove up here, it's all pretty natural."

Rogers gave his wrist a slight twist and gently roped a bucket. "When they're holding big rodeos on the circuit," he said, "they've got to ship up fresh cattle to maintain the level of competition."

"If good wild horses are ridden for short periods, some of 'em may last for eight or nine years, after which they're sold for farm work or the saddle," he said. "But stock won't last near that long."

Rogers nodded over to the corrals. "Of course, they use wild horses from the west for buckin'," he said. "They'll capture a lot and pick out the better ones for breedin'. Then they'll ship in the broncs."

"For wild cattle ridin' and ropin', they use Brahman steers and calves," Rogers revealed. "The steers probably weigh from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds and range from three to six years old. They're the cattle originally brought in from India and now raised in Texas and Florida. Don't see much of 'em up north here, but they sure make good eatin', and they put on lot of weight cheap."

"For bulldoggin' (cattle throwing) they use them longhorns," Rogers said softly, twirling his rope. "They're a thoroughbred cattle, don't put on much weight, at all. There ain't many of 'em left on ranges anymore and they get most of 'em from Mexico."

In conducting a show, Rogers said, some rodeo managers will secure stock right from the ranges, while others again may go to established western stockyards like at Fort Worth, Texas, where experienced hands will select the wildest cattle. Incidentally, all of the stock are shipped to the slaughtering block when they settle off.

Rogers gently tossed his lasso against the broad hindquarter of his sturdy little chestnut lazily chewing hay alongside a trailer.

"For ropin' and bulldoggin', etc.," he said, "cowboys use these quarter-horses, fast for short distances, and full of common-sense. They'll sell for anything from $500 to $5,000 down in Texas."

"In ropin' calves, for instance, your horse is a mighty important factor," Rogers explained. "For, after you've lassooed the calf, and you're jumpin' to the ground to tie him, a smart horse will pull him over."

Revealing that the good cowboy will average about $400 per rodeo,

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

Question—What can I do about a friend of mine who never keeps her dog out of the way? I am afraid of the dog and feel very uncomfortable when it is around.

Answer—It is very rude of your friend to permit her dog to scare you. Many people who are fond of pets don't realize that other people don't share their enthusiasm, but they should restrain a dog or a cat that jumps on visitors, or barks at them.

If a dog is not well mannered, it is my opinion that he should be kept away from callers. Some dogs are a menace to clothes when they jump on strangers—and they very definitely frighten many people.

Talking Crow Is Mornin'

Visitor to a Policeman
CHICAGO.—Sergt. Thomas Ryan says he was more than surprised when he stepped onto his porch to fetch in the milk and was greeted by a crow's "Hello."

Ryan offered the crow a piece of bread and, he said, the bird said: "How's business?"

The crow followed Ryan around as he inspected his garden, made other remarks, less intelligible, and then flew away.

Buttons Yonnick, a cowboy from Clarksville, Texas, is rolling in the dust after being tossed by a wild Brahman bull in Madison Square Garden, New York city. These bulls are wilder and harder to ride than steers or broncs.

Rogers declared that most of them are in the game to build up enough of a pile to buy their own ranch.

"Good cowboys will average about $4,500 a year," he said, "and top-notchers may haul down as much as $20,000. But, it's like every other business, you know, it ain't all profit. You've got to pay off your expenses."

Besides, rodeos are no soft touch. Starting off riding wild bulls at 10 years of age, Rogers was so crippled up at 15, that he had to divert his attention to fancy roping. Just before joining Van Gray's wild west show in Chicago, Rogers had been badly banged up in Detroit, when a wild bucking horse ran into him and his mount while he was attempting to pick up a rider.

Now 22, Rogers, like most of the other cowboys, dreams of his own ranch.

FADS FOR FOOTBALL

No need to ask what's keeping you busy these Saturday afternoons. You're right there at the school football game, cheering and jeering with all the other gais and cats. If you want to make the winning touchdown yourself, try out some of our football fads.

Pennant Beanies—Cut five or six long, narrow triangles out of two colors of fabric or felt (your school colors, of course). Sew them together to make a beanie and, after each game, embroider the score on one of the triangles. That's one way for your team to keep a head, Ouch!

Patched for Victory—Almost every girl has an old jacket that's only good for knock-about wear. Well, sew a new pennant shaped patch on it every time your school team wins. Embroider the score on each patch, of course. Here's hoping you're busy sewing after each game.

Team Trinkets—Buy some little wooden footballs at the dime store, or make some yourself out of leather scraps. See if you can get the boys on your team to autograph or initial the balls. String them together into a necklace.

Hand Leaders—Get together with your best friend and each of you buy a pair of mittens in the school colors. Then mix the pairs so that each of you is wearing one school color on one hand and the other color on the other hand. No one will have to guess what side you're on. Lots of school cheer leaders have gone in for this two-color mitten mix-up.

PUZZLE PRANKS

Everybody enjoys jigsaw puzzles. That's why we've picked these tricks for your amusement. Come on now, let's break it up and put the pieces back together again. Monotonous, isn't it?

Correspondence Cut-Ups—Did you know that you can buy jigsaw stationery at the dime store? You write letters on it, then you break it apart and mail all the pieces in one envelope. Or, you can make your own jigsaw stationery by writing your letters on heavy white paper; then cutting it in oddly shaped pieces. Fun for boys in service or for party invitations. As if your handwriting isn't weird enough as it is.

Party Puzzler—A swell game for a boy-and-girl party is "Movie Cut-ups." Start collecting movie star photographs for a few weeks before the party until you have sets of two pictures of each star. You will need as many sets as you have couples at the party. Paste the pictures on stiff cardboard then cut out with a jig-saw into small pieces. Put all the pieces into envelopes—so that each envelope contains a complete picture. The girls and boys who piece together pictures of the same movie star are partnered for the next dance or for supper. A real ice-breaker!

TRIXIE TEEN SAYS—

Do you go to the movies to see the pictures, or to be seen—and heard? Do you eat candy that's wrapped in the crinkliest papers, and do you burrow in a paper bag for more popcorn every few seconds? Are you a brilliant conversationalist all during the picture, or do you leave the dialogue to the actors on the screen? Do you like to sing and tap your feet during musicals and do you laugh so hard and loud at comedies that no one for rows around can hear the gags? Do you drop your chewing gum where somebody else's feet will be sure to find it? Do you tell everyone what's going to happen, when you've read the book or heard about the story? Well, I know you—you're the Movie Menace; the Phantom of the Photoplays, the Fiend of the Flickers! What I want to know is why do I always find you sitting next to me?

THE HORSE

"The time has come," said Morton Morse.
"To talk of merits of the horse.
Since now the autocar has gone,
To join the ancient mastodon;
'Tis well that you refresh your mind
With all the virtues of his kind.
'Tis well that you recall, aglow . . .
His services of long ago.
How you quite unrestrained could spoon

Beneath the mellow harvest moon,
While he walked on in placid way,
With only thoughts of fresh cut hay.
'Tis time to mind the evening when
You came home later much than ten,
Wrapped in ecstatic reverie,
Without much thought where you might be.

He did not cast you in the ditch,
But took you home without a hitch.
He kept in state of self-repair,
When service stations were thin air.
He'd work and travel all the day,
On modicum of oats and hay.
With him there were few accidents,
For he had brains and equine sense.
So, since the modern Frankenstein
Is out of favor and of line,
I introduce this old-time friend,
And him I'll highly recommend!"

You Can Enjoy Cantaloupes, Honeydew Melons This Winter

Cantaloupe can be frozen to add interest and variety as well as vitamins C and A to your year-round menus, says Miss Jean Chase, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

In preparation for freezing, choose firm ripe fruit. Remove rind and seeds and cut into cubes, balls or wedges. Fill cartons and cover with 40 per cent syrup which is made by heating to boiling point one and one-fourth cups water to one cup of sugar. Cool syrup before adding to fruit. Seal cartons and freeze as soon as possible. Two melons will fill about three pint boxes.

Although honeydew melon is a rather delicate fruit, it also can be frozen for use later on. Make sure you select firm ripe fruit. Remove rind and seeds and cut into small wedges. Fill containers and cover with cold 40 per cent syrup, leaving a small space for expansion. One melon will make about two pint boxes.

Frozen cantaloupe and melon should be carefully thawed before using. Leave the fruit in the original unopened container while thawing to prevent discoloration and loss of vitamins by oxidation. The most desirable product is procured by thawing the fruit slowly in the refrigerator. To thaw a pound package will take from 6 to 16 hours in the refrigerator, depending on the temperature. If left in the refrigerator overnight, fruit will soften slowly and still remain cold.

At room temperature fruit will thaw in two to four hours, but the outer portion will become warm while the center is cold or even frozen. Fruits frozen in water-tight packages may be thawed rapidly by immersing the carton in cool water for about 45 minutes. If the fruit is to be used as a dessert, it is advisable to serve it just before it is completely thawed.

Market Your Turkeys As Soon as They Are 'Finished,' Army Asks

The quartermaster corps is not getting the necessary amount of turkeys for the holiday dinners of the armed forces and it is asking producers to send their birds to market as soon as they have the necessary "finish," rather than hold for the Thanksgiving season.

The total number of turkeys in the United States is relatively large this year and unless they are shipped into the markets throughout the season, in a steady stream, prices may break suddenly. Facilities for dressing and storing the turkeys may not be able to take care of the situation if the large crop of turkeys is held too long and suddenly rushed to the market. The price ceiling for turkeys, live weight went down a half cent a pound on October 1, and will drop an additional half cent on November 1.

School NOTES . . .

High School
The committee appointed by the Senior class president, has finally decided on several plays which appeared to them and sample copies have been sent for.
The party held last Friday night by the Juniors and Senior classes turned out to be a huge success. Everyone reports a good time.
The eleventh grade American History class had its first test of the year this week. The text used was the one published by Allyn and Bacon of Chicago, the publishers of the text.
The high school baseball team defeated Sterling High School teams last Friday by the score of 10 to 2. The game with Rose City on Tuesday of 12 to 0 in favor of Tawas City.
The initiation of twenty-eight high school freshmen was held Friday afternoon. First prize was presented to Inez Ulman, who wore a blue satin formal, a small red straw hat and very placidly smoked a pipe. Rosezella Omans won second prize and was attired in a long flannel and much worn slip, and one yellow slipper. Winners among the boys were Lloyd Hughes, who wore a long black gown and veil attached to a flowering headdress, and Wallace Erickson, who represented a small infant with a baby bonnet and blanket. All freshmen enjoyed themselves immensely. A party was held the same evening.

It consists of the care of hair, nails, skin, clothing and etiquette. We also studied personality and how to make friends. It was very interesting. We concluded with a beauty clinic in which we washed and set hair, gave manicures and put make up on our classmates.
7 and 8th Home Making
We have begun our clothing unit by making peasant aprons from unbleached muslin and are planning to brighten them with colored bias binding or odd strips of material. They are inexpensive and will protect our clothes when we are helping our mothers around the house.

Home Ec. II
Last week Tuesday the girls started a unit on make over. Some are making over skirts and some blouses. A few girls are working on bedside bags for the Red Cross. When they are finished they will be sent to our boys in the hospitals overseas.

Third and Fourth.
We are very sorry to have Gene Davis leave. He has gone back to Missouri.
Darlene Bariger and Delores Konenski are absent on account of illness. We hope they will be back soon.
Lloyd Evans and Alvin Erickson visited our room this week.
We are glad to have Charles Landon back in school.

Primary Room
Carol Toms and Louise Potts received A's in spelling all last week.
We are making Hallowe'en decorations.
We enjoyed the Freshmen parade last Friday.
The Second Grade received their spelling workbooks on Tuesday.
Kindergarten
This week we learned a new singing game, "How'd you Do, My Partner."
We are having fun in these games. We like to write with our new pencils.
We are busy making black cats, witches and Jack-O-Lantern pictures.
Lloyd Evans entered the kindergarten this week.

Shop Notes
The 7th and 8th Grades are split up into two groups in their shop class. The 7th Graders are learning to handle plane, square, marking gauge and handsaw, while working on their bench hooks. The 8th graders are learning the use and care of a soldering copper, with nail boxes as their projects.
This semester the 9th Grade boys are working on elements of mechanical drawing and bench metal work. Some of the fellows have completed fine looking trowels. Although a simple tool, the trowel called for lathe, riveting, boring and pattern making, and forging operations.
Shop II. The 10th Graders are laboring over their drawing boards in an effort to learn the science of sheetmetal layout. They hope to make proper use of the new finshop tools now on hand in our shop. Several of the boys are helping Mr. Robarts rearrange the shop floor plan, trying to make more room for all of us.

Rest Eyes
When engaged in close focusing, as in reading, rest the eyes occasionally by closing them, or by gazing into the distance.

One-Celled Plants
The yeasts are predominantly one-celled plants which reproduce rapidly and in their growth form alcohol and carbon dioxide from the sugary materials on which they feed. The precise nature of the products depends on the kind of yeast and the nutrient used; originally the "wild" yeasts floating in the air did man's fermentations, but today carefully cultured strains are used, adapted to the particular application and protected from contamination. Traditionally the two great fields for yeast are the production of alcoholic products and the leavening of bread, where carbon dioxide bubbles from the yeast give a fluffy structure.

Diagnoses Brucellosis
The agglutination or blood test is the only test which will definitely diagnose Brucellosis. This must be done in the laboratory with blood which has been drawn from the suspected animal.

ATHLETES' FOOT GERM
How to Kill It
The germ imbeds deeply. Can't be killed unless reached. Many liniments and ointments do not penetrate sufficiently. Ask any druggist for Te-ot solution. Made with 90 per cent alcohol, it PENETRATES. Reaches more germs. APPLY FULL STRENGTH for itchy, sweaty or smelly feet. Your 35c back tomorrow if not pleased. Locally at Keiser's Drug Store, Tawas City.
