Real bed comfort depends largely upon the under sheet being tucked in so firmly it will remain smooth and tight. Miter each corner, then tuck under the sheet.

You can loosen the soil on white shirt collars and cuffs by scrubbing them with a small stiff vegetable brush that has been dipped in diluted bleach water and then rubbed on a cake of naphtha soap.

Instead of rooting and digging among the family's clothes to find the soiled ones for Monday's wash, give each member of the family a laundry bag or basket and have him bring his own clothes to the laundry room.

Thoroughly and frequently massage any reddened areas you notice on a sick person whom you are caring for at home. Keep pressure off such spots with a slightly inflated rubber ring or small soft pillows.

If the knob is pulled off a tightly closed drawer, use a plunger or a large suction cup to open the drawer.

For a grease spot on wallpaper, try making a paste of cornstarch and water. Apply this to the spot and allow to dry. Then brush it off, and the spot will be gone.

Use an old toothbrush handle to remove dried grease from plated parts on your car. It will not scratch the metal and it can be shaped to clean the grooves.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By Col. Robert L. Scott W.N.U. RELEASE

The story thus far: After graduating from West Point as a second lieutenant Robert Scott wins his wings at Kelly Field and takes up combat flying. When the war breaks out he is an instructor and is told he is too old for combat flying. He carries his case to several Generals and is finally given an opportunity to get into the fight. He flies a bomber into India, where he becomes a ferry pilot but this does not appeal to him. After visiting Gen. Chennault he gets a Kittyhawk and soon becomes a "one man air force" over Burma. He is made commanding officer of the 23rd Fighter Group. Maj. Allison gets three bombers one day and lands in the river. His plane sinks.

CHAPTER XIX

But on the day when he finally got out on his way to what he wanted to do most, the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor. Ajax had just landed at Wake Island, and soldier that he was, he had reported to the Marine Commander for duty. He was having breakfast with the CO (CO means Commanding Officer), Major Devereaux, when the Japanese attack came to Wake.

Ajax used to say that the unusual strength he demonstrated that morning was due to the heavy supply of vitamin pills he had taken. As the first bomb hit the runway of the field, he ran with the others for the door and the safety of the slit trenches on the outside. The door opened inward, but Ajax opened it outward, taking the screen, the door, and most of that end of the flimsy building with him. Part of the glass hit him in the face—and that cut was the only wound he received in the bombing. But he carried the scar with him when I last saw him in China.

Baumler got out of Wake Island the next day on the last clipper, but to join the AVG he was no longer going West. It was now necessary to go all the way back and around the other way, towards the East. Anyway he managed to go by way of Washington and got promoted to Captain. I believe if Ajax had stayed in Washington just one more day, he would have been a Major. After seeing Ajax Baumler in a few fights, I wish that he had gotten to be a Major before he came to China, for he certainly was a fighter pilot.

During the month of our battle of Hengyang, I saw Captain Baumler do some of the nerviest things I've ever seen any man accomplish. We had a few ships that had been strafed badly on the ground; some of them had been shot to pieces, and in others the engines or hydraulic systems had been damaged. In most cases these same ships couldn't be got off the ground when the Japs came over; sometimes they were caught three or four times by Zeros, and consequently they were in a continual state of repair.

One of these was old Number 104, the ship that Ajax had been flying. The ground crew had worked on it for days, but whenever they'd have it just about ready to be taken back to the factory in Kunming for overhaul, the Japs would catch it again. Finally one morning Ajax must have said, "The hell with it." For when the "Jin-bao" came he went and got into the crippled fighter to take off before the Japs could get there to strafe it again. He told me later that he was tired of seeing it sitting on the ground as a target; whether it would fly or not, he was going to get it taxying as fast as it would go and at least make it harder to hit than it had been in the revetment. Well, Ajax did better than taxi—he got off. But the story of it all reached me later on.

I was on the ground that day, and didn't see it. But I heard Ajax talking on the radio, and I heard his six guns when he caught one of the Zeros. Just a little later I saw the trail of black smoke that marked the enemy ship going down. I was glad to hear Ajax talking that morning; for a minute I'd thought that smoke might be he, going down in that luckless Number 104. All the time he'd been flying the ship he'd been having to pump the landing-gear up manually, for the hydraulic system had been shot up by the Jap strafe days before. Added to this, an exertion which is no pleasant task at fighting altitudes, was a more painful experience. The cards were stacked even more heavily against Ajax in this jinx ship, for his electrical system was shorting out.

On his take-off from Hengyang, as he gave the ship the gun Baumler had felt a terrible electrical shock through his sweaty hand on the stick control. He couldn't turn the stick loose or the ship would have crashed in the take-off run; so he grimly held on. Take hold of the spark plug of your car some time while the engine is running, and you'll feel just about what Ajax felt. But he kept holding it until he was at an altitude where it was safe to turn the stick loose, get out his handkerchief, and wrap it around the stick.

Even after he had been through the fight and came in to land at Lingling he had to take some more of the shock cure, for by that time the handkerchief was damp and the electricity was jumping through it. He couldn't stay long on this last field, for the Japs were on the way back in waves; so he serviced and taxied out to take off. Though the engine was now missing badly, Ajax couldn't wait—the Japs would be there in a matter of minutes. He tried a take-off with the current going through his arms again and the engine sputtering and sputtering—and at the end of the runway he still hadn't enough speed to get in the air. He would swerve the ship about and try the other direction. Finally after three runs he got the fighter plane in the air, pumped the wheels up by hand and continued doing it for five hundred miles—and so flew back to Kunming.

But it wasn't all hard work and no play in China. Some evenings we used to sit in our cave down at Kweilin and listen to the Tokyo radio. They would give us reports on the missions that we flew to Hankow, Canton, and the cities near Lake Puyang Hu—Nanchang and Kukiang. They'd declare that we were using barbarous tactics and that we were going to be treated as guerrillas if we were captured.

One night while we sat there calmly listening to the news and playing gin rummy, Tokyo news-analysts announced they did not think the American fighter force in China was large. True enough, said the radio, they had struck weakly at several cities, in their barbaric way bombing innocent Chinese women and children, and for this the American pirates would pay when they were prisoners of the Imperial Japanese Government, now fighting to liberate Asia for the Asiatics.

We listened to the usual "blah" without raising an eyebrow, until Radio Tokyo continued: "We don't think the American fighter force in China is more than three hundred ships."

There was a squadron that came over from Assam to work with us, part of another group from India. In this squadron there were some fine fighter pilots, one of whom was Lieut. Dallas Clinger from old Wyoming. Clinger was another man who in years gone by in the West would have been a great gunman like Tex Hill. Only Clinger wouldn't have cared whether he was on the side of the Law, the Mormons, the Church, or Jesse James. He just wanted to fight.

Pilots of the China Air Task Force on the alert at Hengyang.

One morning Clinger was one of a formation of three fighters over Hengyang. His combat report read like this:

"I was flying on my leader's wing—Lieutenant Lombard—at 23,000 feet when we saw three enemy planes down below circling. There were larger formations reported around. Just then I heard my flight leader say: 'There are three stragglers—let's attack 'em.' So we dove into them like mad. As I shot into the Zero on the right of the formation I saw that we were in the midst of twenty-four other Zeros, all shooting at us. I got mad and shot at every plane that I could get my sights on. I think I shot one down but I was so busy I didn't see it crash."

This was signed "DALLAS CLINGER—2nd Lieutenant—Almost Unemployed."

What Clinger had really done was the greatest piece of daredevil flying that any of us had ever seen. Instead of diving away from the twenty-seven ship circus as the others had done, he had stayed and fought the old-fashioned "dog-fight" until the Japs just about took him in pieces from sheer weight of numbers. When they straggled home they must have been the most surprised bunch of pilots in all Japan, for this crazy American with his heavy P-40 had done everything in or out of the book. He fought right side up and upside down, from 23,000 feet down to less than one thousand. As many Japs as could fill the air behind Clinger would get there and try to hang on while they shot; but Clinger wouldn't fight fair and stay there. In the end, he came right over the field, diving from the enemy until he had outdistanced them enough to turn; then he'd pull up into an "Immelmann" and come back shooting at them head-on.

He was last seen after the unequal fight skimming out across the rice paddies, making just about 500 miles an hour, with some ten to twelve Zeros following. For some reason they seemed reluctant, as though they didn't know whether to run after Clinger or leave him alone. He came in for lunch with his ship badly shot up by their cannon. But he had shot one of them down and had got another "probable." Down Lingling way on another morning, Clinger went into an attack with his engine acting up. After the first contact with the enemy, he was forced to land, followed by two enemy strafers. As Clinger maneuvered the falling fighter into a safe landing, the two Zeros came down shooting at his rolling P-40.

Dallas from Wyoming got out on the wing to jump onto the ground, with his ship still rolling. Just then one of the Jap bullets went right through his seat-pack chute, passing exactly between Clinger's pants and where he sat on the parachute. He got so mad he jumped back in the cockpit and shot at two Zeros as they passed over his nose. After all, air-cooled guns are made to shoot while the ship is going two or three hundred miles an hour—but Lieutenant Clinger said he got in a pretty good burst from his grounded fighter before the six Fifties froze.

Johnny Allison had helped to train Clinger in the tactics of fighter pilots. In fact, Johnny used to fly with every man in his flight on his wing, at one time or another. In one training flight such as this he took Clinger up and they practiced attacking one another—"dog-fighting," the "pea-shooter" pilots say. Up there at nearly 20,000 feet they came at one another head-on, time after time, until the moment when, as Johnny told me later, he was sure Clinger was going to run into him. Allison, who usually forced others to give way, had to dive under Clinger's P-40. They circled and tried again, and again Clinger kept right on coming, until, as the ships drew together at well over six hundred miles an hour relative speed, once more Johnny had to dodge, and the Wild Man from Wyoming went on over his head.

They landed then, and by the time Johnny had climbed out of his ship he had calmed down. Clinger came nonchalantly over. Just in passing Allison said, "That was pretty good flying, Clinger; you fly formation well and you look around okay. But you want to watch those head-on runs—you nearly hit me up there. Did you know that?"

Clinger shifted the weight of his body back to both feet. With his chin out, he answered: "Yes, Sir, Major—I tried to. You see, you've been flying longer than I have and I know I'm not as good a pilot as you are. But, Sir, I knew I'd come closer to you than you would to me."

You can find the remains of a good many Japs in China, or somewhere down in the China Sea, who know that Clinger meant just what he said. He'd keep coming at them head-on and shoot them out of the sky before they got to him.

The battle for the defense of Hengyang lasted through August, but we didn't just sit there on the defensive. We rapidly took the offensive as our best defense, and kept it up until higher headquarters sent us a very classic radio:

"You either did not understand or did not receive my last radiogram to remain on the defensive. Repeat quote on the defensive unquote. Signed, Chennault."

At Nanchang, on August 11, 1942, I shot down my fourth enemy plane that was confirmed. Though I hate the Japs with a passion, I felt sorry for that pilot, for he never saw me at all. But as I left his burning ship North of the runway that he had been taking off from, I thought of the boys in the Philippines and Java, and I wasn't so sorry.

I had dropped my five-hundred-pound bomb on the hangars, when in pulling out of the dive I saw Lieutenant Barnum, from Old Lyme, Connecticut, continue his dive on a Jap ship, and begin to fire on it. I looked below. There was dust at the far end of the Jap field where one enemy plane was taking off. I rolled over and dove, pulling out about a half mile behind the enemy at the moment he got off the ground. His wheels had just begun to move to the "up" position as I got him dead in my sights and pressed the triggers. As the pilot died, his new 1-97-2 pulled straight up, then spun into the ground the few feet it had climbed. I passed over it as the flames belched from the wreckage. I climbed for an enemy observation plane higher over Lake Puyang Hu, but the Jap outclimbed me, and though I fired at him several times from long range he finally got away.

On this trip, Barnum had shot down one enemy ship, and Lieutenant Daniels, though unable to release his wing-rack fragmentation bombs, had strafed the field with his bombs hanging on. After the attack, this pilot had force-landed his plane in a rice paddy near Hengyang rather than bail out—and this decision to save the ship for spare parts had been made with the six frags still hanging from the faulty wing-racks. He got away with it, and Captain Wang was able to salvage the fighter.

When the P-40's got so shot up that we were afraid they'd quit running and we'd lose them over the enemy lines, we were called back to Kunming. There, sitting around for two weeks while we worked on the ships and anxiously looked for mail from home, the war seemed far away.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:21-35. GOLDEN TEXT—If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.—Matthew 6:14, 15.

Forgiveness is the very essence of Christianity. In Christianity only do we find an adequate and proper dealing with sin, leading to forgiveness. In Christ alone do we find that forgiveness, cleansing and regeneration.

Since God has so willingly and wonderfully provided for our forgiveness, it would seem that we would need no urging to make us forgiving in spirit toward one another.

Yet it is indeed "a melancholy fact that there are few Christian duties so little practiced as that of forgiveness. It is sad to see how much bitterness, unmercifulness, spite, harshness and unkindness there is among men" (J. C. Ryle).

I. The Extent of Forgiveness (vv. 21, 22).

"How long do I have to stand it?" is the question of the human heart, especially if untouched by the spirit of Christ. The injustices of life, the offenses of our fellow men against us, all seem to pile up until the burden is about to crush us. What is the answer to man's question?

The Jews had an answer. He said three times is enough. Forgive once, yes. Again, yes. But the third time, no. Peter was bighearted enough to more than double that allowance of mercy. He was willing to forgive not just two or three times, but seven times.

The spirit of Christ swept all of that aside. He said that one should forgive 70 times seven. In other words, Christian forgiveness is to be untiring, unlimited, to know no weariness and have no boundaries. If one really forgives, it is because he has a forgiving spirit, and that spirit is not exhausted by use, but rather grows by exercise.

A word of caution is in order at this point. Let no one suppose that our Lord's instruction means that offenses against the law of the land or against the good order of society are to be overlooked and condoned. It relates rather to the cultivation of a personal spirit of forgiveness, the laying aside of revenge, of malice, of retaliation which do not become the Christian.

II. The Motive of Forgiveness (vv. 23-34).

Two motives are given. The first is that since we ourselves are daily and hourly in need of forgiveness at the merciful hand of God, we should in turn be merciful toward those who sin against us. Compared with our offenses against the Law of God, we know that the misdeeds of our neighbors against us are usually mere trifles. Remember what God has done for you, when you are tempted to be hard and ungracious with your brother.

The second motive is the remembrance that a day of judgment is to come. There is always a time of reckoning ahead, even as was the case with these servants. Remember not only what God has done for you and is doing for you, but what you must yet expect Him to do in that day of judgment. It will make you merciful and gracious in your judgment of others.

Forgiveness has a fine quality which commends itself to others. Note the sorrow of the fellow servants (v. 31). There is, then, a social value in true forgiveness.

III. The Importance of Forgiveness (v. 35).

A man dealing with his fellow man is apt to think that it is merely a matter between man and man. We are not dealing with a straight line between ourselves and our brother (that was Peter's error), but with a triangle at whose apex is God Himself.

If I expect God to forgive me, I must let my forgiveness flow out to my brother. If I deal with him as though God had nothing to do with the matter, then I must not try to count God's forgiveness into the picture when I stand indebted before Him.

God does not play favorites. He is no respecter of persons. He is as interested in the other man as He is in me. The Christian should have the same spirit.

Here we need a word of explanation. Let no one suppose that our redemption in Christ is contingent upon what we do toward our brethren. "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast" (Eph. 2:8, 9).

Nor does the truth of our lesson mean that we are somehow going to bargain with God, trading a bit of our forgiveness toward others for His forgiveness of us. God is not interested in such transactions. But it does mean that if you cannot or will not forgive, you may well consider whether you are a Christian at all, for it is Christlike to forgive.

Fire Fighter Knew Male Animal Would Assert Self

A young mother was having great difficulty with her three-year-old son, who had locked himself in the bathroom and either could not or would not unlock the door. In desperation, she called the fire department.

After a brief wait, a burly fire captain ran up the steps. She explained her predicament, but instead of going back for a ladder, he asked her the sex of the child. When she told him, he went to the door and said in his most authoritative voice, "You come out, little girl!" Aroused at being called a little girl, the boy unlocked the door and marched out to confront the fireman.

Washington, D. C.
GERMAN UNDERGROUND
SEETHES

According to uncensored dispatches now reaching Washington, active guerrilla warfare is flaring up on a mounting scale behind the German lines.

First real indication of an active fifth column in Germany came recently with accurate reports of pitched battles inside Berlin, Breslau and Bremen. This new guerrilla warfare differs from that of partisan units inside France, Yugoslavia and Greece in that few of the guerrilla troops are Germans. The bulk are Frenchmen and Russians who were captured earlier in the war and have been used as slave labor in the Reich.

All of these workers were carefully guarded by Himmler until recently. Most lived in big cities and worked in large industrial plants. In Berlin for example, hundreds of thousands of slave laborers have been housed in fenced off temporary barracks in the heart of the city. But recent powerful allied air raids have created such chaos that thousands of foreign workers escaped from their enclosures and have hidden in the bomb ruins.

At night, the guerrillas prowl the streets, capture Nazi sentries, steal food and ammunition, commit extensive sabotage. They have been joined by some German army deserters, afraid to return to the front, advises say.

Once Berlin is taken it is expected that the several million slave laborers will flare into such revolt that Germany—except in the mountainous south—will cave like an egg-shell.

OVER-AGE SERVICEMEN

Greatest hardship on men in the army probably is with enlisted men over 38, now too old to become officers but who can't resign as officers can.

Typical case of how this hardship works is that of Cpl. Alexander C. Sioris, age 45, who has served in the army three years, most of the time overseas. Corporal Sioris is not only a college graduate, but holds a doctor's degree. Twice he was recommended for officers' training school, but each time his unit moved overseas and he had to sail with his unit. Now he is too old to be commissioned, too old for combat, yet under present army rules must be kept on—doing menial jobs.

There are thousands of similar cases. What the army needs is a good overhauling of its manpower, especially older men who have been in the army a long time.

NEW MANPOWER PROGRAM

War Manpower Commission Director Paul McNutt may put a new program into effect very soon in all light labor areas. This would limit employers in non-essential or less essential industries to a certain percentage of the number of workers they employed last year. This ceiling-employee program has already been tried out in Chicago and proven successful.

Chicago employers in non-essential and less essential industries will be required to cut the number of employees on the payroll 10 per cent by March 15.

SECRET RED WEAPONS

The Russians are way ahead of both the United States and Great Britain in the use of rocket guns, have employed them with devastating effect in the lightning drive through Poland, and particularly in the offensive against the Nazis in East Prussia.

One new and very important weapon which Stalin unveiled in the new drive is the 100-ton tank named after himself. The Stalin tank is superior to the German royal tiger tank, and our own Sherman heavy tank. It carries a 4.8-inch gun against the 3-inch gun carried on our Sherman. So long as the ground remains hard, the Stalin tank is capable of resisting any but the largest point-blank German shells. On the other hand, the mobile gun on the Stalin tank can pierce most of the German secondary fortifications so far encountered by the Russians, it is said.

WAR NOTES

Germans are already trying to escape from the threatened Nazi homeland. Reports from Lisbon, Madrid, Stockholm and Berne reveal hundreds of Germans trying to crash the frontier to get out of Germany before the Allies take over.

FDR still hasn't decided who he will name as high commissioner of the Philippines. WMC Director Paul McNutt and Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy both are ready to go. If Murphy takes it, Roosevelt will nominate Judge Sam Rosenman to the Supreme court.

A significant new Slav treaty is now being negotiated. It will bind together the Czechoslovak government and the Lublin-Polish government in the first step toward the creation of an eastern European Slav alliance—naturally with Moscow's blessing.

Jap-Held Coast of North China
Now in Range of U. S. Bombers

Port Cities Famed in Tea and Silk Trade
Must Be Recaptured

By the National Geographic Society

The Chinese have a saying, "Everything new originates in Canton." Bearing this out they point to the fact that the earliest Chinese trade with the Western world centered at Canton, and that Sun Yat Sen, who established the modern Chinese state, found his first followers there. This port, so important in the life of China, marks the southern end of a vital 1,000-mile sweep of coast which extends northward to the Japanese-held Shanghai area.

Along this coast, now feeling the blows of American bombs, Japanese control is only nominal except for the ports. One important port, Foochow (Minchow), remained in Chinese hands throughout the entire war until a recent sudden attack by Japanese forces.

Japanese penetration along sections of this long coast is only skin deep, extending no farther inland than the waning power of the Nipponese navy is felt. A few miles inland from the port garrisons the Chinese remain in control. Some sizable reaches of the coast between major ports are likewise free of the invader.

The shoreline from Canton to Shanghai forms a gentle outward curve with countless minor irregularities but no deep indentations except the Canton estuary, Hangchow bay, and the mouth of the Yangtze. The coast is rugged, rocky and shattered into thousands of islands. Typhoons often rage along the entire coast except at Shanghai, making ships scurry to the nearest typhoon shelter. Gentler monsoons blow all year. Fishing is one of the chief occupations of the crowded, land-starved people.

A bit of this coast is tropical, and much subtropical. Hong Kong lies on about the same latitude as Havana, Cuba, and Shanghai is no farther north than Savannah, Ga. Orange groves, tea shrubs and rice paddies are seen in profusion as far north as Foochow.

Rivers Carry All Traffic.

Railroads are not as important in serving Chinese ports as are rivers. Many of the coast cities have no railroads. Each port lies at the mouth of a river. Nearly all traffic is borne to and from the ports on water, making them really transshipment points between river and canal craft and ocean-going vessels.

Canton, about 90 miles from the open sea, is truly a city built on water trade. It is situated at the head of an estuary into which flow several rivers. Estimates place from 100,000 to 200,000 of its 860,000 inhabitants actually living on the water, in junks, on rafts, sampans and barges. In this floating city within a city a man could be born, grow up, marry, have children, and die, spending most of his life on the water.

Canton saw the birth of the foreign trade and merchant marine of the United States. Six months after England recognized the Colonies' independence the ship Empress of China was bound for Canton—and tea. She also brought back china-ware and silk. Thus started the fabulous China trade, in which Yankee-built clipper ships outraced everything on the sea. Before the Japanese invasion brought an interruption, one-third of modern Canton's exports came to the United States, mostly as raw silk.

Canton was feverishly improving itself when the Japs came. The Bund, formerly a muddy track along the river front, was transformed into a wide, well-paved street backed by eight and nine-story hotels, department stores and a modern customhouse. Thousands of ramshackle buildings were razed to make way for 60 miles of paved streets. Roads into the interior were built.

On either side of the mouth of Canton's estuary lie two foreign colonies—Portuguese Macau and British Hong Kong. Macau was the thin edge of the wedge which Europe thrust into China in the 16th century that later opened most of the important ports of the empire to foreign trade. Little more than remembrance of past glory remains to Macau.

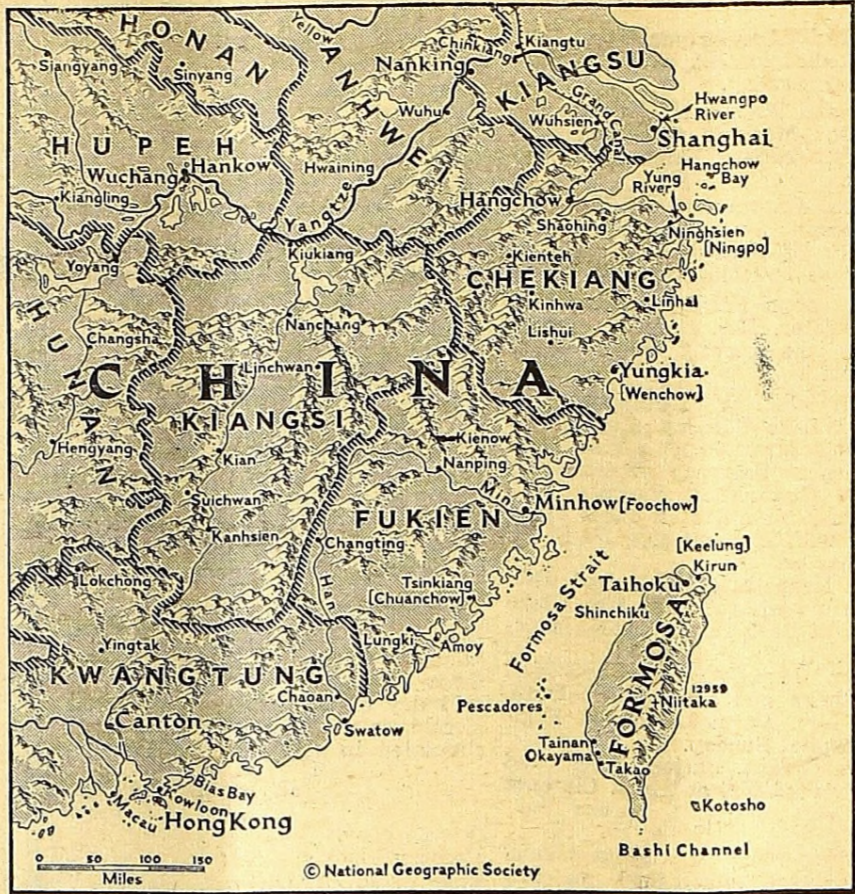

British Gain Monopoly.

Hong Kong, Britain's great entrepot across the bay, had nearly monopolized the foreign trade of all south China. It ranked as one of the world's principal ports, with a population of slightly over a million, 20,000 of whom were Caucasians.

Northeast of Hong Kong is Bias bay, hangout of pirates. Though usually attacking junks or small native ships, these bold corsairs sometimes boarded steamers as passengers, overpowered the crews on the high seas, and took the ships to Bias bay for looting and for holding rich passengers for ransom.

Swatow, Amoy, Chuanchow and Foochow are four important ports opposite Japanese-held Formosa (Taiwan). Swatow, near the mouth of the Han, was noted for its exports of linen embroidery and laces. A city of 178,000, Swatow had no wharves, but unloaded its ships at mid-river pontoons which were bridged to the shore. As in most China ports, lighters also carried the cargo from large ships anchored in the harbor to the shore.

Amoy supplied the tea for the Boston Tea Party. The British ships whose cargoes were dumped into Boston bay in 1773 carried tea from this faraway Chinese city. Amoy's prewar 234,000 persons had one of China's most improved ports. Once dirty and backward, it built wide streets, an extensive Bund, and the finest park in south China. It lost its rich Formosa trade when Japan took that Chinese island in 1895.

The harbor of Chuanchow (Tsin-kiang) admits only vessels of 10-foot draft or less, but Foochow has an anchorage for the largest vessels. A Chinese navy yard and dry docks were located there. In the 1850s, '60s and '70s Foochow was the most famous tea port in the world. British and American clippers loaded up with bohea tea and raced west. In the race of 1866 there was a difference of only 12 minutes between the first and second ships to reach the finish line in the English channel—after a voyage of 16,000 miles.

Farm Supplies Will Continue to Be Short,
But Improvement Is Expected in Some Lines

Farmers are in for another tough year on the mechanical side of their production job, according to Fred-eric B. Northrup, director of the office of materials and facilities of the War Food administration.

Instead of hoped for improvement in the materials and equipment situation, and fewer transportation problems, farmers in 1945 may expect to see a continuation of obstacles against which they have battled throughout the war years.

That brings into sharp relief the necessity for using every bit of machinery and other equipment to the best possible advantage, keeping tools and buildings in good repair, sharing available equipment where it is practical, and keeping close check on unnecessary waste of materials.

Transportation problems, Northrup said, will be affected by the fact that the approved truck production program will provide less than a fourth of the new trucks estimated to be essential. Production of light trucks, of particular interest to farmers, is authorized at about 12 per cent of estimated requirements. The number of surplus army trucks that will be available is unpredictable. Heavy truck tires continue in short supply.

Although production of some of the most important labor-saving machines has been greatly increased during the war, government surveys show that the outlook for 1945 could still be improved upon. Farm machinery in general (with the exception of tractors) at last report was running 20 to 25 per cent behind schedule. Spring tools and some other items requiring heavy use of castings were behind schedule, although tractor production was approximately on the line.

Parts Are Available.
Plenty of parts are expected to be available to keep current equipment up to date, and farmers are being urged to check over and repair every old machine that can be kept in operation.

Emphasis in the farm machinery program will continue to be on labor-saving machines for harvesting and haying, Northrup pointed out, but planting, fertilizing and tillage equipment will receive a bigger share of authorized material than in past programs.

Reuse of bags and wooden containers is being urged again in 1945, as the fabric and wood shortage is expected to make for further scarcity of these items.

Lumber continues in critical shortage, but the farmers' situation on repairs calling for this material is somewhat improved. They can now go to their county AAA committees and get certificates for lumber to be used in urgently needed repair and maintenance of farm dwellings, just as they have been getting certificates for lumber to be used on other farm buildings. About as much metal roofing and siding as last year appears certain.

No shortage is anticipated for nails, staples, bale ties and pipe, and manufacturers of fence wire and netting are authorized to produce at a greater rate than their prewar level. The number of hand tools in prospect is about the same as in 1944, with some tools and other miscellaneous supplies continuing to move to farms from stocks of surplus war property.

Supplies of binder twine are expected to be adequate, with an improvement in quality during 1945. The rope situation is not yet clarified, although the quality will continue to be below prewar days. There will probably be enough milk cans to meet farmers' requirements,

SEA SHES

There's a new navy rave sweeping through the Jive and Johnson set. It's the good old middy blouse, just like the teenagers used to wear when Elsie Dinsmore was the Orphan Annie of her day. In some schools the gals wear white middies tucked into navy blue skirts and finished off with stone studded belts. In other schools they're buying navy blue middies that look like genuine G.I. stuff and wearing them over-blouse fashion over pleated navy or plaid skirts. Of course, you'll need a little white gob hat to top off this seaworthy set-up. Could be you'll be going in for hornpipes instead of Lindys and chanties instead of jive!

FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS

When he sends you a posy for the big dance, what do you do with it—besides swoon over it? Do you just pin it to your shoulder where it's sure to be crushed before you get your first cut-in, or do you handle it with care and imagination and wear it for style as well as sentiment?

Wrist Twist—Did he send you two gardenias? Lucky you! Sew or pin them separately to a black velvet ribbon tied around each wrist.

On Your Head—Those velvet ribbon bands you're spanning across your smooth brows are perfect flower holders. One gardenia on each side or a single orchid will look lush.

In the Bag—It's old stuff to pin your corsage to your evening bag, but it's new nonsense to carry it in one of these new transparent plastic box bags—if you're lucky enough to have one.

Doggy Decoration—So he didn't send you a corsage? Well, buy yourself three or four little Sweetheart roses (from you to you, with love) and sew them side by side in the center of a narrow black velvet ribbon. Tie the ribbon around your fair (and scrubbed) neck with the bow in back and the roses in front, and you have the very newest in dog collar necklaces.

'HI' SIGN IN THE HALL

I keep on waiting for the bell—
The time for changing classes:
I hold my breath and pray that he
Will see me when he passes.

He may be with some other girl—
(Oh, would that I were she!)
But my heart skips a boogie beat
When he says "Hi!" to me!

I'm not at all discouraged yet,
I'll never give up trying,
While there is life, there's always hope—
As long as he keeps "Hi"—ing!

False Teeth Now Being Rationed in Germany

STOCKHOLM.—A Berlin dispatch said recently that false teeth will be rationed strictly in Germany from now on, and can be had only by special permission of authorities.

Official permission also will be required for dental repairs, the dispatch to the Dagens Nyheter said. The applicant must be able to prove an "imperative need" and turn in the old fillings.

Spring Fashions Put Emphasis On Soft Styling and Gay Color

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ONE of the most important messages that the new fashions bring to us is the fact of a new soft-styling technique that accents the prettily feminine throughout the entire spring mode.

Instead of mannish tailored effects, designers are turning out charming bolero and cape suits together with simple cardigan types galore. These abound in prettifying highlights, such as bright linings, intriguing pockets and sprightly little self-fabric bows or contrast bindings to finish off edges. There's much braidwork entering into the scheme of things and big eye-catching buttons will play a star role in costume design.

The new spring coats and costume ensembles that include topcoat, jacket and skirt, or a color-bright coat worn over a one-piece gown, all reflect a most flattering soft styling. The trend to a soft silhouette is aptly demonstrated in the stunning new styles illustrated herewith. This trio of fashion-firsts for spring was selected from advance collections created and displayed by Chicago Fashion industries.

Because of its drawstring waistline, its tie fastening and its roomy sleeves, the coat shown to the left is definitely representative of the new soft-style trend. Made of suede-finish strictly all-wool cloth in bright color range (it comes in sparkling spring shades) and having the new "shorty" length, it is outstandingly spring, 1945.

This is going to be a big season for big buttons. The coat to the right tells you how smart are the new and large lucite buttons that impart "style" to many a handsome coat for spring. This all-wool fleece mandarin coat possesses unlimited wearing qualities. Its raglan sleeves and slit pockets are right up to the moment in chic.

wins high fashion rank both because of its soft styling and its play-up of striking color contrast. The skirt is black. The jacket underneath the black topper is bright red. Pockets formed of hand basket-woven self-fabric folds in black and red embellish the smart coat.

Color is playing an exciting role in fashions for spring. The call for grays is tremendous. "Any color so it's gray," about expresses it. Added to the list of practical utilitarian grays are many tones and tints in gray that fascinate with their subtle loveliness. The new pussy-willow gray is one of the new grays that you will fall in love with at first sight. Another choice color that is making conversation is known as white wine or white rum as some call it. Entire dress and coat ensembles in these beautiful grays are shown, also separate smartly styled toppers. White coats in the spring collections come as a surprise. However, their early entry into the fashion picture is but a prelude to the important role they are scheduled to play all through the spring and summer season.

The neutrals in grayish and pale beige tones are a hundred per cent good looking. In cape suits they are stunning. Great importance is being attached to pink. It is definitely in the limelight, being made up in most flattering wool toppers, and prettiest ever dresses and suits. Pink with navy is a leading theme. Enthusiasm for navy knows no bounds. It is the big success color of the season. Brown for the wool topcoat worn over brown and white prints is very smart. Brown with pink accessories also is high fashion.

Three-Piece Suit

Cape Costumes Are 'Fashion Important'

When the spring season gets into full stride watch the new and smart-looking cape costumes come out in endless parade. There is something very intriguing about the idea of a dress, a suit or a skirt with a handsomely styled matching cape. Out of all the excitement in regard to the new cape fashions a new and very practical and ultra chic costume-ideal is developing for career and college girls. For that matter it will be welcomed by every woman who is looking for practical fashions for practical wear. Briefly described it is that of the wool skirt with a smart hip-length matching cape with which you will need a whole wardrobe of pretty blouses that tune to occasion. Grand idea! They are now showing skirt-and-cape twosomes to be worn with blouses. Buy a smart pullover sweater too. Be sure that it is a perfect color match to your skirt and blouse (you'll love the new neutral grays or beige). With your jewelry neck sweater it's smart to wear a strand or more of pearls.

Designers Employing Lace In Many Versatile Ways

In neckwear departments they are showing lovely jabots all of lace that look stunning on the new black or navy faille or moire suit. You can also get frills of matching lace to sew in the sleeves. Print frocks show a surprising amount of lace trims. Incrustations of fine black lace enhance many of this season's sheer black frocks.

Bertha Collars Back in Style

Bertha collars are again in fashion. They are liked because they give the "little girl" look to dainty cotton frocks now being made with drop sleeves. They also are manipulated to give a short sleeve effect.

TELEFACT

False Teeth Now Being Rationed in Germany

STOCKHOLM.—A Berlin dispatch said recently that false teeth will be rationed strictly in Germany from now on, and can be had only by special permission of authorities.

INSOFAR as so-called fan mail goes, the bulk of the correspondence we have received lately concerns the scoring in boxing matches. Apparently there is a nationwide interest in attempting to solve this problem, which Commissioner Eddie Egan of New York has tackled so intelligently. He is making progress, but there are still many tall barricades along the road. His campaign, however, has started many fans to thinking along these lines.

For example here is one letter I think worth recording. It comes to me from Maj. Richard Maibaum of the U. S. army signal corps:

Grantland Rice

"Dear Mr. Rice: As chief, combat films branch, signal corps photographic center, one of my duties is supervising the review of several hundred thousand feet of film per month shot by army combat cameramen, all over the world, much of it under battle conditions. The exposed negative, unprocessed, is sent in from the field accompanied by caption sheets in which the cameramen describe the action they have photographed. And I am often amazed at the discrepancy between what actually appears on the film and what the cameramen in all good faith believe will be found there.

'Wish Fulfillment'

"I think I found the answer to the puzzler about scoring boxing matches the night a friend of mine lost a unanimous decision after a fight in which I thought he won every round. The boy was young, clean-cut, honest, stout-hearted and skillful. I had a strong personal interest in his career. The match was crucial, a big step up if he won.

"On the heels of the shock administered by the decision I indulged in a little introspection. It came down to this: how could my eyes have so completely deceived me?

"Yet deceived me they had, and with my own stubborn conviction, I saw that boy win because I wanted him to win. It was a pure case of wish-fulfillment. Actually I had fought that fight with him, identifying myself with his efforts, and seeing it through his eyes. Haven't you caught yourself 'following' only one of the fighters in the ring and saying, 'Now I'll follow' the other fellow for a while?"

"When the two men touch off no special pre-fight interest, it is usually some incident during the bout that suddenly 'fixes' your preference upon one of the combatants. A display of courage, a sudden personality appeal, a common prejudice aroused (or overcome).

"No matter how impartial we try to be, we do subjectively choose the man we want to emerge victorious. And we interpret what we see in that light. Especially in close bouts.

"The bafflement is caused by the fact that the choice we make is often a subconscious one. We're not aware that we have installed one of the men as a 'psychic favorite,' the one who somehow squares with a lot of preconceived notions so much a part of us we don't even realize we have them.

"I think this also applies to the officials, who may be as honest as Abe Lincoln, but who are still subject to the same psychological laws that govern the rest of us.

Maj. Richard Maibaum, Signal Corps, U. S. Army"

Six-Year-Old Judges

Here is a true report of at least a part of the picture. You and I, sitting together, see two different actions taking place.

"I have only one solution to offer," the major says. "The age limit of officials should be around six years. After the scrap the kids should be asked—'Who got licked?' I think you'd usually get the true answer. The kids haven't had time to sop up that ego that makes most fight fans see what they want to see, because what they want to see must be the way it is."

This is a completely correct statement. We usually see only what we want to see.

As Hughey Keogh once wrote—"The world's greatest liar is the man who says he can bet one way and root another."

This is like saying a man can stand on his head and his feet at the same time. A contortionist can perform this feat, but he won't be standing. He will be in a knot.

How About Eyesight?

Along this line I have just received a letter from Dr. M. T. Gilden, optometrist and eye specialist, in connection with boxing decisions.

"Because you speak of the importance of eyesight and I am an optometrist, I suggest that both judges and the referee should have their eyes examined to determine their visual acuity. In plain words to determine what their degree of vision is, and their visual speed of recognition." (An extremely important detail, seldom mentioned.)

Gen. Stilwell Road Completed to Supply China

The greatest engineering feat in the annals of the United States army was the completion of the Stilwell road through Burma, by Brig. Gen. Lewis A. Peck, his American engineers and thousands of native laborers. Not only was the road constructed, air fields built, mountains and jungles conquered, the monsoons defeated, raging rivers bridged, but malaria was licked in solving the problem as General Peck and his men slaved against time, nature and the Japanese, thousands of miles from home.

Ex-G.I.s Enter College for Postwar Training

While industry is still laying its careful plans for the day when swords may be beaten into plowshares, the government has already put into operation its machinery of reconversion for the men discharged from the armed forces. Thousands of young men are being discharged monthly, and many of them, like those shown above, have resumed their studies or are receiving training for new vocations.

General Eddy Wins Decoration

Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, right, receives the Distinguished Service medal from Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, for his leadership of the 12th army corps in the drive across France. He is the officer who outmaneuvered German Field Marshal Von Rundstedt on the Moselle river and led assault between Nancy and Metz.

Treated Fence Posts Last Twenty Years

New Method Cost Now Reduced to Six Cents

THE chlorinated phenol dunking method of treating fence posts, a comparatively new wood preservative, can be used at a cost of from 5 to 6 cents per post. Tests conducted at the University of Idaho experiment station show that the life of soft wood posts, properly treated by this method, will be from 15 to 20 years. They found that the bottom of the post will last the life of the top.

Not only is it possible to treat fence posts, but fence rails, gates, barn sills, bridge timbers, irrigation gates, and similar pieces can be treated.

Chlorinated phenol is a liquid concentrate, and can be obtained full strength or diluted with various amounts of oil. Buying in concentrate form saves shipping and storage; it can then be diluted in proportions of one part of concentrate to 14 parts of diesel oil, stove oil or old crank case drainings. Not only for this purpose but for spraying purposes, it is usually possible to secure crank case drainings at service stations at little cost.

White Ash.

The white ash is not only America's leading hardwood but its most important ash. It grows from Nova Scotia westward to Minnesota and southward almost to the Gulf of Mexico. It is a stately tree 75 to 125 feet high.

The wood of the white ash is heavy, hard, strong and stiff, seasons well, takes a good polish and is free from taste or odor. Its principal uses are for handles, cooperage, furniture, motor vehicle parts, sporting and athletic goods, as well as railroad ties, veneer and fuel.

Select Dairy Cows On Standard Basis

In selecting dairy cows certain definite points must be looked for. Among the most important are:

1. Ample digestive capacity, which means good length, width and depth of body.
2. A good constitution as shown by great chest capacity.
3. A large udder of soft quality.

A good type dairy cow.

4. The rump should be long, wide and level and the hip bones should be wide apart.
5. The hide should be thin, loose and pliable, and the bones of medium size, with the head showing general refinement.
6. Must have dairy temperament, or tendency and ability to produce milk.
7. Generally the larger the dairy cow the better. Size and quality, however, must be properly correlated.

Two chorus girls were having tea together.

"And you, John?"

"I picked up the pieces."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

During at least the first three years following the end of the war, experts believe that 70 million tires will be needed annually in the U. S. alone. The peak year, 1941, saw a production of 62 million tires in this country.

Greater use of mechanical farm implements in post-war years is expected to make agriculture one of the largest consumers of rubber.

Despite the Far East war, the Foreign Economic Administration expects that 73,100 tons of natural rubber will be shipped to the U. S. from Ceylon and India during 1944.

School NOTES . . .

High School

The Twelfth Grade Economics class is making quite an intensive study of the different kinds of stocks and bonds which are issued by corporations. Samples of both coupon and registered bonds have been secured in the community, as well as samples of common, preferred, cumulative, noncumulative, par value and no par value stock. We believe that this division of the subject can be made of practical importance which will function in the lives of the boys and girls.

The social science department of the high school recently received a 1945 edition of Magruder's American Government from the publishing company, Allyn and Bacon. They are many quite recent photographs to be found within the text. Among these is one of General MacArthur, one of President Roosevelt giving the Congressional Medal of Honor to General Doolittle, the Supreme Court of the United States in 1945, and Representatives of the United Nations. "Planning Our Transition from War Back to Peace" is the title of one chapter. Considerable space is given to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, and to proposals for the charter of the United Nations. One can easily understand why the Magruder text in American Government is used in more senior high schools in Michigan than all other texts combined.

Drawing for the places in the District Tournament was held at the school building Monday evening. We were pleased to have results such that Tawas City participated in the first game.

We had two spelling tests last week, and Kenneth Rollin received A's in both tests.

Richer Diet

Nutritionally our civilian diet in 1943 was probably superior to the prewar diet of 1935-39 and, with a few exceptions, the per capita consumption of the major nutrients—calories, proteins, vitamins and minerals—was as large as in 1942.
