He was admitted to practice in the Michigan Supreme Court in October, 1911, and admitted before the United States Supreme Court the United States Supreme Court in 1927. He served as Prosecuting Attorney of Alcona County for thirteen years, and subsequently was appointed by former Governor Fred W. Green as judge of the Twenty-Third Circuit of Michigan, effective January first, 1928, after which he was elected four times to succeed himself. Judge Dehnke is President of the Michigan Judges' Association at the present time. In addition to his judicial duties, the candidate serves as Director of the Michigan United War Fund and as Trustee of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

And I breathed again, feeling that I'd been holding one breath for fifteen minutes. All was clear behind me, and I gradually climbed to ten thousand and went back home to Hengyang. All the boys came out to see me. Of course Elias was missing and they'd been worried lest I was a goner too. There were cannon holes in my wings and tail; one had gone just across the back of the canopy. There were smaller holes in the fuselage from the cockpit back to up again, I could barely see the the tail; there was oil from the spin-

Without thinking about it, I my narrow escape. But then I real-ized that my ship, which I had now flown in combat from April until September 2nd, was badly damaged. In a high-powered engine, as soon as we go into combat we take military power from the engine-that is, 'Old Exterminator" was shot to pieces > on Canton, and after fair bombing results the fighters stayed behind and engaged the enemy Zeros. Lieut. Pat Daniels shot down his Fighter pilots ready to take to the air on a moment's notice. They had plenty of opportunity to fight all the time. They never had to sit on the defensive and worry. And, strangebutton to my radio to call Holloway

But the old ship wasn't junked or salvaged, for we needed parts too badly in China. There were new planes on the way to us now in monthly increments, but we could take this plane and put several back in commission. The scheme that we devised helped my morale greatly, for to have junked the old ship that had been my fighter for five months would have been like seeing the horse that you've ridden for twenty years cast aside and destroyed. I could remember too well that day when I landed at Hengyang and looked at the damage the ship had suffered. There had been a lump in my throat and I had felt as though my sword had been taken away. "Old Exterminator" had taken me nearly five hundred hours into combat against the enemy. That's over a hundred thousand miles-and you just ask any pilot if that isn't a long way on trips where people shoot at you.

We took the guns out of the ship that General Chennault had given me in April and put them in my new P-40E. They were well broken in, and the Armament Officer, Captain Hoffman, who had been with the AVG and in my squadron in Panama seven years before, had worked them into perfection. I had had no jams or stoppages in over a month. The landing-gear we put on another ship; the instruments were scattered throughout the group; the armor plate was taken out to make a hot-cake griddle for the mess. All parts of the fighter were cannibalized, and in a month were spread out over eighteen P-40's in the organization. I remember especially that the automatic fuel-pump was put on a P-40B, which permitted the lighter ship to go higher than it had ever gone before, and on its second flight with the booster pump, the pilot, Lieut. T. R. Smith, shot down a Japanese observation plane over Kunming.

I never did go out and look at the old engine that had come out of my first fighter. After all, an engine is exchangeable anyway, and we get used to different ones. The shot-up shell of the fuselage, and the wing that had held me up over a hundred thousand miles of enemy country, I didn't want to see again. I just thought of my six fifty-caliber guns flying with me in my new fighter as the real soul of "Old Exterminator." And I thought of the hundreds of parts from Air Corps number 41-1456 that were helping to keep eighteen ships of our Group in the air.

For the men of the Group, the cannibalized ship had been a help, but to me it had been a tradition to keep. In my mind, no matter how long I myself might be fighting in China, "Old Exterminator" would be on all those flights-some of it would be on every mission that we flew. And thus it would fly forever.

On September 25, Maj. Ed Rector led the assault of a flight down to raid Hanoi in Indo-China. I led the support, and we kept a thousand feet above the first echelon. Our mission was to escort ten bombers for the bombardment of Gia Lam airdrome. We went South and 'topped-off" our gas load at a secret base, then routed our flight to the West of Laokay to keep from alerting the Jap warning net. Until we were close to Hanoi, we kept well West of the railroad that led to our objective. Even with these precautions to keep from alerting the enemy, we found the Japanese I-45's in the air and over the field as we came in from the West. The twin-engine fighters absolutely ignored our fighters and made runs on the bombers, but they didn't get very far with their orders. Rector took the first four P-40's in on the leading Japs and hit them five hundred yards behind our bombers, who were already dropping their eggs. I saw two of Ed's flight gang-up on the first steeply climbing I-45, but before they could shoot it down Daniels went in fast to within a few yards of the Jap and shot him down in flames. As the ship exploded I thought Pat Daniels' plane was on fire too, they were so close. We all confirmed the first ship for the eager Daniels, who was from Van Nuys, California. The bombers were on the way home now, and we sighed with relief and tried to catch the Japs. Ed Rector took the next ship he got his sights on and blew it apart. Then he fought all the way to the ground with two others. Marks shot down one, and the others were about equally divided. I caught a flight of three I-45's going hell-bent for the bombers from below and to the rear, and shot the last one in the formation down with a short burst. It was point-blank range and occurred very fast. I first saw a thin trail of gray smoke that looked like the usual condensation cloud that forms behind the wings of fighter ships doing maneuvers at high altitude, when the atmospheric conditions are just right. And then flame poured from the right engine. It spread up over the cockpit and stretched thirty feet back in the slipstream. I moved up towards the second enemy fighter and didn't see the flamer go down. (TO BE CONTINUED)

HOW HALSEY BOMBED

FILIPINOS Adm. William F. "Bull" Halsey tells this dramatic story about the invasion of Luzon.

"Just before we went into Luzon, I called all the Filipino stewards and messboys on my flagship together. I showed them a map of Luzon and pointed out the Japanese positions that MacArthur had told me not to shell for fear of hurting some Filipino civilians.

"I told them that the only way to get the Japs out would be to shell these key points.

"One of the messboys stepped forward and said that the marked-out positions included his home. I asked him if he thought we should shell it.

"'Is that the only way to get the Japs out?' he asked me. I replied that it was.

" 'Then if you don't mind, sir,' the messboy told me, 'shoot the soconcerned. an-so's out to hell.' "We shelled those defenses, we

ARMY SPEED UP

Senators studying the military picture have learned that the army ground forces command has been quietly cutting down on the training given to infantrymen before going into front-line action.

Infantrymen are now sometimes being shipped overseas without any advanced training. Some now find themselves in the front line only six months after having donned uniform. It is still longer than the average in the last war, however. Meanwhile, men are being yanked out of the air corps and services of supply and transferred to the infantry. Already supposed to be well-seasoned, they get an additional seven weeks' training and are then moved outside the country as replacements.

One new departure from practice in the last war is that few divisions have been withdrawn from action in their entirety for a thorough rest. Instead, once a division is in the line, it receives replacements, but no real vacation, for months. Congressmen returning from the war front have criticized this policy to army higher-ups.

General Bradley has tried to move green divisions into relatively quiet sectors for seasoning, but his intelligence hasn't always been able to gauge what the enemy considers a quiet sector.

he looks a trifle larger than a B-29. But try to see him wherever he lights. I happened to be guided by a noted and expert wild-turkey hunter, and we saw a big gobbler fly into the swamp less than 20 yards away from where we stood. Yet he suddenly disappeared from sight, although he was still in the spot that he had selected as his landing field. For over 10 minutes, from our close observation point, the guide and I tried to spot this huge specimen. We could never see him, after he lit in the swampy underbrush.

A trifle later on, another big gobbler, weighing over 20 pounds, lit in a tall Georgia pine. Spot, the keeneyed guide, then gave me a nature lesson. As you may or may not know, a tall pine runs up to a leafy cluster at the top.

Real Camouflage

"I'd like to show you," Spot said, the greatest camouflage in nature. As you know, a quail is small and always hard to see in thick sage or any form of cover. But the quail is a small bird. The turkey is big and black. I'd like to take you to a place right underneath that pine and see if you tell me where that big turkey is."

We slipped quietly to the trunk of the tree. I looked for at least 10 minutes and could see nothing-nothing except the top of a pine tree. Yet I had watched that turkey light and I knew just about where he was.

At this point I turned to Spot who has the eyes of four hawks. "Where is he?" I asked.

"I haven't found him yet," the guide said. "Yet I know within 4 feet of where he lit." Finally Spot said-"There he is. He pointed directly. I still couldn't factors.

By WALTER A. SHEAD WNU Staff Correspondent.

THE hapless Federal Crop Insur-ance corporation has bravely limped out of its corner and announced it is ready to accept applications for insurance of the 1945 cotton crop. Wheat, too, will be pro-tected. Flax is now insurable, and corn and tobacco are also, to a limited degree. Killed once by the last (78th) congress, but revived in the closing days of the session, its operations curbed by safeguards contained in amendments to the Crop Insurance act, the FCIC apparently is out to recoup some of its losses and if possible to run its business so as to remain on the black side of the ledger. Since it first launched into the insurance business with the 1939 wheat crop, picking up the cotton crop in 1942 and 1943, the FCIC has lost approximately $40,000,000 of its original $100,000,000 capital, plus administration costs. Some sources estimate that the net loss to the government, and therefore to the taxpayers, in the operation of the agency thus far will net close to $60,000,-Apparent weakness of the program is that not enough farmers take advantage of the crop insurance provisions to make it a paying proposition on a mass basis, and that only farmers with a high degree of risk are taking out coverage on their crops.

For instance, in the five-year program on wheat, 1939 through 1943, the record shows that the corporation collected premiums to protect a total of 50,000,000 bushels of wheat on 1,650,000 farms, and paid indemnities to 540,000 producers on 76,000, 000 bushels of wheat. There are more than 6,000,000 farms in the country, and the wheat production during those five years totaled more than 3,000,000,000 bushels. The same lack of policy buyers apparently caused losses on cotton insurance. In the two years of cotton crop insurance, premiums were collected on 62,000,000 pounds of cotton and indemnities were paid to 88,000 producers on 100,000,000 pounds of cotton. The actual cotton production for the two-year period was more than 10,000,000,000 pounds.

Flax Now Covered. And now, under the amendments to the act, flax is to be insurable, starting this year. In addition the amendments permitted a three-year trial program of insurance on corn and tobacco in not more than 20 representative counties for each prod-

Neglect of Hoofs May Ruin Valuable Horses, Warns Vet

The passing of the old-time, practical horse shoer leaves today's farmer with the alternative of studying and understanding the proper care of his horses' feet, or having valuable horse partially ruined by foot neglect.

This is the conclusion reached in a report just issued by Dr. W. F. Guard, chairman of the American Veterinary Medical association's special committee on Diseases of Horses.

"Many cases of temporary or permanent unsoundness in good farm horses can be traced to improper attention to the horses' hoofs," Dr. Guard declares. "Under normal conditions, the hoofs of animals served them well, without man's intervention. However, under stabling and the conditions of modern life, special measures are necessary to prevent abnormal growth and injuries which could impair the permanent value of good work animals. Danger of Drying Out.

"The horse's diet, proper sanita-tion, and underfoot moisture are the chief factors which determine the quality of the hoof. If a horse is allowed to run in pasture while the dew is on, and wade in streams, adequate moisture for hoof health is usually obtained. This moisture does not enter the surface of the hoof, but is taken up by the 'coronary band' in the hoof, which sucks up the necessary moisture and conducts it to the horn 'tubules.' "However, if the horse is stabled much of the time, and is kept in dry lots, special measures are necessary to prevent hoof dehydration. Under such circumstances, the animal should be stood in water at regular intervals for two or three hours. Under exceptionally dry housing, moisture should be applied to the coronary band several times a week. Every horse owner should remember that there is no adequate substitute for water.

The humble menhaden, or fatback of the Atlantic coast, is caught in great numbers for use as fertilizer. Lately it has become important as a source of oil for paints, varnishes and soaps. More of these fish are taken than any other species, and its commercial value is second only to the sardine industry of the Pacific. Since it is considered inedible, however, most Americans have never heard of the menhaden.

Keen Hearing, Too

I also discovered that the wild turkey's hearing is an incredible thing.

We were stalking a flock of 20 turkeys, about 200 yards away. Eleven of these were feeding. The 12th was on guard. "One of the older brood turkeys," Spot said. "They keep watch over the flock."

A few seconds later, when we were close to 180 yards away, I happened to step on a small twig. In a split second the lead or guarding turkey was on his way and the others followed.

A wild turkey can fly or run. He can run almost as fast as a dog. And he can move through the air. But above all he can see and hear and he can hide himself and his 20 pounds in 2 feet of young grass. He is, to my mind, our greatest game bird. He is smart, game, cunning and tough. One wild turkey down this way found himself in a nest of five tame turkeys and killed or maimed them all. Here was further proof that while civilization has its certain points, it leads to

Extension Service

Receives U.S. Funds WASHINGTON, D. C .- Financing of the U.S. Extension service program for 1945 on practically the same basis as in 1944 was assured here when the 78th congress in one of its last acts appropriated $28,000,000 for this purpose. The amount was contained in the Deficiency Appropriation bill which provides that not less than 7 million and not more than 11 million dollars of the new funds are to be specifically earmarked for the use of the Extension service.

The bureau of the budget had originally submitted a preliminary estimate calling for continuation of the unspent funds left over from the calendar year of 1944, amounting to about 8 million dollars, to be available only until the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1945. Proponents of the program, however, declared this proposal unsatisfactory, asserting it would not provide adequate assurance to farmers that facilities would be available to obtain necessary farm labor through the year.

itself can be regarded as the ground of division, but because the failure to give it or do it reflects an attitude of heart toward our God and His Christ, which is in reality a rejection of His way of salvation. Judgment is thus a revelation of the attitude of the heart, which marks a man or woman as being either saved or lost. It may be possible to so becloud the thinking of our friends and neighbors that we may go tarough life looking something like a Christian, but when Christ judges, it will all be revealed to us. Notice the importance of a proper attitude toward those who need our kindness and help. All too often the only concern of men and women is to look out for "number one" and let the rest of the world shift for itself. Observe also that the Lord identifies Himself with His brethrenwhat is done to and for them is counted as done to and for Him. Compare the experience of Samuel (I Sam. 8:7) and of Paul (Acts 9:5). Touch God's people and you touch Him. Fail them and you fail Him. Serve them and you serve Him.

As marines wipe out Jap airfields within 750 miles of Tokyo on Iwo, the clearing of Manila bay for American ships continues and pattern of two-way thrust on Nippon grows steadily clearer. Some observers consider the thrust up from Iwo to be the quick way, but others insist the smash must come from the South China coast and Formosa. Many observers seem to think that all indications are that the Japanese islands will be conquered before attempting direct combat in Asia.

Premier Assassinated

Shortly after he had asked the Egyptian parliament to declare war on the Axis, Premier Dr. Ahmed Maher Pasha (above) was assassinated. He was pro-British.

III. Judgment Determines (v. 46). Yes, God's judgment determines eternal destiny. Life eternal, or everlasting punishment, which shall it be? That is determined by God's final word of judgment, but remember that He judges in accordance with the attitude of heart and action of life on this side of the grave.

Now, for that matter, is a part of eternity, and it is consequently of great importance that we are right with both God and man now if we expect to be right throughout eternity.

We need to face this truth of judgment with complete candor and honest heart-searching. We agree with Dr. Douglass that "we must stand with awful concern before this sol-emn truth. Do not hesitate to teach this because it is contrary to the current of modern thinking or shocking to confront. It needs to be faced in a brave spirit of realism. (As a teacher) you will do your pupils a great disservice if you try to shield them from the grim implications of this truth."

Yes, and also if you keep from them the glorious prospect of eternal joy in the presence of God. The law of life is the law of love-love for God, and for Jesus Christ whom He hath sent to be our Redeemer, and love for His brethren. That law of love rules even in the day of judgment.

I'm performing an officer's duties at present, and my regular work, too, so I haven't much spare time. I have heard rumors that I may get a field commission, but that's oily a rumor, so I don't worry about it. I feel swell and manage to get along okay, so I can't ask for much more. Hope all of you are okay at home and don't forget to write as often as you can.

Love to all, Richard.
