IN the SERVICE

A telegram from the War Department received Thursday morning states that Lieut. Irwin Wegner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Wegner of this city, was killed in action March 3rd in Germany. Irwin had been commissioned Lieutenant the last of January. Last week a telegram was received by his parents that he was missing in action. * * *

The parents of Pvt. Lloyd Shellenbarger, Mr. and Mrs. Captain Shellenbarger of Hale, have received the following information from Pvt. Shellenbarger's commanding officer:

Pvt. Lloyd Shellenbarger was killed December 21, 1944, between Ipil and Ormoc on Leyte Island.

He was a machine gunner and he and four other boys were guarding a bridge when they saw four men approaching. Lloyd halted them and the men were Japs, who opened fire immediately. Lloyd was hit and killed instantly.

He was buried at Valencia on Leyte, a protestant chaplain in attendance.

Lloyd was one of the hardest workers in our company and was greatly liked by all his comrades.

Lloyd Shellenbarger was born March 12, 1916, and died December 21, 1945, at the age of 28 years.

Surviving, besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Captain Shellenbarger of Hale, are his wife, Vivian, of Royal Oak, a daughter, Dorothy, of Whittemore, and two sisters, Mrs. Otto Zilliox of Detroit and Mrs. Clyde Humphrey of Flint. * * *

Fire Sweeps Across Plains to Oscoda

A forest fire Wednesday laid waste to about 21 square miles of plains land in Wilber, AuSable and Oscoda townships, and threatened the villages of Oscoda and AuSable as well as the large number of cabins and summer homes in this popular recreation area. With the flames entering the villages of Oscoda and AuSable, the residents were ordered to prepare for a mass exodus, but the fire was halted at about 7:30 Wednesday evening.

Of unknown origin fires started at several places along a two mile front in the Huron National Forest area. In the dry forest land a heavy southwest wind whipped the flames into a rapidly moving inferno with the flames roaring above the tree-tops. Five hundred servicemen, conservation officers, National forest crews, volunteer firefighters from nearby Tawas City, East Tawas, AuSable and Oscoda, the East Tawas fire department and boys from the schools from those places were called into action. After six hours of fighting the fire was reported under control at all points. The crews worked all night and wide strips were plowed where danger of a fresh outburst was the greatest. Thursday morning a light drizzling rain completed the work.

With the East Tawas fire department and equipment at the big fire, the Tawas City fire department stood by for the protection of the two cities, and was called out several times during the afternoon for grass fires which started in the city.

TAWAS BOY MEETS DEATH IN ICELAND

Cpl. Harold Fahselt Was Bombardier on B-17

Cpl. Harold G. Fahselt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Fahselt of Tawas township, died March 3 in Iceland, in the service of his country. He was a bombardier on a Flying Fortress, and had been overseas only a few days.

Cpl. Fahselt received his bombardier wings at Las Vegas Army Air Field, New Mexico, in September. He left for overseas duty on a B-17 Flying Fortress bomber on February 18. Three letters had been received by his parents since his departure.

Born November 14, 1925, in Tawas township, Harold attended Vine school and later Tawas City and East Tawas high schools, graduating from the latter in 1943. He enlisted in the Army Air Force after graduation and was employed in Detroit while attending school of instruction at Selfridge Field. He entered the service in December, 1943.

Surviving are his parents and one brother, Kenneth, who leaves for the service April 3.

Amendment One Would Liberalize 15 Mill Law

Michigan voters will decide the fate of proposed "Amendment One" to the Michigan Constitution which would change the method of increasing the 15-Mill Tax Limitation at the election next Monday.

The proposed amendment seeks to make two major changes:

(1) It seeks to provide an increase in the 15 mill limitation by a majority vote of qualified electors who own property assessed for taxes in the district affected by such vote, rather than by a two-thirds majority of the electors, as at present.

(2) A majority vote of the tax payers could vote to bond or create a sinking fund for a period not to exceed fifteen years, as at present, a period of five years, as at present.

This change would affect only the financing of public buildings or making other capital permanent improvements. It would not change the method of increasing the millage for operating costs. This action would require a majority of two-thirds of the electors as at present, and the increase would be only for five years as at present.

The proposal is endorsed by the Michigan Educational Association.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the many friends for their lovely gifts of flowers, candy, also cards I received during my recent illness.

Tawas City Scouts Have Goal in Sight

One thousand pounds of waste paper per member is a large stack of waste paper, but Tawas City Scout Troop No. 73 members feel confident that they will reach their goal by April 30 in the Boy Scout-General Eisenhower Waste Paper Campaign. Real work is required on this job of collecting paper, but the Scouts have been working with a will every Saturday hustling in the paper so much needed in our War effort.

The troop will, weather permitting, pick up paper from East Tawas homes again tomorrow (Saturday.) The pickup on March 17 was so large that the boys were unable to complete it in one day with the one truck available and completed the west side of the city, from Locke street to the city limits, last Saturday. The boys want to thank the citizens of East Tawas for their hearty cooperation and want to assure them that the waste paper is going back into industry as fast as trucks can be secured for taking it. The boys also want to thank Rudy Gingerich for his truck March 17 and Stanley Phillips of the Phillips Restaurant for his truck last Saturday. Each truck was the only one used on each of the two days, and pickups would have been impossible without their help.

The Troop will continue to gather paper until April 30 on alternate Saturdays. If the paper is prepared in the homes before the boys get there, and if another truck can be found, perhaps the East Tawas pickup can be completed in one day. The boys will try.

The next Tawas City pickup will be on April 7. These dates are, of course, contingent upon favorable weather. If weather is bad the program will be moved ahead one week for both cities.

Keep in mind the fact that you can take your paper to the Gingerich Feed Mills in Tawas City where Mr. Gingerich or his men will assist you in unloading and storing the paper for the Troop to pick up on the following Saturday.

Dr. Theissen to Speak At Reno, Hale Churches

Dr. Theissen of the Detroit Hebrew Mission will hold service in the Reno Baptist church, Sunday, April 8, at 2:30 p. m. CWT.

Dr. Theissen will also be at the Hale Baptist church in the evening of same date at 8:00 CWT.

Dr. Theissen will speak on "The Jew Today in the Light of Bible Prophecy."

All are invited to attend these services and to hear this man who has had wide experience of work among the Jewish people.

Card of Thanks

We wish in this way to thank our friends for their many acts of kindness to us in our hour of bereavement, for the memorial wreaths, mass cards and letters of sympathy. We are indeed grateful.

The story thus far: After graduating from West Point, Robert Scott wins his wings at Kelly Field and takes up combat flying. He has been an instructor for four years when the war breaks out, and is told he is now too old for combat flying. He appeals to several Generals and is finally given an opportunity to get into the fight. He flies a bomber into India, but on arrival is made a ferry pilot and this does not suit him. After paying a visit to Gen. Chennault he gets a Kittyhawk and soon becomes a "one man air force" in the skies over Burma. Later he is made C.O. of the 23rd Fighter Group but still keeps knocking down Jap planes. His "Old Exterminator" is badly mauled and he gets a new P-40E.

CHAPTER XXIII

It had been only recently when Haynes had been taken from his thirteen four-engine bombers on the way to blast Tokyo, that he had been assigned to transports. The Japs must have known just how to get under his skin, but in the end I got the knowledge worked against them. Now he was getting back at them by having thousands of little leaflets printed in several languages, especially in Japanese. They read:

COMPLIMENTS OF THE OLD BROKEN-DOWN TRANSPORT PILOT

He used to drop some of these on every bombing mission he led. He'd go out and tie some to each bomb; put them in the bomb bay so that they fell out when the doors were opened; even throw them out over the Japanese-occupied cities that he blasted. I knew now that he was getting a new supply ready for Hongkong.

Towards the end of October came the word we had so long been waiting for. Victoria harbor was filled with Japanese shipping. In deepest secret we got ready to go.

Our ships would leave from Kuning, but we would of course use the intermediate bases in the Kweilin-Hengyang section, 500 miles to the East. Hongkong, you will recall, is about 325 miles Southeast of Kweilin. It is protected by surrounding enemy fighter fields at Canton and Kowloon. Our objectives would be the shipping in the harbor, the shipping at the docks in Kowloon, and the ships at the drydocks in Hongkong.

Early on the morning of October 25 our twelve bombers took off from Yunnan for Kweilin, and shortly afterwards Hill, Alison, Holloway and I led the fighters off. We were all to infiltrate into Kweilin, a few ships at a time, so as not to alert the coast of eastern China.

For two weeks I had worried about this attack. I thought it would come any day, and because of the tension I couldn't sleep.

When I learned that word hadn't come, I'd spend another sleepless night. I got the doctor to give me something to make me sleep and I had a headache the next day. I knew "my wind was up," as the British say—but why in hell didn't we go on and get the attack over with!

But now I was on the way. I could see the shark-mouths of the P-40's all around, and the whole thing was easy—just what I had wanted all the time. We sat down at Kweilin at one-minute intervals at eight o'clock. The bombers were soon in, and the Chinese were busy servicing the field full of ships. They were the happiest people I had ever seen. They'd point towards Japan and point down with their thumbs and say, "Bu-hao."

All of us were proud to be going. But as I looked at those seven P-40's escorting ten bombers, I could not help feeling apologetic for that greatest country in the world that we were representing. Oh, God, if the day could soon come when we could go against this enemy with a thousand bombers, even a hundred bombers!

Maybe the small fighter force that we had made us lucky ones who were privileged to go resolve all the more that we would make up in quality what we lacked in quantity. Personally I felt like a veteran football player who has been on the bench and has now been called into the big game. Nearly a year before, when Hongkong had fallen to the Japanese attacks from the Asiatic mainland of Kowloon, I had sworn that I would see the first bombs hit the Crown Colony. I had no idea then that I would lead the fighters, that I would shoot down Japanese fighters in the raid, that we would be intercepted by a superior force of the enemy, but that in less than three minutes after the interception there would be only the ships of the U. S. Army Air Force over Victoria harbor.

Now I had the familiar "wind up" feeling that precedes combat. The palms of my hands perspired freely. As I wiped them on the legs of my trousers I saw that the sweat was like mud; it had mixed with the red dust of Kweilin Field through which we had taken off.

Our altitude kept increasing to 20,000 feet, while down below at seventeen thousand were the medium bombers in javelin formation: two Vee's of three, and the last element a diamond of four. We passed one of the river junction check-points that enabled us to compute our ground speed. In fifty minutes I could see the glint of the sun on the Pacific Ocean. As I saw the bomber formation again, I felt proud of the crews of those perfectly spaced ships. This really was like a football game: the bombers were carrying the ball while we in the pea-shooters ran the interference.

I imagined General Haynes, down there in the lead bomber, grinning as he thought of dropping a few hundred more of his leaflet souvenirs to the Japs, "Compliments of the old broken-down transport pilot"—along with at least sixty 500-pound bombs. Big "Butch" Morgan, the best bombardier in the Air Force, had probably wormed his huge bulk through the tunnel into the nose of Haynes' bomber and was even now intensely interested in his pet bomb-sight.

Now I could even smell the freshness of the Pacific. The sky had never been so blue. The beauty of the day and the beauty of those weapons flying so smoothly under us made me forget the scratching of the oxygen mask on my sunburned neck. It was a joy to look back and see the six shark-mouths on the other P-40's grinning at me. Some day, I thought, Jap mothers were going to frighten their children by referring to them and reminding the brats of Nippon that their fathers had more than likely had that view of an American P-40 for a last memory.

As we got closer to the target, we split our formation of fighters automatically. Tex Hill, Hampshire, and Sher stayed with me; Marks took the other three on the opposite flank of the bombers. The country below had become lower in elevation but was green and still hilly. Over the radio, as we reached a point North of Macao, came the jabbering of Japanese voices on our frequency, and we knew from its ominous sound that they were warning of our attack.

The men were all showing combat fatigue and needed a rest. They were tired out by almost constant alert without relief for twenty-one days. Many of their flying mates had been killed in action, and this helped to lower their morale.

I tensed a little and looked about for enemy planes. Far to my left I could see the three rivers meeting at Canton, could see two fields from which I knew Zeros were taking off to intercept us. We had bypassed Canton purposely by thirty miles. I saw the bombers changing course: we were around Canton now, and were going to steer straight for the North of Kowloon peninsula. The blue Pacific looked friendly, reminding me of the southern California coast. The old, familiar fog banks that should have been covering San Clemente and Catalina were shrouding instead the Ladrones Islands, with only their hilltops visible, sticking out from the fog on the China Sea.

We were turning over Macao, where the Clippers used to land. To the South I could see another Jap field, Sanchau Island. Now to the right was Hongkong Island, shaped like a kidney and mountainous, just about nine miles long and three or four miles across. I could make out the indentations of the romantic-sounding bays whose names I knew—Sandy, Telegraph, Kellet, and Repulse. There were points of land jutting towards the mainland—Quarry Point, with its Naval Drydock, and Shek Tong Tsui, the point over which we would fight our aerial battle. Reaching towards the island like a finger was Kowloon peninsula, separated from it by the blue waters of Victoria harbor. Near the end of the spit of land closest to Hongkong, I saw the large modern Peninsula Hotel. All of us knew that Japanese Generals and staff officers slept there with their women.

I crossed around and over General Haynes and his formation, watching vigilantly. Far below I saw dust on Kai Tak airfield, and knew that enemy ships were taking off to attack us. My throat felt dry and I had trouble swallowing; I turned my gun switch off and on nervously. Now I saw the bomb-bay doors opening, and I couldn't keep the tears of excitement from burning my eyes. Anti-aircraft was beginning to dot the sky with black and white puffs. As I dove almost to the level of the bombers, I could feel the ack-ack rock my fighter ship. I kept S-ing to watch for the enemy fighters that must be coming. I saw the yellow bombs begin to fall in long strings, imposed on the dark green of the world below. They got smaller and smaller as the noses pointed slowly down. Remembering my movie camera, I tried to take pictures of the explosions. The bombs seemed to take years to fall, and I began to think they were all duds. The ack-ack burst closer as the Japs got the range while we went straight in. I know I was never more excited in all my life. I yelled, "Okay, Hirohito—we have lots more where those came from!" I kept looking behind and under us for the bombs to burst.

And then I saw the first white explosion—right on the docks of Kowloon. After that they came so fast you couldn't count them. I let my camera run as the explosions turned from white to black—there were oil-fires now. I could see the flash of the anti-aircraft guns from the North shore of Hongkong Island, as we continued across Victoria harbor. I risked another look at the target; it was covered with smoke from one end to the other. Then I got my eyes back to searching for enemy interceptors.

Why in hell didn't the bombers turn for home? They had dropped the damn bombs, but they were still going on endlessly towards that point of Shek Tong Tsui. All of us were keyed up. But then the long javelin of B-25's began to turn to the right. Mission accomplished—now they had the down-hill run to base, and I began to get that old feeling of relief. Then, somehow, I felt cheated. Where were the enemy fighters? I raised my camera, sighted again, and took the formation as it swung over the burning docks.

Then, as I glanced about, I saw them, silhouette after silhouette, climbing terribly steeply towards the bombers. I know now that they had got there from Kai Tak below in four minutes; they had made the sixteen thousand feet in that short time. I felt my camera drop to my lap, hit my knee, then drop to the metal floor of the fighter. I was fumbling now for the "mike" button on the throttle; then I was calling: "Bandits ahead—Zeroooooos! At eleven o'clock." Fumbling again for the throttle quadrant, shoving everything as far forward as I could, I marvelled at the steepness of the climb the enemy ships were maintaining. I called: "Zeros at twelve o'clock," to designate their direction clock-fashion from us. I heard Tex Hill reply: "Hell, I see 'em." I could hear the jabber of the Japs still trying to block our frequency.

I was diving now, aiming for the lead Zero, turning my gunsight on and off, a little nervously checking again and again to see that the gun-switch was at "on." I jerked the belly-tank release and felt the underslung fifty-gallon bamboo tank drop off. We rolled to our backs to gain speed for the attack and went hell-bent for the Zeros. I kept the first Zero right in the lighted sight and began to fire from over a thousand yards, for he was too close to the bombers. Orange tracers were coming from the B-25's, too.

Five hundred yards before I got to the Zero, I saw another P-40 bearing the number 151 speed in and take it. That was Tex Hill. He followed the Zero as it tried to turn sharply into the bombers and shot it down. Tex spun from his tight turn as the Jap burst into flames. I took the next Zero—they seemed to be all over the sky now. I went so close that I could see the pilot's head through the glass canopy and the little-tail-wheel that was not retracted, and I knew it was a Navy Zero—the little wheel was built for the arresting-gear of a carrier. My tracers entered the cockpit and smoke poured back, hiding the canopy, and I went by.

As I turned to take another ship below me, I saw four airplanes falling in flames towards the waters of Victoria harbor. I half rolled again and skidded in my dive to shake any Zero that might be on my tail. I saw another P-40 shooting at a Jap, but there was a Zero right on his tail. I dove for this one. He grew in my sights, and as my tracers crossed in front of him he turned into me. I shot him down as his ship seemed to stand still in the vertical bank. The ship was three or four hundred yards from me, and it fell towards the water for a time that seemed ages. An explosion came, and there was only black smoke; then I could see the ship again, falling, turning in a slow spin, down—down—down.

I shot at everything I saw. Sometimes it was just a short burst as the Jap went in for our bombers. Sometimes I fired at one that was turning, and as I'd keep reeling back on my stick, my ship would spin, and I'd recover far below. I shot down another ship that didn't see me. I got it with one short burst from directly astern, a no-deflection shot. In this attack I could see the Japanese ship vibrate as my burst of six fifty-caliber guns hit it. First it just shook, then one wing went up. I saw the canopy shot completely off; then I went across it. Turning back in a dive to keep my speed, I watched the enemy ship, as it dove straight down, stream flames for a distance the length of the airplane behind.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 27:62-28:9. GOLDEN TEXT—Let us run with patience to the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith.—Hebrews 12:1, 2.

Christianity is a resurrection faith! How good it is to recall that, in this troubled year of 1945, even as we share once more the spiritual inspiration of Easter Sunday.

Today we recall that the loving hands of His friends and followers had given themselves in what they thought was to be their final act of devotion to their Lord. His body had been tenderly laid in Joseph's tomb and the great stone rolled in place at its door.

But even as some were kind and loving, there were others who were so relentless in their hatred that they pursued Christ even beyond the grave.

I. The Hatred of Christ's Enemies (27:62-66). We sometimes wonder at the bitterness of the enemies of Christianity in our day. Had we given more earnest heed to the Bible story we should have known that it was so from the very beginning.

The wicked men who brought about the crucifixion of Jesus were not content to let Him rest in His grave. They had lusted after His life and they had taken that, but even as He lay silent in the tomb, the priests and the Pharisees came to Pilate and called Him "that deceiver" (v. 63) and demanded a special guard.

They feared that His disciples would perpetrate a fraud, and after stealing the body declare that He was risen. Wicked and deceitful hearts can imagine all sorts of treachery on the part of others.

II. The Victory of Christ (28:1-6). Victory and praise should be the keynote of Christianity. Why should we be doleful and sad? Our Lord has come back victorious from the grave! We may be glad and sing even in the midst of earth's sorrows and distresses. Let praise be the employ of our lips constantly as we worship Him and work for Him.

The picture that greeted the surprised eyes of the two women as they came to the grave, as it began to dawn on the first day of the week, was one resplendent with the glory and majesty of God. The earth quaked as the lightning flashed. The angel of the Lord broke through the supposedly unbreakable seal of Rome and rolled back the stone which was to have permanently closed the door to the tomb.

This was done, not to release Christ—for He had already gone, no grave could hold Him—but that men might see the empty grave and know that He was risen. Other religions keep the graves of their founders. Christianity points to an empty tomb.

To the foes of Christ represented by the keepers, the coming of the angel and the revelation of the power of God brought absolute discomfiture. That is still true. Men will argue with theology, church methods, even Christian profession, but when they see the power of God revealed, they can only be "as dead men."

To the friends of Christ, the angel brought comfort and assurance. Their fears were assuaged by his word of comfort, and then their faith was revived by the assurance that Christ was risen. The resurrection declares that He is the Son of God with power, the Saviour of the world.

III. The Joy of Christ's Disciples (28:7-9). The followers of Christ had their share of fear and unbelief, but it was quickly overcome by joy and assurance as they knew that their Lord was risen.

The note of great joy is highly appropriate on Easter Sunday, but just as proper on every Sunday—yes, every day of the Christian's life. He is risen from the dead! That settles all questions about His deity, His power, His salvation. It meets the problems of our lives with an unending word of confidence and joy.

Be sure to note that such good news must not be kept to ourselves. We should emulate the zeal of the disciples, who "departed quickly" to make it known to their families and friends. The story of the victorious Saviour is still unknown to many thousands—possibly we should say millions. Let someone depart quickly to tell them of Jesus. And don't forget to ask yourself, "Should that someone be me?"

Jesus met them on the way with a greeting of peace. He loves to fellowship with His people as they go on His errands. You will find Him there awaiting your coming.

THE AUTHOR AND PERFECTER OF OUR FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 27:62-28:9. GOLDEN TEXT—Let us run with patience to the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith.—Hebrews 12:1, 2.

Christianity is a resurrection faith! How good it is to recall that, in this troubled year of 1945, even as we share once more the spiritual inspiration of Easter Sunday.

Today we recall that the loving hands of His friends and followers had given themselves in what they thought was to be their final act of devotion to their Lord. His body had been tenderly laid in Joseph's tomb and the great stone rolled in place at its door.

But even as some were kind and loving, there were others who were so relentless in their hatred that they pursued Christ even beyond the grave.

I. The Hatred of Christ's Enemies (27:62-66). We sometimes wonder at the bitterness of the enemies of Christianity in our day. Had we given more earnest heed to the Bible story we should have known that it was so from the very beginning.

The wicked men who brought about the crucifixion of Jesus were not content to let Him rest in His grave. They had lusted after His life and they had taken that, but even as He lay silent in the tomb, the priests and the Pharisees came to Pilate and called Him "that deceiver" (v. 63) and demanded a special guard.

They feared that His disciples would perpetrate a fraud, and after stealing the body declare that He was risen. Wicked and deceitful hearts can imagine all sorts of treachery on the part of others.

II. The Victory of Christ (28:1-6). Victory and praise should be the keynote of Christianity. Why should we be doleful and sad? Our Lord has come back victorious from the grave! We may be glad and sing even in the midst of earth's sorrows and distresses. Let praise be the employ of our lips constantly as we worship Him and work for Him.

The picture that greeted the surprised eyes of the two women as they came to the grave, as it began to dawn on the first day of the week, was one resplendent with the glory and majesty of God. The earth quaked as the lightning flashed. The angel of the Lord broke through the supposedly unbreakable seal of Rome and rolled back the stone which was to have permanently closed the door to the tomb.

This was done, not to release Christ—for He had already gone, no grave could hold Him—but that men might see the empty grave and know that He was risen. Other religions keep the graves of their founders. Christianity points to an empty tomb.

To the foes of Christ represented by the keepers, the coming of the angel and the revelation of the power of God brought absolute discomfiture. That is still true. Men will argue with theology, church methods, even Christian profession, but when they see the power of God revealed, they can only be "as dead men."

To the friends of Christ, the angel brought comfort and assurance. Their fears were assuaged by his word of comfort, and then their faith was revived by the assurance that Christ was risen. The resurrection declares that He is the Son of God with power, the Saviour of the world.

III. The Joy of Christ's Disciples (28:7-9). The followers of Christ had their share of fear and unbelief, but it was quickly overcome by joy and assurance as they knew that their Lord was risen.

SEWING CIRCLE NEEDLECRAFT Charming Garden for Bed Linens

AN OLD-FASHIONED garden, quaint and charming, blooms in natural colors on sheet and pillow cases. Worked mainly in lazy-daisy stitch.

Customer—Waitress, what kind of pie is this, apple or peach? Waitress—Well, what does it taste like? Customer—Gee. Waitress—Well then, that's the apple, the peach tastes like putty.

Indeed Rare Billy—What is a rare volume, Daddy? Daddy—Well, son, it's a book that is returned after it was loaned.

We've just discovered what scientists have been seeking to find for years—a substitute for gasoline. It's shoe leather.

And That's Smart "Why do people say 'as smart as a steel trap'?" asked the talkative boarder. "I never could see anything particularly smart about a steel trap." "A steel trap is smart," explained an elderly person very gently, "because it knows just exactly the right time to shut up."

You can have "story book" bed linens. Pattern 7102 has transfer of one 5 1/4 by 20 1/2, two 5 1/4 by 15-inch motifs; edging instruction.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

CALLING ALL EXPERIENCED SEAMEN BACK TO SEA!

"The Need is Urgent," says the High Command!

ADMIRAL LANDT: "Ships can't sail without experienced men—and we just don't have enough men for our expanding Merchant Marine. If you have ever been a Mate, Engineer, Radio Officer or "AB," your country needs you now!"

43,000 experienced seamen now working in shore jobs are vitally needed back on ships—if our fighting men are to get supplies to finish the job!

"Up-Grading is Fast," say Men Now at Sea!

L. O. WARREN, a Captain at 27, says: "I came up from Third Mate to Ship Master in three years because of the big opportunity now in the Merchant Marine. I know I'd never have made that rate of progress in a shore job."

What are your chances for advancement in a shore job when the war ends? Read what this seaman says and you'll get a hint of what the Merchant Marine offers!

"The Future is Bright," say Industry Leaders!

FRANK J. TAYLOR, Pres., American Merchant Marine Institute: "With nearly every country in the world to be rebuilt, there is every reason to believe the Merchant Marine will move into a great era of expansion after the war."

Government heads, large shipping companies and union leaders agree that the postwar prospects for the Merchant Marine exceed anything ever before known.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

There are two big "unknowns" in trying to anticipate the eventual "balance of power" between natural and synthetic rubber. In the opinion of John L. Collyer, President of The B. F. Goodrich Co. These unknowns are respective production costs and the relative value of these types of rubber in different kinds of products several years hence. During the manufacture of one variety of synthetic rubber, materials must be kept at a temperature of 100 degrees below zero. Use of rayon has improved the performance of synthetic truck tires as much as 375 per cent compared with tires made of cotton cord, some industry authorities report.

Jap Outcasts

When Shintoism rose in Japan its teachings prohibited the eating of the meat of animals. Groups that continued eating animal meat or handling animal hides were declared "unclean." Called Etori or butchers, the prejudice against them became widespread. Today, as always, the outcasts are permitted to do only the lowest type of work — chiefly the jobs of butchers and tanners.

Food value

Potatoes pack a lot of food value. If eaten daily they can provide as much as 25 per cent of the average person's vitamin C needs, as well as the B1 vitamin, iron and other minerals.

Heavy Eaters

Food purchases for the approximately 11,000,000 men in our armed forces total about twice that for an equal number of civilians.

Finnish-Americans
Many Finns have immigrated to the United States. The 1940 census showed more than 280,000 persons born in Finland or of Finnish descent.

Poultry Ration
Experimental work has shown that poultry require somewhat less phosphorus and calcium in their feed when vitamin D is amply supplied than when minimum amounts feed by adding extra amounts of this are used. This means that vitamin D can, in part, compensate for a lowered phosphorus content in the vitamin. However, this does not imply that by adding plenty of vitamin D the phosphorus and calcium content of feeds can be disregarded.

PILOT ON HITLER
Those whose business it is to study the intricate problem of German politics have now come to the conclusion that if it hadn't been for the July 20 putsch against Hitler, we might have been saved six months or so of fighting.

The attempt on Hitler's life gave him the excuse to clean out every military man not in sympathy with the war, and his military leaders since then have lacked the courage to suggest an armistice—even though they knew the war was hopeless.

Here is the inside story of what happened.

The Hitler plot had been cleverly arranged by the British. They had been working for months with a small secret segment of anti-Hitler officers inside the German army. Actually, their pipelines into Germany had been laid even before the war started. Weeks and weeks of the most minute planning had gone into the plot.

However, as in anything as dangerous as an attempt to assassinate the world's chief madman, something went wrong at the last minute. A high-up German officer on the general staff had agreed to place a briefcase containing a time-bomb alongside Hitler's chair during a meeting of the general staff.

He did so. But either Hitler moved away or else did not sit where expected. At any rate when the bomb went off, it killed several officers, but Hitler was only wounded in the hand by a bomb fragment.

That incident, however, touched off the bloodiest blood purge in history. Neutral sources estimate that 100,000 German officers and other high-up officials suspected of anti-Nazi bias were killed. Any German leader who had grown cool regarding the war or was slightly critical of Hitler was included.

In the last war, it was the German general staff who demanded of the Kaiser that he sue for peace as early as September 29, 1918. The German civilian government resisted. In this war it was expected that the professional military caste would see the futility of further fighting and also sue for peace after the Normandy invasion last June.

But as a result of the July purge the military leaders who survived dared not brave Hitler's wrath.

POSTWAR CONSCRIPTION

Although no final decision has been made by FDR personally, Undersecretary of War Bob Patterson and several other White House advisers are urging him to press for immediate congressional action on a postwar compulsory military training law covering all men 18 to 25.

Patterson and some of the army brass hats want Roosevelt to jam the conscription bill through congress before the war is over. They are using the line with FDR that passage of the conscription bill by congress now will be further evidence to the United Nations that this country will maintain a sizable military force to help keep the peace.

Congressional leaders so far are against immediate consideration, feel they'll have their hands full in the next few months getting more urgent postwar measures through congress, such as jobs, without starting up a terrific controversy over conscription.

Note: The White House is being deluged with mail against postwar conscription. Most of the public seems to be against it.

CAPITAL CHAFF

☐ The German people have been ordered to kill all chickens in order to save feed.

☐ A secret report has been circulated among top WPB officials showing that, as of February 1, the manpower situation was excellent. Manpower Commissioner McNutt has told the senate military affairs committee privately the same thing. . . . Senator Chandler of Kentucky quoting Vice Chairman William Batt of the WPB "That we have already out-produced our enemies and our Allies."

☐ Representative Charles La Follette, liberal Indiana Republican and a close friend of Wendell L. Willkie, never had met his son, Philip Willkie, until his recent trip to London where Lieutenant Willkie was stationed. A few days later La Follette bumped into Philip accidentally in New York, and a few days after that Willkie arrived in Washington and was a guest at La Follette's home.

☐ The Norwegian embassy has protested to Louis B. Mayer against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's plan to screen "Victoria," by novelist Knut Hamsun, who turned quixotic. Manila Wracked and Guttred by Spiteful Demolitions

Once-proud Manila joins the cities of the dead, wracked and gutted by battle and the spiteful demolitions of the Japs. The stately buildings which formerly housed government and industry are now largely hollow shells. The marts of trade echo only to the crash of falling timbers. Reins of the civil government return to the Philippine commonwealth, and the battered capital binds its wound and looks forward to a rebirth.

Spring Bride in Lovely Array; Dutch Lace Bonnet Is in News

to be some one outstanding type so flattering to the bride it seems as if it must have been made just for her.

The attractive coronet which the bride in the picture is wearing is made of the same fine illusion as that which fashions the fashionable short-length veil. With utmost artistry the designer has interlaced folds of the illusion over a wire support into a lattice effect. This beautiful model, so classic in its simplicity is regarded as one of the outstanding success fashions of the season.

SPRINGTIME is bridetime and this year those who cater to the bride-to-be clientele report a renewed interest in the traditional wedding with all its picturesque frills and furbelows. Even if the event needs must be hurriedly tuned to the bridegroom's brief furlough, there is a special service available in many shops and departments devoted to outfitting the bride and her attendants at a few hours' notice.

The big highlight in the spring wedding picture will be the little Dutch bonnets of starched lace. They come in flattering off-face types that flare out wide from side to side, also in cunning little baby-bonnet types and they are simply adorable, worn by either bride or bridesmaids. They are perfectly charming in pastel for the bride's attendants lending themselves beautifully to costume color schemes.

For the bride-to-be that clings to the idea of a picture wedding such as has been her dream of dreams, the stately gown of gleaming white satin with its imposing long train maintains its style prestige as of yore. This spring these sumptuous satins have a way of taking on beguiling touches of pearl embroidery about neckline and sleeves. The latest models are coming in with pearl-embroidered midriff sections. A charming innovation also, is the huge bustle bow at the back, which achieves a refreshingly new silhouette.

Lace enters definitely into the spring wedding picture, either in the all lace gown or combined with chalk white crepe. There is also a decided trend toward the sheerest of sheer materials for the youthful bride-to-be. The gowns fashioned of mousseline de soie, marquisette, net and dotted swiss are visions of loveliness.

The furlough bride, who wears a youthful suit in some one or other of the lovely pastels so fashionable this spring, can wear nothing prettier or more flattering than an off-face starched lace Dutch bonnet, either matching the pastel of her suit or frock or in white, if her costume is in the new pussy-willow gray. Another grand thing about these cunning little bonnets is that worn later on with light cotton frocks they will be just "darling."

Recognizing that much of the glamour, romance and prettiness of the bride depends upon the head-dress and veil arrangement, designers are turning their time and talent to creating lovelies to wear on the prettily coiffed heads of both the bride and her bridesmaids. These are so varied there is sure

Since bridesmaids are expected to play a decorative role, designers are turning out just one intriguing novelty after another that will add charming accent to their costumes. One of the most eye-thrilling whimsies shown this season is the set of hat and muff that is made either of dainty net of sheerest mesh or entirely of ostrich in delicate pastels. The bridesmaid, shown to the left, is carrying a wispy muff matching her off-face crownless brim that is elusively sheer. The long streamers at the back tune to the color of each costume.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

New Border Print

This eye-appealing Easter costume is a glowing example of what is meant in the "dress-up-for-spring" slogan which the world of fashion has adopted as its very own this season. The border print of which it is made is one of the fashionable color-on-white background types that are making conversation this spring. It has the button-down-front fastening that has taken on new fashion emphasis this season. The pert little hat made all of white violets sings a spring song, which is echoed in the exquisite open-work patent shoes and the immaculate white gloves.

Coats Are Gay Little Flatterers This Year

When the new coats come out you'll know it's spring for they are as colorful as the flowers that bloom. The pastels and the exquisite off-whites together with a soft feminine styling does something to the new coats that carries them entirely out of the ordinary. The new short lengths for coats and the flare at the back interprets an animated silhouette that is very youthful and flattering to most any figure. Intricate stitching, glamour buttons, dramatic light fur on the cuffs, sometimes braidwork and trapunto quilting, embroidered design and the use of self-fabric bows on the dressier designs speak for ultra style distinction. Fashion spotlights the white coat and it has a big future ahead. The whites that are in the news are the off-whites such as white wine, and subtle tints that give the impression of being white.

Hat and Bag Sets Made of Gayly Colored Soft Yarns

It's color, color, color that reigns supreme in the fashion world this Easter, and along comes the prettiest hat-and-bag sets made of featherweight yarn to tell you so. These colorful whimsies breathe the very breath of spring in their delicate coloring and how charming they will look worn with the Easter costume. The new peach-basket shape hat together with its matching roomy under-arm bag throws your whole costume in a joyous mood. They interpret the highest in needpoint craft.

Sharp Contrasts in Hats Coming

It promises to be a season of startling contrasts in hats. Some are towering to remarkable height. Others are that flat they are made of straw plaques arranged on a bandeau to tip over the forehead in the manner of the charming little chapeaux so admired in Watteau portraiture.

American Farmer in Germany

Even in conquered German territory, Pvt. Harold W. Barnes of Centerburg, Ohio, finds time to put into practice the knowledge acquired on a farm at Centerburg. He was right at home when he found the new litter of pigs at a farmhouse near Sendorf, Germany, and helped to pull them through their first days under American occupational rule.

G.I.s Nearer Japan

American navy, marines and infantry, supported by tank corps, continue to advance island by island toward Tokyo. Map shows how new landing gives the American forces control of the entire Philippines.

Nazi Type Air Raid Shelter

German air raid shelters have been working overtime thanks to the American air forces. Photo shows Pfc. Archie Bakay, Akron, Ohio, left; and Pfc. Charles Smart, Franklin, N. C., with guns alert as they inspect one of the typical shelters in Duren, Germany. They are infantrymen of the 104th division of the U. S. 1st army.

MANY years ago Ellsworth Vines, the star tennis player, and not a bad golfer, made this remark—

"It's surprising how long it takes a fellow to get into hard competitive condition—and what a short time it takes to get out again." And Vines was a hard trainer.

This happens to be completely true. It is one answer to Gunder

Haegg's showing in the recent IC 4A games at Madison Square Garden where he practically collapsed in the mile run. Haegg, the great Swedish flash, outdoors and in shape, has run the mile in 4.02. He was timed around Gunder Haegg 4.31 over an indoor track with no chance to train, soon after he landed.

This means a lost or missing margin close to 29 seconds—or some thing more than 150 yards. In the best mile that Haegg ever ran he would have beaten Rafferty's 4:16.4 mile by over 90 yards. For a 4.16 mile is barely more than a gallop. Looking as far back as Joie Ray, a 4.16 mile would have been a common canter for the old-timer.

Rafferty has always been a fighting miler. Then we had Nurmi's 4:10.4. And Nurmi was one of the great runners of all time. From that mile to 10,000 meters. From that point on down to Arne Andersson's record mile in 4:16 we have seen the records fall—via Glen Cunningham, Lovelock, Haegg and others who hammered the figures down, split second by split second.

But in all this natural ability has needed the hardest sort of work, plus able trainers and able coaches who have yet to receive the credit they deserved.

The Greatest Race

To me the mile has always been the greatest of all races. It combines more in the way of speed and stamina than any other distance. The 100 yards—the 220—even the quarter—are largely speed tests. Although it must be admitted that the 440 yard dash, or the quarter, is also a killing distance, calling for extended speed. But the mile is something in between the sprints and the longer distance races, leading up to the marathon.

The average, normal human being from city and farm, usually talks and thinks in terms of the mile. It is a mile to some place—or 5 miles—or 10 miles. You know just about what that means.

The mile today is the ideal combination of speed and stamina—a race that draws and keeps the crowds interest. The 100 and the 220 are over in too much of a hurry while the 2 and 3 mile races are too long to watch.

In this country most of our best running has been turned in from the 100 yard dash to the mile. We have had few runners with the patience to train for longer distances. We have been better at the shorter distances with Paddock, Wykoff, Tolan, Jesse Owens, and many others. Here it was largely a matter of a flash—or half a stride.

But the main or major goal in track racing has been to reach the mile in four minutes flat. Here is something that demands both speed and stamina to the ultimate limit. The time may come when some one will beat four minutes. But that is the big target now.

Arne Andersson has brought the mile to just a trifle more than a second from the four minute mark. Four minutes will be reached and beaten, but hardly through the war period. For with all the ability one may have, there is still the matter of condition and hard training through a long period.

For example, Gunder Haegg is still the greatest distance runner in the world, over the one, two and three-mile tests. His record is one of the most amazing in all sport. Yet, out of condition, his last showing at the mile and his best showing at the mile, are close to 29 seconds apart. We have always believed there are no supermen in sport. Records are only made to be broken. What they all want is the target. Sooner or later they bowl this target over.

It has been said—"There is no substitute for work." Also—"There is no substitute for experience." Certainly in a mile run there is no substitute for a long, hard training period that brings the legs and the wind working together as a team. And that goes for a Mercury.

While we're speaking of condition, if anyone cares to know about the all-time top in physical training, it wouldn't be a bad idea to visit the four navy pre-flight schools at North Carolina, Georgia, St. Mary's and Iowa. These four major pre-flight headquarters were first set up by Comdr. Tom Hamilton, carried on by Comdr. Frank Wickhorst and are now under Comdr. "Killer" Kane. In addition to the academic and military side they have done an incredible job of conditioning.

Penicillin Can Be Given by Mouth In New Method

'Wonder Drug' Suspended In Cottonseed Oil and Is Put Into Gelatin Capsules

It is now possible to administer penicillin in capsules through the mouth instead of the hypodermic injection method. This new technique is considered an important forward step in medicine, since there are several objections to the present practice of injecting the "miracle drug." Dr. Raymond L. Libby, a research specialist in the Lederle laboratories of the American Cyanamid corporation, developed the new method after many months of study and experimentation.

The great difficulty to be overcome was that the stomach acids destroyed penicillin's power before it could be absorbed in the blood. Tablets of the drug, coated with various materials designed to dissolve after the tablet reached the small intestine, were tried, but discarded, because the "breaking up" point could not be accurately predetermined. Dr. Libby finally solved the problem by suspending the penicillin in cottonseed oil, which is digestible. He then put the mixture in gelatin capsules. This preparation is known as Lederillin-G Oral.

When the gelatine capsule dissolves, it frees the oil, which passes into the small intestine, and is digested. The penicillin is then rapidly absorbed, and taken into the blood stream. Its marvelously effective action soon follows at the point of infection.

The list of dangerous infectious conditions that are cleared up by penicillin continues to increase. Pneumonia, meningitis, abscesses, carbuncles, clotting of blood in the sinuses of the brain, pus collections in the chest, and various wound infections all yield to penicillin. It is also highly effective in childbirth fever, peritonitis, gas gangrene, gonorrhea, and anthrax, among many others.

Although still expensive because difficult to make, penicillin is becoming more plentiful, and the time will come when the drug will be available for all real needs. A new form, called penicillin X, is being developed at the Lederle laboratories. This is to be much stronger than the present form, which is a mixture of three penicillin types.

Plenty of Ducks, but They Flew Too High

What happened to 150 million ducks last fall? Thousands of sportsmen all over the country have been asking that question! They have been asking it because estimates by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Ducks Unlimited, and other competent observers, led them to believe last fall was going to be a banner season of duck shooting. Results were far from what was expected. Some shooters blamed the weather; others blamed the ducks, complaining that they were not following their established flyways. Many were skeptical about the pre-season estimates.

Field and Stream's publisher, Eltinge F. Warner, set out to get some down-to-earth answers. He asked a number of competent observers who were in a position to check conditions along the nation's four major flyways.

Will J. Reid, Los Angeles, former president of Ducks Unlimited: "Birds almost one month late—local duck population unquestionably exceeded that of one year ago."

Gene A. Howe, Amarillo, Texas, member of Texas Game commission: "We haven't had a duck concentration because this has been a dry season. The increase in canvasbacks has been astonishing—the same with redheads. Western Oklahoma had the best shooting in years."

Horace Thompson, St. Paul, Minn., sportsman and conservationist: "On the whole there were more ducks than ever, although they changed their flight in this part of the country back to their old-time flightways and left the deep lake country pretty barren."

L. H. Barkhausen, Chicago, former president of Ducks Unlimited: "As a shooting season, 1944 was very unsatisfactory, since most of the ducks merely passed from the rest lakes high into the cornfields and back without giving the hunters a good chance at them. I do not think there was any question but that there were many more ducks than usual, although the kill was much lighter."

Alfred C. Glassell, Shreveport, La., president of Ducks Unlimited: "In Louisiana I am sure we have considerably more ducks than ever before, but hunting has been spotty in different localities, due to water and food conditions."

Ben East, Grand Rapids, Mich., conservationist: "Low-water levels and a mild fall had much to do with one of the poorest duck-hunting years in a decade. The record flight predicted in advance of the season did not materialize, and it is evident that the Michigan flyway has not made as good a comeback from the great duck depression as flyways in other sections of the country."

George J. Stobie, Augusta, Maine, Commissioner, Inland Fisheries and Game: "Duck hunting in Maine's coastal marshes and tidal estuaries was distinctly better than usual, although conditions at inland marshes failed to measure up to those of a year ago—flights late and highly erratic—hunting was best during first two weeks and the last three weeks of the season."

Farm Organizations Seek to End Need of Subsidies Through Gradually Increased Agricultural Prices

By WALTER A. SHEAD
WNU Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The whole weight of farm organizations here will be thrown into the fight for continued price control legislation to extend well into the postwar era, when hearings start soon on new legislation for continuance of OPA. Under existing law, the Office of Price Administration will expire June 30, 1945.

According to Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, all farm organizations will join in the price control and wage stabilization fight to continue "until there is a sufficient amount of goods on the market to effect a balance between agricultural and industrial commodities."

It appears that, insofar as wage stabilization goes, the farm organizations are fighting a losing battle to retain the "Little Steel formula" as a stabilization basis.

So far, the farmers have lost in their campaign against consumer subsidies, but insofar as the new OPA bill is concerned, they have adopted a new policy which seeks to liquidate subsidies by a gradual increase in farm prices, and to fix specific dates after which no subsidies will be permitted under the terms of the act.

Some Fine Distinctions.
As has been pointed out, the farmers draw a line, sometimes a pretty fine line, of distinction as to subsidies or "incentive payments" which are paid out of the public treasury to bring about increased production of certain agricultural commodities, and consumer subsidies, which are payments from the public treasury in lieu of "adequate" and "fair" market place prices.

To back up their line of cleavage, however, the farm leaders point to figures indicating that for "legitimate" support of farm prices through incentive payments under the farm program, the Commodity Credit corporation has made a net profit of approximately $50,000,000 since 1933, whereas under the consumer subsidy operation there has been a net loss of approximately $1,250,000,000.

The farm associations expect to back an amendment to the new OPA act which would provide that no money can be expended for consumer subsidies on and after June 30, 1945, unless the money has been actually appropriated by the congress. So far the congress has not voted a direct appropriation for payment of subsidies.

The farmers believe that prices of farm commodities can be raised gradually, over a period, which will eliminate the need for subsidy payments, and that this gradual increase or readjustment of price ceilings will not upset the stabilization program.

New legislation which extends the life of the Commodity Credit corporation for two years and increases its lending limitations contains provisions for a ceiling on the amount of money which may be spent for subsidies. Whether or not this provision will stand up through the house hearings is a question.

Pasteurization of Eggs Improves Quality

New Method an Aid To Egg Storage

PASTEURIZATION of eggs as developed at the University of Missouri, or the flash heat treatment of Cornell university, promises to prove of considerable value to the poultry and farm industries.

The pasteurizing of shell eggs not only destroys bacteria but causes shell eggs to retain their desirable physical properties much longer than do untreated eggs.

In the Cornell flash heat treatment of eggs, a five-second exposure of fresh eggs to boiling water forms a thin protective film of coagulated albumen, adherent to the shell membrane. This treatment of eggs at temperatures above the coagulation point of albumen proved to be an efficient method for the preservation of table eggs.

The application of the pasteurization process to shell eggs may prove of great value to the poultry industry when applied to eggs as they pass through the regular marketing channels.

The treatment is simple and requires only average kitchen equipment. The eggs are plunged into boiling water for five seconds, cooled and placed in cold storage or a refrigerator, where they will stay fresh for 12 months. Without refrigeration they should remain fresh for about three months.

Barn-Curing Hay Safe And Improves Quality

Making hay while the sun doesn't shine has been simplified for hundreds of farmers who have built electrically operated hay driers, using forced ventilation to cure hay in the mow.

The installation consists of wooden ducts, built on the mow floor, through which air is forced into and upward through the hay by a blower powered with an electric motor, or when electricity is not available by a gasoline motor.

The use of the forced ventilation system enables farmers to move their forage crops into the mow two to four hours after cutting, before the leaves begin to shed.

Farm Windbreaks Pay Dividends Annually

Planting evergreen windbreaks which will pay dividends in the future is a wartime farm improvement that should be undertaken at once.

Not only will the windbreak be a protection for the home, cutting down the cold winter winds, it will save heating costs as a result.

In many localities it is possible to secure planting stock which would have some commercial value—fruit, nuts or for the wood contained.

As materials for many other improvements are not available, now is the time when considerable improvement can be made by planting desirable trees. Not only will the value of the land be improved, but many of the trees could produce an annual pay crop to the farmer.
