DISTRICT CLASS C AND D HONORS WON BY TAWASES

EAST TAWAS

TAWAS CITY WINS FROM ST. BERNARD

Landon Throws Winning Ball Just Before Final Bell

The Tawas City Elks and the East Tawas Indians shared the high honors in the District tournament held at Tawas City last week, Thursday night and Saturday. The Elks won the class "D" championship and the Indians won the class "C" championship. These teams forgot old rivalry and went out to win. Being that there were only two class "C" teams in this district the game was teams the last night.

Tawas City won from AuGres Thursday night and they trounced Whittemore the second night, in the last night they won from St. Bernard.

The teams were greeted by very large crowds every night and the last night the building was filled to the capacity and over.

The referees that were secured for the tournament were ones of much experience. Joe Martin of Standish who has refereed here before and Pau Grien of Bay City. Russell Rollin local County School Commissioner and Arden Charters of Whittemore were the official scorekeepers.

Saturday was the big night for the teams and for the crowd. An over capacity crowd was present and over five hundred tickets were sold.

Tawas City and St. Bernard played the first game of the night with Tawas City winning over St. Bernard in the last five seconds of the game when Dale Landon shot the ball just before the bell rang and made the score 19 to 18. This game was a thrill packed one, with the Elks getting out to a bad start, trailing St. Bernard by the score of 8 to 1 in the first quarter, and 10 to 4 at the half.

In the first quarter for Tawas, Landon made a foul shot. In the same quarter for St. Bernard, Townsend and Matuzak each made a field goal, and Keller sunk two field goals.

In the second quarter for Tawas, Herriman made a field goal and Ross a foul shot. In the second quarter for St. Bernard, Keller sunk a field goal. The score at the half, St. Bernard 10, Tawas 4.

In the third quarter for Tawas, Landon and Thornion each made field goal, Herriman made a foul shot. In the third quarter for St. Bernard, Matuzak sunk a field goal and a foul shot, and Keller made a field goal.

In the last quarter for Tawas, Herriman and Ogden each made a field goal, and Landon sunk two field goals to two foul shots. The last field goal that Landon made was in the air as the last bell rang, and the Tawas boys won by one point.

C.O.F.C. TO WORK WITH PARK COMMITTEE

Numerous Bay City Firms Give to Building Fund

At a meeting of the Tawas City Chamber of Commerce held Monday evening at the city hall it was emphasized that the building fund now being raised by the chamber of commerce could be used for erecting a recreation building in co-operation with the city park committee. The city park committee has secured tentative plans for the building and grounds, and within the past two or three years has raised considerable money for the project. In the plans, the building would consist of dressing rooms, assembly room and rest rooms and would be a handsome structure. The park grounds would be landscaped for utility and beauty. With the chamber of commerce co-operating with the park committee, the successful completion of the project is assured.

Charles F. Hamilton, president of the chamber of commerce, divulged at the meeting that in addition to local members, a number of out of town business people had responded to his invitation and subscribed to the fund. He anticipates that many more gifts of this kind will be secured.

The list to date of out of town subscribers is as follows:
Rechlin Hardware Co. .... $10.00
L. E. Oppenheim & Co. .... 25.00

The Twentieth Century Club agreed at the meeting to put on a house-to-house membership drive. Mr. Hamilton appeared before the club Wednesday evening and explained the work of the chamber of commerce and its proposed projects for benefitting the community.

They have been keeping us awfully busy ever since we came here. It's rained a good share of the time and it's really cool here at times. I wouldn't trade our back yard for all of Texas I've seen, and they show us more of it every day.

Camp Tannin, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton:
Please don't send the Herald here after March 28. I expect to be home before then, anyway I hope so.

I've been playing basketball about once a week since I arrived here. We have a good team, and have been going up the ladder all season. Last night we won the regimental championship.

Allen Kohn of Whittemore is playing with his battalion. We almost had a chance to play against each other, but his team got eliminated one night too soon.

They have been keeping us awfully busy ever since we came here. It's rained a good share of the time and it's really cool here at times. I wouldn't trade our back yard for all of Texas I've seen, and they show us more of it every day.

The campaign to raise Isoco county's quota in the Red Cross War Fund, is going very well according to Howard Dietzel, publicity chairman. "Receipts from the townships and rural communities have not been turned in, as yet, but workers report they are coming along fine," Mr. Dietzel said. "The Ohio river floods has added to the present work of the American Red Cross because the organization is always ready to step into such an emergency with needed help. A large amount of funds are required for such disasters."

Washington, D. C. PLANS FOR PACIFIC WAR. It has all been kept very hush-hush, but top army officials have made a vitally important decision on war production after Germany's defeat.

Original war production schedules called for a 40 per cent cutback after Germany caves in, permitting a vast reconversion program and the early production of automobiles, refrigerators, radios and other goods.

Behind the vital decision is an important new plan to speed victory in the Pacific. Confidential war department surveys disclosed that it would take over a year to return European veterans, together with their equipment, much of it geared for winter rather than tropical fighting.

In addition, the army survey disclosed that a lot of European equipment will be obsolete for Pacific fighting; would have to be rebuilt, taking valuable time. Instead, the new plan calls for bringing the men back at once, issuing them new equipment specifically designed for Far Eastern combat.

This should speed final blows against Japan, and shorten the Far Eastern war by many months.

As a result, 1945 production schedules will probably be a billion dollars higher than those of 1944. The war department, which had a pile of telegrams two feet high canceling war contracts to be sent out the day Germany is licked, has now culled through them and may only cancel a few dozen orders.

MACARTHUR AND MARINES

The boys in the Pacific long have known about the rivalry between General MacArthur and the U. S. navy. Many are the wisecracks about MacArthur and the U. S. marines, land army of the navy. However, in only one case so far as is known, has MacArthur ever come up against one of these jokes face to face.

It happened on one of the Philippine islands a few days after it was taken and when MacArthur was inspecting a battery of marine artillery. Solemnly, he passed from gun to gun, making no comment.

Then suddenly as he came to one gun, he turned on the marine lieutenant in command and let loose the most terrific dressing-down that young officer ever had received. The air was smoky with expletives. The lieutenant at first stood bewildered. The gun was carefully polished. Everything was in place. Then he looked a little closer. Beside the gun an enlisted man had placed a sign. It read: "With the help of God and a few marines, MacArthur retakes the Philippines."

The lieutenant thought at first that he would be busted. But several days passed and nothing happened. He is now back in the United States and the story can be told.

INSURANCE LOBBY

The insurance lobby is headed for trouble regarding its bill to exempt insurance companies from the Sherman anti-trust act. If the lobbyists aren't careful they will get a White House veto.

The bill passed the senate in a form which met with all-round approval. But in the house, the insurance lobby sharpened its ax and quietly tacked on some amendments which will not be acceptable either to the White House or, probably, to a majority of the senate. Chief effect of the amendments was to make it impossible to revive the anti-trust act regarding insurance companies, without a special act of congress.

Fair-minded Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, who was quite willing to give the insurance companies a reasonable compromise, will fight this extra grab to the end. So will a great many of his colleagues.

CAPITAL CHAFF

General Franco's controlled Spanish press has been using the same propaganda line as Hitler regarding the recent Big Three conference.

Despite the fact that American diplomatic relations with Lithuania hang by a thread, the Lithuanian delegation celebrated Lithuanian Independence Day even after the Big Three conference.

The war department's G-2 or military intelligence is being reorganized again, partly as a result of failures to spot Nazi troop concentrations preparing for the bulge attack.

The Mexico City confab is the most sorrowful Pan-American conference in history for Dr. Leo S. Rowe, benign, loggish director of the Pan American union. This is the first important Pan-Am parley held outside the confines of his union. Dr. Rowe says: "I cannot speak, but my heart is running over."

IF THERE was a matter of a million dollars at stake and you, as manager, had to pick the greatest one-game pitcher for a particular contest—what hurler would you select? Years ago I asked Connie Mack this question and he had a ready answer. His pick was Charles Albert Bender, the Chippewa Chief, the wiry Indian who was not only a great pitcher but always at his best when the blue chips were on the line.

"We've had some pretty fair pitchers on the Athletics in our time," Connie said. "I mean Rube Waddell, Lefty Grove, Eddie Plank, Herb Pennock, George Earnshaw, and many others. Some of these undoubtedly had more stuff than Chief Bender had. But Bender was always at his peak in a game you had to win. On that one day you knew he would be at his best—and the million dollars would only key him up—not let him down."

"I know there have been better pitchers over a season or through many years. But in a pinch where the pressure was heavy, where the stake was high, Bender was a hard man to beat. And he would be just as cool and as relaxed for a million as he would be for a dime."

After this talk, I put the same problem up to Frank Frisch, one of the smartest men baseball has ever produced, one of its greatest competitors.

Picks Dizzy Dean

"Bender was a little before my day," Frank said. "Under the conditions you have named I think my pick would be Dizzy Dean. Dizzy was not only a great pitcher, but he also loved the spotlight. Also the pressure. His biggest thrill was in meeting Carl Hubbell. But competing against any star pitcher delighted Dean. And don't forget that Dizzy had everything a great pitcher needs—blazing speed—a fine curve ball—change of pace—good control—and above all unbeatable confidence in Dizzy Dean."

"With a million dollars at stake Dizzy would have been unbeatable, at least as close to unbeatable under such conditions as anyone I ever saw. For he would have revelled at such a chance. Even a billion dollars would never have bothered Ole Diz. That's what I mean by naming such a pitcher."

Remember this is not a matter of naming the game's greatest pitcher through a season or through many years. It is the matter of naming the pitcher you would select under the heaviest sort of pressure for one vitally important game.

Christy Mathewson, in his prime, belongs in this class. Few people today remember the Matty who pitched three successive shutouts against the Athletics in the 1905 World Series.

The million dollars would never have bothered Matty. He lost the Giant-Cub play off in 1908—probably the most important single game ever played—but how many know he tackled this game with an arm so sore and tired that he could barely lift it when he began warming up. For that season Matty had won 37 games, and saved 12 others.

I'll give you another tough million dollar competitor—in or out of condition. His name is Grover Cleveland Alexander. Here was as great a combination of heart, head and arm as I have ever seen. As a rookie in 1911 he won 28 games.

Alex was another who took new inspiration from a tough spot, even in his fading years when he was in no shape to handle the job. But he still handled it, as Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees remembers in the 1926 World series when Alex fanned him with the bases full.

And there is Ed Walsh of the White Sox—the pitcher Ty Cobb names as the greatest of all time for a period of five years. Walsh was a 40 game winner—and at his best in a hot spot. So here we have named such blue chip stars as Bender, Dean, Mathewson, Alexander and Walsh. And there is always Carl Hubbell. These "big dough" entries were sure to be at their best for one big game—one vital contest.

I have another nomination who belongs in this listing: Walter Johnson, winner of 400 games with a weak-hitting Washington club.

Odd Ring Styles

We were talking with Dumb Dan Morgan, who has only been mixed up with the ring game for a trifle more than 50 years, about various ring styles. Dumb Dan brought up Lee Oma, possibly the best heavyweight on the home front.

"Oma is an odd one to the present generation," Morgan said, "with his way of dropping both hands, walking by an opponent as if taking a stroll, looking over one shoulder as he goes by, and then suddenly turning and leading the attack."

Six 4-H's Win Scholarships For a Course in Electricity

Top 18,000 Club Members In Nationwide Contest.

AMERICA'S farm youth is meeting the challenge of an electrical age and in many cases is ahead of its elders in preparing for electrical living in the postwar period, the work of 18,000 4-H club boys and girls in Rural Electrification clearly reveals.

The 1944 contest in 4-H Rural Electrification, which ended early in February with five farm boys and one girl being declared national champions at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, gave convincing proof of these facts. The six national winners were awarded $200 scholarships by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, which sponsors the contest in conjunction with the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club Work.

The voluminous reports, all carefully checked by county and state 4-H club leaders, which showed how these youths had made electricity work in the "Food for Freedom" program, were the real revelations of the tremendous amount of energy and ability of the farm teen-agers, of their desires to make the farm a better place to live and of their ambition to produce food more scientifically.

Take the case of Frances McMillen, comely 17-year-old Enid, Okla., girl who was the only one of her sex to win one of the Westinghouse scholarships.

She knows what war means. Frances knows farming from a woman's angle—and she knows it from a man's angle, too. She also knows about the sacrifices of war.

Other National Winners.

Four other national winners, youths from Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska and South Dakota, also have done outstanding work.

Jesse Nemecek Jr. of Humboldt, Neb., built an electric pig brooder, bought an electric arc welder and saved many a dollar by repairing machinery himself, electrified much of the machinery in the farm workshop. Rodney Hall, 16, of Turner, S. D., lives on a farm that is not yet on a power line, but he has built a wind charger which provides the home with electric lights and made a time switch connected to an alarm clock that turns the lights on in a chicken house automatically.

Harlan Dietzel, Bay Port, Mich., has done the wiring around the farm, made an electric motor portable so it could do a variety of jobs, constructed electrical heaters to keep water fountains from freezing and repaired much electrical equipment. Raymond Schafer of Red Lake Falls, Minn., constructed an electrical welder, mounted it on a trailer and now does welding jobs for most of the neighborhood. And the money he makes will be used to buy new electrical gadgets for the farm when the war is over.

Each of the 37 state 4-H Rural Electrification winners did an outstanding job. They had to in order to win the honors, because the thousands of other youths engaged in the project gave them brisk competition.

The young man she had promised to marry was killed in action overseas.

She has always liked the farm and helped a lot with the work around the 75-acre "food factory" on which she lives. Then, a year ago, her father died. With her older brother in the armed forces, Frances, her mother and her 14-year-old sister were left to operate the place, and with the wartime manpower shortage, it was impossible for them to obtain adequate help.

It was then that Frances conceived the idea that electricity could be the "hired man" on the farm. She learned to keep the electrical equipment on the farm in good running order, studied adaptations of electricity to new jobs. She added new electrical equipment to the farm and made it do more jobs. Soon the farm was operating smoothly and efficiently.

He's 'Wired for Electricity.'

In another section of the United States—Lockport, N. Y.—lives Walter MacEvoy and he's another top champion in Rural Electrification this year.

Walter is virtually "wired for electricity." He first became interested in it as a member of the radio club at school. His instructor, recognizing the boy's ability, soon asked him to help out in his private radio shop, and here Walter obtained more good training. In fact the training was so good that Walter started his own radio repair shop and became the owner of a profitable business when he was only 17 years old. He made an insect killer from an old motor, a generator and coil from an old tractor. He built an electric eye which rings a bell when anyone enters his radio workshop. He made an electroplating device which works successfully, constructed a two-way telephone system between the house and the barn which operates through a radio tube amplifier he also built. He constructed his own radio transmitter set and a stroboscopic light which makes moving parts of machinery appear to be standing still. The list of his electrical accomplishments go on and on—all of them a tribute to his ingenuity, his ambition and his imagination.

The only girl winner was Miss Frances McMillen, Enid, Okla. She is now studying electricity at Oklahoma A. and M. college. When her father died and her brother entered the army she took over the management of the farm.

First Fire Insurance Company in United States Founded 151 Years Ago

Early American colonists insured against fire and other risks in London. The first share capital fire insurance company was established in 1794, 151 years ago. The new republic was only five years old when two new companies owned by shareholders received charters from their home state of Pennsylvania to write fire insurance. Those companies are still in business, and 24 other American insurance companies, active today, have been writing property insurance more than 100 years.

Some states encouraged the development of fire insurance within their own borders. In the early 1800s, Pennsylvania and New York had laws excluding foreign companies, and Pennsylvania in 1829 forbade writing of insurance there by companies organized outside the state. Stock companies were attempting to start agency systems outside their home states, but this move made no great headway until 30 years later. In the 1850s, both the agency system and regulation of companies by state insurance departments began to develop rapidly.

Huge Loss Spurs Growth.

The trend toward this growth was stimulated by a disastrous fire in New York in 1835 which necessitated the payment of large losses and ruined some New York companies. One Connecticut company which is still in existence had total losses, after settling claims in this conflagration, amounting to $75,000, twice the amount of premiums collected in 1835 from all states in which this company did business.

The catastrophe of 1835 provided a tragic but persuasive reminder of the shortsightedness of restrictive legislation and it caused the states to welcome sound fire insurance companies from other states and from abroad, whose risks were spread over large areas. This fire also demonstrated the wisdom of geographic dispersal of liability for losses, and directed attention to the necessity of maintaining company reserves large enough to meet normal anticipated losses, as well as the importance of being prepared for possible catastrophic losses.

Doubles Every Decade.

The growth of fire insurance business in the 19th century paralleled roughly the expansion of the United States. By the middle of the century, in 1854, 65 fire insurance companies were reporting to the authorities in the state of New York. The annual volume of fire premiums received by these companies—that is, premiums received in all states in which the companies operated—more clearly illustrates the growth of fire insurance business in the United States than any other data. Starting with 1859, when premiums of some 15 million dollars were received by companies reporting to the Insurance department of New York, the annual volume doubled in every successive decade or less until around 1920. Total premiums received in 1920 were 759.5 million dollars. They eased off more than 100 million dollars the following couple of years and then rose irregularly to a peak of 793 million dollars in 1929. In the decade of the 1930s they tended to follow the economic trend downward. There was an upturn in 1934, then a level period lasting four years. In 1939 the upward trend was resumed.

By NANCY PEPPER HOW TO MAKE AN IMPRINT

First it was jabberwocky and autographs you wrote all over your slickers and station wagon coats. Now just see what's going on!

Paint Paws—We have it on good authority that boys are dipping their lily white hands into colored paint and are slapping their handprints on each other's slickers.

Thumbprint Signature — Instead of signing their names to letters, the members of one club sign off with a thumbprint. Each girl has a set of fellow-members' thumbprints on file for identification. It's all so mysterious that the FBI will probably be on their trail soon.

Lip Prints—We see lots of gals wearing white babushkas decorated with the lipstick lip prints of all of their best friends. Makes an effective design.

Wax Works—If you see a girl and a boy each wearing a gob of wax on a lapel pin, look closer and you'll find the imprint of her thumb on his pin and the imprint of his thumb on hers. All you do is melt down the wax, make the imprints while it's still soft, and stick a pin on the back. First, of course, you find the boy.

WORDS AND MUSIC

Even if we didn't listen to the Hit Parade we could tell which tunes you treasured most, just by listening to your platter chatter over the soda fountain. In between ordering your white horse with red chimney (vanilla marshmallow sundae, with cherries) you'd be talking in song titles.

Who Dat Up Dere?—Everybody's quoting from this ditty made famous by Woody Herman.

Is You Is Or Is You Aint?—That's how you ask anything from "Finished with your coke?" to "Are you going steady with me or just going?"

Keep Your Powder Dry—It might mean "Take care of yourself," or "Don't get yourself in a tizz," and it's the song they sang in "Janie."

Clang, Clang, Clang!—It's the newest wolf call and it comes from your favorite Trolley Song.

Don't Fence Me In—It means "Don't try to date me." It's Roy Rogers' song and it's been on the Hit Parade for weeks.

TRIXIE TEEN SAYS—Advance spring fashions are the best cure for any gal's midwinter blues. Be the first in your crowd to break out in print (those swoony pastel backgrounds will send you); be the first with a pastel suit, too (light tushie is your ticket if you really want to go places); be the first for your black Chesterfield. Everyone notices the first flower to bloom in the garden—and everybody notices the first gal to blossom out in spring fashions.

Ladino Clover Aids Farm Production

Returns Far Exceed Costs of Handling

NOT so many years ago, Ladino clover was almost unknown except in the irrigated valleys of the western states. Believed to have come originally from Lodi, Italy, the seed was first imported into the United States about 1900.

Ladino clover is particularly valuable for grazing, according to U. S. agronomists, due to its high carrying capacity and large protein-mineral nutritive content, but it is also adaptable for hay and silage and is an excellent cover crop. These characteristics make it especially suitable for the limited farming areas of states such as Vermont and New Hampshire, enabling farmers to grow most of the protein needed for their livestock, dairy and poultry.

The plant is a rapid-growing perennial legume, spreading by creeping fleshy stems that root at the nodes. The leaves, stems and flower heads will grow from two to four times as large as those of common white clover, and about six times as large as those of the English wild white clover. The average life of a good Ladino clover and grass planting is from four to seven years, management and fertilization practices determining the length of time it retains its value.

Despite heavy requirements for fertilizer and special care in management, results from the use of Ladino adequately repay the effort. Its particular value has been found to lie in the handling of dairy cattle and poultry where a high-yielding, nutritious, high-protein feed is needed. This versatile crop is being used increasingly for hay and silage, particularly when grown with other legumes and grasses, although it is primarily for grazing.

Sunflowers New Cash Crop for Farmers

Sunflowers may soon rival corn and soybeans in food value as well as a cash crop. With sunflower oil selling at 14.5 cents a pound and an acre producing a ton of seed, the farmers around Monticello, Ill., expect to produce more than corn or soybeans.

Sunflowers have long been recognized as an excellent source of protein and oil. America imported 120 million pounds of sunflower oil between 1932 and 1936, mostly for edible purposes.

One hundred acres of test planting yielded 1,600 pounds of seed. It was harvested by a clipover combine, self-propelled, formerly used for soybeans. Tests made at the University of Illinois showed that the seeds contained 53 per cent protein and were easily digested. The oil was excellent for salads and cooking.

Pays to Fight Weeds

To control weeds the following points should be remembered: don't let weeds go to seed, buy only weed-free seeds and feeds, clean home-grown seeds carefully, grind or screen weed-free grain, and don't let machinery spread weeds.

Run-down weedy pastures should be renovated and good rotation and cultural practices resorted to with intensive cultivation. It is possible to eradicate perennials with sodium chlorate.

Millinery Fashions Are Made Up Of Hats in Most Versatile Moods

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

YOUR hat this season can be any type you want it to be, for if there is one impression gained more than another in seeing the new collections, it is that millinery fashions are in a decidedly versatile mood. It is very evident that feminine loveliness is to be enhanced by every type of headwear from the frothiest dinner hat down to the simplest, most demure little suit hat. Every imaginable color, shape and material is being used and it is very evident that our clever American designers are creating hats that will "do something for you"—flatter you!

Sailors will be immensely popular this spring, and every kind of sailor will be worn. At the mere mention of a sailor, you will be shown such a breathtaking galaxy of types you won't know which to choose. The trend is toward higher, wider crowns as seen in the cunning "sissy" sailor that is making the "hit" of the season so far. With its broad ribbon band joined by a smart streamered bow at the back, and its provocative saucy veil, it is delightfully youthful looking. Many low, wide sailors are also shown. Gay flower garlands adorn the dressier types, garlanding crowns or in clusters at the front, even tucked under the brim or posed atop the crown. Feminine veils are ever so important on sailors. Ruffles and soft folds of veiling or tulle are draped around or over the crowns, and loops and bows of colorful ribbon are used in many winning ways.

Fair and younger is the way you'll look in Hattie Carnegie's veiled sailor, as shown above to the right. A subtle new color combination gives a foretaste of spring with a tailored bow and band of black and aqua stripes encircling the crown of gray felt. A soft face veil adds flattery.

Many of the new sailors boast lavish ribbon trims. The tip-tilted model by Madame Pauline is interesting both because of its generous ribbon trim and because it is worn in the new off-the-face manner. Made of rough lime-tinted green straw, it has rose-colored taffeta ribbon forming a soft band and high full bow at the front.

A novel silhouette which tunes to the new sculptured coiffures is Harryson's "oracle" bonnet, pictured below to the left. Inspired by the classic Greek headdress, this smart young model has a small crown of shiny black cellophane straw, banded with black velvet baby ribbon with long streamers that tie about the throat in a pert choker. The fluted scoop brim is made of layers of filmy black tulle. Favorites also with teen-age girls are the little felt bonnet types that have a narrow ribbon band with bow as their only decor. These pretty felts come in navy and in a long list of pastels.

The idea of the larger crown, which insures headfit, has captured the imagination of youth. Young girls are calling for the face-framing bonnet types that have stovepipe crowns and they are intrigued with the new smart turban that is "all crown." A streamlined modern stovepipe turban by Hattie Carnegie is pictured below to the right. The tall crown is made of novelty straw braid combining natural tuscany and navy. Navy belting ribbon finishes the lower edge with a wee turned-back brim.

The old-fashioned wrapped-wire frame has been revived by many milliners and is used to support billowy masses of tulle or other dainty sheers prettily flower-trimmed and be-ribboned with cunning loops and sprightly little bows. The tendency is toward very dressy feminine hats for later in the season, some of snowy starched cotton lace, eyelet embroidered ruffling with a dramatic use of yards and yards of veiling.

Gay Taffeta Ascot

Perhaps the most talked-of types at this moment are the stunning taffeta ascots shown in spring. Stripes are ever so swank just now and you could find no smarter accent for the new cardigan suit or to wear with the chic bolero costume than a scarf of this type.

Colorful Gabardine Smart and Durable

A long list of beautiful colors to which add dependable wearability brings gabardine up to the top of the list as the popular fabric for spring. Because of the long wear it assures and its tested practicality gabardine has come to be regarded as the "duration material" that will give utmost satisfaction as the days go on. Such colors as pink in every tone (pink is the dramatized color for spring) royal and navy blue, apricot, aqua and the very smart neutrals and off whites have brought new accent to gabardine as the fabric ideal for smart town wear as well as for sports and casual wear.

Lacy Detachable Lingerie Trims Gingham Frock

Now that gay little gingham frocks are being frosted with white lingerie accents, girls who take delight in having their laces and frills and collars looking spotless and immaculate are making cunning button-on items that can be removed in a jiffy and easily laundered. Takes no time at all to button them on again. A dark gingham dress with a lacy large collar made to look like a yoke, that is a real part of the dress when it is buttoned back and front with large pearl buttons, is really an economy gesture in laundering. For a lingerie ensemble add two button-on patch pockets.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By Col. Robert L. Scott W.N.U. RELEASE

The story thus far: After graduating from West Point, Robert Scott wins his wings at Kelly Field and takes up combat flying. When the war breaks out he is an instructor and is told he is too old for combat flying. He appeals to several Generals and is finally given an opportunity to get into the fight. He flies a bomber into India, where he is made a ferry pilot, but this does not satisfy him. After visiting General Chennault he gets a Kittyhawk, and soon becomes a "one man air force" over Burma. Later he is made commanding officer of the 23rd Fighter Group. Maj. Allison gets three bombers one day and lands in the river. His plane sinks, but the Chinese get it out by a 3,000-year-old method.

CHAPTER XX

When strange things would happen, we talked about things of the sort which had once been told in story books. All of us agreed that when this war was over, there would be nothing that had ever happened in fiction that wouldn't have actually happened in this battle of the universe. For instance:

Likiang is a city in China far up on the big, northern loop of the Yangtze-Kiang. It is China, yes, but that part of China is as wild as Tibet and Arabia. The people are called "Lolos," and they must be descendants of Genghis Khan. I had flown over the place, for it was just north of the ferry route from Assam to Kunming, and I had seen the flat clearing South of the village that could have been an emergency landing field. I noted that it was close to nine thousand feet above sea level, and therefore not a field to use unless one had to.

Capt. Charlie Sawyer had crash-landed just South of there, closer to Talifu, and had been unable to identify himself. While the wild-looking Lolo tribesmen were getting set to execute him with ancient-looking flint-lock muskets, Sawyer said the holes in the barrels looked twice as big as fifty-calibre bores. Just at the crucial moment, however, when his fate looked darkest, some new arrival in the party saw the identification card that Sawyer had been pointing to. It was inscribed in various languages, and with pictures. The new arrival didn't recognize the Chinese flag, or any of the languages, or the Generalissimo's signature "chop"—but he saw a star. As it happened, it was the star of India over the imprint in Hindustani. Then the tribesman pointed to the same star on the wing of Sawyer's ship—the insignia of the Army Air Force. Sawyer was saved, and later he was feasted on wild buffalo and rice wine.

But why? Here in the wilds of the Lolo country, where very few white men had ever been, the tribesmen were more familiar with the white star of the Air Force than with any written language. We learned the principal reason later.

A report had come in to General Chennault's headquarters that a native village in the Lolo country, between Lake Tali and Likiang, was under siege by the Burmese northern tribesmen who had crossed the Salween, perhaps under the direction of the Japanese. Two of us, Holloway and I, were sent to look the place over in two P-40's. We were told by the General that we could determine whether the town was under siege by noting whether or not the usual pedestrian traffic was passing in and out of the city gate. All the cities are walled, and are obviously very far from roads or from civilization.

We made our observation and returned with the report. The village was besieged, and we had seen the horsemen encamped a half mile around the city wall. We loaded up and went back with six eighteen-kilogram frags on the wing racks and plenty of fifty-calibre ammunition. I also carried a Very pistol and all colors of shells.

As we circled the town, we could see the villagers watching us; then we dove on the besiegers and bombed them from a thousand feet. The lines of prehistoric cavalry broke and retreated towards the Salween and Burma. We machine-gunned them until they spread in panic. Then I used the Very pistol, shooting first green lights, then red. Holloway said it was the best display of fireworks he'd ever seen. We checked up for several days, but the raiders hadn't come back, and normal pedestrian traffic was passing through the city wall. Holloway and I, with two of the General's P-40's, had stopped a war.

The white star of the Air Force had been seen by those villagers, and they had told the surrounding country that we were friends. Perhaps the constant sight of transports from India to China and return had made the big white star a familiar symbol. At any rate, the Lolos who were about to execute Sawyer recognized it, and to them it meant more than written languages and sealed orders. Such is the strangeness of this global war.

More true fiction came out of the Lolo country during the autumn. A Ferry Command pilot, Lieutenant Aronson, "lost an engine"—which means that his engine failed—on his trip from Assam to Kunming. He barely made the big meadow that was South of the town of Likiang, in the hairpin loop of the Yangtze. After several days we went in there to look the improvised landing field over, in the hope that we could fly another transport to him with a good engine, or carry in the mechanics and the tools with which to repair the bad one.

In every organization there is always one person who holds up the morale, some one who makes the darker moments brighter and who can bring a little sunshine into the tense reality of war. Out in the China theatre, and especially in the 23rd Fighter Group, my most unforgettable character was Lieut. Henry Elias. This pilot was a Southerner, like most of the others in the China skies. When I first reached Hengyang he was acting as assistant operations officer to Ajax Baumber. He had a reply for every person, and a come-back to every joke. He was definitely a morale builder, and you can ask anyone if they're not as valuable at the front as ammunition.

Elias had been on several raids and had shot down two Japanese when I heard the first joke about him. He'd been on an attack to Nanchang, and as the ships turned for home in the fading light of late afternoon, some one in the rear of the formation observed something peculiar. Up ahead there were five

These pilots are tired out by almost constant alert without relief for 21 days.

P-40's with their sleek silhouettes showing wheels up and everything in proper order. But off to the flank, in almost the position of the number-three man in a Vee formation, was one ship with its wheels extended. Some one called on the radio, "Hey, Elias, who's that flying in formation with you, with their wheels down?"

As the words sank into the consciousness of the flight, and of Elias especially, their ominous significance became apparent. Elias jerked his head around and looked at his wing man. Even to an inexperienced eye, the silhouette was unmistakable. It was a Jap Model 1-97, one of the old fixed landing-gear types. The entire formation tried at once to get it as they finally realized what it was. But they had the laugh on Elias. Just as he recognized the Jap, the enemy pilot evidently recognized the P-40's in the twilight before darkness—perhaps he saw the leering sharks' mouths. For as Elias shoved the nose of his ship straight down and dove for him, the Jap pulled his ship straight up and climbed for the sky. Later, when our imaginations began to embroider the joke, Elias took the kidding in good part and always had a comeback.

A small two-seater biplane, a Fleet, came to Hengyang from Kweilin one day with a Chinese officer. We looked the little ship over as it came in to the field wide open at some seventy-five miles an hour.

"We now have just the bait we need," I said. "Lieutenant Elias, I want you to borrow that Fleet from the Chinese. I know a trick to make the Japs lose lots of 'face' and airplanes."

Elias had laid down his Operations reports and was listening attentively. "This ought to get you promoted," I went on. "Now you get that plane and service it tonight, then early in the morning you take off for Hankow. Alison, Baumber, and I will be along later and will arrive over the Jap city before you do." Elias was looking at me in wonder. "Then, when you get there, fly over the enemy airport at thirty-five hundred feet—that'll keep you just above their small-calibre fire and they can't shoot accurately that low with the big stuff. Over the field you fly with one wing low, kind of skidding, cutting your switch on and off so the Japs will think you're either wounded or over there with a bad engine."

Elias was trying to figure out whether I was serious or not. Then I added: "We'll be up there in the sun, and as fast as the Zeros come up for you, we'll knock them down. After all, Elias, if they get you, a Fleet isn't worth much."

But by now Lieutenant Elias was walking out and calling over his shoulder: "No sir, Colonel, I just want to be a plain pilot—I don't want to be no ball of fire."

Well, we saw the value of Elias when we lost him, for in this second battle around Hunan he failed to return from the strafing raid of September 2, 1942. We had taken sixteen P-40's back to Hengyang when we had gotten them in shape to fight, had landed there just about dark to surprise the Japs. That's the night the Fleet landed and the night I had been kidding Henry Elias.

Next morning we got into the air before daylight and went for Lake Puyang Hu, near Nanchang, where the Japs were moving the Chinese rice out by junks and barges—robbing the breadbasket of China in the yearly rape of the rice. Hill took eight of the P-40's and I took the other eight.

Elias was on Tex Hill's wing. We split at Nanchang and my eight went to the South to catch some gunboats that had been reported in the Sintze-Hukow Strait, near Kukiang, coming from the Yangtze to the Lake. I heard Hill call that he had caught the rice ships and was burning them. Later he told me that he found twenty-six of them, junks and steel barges; he sank some and saw others with their sails on fire, floating for shore where the hungry Chinese coolies would salvage the rice.

Through the four passes at the Japs Elias was right on Tex's wing, but on the fourth pullout he dropped behind the formation, perhaps to shoot at something Hill hadn't seen. Maybe he'd seen a Jap fighter and had gone for it; we knew there were eight Zeros supposed to be over Nanchang. Elias didn't return with the flight, and for two days we carried him as "missing."

Then the Chinese net reported that a group of Chinese soldiers had seen a lone American P-40 engaged by four Japanese Zeros. The American had fought them but his ship had been shot down. The American had jumped out in his parachute and four Japanese had strafed him on the way down.

The body had been found, with the identification flag number listed. The pilot's name was Lieutenant Elias. All of us watched for Japs bailing out, so that we could shoot one or two down for Elias, but we didn't get the chance.

We sent Captain Wang down to Kian to get Elias's body. Wang had to travel a hundred and sixty miles by buffalo cart, by alcohol bus, and on foot, but he finally got there. The trip took him twenty days. When the body of our lost pilot finally arrived at the field from which he had last taken off, it was in a Chinese coffin that Wang had gotten at Kian. We placed the flag over the grim reminder of war and sent it by transport to Kunming, to lie beside his other brother pilots in that Buddhist graveyard in Yunnan.

And so it went: tragedy—humor—tragedy. For on the same raid I had led the other eight ships, with elements led by Holloway, Schiel, and O'Connell, and had caught the Jap gunboats, ten of them, at Sintze-Hukow Strait. They were coming to Puyang Hu to convoy those rice barges—but we were going to interfere with their rendezvous.

Even as we circled them from sixteen thousand feet, I think they knew they were going to have lots of trouble. They had to stay almost in line, nose-to-stern, for they were going through the narrow strait. We circled warily for a minute, looking the sky over for enemy fighters, then spiraled down. As soon as we got close enough to the Jap ships to see distinctly, we noticed that the sea-men were jumping over the side into the water. Only a few seemed to have remained to fire the anti-aircraft guns, and Schiel and Holloway silenced most of those with their initial pass.

I think most of the ammunition had been fired at us while we circled at sixteen thousand feet, for we were the whole show now. We'd rake the steel decks from stem to stern and then swing out low to the water and come back with quartering shots from the beam. We were so low that we were actually shooting up at the decks of the boats. I saw many human heads above the water as the Japs tried to swim from the boats, and I fired at them. Those bullets ricocheted from the water into the steel side of the gunboat and went on through. As my range would reach the "sweet spot" of some 287 yards, where the six lines of tracers and armor-piercing Fifties converged, it would appear as though an orange-colored hole the size of a flour barrel was being burned into the side of the Jap vessel at the water-line.

We S-ed along the ten-ship line and shot at them all from both sides. On the second pass, two of the vessels were listing, and others were smoking. On the fourth attack, seven out of the ten were smoking and burning and some of these were on the bottom with their masts barely out of water. Photographs taken later from an observation plane showed that seven had sunk immediately in the strait, and that the other three had sunk within a thousand yards of the battle area.

I was so happy, so excited and eager, that I tried to be glamorous that morning. After the fourth attack I had called to re-form and head for the rendezvous point to the Southwest. But as the ships left the target, I saw something I had to go back for. It was a Japanese flag, waving defiantly from the mast of one of the sunken gunboats. Forgetting caution, and with the other seven planes speeding away to the rendezvous point, I dove to strafe the flag in a gesture of hate.

THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 19:16-26. 29. GOLDEN TEXT—If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.—Matthew 16:24.

What you have is not your own. In fact, if you are a Christian, both you and your possessions belong to God (see I Cor. 6:20; 7:23). To be His disciple involves the recognition of the fact that life is essentially a stewardship, holding our property and our persons in trust for Him.

The cost of discipleship is one which should be candidly faced. It is far more than the cost of joining a church or subscribing to a creed. That may and often does mean little or nothing, but to be a follower of Christ calls for thinking and living in accordance with His standards. We must—

I. Think Right About God (vv. 16, 17).

The picture of this rich, intelligent young man, a leader in his community, coming to Christ with his eager quest for eternal life is a most attractive one. He recognized Jesus as a master in Israel and a good man.

His thinking about our Lord did not go far enough, and Jesus corrected him at once. He pointed out that if he recognized Him as good, then He must be God. Far from disclaiming divinity, Jesus declared here that everyone who thinks right about Him must agree that He is God.

It is of the highest importance that the follower of Christ be clear that his master is God. Otherwise, his attitude toward Him will reflect his defective viewpoint, and his witness concerning Him will lead men astray instead of aright. Correct doctrine is vitally important as the foundation of real discipleship. The one who thinks right about God will—

II. Live Right With Others (vv. 18-20).

The commandments to which Jesus referred were those which concerned a man's relationship to his fellow man. There is to be no violence to another person, no deceit or trickery, no dishonoring of confidence, but an active interest and love for one's neighbor as well as one's family.

The disciple of Christ cannot effectively serve Him in this world without a proper attitude toward others. He must not sin against them, that is clear; but what is more, he must be known as one who loves them.

Note that this young man could honestly say that he had kept these commandments. Few of us could make such a claim, but he did. And Jesus did not question it or rebuke him. In fact, He loved him for it (see Mark 10:21).

What a fine character this young man had, what limitless possibilities for usefulness, what promise for the future! But something was lacking, something stood in his way. Jesus went directly to the heart of his trouble and told him that he must—

III. Act Right About Money (vv. 21-26).

Toward persons, his life was rightly related, but toward his possessions—ah, that was another matter. He was rich and his money stood between him and God, between him and a life of service and spirituality.

When a man has money and uses it for God's glory and the good of his fellow man, it is a blessing to him and to others. But when money lays hold of a man, and it has him instead of his having it, spiritual disaster is ahead, and not far away.

It is proper to be prudent, thrifty, and ambitious, but when the gathering of wealth becomes the uppermost thing, even these worthy qualities become the enemies of a man's soul.

Note the astonishment of the disciples (v. 25). They, too, though they had little or nothing, had been smitten with the awe for riches.

Do not miss the glorious assurance of verse 26. Nothing is impossible with God. He can even save a rich man, and does it!

Now there is more to discipleship than sacrifice. God has a recompense for His children. Let us

IV. Expect the Right Reward (v. 29).

No one has ever lost anything by serving the Lord. He gives liberally and makes a hundredfold return for every sacrifice we make. Christian workers can testify that God has literally fulfilled this promise to them.

But the greatest reward of all waits beyond the end of this earthly life. Over yonder there awaits us the prospect of eternal fellowship with the Lord we love and serve, and with all those who share with us the place of being disciples, followers, and servants of Christ.

This life brings many precious moments of joy and satisfaction. There is friendship and comradeship in labor. There are a thousand blessings even here, but the greatest of all is the prospect of being forever with the Lord.

Corner Section for Unit Book Shelves

WHETHER you live in a one-room apartment or a house with wall spaces crying to be filled, unit book shelves will answer your need. They may be planned in combinations or used separately and any amateur can make them with the simplest hand tools. A corner unit is especially useful. In a small room it fills an awkward angle and yet takes up little space. In a larger room it may be used with other units to make a continuous line of shelves around two walls making a place for knick knacks as well as books and magazines.

NOTE—Pattern 271 gives an actual-size guide for cutting the curved shelves of this corner book case and illustrated step-by-step directions for its construction. A complete list of materials is included. Sections A and B shown in the upper sketch are made with Pattern 270. Patterns are 15 cents each postpaid. Address requests for patterns to:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Inadequate traction is one of the causes of automobile smash-ups in winter traveling. Inadequate traction can be due to smooth tires that should be recapped. Rubber had a strong influence in the spending of 17 1/2 billion dollars on street and highway construction and maintenance in the U.S. in the ten years ended 1942. The materials used in the making of cord fabrics for synthetic motor vehicle tires are the same as used in pre-war natural rubber tires—cotton and rayon.

The first game of the night was played between Whittemore and Tawas, the latter winning in a very large score over the other, 38 to 18. Again Ogden of the Elks was the high point man with 12 points. The Tawas players outplayed the Whittemore squad from the first of the game, making 11 points in the first quarter to Whittemore three. In the second quarter the Tawas boys raised their score up to 21, keeping their opponents to five points. In the third quarter, Tawas made eight more points, making the score 30, while the Whittemore team made their score 12. In the last quarter, Tawas City put an entirely new team on the floor, consisting of second string players. These lads also did a very fine job with their defense and they also made eight points to end the game 38 to 18.

In the second game St. Bernard had a hard fight to win from Harrisville, 28 to 25. This was the rough and tumble brand of basketball with Harrisville coming on the short end of the score. Harrisville lost their star player, O'Callaghan, in the latter part of the game because of five fouls made by him. Matuzak of the St. Bernard squad was the high point man, with 18 points, the most points made by an individual in any game of the tournament. Gauthier of Harrisville made nine points.

PICTURES

As a special service to our readers this paper publishes every week a section of news pictures, behind each of which there is a fascinating story. These pictures take you all over the world and help you more clearly interpret the news.

School NOTES . . .

High School
The basketball tournament for this district is now history so far as the present year is concerned. The collected tickets show that there were 285 paid admissions Thursday night, 381 on Friday night and 537 on Saturday night. In addition to the paid admissions, fifteen tickets were given to each of the four teams playing that particular night. It is easily seen, then, that more than 600 people were in the gymnasium Saturday night.

We learned Tuesday night that at the drawing held for the Regional Tournament at Mt. Pleasant, that Tawas City drew a bye for the games to be held Thursday afternoon, and that our first game would be with Sacred Heart Academy of Mt. Pleasant on Friday afternoon at 6:45. The games of the Regional Tournament will be held in the gymnasium of the Michigan Central College of Education. Our neighbor, the Mio Agricultural School, is also a contestant in our class.

Here is some news that is some interest to the people of Tawas City. The voters of the state will be given an opportunity at the April election to vote on the proposed amendment to the Michigan Constitution to permit an increase in the 15-mill limitation by a majority vote of qualified electors who own property assessed for such vote. A maximum of 30 mills could be levied, it requires a majority of two-thirds of the qualified electors to increase the maximum of five years.

The Latin Class has finished the War Between Caesar and the Helvetians and now are pondering over the war with Ariovistus, who was a German leader at the time. Then as now, the Germans were trying to conquer more territory. Most of us find the stories interesting, but we sometimes wish Latin were as easy for us as the Conquest of Gaul seemed to Caesar when he said "Veni, Vid, Vici." (I came, I saw, I conquered.)

3rd and 4th Grades
We are sorry to hear that Jimmy Clements and Christine Bradford are absent this week.

We are making signs for our row. We enjoyed making them.

The Fourth Graders were: Rollie Gackstetter, Bill Brow, Everett Lake, James Rapp, Barbara Erickson, Nancy Eastham, Patsy Montgomery, Duane Wright, Joan Ulman.

Primary Room
We bought $6.10 worth of Defense Stamps last week. Quite a number of first and second graders are sick with colds this week.

Tommy Campbell has returned to Hazel Park. We were sorry to have him leave.

Patsy Ann Alda, Marvin Clements, Bob Freel, Melvin Timreck, Alfred Wogaman, Virginia Haglund, Neil Abbott, Patsy Conklin, and Kenneth Rollin received A's in their last week spelling test.

Group II of the first grade are reading "I Live on a Farm." This is their seventh book this year.

Kindergarten
We are learning some new songs for March. We are going to get our report cards Wednesday.

On account of the tournament we stayed in the primary room on Friday.

Egg Glaze
Another way to work in an extra egg is to put an egg glaze on coffee cake with sliced fruit on top. Beat a whole egg with a fork until slightly foamy. Add three tablespoons sugar. Spread evenly over fruit before baking. The glaze keeps the fruit plump and moist and holds it in place.

John D. Durand, population expert of the U. S. census bureau, predicts that by 1950 over three million women who never worked before will have joined the labor force; this group, he says, will include an alarming number of women over 35 who are "likely to be a serious complication in the postwar employment problem because of the preference of most employers for younger workers."

Q. How many of the telephone calls to "Information" are unnecessary?
A. Six out of ten calls to "Information" are for numbers listed in the directory. Each one increases the load on war-busy wires — may slow up other calls.

Q. How much time is lost by such needless calls?
A. A total each day of more than 1,000 hours of operator and switchboard time in Michigan alone.

PLEASE-

Look in the telephone directory first. If the number you want is not listed, and you must call "Information," write it down so you won't have to ask for it again.
