In the last quarter for the Elks, C. Herriman sank a field goal, Ogden three field goals and C. Herriman two foul shots.

In the fourth for AuGres, they tried to make a comeback, but the Elks were too far ahead of them. J. Duby made two field goals, Pendred made a field goal and Halke sank a foul shot.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By Col. Robert L. Scott WNU RELEASE

The story thus far: After graduating from West Point as a second lieutenant Robert Scott wins his wings at Kelly Field and takes up pursuit flying. When the war breaks out he is an instructor in California and told he is too old for combat flying. He appeals to several Generals for a chance to fly a combat plane, and finally the opportunity comes. He says goodbye to his wife and child and flies a bomber to India, where he becomes a ferry pilot, which does not appeal to him. He visits General Chennault and is promised a Kittyhawk, and soon he is flying the skies over Burma. He gets his first Jap bomber, burns up enemy trucks and cuts a Jap battalion to bits.

CHAPTER XIII

Word had come now that the AVG, with General Chennault as Commander, was to be inducted into the Army Air Corps. Chennault, then a General in the Chinese Army but a retired Captain in the U. S. Army, was to be given the rank of Brigadier General to head the China Air Task Force. But from what I had gathered from the few newspapers we had received and from rumors that filtered through, I knew that not many of the AVG were going to accept induction.

There were officious men around the China-Burma-India theater who thought the AVG were unruly and undisciplined. To these statements I always remarked that I wished we had ten such undisciplined groups—for they would have destroyed some three to four thousand enemy airplanes, and that would certainly have hindered the Japanese. There were others who claimed that the fighters of the AVG fought for the high salaries and the extra bonus of five hundred dollars for each enemy plane they shot down. That made me laugh, for I had seen the AVG fight, and later on I was to fly with them against the enemy. I knew those great pilots—I knew that they were great American adventurers who would have fought just as hard for peanuts or Confederate money—as long as they were fighting for General Chennault and were flying those beloved P-40's.

As it stood now: after long hours of combat the men were tired; they had been out of the United States under the most trying conditions for nearly a year. They were all showing combat fatigue and needed a rest. Some of them were combat-weary and ought never to be risked in combat again.

Furthermore, the induction of the AVG had hit a snag, from poor judgment on the part of one man. It seems that someone had lined the boys up for a fight-talk on the glamour of induction into the Army, and had used very little tact. He recited newspaper stories intimating that the AVG fought for the high pay of Camco—between $600 to $750 a month, depending on whether or not the pilot was a wing man or a squadron leader. This salesman went on to state that he sincerely hoped the AVG would accept induction, because if they didn't, and when their contracts with Camco expired, they would probably find their draft boards waiting for them when they stepped off the boat that carried them back to the United States. In that case, they would of course be inducted as privates rather than commissioned as officers.

A large percentage of the AVG are reported to have got up and walked out on the speech. After all, they were high-strung fighter pilots who had fought one of the greatest battles against superior odds that has ever been reported. In this case, they were being threatened without complete knowledge of all the facts involved. I know that from that day on they taught the Chinese coolie boy on the refueling truck jokes about that reverse sales-speech. One involved an expression that of course was never permitted to reach its destination. The boy was trained by some of the AVG—who were leaving China—to run up to every transport that landed, and, as the passengers got out, to repeat for their benefit an unprintable American expression aimed at the speech-maker. The gas-truck coolie would religiously meet every C-47 and with bland countenance would repeat the sentence. Most of the AVG used to make sure that he never reached the transport unloading the right man, but several times it took the best of American flying tactics to stop him in time.

Handled in another way, I believe that every one of the AVG who was physically able would have stayed. As it was, only five pilots remained, and some thirty ground-crew men. We had wanted to divide them into two groups—those who from a physical standpoint badly needed rest in the United States, and those who could stay out in China for six months longer without impairing their health. We were to permit the first group to go home on July Fourth (the day their contracts with Camco terminated) and to remain there on leave for no less than a month, after which they were to come back to China. It is my opinion that at least ninety per cent of the AVG would have accepted this offer. But as it was, five of the greatest pilots in the world stayed with the group when their contracts expired. And those five were enough. I went back to India and continued my single-ship raids on the Japs. After my flights with the AVG, the burning of the train in Indo-China, and the news of my one-man war in Burma, the story got to the war correspondents. I began to hear from home in the States that I had been written up as "The One-Man Air Force." From an egotistical standpoint I felt the thrill that a normal person would, but by this time I was beginning to realize that one man and one ship in this type of warfare meant very little.

In the days that followed I sank barges filled with enemy soldiers, bombed enemy columns and strafed enemy soldiers swimming in the water from the barges I had sunk. But when I went back next day there were more and more Japs surging northward into upper Burma towards India. No, the title was an empty one—for even I, with my egotism of success in combat, knew by now that one man could make no real mark on this enemy that we were fighting. I had the satisfaction, however, of knowing that I was learning things. I had the experience of ten years of military flying, and I knew I was a good pilot. The day was going to come when that knowledge of mine, learned the hard way, would help train the new units that would come from home. There is no substitute for combat. You've got to shoot at people while you're being shot at yourself.

For the time being, though, there was just the one ship, and I nursed it like a baby. Flying it constantly, I had begun to feel a part of it. Sometimes at night I'd think of my wife and little girl, but never in combat. Sometimes, coming home after striking the enemy, I'd think of them and they seemed far, far away. Towards the last of May, after I'd flown just about two hundred hours in combat and had gathered about a hundred holes in my ship, I think I must have wondered if I'd ever see them again. I carried a Tommy gun with me in the cockpit of the ship, for at straining altitude there would probably be no time to bail out with the chute anyway, and I knew that prisoners taken by the Japs receive very harsh treatment, especially those who have been strafing the capturing troops when shot down.

My greatest bombing day came late in the month of May, when I dropped four 500-pound bombs at Homalin, down on the Chindwin, where the Japs seemed to be concentrating. Early in the morning I headed South with the heavy yellow bomb, slowly climbing over the Naga Hills and through the overcast, topping out at 15,000 feet. As I continued South on the course to where the Uyu met the Chindwin River, the clouds lowered but the overcast remained solid. In one hour, computing that I had made the 180 miles to Homalin, I let down through the overcast, hoping that the mountains were behind me. Luck was with me, as it usually was in my single-ship war, and I found the overcast barely a hundred feet thick. I couldn't see Homalin and my target area, but I kept right up against the cloud ceiling and circled warily. I knew that I was in luck: I could drop the bomb and then climb right back into the overcast, no matter how many Jap fighters came to intercept.

Soon I saw my target—and sure enough, there were loaded barges coming out of the broad Chindwin and heading for the docks of Homalin. I continued circling against the clouds at 11,000 feet.

For I had a plan. Dive-bombing from a P-40 is not the most accurate in the world; you can't dive very steeply or the bomb might hit the propeller, and also in too steep a dive it's hard to recover in the high speeds that are built up. It seemed to me that the type of bombing one had to do in order to keep the speed under control and to miss the prop, was more in the nature of glide-bombing. Most beginners, however, are always short with their bombs. That is to say, the projectile strikes before it gets to the target on the line of approach, rather than over it. From my practice bombings on the Brahmaputra, I had developed a rule of thumb: I would dive at some forty-five degrees; then, as the target in my gun-sight passed and the nose of my ship, I would begin to pull out slowly and count—one count for every thousand feet of my elevation above the target. Then as the ship came almost level, if I was at two thousand feet when I reached the count of "two," I'd drop the bomb.

I let the four barges get almost to the makeshift wharf; then I dove from my cloud cover. As I got the middle two barges on my gun-sight, I made a mental resolution not to be short—for even if I went over I'd hit the Japs in the town. As I passed three thousand feet the nearest barge went under me, and I began to pull out and count: "One—two—three—pull!"—putting in the extra count to insure me against being short. I felt the bomb let go as I jerked the belly-tank release, and I turned to get the wing out of the way so that I could see the bomb hit.

The five hundred pounds of TNT exploded either right beside the leading barge or between the barge closest to shore and the docks. As the black smoke cleared, I saw pieces of the barge splashing into the river a hundred yards from the explosion. I went down and strafed, but the black smoke was so thick that I could see very little to concentrate on; so I climbed to three thousand feet and waited for the smoke to clear. Then I dove for the two barges that were drifting down the river. I must have put two hundred rounds into each of them. I got one to burning, and from the black smoke it must have been loaded with gasoline.

On my second raid I dropped a five-hundred-pound bomb on the largest building in Homalin, which the British Intelligence reported the next day had been the police station. They said that two hundred Japanese were killed in that bombing, and that between six hundred and a thousand were killed in the series of bombings. Many bodies were picked up about thirty miles down the Chindwin at Tamu and Sit-tiang. All four of my bombs had done some damage, and I was quite satisfied.

In British Intelligence reports I read that Radio Tokyo had mentioned Homalin. One bombing had taken place, it seems, with very slight damage, and that only to the innocent Burmese villagers, but the Imperial Japanese Army had evacuated Homalin because of the serious malaria that was prevalent there. Anyway, I always like to think that my four trips to Homalin with four 500-pound packages of good old American Picatinny TNT had something to do with the monkey-men's deciding that the malaria was too bad along the Chindwin.

My raids with "Old Exterminator" continued through May and into June. Some days I'd climb out of India through the rain clouds of the monsoon and fly on into Burma. The trip back would then be one to worry me, for I never knew exactly when to let down. Almost every day, however, if I worked my take-off time properly I'd get back from the mission as the storm clouds were breaking, and I'd have a nice, welcome hole to dive through. On other days when I wasn't so lucky, I'd just have to roll over and dive for the valley of the Brahmaputra—and that's where I always came out, or I wouldn't be here to tell about it.

Some of the flights into Burma were just a waste of gasoline; I would see nothing. It follows that I have written of the more exciting ones. There's nothing so monotonous as to fly for four hundred miles with plenty of ammunition, or sometimes for two hundred to three hundred miles with a heavy bomb attached, and find no place to drop it. I'd have to come back then, and gingerly letting down through the dark monsoon clouds, land the 500 pounds of TNT as if I had a crate of eggs aboard. After all, we didn't have bombs to waste.

Early in June I did have one exciting trip. From reports of the ferry pilots I heard that the Japs were building a bridge over the river N'umzup, some forty miles North of Myitkyina. The very afternoon the report reached me, I went over and strafed the engineers at work on the bridge. And I nearly got shot down, for the efficient Japanese had moved in their anti-aircraft with the bridge crew. When I landed at the base I helped the ground crew count the thirty small-calibre holes in my ship. My cap had one hole in it, though luckily it had not been on my head but back in the small baggage compartment of the Kittyhawk. That was pretty bad, though, for it was the only cap I had, and for months I had to wear it with all the felt torn from the crown by the Jap ground-fire. I remember that later one of the young bomber crew men asked Maj. Butch Morgan—it was when we stepped from our ships after bombing Hongkong—whether or not I'd had that cap on when the bullet went through.

I cursed about the cap and loaded the ship for another run on the bridge. As I came in from another direction this time, and very low, I saw bodies of the enemy from my first strafing, but the Japs were still working on the bridge. I strafed the working-party in two passes from different directions, so low that the anti-aircraft couldn't shoot at me effectively.

STANDARDS OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:3-10, 43-48. GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.—Matthew 5:10.

A kingdom must have laws, and here we have the laws for Christ's kingdom—the kingdom of heaven—which He shall one day establish on this earth. In the Church we have the joy of living as loyal subjects of Christ, and hence these standards are for our counsel and guidance.

The verses of this greatest of all discourses are addressed to those who have actually taken Christ as King of their lives. These beatitudes are not a substitute for the gospel. They are not laws that the unbeliever can keep and thus be saved, for this would be utterly impossible. Only he who knows and has called upon the power and grace of God in Christ can qualify to walk as a citizen of Christ's kingdom.

We note two things in this wonderful and instructive passage from God's Word:

I. The Character of the Follower of Christ (vv. 3-10).

The eight characteristics of the Christian here presented are worthy of extended individual attention, but we can offer only brief suggestions. "Blessed are the poor in spirit" speaks of humility as a commendable quality. How contradictory the present-day philosophy, which calls for self-assertion and self-reliance. But Jesus was not mistaken. The way into the kingdom of heaven is not that of assertive self-sufficiency.

"Blessed are they that mourn." The world does not believe that statement. It shuns the house of mourning. It tries without avail to philosophize away the fact of sorrow. The Christian, on the other hand, feels with his fellow man and thus receives a blessing. One can really learn from sorrow.

I walked a mile with Pleasure;
She chattered all the way.
But left me none the wiser
For all she had to say.

I walked a mile with Sorrow,
And ne'er a word said she;
But, oh, the things I learned from her
When Sorrow walked with me.

"Blessed are the meek." Poverty of spirit comes when a man rightly sees himself, and has a sympathetic touch with sorrow. Then he "inherits the earth," because he truly comes to enjoy it as a place of service and Christian growth, and not because he has a deed to a single foot of its soil.

"It is the hunger and thirst for righteousness (v. 6), and not the possession of it, that is blessed" (Plummer). Self-satisfied people know nothing of the glory of having their hunger and thirst satisfied by God.

II. The Conduct of the Follower of Christ (vv. 43-48).

There can possibly be no more severe test of a man's Christian character than the manner in which he treats his enemies. Many who pass the other tests meet failure (at least in part) at this point.

It is no easy thing to love your enemies, but it is the standard of Christ, and He will enable us to live up to it. Now is a good time to put it into practice, not only personally, but nationally.

There can be no doubt that love for the brethren will be a more intimate and satisfying experience because they return our affection (v. 46). Anyone can do that and enjoy it. Enemies often return hatred for our love—they persecute us (v. 44). But we are still to love them.

That love must move us to treat them kindly and to pray for them. Someone says, "It can't be done." Yes, it can by the grace of God in Christ, and it is being done.

We need to exercise care lest we fall into the easy habit of speaking with derision or scorn of the ungodly—that wicked, dissipated neighbor who hangs around taverns and other questionable places. Let us never condone their sin—that we should hate—but may God help us to love them and lead them to Christ.

This lesson is indicated as being a temperance lesson. The application can only be made indirectly, but it may have value. The use of alcohol is so destructive of everything that is good, that it is quite obvious it is not in accord with these standards of the kingdom of heaven. It is time some church people decided whether they want to belong to the world or belong to Christ. If the latter is their purpose, we believe the only consistent position to take is that of abstinence from alcoholic liquors.

The next time the curtains are down, give curtain rods a light coat of wax and see how easy it is to replace the curtains. It also prevents rusting.

If a gas smell remains after all the dampers of the furnace are open, place several sheets of newspaper atop of the coal. The paper will go up in flames, taking every trace of gas with it.

Marks on paint made by scratching matches thereon may be removed by rubbing a cut lemon over them.

Save the small brushes from nail polish bottles. Clean them with turpentine. The children will enjoy painting with them.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Mechanical Defects
Mechanical defects in some cases are the direct cause of accidents and a contributing factor in others. The safety section of the bureau of motor carriers, Interstate Commerce commission, found that 6.9 per cent of the accidents reported to it in 1942 were classed as "mechanical defect" accidents.

Yeast Production
The 1944 production of nutritional yeast will be 11,500,000 pounds, a small item in the food supply but indicative of the new recognition of yeast's value as a supplier of protein food and of the vitamin B complex.

Asparagus Bed
A good asparagus bed starts bearing the third season, and will produce good crops for 15 to 20 years more, if the weeds are kept out and the soil is fertilized. Rhubarb will last for a long time, and only requires re-setting of the roots in about eight years, when they get too crowded. The only serious pest of the present rust-free asparagus is the asparagus beetle, and this is easily controlled with a lead arsenate spray or dust.

Heavy Eaters
Food purchases for the approximately 11,000,000 men in our armed forces total about twice that for an equal number of civilians.

Eye Care
Eye exercises, while useful in some cases of poor muscle coordination, are useless for errors of refraction. Don't pin your hopes on vitamins to correct visual shortcomings. Children seldom outgrow defects. Eye washes are not as good as the natural tears of the eyes.

Indian Colors
Color schemes of the American Indian have so advanced in popularity, that one of the country's leading department stores recently sent representatives to Santa Fe, New Mexico, to arrange for a store-wide promotion of the Southwestern Indian color theme.

Chimney Repair
Ask yourself these questions when you're examining heating equipment: Have chimneys been cleaned within a year? Are they in good repair? Are smokepipes too close to burnable material, causing charred spots from radiated heat? Are smokepipes rusted or broken, with holes that sparks can pass through? Are walls, ceilings and partitions protected from overheating of stoves and furnaces? And are stoves and furnaces in good repair?

Stuffed Potatoes
Another way to serve potatoes when butter is scarce is stuffed. Cut the baked potato in half the long way, carefully scoop out the inside so as not to break the shells, then mash and season the part scooped out with salt, pepper, hot milk and thin cream. Then stuff it back into the shells, brush the top with fat, and brown a few minutes in the oven. Chopped green tops of onions or chopped parsley sprinkled over the top adds a touch of spring.

WHY
Michigan Bell
Will Go to Court

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company plans to appeal to the Ingham Circuit Court for relief from an order of the Michigan Public Service Commission directing the company to refund $3,500,000 to its customers. A permanent injunction will be sought to restrain the Commission from putting the order into effect.

We have no liking for litigation. It is a time-consuming process that is as distasteful to the company as it must be to the public.

An order that jeopardizes our ability to provide good service by whittling away at our already inadequate earnings, however, cannot go unchallenged. The public interest impels us to seek the protection of the courts.

The order is based upon the theory that excess profits taxes should be returned to customers rather than to the Federal Treasury as intended by the tax law. One out of every five tax dollars collected by the Treasury today comes from excess profits taxes. In this case, the Government would take a loss of $3,000,000.

Although the Federal Treasury would bear the brunt of the loss involved in such a rebate, one-seventh of the amount would come from the company. The order for 1944, unless restrained, could be repeated for 1945 and other years. Such a whittling process takes on the aspect of a permanent rate reduction to the jeopardy of the service rendered the public.

If we are to take our place in the expanding national economy anticipated after the war, and once again provide service on a basis of "when and where wanted", the Michigan Bell must undertake a postwar construction program requiring the expenditure of $120,000,000 in 5 years. That program will provide jobs not only for its 3,000 men and women returning from the armed forces, but for many others as well.

The telephone industry has no royal road to money to finance its postwar program. It must compete with other industries in the open market for capital. To attract the investor's dollar, our earnings must be comparable with the average for other industries—not at a rate one-third lower, as is the case today.

The Michigan Bell has no desire to profit at the expense of war. It hasn't. The company's wartime earnings today are a quarter lower than in the pre-war period, 1936-39.

The price of telephone service is one of the few things that has not undergone a sharp wartime rise. On the contrary, rate reductions since 1939 are resulting in current savings of nearly $4,350,000 a year to our customers.

There is one thing our customers want, and that is good service. The telephone bill for the best of service is so small a part of the customer's budget that he does not want anything less than the best even though he might get it at a lower cost.

For these reasons, we believe we're under the strongest obligation to seek our day in court. We believe our cause to be a just one in the interest of those served by the company, those who own it, and those who depend upon it for their living.

GREEN U. S. COMMANDERS BLAMED FOR SETBACK

Those in the know inside the Pentagon building say that if there is ever a thorough army probe it will show that U. S. intelligence fell down even more badly than former Chief of Staff Gen. Peyton March indicated regarding advance preparations for the German breakthrough. Even American news dispatches told of German activity behind the lines and lights burning at night.

Military experts also say, however, that other factors contributed to the serious setback, one of them being failure to have experienced colonels and lieutenant-colonels as field commanders. They trace this back to a ruling by the late General McNair, commander of the ground forces, that no colonel over 48 could serve in combat overseas. This meant that many of the regular army, national guard and reserve officers who had been under fire in the last war, trained their men in the United States, went with them to the port of embarkation, then were left behind at desk jobs in the U.S.A. Youngsters, who were only lieutenants or captains in 1941, took their places. These youngsters had all the courage and vigor in the world, but they lacked one thing so all-important in battle—experience under fire.

106TH DIVISION CAVED FIRST

Military experts point out that the division reported to have caved in first when the Germans counter-attacked was the 106th. It had just gone into the line and not one hostile shot had ever been fired over its head. This division gave way like straws before a tornado.

If a committee of congress should ever take the trouble to look up the officers of the 106th division it will find that just before it sailed all its older field officers were removed, and younger, but very green officers, put in their places. Had the 106th division held for only a few hours it would have made all the difference in the world to the rest of the army and to the length of the war.

Military experts say somewhat the same thing happened at Kasserine pass and Salerno. At Kasserine pass, green field commanders ignored the first rudiments of defense, namely that a halted regiment should dig in and prepare field fortifications in enemy territory.

Maj. Gen. Lloyd Fredendall was made the goat at Kasserine pass and transferred back to the U.S.A., just as Maj. Gen. Ernest Dawley was made the goat at Salerno. However, high-up officers, who have studied these battles, say the real fault was not theirs, but that all colonels of the 34th division which lost so heavily at Kasserine were replaced by green field commanders just before the division saw action. To get the entire picture, it is necessary to recall that after Pearl Harbor the army collected the majors, lieutenant-colonels and colonels from the regular army, national guard and reserves who had battle training in World War I, calling many from civil life, and put them in charge of troop training. As a result the army had a sizable group of experienced field officers not easily stampeded.

McNair Copies British.

Then in June 1942, General McNair, commanding the ground forces and an A-1 general in most respects, suddenly decided to copy the British. He found that British colonels were around 45 years of age, so gave verbal orders that no American colonel over 48 could serve with combat troops.

Army experts say that undoubtedly, some colonels and lieutenant-colonels needed to be weeded out for physical or other reasons. The army has been too lax with its physically unfit during soft and easy years of peace. However, they believe that General McNair swung far too far in the other direction.

Fortunately a lot of the troops landing in Normandy were seasoned under fire in Italy. Gen. Mark Clark has done a great job there of baptizing troops. Others, such as General Patch's Seventh army were seasoned at Guadalcanal, but obviously there were not enough seasoned troops to man the long front extending all the way from Holland to the Alps, and the Nazis kept probing one spot after another until they found the softest part of the front. Perhaps their intelligence even knew that green commanders had just come into the line.

CAPITAL CHAFF

One of the last acts of the 76th senate was to cancel from the federal government's list of assets, money borrowed by four southern cities in 1861, just before the Civil war. These have been listed as "unavailable cash" since that date. New Orleans owed $31,164.44, Little Rock, Ark., $5,823.50; Savannah, Ga., $205,76, and Galveston, Texas, $83.36.

First picture shows Puffy fixing his unblinking eyes on Miss Cynara's, as Mr. Newman softly spoke to the girl and counted up to five. When he reached four, Miss Cynara's head fell forward (as shown in lower photo) and she was in a deep sleep. When awakened, Miss Cynara exclaimed, "Where am I? Oh, that terrible cat!"

ROOM RUMORS

Before the gang gathers for the next Harpy Huddle in your bedroom, how about trying out some decorating tricks that cost free and work wonders?

Spool Shelf—You need two smooth boards about 15 inches long and 6 inches wide and 32 empty spools to make an original knick-knack shelf. String the spools on strong cord four rows of eight each. Bore four holes in the boards at the four corners and run the strings through them. Big knots will keep them in place.

Color with paint or polish. Now you have two shelves for knick knacks or nail polish bottles.

Trunk Bunk—Make a padded top for an old trunk and cover the sides with a ruffled founce and you have a comfortable seat for your friends when they gather to talk over tomorrow's assignments or tonight's dates.

Blackboard Bulletin—You thought you were too grown up to have a blackboard in your room, didn't you? Well, just get it back from the attic, cover the wooden frame with padded fabric and hang it over your desk as a bulletin board. You can pin pictures and letters to the frame and write messages and reminders on the blackboard. See?

Lip Trick—Plain paper lamp shades look swonderful if you have your friends autograph them with lipstick kisses. Cover over the lipstick outlines with colorless polish to preserve them.

DOUBLE TALK

Are you majoring in jabberwocky this semester? It's a tough course, but if you study this column conscientiously you may be able to make a passing grade. We've been snooping around soda fountains again and we're in a state of utter confusion about the strange sounds you call conversation.

Pig Latin Variations—You're not content with old fashioned pig Latin. You've discovered new ways to torture the language by adding a certain syllable before every vowel in a word. A favorite is "egg" before every vowel. You sound like the natives on one of Superman's planets.

Added Accents—As they say in that popular song, "You put the accent on the wrong Syll-A-Ble." Better not start this in English class.

Rhyme Time—"How's the weather, Heather?" is the way you're making with the poetry. Here's a gem that doesn't make any sense, but it's typical of your rhymes without reason:

What d'ya mean, Jelly Bean?
What I said, Cabbage Head.
It doesn't rhyme, Frankenstein.
Yes, it do, Fu Manchu.
Don't get hot, Coffee pot.
Don't get mad, Alan Ladd.
Oh, brother—we can read the words but they don't make sense!

The use of colored ink or any tinted papers would be incorrect. Stick to white and off white papers, and gray or black lettering.

Income From Crops Last Year
Increased 10 Per Cent Over '43

Grains Jump 32 Per Cent;
Meats Show Smallest Upturn.

Continued strong demand for farm products, both foreign and domestic, is reported by the U. S. department of agriculture. At the same time it is announced that total receipts for farm marketings for the period January through November, 1944, amounted to about 18,430 million dollars, a 6 per cent increase over the 1943 receipts of 17,312 million dollars.

Income from crops was about 10 per cent greater than 1943, government figures show, while receipts from livestock and livestock products went up only 4 per cent over last year. Greatest gain of any of the commodity groups was made by food grains, which increased 32 per cent over the same period in 1943.

It is expected that the demand for many farm products, at ceiling prices, may continue to exceed supplies, since consumer expenditures probably will not decline as much as national income. After fighting ends in Europe, reductions in the output of war goods may bring about a drop in national income due to reduced employment, particularly overtime, in the industries making such goods.

Crop acreages for 1945, suggested by the War Food administration, call for a slight increase over 1944 plantings, with a small additional production or marketing of most livestock and livestock products, except poultry and eggs. Largest proportionate increases over the 1944 acreage suggested on individual crops include 52 per cent more acres of flaxseed, 47 per cent more sugar beets, 38 per cent more cover crop seeds, 16 per cent more tobacco (other than flue-cured and burley), 11 per cent more sugar-cane (except for syrup), 8 per cent more rye, and 8 per cent more hay seeds. Suggested decreases in acreage include 39 per cent fewer dry beans, 9 per cent less of truck crops grown for the fresh market, and 6 per cent less rice and sorghums (except those for syrup).

Prices Remain Stable.

Prices for agricultural commodities, on the average, have remained stable for more than a year, it is pointed out by USDA, the maximum variation in the index of prices received by farmers being only 2 per cent. A continuation of this stability is anticipated for several months. Lower prices for truck crops and minor grains were found to have been more than offset by higher prices for wheat, corn, cotton, hay and oilseeds. In most cases, according to the reports, these higher prices reflect the increase in government price support levels from 1943 to 1944.

Livestock and livestock products show a drop in the index of about 2 per cent since October, 1943, when it reached the highest point during this war. These changes in prices, according to agricultural economists, reflect basic supply and demand conditions but do not reflect changes in farmers' income due to increases in production payments, which are not included in computing the index.

Meat prices, the USDA report continues, probably will continue at or near ceiling levels in most of 1945. It is expected that prices received by dairy farmers will decline less than seasonally during the months between December, 1944, and March, 1945, probably averaging about the same as a year earlier. Dairy farmers may anticipate the highest level of returns ever reported for that period, because of a higher rate of dairy production payment during the next few months. This would result in milk and butterfat-feed price ratios being more favorable than other important livestock-feed price ratios.

SIZE

We are awed by the size of the universe great;
By its depth and its breadth and its height;
By stars so far distant that years we must wait
Ere our eyes can at last see their light.

Some say, "Of what import is wee little man,
Who rides on a flicker of dust. . .
In a void that's so endless and great
No one can conceive of its reach and its thrust."

And yet there is nothing to daunt us in this,
Whenever the question may rise;
For in thought of man's value we will go amiss,
If we measure him just by his size.

Since nothing in space is so little or small
That it could not be volumes more wee,
And nothing's so big, so great or so tall
That a million times greater 't could be.
With a slight bit of thought it is easy to see . . .

That all is not in size and weight.
The truth is quite plain, that in infinity . . .
The small is as great as the great.
For mind, soul, and being count heavy, and most
By them can man's value be told—
And they are more precious than Milky Way host—
Than worlds in the void that is cold.

Strain of War Cutting Lives of Home Doctors

ST. LOUIS. — Dr. Edgar G. Balenger of Atlanta believes that two or three years has been cut from the life of home-front doctors because of wartime overwork.

"From looking over statistics on mortality of doctors as published in the Journal of the American Medical association, I have seen that the mortality rate of doctors left at home has far exceeded that of those in the armed forces."

Fire Chief Skips His Own Burning House

HIGGINSVILLE, MO.—A $50,000 fire swept through a lumberyard at this place, and ignited the house next to it. Better let it burn, Fire Chief Fred Newman decided, and concentrate on saving the other nearby homes. Newman's home, which was the one next to the lumberyard, was destroyed.

IN THE government's effort to produce a 100 per cent war, an effort which has led to the racing blockade and will lead to the curtailment of other big-time games, what will be sport's future in 1945?

Racing isn't the only sport that will face the axe. There is sure to be a sweeping reclassification of all 4-F's not engaged directly in war production. For example, there are 250 big league ball players classified as 4-F who will be re-examined—and should be. Also, there is a large number of professional football players and college football players who will be reclassified. And there is a strong chance that those who are passed up for active war duty will be called to some essential form of war help, apart from sport.

But there will still be football and other forms of competition at West Point and Annapolis and in all schools housing Navy V-12 trainees. Also, there will be some sport left at those colleges which can muster enough 17-year-olds to carry on, but this leaves a scant margin. In the main these 17-year-olds have been only fillers-in, turning in good jobs just the same.

The main blow will fall upon all professional sport, the play-pay contingent. This will be especially true if those who are still declared unfit for war duty are sent into some form of war work.

Just how this will affect professional boxing and amateur basketball remains to be seen. The rougher blast will hit professional baseball before it reaches pro football, as the latter still has an interval of seven or eight months before another season starts. But the baseball training is scheduled to open within three months—and that's on the shorter side.

For How Long?

How long will this last? Until the war in Europe is won. How long will that be? Your guess probably is as good as that of any commanding general. Many of the latter haven't set any records at guessing correctly so far.

We have had enough—too much—hopeful wishing to keep on making the same mistake. Of course, the pro football and pro baseball players still participating in their sports are only a minute part of 11,000,000 or 12,000,000 men in the armed services.

It isn't any one sport alone. It is the massed front of so many sports that use up gasoline, men needed for war work, travel accommodations, and so forth. And it isn't easy to discriminate.

Along the narrow path of sane reasoning, there seems little chance that the war in Europe will be ended by early summer, with the war against Japan closing at a much later date. This will make it difficult for any pro baseball league to open in April or May. It will be a rough undertaking to make up leagues composed of those under 18 and those older than 36 or 38.

At this time high school sport should be encouraged in place of being cut down. The toughest part of the German army today is composed of those 11 to 14-year-old kids Hitler started training and building up 10 years ago. Over here we have paid far too little attention to the physical development of those in the same age brackets.

One-Fourth Lost

We have been losing 25 per cent of our 18-year-old draftees for physical reasons, while Germany, Norway, Sweden and other European countries have lost only 7 to 9 per cent. To have 25,000 of every 100,000 18-year-olds unfit for military service is a rough indictment on the way we have handled this part of the job.

Football, with more than seven months' leeway, has a better break than baseball has. But seven months may not be long enough. Racing, which was planning to open a new season from California to Florida, via New Orleans, takes the hardest jolt. Racing's losses will run far beyond the combined losses of football, baseball and all other banned or stifled sports put together.

Yet, there will be plenty of sport in 1945, but it won't be big-time, big-money sport. In an all-out, 100 per cent war, there can be no discrimination of any sort.

We have already found out we can't win with a 60 per cent effort against Germany and Japan. The public at large, including every form of sport, should get back of this 100 per cent effort with 100 per cent support until the war is won.

You can see how a man with one arm or one leg, or families with husbands and brothers now buried under crosses, or without crosses, all over the world, should begin to look with doubt upon fine-looking young athletes dashing from goal to goal or circling the bases in a pennant race.

Water to Mexico

To help Mexico save 170,000 acres of valuable irrigated crops that were caught in a drought this summer, the United States sent to the affected area approximately two billion gallons of water a day from July 19 to September 13 by diverting it into the Alamo canal from the All-American canal in southern California.

G.I.s and Jumbo Make Good Team

Capt. Stanley R. Hall, post exchange officer of the South East Asia command, moves a 2,600 pound electric refrigerator into the PX with the help of a group of G.I.s and a 35-year-old elephant. Jumbo, or Karunavathi, was rewarded with a quarter stalk of bananas and a few slices of bread. The G.I.s will share contents of refrigerator.

Chinese Singing

Community singing was unknown in China six years ago, being confined merely to short verses chanted by men at work. Even the operas consisted of solo parts. Today, however, in face of the present crisis, patriotic war songs are popular everywhere, and sometimes as many as 10,000 voices are united in a demonstration.

Gen. Arnold Welcomes Bong Home

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the U. S. army air forces, is shown as he welcomed Maj. Richard Bong, who has just returned from the southwest Pacific. This is first photo of General Arnold wearing his new five star insignia, denoting his rank of "General of the Armies." Bong is still leading ace of war.

Hand Grenade Yank

Trained for rough hand-to-hand battle, this coastguardsman of the rugged Greenland patrol, yanks the fuse of a hand grenade with his teeth and prepares to let it fly at the enemy. Even on Greenland he secured practice against Nazis.

Hold Italian Mule Lottery

Italian farmers, in liberated areas of Italy, who had lost much of their livestock as a result of the war, are being afforded a chance to acquire mules and horses. Drawings are held and the lucky winners are given a chance to purchase the livestock. The drawings are held under the direction of the Allied armies.

Polish War Orphans

An excited bunch of kids, little Polish war orphans, pile down the gangway of a troop transport far from war's dangers. They had embarked at Bombay, India, to find a new home thousands of miles from their ravaged homeland.

Bombing Plays a Strange Trick

One of the freak effects sometimes achieved by high explosive bombs is seen in this photo, of a town in France, on the U. S. Third army front. The big building at the end of the street took a direct hit and was split down the center. One-half of the building disintegrated into rubble, the other remained standing firm.

Worker Trend
John D. Durand, population expert of the U. S. census bureau, predicts that by 1950 over three million women who never worked before will have joined the labor force; this group, he says, will include an alarming number of women over 35 who are "likely to be a serious complication in the postwar employment problem because of the preference of most employers for younger workers."

Artificial Eyes
Germany, through her "Reichsverband," controlled the export of artificial eyes and the glass for making them. Her monopoly was comparable to that of the Venetians who kept their glass-making artisans virtually imprisoned on the island of Murano in the 16th and 17th centuries. Until the war, practically all artificial eyes were blown from a special glass with a velvety texture that could be made only in one place in the world — the little town of Lauscha in Thuringen, Germany.

School NOTES...

High School
Semester examinations are in order this week in the junior and senior high school. All students are taking these examinations, and the results will count one-third in determining the semester mark. Report cards will be issued on Wednesday of next week and will contain the mark obtained in each of the three periods of the first semester, the examination mark and the final mark of the semester.

The Junior and Senior High School students are going to sell magazines. Bill Randall is the general manager. Each class has a captain as follows: 12th grade Betty Roach, 11th grade Dwayne Leslie, 10th grade, Jean Lanski, 9th grade Dick Berube, 7 and 8th grades Opal Lintz. The Classes are going to have a contest to see which grade can sell the largest amount of magazines.

The School is to receive one half of the amount from the sale of the Curtis Periodicals and 30 percent of any other sales. Last year our school made over $100.00. In this manner, and we hope to be able to repeat it this year. We are going to use the money to buy gym-mats. These mats will be used to protect the boys from running into the walls in basketball games, and gym the rest of the time.

Shop Notes
Darwin Groff conducted a few experiments with fluorescent lighting this week. He took old bulbs apart to show the class how they work. Darwin has perfected a manually controlled starter switch with which he can do trouble shooting on fluorescent lights. Now that he can duplicate all of the flickering and spirals that go with this type of lighting, let us hope some is eliminated from the study hall.

A new safety switch has been installed on the jig-saw. It is foot-operated, making it easy to start and stop the saw while both eyes and hands are busy watching and holding the work.

Although our shop is small and we have eight power tools, a forge and large classes, there has not been an accident in the shop this semester.

7th and 8th Grades
Frank Taylor of Hastings Nebraska, is a new pupil in the Eighth Grade. We are reviewing for our semester examinations which will be held this week.

Our room collected over three dollars for the Junior Red Cross. We are glad to have Florence Bradford back with us again. She has been out a month on account of illness.

5th and 6th Grades
The membership roll for Junior Red Cross consists of 40 members. Last week we bought $29.45 in Defense Stamps.

Janet Ogden and Margaret Kendall received perfect scores on our six-weeks spelling test. Betty Lossing has gone back to Bay City.

Our room has been honored by having a Certificate of Honor placed on the bulletin board. This award was given to the school for the sale of TB Seals.

Cedenia Bradford is back in school after a long absence on account of illness.

3rd and 4th Grades
We are glad to have Christine Bradford back with us again. Mr. Giddings brought us the Junior Red Cross material last week. We have nearly all our names on the membership roll.

Our room will receive the Junior Red Cross Magazine. Third and Fourth Grade pupils who had A in last week's spelling test were: Nancy Reed, Dolores and Jeanette Konenski, Jacqueline Misener, Neal and Rolland Hughes, Ronald Chaney Larry Brown, Geneva Ulman, Tommy Morley, Charles Landon, Bruce Erickson, Kay Brunning, Jimmie Clements, Patsy Montgomery, Darlene Bariger, Joan Ulman, Nancy Eastham, Barbara Erickson and Billy Brown.

Primary Room
Norman Brown, Kaye Frank, Janies Pomerantz, Neil Abbot, Sharon Boomer, and Dwight Finley were neither tardy nor absent during the six week period which ended last Friday.

Richard Lansky and Arthur Abbot visited our room during the week. Our monitors for the week are John Engles, Janet Lansky, Joyce Russel, Kaye Frank, Jerry Kendal, Bessie Linse and Marvin Clements.

Kindergarden
Arthur Abbott, Patricia Ashmore and Justus Austin have had perfect attendance for the six week period ending last Friday.

The kindergarden is now working on an animal picture book. Beverly Cadorette is back in school after being absent a week. We have learned a new song "Betsy's Tail."

Birdsfoot Trefoil
Birdsfoot trefoil is primarily a forage crop for land that is not to be plowed often. It does best on good soil, but will grow and persist on rather wet situations and on shallow, drouthy soils.

Egg Noodles
In soup or broth for supper, quick egg noodles can be made by beating one or two eggs with a little salt until foamy, then blending the beaten egg with flour, using two table-spoons flour for each egg. Pour the mixture in a thin steady stream into simmering broth, stirring constantly. Cook two minutes and serve at once.

Capt. Charles Bonney and wife, Lieut. Bonney, nurse, arrived Sunday on a 10 day leave with the former parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bonney. Capt. Bonney has just completed 34 months of overseas duty. He served one and a half years in Australia and the remainder in New Guinea with the Air Corp Intelligence. He received his commission as Second Lieutenant in 1938 at M.S.C. and went into active service in 1940. His wife has been with the Red Cross as a nurse for the past two years in the Hawaiian Islands and recently returned home.

Pfc. Frederick A. Rempert, somewhere in the Pacific Area, writes "I got a surprise yesterday. I was on bunk reading and when I looked up, there stood Fred Wescott. We had quite a talk, and this morning I went down to see him, and stayed for dinner. They had turkey. Fred had a couple of snapshots taken of us together and when they are developed he will send them home. He is the first fellow I've met from home since I've been overseas."

Nest Over Winter
Many of the fungi and bacteria that cause plant diseases nest over winter in last season's plant refuse. Burning the debris is the surest way to kill these fungi and bacteria. Changing the location of crops in the garden from year to year is another preventive against plant diseases.
