CITY COUNCIL STANDS FIRM ON PARK PROJECT

Turns Thumbs Down on C. of C. 50-50 Financing Proposal

After hearing a report from the Tawas City Park Committee and an offer by the Tawas City Chamber of Commerce, the common council at its regular meeting Monday night, reiterated its position on the Park Memorial Building project. Members of the council stated that the city's finances would not allow them to consider spending money on the building at this time.

The Chamber of Commerce proposed that the city match $6000.00 which that organization would raise for the construction of a memorial building which would furnish part of the necessary facilities for the operation of the park. The Chamber of Commerce, and the Ladies' Park Building Committee have about $2,000.00 now on hand for the purpose and the Chamber of Commerce planned to raise the balance of the $6,000.00 by popular subscription, a large portion of which had been already pledged by Tawas City businessmen and other citizens. The committee emphasized that the people really wanted a building in the park, many of them to the extent of making substantial gifts in addition to taxes they might pay for its construction.

The council, however, was firm in its stand, pointing out that the diversion of any of the city's present funds, or the obligating of the city for $6,000.00 on its future tax structure, would jeopardize other projects contemplated by the city and demanded by its citizens. The most important problem for the city's future was to arrange in shape to make extensions to the present water and sewer system. The extension have been promised ever since construction work was stopped several years ago they said.

The council countered with the proposal that the $6,000.00 be given the city and a building designed to fit this amount would be constructed. The city would extend water and sewer facilities and landscape the park. However, the Chamber of Commerce offer and gift pledges were based on building plans previously approved, and the possibility of the city matching the gift.

New AAA Beef Program to Increase Production

Cattle feeders in Iosco County can now apply to the County AAA office for beef cattle production payments under the Government's new program to increase the production of meat. Feeders are encouraged to feed more cattle, including those he purchases and those he raises, to good and choice grades under the new program. The method of payment is similar to the dairy payment program AAA office according to County AAA chairman Harry A. Goodale. The beef cattle production payment amounts to 50 cents per hundred weight on Good or Choice cattle weighing 800 pounds or more and selling for at least the minimum stabilization price, which for sales in this county is $14.55.

This is the first meat production payment made directly to the livestock feeder. The program is designed to help hold the line against inflation by preventing sharp increases in wages and other economic factors.

The beef cattle production payment is available to all feeders, including slaughterers who are feeders, provided their cattle meet the program requirements.

To be eligible, a feeder must certify on his application (1) that he owned the cattle at least 30 days before their sale, (2) that the cattle weighed at least 800 when sold, (3) that the cattle brought not less than the minimum price for the good grade, and (4) that the cattle were sold for slaughter to an authorized slaughterer.

An authorized slaughterer is any slaughterer who operates under Federal inspection or under an OPA permit at the time he slaughters the feeder cattle on which the payment has been made.

A feeder-slaughterer is eligible to receive payment provided payment (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

Employer Must Secure Work Permits for Boys Girls of School Age

We have had such a varied type of requests for work permits during the past several weeks that we believe that some sort of an expansion concerning the subject of work permits for minors would be of great assistance to the boys and girls and to the prospective employers in Iosco County.

Who needs a work permit? Not the child who is doing the work, but the employer of the child. The employer is not permitted to hire any one under 18 years of age without first securing a permit to do so, to work for only a particular employer, and on a particular job. The employer also must first secure an occupational approved number from the State Labor Commission. Forms for this purpose may be secured from the Commissioner of Schools or the State Labor Commission at Lansing.

After an Occupational approval number is secured, another form must be completed by the Employer for each minor employee. This is called a Promise of Employment and Request for a Work Permit. These also may be secured from the Office of Commissioner of Schools.

We hope that all children, parents, (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)

Washington, D. C. GERMAN PRISON LABOR

Officials are keeping very mum about it, but the entire question of using German prison labor to rebuild Russia and France has been thrown into a new controversy by a secret opinion rendered by Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson, who has taken over U. S. prosecution of war criminals.

Justice Jackson wrote his opinion to U. S. Reparations Chief Ed Pauley, stating that in his opinion compulsory German labor should not be used to rebuild France and Russia unless they have been convicted of war crimes.

"It is not my business what is to be done with reparations," Jackson wrote, "but this would largely destroy the moral position of America in this war. . . . Compulsory labor," he continued, "should be required only for convicted war criminals."

Jackson went on to point out that German labor "drifting out of Russian concentration camps in the future would tell tales of horror" which, even if exaggerated, would "arouse sharp condemnation in the United States." He urged, therefore, that German labor not be used for reparations until they had been convicted of war crimes. He indicated that members of the Gestapo and the SS Elite guard undoubtedly were war criminals as a class, but the every member of the Nazi party might not be classified as a war criminal.

Following Justice Jackson's bombshell, a hurried meeting was called in Secretary Morgenthau's office, attended by Ed Pauley, Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton, the army, navy, FEA, and other interested government agencies. Secretary Morgenthau vigorously protested this new development. It was pointed out by some that the use of German prison labor had been agreed to at Yalta by President Roosevelt himself and, therefore, could not be changed.

"If we have to wait for the conviction of all these war criminals before we can get German labor," suggested Reparations Chief Pauley, "we may have to wait a year. Meanwhile, there may not be enough Germans to repair the damage in France and Russia."

Pauley also made the point that he had been charged by the President with the handling of reparations and, therefore, would have to make the final decision himself after his arrival in Europe. After further discussion, however, Pauley agreed to accept Justice Jackson's opinion in principle, namely, that only convicted war criminals could be used as prisoner labor. This leaves the whole question pretty much up in the air.

However, it has been hinted that Justice Jackson will endeavor to indict groups of Germans as a class. In other words, he may try the Gestapo as a group, not individually, and decide that every member of the Gestapo automatically is a war criminal. This probably will be done with Hitler's SS Elite corps. Whether a blanket indictment will also be lodged against the Nazi party remains to be seen.

TRAINING FILMS DESTROYED.

The army doesn't want it known, but it has a new way of handling one type of surplus property. In the case of training and orientation films, it burns old prints. According to a survey made by movie experts, old films last summer were being burned at the rate of 225 tons weekly at Astoria, N. Y.

Meanwhile other government agencies, schools and universities are anxious to buy these outmoded prints from the army. In fact, the U. S. office of transportation had to spend $60,000 of the taxpayers' money to make 10 new reels of its own when the army refused to sell it the army's excellent series of 20 reels for the training of auto mechanics.

Sen. Francis Myers of Pennsylvania, Democrat, has just written Maj. Gen. Harry Ingles, chief of the signal corps, demanding an explanation.

The making of training films and orientation films by the army has been a major operation. Thousands of subjects have been turned out at a tremendous outlay, and production schedules have been more crowded than those of any Hollywood studio.

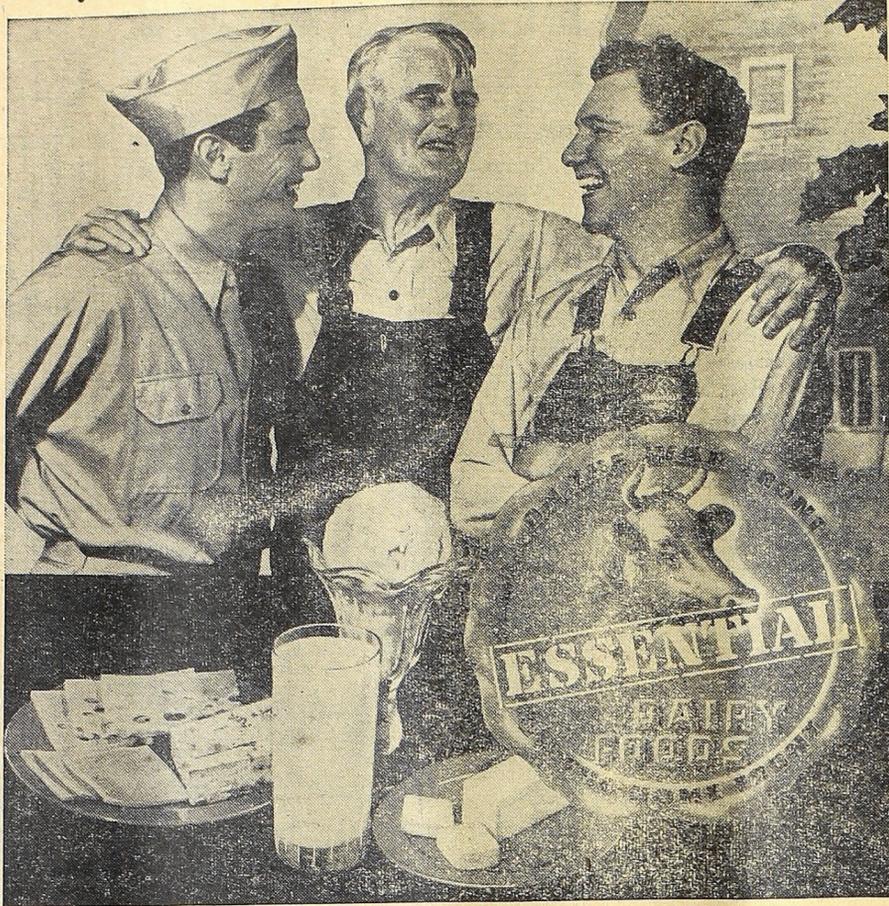

The films have proved remarkable training aids, with officers claiming that they cut at least in half the length of time needed to teach men such things as first aid, etc.

Dairy Farmer and His Two Sons Form 'Great Team'

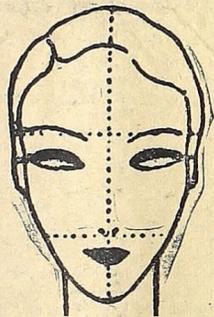

The fourth wartime observance of Dairy month finds the industry faced with a greater demand than ever, and continued shortages in manpower, supplies and equipment. Nevertheless, farmers and factory workers are determined to supply all the milk and milk products that they possibly can. June was chosen as Dairy month because milk production is normally highest at this time.

Before the war the industry endeavored to increase the consumption of dairy products by special campaigns during June. Now the whole emphasis is on explaining why it is impossible to meet the enormous demand for milk, butter and cheese from the armed forces, American civilians, and from ill-nourished European and Pacific peoples.

The picture is a reproduction of the Dairy month poster. It shows a farmer between his two sons, one a soldier with a chestful of ribbons and decorations, and the other a farmer wearing on the bib of his overalls a red badge which carries the single word "Essential." In front of the three are dishes of butter, cheese, ice cream, and a glass of milk. Across the poster in huge letters is emblazoned the message "A GREAT TEAM."

Postwar Opportunity For Dairy Industry Bright, Says Kraft

Instead of fearing a milk surplus after the war, the dairy industry should use increased supplies to provide better nutrition to the American people in the postwar years, John H. Kraft, president of the Kraft Cheese company of Chicago, told the board of directors at a recent meeting. He also declared that the milk products industries could offer opportunities for employment on a large scale if the leaders have the requisite foresight and initiative.

The wartime rise in milk production to 120 billion pounds a year can prove an advantage rather than a handicap, Kraft explained, since milk readily can be converted to plant conversions and will swing into civilian production immediately with new and improved products.

"The dairy industry," he said, "is ready to take full advantage of the

X-Rays, Discovered 50 Years Ago, Have Many Applications

Newest Use Is to Reveal Flaws in Steel Castings

One hundred years ago March 27, Wilhelm Roentgen, discoverer of X-rays, was born and exactly 50 years ago, November 8, he made his marvelous discovery of that wonderful ray which has since proven a boon to mankind and industry. Roentgen called his discovery "X-ray" because he was at a loss to otherwise define this unknown quantity of great penetrating power. At the time, newspapers everywhere published stories, cartoons and even poems about the new "wonder rays." The acclaim of scientists, especially medical men who foresaw how human suffering might be lessened by the ministrations of these new rays, made Roentgen famous overnight, and honors were lavishly thrust upon the truly modest professor.

Yet no one at that time dreamed that within half a century Roentgen's invention would be used by American industry in this war to build the toughest kind of fighting equipment—ships, airplanes, guns, tanks and even ammunition—to pulverize German cities, including Munich where the professor once carried on his research.

Roentgen's discovery makes it possible to detect flaws in ordnance before it reaches the battlefield. X-ray, producing a shadow image on photo-sensitive film—called a radiograph—reveals such faults in metal as blow holes, tears, shrinkage cavities, inclusions and cracks; faults which could not be detected by the keenest eyes.

Perhaps second to Roentgen in X-ray development is Dr. W. D. Coolidge, who until a month or two ago when he retired, was director of General Electric's research laboratory in Schenectady. The Coolidge tube is world famous, used in hospitals and by industries all over the world.

The husky glamour boy of industrial radiography today is the 1,000,000 volt shockproof unit. In 15 minutes it can inspect steel plates eight inches thick. A few years ago radium, at $135,000 a gram, was the only source of the same kind of short-wave-length radiation. Now radiation from this powerful X-ray machine is equivalent to that produced by 8½ pounds of radium with the machine itself costing only a small fraction of what radium would cost even at the current rate of only $30,000 a gram.

A year ago, General Electric announced an even larger X-ray, one of two million volts, which will take pictures through eight inches of steel in one minute. Only two or three of these have been made but results have been such there is every indication this bigger tube will soon gain the popularity and use of its one million volt predecessor. And two million is not the limit for already Dr. E. E. Charlton and his associate W. F. Westendorf, have perfected a 100 million volt X-ray, but particulars of this giant are shrouded with secrecy until the war is over.

X-ray still finds its widest use, however, in the fields of medicine. There is practically no region of the body that is not subject to its searching eye for detection of disease or injury, and the physicians, surgeons and dentists utilize the X-ray for accurate diagnosis and prognosis in a large number of cases.

During the first 20 years after Roentgen's discovery, X-ray work was largely done in hospitals and was relegated to all kinds of employees. Today it is done by trained technicians, under the supervision of a radiologist, who is a physician especially skilled in the interpretation of X-ray images of the body, and in other medical uses of x-radiation.

New 'Chemical' Torpedo Is Ruled a War Secret

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Existence of a new, top-secret "chemical torpedo" in the navy's arsenal has been officially disclosed, but requests for further information on the weapon brought no information from the navy except that the subject is "secret."

Such information as was released in congressional hearings, gave no indication of the significance of the name "chemical."

Dehydrating Quality Surplus Vegetables Dried Products Ideal Winter Food Addition

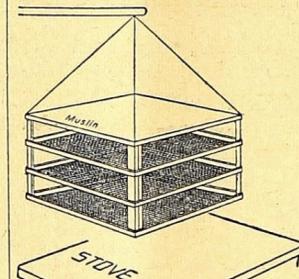

LACK of jars need not prevent the gardener from laying aside a large amount of this year's garden products for winter use.

Before drying, vegetables should be precooked in steam or boiling water. Steam cooking will furnish a superior product to those cooked in water. They should be removed as soon as tender and placed in the drier.

A satisfactory drier is illustrated here. Or it may be advisable to dry in the oven, or in the sun, behind glass. It is advisable to furnish air circulation by means of electric fan, if possible. This process involves bringing currents of relatively dry air into intimate contact with the material to be dried.

The temperature in the drier should not be hot enough to cook the food, yet it should be of a suitable temperature to cause evaporation of moisture. The drying must be a continuous process in order to prevent the growth of organisms.

For best results foods should be cut into uniform sizes and spread evenly in thin layers to dry, stirring frequently. After the product has been dried, it should be conditioned for about 10 days, but stirring from time to time, to prevent mold. After this period it may be placed in sealed air tight bags, such as cellophane or waxed paper, or in sealed jars, or placed in a stone crock, if desired.

Properly dried vegetables, as well as fruits, prove a welcome addition in the winter menus, and lose little of their value when properly handled.

Eight-Point Dairy Program Is Efficient

1. Grow plenty of high-quality roughage
2. Balance your herd with your feed supply
3. Keep production records on each cow in your herd
4. Practice disease control methods
5. Produce milk and cream of the highest quality
6. Adopt labor-saving methods
7. Take care of your land
8. Develop a sound breeding program

Age Effect in Calf

After the first calf is dropped, age has little or no apparent effect on cows getting in calf, according to E. J. Perry of Rutgers university.

Bulls show a gradual reduction in breeding efficiency with advancing age, with the exception of the seven-year-olds. Heifers being bred for the first time require more services than the older cows. Breeding efficiency of the cows are not appreciably influenced by the length of time between calvings.

Cottons and Jersey Favored For Swim and Beach Outfits

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS is the time of the year when a maiden's fancy turns to thoughts of what's "the style" in play togs, swim suits and beach ensembles. Now that all nature seems to be joining in one grand chorus that invites one to come and play in the great outdoors, the summer style parade will be made up for the most part of sportswear and seashore fashions.

Judging from the signs that cast their shadows before, this is going to be a most glamorous season on the beach for the new swim-suits and ensembles were never more versatile and eye-thrilling. Designers are making a fascinating play on stripes, maneuvering them in every conceivable way. In the new fashions stripes go up and down, around and around and on the bias in ways that give the garment an individual look.

A very important trend is toward costume ensembles achieved with a matching robe or cape or jacket to be worn on the beach. This applies to sun frocks and play clothes too, the idea being to add a wrap that will tune the outfit to many-purpose wear.

As to materials, crisp striped cottons are very much in evidence on the beach and in the sports realm in general. Seersucker is being made up ever so smartly in styles that are not only good-looking but extremely practical. This year washable cotton jersey is making a great hit for swim suits, and exotically flowered rayon jersey is being made up into brief wrap-around skirts in sarong effects. Bright oriental-looking cottons are all-over shirred for figure-fitting swim suits with bra tops.

One of the big success fashions of the season is the stunning suit of red rayon jersey which is shown to the left in the accompanying illustration of smart seashore fashions. This stunning ensemble of scarf and swim suit comes from the New York Dress Institute. The fetching white cotton beach stole is a thrilling example of what creative genius is doing with even the simplest of materials this season. In this instance the white cotton is hand-painted with footprints for the motif, done in multi-color. The deep fringe is hand-tied of white cotton yarn.

One-strap swim suits present a thrilling new fashion theme for this summer. See a clever interpretation of this in the attractive model centered in the foreground. Important also is the fact that this suit is made of washable white cotton jersey. For the bra and one-hip decor Ella Raines, the designer, uses brown and white striped cotton jersey. The single strap over one shoulder is of the same brown stripe.

The beach ensemble to the right takes on a costume look because of the matching coat that so smartly complements it. You will see this trend to add a coat or other beach wrap emphasized all the way through this season's smart outdoor fashions. This is a glowing example of the ingenuity with which designers are manipulating stripes in the current mode. Crisp cotton with peppermint stripes is the material used. The stripes play all sorts of capers, some going vertical, horizontal, on the bias and in other deft arrangement that achieves a designfulness pleasing to the eye.

The first appearance of black in sportswear was accepted as a passing novelty, but it has proved so effective and practical its style prestige is reaching a new high. Form-fitting swim suits of dull-surfaced black elasticized silk are among the smartest, as are also those of elastic black satin. Then there is the swim suit of water-repellent black velvet. It's a beauty.

Sheer Loveliness

The memory of the bride in a traditional white wedding gown is ever to be cherished. If your budget is limited, that need not be a barrier, for if you can sew it will add to the endearment of your bridal dress if you make it yourself. By taking advantage of the wartime budget lessons given by your local sewing center, experts will show you the latest tricks and modern finishing touches. The bride pictured "made her own" of a lovely white sheer, for this summer fashion favors exquisite diaphanous materials for the wedding gown. Suggested materials include sheers of white cotton voile, ninon, marquisette and organdy over a rayon tulle slip.

Bows Trim Up Dresses, Jackets and Dickies

Detachable bows that you can wear with this dress and that, play a flattering role in costume decor this spring. So now the ambition among college and teen-age girls is to collect bows and bows (spelled bows, not beaux). The newest trick is to smarten your dainty lingerie dickey with little black ribbon velvet bows, topping off with a matching velvet bow in your prettily coiffed hair. There are lots of other instances too, where an artful black velvet bow will fit into the scheme of things perfectly. Then there are those new, starched frost-white lingerie bows, that are being so importantly featured this spring. Designers are placing them in most unique ways on smart navy or black spring frocks or on two-piece jacket dresses. Perhaps the cleverest is the nifty short jacket that has a slot cut at the upper left shoulder through which is drawn a large butterfly bow made of lace and embroidery.

White Accessories Are

That fashion slogan "iced with white" has caught the fancy of women who are alert to fashion and to what is most flattering. A white hat, a white coat, white gloves and footwear are summer wardrobe essentials this year. Then every lady of fashion needs must have in store endless frilly white blouses together with frothy, lovely jabots and other neckwear items galore.

Rather Be Hero Than President

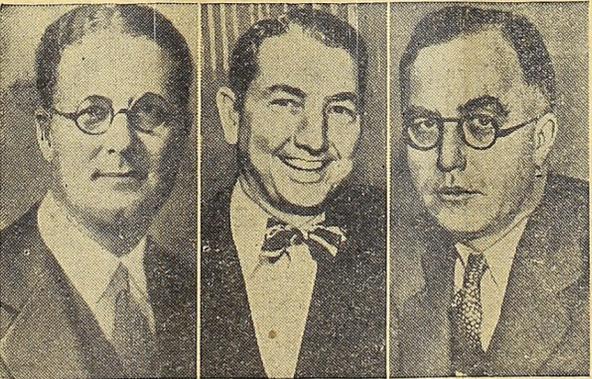

When T/Sgt. Jake Lindsey, 24, of Lucedale, Miss., was presented with the 100th Congressional Medal of Honor at a joint session of congress, President Truman said to the sergeant: "I'd rather have that medal than be President of the United States." Among other acts of bravery, while wounded, Lindsey fought and defeated eight Germans in hand-to-hand combat. Sergeant Lindsey led his platoon, reduced to six from its original strength of 40, under intense enemy counter-attack, exposed to heavy machine gun, rifle and tank fire. He knocked out two machine guns.

Household Hints

When sewing, fasten a small pin-cushion to your wrist with a piece of elastic. This way as soon as pins are removed they can be put in place. Keep pins handy, too.

Cover the bottom of your scouring powder can with adhesive tape. Then when can stands in your white enameled sink, it will leave no rust stains.

Rustic furniture with the bark still on is mighty hard on stockings. They are much less apt to catch on the wood if the chair is given a coat of clear varnish.

Fancy household linens, put away to save time and effort, should be washed and aired occasionally to keep them fresh and white. Ironing is not necessary.

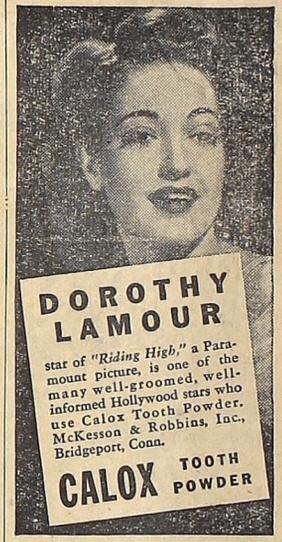

Cut a flower or two from the new wallpaper you've put on your walls, then paste it to a white lamp shade or two. Gives unity of design to your room. Carry out the same idea on a scrapbook cover that's kept permanently at hand.

An electric griddle for pancakes works more efficiently if wiped with olive oil.

The water in which rice is boiled is just right for starching organdy blouses and white shirts.

Do not use sheets or pillow cases for laundry bags as they are not woven to stand the strain.

To separate a head of lettuce, cut the core out in a cone shape and place the opening under the faucet, allowing the running water to separate the leaves without breaking them.

Farmers Plan Greater Buys in War Bonds
In spite of an "off" season so far as income is concerned, farm War Bond leaders are now making preparations for selling more bonds to farmers during the Seventh War Loan than in any previous drive, according to M. L. Predmore, chief of the Agricultural Section, War Finance Division, Treasury Department. With the help of country bankers they're out to convince the men who till the soil that they should convert their expanded bank accounts into bonds.
"Farmers, like all Americans, have been building up bank deposits and currency holdings ever since the war started," Predmore said. "On January 1, 1920, agriculture held currency and bank deposits totaling slightly over 4 billion dollars. The 1945 figure is not available, but it is expected to be in excess of 10 billion."
With larger operations and increased costs farmers must have more operating capital than in 1940, but they don't need 10 billion, in Predmore's opinion. He believes farmers can and will put a substantial portion of these cash reserves into War Bonds.
When they go out to sell War Bonds to farmers in the Seventh War Finance Committees throughout the nation will stress personal solicitation. A survey made following the Sixth War Loan showed that 57 percent of the farmers who were personally solicited bought bonds.

A Bell for Adano John Hersey

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, a seaport in Italy, with Major Victor Joppolo, a sergeant in charge. Sergeant Borth, Amgot officer in charge of security. The Major set out immediately to win the friendship of the citizens, and to improve their living conditions. He determined to replace their bell, which the Germans had taken. Major Joppolo talked with Father Pensovecchio, the town's leading priest. He explained to the priest what he wanted to accomplish for the people of Adano, and secured the promise of the priest to call attention, at a mass, to the posted civil instructions. The Major promised the priest that he would attend mass the next day.

CHAPTER IV

"You could have read the proclamations which our friends will post, Fatta. You would not have had anything to lean against while reading because the proclamations will be posted on the walls upon which you depend. The hour of the reading, that is to say about five o'clock, would have been bad for you, because it is the hour when you are overcome with energy and are able to lift a bottle of wine to your lips. But the others will read, Fatta. They will learn that the Americans are our friends. They will learn of the changes. They will know what to do. They will avoid the punishments. For them, Adano will be a new town, and life will be different. For you, it will be the same. You will do wrong, and you will be punished. Adano will still be a place of fear.

"Look at the lazy Fatta, people! Do not be like him. Read the proclamations. Acquaint yourself with the new Adano! I have cried."

And Mercurio Salvatore moved the drum around behind him and marched off to the several other places convenient for shouting, and in his own way he told the people about the changes which were to come.

Father Pensovecchio could not remember when so many people had come to the Church of San Angelo.

It was a pleasure, certainly it was a pleasure, to have so many come to the Church of San Angelo.

But now Father Pensovecchio had a thought which made him very uneasy. What if the Mister Major should not come? Think of the shame. Think of how the other priests would laugh. Think how this vanity, this large crowd, would complain. Think of how his own faithful would flock on later Sundays to the other churches. Think of preaching to empty pews.

It was already five minutes past seven. The senior acolyte had already whispered in his ear that it was time to begin the mass. And the Mister Major had not come.

The Mister Major, at that moment, was sitting in his office having a breakfast of fruit and discussing with Borth and with the usher Zito, who never went to church, the matter of the bell. Major Joppolo sat with his feet on the huge desk eating fruit, Borth sat on the end of the desk also eating, and the little Zito stood at attention in front of it, not eating but wishing he were.

In the Church of San Angelo, meanwhile, Father Pensovecchio was growing frantic. Most of the heads in his crowd, his lovely crowd, kept turning toward the door instead of facing the silver crucifix which survived the fire of 1553.

In his office Major Joppolo said: "They took the bell away on the fourteenth of June. That is a month less two days. That is not so much time. Considering how things are done in our Army, perhaps not much has been done with the bell. Where was it sent, Zito?"

Zito said: "To the provincial government at the town of Vicinamare."

Major Joppolo said: "Perhaps it got no farther. Perhaps the bell is still sitting in its crate in Vicinamare."

Zito grew excited: "Do you think that is possible?" he asked.

The Major said: "It is possible. We must find out."

And he took a piece of foolscap from his brief case and began a letter:

"To: Lt. Col. R. N. Sartorius, C.A.O., Vicinamare, Prov. of Vicinamare."

"From: Major V. Joppolo, C.A.O., Adano, Prov. of Vicinamare."

"Re: Bell belonging to town of Adano."

"Undersigned would very much appreciate your initiating investigation of records of provincial government of Vicinamare to see if you can trace . . ."

The service in the Church of San Angelo was taking a most unusual course. Having completed the supplication, Father Pensovecchio started reciting the Litany of Saint Joseph. It was the longest litany he could think of offhand, and he repeated the words without any sense of their meaning.

"Joseph, most valiant, Joseph, most obedient, Joseph, most faithful, mirror of patience, lover of poverty, model of workmen, ornament of the domestic life, guardian of virgins, safeguard of families. . ."

Suddenly Father Pensovecchio broke off. He had had an idea. He beckoned again to the senior acolyte and whispered in his ear: "Have old Guzzo ring the bell."

"Do as I say. Hurry."

And then the priest resumed in his hollow voice: ". . . consolation of the poor, hope of the sick, patron of the dying, terror of the demons."

And the people responded: "Pray for us."

The priest said: "Protector of the Holy Church."

The people were just in the middle of responding: "Pray for us," when they heard a stroke of the bell over their heads. Worship had to stop while the bell rang, for its vibrations shook the whole church.

In his office Major Joppolo blotted the letter and folded it.

Borth said: "What time is it?"

The Major looked at his wrist watch. "Seven twenty-six," he said.

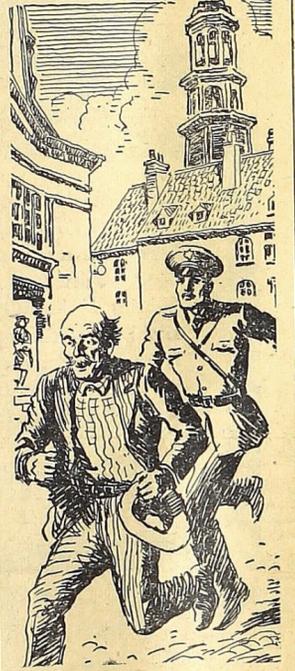

Borth said in Italian: "Zito, if you are such an expert on bells, what is that one ringing for at seven twenty-six in the morning, and all alone?"

Zito said: "It is strange. That is a church bell. From the tone I would say it was the bell of San Angelo."

"San Angelo!" The Major jumped up. He said, "I promised the priest I would come, I got thinking about the old bell. Zito, show me the way. Run, Zito, this is terrible."

Zito darted out of the door, and the Major ran after him.

Three or four idlers, sitting in the morning sun, thought it was undignified of the new American Major to chase little Zito through the streets. If he wanted to punish Zito,

The Major ran after him.

why did he not send some of his military police after him? It did not suit his office to chase Zito himself, especially since it was unlikely that he would catch him.

The acolyte Ludovico, sitting on the steps of the Church, looked up in amazement at the little Italian being chased by the American officer.

He wondered why the American was chasing the Italian. The pair had run right past Ludovico up the steps of the Church before it occurred to him that perhaps this was the American Major. He got up quickly and ran up the steps after the two of them, but he was too late; they were already inside the door.

The entire congregation stood up. The lazy Fatta even stopped leaning against the pillar. There was a considerable amount of murmuring, and as the Major walked up the aisle, puffing and wiping the sweat from his face, many people whispered: "Kiss your hand, kiss your hand."

As soon as he saw a pew that was not too crowded, Major Joppolo genuflected and slid into it. Zito imitated him and squeezed into the same pew, which was too crowded then.

The congregation seated itself. Father Pensovecchio cleared his throat. His confidence, which had very nearly left him, was now very much in evidence. He had his crowd and he had his Major.

Major Joppolo couldn't help noticing two heads in the pew right in front of him. One was the head of a man, and it was bald. The other was the head of a woman, and it was blonde.

By tilting his head a very little bit, Major Joppolo was able to find out that the bald head belonged to his interpreter, Giuseppe. He was not able, by tilting, to see the face of the blonde head, but he could see that the hair was arranged fastidiously, with no loose strands.

"If you remember," said the priest, "we were told that Americans attacked priests and attacked and killed women, and were all Protestants. But right here now is an American of Italian descent who is attending mass, and is just as reverent as you are toward the Church of San Angelo. He is a very busy man. He is so busy that he had to run all the way to church, and even then was somewhat late. But we are very glad to have him here." Father Pensovecchio spoke with feeling. "We are glad that he is one of us. Because of this man, I believe that the Americans are my friends. You must believe the same thing, my children."

Major Joppolo noticed that the skin of the neck below the blonde hair, though clean, was quite dark, and he wondered whether the hair was naturally blonde. He wondered about this off and on during the mass which followed.

After mass he left quickly, to avoid the embarrassment he knew would result from mingling too much with the crowd. He took time only to tell Giuseppe that he had a little interpreting for him to do that afternoon, and to look into the face of the blonde.

On the fifth day of the invasion a babel stood in line in front of the shop of the baker Zapulla. There were many women, mostly dressed in black, and a few men. They talked in loud voices, each clamoring for an audience.

"He has a furious energy," said Maria Carolina the wife of the noisy cartman Afronti. "He told small Zito to report for work at seven each morning. Zito thought that no official would be up that early. Zito went to work at seven and a half, and the Mister Major told him that there would be a new usher unless the old usher could wake up on time in the morning."

Carmelina, the wife of the lazy Fatta, who was at the head of the line, said loudly: "It would be pleasing if Zapulla the baker got up on time in the morning so that the bread would be ready."

Zapulla the baker, black with the wood cove of his oven, came out to the front of the shop and roared: "Zapulla the baker has been up since four in the morning. If Zapulla the baker hears remarks, he is liable to go back to bed and let the bread burn up."

"Do you remember," said Margherita the fat Craxi's formidable wife, "do you remember how the Mayor Nasta used to hold office hours from noon until one, each day, the hour when we were all busy with our children? And how we had to apply in writing to see him? And how we had to wait ten days? And how he would treat us when we did see him? Now it is different. You can walk in any time all day." She paused. "He stands up when you enter," she said impressively.

"Is that so?" said Laura Sofia, who was not the wife of anyone and at her age was not likely to be ever. "I think I shall go and see him."

"On what pretext?" jibed Maria Carolina, wife of the noisy cartman Afronti. "To make eyes at him?"

"Oh," said Laura Sofia, "I have my complaints, just like the rest of you—even if I haven't litters of children grunting like pigs on my floor."

Carmelina, wife of the lazy Fatta, said: "My children are hungry. It would be nice if they could get their bread on time."

From the depths of his shop Zapulla the baker shouted: "The children of certain people may stay hungry if certain people do not hold their tongues."

Mercurio Salvatore, crier of the town of Adano, was near the end of the line, but even though he toned his voice down to his conversational whisper, the whole line could hear him when he said: "I wish to tell you something. I asked him if I could listen to my radio."

"He said: 'Why not, crier?'"

"I asked him what station I would be permitted to listen to. I asked: 'Should it be the Radio of Algiers, or should it be the Radio of London which is called B.B.C.?'"

"He said: 'Reception here is best for Radio Roma. Why don't you listen to the one you can hear the best?'"

"I said: 'Can you mean it? Radio Roma is anti-American. It has nothing but slander for the Americans.'"

"And he said to me: 'Crier, I love the truth, and I want you to love it too. You listen to Radio Roma. You will hear that it is three fourths lies. I want you to judge for yourself and to want the truth. Then perhaps you will want to listen to the other broadcasts which you cannot hear quite so clearly.'"

Margherita, the formidable wife of Craxi, said: "Have you listened, crier?"

Mercurio Salvatore said: "I have listened. I could detect only one lie yesterday, but it was a big one. Radio Roma said that Italian forces in the city of Vicinamare threw back three vicious Allied attacks. We all knew that Vicinamare was in the hands of the Americans late on the first day of the disembarkation."

Carmelina the wife of the lazy Fatta said: "It will be late on the fifth day before we get bread from this baker Zapulla."

Zapulla was impolite to Carmelina because of what she said. He came forward and threw a piece of wood-coke at her head and roared: "Silence!" The wood-coke missed Carmelina's head, but hit the stomach of the formidable Margherita. She advanced, shaking her large fists. Zapulla went back to his ovens, as if he had not noticed where his wood-coke went.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE MINISTRY OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27a, 29, 31. GOLDEN TEXT—I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.—John 10:10.

The dawn of a new day had come! The long-promised and expected Messiah came to break the 400 years of silence by His personal presence. We learn of His coming, His life and ministry, His death and resurrection, and find the promise of His coming again in the four Gospels. They are our complete lesson for this Sunday, but we obviously cannot review them in their entirety in our limited space.

Our Scripture references speak of His ministry in presenting the good news of the gospel to needy mankind.

I. The Good News Preached (Mark 1:14, 15).

Jesus always honored preaching as the primary and the effective means of spreading the good news of the gospel.

The forerunner, John the Baptist, had borne his witness. Jesus had come, had been baptized, and as John was cast into prison, He began to preach, "Repent ye and believe the gospel." The key verse of Mark is 10:45: "For even the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister."

The characteristic words are "straightway," "forthwith," and "immediately." The Greek word thus translated appears about forty times in the book.

II. The Good News Practiced (Luke 4:16-21).

The daily ministry of Jesus as He lived here on earth is summarized in the prophecy of His coming which was given by Isaiah the prophet. As we read these words, we realize that we who profess to follow Him need to learn more of His spirit of tender and loving service to others.

It is significant and appropriate that Jesus' declaration of Himself as the fulfillment of Isaiah 61:1, 2 was made in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. He met with the people in the house and at the time set apart for God's worship. He opposed spiritual deadness, the misinterpretation of the truth, the distortion of religious principles; but He was not, as some would have us believe, a religious free lance who despised the established worship of His people.

Having been prepared by the thirty years of privacy, and more particularly by the baptism and the temptation in the wilderness, He appeared at the synagogue in Nazareth to declare Himself as the fulfillment of prophecy.

Those who teach that Jesus was only a young Jewish teacher with a new philosophy of life have evidently not read the Scriptures. He knew Himself to be God's Son come into the world to bring the good news of salvation by His own blood to poor, sin-captive, blinded and bruised humanity. He is the Saviour.

Look at Isaiah 61:1, 2 and note that Jesus stopped reading before the end of the sentence. "The day of vengeance of our God" will come when Christ returns. This is the day of grace. Sinners are urged to accept God's love now, and thus to escape the terrible day of judgment which is to come.

III. The Good News Prepared (Mark 8:27a, 29, 31).

Jesus preached the gospel of the kingdom. He went about doing good, but always He knew Himself to be the Christ, the One who was to die for the sins of the world and to arise again for the justification of those who put their trust in Him.

Even those who deny to our Christ the recognition of His deity, and the devotion of life which is His just due, must, if they are at all intelligent, admit that no man ever lived who has made such an impact on human history. Even now, unbelieving men speak of Him as the founder of Christianity, a mighty leader, a wonderful example, or an unequalled teacher.

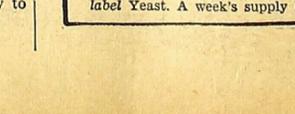

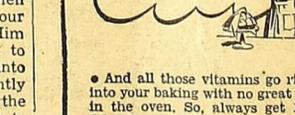

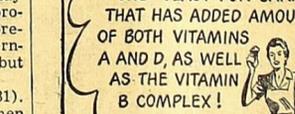

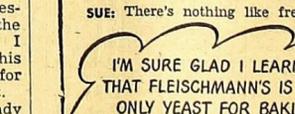

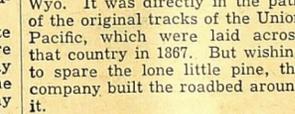

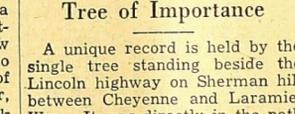

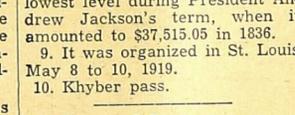

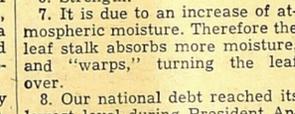

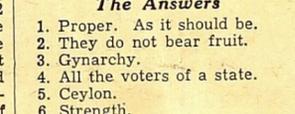

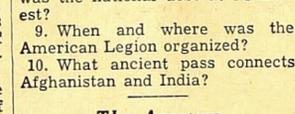

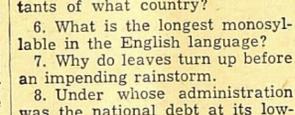

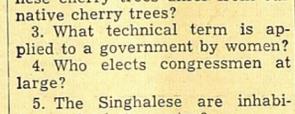

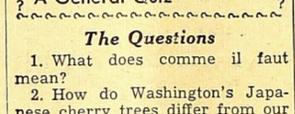

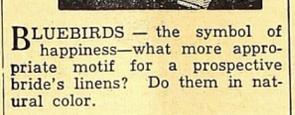

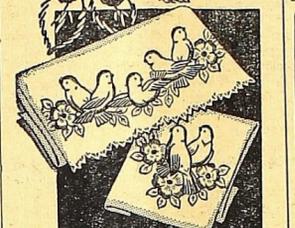

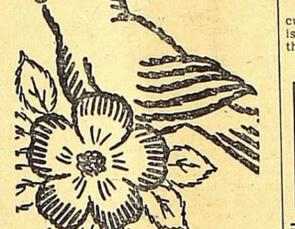

It is not enough that we stand with the mass of humanity who may thus admire Him, but who do not count Him as Saviour and Lord. The question comes to us as it did to the disciples, "Whom say ye that I am?" "Thou art the Christ"—this alone suffices as the foundation for Christian testimony and conduct.

Although Jesus was not yet ready to have His Messiahship proclaimed to the public, He was prepared to teach His disciples concerning not only that important truth, but of His rejection and death.

Note the divine "must" (v. 31). While it is true that wicked men showed their hostility toward our God and His Christ by hanging Him on Calvary's cross, yet it was to die for our sins that He came into the world. The cross has rightly come to represent God's love to the world rather than man's hostility to God.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Gulf Coast oil-producing companies use a rubber-tired vehicle called a "marsh buggy." It is equipped with tires 120 inches in diameter and with 3 1/2-inch cross-sections. The OPA set price ceilings at $1,075.15 for casings and $328.34 for tubes.

Hawaii is currently producing very small amounts of natural rubber. It is the only tree rubber being grown under the American flag except for experimental plantings in Florida.

Undamaged tire plants in Belgium and France that have fallen into the hands of the Allies are to be put to work retreading truck tires for Army vehicles which would otherwise have to be discarded.

CLASSIFIED DEPARTMENT

Persons now engaged in essential industry will not apply without statement of availability from their local United States Employment Service.

A FEW old-timers were talking a day or two ago about the best combination pitching staffs, including two stars. It all began on a visit to Detroit where naturally they were talking about Newhouser and Trout, who came close to winning the pennant for the Tigers last fall.

Dizzy Trout

I could take them back to the days of Mathewson and McGinnity, a pretty fair two-man combination. There were others, including Jack Chesbro, who were just as good or just as effective, anyway. But those were times far away and long ago. Few modern fans recall their names. But this is getting away from all-star pitching strength where two men are concerned on one team. Several requests have come in from servicemen, especially those overseas, to hear more about Newhouser and Trout, the winning Tiger combination.

We put this problem up to E. A. Batchelor, the Detroit expert, who came through promptly with the following:

"Newhouser had threatened to be a fine pitcher ever since he joined the Tigers at the age of 18, with a very limited minor league experience. He had plenty of 'swift' and an excellent curve, but he also had two serious defects. He never could get the ball over the plate without easing up on his stuff and he sulked and pouted whenever things went wrong for him. It used to be said that Harold was licked as soon as an error was made behind him—that he was a rank quitter if he didn't get all the breaks.

Couldn't Stand Defeat

"The trouble seemed to be that he couldn't get over the idea that he should win every game he pitched. No matter how good his performance, if the other team outscored the Tigers he felt that Fate had kicked him right in the seat of the pants. There may be better ways of acquiring unlimited unpopularity with one's teammates than a chronic martyr complex, but we don't recall any of them at the moment. Newhouser was cordially disliked by the entire Tiger squad. When he pitched the whole team tightened up and played its worst ball.

"Paul Richards probably is deserving of a great deal of the credit for Newhouser's development from a problem child into a real pitcher. This veteran backstop was acquired by the Tigers from Atlanta, where he had been manager, to help fill the hole left by the departure of George 'Birdie' Tebbets for the army.

"He conveyed the idea that a successful pitcher works on the batters' weaknesses and does not merely try to throw the ball past them by main strength. And so, in one year, he developed all the latent talent of the young southpaw and helped to earn for him the award of most valuable player in the American League.

Gay, Eccentric Trout

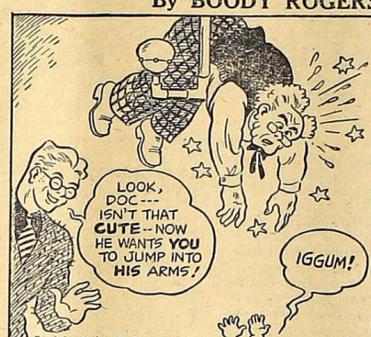

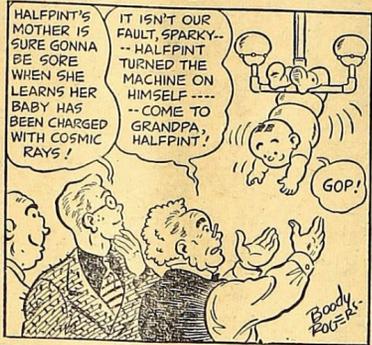

"Trout, in many respects, is the exact opposite of Newhouser in mental make-up. Instead of being a sulking, self-centered athlete, he was always the 'good fellow.' He worked all his waking hours at his trade of being a charming eccentric. Nothing seemed to worry him—not even the necessity for winning an occasional ball game. It was the feeling of the fans that he was more interested in clowning than in pitching; that he would rather get a laugh than a digit in the win column. Everybody liked him and everybody wanted to see him win, everybody, except, it seemed, himself.

"Then, all of a sudden, Paul seemed to tumble to the idea that his extra curricular activities as the life of the party could be reconciled with doing a serious job on the mound. Just about the time he was ready to receive one of those long green railroad tickets to the minors, he settled down to work. He won 20 games in 1943 with a club that wasn't going anywhere in particular and he liked the idea of being a winner so well that he kept it up in 1944 with 27 victories.

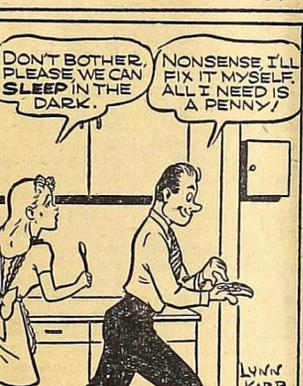

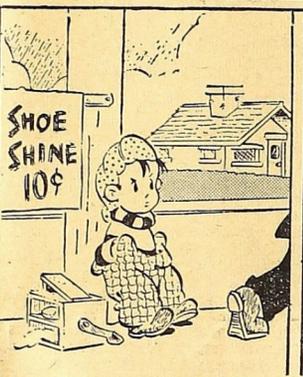

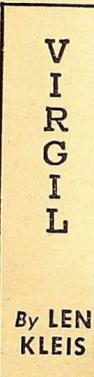

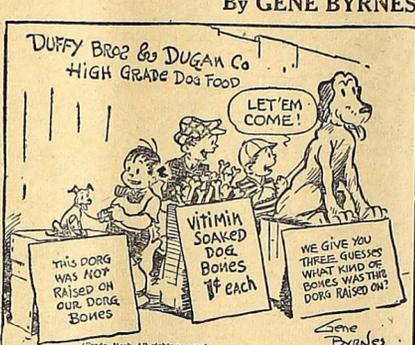

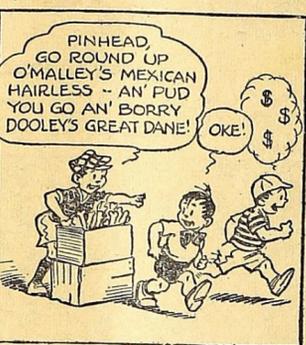

"It wasn't that Paul suddenly uncovered some new stuff. He hasn't a bit more on the ball now than he had when he was struggling to break even. He always has had a fine curve ball and exceptional control, to say nothing of poise that even an earthquake couldn't disturb. He just naturally grew up—at long last.

"One characteristic that these two pitchers have in common is their willingness to work. One or the other was in over half of the games that the Tigers played last year, in almost 70 games of record. Even when they were starting games far oftener than is customary in the major leagues, they were doing relief work for faltering associates. And their associates last season had a positive genius for faltering. In fact, all the rest of the Tiger pitchers combined, won only 32 games, or a little over half as many as the two stars.

marriage by Captin Willard Haynes, commanding officer of the Medical Air Evacuation Squadron with which the two nurses serve.

Men and officers of Col. Lorin L. Johnson's 392nd bombardment group, nurses and British civilians filled the 14th century church, Sgt. John Flohr of Philadelphia, Pa. was vocalist. As the couple left the church, an honor guard with rifles, composed of staff officers of Major Lane's squadron and commanded by Capt. Leonard A. Wipfers of San Francisco, Calif., snapped to attention and presented arms.

Four officers served as ushers. A reception at the base followed the wedding. After the reception the Major and Mrs. Lane left for a trip to London and Torquay, Devonshire. Major Lane has been a member of the 392nd, a B-24 Liberator outfit, since its activation early in 1943. The unit, veteran of 285 missions to Germany, France, Norway, Holland, Poland, Belgium and Czechoslovakia, came over seas in July, 1943. The Major, a graduate of Lexington, Ky. high school, is executive officer with one of the 392nd's squadrons.

Nurse Lane joined the corps in September, 1942, after serving at the General Hospital. She has made 120 flights to Europe to evacuate wounded American soldiers.

To collect the payment he must substantiate the date of purchase, the price paid, and the weight at the time of purchase. He also must certify the grade and weight of the carcass after slaughter to further determine the eligibility of the cattle.

A feeder other than a feed-slaughter must present sales receipts, invoices, sale tickets, or other written evidence from the buyer to verify (1) date of sale, (2) the name of the buyer, (3) the point of sale, (4) the number of head, (5) the total liveweight, (6) the price received and (7) the name of the legally authorized slaughterer to whom sold.

In addition, the feeder, if he did not raise the cattle, must show the source of the cattle at the time he purchased them by furnishing the name of the person from whom purchased, and the date of the purchase. The feeder may also be required to furnish evidence that the payment had not been made previously on these cattle.

Payments will be made from funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation of which $40,000,000 has been authorized.

Farmers may obtain details of the payments made by the County AAA office as soon as the necessary forms are received.

National Quarry Has Outstanding Record

Six mines and one quarry located in Michigan are cited as having outstanding safety records in 1944 by R. R. Sayers, director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines. The Michigan quarry cited by Dr. Sayers is the National Gypsum Quarry at National City.

Eighty four mines and quarries in the United States are cited for working nearly 6 1/2 million man-hours last year without a disabling injury of any kind. This remarkable accident record in the mineral industries was achieved despite wartime handicaps such as greatly increased production of skilled workers to the armed forces and other industries, and inability to replace badly worn machinery.

He can't ask you now!

••• He's an American hero. After fighting bloody battles in the Pacific, he was home on leave two years ago.

••• You may remember seeing his picture. His name is John Basilone, Marine Gunnery Sergeant. He traveled all over America, urging every American to buy more bonds.

••• He said: "You don't know—you can't know—how much it means to the boys out there when they hear the folks back home have just put another War Bond Drive over the top."

••• They gave him the Congressional Medal of Honor and offered him a commission. He didn't want it. "I'm a plain soldier," he said. "I want to stay one."

••• Well, he stayed a plain marine—like Joe and Bill and the fellows down the street. He can't ask you to buy bigger bonds during the Seventh. He was killed a few weeks ago on Iwo, just after he had led his assault team to the edge of an airfield we needed desperately.

••• We can't let him and all our other fighting heroes down. Remember, last year we had two War Loan Drives by this time. The Seventh is our personal call to arms—two drives in one. That's why our quota is large.

••• We must meet it—we will meet it—for the hero of Iwo—for Victory—for pride in America.
