twin-engine bomber and was right down low over the clouds, just as I was. Down below now were holes in the overcast, and I imagine the bomber was trying to locate its position to go down through. He didn't see my ship, and I kept hidden by the clouds as much as possible. I felt my left hand go to the instrment panel to turn on the gunswitch. Then, as I looked at the red switch, I saw that I had evidently turned it on without being conscious of the act. I moved it off, then back on again, as a kind of test. I turned the gun-sight rheostat on and got the lighted sight reflected on my glass armor in front of my eyes. The enemy ship came on, 'mushrooming' in my vision; our relative speed of approach was perhaps five hundred miles an hour. By now I had shoved everything forward on the throttle quadrantthe engine was pulling full power, and the prop pitch was set to high speed, low pitch.

Then, just before I pressed the trigger, I saw the other planes, two enemy fighters above and behind the bomber. I had evidently hundred-mile route to the East, and not been seen by any of the three ships, for after all I was coming on I went on top of the overcast right very close to the clouds. But I away. From my twenty-thousandnearly stopped my aiming from the foot altitude I kept looking down at surprise of seeing them. They were about three thousand feet above the the solid cloud layer just below me, and I guess that subconsciously I prayed there would be breaks at my | bomber, and were weaving back and destination. There were mountains forth in loose formation. I saw the at my destination too, and it's still square wing-tip that told they were mind the warning that I had heard from General Chennault about attacking bombers when there was fighter escort. Everyone in China had always neglected to consider didn't see the welcome shadow of odds on the side of the enemy-they a hole in the clouds. In just a little were used to that. Personally, I over two hours I arrived over the just didn't know enough about aerial point above the clouds where Ling-ling should have been. You see this combat to worry much, or I might have gone on anyway. My six guns would neutralize their four; I could shoot the bomber down and dive into the clouds before the Zeros could North I knew at least what side of get me.

I really don't know whether I thought it all out or not, for by now I was shooting. The tracers seemed to go towards the enemy all right, but now the Jap came into my sights so fast that I don't know whether they hit him then or not. I dove right under the nose of the twinengine ship, and I'll bet he was one surprised pilot. I noted that he had started to turn and maybe that made me miss.

As the ship crossed over my head, I pulled around in the tightest turn I have ever made, mushing down in the clouds a good distance, and that must have hid me momentarily from the fighter escort. As I came out, the bomber was completing its turn opposite to the way I had turned, and I moved in for a fulldeflection shot-a shot possible when the other ship is crossing your path, at 90 degrees. I had slowed down, however, and had to reef in and shoot at it from beneath and behind. I got a good burst in here.

But now I saw tracers all around me and felt a couple of hits: the Zeros were shooting at me. One of the enemy fighters dove in front of me and I got a snap shot at it from a hundred yards. I dove under the bomber again, and with the speed that I gained, tried to make a belly attack; I got in another shot burst and felt some more hits on my

As I pulled up, the Zero that had been shooting at me made the mistake of rolling at the top of his climb, and I dove at him and gave him about two hundred rounds with a no-deflection shot; I know the burst hit him badly. I shot at the other fighter from long range as he tried a head-on run. But the clouds were worrying the Japs-they seemed to have trouble seeing me. As my dive at the Zero built my speed up, I turned towards the bomber again; it saw me and started a turn to

I'll never forget. I had just looked | the right. I snapped a short head-on at the fuel gauge for the hundredth shot, and before I got to the enamy ship, I tossed caution to the winds and made a hundred and eighty degree turn-the Jap was right in front of my guns and I was already I saw an enemy airplane—one sil-houette. From that second on, I shooting. I held the trigger down and saw the tracers hit the big wing, know I moved automatically. I saw the fuselage, and saw the glass that on our courses we were going stream from the canopy. I just to meet head-on. the bomber seemed to come back

> As I drew up to less than a hundred yards the big red spots on the wing grew wider and wider apart, and I saw pieces come from the left engine. I nearly rammed the enemy-I still don't see how I missed the radio antenna pole behind the glass canopy; I could see the guns waving to and fro, and they shot at me.

But the bomber was going down. I didn't pull up as I went past him this time, but dove steeply. When I came out of the dive I looked back for the Zeros but they were not to be seen. Above and behind me, the bomber was spinning slowly in flames, the black smoke making a spiral above the clouds-I saw it go into the clouds as I mushed through in my pullout. I came out below the clouds, which were broken in a few places now, but I couldn't see the Jap ships. I made one half circle and didn't know where I was.

Finally remembering my fuel supply, I breathlessly glanced at the gauges, and they were all bouncing around on-EMPTY! I turned and headed West with my throttle retarded and the prop set back for cruising. Now I called Sasser, having forgotten to call him at the moment of contact with the enemy. I told him about the interception, that I knew I had shot down the bomber and had gotten some bursts on the fighters. Sasser told me that there was a flight on the way from Hengyang, led by Gil Bright.

My altitude was ten thousand now and I held it while I just about glided with power to the West, where I should see the Hengyang-Kweilin railroad. As I finished my report over the radio, Sasser in Kweilin told me S-3, and Richardson at Hengyang said S-3 also. But Miller at Lingling told me I sounded very close to his station, and gave me the report S-5. These mean, in radio technical language, that my volume was louder in Lingling than at either of the other two stations.

Just then Miller must have received a report from a town that heard my engine, for he said, 'You're Northeast of the field." I turned a little South and saw the welcome red clay of Lingling. I started feeling happy then-I'd been in the air on a cross-country for nearly four hours, and knew that I'd shot down at least one plane. I couldn't buzz the field though, for any minute I expected the engine to cough and the prop to start "windmilling"-out of gas. I put the wheels down and landed without even looking to see which way the wind was on the runway. I got the ship parked without the engine's dying, but the mechanics said they couldn't see any fuel in the tanks.

Rather excitedly I told my story We counted the holes in my ship and then went over to count those in one of the fighters that had been in another battle that morning. Just then Miller came dashing up in a jeep to say that my air engagement had been reported over Leiyang, sixty miles to the East, and that confirmation had already come in on my bomber. It had crashed and burned eight miles from the town. That noon I was so excited that I couldn't eat my lunch-I just sat there and relived the battle. The sergeant came in to tell me there were seventeen holes in my ship, and two of them were from the cannon of the Zeros-they were al back near the tail; so maybe George Paxton had been right, and maybe the little rats couldn't even shoot Well, we were to find out during the next ten days, very vividly.

I flew on to Hengyang that afternoon, and with Lieutenant Cluck in a jeep we drove to Leiyang. We had information that some of the crew or passengers had jumped from the bomber that morning and had been captured, and we needed the prisoners for information. With Chinese guides we climbed on foot over the rice paddies built on the hills, towards the scene of the crashed plane. Even before we'd covered the ten or more miles that we had to walk, I saw evidence of the airplane. It seemed as if every coolie that came towards us was carrying a piece of the Jap plane. Near the wreck I saw pieces of aluminum on the houses covering holes in the roofs, and saw some of the clothes from the Jap airmen. These we examined, and found a notebook, a map, and a pistol. Later the soldiers at the wreck gave us a chute and some other things.

When we came to the burned bomber we found it pretty well scattered. The fabric was gone from the parts that hadn't burned, but the larger part was just a mass of burned metal. I noticed that the bodies of four Japs were lying where they had fallen, and several days later other visitors reported them still in the same positions. I looked in vain through the wreckage for a Samurai sword, which is the souvenir we value most from the Jap.

JESUS AND THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT-Matthew 10:1, 5-8; 11:1, 25-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.—John 15:14.

Service for Christ has not always been as impressive and effective as it should be because it has lacked conviction and spiritual power. God did not intend it to be the weak and faltering thing that it often is, because of our failure to go God's way.

The sending out of the twelve had special significance, and yet it brings forth principles which have a bearing on the service of every believer in Christ.

The Servants of Christ-I. Have a Divine Commission (10: 1, 5-8).

The twelve disciples had already been called into the Lord's service. Now they were to be prepared for the service which was ahead. It was a time of commissioning and empowerment for service.

God calls men today to serve Him. In fact, there is a very real sense in which every Christian is called to serve. Let no one try to excuse himself from that responsibility and privilege.

To some comes a special call to leave their accustomed daily work and launch out into a broader service for Christ. When that time comes, we may go forth with the assurance that the power of a divine Saviour goes with us. The twelve disciples had some special powers which we do not have and do not need. God suits the power to the need, and that means that in every circumstance we may look to Him with assurance, and go on.

One of our difficulties in dealing with such matters as spiritual power is that we interpret the things of the realm of the spirit by physical standards and measurements. We are so quick to say "I cannot" on the basis of our logical human reasoning, when an appreciation of the power of God which is operative on our behalf would make us say with confidence, "I can." But, sadly enough, having left God out of our reckoning, we find that it is indeed true that we cannot.

Serving Christ means doing so in His power, and with His grace upon us. Nothing less will do! Nothing more is needed!

II. Declare a Divine Revelation (11:1, 25-27).

The messenger's responsibility and importance are largely determined by the nature of the message he has to convey. Particularly is that true where the message must pass through his personality and thus be proclaimed. The nations of the earth choose their most able men to be their ambassadors and grant them full power.

The glorious thing about being a messenger for God is that we carry no ordinary communication. What we have to present is far above the most important message any earthly ambassador could possibly have

We, the children and servants of God through Jesus Christ, have something direct from the throne of God. He has revealed it (v. 25), and it seemed good in His sight to give it to those who had the childlike faith to believe Him.

God's revelation is hidden from those who are wise in their own conceits, who are too proud to come by way of humility and faith. Thank God, some of the wise and mighty of this world have been willing to become as little children and learn at the feet of Jesus.

The encouraging thing about it is that the door is open to the simplest believer to trust God, to take the revelation of God's truth in His word, and give it out with grace and

III. Extend a Divine Invitation (11:28-30).

"Come"-what a blessed word for the needy and sinful! They are not to be shut out by their sin, nor to be hindered by their weakness. The door is open, and the invitation is to come. Why not respond?

To whom are they to come? To Jesus. There are times when men can help us, when friends or church officers or the pastor can give us an uplifting word of counsel and encouragement. But for salvation, for a real lifting of the burden from the shoulders of those "that labor and are heavy laden," there is no one like Jesus. We are privileged to invite people to Jesus, knowing that if they "learn" of Him (v. 29), they will not only have their loads lifted and find rest, but will enter into a blessed yoke, fellowship with Him in life and service. His is a wholesome or a kindly yoke. That is the meaning of 'easy" in verse 30. It is not always wasy to serve Christ, but being yoked with Him in a kindly fellowship of service makes the burden light. The world is full of tired and discouraged people. We who know Christ have the adequate answer to their need. Shall we not go in His name to present the truth to them and invite them to come to Christ?

CUPPOSE you had been in business for 50 years making a good product which was used in every home. In spite of shortages in manpower and materials you had made enough of your product for every war production and civilian use. And you had done all this without increasing the price one penny and then you suddenly discovered that three out of four of your customers did not know or understand your product chiefly because you had never thought to tell them about it. Would your face be red? Well, ours was!

When a recent survey disclosed that three out of four of our customers did not understand a kilowatt hour we thought that something should be done about it because in the bright new post-war world kilowatt hours are going to be increasingly important in bringing to every home new high standards of electrical living.

A kilowatt hour is really not difficult to understand. Electricity is measured in units of pressure (volts) and in units of current flow (amperes). Multiply these two together and you have a unit of power, the watt. The watt is a relatively small unit and it is customary to use 1,000 wats or a kilowatt as a practical unit of measurement. It represents energy equivalent to 11/3 horsepower. When you use 1,000 watts, or a kilowatt, for one hour you have consumed a kilowatt hour. In subsequent messages we will show what kilowatt hours can do for you.

BRITISH AID IN PACIFIC

Ex-Representative Norris Poulson of California, Republican, returned tre London recently and refused to be quoted in the press on what had learned there about British id to the U. S. A. against Japan.

Finally, confronted with the detail of a conversation in which he had participated, Poulson admitted that he had discussed the Pacific war with two influential members of the British parliament.

"Just what sort of help can we expect from you people once Germany is knocked out?" Poulson asked them.

"Well, we've got an army of over 7,000,000 Indians," one of the two Britons replied. "You can have

"But you know perfectly well we cannot rely on them," Poulson said bluntly. "You'll be lucky if they don't fight against you; let alone fight for you against Japan."

The Britisher admitted he, too, was worried about the Indians, but added, "At any rate, there's a large army of Australians and New Zealanders"

"In other words," countered Poulson, "you people here on the island are going to pull out just as soon as you can, leaving to your colonials the responsibility for any aid we

"That's about right," was the reply. "We've had five years of war here. That's enough."

Note-Despite congressional concern, some high U. S. navy men are not enthusiastic about either British or Russian help against Japan. They feel U. S. forces can do the job themselves.

When the British wanted to send a naval force to cooperate with the American fleet in the Philippines, Admiral King objected and the President virtually had to overrule him.

BRITISH TROOPS PROTECT GREEKS

For some reason the news was suppressed in the United States, but a very significant event took place in Salonika, Greece, during the trouble between the British and the EAM-ELAS Greeks.

When the British ordered troops in Salonika to suppress the Greeks, the troops sided with the Greeks and refused to fire on them.

The troops were a garrison of the British Indian army. The Indians threw their weight on the side of the Greek organization which bitterly opposed the return of King George, and which Churchill claims to be communist. There was no rioting or bloodshed. The Indian troops simply cooperated with the

Simultaneously Krishna Menon, secretary of the India league, made a speech in London attended by several members of the British parliament in which he praised the Indian troops in Salonika and said: "They go in their landlords' cars and vote against him."

The incident is considered extremely important not only as it effects Greece, but as it effects India and the Far East. General Stilwell, when in the Burma theater, was reported by U. S. Ambassador William Phillips as considering British-Indian troops mercenaries who would not put their hearts into any battle as long as India was not given its independence.

SECOND CALVIN COOLIDGE In more ways than one, Harry Truman is like Calvin Coolidge. He comes from the same backwoods origin. He seldom makes speeches on the senate floor. He is thrifty, remembers the days when the drugstore paid him $3 a week. But more than anything else Truman has the same brand of Coolidge political luck. The lightning hit Cal first during the Boston police strike, later when the party bosses in the smoke filled room at the Blackstone hotel wanted a good composite vice president to go with Harding.

The lightning struck Truman when his investigating committee hurtled him to fame, later when the Democratic bosses dining at the White House decided that he was the compromise candidate to replace Henry

"Transplants" Need Careful Sowing, Tending

Seedlings Must Be Started Early to Be Ready in Spring

The home gardener who grows his own plants for transplanting must begin early for early crops, say garden specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture's research adment of agriculture's research administration.

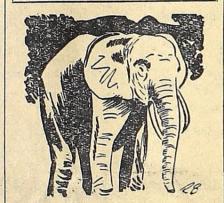

In the northern two-thirds of the country, tomatoes, peppers, egg-plants, cabbage, cauliflower and sometimes lettuce, onions, beets, cucumbers, squashes and melons are often started indoors or in a coldframe. In the south a sheltered place in the open with good sun is suitable for the plant bed for the hardier crops.

Nearly all state agricultural colleges and the U.S. department of agriculture have home garden bulletins with tables of dates for safe planting or transplanting in the open. There is also information on how much earlier than these dates seed should be planted indoors or in the coldframe. Cabbage, for example, should be planted eight weeks earlier than the safe outdoor

There are commercial chemical dust treatments to prevent rotting of seeds or damping off of seedlings. Not all seeds need it, and some seeds can not safely be treated with certain of the chemicals, but a considerable number can be treated with any of the compounds. The usual small packet can be treated by adding to it the powder that can be put on the tip of the blade of a pocket knife. Vegetable seeds, inoculated and tested for germination, should be sowed carefully in a flat, then lightly covered. Clean sharp sand (right) is better than soil for this purpose as sand tends to prevent "damping

Merchant Marine Men Need Books to Read on Voyages

A campaign to collect a million books for the merchant marine was launched by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. The need for reading matter is great, since the government does not provide for American seamen in this important regard, and men on long and dangerous voyages have little to lighten the monotonous days. Then too, many seamen would welcome the opportunity for self-education if the necessary books were at hand.

James Nicholson, chairman of the Elks War commission, urges each of the 650,000 members of B.P.O.E. to donate at least one book. The remainder needed to make up the million total volumes will be obtained from people outside the fraternity, it is planned.

Any sort of books are acceptable. Old or new novels, textbooks and technical works, biographies, histories—any kind of book that will give a lonesome seaman a few hours of relaxation, instruction or inspiration, are wanted. Books may be sent to the nearest Elks lodge. The special postal rate is only three cents a pound, up to 70 pounds. Every donor will receive an acknowledgement of his generosity. The B.P.O.E. will handle the distribution of the books to men at sea.

The campaign, which was organized in response to a request by Mrs. Alice S. Howard, president of the American Merchant Marine association, will continue until April over a color-bright crepe ground, inter-spaced with a motif made up of balls of yarn thrust through with several knitting needles. One of the most novel prints of all spaces flowers on a light background which has print that breathes the very breath of spring in its lovely coloring. The reproducing actual handwriting.

The idea of calling attention to these novelty prints is that home sewers will add a new thrill to the blouse or the dress they make, if they are style-alert in choosing prints that arouse interest and provoke conversation, rather than prints of familiar theme and motif.

The new flower prints are lovelier than ever. Their rapturous colorings, seem to fairly vibrate with the very ecstasy of spring. You can make them up so effectively and print is the easiest thing in the world for an amateur to manipulate. Two intriguing fashion hints in styling a print frock is that short cap sleeves are the new rage and some of the cleverest youthful models are given an animated silhouette with a sprightly bustle bow. Portrait necklines give new charm to dresses this spring whether they are made of print or plain material. Perfect for neckline dress-up Another gay print tells a story of tuck-in blouse and drindl-type skirt shown at the right. For this simple crepe frock neckline drama is expressed in narrow ruching that is picoted along the edges with the ruffler sewing machine attachment. The short sleeves are also rucheedged, a dressmaker trick which lifts the whole frock out of the 'usual'' class.

"See my new pinafore dress? Mother made it!" Can't you almost hear this joyous little girl exult-antly saying just that? Now that mother has started on the house hold spring sewing, little daughter is in for some very happy surprises in way of pretty frocks and pinafores. For instance, this cunning pinafore frock shows how a simple unbleached muslin frock can be made to look too attractive for words just by appliqueing big cherries cut out of bright red boil-fast cotton. The frail stems are stitched in green thread.

Whims of Fashion

Dresses for the South are playing up color contrast for all it is worth. Butcher linens highlighting bright color themes are especially important. For example, a black sunback dress has halter straps of lime and Charming are hand - crocheted calots designed to be worn with the new pastel suits and dresses this spring. They are decorated with colored sequins and some of them even go out for extreme novelty in way of adding wee tinkling bells to the decorative scheme.

Fashion holds in promise for the future such scientific achievements as sheer woven glass hosiery, unbreakable glass-soled shoes and even very sheerest prints of spun glass are being made into blouses. As exciting news as this is the progress being made in materials derived from especially processed aluminum.

An idea that is going over big in millinery midseason showings is the 'dog collar" trim on the very smart and new "sissy" sailors, postilion and homburg types and on youthful calots. Each little hat is completed with a veil which has a sparkling jewel-embroidered velvet or grosgrain band attached. This fastens to form a dog collar fastened about the throat, or it may be used to band the crown.

Something new that looks as if it might develop into a real fad for evening wear or with the brief cap sleeves is a jeweled arm band which encircles the arm midway between the shoulder and the elbow. It may be of wide, black velvet ribbon or of self-fabric. In either event it is elaborately be-jeweled or it may flaunt an important large brooch or spray clip, or a group of whimsical little cluster pins.

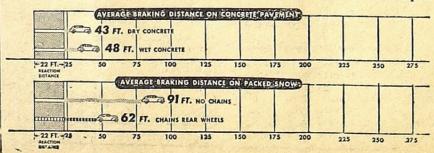

Is This Farm House of the Future?

This model home for the well-to-do farm family won first prize in contest sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders of the U. S. It was designed by Charles Nixon, who was awarded a $1,000 war bond. The house includes a living room, dining room, large kitchen, a first floor lavatory and a "mud" room. There are five bedrooms and two baths on the second floor.

The "basic unit," that is the house without the addition on the right, could be built for about $9,200, not including land. The small added building, which is a large garage with living quarters above it for a second hired man, would cost about $1,200 more.

CONVENTIONS

Washington has now put a ban on conventions, which strikes us as strictly okay. A convention is a rendezvous of agitated citizens whose wives will accept no other excuse for a week's absence from home.

It is a noisy gathering of middle-aged men who think that fighting for a hotel room is good for their

It is a huddle in lobbies and ban-quet halls of let's-get-together once a year to see if the competitors have aged much.

It is a gandy-dance by men who think spending a week trying to get in and out of elevators comes under the head of business promotion.

The whole idea of conventions was started by the railroads and hotel people and perpetuated by the aspirin tablet industry. The theory is that a convention is good for whatever line the delegates are in. But nobody has ever returned from one in shape to be any help to the boss for 30 days.

And his back home discomforts are always added to by the discovery he lost his watch, packed a pillow case instead of his pajamas and can't remember the four fellows he had a fight with.

Conventions are a series of lost motions concerning matters that could all be better settled by mail. A delegate spends $25 a day doing nothing he couldn't do by postcard, except denounce the phone girl. By staying home he could have avoided fallen arches, acidosis, the scrap with the taxicab driver and those foolish words to the manicure girl.

We know men with national reputations for sagacity and solid sense who will travel 1,000 miles, spend a week in a bum hotel, get ptomaine poisoning, pay 40 cents for a softboiled egg and consider it all comes under the head of demonstrating routine business acumen.

And we can name gents famed for old-fashioned thrift who come to the big city and pay 25 cents just to get their own hat back.

A convention is a device for bringing to distant points men who think they can only develop bright ideas if their eyes are full of train cinders.

The only thing we can say in favor of a convention is that it gives a fellow a chance to slap on the back and say "Hello, J. D. How's tricks?" to an associate who otherwise refuses to be friendly except by letter.

You listen to 10 speeches, 18 lectures and 100 committee reports but you still go home without finding out why a glass of milk in a hotel should cost a half-dollar.

The Real New York

How silly the idea that the spirit of New York is found on Broadway! That is where millions of visitors concentrate, thinking they are seeing the real Gotham. But we took our semi-annual hike along the downtown water front a few days ago and know better. The great docks teeming with life, the countless freighters loading up with vital supplies, the tugs huffing and puffing around the bay, the coast guard ships (of all types and shapes), the sailors, soldiers and seamen from all ports of the world; and over it all an atmosphere of serious energy, hard work and accomplishment that makes the Times Square area look like a mere dizzy zone.

The navy department has ruled that the fleets may carry beer and ale for the sailors to drink ashore. But red tape being what it sometimes is in the services, we hope the boys don't get ashare with a few cases of beer and find Washington forget the "openers."

It came as a surprise to this department to learn that not since Josephus Daniels made the navy bone dry 25 years ago has an American warship carried anything but soft stuff. Restoration of beer will do more for naval morale than Leyte.

from 15,000 to 18,000 at every performance. There are not so many basketball centers that can match this crowd accommodation - but there are so many hundreds of places on the map that can range from 4,000 to 10,000-and most of these places are usually packed.

For example, Indiana is dotted with towns whose basketball teams draw more to a game than the entire population of the town the game is played in. At least that is what Indiana experts and other camp-followers tell us.

Basketball has never had the chance to compete with an Army-Notre Dame crowd — a Michigan-Ohio State gathering — a Southern California-Notre Dame test — or an Army-Navy show. Many of these games would draw over 200,000 if there was only enough space in which to park the human body—lean and fat.

I doubt that any basketball game, no matter under what favorable conditions, could lure in 75,000 or 100,000 people. If I am wrong, Ned Irish can correct me.

But basketball isn't played in just father of our birger stands. It is a few of our bigger stands. It is played in high schools and in col-leges—in YMCA's and churches, in boys' clubs and girls' clubs-not in hundreds, but in thousands of spots you never heard about. It isn't a game scattered all over the map but packed all over the map.

I still don't believe the total attendance would run up to 90,000,000 but maybe it does. At least this is an argument that no one can settle, give or take some 10,000,000 spectators. spectators.

Faster but Gentler

Basketball today is a faster and a far more skillful game than it was when I happened to play on the Vanderbilt team of some decades back. But it isn't as rough a game as it was then. I am not referring to any man-to-man contact. In those days the gymnasiums were rather small and they were heated by a number of radiators or other warming appliances around the floor.

One of the main ideas then was to bend or pin your opponent over one of these smoking hot devices until the flesh began to sizzle and there was an unpleasant odor of burning skin. I still recall such games where I looked more like a zebra than a human being-where there wasn't so much skin left upon the body and what was left happened to be badly scorched.

Basketball has come a long way since those pioneer, uncovered wagon days when the player took quite a beating, since there were no rules against anything except murder and possibly mayhem. It is all different now. There are thousands of basketball centers that have all the required room needed - that have accommodations for spectators.

In those earlier days, basketball was largely a game intended for the swift. The swift are needed today. But I can't recall facing any opponent over 6 feet 2, where today 6 feet 2 is bordering often on the midget side. There were certainly no opponents ranging from 6 feet 7 to 6

These service debaters always want to know whether or not basketball is the fastest game. Basketball is faster than football or baseball-much faster-but not as fast as hockey where the players have the advantage of ice and skates. A basketball game played on ice with skates would be the all-time top for speed and all around agility. After all, skiing is the fastest sport. Without ice or snow, skates or skis, the next fastest sport is the 100-yard-

Class C Series.

The county chairman, Mrs. Francis Schriber, informs us that the March of Dimes Campaign will be continued until February 15. As a result, the pupils and faculty of the school and other city organizations will be able to contribute to the cause and give the credit to the local community.

Bookkeeping News The Bookkeeping Class has just completed the study of two new books of original entry-the purchases journal and the three column cash journal. They are now studying the ten column working sheet.

Typing News The Typing Class has just finished Adaption VII and VIII. In Adaptation VII they typed telegrams, cablegrams and radiograms. In Adaptation VIII they made invoices and monthly statements. The next exercise will take up the study of typing. stencils.

3rd and 4th Grades

The catches on two of our cupboard doors haven't worked very well for some time. Week before well for some time. Week before last, Mr. Robarts sent James Roach in to repair them. James did such good work on them that they seem like new ones. Our thanks to both Mr. Robarts and James.

Geneva Ulman, Ronald Chaney, Ralph Braden and Duane Wright have brought some splendid books for us to look at and read

More than half of each of our grades had "A" on the weekly spelling test last week. Primary Room

We are glad that Janet Lansky is ble to be back at school this week. We have been learning about Lincoln. We have also learned two songs about him. We cut out and mounted silhouettes of both Lincoln and Washington.

Mrs. Wilton Finley visited our room last Thursday afternoon.

Our Defense Stamp purchases amounted to $12.80 last week. We are taking part in the March of Dimes. this week. Patsy Ann Alda, Melvin Timreck, Sharron Boomer, Alfred Wogaman, George Wogaman, Dwight Finley Judy Austin, Virginia Haglund and Kenneth Rollin had A's in their spelling test last week.

We are enjoying the stories of 'Te Teenie Weenies' (which Judy Austin brought to school. Kindergarten
