ELKS LOSE TO INDIANS IN FAST GAME

Tawas City Reserve Team And Girls Team Winners

Last Tuesday night the Tawas City Elks lost a fast and spirited game to the East Tawas Indians, 50 to 31.

The Indian players were really clicking with Deering and Dubovsky making one handed shots from any part of the floor. Don Deering, lanky center of East Tawas led both teams in sinking baskets with 16 points. Next were Jim Dubovsky of the East Tawas squad and Bill Ogden of the Elks, who made 15 points apiece.

A capacity crowd greeted the teams as they came on the floor, both the bleachers and the stage were entirely filled, chairs were placed along the walls for extra seating.

The local lads have lost both of their games to East Tawas this season. The score of the last game in which the two teams met was 26 to 18 in favor of the Indians.

Both teams showed excellent ball handling and good team work. The game was a fair and clean one, and spectators got their money's worth. The local lads had a total of 16 personal fouls called on them and East Tawas had 22 fouls called on them.

The Reserve team had a very exciting game with the East Tawas Reserves, the mighty midgets winning by the score of 19 to 17.

The East Tawas reserve team made all of their points in the first quarter and it looked as though the Tawas team would be defeated. But the reserves kept plugging and they were one point ahead of East Tawas at the half.

The second team made eight out of the 19 foul shots that were thrown by them, which made a great difference in the score. Don Gingerich was high point man with eight points. Next was Clyde Anderson who came in the game in the second half, racking up 5 points, the only points in the second half.

The girls team had an easy time of it beating the East Tawas girls team by a score of 24 to 18.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By Col. Robert L. Scott W.N.U. RELEASE

The story thus far: After graduating from West Point as a second lieutenant, Robert Scott wins his wings at Kelly Field, Texas, and takes up pursuit flying. When the war breaks out he is an instructor in California and told he is too old for combat flying. He appeals to several Generals for a chance to fly a combat plane and finally gets a break. He flies a bomber to India, where he becomes a ferry pilot but this does not appeal to him. After visiting Gen. Chennault he gets a Kittyhawk and soon becomes "one man air force" over Burma. He is made commanding officer of the 23rd fighter group, taking over the AVG, and leaves for the Kweilin area to take charge of fighter operations.

CHAPTER XVII

The surprise was that another plane had now been found several miles from the bomber. It was supposed to be a fighter, being smaller, and it had burned upon crashing. I therefore received credit for two enemy planes destroyed on July 31. It had been my first aerial combat, I felt very proud indeed.

We found the reported prisoner, but he was dead. While being questioned he had tried to escape, had killed several Chinese, had wounded others, and in turn had been mortally wounded. Lieutenant Cluck got to him before he died, but was unable to get any valuable information.

My first aerial engagement started a story in Delhi—I found out about it four months later. The story told there was to the effect that I had engaged an enemy bomber over China, and regardless of its escort of two Zeros, had shot it down. It had crashed into the ground, and when they located it, they also found the two Zeros, which had dived into the rice paddies at the tail of the bomber, one on each side. Thus had the embarrassed pilots committed hara-kiri, for they had lost face by having the ship that they were escorting destroyed.

Well, it was a laugh. But I'm fairly certain the one Zero didn't commit suicide—I'm prone to believe that some good, honest lead-poisoning from six fifty-calibre American machine guns had a lot to do with it.

Major Tex Hill was the Squadron commander of the outfit that I had come to live with at Hengyang. He was a blue-eyed Texan, lean and lanky, six-foot-two of fighting blood. I imagine if he had lived in the frontier days of the American West, he would have been a gunman over there around the Pecos River—but a gunman on the side of the Law. I used to shut my eyes out there, sitting on the alert in Hunan, and think about him. I could picture that drawing Texan walking slowly through a border town with two pearl-handled 45's swinging low at his hips. Walking with his arms stiff at his sides, and watching with his cold, blue eyes some "villain" that was approaching the other way I could almost hear the hot lead spitting from those guns as the two shot it out, and I could always see the villain fall, with Tex standing there looking at his smoking guns. Tex would always have won, for he was the greatest fighter that I ever saw, the most loyal officer, and the best friend.

I'd seen Tex shoot down Japs in the sky, and I had followed on his wing to learn the tactics of the AVG. I know that if there is any man I owe my life to during the months I fought in China, it is Maj. Tex Hill. Seeing what he did in combat, and how he handled his ship; seeing his coolness on the alert, and his keen desire for action. I can hear Tex now, after he had studied the plotting board that the interpreters were covering with little red flags showing the positions of the approaching Jap fighter ships. I can hear him saying: "Well, gentlemen, I think we'll take off." And he would smile as he pulled on his helmet and goggles.

Tex was the son of the Chaplain of the Texas Rangers. Before the AVG days he had been a Navy pilot flying off carrier decks, and in the Flying Tigers he had been second only to Bob Neal as the leading ace. Tex was the most truthful man I ever met—even his subconscious thoughts were truthful. He used to tell me that one day after Madame Chiang Kai-shek had pinned a medal on him for shooting down some Japanese planes over Toungoo, she had asked him the next time he shot down one of those Japanese planes to please think of her and dedicate it to the people of China. Tex of course said, "Yes, Ma'am..."

I imagine that most any man among us would have said "Yes" to the Madame, and the next time we shot down a Jap we would have told the great lady all about it. We would have remembered after the fight what we had promised her, and we would have gone in with a romantic story of how we had met the barbaric Japanese and had seen the Madame's face in the skies as we shot the enemy down... and had thought of her and the people of China. But not Tex Hill—he was too honest for that. He told me, "Colonel, I promised her that, and I really meant it. And I've shot down about twelve Japs since that promise four months ago. But you know I never can remember to think about her when I'm in a battle—I'm too busy."

Well now, you hold that picture of Tex Hill for a minute while I show him to you in another light.

One day over Hengyang, after we had broken the Japanese wave with our assault and support and there were some fifteen Zeros burning around among the pagodas of this Hunan capital, I saw an odd sight down below. There was one lone Jap, doubtless of the suicide Samurai school, for though his buddies had either been shot down in their attempted strafing attack or had turned for home, this arrogant follower of the Shinto Shrine was strafing the field—alone. Two of us rolled to go get him, but from the end of the field towards the river I saw a P-40 pull out of a dive and head for the Jap. It was Tex Hill.

As the two fighters drew together in this breath-taking, head-on attack, I saw their tracers meeting and for a second I didn't know whether the ships ran together or both exploded in the air. As the smoke thinned I saw the P-40 flash on through and out into the clear, but the Jap crashed and burned on the field of Hengyang. Hill and the Jap had shot it out nose to nose, and once again I thought of the days of Western gunplay.

Things kept right on happening at Hengyang, for after all there are Japanese bases fanning out in many directions—East, North, Northeast, South, and Southeast. Some of them were within an hour's flight of our field. Hankow was the one to the North on the Yangtse. The Japs sent their bombers to worry us from up there, and before we caught on how to do it, they made life miserable for us. They had gotten tired of sending their day bombers down, for they lost too many; so now they had resorted to a period of constant night attack.

Just when the full moon in the clear sky would begin to light the ground like daylight, the telephone would start ringing, the Chinese interpreters would begin to stick the little flags into the Map, and we'd know that the Jap was on the way. We'd be just about to sit down to supper after a hard day's work on the alert. We'd leave the rice and fish and squash, amid the houseboys' calls of "Jin-bao—" (air raid), and we'd rush for our planes that had been assigned to night duty. Sometimes the attack was a harassing one only, and we'd return without seeing them and go wearily back in the moonlight to the hostel, get some tea and a cookie, and crawl in the bed.

Just about the time the head hit the pillow and the body felt a little comfortable the alert would go again. I'd hear the tinkle of a small dinner bell and the plaintive voice of one of the houseboys—"Jin-bao, Jin-bao—please get up, master—Jin-bao." Off we'd go again and into the sky. Sometimes the Jap would feint two or three times to make us use valuable gasoline. Sometimes he'd circle Hengyang by fifty miles and then go back to Hankow. We'd spend the night between the hostel and the alert shack; but after all, as we used to say, you weren't supposed to be comfortable in a war, and we were no exception.

Sometimes, though, the Jap didn't feint.

General Chennault got us to pick the best and most experienced pilots for the night interception missions. We'd use two to four ships and place them at different altitudes over the field, and wait for the Jap in the light of the moon, with our lights out. On this particular night Johnny Allison was at 13,000 feet, and a thousand feet lower we had Ajax Baumber. I'll tell you about Johnny now, but we'll take up more on Ajax later—for this was mostly Johnny's fight.

Allison was a superior airman, fighter pilot, and officer, and was the ideal combat leader. A Florida boy, he knew the Allison engine well enough to have designed it. He knew the P-40's better than anyone I have ever seen, for he had instructed the British in their use in the United Kingdom and then had gone over to show the Russians how to fly and repair them near Moscow. Tonight he was about to carve his name with his six fifty-calibre guns in such a manner that few of us would ever forget it, and certainly no Chinese in the city of Hengyang would ever forget the night.

We got our four ships into the air at staggered altitudes. We heard the radio reports from Richardson giving the latest positions of the Japs. Reported over Changsha. Then North of the field. Then all was silent while we waited. In our positions over the field we placed ourselves down-moon—that is, where the bombers would have to fly between us and the moon and thus silhouette themselves against the full orange light.

Then I saw the five bombers against the moon. They were at 13,000 feet. I know I swore because they were below me, and I could imagine the cursing of every one of the others who were at the wrong altitude, for we could not change altitude until the first attack. But they were at Johnny's height, and I listened for him to say that he saw them. Down the field they told us later that you could hear the moan of one Allison engine as a P-40 moved in for the attack, could hear it above the sound of the ten radial engines on the enemy bombers.

The seconds dragged, and then we heard Johnny say, "Okay, I see 'em." And now we saw their exhausts, looking like ten bushel-baskets of blue fire. For a full second, as the enemy bombers moved towards the target that was our field, all was quiet, and I wondered if Johnny had lost them in the darkness. Then I saw him, so close to the enemy ships that he seemed to be in formation with them—and clearly over my radio I heard Johnny Allison say, "Watch the fireworks."

Six lines of tracers went into one of the bombers and glowed brighter than the two bushel-baskets of exhaust fire. The first Jap bomber trailed fire, slowly turned on its back, and spun crazily towards Hengyang, right over the town. Below, I could see a few flashes from the exploding enemy bombs, but most of them seemed short of the target area and very scattered. Johnny's tracers were still going into the enemy ships and I could see their return fire now, but it seemed to go in no certain direction. I had moved in closer, trying to get to the altitude of the fight.

On the ground the mechanics and the Chinese interpreters had a grandstand seat for one of the best moving pictures that has ever been—except that this was real. They too had heard Johnny say, "Watch the fireworks," and had seen and heard the heavy guns of the P-40. They could see pieces of the bomber coming off and going back into the slipstream, reflecting the glow of the fire that came with the explosion. Then the whole sky lighted as the first one plunged to the earth, with the fire making a queer sound as the wreckage fell.

The lone fighter now was sliding over behind the other bombers, and the second one was exploding and turning over. The third one tried to turn, seemed to hang for seconds against the full moon, then dove in flames in a pitch that got steeper and steeper. Several thousand feet below our level it exploded and burning gasoline fell with it. The light of the three burning bombers combined with the brilliant moonlight to make the night like day.

The number four enemy ship had turned back now, with an engine shot out, but Ajax Baumber got it ten miles North of the field. The last enemy dove out and turned for home when he saw his three leaders burn, but Baumber followed him thirty miles North and shot him down in flames.

From the ground, the watchers told us later, they could hear the fifty-calibre guns above the noise of the smaller calibre Jap guns. Within seconds after the attack, there were three ships burning around the city walls, and none of the formation got home.

But something was the matter with Allison. We could see his ship and it was not flying normally. Every now and then it would stream fire that was more than just a back-fire. On the ground they could hear his engine missing badly.

Allison called in that he was hit, but would try to land his ship on the field.

To land a crippled fighter in daylight is quite a feat but to attempt to land one at night, one that has been shot to pieces and may burst into flames any second, is more than that. We knew why Johnny was taking the chance: we needed that ship if he could get it on the field, even if it was shot to bits we needed the parts that could be salvaged. It would have been perfectly all right if the pilot had gone over the side as soon as that engine began to fade out that night. Whether or not he had shot down three bombers, he could have "hit the silk" and floated to safety in his chute. But Johnny must have said, "The hell with that, we need this ship—we always need ships." To keep old P-40's that we flew in flying condition we had to rob parts from every airplane that we could salvage after a crackup. This is called "cannibalizing" in the lingo of field depots in the Air Corps, and covers a multitude of sins.

Household Hints

A temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees F. is suitable for most plants.

To prevent corks from sticking in bottles containing glue or polishes, coat the cork with vaseline.

Add a bit of vinegar to the dishwasher to cut the grease.

To flatten rug corners that curl and slip on the floor, cut out L-shaped pieces of cardboard, and glue to the underside of the rug at the corners.

Cover the top of your bedspring with oil cloth. This will be a good protection for your mattress and will make it easier to turn your mattress.

Use the top of a lipstick container over the ends of your curtain rods when pushing them through freshly starched curtains.

Put a few rubber bands around the handle of your bath brush to insure a firm grip upon it.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

ABOUT

The first use of motor trucks — and that means rubber tires — by the U. S. Army in active campaigns occurred during the Punitive Expedition into Mexico in 1916. About 800 motor vehicles were in use on the Mexican border.

B. F. Goodrich's latest analysis shows that after the war annual potential rubber production of the world should be 2,800,000 long tons. This is more than twice the amount of rubber used by the entire world in 1941, the record year, when consumption totaled 1,300,000 long tons.

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

A Symbol of Great Meaning NOW and in the World of TOMORROW

SUPPOSE you had been in business for 50 years making a good product which was used in every home. In spite of shortages in manpower and materials you had made enough of your product for every war production and civilian use. And you had done all this without increasing the price one penny and then you suddenly discovered that three out of four of your customers did not know or understand your product chiefly because you had never thought to tell them about it. Would your face be red? Well, ours was!

When a recent survey disclosed that three out of four of our customers did not understand a kilowatt hour we thought that something should be done about it because in the bright new post-war world kilowatt hours are going to be increasingly important in bringing to every home new high standards of electrical living.

A kilowatt hour is really not difficult to understand. Electricity is measured in units of pressure (volts) and in units of current flow (amperes). Multiply these two together and you have a unit of power, the watt. The watt is a relatively small unit and it is customary to use 1,000 wats or a kilowatt as a practical unit of measurement. It represents energy equivalent to 1 1/2 horsepower. When you use 1,000 watts, or a kilowatt, for one hour you have consumed a kilowatt hour. In subsequent messages we will show what kilowatt hours can do for you.

Poor Lighting

A large firm of insurance brokers which does a nation-wide and foreign business, in a recent statement on why insurance costs differ, says one reason is that one concern may have higher insurance costs than another because of poorer lighting and more accidents. Modern lighting equipment in conjunction with walls, ceilings and floors painted in good light-reflecting colors improve such unfavorable conditions.

FEAR OF COAL STRIKE

Biggest problem on the labor horizon is the definitely looming possibility of a national coal strike on April 1. Industry fears it, the government fears it, but even more, perhaps, other labor leaders fear it. They fear that bull-headed John L. Lewis, head of the miners, will precipitate a strike which will blacken the eye of the entire labor movement, further undermining public confidence in labor. "Bull Jack" Lewis, as they call him, belongs neither to the AFL nor the CIO, and the executives of both are worried over the effect which a strike called by the miners would have on their organizations. For, they point out, the public does not discriminate between different labor unions in time of crisis.

Negotiations for a new coal contract are scheduled to begin March 1 between John L. Lewis and the coal operators. This gives 30 days in which to reach an agreement. Last year, however, the negotiations started earlier, and, even so, didn't conclude by March 31.

Meanwhile, Secretary Ickes, in order to head off a mine shut-down, has sent a letter both to the coal operators and John L. Lewis proposing that they continue the present wage agreement for another year. The coal operators are understood to be ready to agree to this proposal.

John L. Lewis's office, however, sent a delaying reply. His secretary wrote Ickes that Lewis was "absent from the city." This probably means that Lewis is conferring with his mine lieutenants before he sends Ickes a final decision.

WHY RUSSIANS WAITED

U. S. military strategists now disclose two reasons why the great Russian winter offensive was delayed.

The first problem was one of supplies. Although the red army had the bulk of the equipment it needed, deliveries of several relatively small but highly important items were delayed.

One of the items they waited for was several million tons of canned beef which midwestern packing firms have been producing since Russia entered the war.

Red army front-line troops live almost entirely on this canned beef during offensives. The packers knew they had a deadline to make on their order, but couldn't get enough manpower to do the job. As the days rolled by, even office workers were drafted to the production line. However, the shipment wasn't ready until weeks after the date set by the Russians. The same was true of several other important products. In the end, the British dipped into their own stockpiles in England, and shipped the necessary material to fully equip the Red army.

Finally, when the great offensive was about to start in Mid-December, an unseasonable thaw set in on the eastern front, bogging down the Red army equipment. The Russians had massed tremendous new Stalin tanks, larger than anything either the Germans or the other Allies have seen. These could not be moved except over frozen terrain. When the front froze solid again, Stalin gave the word and the long-delayed winter offensive began.

BRITISH PROPOSE KEEPING HIROHITO

Very little appeared in the papers about it, but highly important policies regarding future relations with Japan were discussed at the recent institute of Pacific relations at Hot Springs, Va. Most important of all was a proposal by the British to retain Emperor Hirohito and the Japanese ruling class in the post-war setup of Japan.

Sir Paul Butler, leading adviser to the British foreign office, led the appeal for Hirohito.

Behind closed doors at the swank Homestead hotel, Butler made this blunt pronouncement: "No alternative to a monarchical system, under the present emperor or some other member of his family, is likely to provide the focus of stability which will be essential if the state is not to dissolve into chaos in the impending crisis."

Other United Nations delegates also were vigorously opposed to the British policy of appeasing the emperor. Most significant of all was the position of the British dominions—Canada, Australia and New Zealand—which split with the delegation from the British Isles itself.

New York's ex-lieutenant-governor, Charles Poletti, has been doing an A-1 job in Italy. But at first he got many a cold shoulder from Italians before somebody tipped him off to change the form of the proclamations he issued as military commissioner in Rome. Poletti began his proclamations with "Io, Carlo Poletti. . . ." For a score of years Italians were fed up reading proclamations which began "Io, Benito Mussolini. . . ."

India's Sikhs Honor Their Royal Martyrs

The Sikhs are the warriors of "Mother India." Leader of the 5 million is the Maharajah of Patiala, 33, of the state of Patiala. On December 27 they staged a great festival to honor the founder of their religion, Guru Gobind Singh, and his two sons who became martyrs. The story goes that the sons of Guru were taken and held hostage by Moslems in an attempt to force their father to give up his religion. He refused, and the Moslems built a tomb around the seven and nine-year-old boys, burying them alive. Center shows the Maharajah, shoeless, carrying the first basket of earth from the site of the new shrine. Right shows the warriors in colorful contingent.

Commands 7th Fleet

Study of Vice Adm. Thomas Kinkaid, commander of the U. S. Seventh fleet, as he donned a steel helmet to direct operations against the Japanese in the Philippine zone. He softened up Luzon.

YOU may recall the time when Jim Braddock, supposed to be all washed up, removed the heavy-weight championship crown from Max Baer's carefree dome. After that party we suggested that the "primrose trail" rarely led to any pugilistic heights, or any other athletic heights. There are certain physical freaks—I won't mention their names—in boxing, baseball and golf, who trained largely on gin, scotch and bourbon and still made the headlines. For a while.

But for each one of these exceptions I can name you ten who trained correctly and reached the top of the hill—Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis, Benny Leonard, Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Byron Nelson, Sammy Sneed, Jug McSpaden, Gene Sarazen, Don Budge, Ellsworth Vines, Bill Johnston, all of our track stars and 98 per cent of our great football and baseball players such as Mel Ott, Carl Hubbell, Blozis, Nagurski, Bill Dickey—but why go on? Most of these are the ones who count.

Gene Tunney

This question was raised by the recent meeting at Madison Square Garden between two primrose trailers from the past—Lee Oma and Baki. Both started out along the soft and easy road. Both were physically qualified to do a much better job than they displayed in their efforts. But neither was willing to pay the price of condition—the price that Tunney, Dempsey and Joe Louis paid to be ready with the best they had to give. And I'm giving you three of the tops along this rugged road.

As a general rule the so-called "primrose trail" has a sudden, abrupt and dismal finish. At the start of their careers Oma and Baki were galloping merrily along this trail—and getting nowhere in a hurry. Now both are supposed to have changed their earlier habits—in the understanding that both are about the two best heavyweights left, outside of war service. Both wasted valuable time in improving themselves. It took a world war to plant them up near the front. Oma seems to be going up faster than Baki. He beat the tough ex-miner decisively in 10 rounds, weighing only 185½ pounds to Baki's 211.

Keeping in Condition

This isn't any sermon or lecture on the matter of keeping in shape, or the value of hard training. But there is a general writing and talking tendency to overplay some of the playboys who traveled a long way up in spite of their odd ways of training.

Harry Greb was one. So was Mickey Walker. Walter Hagen was another, later on in his career. And there was Rube Waddell, Bugs Raymond, Shufflin' Phil Douglas—great pitchers. Even the overpowering Babe Ruth had his lapses. So did Jim Thorpe. So did Grover Cleveland Alexander.

But what about the great majority of stars who made a point of being in shape—who trained for the job?

The best conditioned fighters I've known in the last 20 years were Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis. And they were not so bad.

Most of the star ballplayers belong to this list—I should say about 92 per cent of them. I mean such big leaguers as Ty Cobb, Christy Mathewson, Tris Speaker, Eddie Collins, George Sisler, Lou Gehrig, Carl Hubbell, Mel Ott, Hans Wagner, Lefty Grove, Joe Gordon, Bill Dickey—I could keep on for two columns.

I'd say about 99 per cent of the college and pro football players—the top ones—keep in shape and refrain at least from the gentle art of getting cockeyed.

It makes a better story to write or tell about the fellow who was plastered the day or the night before—and yet came along to win. But I could also tell you about many more who might have won—many more—who flopped for the same reason.

There are, of course, certain exceptions. But there are not so many exceptions when you rank them against the vast majority who took the other road. Those who lack the courage—or perhaps the fortitude—who hope to be athletes without proper training and conditioning—are in for a heavy price and a heavier jolt. They at least are bucking tremendous odds.

Football Weaknesses

Football officials have been given too heavy a burden. They can make or break any close game. It is for this reason that we suggest two changes that will not only help out the officials, but will also help football. The first would permit forward passing any place back of the line. The second is that after a forward pass is thrown, it would be made a free ball for both receivers and defenders. It wouldn't matter who went after it.

New 'At Home' Fashions Designed For Cozy Evenings Around Fire

the wrist, flare with pretty circular cuffs. A broad V-neck is framed by a deftly pleated deep collar.

ONE bit of good blown in by the ill winds of war is the rediscovery of the blessings and comforts of home. Now that families are spending cozy evenings at home and liking it, the powers-that-be in the fashion realm are meeting a new challenge that calls for apparel that tunes to frigid evenings and home entertainment.

It is not only that "at home" fashions must be charming but what with fuel restrictions, indoor clothes must be so warm and "comfy" that they defy the antics of a temperamental thermometer at the same time that they interpret style and good looks at a new high. The result is a collection of tea-gowns (yes, they're in style again), lounging pajamas and hostess dresses designed especially for comfort plus ultra chic and eye appeal.

The illustration presents a trio of interesting at-home fashions. For many a season the word "tea-gown" was almost obsolete, but this year it reappears in fashion's vocabulary in all its former glory. Milady to the right in the picture, makes a most gracious appearance in an attractive tea-gown. The sleeves in contrast color are long and full in true Cossack fashion, thus imparting a distinctive Russian accent. The jewel bracelets and the matching jewel ornament on the shoulders add the final glamour note.

The tea-gown to the left is of instant appeal to discriminating taste because of its exquisite simplicity and air of refinement. A princess style, it molds the figure closely and flares out in a wide skirt. The handsome crepe sleeves, narrowing at

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for February 18

TREASURES OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:44-46; 14:13-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.—James 1:17.

Hidden treasure!—there is something about it that catches our imaginations and stirs our expectancy of discovering great riches. Men are constantly going on expeditions to seek out lost treasure. Others are engaged in study and research to bring out new treasures in nature or in the realm of learning or art. Why not stir up a little excitement about the unbelievably rich treasures which are hid in Christ and in the life of faith in Him? It is not hidden, except to the eye of unbelief, but it is greatly neglected and all but forgotten by many.

The Scripture portions assigned for our lesson are not as well adapted to it as one could wish, but we may make good use of them. We learn here:

I. The Cost of Redemption (13:44-46).

Undoubtedly the lesson committee had in mind the usual interpretation of these parables, which presents the sinner as the one seeking the treasure and giving up all that he may have Christ.

While it is true that our redemption is worth more than anything else in all the world and that the Christian would gladly set aside (or would he?) everything for Christ's sake, yet that does not fulfill the thought of this parable. After all, what has a sinner (whose own righteousness is described in Scripture as "filthy rags") to sell in order to obtain redemption? And is it for sale? (See Eph. 2:8).

Obviously, we here have the Saviour with His all-seeing eye and loving heart noting in fallen humanity the pearl of great price, His own Church. He then gives up all the glory He had with the Father, comes to the earth, and even becomes sin for us that He may bring us to God.

Salvation in Christ is no little thing, not something which was purchased with gold or silver, but with the precious blood of Christ. We ought to value it highly, and because we are bought with such a price we ought always to glorify God (1 Cor. 6:20).

II. The Heart of Compassion (14:13-16).

The One who was willing to die that men might have eternal life was not unmindful of their need of His mercy and grace for their daily problems. Jesus not only died that we might have redemption from sin, but He lived (yes, and lives now!) with tender-hearted compassion toward those in need.

He who is the living Bread was not willing that men should hunger for their daily bread. The disciples saw only one solution—to send them away, but Jesus said, "They need not depart."

One is fearful that the church has been all too quick about sending the needy away to some social agency or community charity, when it should have won their confidence by its compassion, and then brought them to Christ.

Little is much when God is in it, and by the divine touch of Jesus the multitude was fed. Could we not do far more for Christ if we would only use the little we have, with His blessing, for the help of our fellow men?

III. The Miracle of Provision (14:17-21).

We pray, "Give us this day our daily bread," and it is only as God provides it that we have it. He gives life to the seed, and multiplies it in rich harvest, and we eat, we trust, with thankful hearts.

That is a miracle—so oft repeated that we have lost a bit of the wonder and glory of it. Here in the story of the feeding of the five thousand and more (v. 21) with five loaves and two fishes, we have such a miracle of provision taking the little and making it enough for the multitude.

The Lord may not work in exactly the same way today, but do not God's servants see Him multiply their meager store as they give it out in His name? That is true whether the gift be of material or spiritual things. God can and does bless those who trust Him. Letting what we have pass through the hands of Christ results in transformation and multiplication. Try it!

Men and women are value-conscious in our day. While money is plentiful, goods of real quality are scarce, and one must look for that which has durability and worth. The treasures which Christ offers are enduring. He says, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal" (Matt. 6:20). By contrast, "the things Satan offers are temporary. In a few years most earthly honors and wealth must be laid aside. But the treasures of the kingdom are treasures which God intends that we should possess forever."

Making That Problem Window Fit Perfectly Into the Room Setting

By Ruth Wyeth Spears

THE smart plaid curtains shown herewith match the window seat and several slip covers, and the wooden curtain pole, rings and draw cord match the dominant color in the plaid repeating the color of small cushions and lamp base. The window lets in the maximum of light and you would never guess that originally it looked like a postage stamp in the middle of a blank wall. At first it seemed impossible to curtain it because fixtures could not be screwed to metal casements or the plaster.

Largest Curtain Arranged In Thousands of Patterns

The largest and the most complex theatrical curtain ever made is in Radio City Music hall in New York, says Collier's. Thirteen steel cables, sewn vertically into the material nearly seven feet apart and raised and lowered by their own individual motors, make possible the arrangement of the curtain in thousands of contour patterns.

draw cord was knotted so that the curtains could be pulled back and forth.

WHO USE YOUR BATTERIES!

The Navy and Merchant Marine send rapid ship-to-ship messages by battery-powered flasher signal lights when radio communication might give a ship's position to the enemy.

It's difficult to locate men drifting in the sea! Water-tight battery lights on buoyant lifesaver suits have meant the difference between life and death for many Merchant seamen.

For emergency communication by voice, the Merchant Marine uses a portable megaphone to broadcast orders and instructions. Dry batteries give necessary power to the megaphone.

Two men and a bazooka make a winning team! But it takes large quantities of ammunition and dry battery power to keep these portable, hard-hitting weapons firing at the enemy.

Deadly flamethrowers are blazing the road to Victory! Dry batteries help to create the spark that sends these efficient weapons into instant, flaming action against the enemy.

The Signal Corps man with a Walkie-Talkie has freedom of speech as long as he has plenty of dry batteries! Handie-Talkies also use thousands of war batteries to power vital communications.

When they come Home—Burgess Batteries will be back again, too... powering flashlights, radios, telephones, instruments and controls for millions of homes, farms and industries throughout America.

Linen Is Big News

When you begin to plan your early spring frocks, the thing to do is to think in terms of pure linen. It's big news that pure Irish linen is available now for spring and summer fashions. This is something that has been sadly missed in the last several seasons. For this good-looking navy blue town dress, pure Irish linen as sheer as a handkerchief is used. It is dramatized with a white collar in sawtooth motif—the same repeated on the short sleeves. The button front and shirring at the waistline of this dress gives it a soft look, in keeping with the trend for more feminine treatment of beloved classics.

Little Sailor Hat Takes First Honors

What fuss and furore the little sailor hat is causing! Already it is proving the "smash hit" of the early spring season. The type that outranks them all is the little "Sissy sailor." Narrow of brim and high of crown, it has a way of making the wearer look bewitchingly feminine and lovely whether worn smack on the back of the head as the younger set do, or forward-tipped. You love them the more because of their stunning ribbon trims, and their provocative little veils which add coquetry in that the filmy mesh is often tied in a huge butterfly bow over one ear. Wide plaid ribbons about the tall crown, brought to the back where it goes all aflutter with animated loops and ends, does something to these little sailors in way of chic and charm that baffles description. These little flirtatious sailors are going to team up with the new spring suits to perfection.

Designful Pockets Adorn Spring Mode

This spring designers are focusing their genius on pockets. Eye-catching embroidery or braiding or fanciful design of all types are being lavished on pockets, making them a trimming theme of outstanding importance. Just one simple breast pocket embellished with design imparts to a simple suit a sophisticated look that women of fashion covet. Unique motifs, like whimsical little basket or heart-shaped ruffles, or pockets made of ribbon or lace, trim youthful daytime frocks. You can buy these pretty trimmings at novelty and dry goods stores.

School NOTES . . .

High School

Slightly more than seventy-five dollars was paid for admissions to the East Tawas-Tawas City basketball games Tuesday night.

Mention was made last week of the continuation of the March of Dimes Campaign in order to permit Tawas City to give to the cause. The sum of $16.86 was dropped into the boxes in the school building for this purpose by the school pupils during the week.

The Eleventh Grade American History class has begun the study of the American Civil War. Among the books in the library covering this period are two by Dwight Dumond, Ph. D., of the University of Michigan. Doctor Dumond is a well known authority upon this portion of American history and so we are fortunate to have a portion of his works in our library. The two books which we have are, "Southern Editorials on Secession" and "The Secession Movement." The first named is composed of copies of editorials taken from the southern newspapers of the period immediately before and during the great conflict. Another book covering the same period is one from a set, "The Real America," which has been kindly loaned us by a member of the class, Neil Thornton. This volume is written in an interesting style and contains many excellent photographs.

Primary Room

Marvin Clements, Melvin Timreck, Judy Austin, Virginia Haglund, Patsy Conklin and Kenneth Rollin received A's on their last weeks spelling tests.

We bought $7.40 worth of defense stamps last week.

We have learned a Valentine song called "A Valentine for Mother."
Group 1 of the first grade will finish reading in their primers this week.

Kindergarten

We had $3.40 for defense stamps this week.
Carolyn Finley visited us on Tuesday.

One of the Home Ec. classes gave us a very nice Valentine party Tuesday morning. We had games in the gym and a nice lunch in the Home Ec Room. Jimmy, Gale, Carl and Frances won prizes. They were nice pencils.

3rd and 4th Grades

We are glad to have Marilyn Baur in our third grade.

Charles Landon has been sick with a cold, but is back to school again.

Some of the Fourth grade girls decorated our Valentine box. It is very pretty.

Fourth grade boys are making a flag for our room. We are sure it will look nice.
We are reading valentine stories and Lincoln, too. They are nice and we enjoy them.

Mr. Gidding gave us a new calendar. It is one about safety. It says at the top, "Make Our Town a Safe Town."

Third Graders who had A in spelling were: Roland Hughes, Gerry Smith, Kay Brunning, Geneva Ulman, Larry Brown, Shirley Ferguson, Bruce Erickson, Ronaly Chaney, Neil Hughes and Tommy Morley.
(Those in the Fourth Grade were: Joan Ulman, Everett Lake, James Rapp, Bill Brown, Patsy Montgomery, Barbara Erickson, Rollie Gackstetter, Nancy Eastham, Duane Wright and Edward Hanna.)

7th and 8th Grades

The Seventh Grade memorized "O Captain! My Captain!" and Eighth Grade the "Gettysburg Address" for Lincoln's birthday. Mrs. Goldsmith read "The Perfect Tribute" to us.

We enjoyed the talk given by Mr. Schnitzler last Tuesday.

Some of our girls have trimmed a nice valentine box for us. We will have our party next week.

In discussing plans for the 1945 fair with the president, Mrs. Scofield, she stated, "I believe the horse pulling contest at our last fair was a real drawing card. It helped to encourage attendance so that people were able to see the wonderful exhibits of baked goods, canned goods, needle work, vegetables, grain, livestock and poultry. The directors may decide upon a horse pulling contest for each of the three days. In case they do, and it is entirely up to the directors to decide, it will probably include a light weight contest for the first day, a heavy weight contest the second day and a free for all the third day, with teams allowed to enter from anywhere in the state regardless of weight." She added, "If everyone will pitch in and help we will have a real fair this fall."
