the doctrine of pursuit aviation. The warning net is of course secret and cannot be discussed in detail. But if you imagine two con-centric circles, one with a radius of one hundred kilometers and the other of two hundred kilometers, around each of most of the fields and large cities in Free China, you have a general picture. In these circles are thousands of reporting stations -some within the enemy lines, some right on the enemy fields themselves. There may be a coolie sitting on a city wall watching for airplanes or listening for engine noise and reporting it with a visual signal. There may be a mandarin in a watch tower; a soldier in a field with a walkie-talkie radio. All reports finally get in to the outer circle, where some of the information is refiltered, and finally it goes to the plotting-board in our cave or operations shack. There Chinese interpreters get the reports and move little pin flags along the map of China-and we know where every enemy ship is in our territory and can see where ours are. The net works so efficiently in certain areas that we don't take off until the Japs are within the one-hundredkilometer circle; this gives us more fuel with which to fight.

When the Japs come we know at what altitude they are approaching and from exactly what direction. Waknow their speed and their numbers. It's kind of a joke, too, that in several places we know when the Japanese roll their ships from their hangars or revetments, when they start their engines, and when they take off. Also it not only works for the obvious purpose of defense but has permitted us in many cases to locate lost pilots, for the navigation facilities in China are not the world's best.

Of course the locating of lost, friendly ships took another element besides the warning net. It required the existence of intelligent radio operators who knew the country and had common sense. These men, like Richardson, Mihalko, Miller, and Sasser, with others, stayed out there with us, and if you count the AVG aces as the first factor that permitted us to carry on in a manner that didn't discredit the Flying Tigers, then these men who helped us by radio were the close second factor.

Suppose that one of our pilots, returning from a flight, loses his position on his map because of a crosswind, because of unfamiliarity with the country, because of his own stupidity-which we call a "showt circuit between the head-phones"-or just because the maps of China are very inaccurate. In many such instances we would have lost an airplane worth virtually millions in our combat zone, and perhaps the pilot too.

The pilot who is lost calls the ra-

Most of these players, numbering twenty or thirty, will have to wait for another year. All left deep impression on baseball fans and their mark in baseball history, but only a few can be chosen.

Any Hall of Fame that becomes too crowded and has too many names, loses at least a part of its enduring value. But the long list of available names still left, proves again why baseball for over sixty years has contributed so much to the sporting side of American life.

There are any number of old stars who won't even get a vote-who won't even be mentioned-and yet these are not so far away from top rank. Your correspondent has been covering and watching baseball for over forty years, yet the problem of selecting leaders from the long parade of stars becomes a blur.

"How," we keep muttering, "can anyone leave so-and-so out?" You might suggest that if a ball player isn't a standout, why should he be considered? But what are you going to do about so many standouts-at least so many who have given so much skill and color to the game that they wind up in a photo finish? Ed Delehanty, Frank Frisch, Dizzy Dean, Mickey Cochrane, Herb Pennock, Gabby Hartnett, once again it is on and on.

Frank Chance

For example, there's Frank Chance, named as "The Peerless Leader" of the old Cubs. Chance led his Cubs to four pennants and two world series from 1906 through 1910. His Cubs set an all-time, upto-date winning record in 1906. The Cubs of Chance, the Giants of Mc-Graw and the Athletics of Connie Mack were among the greatest of all ball clubs over a period of years. It was F.P.A., also known as Franklin Pierre Adams, who sound ed the best remembered tocsin of Chance and his Cubs. After more than thirty years, where our mem-

Colonel Cooper and I-Cooper had been in the movie production business-used to discuss the peculiar beauty of the place, and he'd say that it would make the greatest location in the world for a moving picture. It was a flat, tableland country, and over the ages it must have been under water. From the level plain rose vertical, rocky hills, like stalagmites. These were honeycombed with caves where water, when they were submerged, must have dissolved the limestone that had been in the pockets. Evidently the glacier period had planed the valley flat as the glacier moved South, but the jagged rocks had withstood the pressure. Then, as the glacier melted, the caves had formed under water. Now the gray pinnacles of lava-like rock pointed straight towards the heavens. These one-thousand- to two-thousand-foot sentinels gave the valley an eery appearance that always subdued my general feeling of cheerfulness. As long as I went to Kweilin, I dreaded | might easily get lost. the extra nervous tension that I a summer temperature of over 100 his pilots towards Kunming. Frank Schiel, who was very busy training the most junior members of this new fighter group in the way of fighter aviation. I got the Group headquarters to running and stood by for orders to begin leading the fighter forces in action to the East. On July 10, Tex Hill led a small flight, including Baumler, Alison, Lieut. Lee Minor, and Lieut. Elias, up on the Yangtse. Their prime job was to escort a few B-25 medium bombers against the docks of Hankow. This objective of mission with our China force was never all we considered to be the duty of our fighters, for if any other target presented itself after the bombers were on the way home, we'd have some fun. Tex Hill led his flight along with the bombers, who were led by Col. C. V. Haynes. After the bombs had been released and the B-25's were heading back for base with their bomb-bay doors closed. Tex called for an attack by the fighters on the enemy shipping in the river.

One of the bomber pilots said that Tex rolled his ship over from sixteen thousand feet and streaked down for the Jap gunboats below. The little gunboats were shooting everything they had at the American fighters-but that, I've learned since, was what Hill liked. Tex Hill's guns were firing even as he pulled out right on the water, and they swept the decks of the enemy gunboats. The bomber pilot said that as the fighter ships would turn low to the water and come in, each concentrating on one of the little Jap warships, he could see the six lines of fifty-calibre tracers cutting across the water. At long range they seemed to meet out in front of the fighter and then fan out and cover the deck of the target. Then, as the speed of the fighter narrowed the range, the point where the fire crossed-the zero or convergence point of the guns-was right at the waterline of the Jap boat, and it must have knocked in a hole that crippled the boat right away. On the second attack one of these gunboats was sinking and on fire. Hill's four fighters sank all four of the little metal gunboats. Next day, on another flight such as this one, Hill led eight fighters, General Chennault had developed. force in China, and without it our chances there against the Japanese would have been hopeless.

It seems that the General had always known that Japan was our natural enemy. When he was re-tired from the Air Corps, instead of staying on his farm in Waterproof, Louisiana, for the rest of his life and living an easy life shooting ducks and fishing, he had gone to four with wing bombs, for dive- China. Here, in a rugged existdio station that he thinks is closest to him, and in code tells the trouble. The radioman tells him to circle the next town he passes for a few minutes. Down in that town, marked on his map with an unknown Chinese character, some member of this warning net sees him and reports one P-40 circling. In a few minutes the radio operator gets the report and tells the pilot: "You're reported over Lufeng-fly fifty-eight degrees at two hundred miles an hour and we'll have supper readywe've got grits tonight-yeah.' One amusing but near-tragic instance of this orientation by means of the air-warning net happened about the time the AVG induction board came to China. Another fighter group commander had waited for several days over in India to come into China with a large flight of P-40E 1's. He finally came over on a transport and eventually got tired of waiting for the fighters. He didn't know that the weather was very bad in Burma, and that the monsoon winds from the South could take them so far off course in a few minutes that the entire flight After a long wait he came back the southerly wind, and in a very short time he was fifty miles South of his course and near two Japanese fields. His unbashful deputy leaders herded him to the North. And then the monsoon wind from out the Indian Ocean began to work on his navigation, and in another hour he natural caves, and the radio set in was lost far to the North of the course. Night was falling, and the hills of North China were rising threateningly.

Then the net, if it hadn't justified its existence long before, would have begun to pay for itself. The leader called Kunming, and the operator Many times it has saved our fighter there, a tough old former Navy man, heard him and gave the instructions: "Circle the first town you see." The group commander began to argue at once-said he didn't have enough gas to waste circling; but the AVG radio-man talked him into doing it. Then the net reported, and Kunming operator said, "You're over Yangpi-fly 240 degrees for twenty minutes and you'll see the lake Kunming is on.' (TO BE CONTINUED)

As I recall it, Charles Dryden was the first to call Chance "The Peer-less Leader." Later on Charley shortened this title to P. L. Chance was a great fighting field manager. He was a fine first baseman, a dangerous hitter. But above all a game, scrappy battler, fearing nothing, not even a flock of bean-balls.

Gamest Players

Which reminds me that the two gamest ballplayers I ever knew were Johnny Evers and Walter Maranville. They played together for the Boston Braves of 1914-the overlooked team that whipped the famous Athletics four straight games. Evers was as smart as he was a big part of our baseball history. He is now at his old home, Troy, knew it would produce. Add to this to Assam in the transport and led N. Y., and if you get the chance drop him a hello.

Pepper Martin was another who belonged in this class. By that I mean any one of the three mentioned would break a leg or a back or a neck to win a ball game-or even to get an extra base. Maybe you can name me a gamer ballplayer than Evers, Maranville or Martin. Maybe you can-but I doubt it. They were the Three Musketeers of baseball who could take it-no matter what it was-take t and like it.

Passing Marvel

It is still my belief that Harry Gilmer, Alabama's crack rifleman, is the best college passer I ever saw, including Sammy Baugh. This might be taken as a rather large order. The Alabama kid, barely 18, weighing from 158 to 160 pounds, narrow-shouldered and thinchested, is the top artist of them all. Gilmer is not only a brilliant long and short passer, accurate to the inch, but he is the only passer I ever saw who can keep nailing a target 50 yards away.

When Shintoism rose in Japan its teachings prohibited the eating of the meat of animals. Groups that continued eating animal meat or handling animal hides were declared "unclean." STORY BEHIND MONTGOMERY-BRADLEY COMMAND SHIFT There is significant background behind the appointment of British Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery to command two American armies, thereby taking away most of the command of Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley. There are also interesting reasons why it was kept such a hush-hush matter from the American public.

General Bradley has now been awarded the bronze star by Eisenhower and congratulated by Churchill to take the sting out of his loss of the First and Ninth armies. The idea that Bradley made the transfer himself also has been publicized. Despite these maneuvers it is known inside the war depart-ment that highest U. S. war chiefs opposed the transfer to Montgomery and that it was put across by General Eisenhower anyway.

Background of the reshuffle goes back to the landing in Normandy last summer when Montgomery was given Caen as his objective, while Bradley was to take Cherbourg. Bradley reached his objective ahead of schedule in a new type of offensive fighting, in which U. S. troops did not wait for supplies to come up nor for snipers to be wiped out.

Montgomery, using more conservative, slow-moving, old-fashioned tactics, sat with his army at Caen and either could not or would not break through until long after schedule, and until Bradley, ignoring Mont-gomery, smashed the Nazi lines to the south and started the lightning dash to Paris.

'Montgomery Demoted.'

Afterward, the Stars and Stripes carried a story that Bradley was being promoted to the rank of full general and would supersede Montgomery. The Stars and Stripes being an official army newspaper, the story naturally was true. But publication in London caused such a furor among the British that the British broadcasting company went on the air with an emphatic denial. After that the shift of armies was held up for a while, until Montgomery could be made a Field Marshal to appease both him and Brit-ish public opinion. Bradley then took over command of all the American armies under Eisenhower, and Montgomery was left only with the two British and Canadian armies in Holland and Belgium. Since then Monty has been waiting for his chance to stage a comeback. His friends of the British press-of whom he has many-have been doing the same. So immediately following the German breakthrough, he began pressuring Eisenhower to give him the American First and Ninth armies.

Montgomery is a superb defensive figher. When his back was to the wall at El Alamein just a few miles from Cairo, he did a great job. 1941, Canada was able to offer When given offensive jobs as in free use of the airways to Alaska, Sicily, at Caen, and at Arnhem he failed to make the grade.

Ferry pilots fly planes destined for Russia from the factories in the United States to Edmonton, Canada. After refueling and servicing they proceed by either of two routes to Fairbanks, Alaska, where Russian pilots take over. One air route follows the Alaskan military highway. There are numerous landing fields along the road where stops are made. The other route goes almost parallel, about 250 miles to the east, along the Mackenzie river.

American ferry pilots have brought more than 5,000 American built planes over this route to Fairbanks, Alaska, where Russian pilots take over, flying the craft across the Bering sea to bases in Siberia, and on to Europe.

Canada pioneered the air route across the Canadian northwest when 'bush pilots," operating flimsy planes, began operating in the area in the 1920s. The Canadian department of transport made a survey of routes to the Yukon in 1935, when the present route was chosen. When war broke out in 1939, work on

OCAL sewing centers report that | enthusiasm is running high ment. among the bobby sox group who are being taught to make their own pretty clothes, in classes conducted especially for them. Stitching up frocks and blouses, skirts and cunning aprons and even making simple suits are assignments that teenagers are mastering with ease. These ambitious young moderns get their hands on the family sewing machine or rent one, and after a few lessons even beginners find that they can easily and thriftily double their wardrobes without straining their allowance. Their bright minds are quick to grasp the uses of almost miracle - working sewing attachments, and they make short work of ruffles, applique, monogramming and all the rest of the expert finishes that give distinction to couturier fashions. It's important for every patriotic teen-age miss to take up the matter of reclaiming various closet castoffs, and there's a lot of fun 'and satisfaction in transforming "castoffs" into wearable fashion-right clothes. After a few hours of instruction any college miss can transform that extra pair of brother's old trousers the wrong hang in the finished gar-

In making over a pair of trousers into a skirt, experts advise a simple four-gored or pleated-front skirt pattern as the most satisfactory choice. After the trousers have been ripped apart, cleaned and pressed, turn them upside down, using the narrow or bottom part for the waistline. If the trouser width is not sufficient to take care of pleats, seam in an extra strip that's been cut out of the unused part.

A discarded suit of a brother in the army can be counted on to yield ideal salvage material for a smart tailored jumper, styled after the manner of the attractive model to the right.

The jumper to the left is also of salvaged material, the suit used being of light colored wool. Even if you buy a few yards of gabardine or wool crepe for the jumper, a canvass of the family closets is likely to yield up enough castoff garments to provide any number of interesting blouses to wear with one's jumper. To give fabric - saving wartime wardrobes a maximum fashion rating, it's clever strategy to practice "mix and match" magic. A jacket into a good looking companion skirt that co-stars with a skirt or a jump-for the plaid jacket, made of faly with a plaid blouse are good examples of teaming that give the effect of extra costumes. The tiny sketches below in the illustration offer suggestions for mixand-match costumes reclaimed from discarded garments. The plaid blouse to the left was made from a "has been" bathrobe, the slacks of fine cloth salvaged from man's navy flannel houserobe, the suit jacket came from brother's back-number coat and the plaid skirt was cut out of the lower portion of a plaid bathrobe.

Your eyes show tired strain. So don't forget that a good eye

How much of Eisenhower's decision to put Montgomery in command of the two American armies depended upon his ability as a defensive fighter, and how much on British pressure is not known. It is known, however, the transfer of commands was opposed in the war department and was carefully hushed-up for two weeks and not even all of the top-ranking executives in the Pentagon building knew about it.

Also it is a significant fact that Eisenhower is answerable to Churchill as well as Roosevelt. He cannot be removed by Roosevelt without Churchill's O.K. and he has to get along with both. That is an important point not realized by many. But not to be forgotten.

Note: Rivalry among high ranking generals exists in every war, probably worse in the last war. General Pershing and Gen. Peyton March, U. S. chief of staff, were hardly on speaking terms. General Pershing also sent Gen. Clarence Ransom Edwards of Boston, hero of New England, home from France because of clashing personalities.

Many of the veterans of World War I found employment in the florist industry. The Society of American Florists has undertaken to perform a real service to the maimed, the crippled, the deaf and the mentally upset veteran. The society hopes to place from 12,000 to 15,000 disabled men.

The florist industry is unique in that it is able to find a place for men with almost every type of disability. To the emotionally upset veteran suffering from shock of combat or training, or the one with arrested tuberculosis or other chronic disease, working with growing things outdoors or in greenhouses in peaceful sunny surroundings offers one of the best of therapeutic healing agents.

To the man with loss of leg or arm or other serious physical handicap, there is the opportunity of reeducating and strengthening muscle. hand and body, and at the same time receiving pay for his work. Types of jobs particularly adapted to men with such disabilities are grafting, hybridizing, making cuttings, potting, pinching, etc. They also may engage in sorting or grading of flowers and in floral arrangement. Exservicemen desiring to enter the florist field should get in touch at once with their nearest veterans' representative. They can also obtain information from members of

Glove Modes Stress Color, Soft Styling

The fashion outlook for spring is the softer dressmaker look in gloves. Generally speaking, rayon jersey will be "the" fabric of fabrics, both in short lengths and long. Shortages of familiar leathers and other glove fabrics challenge both manufacturer and designer to bring their genius and imagination into play. Gloves will flaunt unusual trims such as laces, piques, patent leather and embroideries, though the practical allpurpose glove will be the simple classic that most people want, ex-cept for gala wear. The continued acceptance of the cap sleeve insures a bright future for the long glove. The mosquetire is good but it will vie this year with the removable hand glove. There will be color galore this spring. The pink family will especially be a winner. Fuchsia is still good, and later fancy will turn to white.

JESUS' CONCERN FOR ALL

LESSON TEXT-Matthew 9:1, 9-13, 18-26. GOLDEN TEXT-Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.-Matthew 7:12.

What is a man worth? Well, say we, that depends, and then we are prone to undervalue him. Jesus had

(and taught) a high regard for the inherent value of man. He saw pos-sibilities in all men. He had a love for them. He was concerned about their welfare, and they responded by an interest in Him. Jesus showed by His dealings with men how wrong are most of the standards and attitudes of the world.

I. No Social Barrier (vv. 1, 9, 10).

The caste system of some lands, dividing people into social strata which separate men and hinder fel-owship, does not exist in our land.

Yet, in practice, we have such levels which are a formidable barrier in the thinking of many (perhaps

Jesus knew nothing of social barriers. He ignored them and went straight to the one in need. In our lesson it was a man of position and wealth who was an outcast among his people because he was a hated

Jesus saw in him a man of faith and a useful witness for Him.

And He not only talked with him, but called him to be His disciple.

Then He went further and, to the astonishment of His critics, went in to a great feast where many such men were gathered.

He ate with publicans and sinners, not because He approved of their manner of life, but because He want-ed to change it as He changed them.

II. No Fear of Criticism (vv. 11-13).

Many a kind and noble impulse hany a kind and note impuse has died a-borning because of the fear of criticism. "What will people say?" has kept many a Christian from speaking to some sinner about his (or her) soul.

"The world is too much with us—" and we all too often guide our lives and service by the possible reaction we may receive from those round about us. We did not learn such an calling them, so long as they trust in their own goodness. He came to seek and to save sinners (v. 13, and

We, too, may go forward without fear of our critics. That doesn't mean that we "don't care what peo-ple think" about us. We ought to care, but if their opinion is based gatherer of taxes for Rome.

most) people.

III. No Limitation of Time and Place (vv. 18-22).

need is circumscribed by so many regulations that those who most deserve help cannot get it. There are times and places for application forms, and tests must be completed, etc. Doubtless much of this is needed, but one wonders at times whether our charitable impulses have not disappeared under a mountain of red tape.

Be that as it may, how interesting it is to see that Jesus met the need when and where it appeared. He was already on one errand of mercy when the sick woman touched His robe. He was not too busy nor too preoccupied to stop and give her a word of help and comfort (v. 22).

Is there not a significant lesson here for us in the church? The need is reason enough for the extension of our help. The place is anywhere that men are in sadness or sorrow, and the hour is nowwhen they need our help.

IV. No Lack of Power (vv. 23-26). How often the human heart is prompted to help, and willing hands are ready to follow its promptings in loving action, yet we find that we cannot do anything. The need is too great for our meager resources. Our strength does not suffice. We have no money, or the situation is one beyond human help.

How wonderful it is then to remember the Lord Jesus! A touch on the hem of His garment in faith made the woman whole (v. 22). A word from Him brought the dead little girl out to face the scorners of Jesus, in the bloom of life and health.

Has He lost any of His great power? No. He is just "the same yesterday, and today, and forever" (Heb. 13:8). Why not trust Him?

Do you need help-spiritual, mental, physical? He is able. He has no prejudice regarding your social position. He will meet you right where you are, and right now. He is seeking the sick and the sinful-'the lost, the last, and the least.' Look to Him by faith.

The great Physician now is near, The sympathizing Jesus: It speaks, the drooping heart to cheer; O hear the voice of Jesus.

GOVERNMENT ORDER

CONCERNING THE USE OF ELECTRICITY

EFFECTIVE FEBRUARY 1 '45

War requirements have created a shortage in the supply of coal and other fuels. In order to save fuels used in the generation of electricity, the War Production Board has issued an order (Utilities Order U-9) providing that-

Electricity Shall Not be Used for Any Of the Following Purposes:

(1) Outdoor advertising and outdoor promotional advertising.

(2) Outdoor display lighting, except where necessary for the conduct of the business of outdoor establishements.

(3) Outdoor decorative and outdoor or namental lighting.

(4) Show window lighting except where necessary for interior illumination.

(5) Marquee lighting in excess of 60 watts for each marquee.

(6) White way street lighting in excess of the amount determined by local public authority to be necessary for public safety.

(7) Outdoor sign lighting except for:

(a) Directional or indetification signs required for fire and police protection traffic control, transportation terminals or hospitals; or directional or identification signs for any similar essential public services the lighting of which is specifically certified to be necessary by local public authority.

(b) Directional or identification signs using not more than 60 watts per establishment, for doctors and for hotels and other public lodging establishments.

VIOLATIONS *

If the War Production Board determines that any person is using electricity in violation of this order, it may direct the electric supplier serving such person to disconnect service and prescribe the conditions under which service may be reconnected.

In addition, any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or who in connection with this order wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information to any department or agency of the United States is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment.

* APPEALS

Any person affected by this order who considers that compliance will work an exceptional or unreasonable hardship on him or who considers that compliance will endanger public health or safety may appeal for relief to the district office of the War Production Board of the area in which the consumer is located.

★ EFFECTIVE DATE

Effective date of that portion of the order forbidding use of electricity for the purposes specified above is February 1, 1945.

But the emergency condition of the nation's coal pile already exists, so we urge all customers not to wait for February 1but to discontinue all unnecessary use of electricity now. There's no shortage of electric generating capacity but there is a shortage of coal. When you save electricity you save coal and help win the war.
