Lieut. Dorothy Arnold Interviewed in Italy

By Jean Crawford of the American Red Cross News Service.

When Lieut. Dorothy Arnold, Army Nurse Corps, studied at the University of Michigan, she had no idea that her training would lead her to the front lines in Italy. Like many other Michigan graduates, she is seeing this war the rough way—from under the rain-soaked, gun-shaken tent of an evacuation hospital servicing the Fifth Army.

I met Lieut. Arnold in the Red Cross recreation tent, where she had stopped for a moment to talk with Marian Megchelsen, Red Cross Worker from Detroit. When she went back to her ward tent, I walked beside her, questioning about her work. "Emergencies are commonplace in an evacuation hospital," she told me. "The battle casualties who come in have had first aid at a sorting station. A man is frequently on the operating table thirty minutes after he arrives in an ambulance. We do everything we can to make the patients comfortable, and when they are ready to travel, we send them to a general hospital to complete their recovery."

Lieut. Arnold led the way from the gravel path to the dirt-floored tent that housed about thirty patients. Outside, heavy military trucks raised dust on the highway, and in the tent we felt rather than heard the roar of heavy guns. It was time to take temperatures, and as Lieut. Arnold proceeded from bed to bed, the less ill patients joked and teased her. More seriously ill men opened their eyes briefly when she leaned over to ask if there was anything she could do for them.

"I've been in the army 15 months," she told me later, "and I don't want to go home until the war's over. There is too much to be done here. Lieut. Arnold was public health nurse in this county until she entered the service."

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

W.N.U. RELEASE

FOREWORD

The author, Col. Robert L. Scott Jr., served under my command from July 1, 1942, to January 9, 1943, as commander of his fighter force. The only criticism of his actions as group commander was that he consistently scheduled himself as a pilot on all possible missions. He led all types of combat missions but specialized in the most dangerous, such as long-range flights to strafe from minimum altitude Jap air-dromes, motor vehicles, and shipping deep in enemy territory. It was often necessary for me to forbid his participation in combat missions in order to enable him to discharge the many other duties of a group commander.

His story is a record of persistence, determination, and courage from early boyhood. Having determined early in life that he had to fly, he overcame all obstacles in the way to the attainment of his ambition. This story alone should be an inspiration to every American boy. Having become a military pilot, his determined struggle to meet the enemy and his glorious record first, as a "One Man Air Force," and later, as commander, of the American Fighters in China, should be an inspiration to all Americans of all ages.

Colonel Scott's group of fighters always operated against greatly superior numbers of the enemy. Often the odds were five to one against them. Their planes and equipment were usually battered by hard usage and supplies were extremely limited. Both Scott and his handful of pilots had one resource in unlimited quantities—courage. They also possessed initiative and a never-failing desire to destroy the enemy. They were themselves out doing the work of ten times their number. They demonstrated time and again that American pilots and planes are superior to the Japs. The results which they achieved prove indisputably that the enemy can be destroyed or driven from China if adequate equipment and supplies are made available. The offensive spirit displayed by Scott and his early pilots lives on in the men who replaced them. They impatiently await the weapons needed to drive on into the heart of Japan and to final victory.

C. L. CHENNAULT,
Major General, A. U. S.,
Commanding, 14th Air Force.

AUTHOR'S NOTE

My decision for the title of this book was probably made back there in Kunming one afternoon as the doctor dug those five rivet heads from my back. They had been driven in when a Jap explosive bullet hit the armor plate behind my seat. To keep my mind off the pain the big Cantonese intern of Doctor Manget's kept talking to me. He seemed to find it hard to believe that I flew the little fighter alone—that I dropped the bombs—fired the six machine guns—changed the fuel tanks—navigated and landed the fighter. Finally, with disbelief in his eyes, he looked at me and said, "Colonel, you are up there all alone—even talk over the radio when you shoot the guns?" As I waited for him to go on with another question, I heard the old doctor say, "No, son—you're not up there alone—not with all the things you come through. You have the greatest copilot in the world even if there is just room for one in that fighter ship—no, you're not alone."

I believe when this war is over that we will be closer to God than at any time in the past. I believe this because I have seen instances of real faith on all fronts. Take for instance: Just the other day a song came out, "Coming in on a Wing and a Prayer." That could have been conceived as a title or as the theme of the song only by some real event. A ship landed with an engine shot away—the fuselage gutted by fire and the plane riddled with bullets. One of the war correspondents hurried out to the wounded pilot and asked, "How in the world did you bring this ship in . . . ?" The pilot shook his head, smiled and replied, "I don't know—ask the Man upstairs."

Who fly are going to get to know that Great Flying Boss in the sky better and better. My personal ambition is that He permit me to go again into combat against the Jap or the Hun; that He help me just a little to shoot down a hundred Jap ships—even a thousand. Then I hope He lets me come back to tell another story. I'm going to name that one—the sequel to this one—GOD IS STILL MY CO-PILOT.

CHAPTER I

Even the angels in heaven must have shrugged their wings after the few seconds of my first flight. For back home in Macon, Georgia, in 1920, I must have been, even at age twelve, the "vandal" type. There I climbed the steeple of the Baptist Church, and from the belfry took twelve whitish pigeons, carried them to a tent-meeting of Holy Rollers, and at the tense moment of fanatic prayer released them. I can remember nearly splitting my sides laughing at what happened—the darkies were rolling on the sawdust floor. They were rolling their eyes and yelling, "Gideon, Gideon—hal-leluiah—glory, glory!" I suppose the pigeons really did look like doves of peace.

But I had reckoned without the old preacher, who had me arrested for disturbing the noisy peace. When I got out of jail, more embarrassed than anything else, I swore vengeance on the Holy Rollers and the old preacher. Early one morning while delivering papers I took a razor blade and cut off fifty feet of canvas from the side wall of the converted circus tent—took it away and hid it in the woods.

I had no use for the purloined canvas, and to excuse myself from a nagging conscience I tried to forget it. But every morning I saw the jagged hole that I had made for vengeance. Later on I decided to build a glider, and for wing-covering the canvas was ideal. Then, with the cloth stretched over the ribs of the airfoils and varnished for tightening, even with American insignia painted on the fuselage, I found myself ready to fly. Two of my friends helped me pull it to the roof of a high colonial home in Macon, and with them steadying the wings I ran down the sloping roof and flew out into space. Now in those days I knew nothing of "main-spars," "center sections," or "wing-loading." With a crack like the closing of the jail door, the wing buckled in the center and I crashed sixty-seven feet to the ground. The Cherokee rose bush—that sacred State flower of Georgia into which I fell—probably saved my life, but the thorns stayed with me for a long time.

After my father had pulled me from the wreckage—more scared than hurt—I was ordered to tear the glider apart. I did, but saved the ill-fated canvas for other plans. Later on it was used to cover the barrel-stave ribs of a home-made canoe which was intended to transport me down the Ocmulgee River to the sea, some twelve hundred miles away as the winding river ran. I had made about six hundred miles of the trip when the sailing canoe caught on a snag and the current rolled us to the muddy bottom, tangled in the rope rigging of the sail. In the seconds that followed I nearly drowned—I saw my whole misspent life parade before my eyes. Finally the rope broke and I swam ashore; but I had already decided to leave the sacred canvas, seasoning forever, at the bottom of the Ocmulgee River.

Once again my mind turned to flying. I confined my aircraft construction to scale models, and finally made a flying one which won the first Boy Scout Aviation merit badge in that part of the country. I remember when General Mitchell (Billy Mitchell) led a flight of fast-looking MB-3's through the home town. I crawled into one of the baggage compartments in hopes that I would be flown on to Florida in this dawn-to-dusk flight. But the mechanics found me, and I missed making the pursuit ship any tail-heavier than it normally was.

It was far back, when I was four or five, that I had seen my first airplane. A pilot by the name of Ely spun in and was killed, and my horrified mother dragged me from the scene. It most certainly should have been an ill omen for my flying future. However, I know that it whetted my appetite to fly. I liked anything that flew and freed me from the earth, but most of all I prayed that destiny would make me a pilot of the fast, little single-seaters—a fighter pilot.

In 1921 I read of an auction sale of war-time Jennys in Americus, Georgia. Gathering the largest fortune that I could collect, I drove my cut-down Model-T racing Ford to buy myself a real plane. As the auctioneer's hammer hit the block for the first time that morning I opened with my maximum bid—Seventy-five dollars! The auctioneer did look my way, but the look was merely a frown. Far in the back of the hangar a heavy voice called, "Six hundred dollars." And to this fat man the Jennys went, one by one. I must have bid over a hundred times before the morning had gone—the sale had stopped for lunch and had been resumed.

That afternoon I kept bidding, and as I said "Seventy-five dollars" for about my hundredth time, I heard heavy breathing over my right shoulder. I turned to look at the man who had been overbidding me, and the deep voice said, "Now listen, son, I'm going to let you have this one for your seventy-five dollars. Get it and get the hell out of here, because I'm buying all the rest for an airline." Anyway I had a real plane, all crated up. I hauled it home on a truck, hid it in another boy's garage so my parents couldn't find out about it, and began trying to assemble the parts.

For days and weeks I worked, but couldn't get the knack of it. Finally I received a letter from a street-car conductor who said he had been a pilot in the war. He offered to help me put the Jenny together, and teach me to fly and navigate, if I would give him use of the plane for "barnstorming" over the State on week-ends.

The partnership began. He taught me some fundamentals, like taxiing faster and faster until the ship was almost ready to take off. I went to Chandler Field in Atlanta and took several lessons with the instructors there in Eagles and Jennys, until one day I trusted myself to take off from the racetrack of my hometown fairgrounds. I still don't see how I got by with the flight, because I knew nothing about coordination of controls or the technique of flying—though no one seemed to know much about them in those days. But the ship was a pretty safe old crate, the wing skids saved me from digging a wingtip in on the forthcoming ground-loops, and I got away with murder.

All of this ended very suddenly. The street-car conductor instructor of mine came back to land one night and hooked the Jenny's right wing on the guy-wire of a smoke-stack. That was the last of him and the last of my Jenny, because they both burned.

As the years went on I moved up in the Boy Scouts until at seventeen, in 1925, I was one of the highest in the country, and had more merit badges than any other Scout in the South. With all of them, however, my schooling had suffered, for to me flying and athletics came before books and such. I sometimes think the only way I ever completed high school was for my patient mother and father to promise to let me work my way to Europe on freighters in the summer only when I could pass studies like Spanish and English. I don't think, though, that my parents knew I had resolved to go to West Point. For after talking to men in the Air Corps I had discovered that if a boy went to the Training Center at Brooks Field, near San Antonio, as a Flying Cadet, his future was rather indefinite. The Government would train you to fly, give you the best course in the world. Then they would order you to active duty as a Reserve Officer for about a year. After that, due to economy programs, it might all be over.

Wanting to fly for the rest of my life, I had charted my course. I resolved to go to the Military Academy and become a regular army officer first; then to be ordered to the Air Corps Training Center as a student officer. After completing the flying course, I would have a lifetime in front of me as a pilot in the Regular Army.

The greatest fight I had was to get into the Military Academy, for appointments were scarce in the South. I wrote all the Senators and Congressmen in Georgia, but found they had promised their quotas long before. All such refusals merely made me more determined to win the opportunity. I wrote not only my own State political leaders but those of other States. Finally, the Congressman of my Georgia district—at the earnest plea of hometown friends who knew of my Boy Scout record—gave me second alternate. This proved of little value; the principal won out by merely presenting his high-school credits and passing the physical examination. The next year I was given a first alternate from a Senator but again the principal won.

Hope of entering the Academy seemed to wane, for I was approaching maximum age limit for applicants. The same year I tried a competitive examination with the National Guard, but failed the algebra subject. This failure at least proved to me that though my studies in high school may have been passed, I had learned very little. My stock in myself was at a low ebb, there in 1926, when the high-school principal did me the greatest favor in the world by his remark: "Well, you really didn't expect to go to West Point, did you?" And the smile that accompanied the slur made me swear that by all that was high and holy I would get there.

The things that followed were chronologically peculiar for any boy. I'll bet I'm one of the few in this world who was graduated from high school, attended two colleges, and then returned to high school to really get the foundation I had missed. I know I had at last learned that what one of the old professors said was right: "Not for school, but for life, we learn."

Returning to my old high school, I chose my own courses and subjected myself to several periods of mathematics, history, and English every day. The professors, who remembered me as seldom opening a book, glanced at one another as though they thought they had a psychopathic case on their hands. But I acquired some of the knowledge I had missed, and the next summer—June, 1927—I went to Fort MPherson and enlisted in the Regular Army as a private. There I became Private Scott, Serial Number 6355544, in Company "F" of the 22nd Infantry. Three months later, after a preliminary examination, I began training in the Fourth Corps Area—West Point Prep School.

Luxury Look, Shorter Lengths, Big Sleeves Is Fur Coat News

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ITS style appeal with the new luxury look that sells the fur coat this season. It is said that women who can afford it are asking for the new-this-year shorter fashions buying for "style" regardless of whether they already own a long fur coat.

Mink, natural gray types (gray has gone tops on the fashion program), Russian broadtail, Persian lamb, stone marten, beaver and nutria, also mouton, racoon and the spotted types are cited in the high-fashion list this year. The accent in the styling of these furs is on an unprecedented lavish scale. The featuring of shorter lengths (34 to 36-inch also three-quarter to seven-eighths), together with voluminous sleeves and handsomely cuffed, with the hemline inclined to flare subtly or definitely as the case may be, has brought about a decided change in the silhouette.

The coats illustrated are representative of the new trends. The model to the left is really a conversation piece in that it is made of blond chiffon wild mink, a fur that is causing no end excitement this season because of its unusualness and its natural blond beauty, something so very different from the accustomed brown mink. This handsome fur introduced by Esther Dorothy in her famous mink collection is designed with exquisite detail to give a luxurious aspect. Deftly collarless it accommodates the low coiffure, has the new shoulderline, together with smartly cuffed voluminous sleeves.

If you have not as yet seen the extravagantly lovely blond wild mink you're missing something. This youthful looking blond fur is ever so flattering and it's worth looking up for it's the talk o'town this fall. It is not only being made into coats

Velveteen Skirt

The ambition of the girl who knows her fashions is to come into possession of a color-bright velveteen skirt. Having had much joy in wearing the gay print peasant-type skirts the summer through fancy now turns to autumn and winter styles which say that there's nothing smarter to wear with your blouses and your waistcoats and your dressy sweaters than a skirt of as gaily colorful velveteen as you can find in the new season's collections of high-style cottons. The skirt pictured is of emerald green velveteen. It looks just right with this brown and white checked cotton poplin tailored shirt. For dressiest moments try wearing this color-bright, style-right velveteen skirt with a sequinned jersey blouse.

Revival of Stoles

Bespeaks Elegance
In the early Victorian days stoles of fur, of ostrich and rare fabrics were worn in grand lady fashion. This season sees the revival of this gracious vogue. The perfect stoles to wear with one's suits and tailored wool street costumes is the one made of a luxury fur. Stone marten is liked and if you have ascribed to the new craze for gray you'll be wanting a gray fox stole or for evening your choice will be a scarf-like ermine stole. For great formality women will again wear the spectacular ostrich long stole for a lavishness of ostrich is seen both in hats and in neckpieces. The newer evening gowns are on the slim, tall statuesque order. With these it's the fashion to wear a three-yard-long chiffon scarf bordered out with sequins. You fling this filmy cloud of loveliness about one shoulder as you would wear your fur stole for a picture of perfect grace.

Rich Dinner Suits

Much ado is being made over the new dinner suits which are entirely different from the usual suit fashions, because they are made of elegant brocades and Jacquard weaves not usually associated with the tailored suit. These new stunning suits are tailored to a nicety, their only decor being handsome jewel buttons. Sometimes a richly ornamented belt is worn with the skirt and blouse, its gleam sparkling out from between the jacket fronts. Watch this fashion develop; it is destined to be outstanding.

White With Plaid

A new style hobby is going the rounds that is of college, school and career girl interest. This chic style gesture stresses the fact of a white blazer being worn with a gay plaid skirt. The color scheme is carried into the blazer via a binding in bright coloring that finishes off all its edges.

Household Hints

Wrap a metallic frock in black paper or material to prevent it from tarnishing.

In laundering, remember the temperature of the water is important. The hotter the water, the whiter the clothes.

The next time you make a laundry bag, put a draw string on both ends. This will facilitate emptying it.

Cotton corduroys look best if after laundering they are not ironed, but merely brushed along the direction of the ribs while still slightly damp.

To save your rubber heels, have the shoemaker reverse them when they get worn on one side.

If you find it difficult to find your doorkey in your handbag, sew a snap to a piece of narrow ribbon, tie the key to it, and snap it to the inside of the purse.

A few cranberries added to your applesauce when cooking will give it a delicious flavor.

Asparagus Bed
A good asparagus bed starts bearing the third season, and will produce good crops for 15 to 20 years more, if the weeds are kept out and the soil is fertilized. Rhubarb will last for a long time, and only requires re-setting of the roots in about eight years, when they get too crowded. The only serious pest of the present rust-free asparagus is the asparagus beetle, and this is easily controlled with a lead arsenate spray or dust.

Civilian Goods
The output of civilian goods in 1943 amounted to only 34.1 per cent of the total volume of goods manufactured. Nevertheless the output of civilian goods in 1943 was 54.4 per cent larger than at the low for the depression in 1932 when the index was 57.

Birdfoot Trefoll
Birdfoot trefoll is primarily a forage crop for land that is not to be plowed often. It does best on good soil, but will grow and persist on rather wet situations and on shallow, drouthy soils.

Let's Face the Facts

Good government requires practical men with executive ability and a strong sense of public responsibility. Michigan has found the right combination in the group of men who, under the leadership of Governor Kelly, will administer our State government during the next two years.

Your Republican administration has increased Government efficiency, brought the State through precarious war years in good shape, and has carefully planned for post-war employment, veteran re-employment, care of the dependent aged and children and a multitude of other immediate problems.

Good government has always been hard to get. Now that we, in Michigan, have it, let's keep it!

One-Celled Plants

The yeasts are predominantly one-celled plants which reproduce rapidly and in their growth form alcohol and carbon dioxide from the sugary materials on which they feed. The precise nature of the products depends on the kind of yeast and the nutrient used; originally the "wild" yeasts floating in the air did man's fermentations, but today carefully cultured strains are used, adapted to the particular application and protected from contamination. Traditionally the two great fields for yeast are the production of alcoholic products and the leavening of bread, where carbon dioxide bubbles from the yeast give a fluffy structure.

BECAUSE

1. This Amendment DOES concern the whole state, not Wayne alone, as its sponsors contend. It is aimed at BREAKING DOWN local government. Attempts to pass a similar amendment applying to all counties were heavily defeated in 1934 and 1936. Then, two years ago the effort to take one county at a time began. Again they failed, but the defenders of local government must now rally to decisively reject this proposal for all time.

2. Proposal No. 4 would destroy the two-party system of government, as American as the Liberty Bell, by substituting "nonpartisan" candidates for county offices, all of whom would be elected AT LARGE and responsible to no group!

3. Detroit's present city and legislative officials, now elected AT LARGE, have been notoriously inefficient and corrupt. In grand jury actions one-third of the city council, the MAYOR and a host of police officers were indicted and convicted! The majority of Detroit state legislators in 1944 were indicted and convicted of graft!

4. By giving two-thirds control to Detroit, Proposal No. 4 would destroy home rule for 11 cities and 18 townships in Wayne county. Detroit's debt has soared over 1,000 per cent since 1919; Wayne county's debt, due to thrifty government, has decreased 13 per cent!

That's why the Michigan Institute for Local Government and the Committee for Representative Government join in urging you to

Supply Family
One hundred asparagus plants set 18 inches apart in rows 4 feet apart will amply supply the average family. The Washington varieties are preferable. The plants should be set as soon as the ground is fit to work. The roots should be spread out, crowns up, in furrows 6 inches deep, but should be covered with only about 2 inches of soil. As the plants grow the furrows may be filled-in gradually until the ground is level again.

Nest Over Winter
Many of the fungi and bacteria that cause plant diseases nest over winter in last season's plant refuse. Burning the debris is the surest way to kill these fungi and bacteria. Changing the location of crops in the garden from year to year is another preventive against plant diseases.

Richer Diet
Nutritionally our civilian diet in 1943 was probably superior to the prewar diet of 1935-39 and, with a few exceptions, the per capita consumption of the major nutrients—calories, proteins, vitamins and minerals—was as large as in 1942.

Farming Country
Although the majority of Finland's more than 3 1/2 million people make their living normally by farming and dairying, the nation's cultivated areas amount to less than one-tenth of the land spread. Leading crops are typically northern—rye, barley, oats, wheat, potatoes, and hay. Pre-war Finland exported chiefly forest and dairy products; imported—in addition to machinery and industrial materials—meat, fruit, coffee, grains, tobacco and processed foods.

Administered Charily
Michigan county governments, on the whole, are administered most cheaply in the more populous counties, the Michigan public expenditure survey reports. By the same token, the most expensive counties (those with 10,000 population or under) are the least populous. The survey also finds that the larger the county the lower the per capita cost, the high costs in the smaller counties being due, in part, to maintaining a minimum government which could render services to a much larger county at no extra cost. In the smaller counties, roads are responsible for the greatest share of costs.

Worker Trend
John D. Durand, population expert of the U. S. census bureau, predicts that by 1950 over three million women who never worked before will have joined the labor force; this group, he says, will include an alarming number of women over 35 who are "likely to be a serious complication in the postwar employment problem because of the preference of most employers for younger workers."

Seed Potatoes
As treatment of seed potatoes may kill sprouts, it is best to treat the seed when still dormant, or at least three weeks before planting time, to enable new sprouts to grow.

Draining Soils

On poorly drained or slow-draining soils sow alsike and Ladino clovers with timothy and redtop, agronomists say. Some red clover and alfalfa may be used on well-drained spots. On soils that become very dry in summer mammoth clover should improve yields.

Food Exports

Even with 33,000,000 more people to feed here at home now than in 1920, our total food exports from 1935 to 1939 varied from 2 to 5 per cent of production. We produced less and ate about 8 per cent less per capita than in the corresponding period just prior to World War I.

New Orleans, La.
BRITISH AWARE OF CONGRESS
Although the average Britisher will be amazed if FDR is not elected to a fourth term, recent weeks have seen the British press and public far more aware of the possibility of Republican victory.

When Governor Dewey began his recent speaking tour, he rated about one paragraph per speech in most London papers, with an editorial tending to deprecate the GOP standard-bearer. Enthusiastic Republican Representative Karl Mundt of South Dakota remarked that when he arrived in London, early in September, he needed a magnifying glass to find any reference to Dewey—always referred to by the British as "Governor Tom Dewey."

However, the challenger's space in the London press gradually increased during September, culminating in double-column headlines on the front pages the night after his Oklahoma City speech.

Chatting one day with a member of the British House of Commons, Congressman Mundt was asked about Dewey's chances. He replied that he thought they were excellent and that Dewey might very well go into the White House next year. The member of parliament, off guard, answered: "What a pity."

Mundt mentioned the incident later to Churchill's minister of information, Brendan Bracken, who apologized:

"I thought we had them better trained than that."

PARLIAMENT NOTICES
CONGRESS

An important result of the U. S. political uncertainty is the determination on the part of the British government to work with this country on the legislative as well as the executive level. The British are becoming more and more aware of the importance of the American congress, admit they should never have overlooked it after they saw the trouncing Wilson got after the last armistice.

While observing the British Parliament, Mundt heard a speech by Lord Braithwaite, author of a recent bill inviting American congressmen to England as official guests, call for much closer relations between parliament and congress.

"Our international friendship," said Lord Braithwaite, "cannot be permitted to depend on the slender reed of affection between two individuals separated by a mighty ocean."

GOOD NEIGHBORS
PROVIDE COFFEE

The backstage story in regard to the near threat of coffee rationing is that the Good Neighbor policy paid dividends last month. Brazilian friendship enabled us to avert either coffee rationing or a coffee rise in price. The American housewife will be in $18,000,000 between now and Christmas because of the Good Neighbor policy.

U. S. retail coffee prices here have been frozen since December, 1941, but the cost of producing coffee in Brazil, Colombia, Salvador and Venezuela has not. Growers there have been clamoring for higher prices.

The governments of these four countries have been under constant pressure from powerful coffee interests to get better prices in the United States. In general, the growers of Venezuela, Colombia and Salvador have had partial support from their governments, but the Brazilian government has refused to press for higher prices.

As a result, growers have been tapering off in their acceptance of orders from the U. S. A. Gambling on an early end of the war, they decided to build up stocks for immediate sale to England, Sweden, France and Spain. (Coffee will keep in the bean for as long as five to ten years.)

This refusal of growers to accept new orders led the War Food Administration to recommend rationing to OPA Administrator Chester Bowles last summer. Bowles opposed rationing then, though agreeing with WFA Boss Marvin Jones that we should not raise the price of coffee.

1,000,000 BAGS A MONTH

When brilliant Brazilian minister of finance, Souza Closta, was in Washington last July, he guaranteed us a minimum of 1,000,000 bags of Brazilian coffee for each of the four months from September through December. Costa promised extra large shipments from Brazil, risking the extreme anger of Brazilian growers in the interest of U. S. friendship.

Meanwhile, the administration found itself unable to buy coffee for delivery even next year. The Brazilian guarantee is only for the remainder of this year, and the American people drink more than 1,000,000 bags a month, it has been pointed out.

It was at this point that Marvin Jones and Chester Bowles went to assistant Pres. Jimmy Byrnes with their problem. Byrnes advised immediate rationing. He knew that the threat of renewed rationing would cause plenty of worry among the coffee growers.

SNUFFY Stirrweiss, the bounding Yankee second baseman, rates double ranking as a combination baseball and football star. Snuffy at North Carolina university was the tar heel ace from the Bronx, one of the best backs that ever galloped and threw passes for Carolina glory. Now he has proved to be one of the best young ball players that Joe McCarthy ever handled, especially on offense where he is a run-a-way-chetah around the bases and better than .300 at the plate.

The Stirrweiss Grantland Rice claim to double fame brought up an old argument recently that began with this question—

"Who was the best combination football and baseball player in the history of the big leagues?" There are more than a few who belong in this contest. First of all, there was Christy Mathewson, Bucknell's star back and the Giants' greatest right-hander. A trifle later on we had Big Orvie Overall of California and the Cubs. Eddie Collins was a fine Columbia quarterback before he became one of the top second basemen of all time.

Certainly no one could rake up a list along these lines and leave off Frank Frisch, the 145-pound Fordham flash and one of the best ball players of his or any other time. We can offer you another in the person of Spud Chandler, Georgia's star kicking and running back and the Yankees' 1943 ace.

Lou Gehrig was another Columbia football star, whose fine gridiron record was overshadowed by his baseball fame. And no one can overlook Mickey Cochrane, a triple-threat performer of high merit at Boston university and one of the three best catchers I've ever seen. Cochrane was All-America calibre in every way.

And there was Jim Thorpe, only a fair big leaguer, but football's finest back, and Ernie Nevers of Stanford and the Browns who was as good a back as any coach could ask for.

The Hot Parade

There must have been a few others, but even this collection shows the hot parade Stirrweiss has joined—Mathewson, Overall, Collins, Frisch, Chandler, Cochrane, Gehrig, Thorpe and Nevers.

But the main question still remains unsettled—"If 100 points were awarded for baseball skill and the same for football ability, who would finish on top?"

Mathewson, Gehrig, Cochrane, Frisch and Chandler head the baseball list. Thorpe and Nevers were the two leading football players from the group. In the combined ranking we find Frisch, Chandler, Stirrweiss, Cochrane and Overall well up the ladder.

My guess is that for combined ability in both games Frisch wouldn't be too far away from the main gate. But he would be well pressed by Overall, Chandler and Cochrane who were also high up in both branches of the football-baseball tree.

Nelson's Swing

Byron Nelson, the Texas whiz, has already cracked all past money and bond-winning records for competitive golf. Before the year is out he is sure to pass the $50,000 mark, which is a Mt. Everest altitude in the ancient and honorable pastime of pasting the pill.

Slightly changing an old query—"Upon what swing doth this, our Nelson bank, that he has become so great?"

In pursuit of this information we called upon Al Ciuci, pro at the Fresh Meadow Country Club, and one of the best instructors and smartest observers of them all. He knows most of the answers. Here is Al's angle on Nelson—

"In my opinion the success of Byron Nelson is due to his sound golf swing. Just what does this mean? It means for a starter that he has firm, uncocked hands and wrists at the top of his backswing. This gives him a closed face. He has a solid strong right leg bearing his weight, and what is more important—a restricted pivot on his backswing.

"His head is at all times back of the ball, which accounts for his body being back of the sphere until the hit and his hands move on to complete a smooth follow through. With this type of swing he can rarely push the ball off line. If any error occurs, he will hook.

Like Douglas Edgar

"Nelson's backswing reminds me of Douglas Edgar, whom you remember well. In my opinion Edgar was the finest iron player of all time. He was a great instructor as well as a fine player and he started a system of club swinging that came along to Nelson many years later on.

"Don't forget also that Nelson is a determined competitor who is usually able to concentrate fully all the way through a tournament. This is just as important as a correct swing."

Truce Clears Battleground of Civilians

When Dunkirk became the center of operations, Allies and Germans agreed to a truce in order that civilians could leave the city. Views showing them leaving are typical of other cities along the route of the advancing Yanks. Allied headquarters say that the Dunkirk truce plan may not be followed in all other cities. Individual commanders will decide in the future.

Holland in Ruins as War Rages Toward Berlin

Typical of most Holland cities, Nejmegen, hit by German and Allied bombardment and shelling, shows the effect of the war upon that country. American soldiers aid in cleaning up the city as well as take care of snipers left behind by the retreating Nazis. Cooperation of organized Holland underground has made it possible for Allied troops to advance rapidly. Nothing remains standing in wake of Nazi retreat.

Coastguardsmen Cast Ballots

Coastguardsmen at a replacement pool in the South Pacific exercise their right to vote along with millions of American servicemen all over the world. These men are awaiting new assignments to coast guard fighting ships in the Pacific and will win back the Philippines and carry fighting troops in Japan. Early reports indicate considerable interest on the part of overseas veterans, with considerable soldier, sailor and marine individual campaigners at work.

No Place Like Our Old Home

Even when it is in ruins like this one at Scarperia, near the Gothic line in Italy, there is no place like home. Using a shell hole in the wall for a door, the couple return and lay plans on building a new home without fear of further oppression from the Nazi yolk as was their lot in the past.

Lieut. William Boehme, New York City, with another officer and a private carried the surrender terms to the besieged Nazi garrison at Aachen, Germany. Boehme was chosen because of his German-American parentage and knowledge of German.

THE CHRISTIAN MOTIVE FOR LIVING
International Temperance Sunday

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 4:5-8; Luke 4:4; John 6:35; Romans 12:1, 2; 13:12-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Seek those things which are above.—Colossians 3:1.

Disciplined living should be the goal of each of us. Life is not to be lived carelessly, influenced by chance events or passing impulses. Such discipline of life would keep men from the temptations which lead them into intemperance and sin.

A life can be properly disciplined, only as it is controlled by Christian motives. Such a life has—

I. Spiritual Gladness (Ps. 4:5-8).
The psalmist had faced the distressing questioning of men who derided him for his faith. They were unbelievers who demanded of him what good his religion did (v. 6). He has an answer, and it is the testimony of his own experience.

Those around him sought gladness in the harvest of grain and in the wine which was supposed to give a lift to their spirits. This was their joy. Well, the man of God had something infinitely superior. He had gladness in his heart. It was not dependent on outward circumstances—it was within.

Then note, too, that it did not rest on something that happened, or on some fellow man: "Thou (God) hast put gladness in my heart." That means real joy and satisfaction.

II. Spiritual Food (Luke 4:4; John 6:35).

It is delightful to have true gladness, but man needs food if he is to grow and to work. That is true spiritually, for he must have the needed nourishment of life here also.

Jesus when tempted (Luke 4:4) because He was hungry saw beyond the temporal need, and declared that life should be controlled by a higher principle. The spiritual has a place of supremacy over the physical in the life of the Christian man or woman. The body with its desires is to be subject to the definite control of the spirit, which takes its orders from God.

The explanation of the awful alcoholic debauchery of our day is found right here. Men have given their bodies the supreme authority and they are driven by the lusts of their flesh. What they need more than legal reform or restriction of sale of liquor (and we believe in both) is the regeneration of their souls by the grace of God in Christ Jesus. Let us bring them the gospel.

John 6:35 makes known the fact that Jesus, the bread of life, satisfies every need of men. Every normal hunger and thirst finds full satisfaction in Him. Have you tried Him as the One to meet the need of your hungry heart?

III. Spiritual Service (Rom. 12:1, 2).
"Reasonable service," says the Authorized Version; "spiritual service," says the Revised Version. Both are right. The man who is really reasonable will be spiritual and will render to God a sacrificial service.

Note that it is a "living sacrifice" that is said to be "holy, acceptable to God." This is not a case of a single act of deep devotion (great as that may be), but a going on in the daily walk to live for Christ. That calls for grace and power, and He is ready and willing to give both to each of His children.

That experience with God means a non-conformity to the world, which is too little spoken of and less practiced in the church today. The one who professes to follow Christ is simply not to be conformed to the ways of this wicked world. There is to be a completely transforming experience of the grace of God, that takes you out of this world while you are still in it.

IV. Spiritual Walk (Rom. 13:12-14).
Christians are the children of the morning. They walk in the light (I John 1:7). This world walks in darkness. No one needs any argument to prove that point—just look about you.

The deeds of darkness are evil deeds, and men dwell in darkness because they love evil (John 3:19). That means that the children of light must walk circumspectly and "becomingly" (that's a good word!) in this world. Thus we may attract others out of the darkness into the light, so that they too may put aside "reveling and drunkenness," yes, and also "strife and jealousy." Those go together.

The way to victory is to be clothed with the Lord Jesus and His righteousness (v. 14). That is a real "armor of light" with which we may be protected.

Note also that we are studiously to avoid making any provision for the desires of the flesh. Put such things away, and with them will go the temptation to use them. Some professing Christians need to heed this word by destroying some beverages which they may have on hand—just to give one example.

Milk Standard Can Be Raised by Flavor

Odor, Flavor and Grade Controllable by Farmer

Farmers are improving milk at a rapid rate. Grade A milk meets the standards of the certified milk of 30 years ago. In another 30 years the improvement will be even greater. Further advance will be aided or hindered by flavor of milk.

The producer can exclude abnormal flavors and odors from the milk. While it is generally known that wild garlic flavors the milk to such an extent that it will be objectionable, and usually rejected by receiving stations, there are other factors that should be watched.

A rye pasture is capable of imparting to milk very undesirable flavors. Silage and flavor-producing substances should be fed before milking, or not less than five hours before milking. Alfalfa, ladino clover, silage and certain weeds will give flavor to the milk. Common concentrate feeds may be fed before milking. Milk from cows late in lactation or those having mastitis should not be mixed with the regular milk.

Barny milk is one of the most uncommon of all these defects. It is also the easiest to do away. Proper sanitation, good ventilation and clean utensils will eliminate this trouble. If silage can be fed away from the milking barn it will aid in eliminating barny milk. Grains and dry hay in addition to the concentrated foods, are safe to be fed in the barn.

Agriculture
In the News

Sheep's New Jobs.

Like many other farm animals, sheep are beginning to come into their own. The U. S. army has found that the sheepskin is the warmest of all furs and an up-to-date tannery has been erected in Australia to make leather of sheep pelts, a product formerly wasted.

The intestines of sheep are used to make surgical sutures. An expensive-looking fur is now being made from wool. The synthetic furs are said to be more durable than the genuine article. The cham-ais skin is made from the skin of sheep. A new wax is a wool product, as is also a vitamin D product.

New processes have been discovered to make wool shrink-proof, non-irritating, wrinkle-proof and sterilized.

Strange as it may seem, wool is not the natural covering for sheep. In the dark ages the wool was a kind of under-fur or down, but was developed by selected breeding.

Storing Potatoes

Cut, skinned or bruised potatoes should be culled out of those intended for winter storage to protect the remainder for long range holding. Vegetable specialists report potatoes dug during hot, sunny weather are likely to rot in storage unless picked up within a half hour.

Skinned or slightly cut potatoes can be "cured" if, immediately after digging, they are placed for 10 days in a very moist atmosphere as close to 60 degrees F. as possible, it has been found. A corky new skin will form that is a good substitute for the original, not only keeping out rots but also preventing undue shriveling during storage. After the curing period, the same temperature should be maintained but only a moderately moist atmosphere is needed.

Cottonseed Handling

Cotton farmers and ginners can increase returns from both fiber and seed by preventing field and storage damage of the seed. The cotton should be harvested as soon as possible after the bolls open, should be dry when harvested and should not contain more than 12 per cent moisture when stored or ginned. Weathered and unweathered pickings should not be mixed. Well-dried seed should be stored in tight bins or metal containers.

Full Forest Utilization and New By-Products to Conserve Timber

Plastics and New Uses Will Greatly Reduce Amount of Timber Cut Annually.

While wood and wood products have found thousands of new uses, many of which will be important in postwar era, the final effect will be a definite conservation of standing timber.

Many of the new plastics, plywood and other items are being manufactured from bark, sawdust and other sawmill wastes, and then are being utilized to replace high grade lumber products.

The development of hardening of wood will conserve the lumber to a greater extent. It will give at least a 50 per cent increased life to lumber products, making their replacements considerably slower. Fire-proofing of wood products will also conserve the rapid diminishing stand of timber.

The intensified competition between wood products, metals, plastics, ceramics, glass and other products will directly aid in forest conservation.

The drain on our forests, timber cut plus loss from fire, insects and diseases, has been exceeding the growth by 50 per cent. Naturally this is a condition that cannot continue unabated. Fire control, reforestation and insect control will be a "must" in the postwar period. Less wood will be utilized for heating purposes—more wood waste will go into plywood and other products to replace timber. These will prove the answer to timber conservation to a large extent.

New increased utilization of wood and wood waste can provide an industry of 750 million dollars and offer employment for 150,000 additional men. It is entirely possible that the new industry will replace the lumber industry as such, making the by-products the backbone of the forests.

Among the war improvements with lumber is the reduction of swelling and shrinking characteristics of normal wood. This process alone will result in a tremendous saving in wood products.

The plywood is not only fireproof, but is moisture-resistant. Plywood dates back hundreds of years, but it was only when weather-resistant glues were developed that this material assumed major importance as a material to replace lumber for outdoor uses, especially housing and farm structures.

wood products, owe their origin to chemical or physical modification of the basic cellulose-lignin units of minute wood structure. These products base their invention on the knowledge that lignin can be plastized by chemical treatment and made to flow. It is now possible to mold these products into any shape or design desired.

In the past 70 per cent of the average wood taken to the mills was waste. Under present development most if not all of this waste is eliminated. This saving alone will even the spread between the growth and the drain upon the standing timber.

War has developed some unusual uses for wood products in every country. In Europe factories are turning out textiles from wood; smokeless powder, shell casings, molasses, shoes, imitation leathers, and glycerine are also developed from wood wastes. Europe has also proven that sugar and food can be extracted from wood. Most of these unusual uses will not be carried into the postwar period.

Forests are a renewable resource; with proper management and protection they can be made to produce continuing crops. But if an abundant and permanent timber supply is assured, positive action will have to be taken on an individual and a nation-wide scale. Now that the real value of timber has been realized, it will become commercially profitable to practice rigid reforestation by individuals and government.

What to Do

By PHYLLIS BELMONT

An important feature of entertaining is to have fun at your own parties. And the way to do this is to plan your party to the last detail—do things simply—work out your entertainment beforehand.

Brunch on Sundays at noon is a good way to get the gang together. A buffet idea is good and a meal of "chicken in the rough," that is, crisp fried chicken, served in damask or paper napkins, is fun and easy to manage.

TAKES

There are two certainties in life—Of them all men are sure . . . Amid the struggle and the strife . . . The quest for more and more.

No matter how much coin each lad Piles up in his career, With eagerness that makes him mad, The tax man comes each year. The poor misguided sap may think He has a million bones,

But with a speed that makes him blink, They tell him what he owns. When Uncle Sam gets through with him, He is no plutocrat. He's held up, shaken by the limb, Cleaned out, and that is ti. ti! He toils and moils throughout the year; Accumulates a heap; But finds at end, with sigh and tear, There's little he can keep. Throughout the ages—ages, too—The folks have faces made. They've cursed until the air was blue, But always they have paid. So long as they shall live they'll be Deducting from their wad; Till death, the other certainty, Plants them beneath the sod!

Coral Sea Divers Easily Overcome Grip of Octopus

Natives of the Coral sea have very little fear of strangulation in the grips of the monstrous octopus. Usually the octopus wraps its tentacles about the victim's legs, waist or neck and breaking this hold is simple. The native simply grasps the octopus' upper and lower jaws and, with a sudden powerful thrust, turns the mouth inside out. This bursts the ink reservoir, killing the octopus and causing the tentacles to uncoil.

MAKE-OVER MIX-UPS

Nothing fuddy-duddy about the way the teens make-over their old clothes. The new idea is to combine the good parts of two left-over outfits and you'll come up with one better-than-new creation that's bound to dazzle the kids in school.

Gory Details—No, we're not talking about the latest Karloff killer-thriller, but about a new skirt you can make out of two dreary old ones, providing they are both in gored style. Cut the seams apart and alternate your gores in the two contrasting colors. You can use the front of one waistband and the back of the other if you really want a double-header. It's a good idea for a new skirt to wear to the football games, too. Alternate the gores in your school colors. Make a two-color beanie to match. You're a dar!

New Sleeves for Old—Notice how the sleeves are the first to give way on your precious Sloppy Joes? Mebbe it's from too much elbow leaning on the soda fountain. Well, take out the old, worn sleeves and knit yourself a pair of new ones in contrasting color. Attach them at the armholes.

Loafer Left-Over—You know those sharp loafer jackets that the boys wear with contrasting sleeves and collar? Well, you can make your own Loafer jacket out of last year's jacket—the one with the foreshortened sleeves. Rip out the old sleeves and sew in some new ones made of corduroy. Add a corduroy collar, too, using the old collar for your pattern.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Lots of gals receive arm insignia from friends or relatives in the armed forces. If not, they can buy the imitations at the dime store. Here are some of the insignia tricks you will see going to high school any morning:

Park them on Your Raincoat—It's not unusual to see six or seven different insignia sewn up the sleeve of a gabardine raincoat. Colorful, as well as patriotic.

Powder Puff Locket—If your brother sends you his division insignia, show it off proudly by sewing it on a powder puff, slightly larger in size, and wearing it as a locket, hung on braided yarn. It doesn't really have to be your brother's. We just thought we'd make it a family affair.

Patriotic Purse—Sew two round insignia together and attach a zipper across the top. Pin it to your lapel and keep your change in it.

Cap-Tivator—The newest pocket-book is made of an overseas cap (you can buy it in the dime store). Just close it up with a zipper. Let your friends autograph it.

G. I. JOKES

Sergeant—Well rooky, how do you like your new suit?

Rookie—O. K. Everything fits fine. My coat fits; my hat fits, my trousers fit, my shoes fit.

Sergeant—Gad, man, you must be deformed!

Cookie—What's the matter? Is the steak tough?

Rookie—No, the steak's all right; but I can't cut the gravy.

TRIXIE TEEN SAYS

Are you a drug store drip? Do you carve names and hearts and stuff in the booties of the local ice cream parlor? Do you blow the cover from soda straws into the nearest open eye? Do you loiter for hours over one coke while there are others waiting for seats? Do you burgle in on tables which you have not been invited to join? Do you give with the gossip so audibly that your false rumors spread like four alarm fires? Do you comb your hair at the table or fountain right into someone's chocolate sundae? Do you insist upon playing one song on the juke box until everybody else cries for help? Don't tell us that your answer is "yes" to any of these accusations! Well, if it is—then here's the $64 question for you—"Why don't you get hep to yourself?"

Minute Make-Ups

To gain that soft, lasting glow on your cheeks, use a cream rouge. Learn to use the "dot" method to apply it smoothly. Put three dots of rouge on each cheek. VICTORY begins with the American farmer, working from long before sunset until long after nightfall. Upon him falls the burden of feeding the fighting forces . . . the civilian population . . . and hungry mouths in war-torn countries.

To the challenge of producing more food than ever, American soldiers of the soil have responded with heroic effort. Despite shortages of help and equipment, they have established records. They have contributed mightily towards winning the war.

Now you are asked to help your fellow-men in another way . . . to contribute money to give men in the armed forces needed recreation, to give books and sports equipment to prisoners of war, to give nerve-shattered men in the merchant marine a chance to recuperate. To give unfortunate people abroad and at home a chance to have life, liberty, and happiness.

The dollars you can give are needed more than ever this year. Please give generously.

School NOTES...

The school has been asked to take charge of the sale of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association Seal Sales in Tawas City this year. It is likely that we will accept the invitation as this is surely a worthy cause. Several years ago, the Tawas City Schools sold more of these seals than any other school of its class in Michigan. Perhaps this is the year to repeat this record.

The final baseball game of the high school team this fall was played at Oscoda Tuesday afternoon with the high school team of that place. The score was six to zero in favor of our boys. More of the details of the game will be found in another section of the Herald. Coach Roberts and his crew have certainly upheld the Tawas City tradition for "heads up" baseball this fall as no game has been lost.

Let's remember the dancing party at the High School Auditorium Saturday evening of this week. This is one of the famous community parties held during the past two or three years. There will be both round and square dances, and the party will be held from 9 to 12:00 o'clock. The price of admission for adults will be 25 cents and the price for all children, and students will be 15 cents. Inasmuch as the United States Government collects 25 per cent tax on these functions, five cents tax will be collected from each adult and three cents from each child and student. All are invited to attend.

We regret to learn of the death of Mrs. R. N. Baguley. Mrs. Baguley was a member of the local Board of Education for many years, and always was much interested in the schools.

Home Making I
We are learning to plan menus that include all the essential foods for growth, energy and repairing our bodies. We have been counting the number calories we eat each day and calculating the number we need according to our days activities. If we eat more than we need, we will gain weight, but if we eat less we will lose weight.

7th Grade
Most of us have our colored bands on our aprons and have begun plans for making Christmas presents.

We are planning interesting lunches that we may carry to school.

Home Making II
We have selected patterns and material for blouses to go with our winter skirts.

Primary Room
Our monitors for this week are: Bob Freil, Bessie Lince, Kenneth Rollin, Leah Wograman, Donna Kendall and Phyllis Nelson.

Marlene Sedgeman, Bobby Morley, and Maxine McGuire are absent this week.

We are glad to have Charles Engle back to school, after several weeks absence due to whooping cough. We hope that John will also be back soon.

Our war Savings Stamps purchases amounted to $10.60 last week.

3rd and 4th Grades
Pupils in the fourth grade who had "A" in spelling last week were: Billy Brown, Patsy Montgomery, Joan Ulman, Barbara Erickson and Rollie Joe Gekstetter.

Those in the Third grade who had 'A' in Spelling for the week were: Delores and Janette Konenski, Kay Brunning, Bruce Erickson, Neal Hughes, Ronald Chaney, Tom Morley, Shirley Ferguson, Geneva Ulman and Lois Ann Evans.

We had four Third grade pupils, who were neither absent or tardy the first six weeks of school. They were Shirley Ferguson, Rolland Hughes, Neal Hughes and Jackie Misener.

Kindergarten
We are learning "Wynken, Blynken and Nod." We made a picture of the little "Wooden Boat." We closed our eyes and went sailing away.

Jimmie Hanna brought us a story book about Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy. We like the story.

We like our new singing games. We know "Rock-a-Bye, How D'ye Do My Partner, Hickory, Dickory Dock, Your Toes, Clap Dance, and A Hunting We will go."

Timely Watering
Losses of young plants can be avoided by timely watering and by shading them for a few days after they are transplanted. The gardener who wants to make permanent shading frames instead of using newspaper or other makeshift can stretch burlap, cheesecloth or other fabric over laths or other light lumber. Legs 12 to 18 inches long make the shades easy to handle.

Garden Equipment

A few simple, sturdy garden tools, well cared for, are all that most gardeners require to do good work. Tools used for hand preparation of the soil are a square-nosed spade or spading fork and a steel-toothed rake. These and other metal tools, such as wheel hoe, pruning shears and knife, lawn mower, and wheelbarrow, should be cleaned of dirt, and the working parts wiped with an oily rag after use. Tools should be kept in a dry place, such as a garage or tool shed.
