Washington, D. C. RUSSIA AND ALLIES

SAN FRANCISCO. — To the aver-age outsider, the most difficult thing to understand about this conference is the attitude of the Russians. Poor press relations, plus a few inept moves have melted down a large mountain of goodwill built up by the valor of the Red army. In a few short days they have destroyed much of the favorable sentiment in Latin America, and through no fault of ours, was us more friends below of ours, won us more friends below the Rio Grande than we ever had before.

One of the things Molotov did in San Francisco was to invite two prominent Latin - American delegates to dinner at the Russian con-sulate, along with a few carefully selected Europeans. Latin guests were Mexico's tall, handsome For-eign Minister Padilla, and Chile's aristocratic Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez Y Fernandez, who is rapidly assuming a new leader-ship in Latin America. Molotov drank a toast to Chile and her new establishment of diplomatic relations with Russia. "There are so many Chileans who want to become Ambassador to Moswant to become Ambassador to Mos-cow," joked Foreign Minister Fer-nandez in return, "that it is one of my greatest problems." Mexico's Padilla, apparently on excellent terms with Molotov, said: "All Latin Amorica would be pleased if our America would be pleased if our sister republic, Argentina, was admitted to the conference."

Molotov, in mellow mood, seemed to register no objection.

Mood Changes. But a day later the mood was different. Padilla arose in secret session to propose Secretary Stettinius as permanent chairman of the conference. Molotov promptly objected. He pointed out that four countries had invited the other nations to attend this conference and that the representatives of all four host countries should rotate as chairman. Foreign Minister Padilla then delivered a recitation of previous precedents where the nation which served as host also acted as chairman. When he had finished, Molo-tov, who had already pointed out that four nations were hosts, got up and remarked: "I am glad to be instructed in diplomatic procedure by the delegate of Mexico, but appar-ently he prepared his little speech before he heard my view." Padilla, who had not read his speech, was taken aback. He mumbled something about always being prepared when he attended a conference, and sat down. After a long, hot debate, Molotov won his point But the manner in which he jumped But the manner in which he jumped on the Mexican lost him friends. A lot of Latins, jealous of Padilla's brilliant oratory, previously had been opposed to him. But Molotov veered them in the opposite direc-

-VICTORY IN EUROPE!-----Germany Forced to Capitulate After Six Years of Fighting; LED ALLIES Allies Face Big Job in Pacific

Eleven hard and bitter months after General Dwight D. Eisen-Eleven hard and bitter months after General Dwight D. Eisen-hower's armies smashed through the ramparts of "Fortress Europe" to set foot upon French soil, Germany's once proud wehrmacht, weakened after six years of the bloodiest war in his-tory, bowed the knee unconditionally to the Allied powers. Offered to Russia as well as the U. S. and Britain after earlier futile efforts to split the Allies by approaching the Anglo-Ameri-cans alone. Germany's surrender took place at General Eisen-cans alone, Germany's surrender took place at General Eisen-hower's headquarters in the little red school house in Reims,

These are the men-Roosevelt, Truman, Stalin and Churchill, who were responsible directing the victory against Germany. Truman, committed to the Roosevelt foreign lation policies, together with Stalin and Churchill, will direct the United Nations in plans r world's peace.

France, at 2:41 a. m., May 7, with Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith accepting Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl's capitulation. Later the sur-render was ratified at Russian headquarters in battered Berlin, with Marshal Gregory Zhukov participating for the Reds. Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz's order to German troops to cease firing came as a sort of anti-climax since the bulk of the Nazi forces already had laid down their arms in the face of the Allied avalanche. April 29, 1,000,000 Nazis surrendered in northern Italy and western Austria; May 4, another 1,000,000 gave up in Holland and Denmark, and on May 5, 400,000 quit in southern Germany.

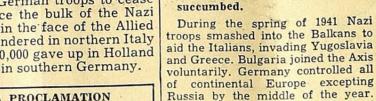

As the stiff-necked German of-ficers formally admitted defeat, nei-ther they nor the beaten country's new ministers entertained any illu-new ministers entertained any illu-sions as to the character of the Al-lied terms, with Foreign Minister Count Ludwig Schwenn Von Kro-sigk telling the people: "... Nobody must deceive him-self on the harshness of the terms. ... Nobody must have any doubt that heavy sacrifices will be demand-ed from us in all spheres of life..."

Thus did the European war come to its end six years after the mighty German army, striking at the unprepared western powers, rolled through Poland; levelled the lowlands and France, and then turned back to the east again to challenge giant Russia.

As the Germans capitulated, behind them lay the remnants of a once all-powerful army, which, like Napoleon's, underestimated the vast steppes of Russia, and then found the U.S. and Britain gathering force behind its back; behind them lay Germany's blackened cities and shattered railway lines, pulverized by Al-lied aerial attacks; and behind them in the ruins of Berlin re-portedly lay Adolf Hitler's dead body.

Because of the anti-climactic nature of the formal surrender, and also because of the premature announcement of the capitulation days before, some of the edge had been removed from the great event, with sacrifice and devotion and with God's help, have wrung from Germany a final and unconditional surrender. The western world has been freed of the evil forces which for five years and longer have imprisoned the bodies and broken the lives of millions upon millions of freeborn men. "Much remains to be done. The victory won in the west must now be won in the east. The whole world must be cleansed of the evil from which half the world has been freed. "For the triumph of spirit and of arms which we have won and for its promise to people everywhere who join us in the love of freedom, it is fitting that we as a nation give thanks to Almighty God, who has strengthened us and given us the victory. Now, therefore, I Harry S

Truman, President of the United States of America, do hereby appoint Sunday, May 13, 1945, to be a day of prayer. "I call upon my countrymen to dedicate this day of prayer to the memory of those who have given their lives to make pos-sible our victory." HARRY S. TRUMAN.

Exit Silver Lining

Next day, in secret session, Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, a nation cooperating with Russia, pointed to the vacant chair of Poland and moved that the Lublin government be admitted. Foreign Minister Subasich of Yugoslavia, also close to Russia, seconded the motion. Whereupon, Anthony Eden, white-faced and prim, emphatically opposed. There followed more hot debate.

Finally, to break the deadlock, Foreign Minister Spaak of Belgium proposed a compromise resolution expressing sympathy with Poland and hoping that she could be admitted soon. Genial, rotund Ambassador Caceres of Honduras, a great friend of the U.S.A., rose to second Belgium.

Whereupon Molotov cracked back: "Notwithstanding the support of the Republic of Honduras, the Soviet Union stands by its position."

Delegates Startled.

A note of biting sarcasm rang through Molotov's voice which startled the delegates. It sounded as if the powerful Soviet Union, representing the greatest land-mass in the world, was trying to put the tiniest republic in Latin America in its place. Again, Russia lost more friends. And later when the vote was taken on seating Lublin Poland, she lost that also.

These are some of the things about the Russians that take a lot of understanding. On the other hand, when Molotov, after winning his point on rotating the chairmanship, finally sat in Stettinius' place, he did an excellent job. He got off a little gag about being glad the conference would now have an opportunity to hear Russian, and proceeded to handle the session in most expert manner.

the result that the nation accepted the news with restraint. As Germany's fall was substantiated, people looked to the east, where the Japs still remain to be defeated and the entire resources of the navy and well over 6,000,000 troops may be needed to assure victory. With America scheduled to take over the occupation of central and western Germany and western Austria in accordance with Allied plans to maintain strict supervision over the country until a thoroughly democratic administration can be established, U. S. military authorities figure on the detention of 400,000 Yanks in Europe. As in the case in most wars, Germany's collapse came with a dramatic suddenness after a period of fierce resistance.

The first big break that signalized Germany's disintegration was the U. S. 1st army's surprise capture of the Ludendorff bridge spanning the

OFFICIAL WORD

When the real V-E Day came, most U. S. citizens got absolute confirmation of the news before starting victory celebrations. They remembered the false reports of Saturday, April 28, that had swept over the nation only to be climaxed by a White House denial of the peace rumor. Pres. Harry S. Truman said at that time that he had been in contact with General Eisenhower and powerful bridgehead immediately below the vital Ruhr district and on the edge of the rolling plains leading eastward to Berlin.

As the 1st army's bold move threw the German command off balance, the remaining Allied forces in the west soon poured over the Rhine, last formidable water barrier guarding the heart of the reich. While British and Canadian troops struck out against eastern Holland the the North sea ports, the U.S. 9th army set about reducing the Ruhr valley while one wing of the 1st joined in the attack and another kept step with Lt. Gen. George Patton's famed armored columns dashing eastward across the reich. Meanwhile, the U. S. 7th and the French 1st armies drove into the Nazis' mythical redoubt in the Bavarian Alps.

As the American and British armies slashed through the German positions and turned to their rearward to isolate the enemy into separate pockets, the whole enemy's front lost its coherence, contributing to the disintegration of Nazi resistance.

With whole groups of German troops entrapped without hope of reinforcement, their defense varied, with the majority of the older, more practical men giving up upon being cornered while younger fanatics carried on in the face of overwkelming odds. Meanwhile, the Russians had drawn up along the banks of the Oder river from the Baltic clear down to Silesia, while still other Red armies thrust eastward through Czechoslovakia and Austria. Once the Russians opened their all-out attack on Berlin, in the face of the Nazi collapse in the west, the giant pincer was near its close. Twice taken to war in 25 years and twice defeated, with nothing to show but the anguish and suffer-ing of conflict, the mass of the German people in American and British occupied territory accepted unconditional surrender with a stolidity that masked their inner feelings. East of the Elbe river where the Reds stood guard, however, the populace tread in apprehension over fear of reprisal for the Nazis' devastation of Russia in four years of bitter warfare. Previously, many of the people had tried to escape to the west, only to be turned back. | have all had youth training.

On March 2 the American Ninth army reached the Rhine river. Within two weeks this great natural defense line was crossed. Racing tank corps smashed to the Elbe river, 30 miles from Berlin, and halted to await junction with the Rus-sians. This signal event took place on April 27. Far to the south, American and Russian armies were roaring through Austria to seal off southern Germany. Organized resistance crumbled as German soldiers gave up in enormous numbers.

Japs Face Allied Power

We have won a war, but there is still another one to win. Before we can win the war against Japan, there is the gigantic problem of supply and moving the troops from the European theater to the Pacific. The army estimates that 5,000,000 foot soldiers will be needed to defeat Japan. Our entire navy and air forces will be required. Some men will be released from service -the individuals will be determined on total service, overseas service, combat service and number of dependents. The bulk of the army will not be released.

Divisions will be regrouped to bring them up to combat strength. It will take several months to organize troops, crate and pack equipment before the units are ready to sail against Japan.

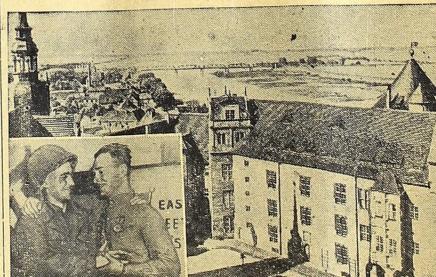

Some divisions will be lucky. They will be routed through the United States, while others will sail through the Panama canal direct to a Pacific port. Those landed in the United States will be given some leave.

About Five Months.

The divisions that sail direct to the Pacific will arrive about five months after V-E Day. It will take weeks after landing to check all equip-ment, for additional shipping to be available to bring necessary war material. Training for a new type of warfare must be undertaken. Japan has 6,000,000 troops which have not yet met combat from our forces. They are calling up an additional million. They will be ready for us. She can raise another 2,000,000 when necessary. These

THE TAWAS HERALD

HO will be the rookie of the year for 1945, a year when W rookies are about as scarce as wild turkeys that feed out of your hand? Sam Breadon, the Irish - panned owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, knows more about rookies and has had more good beginners than anyone else in base-ball. Year after year, the Cardinals have come up with recruits who proved to be better than many well - known veteran stars.

Breadon keeps his eyes on the kids. Their salaries are never too high, but St. Louis is far from being the hottest baseball town in the country, so far as attend-ance figures show.

You can understand Sam Breadon's enthusiasm when he figures that he has not only the best rookie of 1945, but one of the best of all time.

All of the aforementioned is by way of leading up to a recent remark made by Breadon as he watched Billy Southworth ready his Cardinals for another National league campaign. The experts were saying that the Cards were a cinch and that the all-time record of four straight 100-a-year victories was as good as in Al Munro Elias's statistics, but Breadon wasn't thinking about the Cards in general but of a freckled-faced kid playing left field.

'Better Than Musial'

"He's a better prospect right now than was Stan Musial when he reported to us," remarked Breadonand a half dozen reporters' pencils dug into note pads almost before Sam's words were dry in the hot St. Louis air.

"Better than Musial? Say, wasn't that taking in a lot of territory?"

"Well," Breadon hastened to remark, "I mean he can do more things. He's a good infielder; he can play the outfield as you now see. We could use him at second, short, third, left, center or right and stop worrying about any position he took over. He's as fast as they come and those minor league batting averages are no flukes. Watch him. He's the rookie of the year."

And who was the target of all this tall praise? Well, you'll hear a lot about him this year-Albert (Red) Schoendienst, a typesetter's headache but a manager's dream.

Here's a player who has been headline bait ever since he walked into a ball park. Well, almost since that first day. The weight of numbers obscured his first trek to Sportsmen's Park for he was one of 300 or 400 kids invited in 1942 for a tryout school. As a matter of fact, Schoendienst just walked in over sweater in the same identical color. Carefully selected jewelry and bracelet as shown below to the completes an outfit of striking style left. The gold plated heart clasps distinction. If you are aspiring to something new and exclusive looking, here's your cue. The illustration shows you the latdress classics. with a pal from Germantown, Ill., and told the Cardinal scouts he would like to be a ball player. He was put through a series of testsraces, throwing contests, batting drills-and, after the scouts had prepared a few notes on him he was excused and told he could stay for

Quickly Signed Up

He didn't have to wait long. The Cardinals' Union City, Tenn. team in the Kitty league sent an SOS to the parent ball club and the St. Louis board of strategy, after a hurried meeting, decided to sign up the kid redhead

As I said, Schoendienst was headline-happy from the start. He was batting .407 when the league disbanded and finished the season with Albany, Ga., where he hit .269. The spring of '43 found him at Portsmouth (Piedmont league) but when he opened the season with eight straight hits he was rushed up to Rochester where Pepper Martin found him as enjoyable as an old Western "gee-tah." Schoendienst resumed his blasting in his new uniform, finished the season with an average of .337, and was declared the league's most valuable playeran unusual honor for a rookie. After 25 games in 1944, in which he hit .373, he was called into the army.

An old eye injury caused him to be discharged. In fact, his left eye is practically blind. But this is an era when men overcome handicaps such as these and Schoendienst did so by becoming a switch hitter. Now experts will tell you he packs more punch as a southpaw swatter than he does as a right-handed rapper, his original stance at the plate.

Gordon or Doerr?

One of the main arguments among war hospital partisans is the choice between Joe Gordon of the Yankees and Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox. Here's part of the answer-Gordon's five-year batting average was .284 - Doerr's seven year average was around .293. Gordon in his five years belted out 125 home runs while Doerr in his seven years hit only 87 four-baggers. Gordon also had a good lead in the matter of runs-batted-in. This leaves them pretty well matched offensively.

White Oak

The oaks are among the most important hardwood species in the United States, due to large quantity of oak available and its strength and beauty. There are 60 different species of oak, scattered over nearly all parts of the country.

The wood of the white oaks generally lacks the reddish tinge common in the red oaks. It grows slowly, so is not as profitable for timber planting as red oak. In planting, best results are obtained from acorns, instead of transplanting the deep taproot young trees. The tree is valuable for ornamental planting, furniture, flooring, motor vehicle parts, railroad cars, general millwork, boxes and crates, caskets and coffins, ship and boat building, agricultural implements, railroad ties, fuel, cooperage and mine timbers.

Hands Carry Mastitis The streptococcie, bacteria which cause most cases of mastitis can be carried on the milker's hands, despite the most thorough scrubbing and disinfection, according to the University of Wisconsin specialists. The organisms were found on hands of milkers six to eight hours after the last milking. Control is easier on milking machines. No bacteria was found on hands of men who used milking machines, doing only the stripping by hand.

Distinction Difficult

Animals younger than four months will not resist Brucellosis and those older than eight months will retain the positive reaction to the blood test for an undesirable length of time. The bred cows and heifers may abort because of the vaccination, and the majority of them will always react positively to the blood test. In this situation the owner can never be sure which animal has Brucellosis and which one is reacting to the vaccination.

FOREWORD

Major Victor Joppolo, U. S. A., was a good man. You will see that. It is the whole reason why I want you to know his story.

He was the Amgot officer of a small Italian town called Adano. He was more or less the American mayor after our invasion.

Amgot, as you know, stood for Allied Military Government Occupied Territory. The authorities decided, shortly after the happenings of this story, that the word Amgot had an ugly Germanic sound, and they heard that the two syllables of the word, when taken separately, were Turkish words unmentionable in translation... So they decided to call it A.M.G. and forget about the Occupied Territory. That was later, though. When I knew him, Major Joppolo was Amgot officer of Adano, and he was good.

There were probably not any really bad men in Amgot, but there were some stupid ones (and still are, even though the Turkish embarrassment has been taken care of). You see, the theories about administering occupied territories all turned out to be just theories, and in fact the thing which determined whether we Americans would be successful in that toughest of all jobs was nothing more or less than the quality of the men who did the administering. That is why I think it is important for you to know about Major Joppolo. He was a good man, though weak in certain attractive, human ways, and what he did and what he was not able to do in Adano represented in miniature what America can and cannot do in Europe. Since he happened to be a good man, his works represented the best of the possibilities.

soil, Borth said: "You are too sentimental.' The Major said: "Maybe, but you will be the same when you get to Hungary."

"Never, not me." The Major looked toward the town and said: "Do you think it's safe now?"

Borth said: "Why not?" "Then how do we go?" Borth unfolded a map case deliberately. He put a freckled finger on the celluloid cover and said: Here, by the Via Barrino as far as the Via of October Twenty-eight, and the Piazza is at the top of the Via of October Twenty-eight."

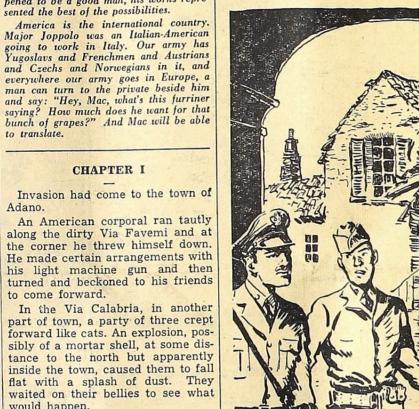

"October Twenty-eight," the Ma-jor said, "what is that, October Twenty-eight?"

"That's the date of Mussolini's march on Rome, in 1922," Borth said. "It is the day when Mussolini thinks he began to be a big shot." Borth was very good at mem-

They started walking. The Ma-jor said: "I have lost all count, so what is today?" "July tenth."

"We will call it the Via of July Ten."

There was a clock tower on the left hand front corner. On top of the tower there was a metal frame which must have been designed to hold a bell. It was baroque and looked very old. But there was no bell.

On the side of the clock tower big white letters said: "Il Popolo Italiano ha creata col suo sangue l'Imnow and then by good kings who brought about a partial return to pero, lo fecondera col sua lavoro e lo difendera contra chiunque colle sue armi.'

Ultimately the day came when Jerusalem was destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar's troops and the The Major pointed and said: "See, Borth, even after our invasion it says: 'The Italian people built the Empire with their blood, will make it fruitful with their work and will defend it against anyone with their arms.'

Borth said: "I know you can read Italian. So can I. Don't translate for Borth."

The Major said: "I know, but think of how that sounds today." Borth said: "It sounds silly, sure.' The Major said: "If they had seen cult mission. any fruit of their work, they would have fought with their arms. I bet we could teach them to want to defend what they have. I want to do so much here, Borth." Borth said: "That sounds silly too. Remember the alley, clean up the alleyway, sir, it is the alley that you ought to concentrate on."

The Major walked across the Piazza up to the big black door of the Palazzo, put his brief case down, took a piece of chalk out of his pocket, and wrote on a panel of the door: "Victor Joppolo, Major, U.S.A., AMGOT, Town of Adano."

Then both men went inside and will. up some marble stairs, looking all around them as they climbed. They took a turn and went through a door marked Podesta. The office on the other side of that door took Victor Joppolo's breath away.

In the first place, it was so very big. It must have been seventy feet long and thirty feet wide. The ceiling was high, and the floor was marble. "Say," said Major Joppolo, "this is okay."

"Looks like that office of Musso-lini's," Borth said. "Come to think of it, you look quite a lot like Mussolini, sir, except the mustache. Will it be okay with you to be a Mussolini?'

"Cut the kidding," the Major said. "Let's look around."

They went out through the white door at the end of the room and walked through several offices, all

The entire platoon was town. scared. They were out of touch with their unit. They did not know the situation. They were near their objective, which was the rocky crest out what was going on in the town before they moved on. All through the town of Adano, Americans were like this. They were not getting much resistance, but it was their first day of invasion, and they were tight in their muscles. But at one of the sulphur loading jetties at the port a Major with a brief case under his arm stepped from the sliding gangway of LCI No. 9488, and he seemed to be wholly calm.

"Borth," he said to the sergeant who followed him onto the jetty, "this is like coming home, how often I have dreamed this." And he bent over and touched the palm of his hand to the jetty, then dusted his palm off on his woolen pants.

This man was Major Victor Joppolo, who had been named senior civil affairs officer of the town of Adano, representing Amgot. He was a man of medium height, with the dark skin of his parents, who were Italians from near Florence. He had a mustache. His face was round and his cheeks seemed cheerful but his eyes were intense and serious. He was about thirty-five.

The sergeant with him was Leonard Borth, an M.P., who was to be in charge of matters of security in Adano: he was to help weed out the bad Italians and make use of the good ones. Borth had volunteered to be the first to go into the town with the Major. Borth had no fear; he cared about nothing. He was of Hungarian parentage, and he had lived many places—in Budapest, where he had taken pre-medical studies, in Rome, where he had been a correspondent for Pester Lloyd, in Vienna, where he had worked in a travel agency, in Marseille, where he had been secretary to a rich exporter, in Boston, where he had been a reporter for the Herald, and in San Francisco, where he sold radios. Still he was less than thirty. He was an American citizen and an enlisted man by choice. To him the whole war was a cynical joke, and he considered his job in the war to make people take themselves less seriously.

When the Major touched Italian much conscience." "Cut the kidding," the Major said. There was an echo in the way he said it, as if he were a boy having been called wop by others in school. In spite of the gold maple leaf of rank on the collar, there was an echo. At the corner of the third alley running off the Via of October Twenty-eight, the two men came on a dead Italian woman. She had been dressed in black. Her right leg was blown off and the flies for some reason preferred the dark sticky pool of blood and dust to her stump. "Awful," the Major said, for al-laugh."

"It wasn't them, not the ones like her," the Major said. "They weren't our enemies. My mother's mother must have been like her. It wasn't the poor ones like her, it was the bunch up there where we're going, those crooks in the City Hall." "Be careful," Borth said, and his face showed that he was teasing the Major again. "You're going to have your office in the City Hall. Be careful you don't get to be a crook too." "Lay off," the Major said. Borth said: "I don't trust your conscience, sir, I'm appointing myself assistant conscience." "Lay off," the Major said, and there was that echo. Borth said: "Maybe it was a crook's house, how can you tell? Better forget the house and concern yourself with that." He pointed into an alley at some straw and melon seeds and old chicken guts and flies. And Borth added: "No question of guilty or not guilty there, Major. Just something to get clean. You've got some business in that alley, not in that house there." "I know my business, I know what I want to do, I know what it's like to be poor, Borth."

Borth was silent. He found the seriousness of this Major Joppolo something hard to penetrate.

of which were crowded with desks and files and bookcases. The files know principle and purpose only, I had not been emptied or even dis-turbed. "Good," said Borth, "lists of names, every one registered and all their records. It'll be easy for

The Major said: "What a difference between my office and these others. It is shameful."

All Borth said was: "Your office?"

When the two went back into the big office there was an Italian there.

He had evidently been hiding in the building. He was a small man, with a shiny linen office coat on, with his collar buttoned but no tie.

The small Italian gave the Fascist salute and with an eager face said in Italian: "Welcome to the Americans! Live Roosevelt! How glad I am that you have arrived. For many years I have hated the Fascists. The Major said in Italian: "Who are you?' The little man said: "Zito Giuseppe. I have been well known as anti-Fascist." Major Joppolo said: "What do you do?" Zito said: "I greet the Americans." Borth said in an Italian which was heavily accented: "Idiot, what was your job before the disembarkation?' Zito said: "Zito Giovanni, usher in the Palazzo di Citta, native of Adano.'

Major Joppolo said: "You were the usher here?'

"Every day from eight to eight." "Why did you work for the Fascists if you hated them?"

"I have hated them many years, I am well known as anti-Fascist, I have lived under a great suspicion.'

The Major said: "Usher, I love the truth, you will find that out. If you lie to me, you will be in very serious trouble. Do not lie to me. If you were a Fascist, you were a Fascist. There is no need to lie." Zito said: "One had to eat, one had to earn a living. I have six children."

Major Joppolo said: "So you were a Fascist. Now you will have to learn to live in a democracy. You will be my usher."

The little Zito was delighted. The Major said: "Do not salute me that way." Zito bowed and said: "The fascist salute, no sir." (TO BE CONTINUED) shall yet tremble and wonder, and be filled with a haunting foreboding." But as "I press through the principle and beyond the purpose and discover the Person of the Potter, then the purpose will flame with light, and the principle that appears so hard and severe will become the sweetest and tenderest thing in my life."

to pass if we permit Him to do so.

But, as Dr. Morgan says, "if I must also see the purpose."

The principle is that God is abso-

God spoke to Jeremiah through the scene in the potter's house, and He also wants to talk to our hearts.

II. God and Judah (vv. 5-10, 15a, 17a).

The lesson is plain. God had for His people a high and glorious purpose. He wanted to bless them and use them for His glory. But they were a sinful and rebellious people, stiff-necked and stubborn in their unbelief, and the vessel of honor which God was trying to form was marred in His hand.

God did not act in anger or in disregard of their rights. He was forced to bring judgment upon them because of their own sin. That sin is stated in verse 15-they had forgotten God.

One trembles as he applies that test of God's requirement for blessing upon a nation to our own land. There is a haunting fear that while there are some who truly worship God, and a larger number who profess to worship Him, a great host of the people of America have forgotten God.

Does our nation remember Him and seek His counsel and blessing in its national affairs? Do we inquire after the ways of righteousness? Are we eager for spiritual revival and increasing grace even within the church?

Judah was to be scattered "as with an east wind"-and who does not know that it came to pass. Where are they today?

But even in the midst of judgment the Lord speaks of mercy. The Lord who will "pluck up, break down and destroy" (v. 7) the people who forget Him, is eager and ready "to build and to plant" the nation when it turns to Him.

The sure promise of God's future blessing upon a repentant Israel and Judah is written large in the messages of all the prophets.

The same God, eternally sovereign in His purpose, is our heavenly Father. The man or woman whose vessel of life has been marred by sin and failure need only yield anew to the Potter's blessed hand.
