THREE IOSCO BOYS KILLED IN ACTION

Sgt. Chas. Follette, Pfc. Thomas R. Smyczynski, Pvt. W. J. Lubway

Major A. P. Stevens of the 33rd Armored Regiment, in reporting the death of Pfc. Thomas R. Smyczynski in action last August, writes to the mother, Mrs. Josephine Smyczynski:

Your son was radio operator and 75 mm gun loader of a medium tank. At the time his company was part of a tank unit closing the Fales Gap near Raines, France, to cut off the practically surrounded enemy army. His tank received a direct hit from the enemy artillery and was completely destroyed as a result.

Although it appeared evident that your son had been killed, identification of the body was difficult, and it was only through affidavits of eyewitnesses that it was definitely proven that he had become a fatality.

I fully realize the anguish you must have suffered during the time your son was listed as missing, but I also hope that you realize that this loss is necessary to prevent the possibility of a mistaken report.

I can fully understand your grief and how deeply you feel the loss of your son, and I wish to express my most sincere sympathy to you and the rest of his family in this time of your sorrow.

His loss to the regiment is greatly felt by all, but his action will long be remembered and will serve as an inspiration to those with whom he served.

Pvt. William J. Lubway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lubway of this place, was killed in action May 5 at Okinawa, according to a message received here Sunday.

Private Lubway was 26 years old and had been in the service since last August. He had attended St. Joseph school. His home was at Wyandotte and he is survived by his wife and three children, Jean Marie, Jimmie and Richard.

He has three brothers in the service, Ralph and Jack in the Philippines, and Joseph who just came home from New Guinea, also two sisters, Stella and Margaret, and a brother, Landon, at home.

Word has been received here of the death of Charles Follette of Hale, killed on Luzon in the Philippine Islands, May 16.

He was the son of the late, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Follette, prominent Plainfield township residents.

He had taken part in many of the engagements for the islands in the Pacific area up to and including the Philippine campaign and had been wounded four times.

He has two brothers in the service, Lyle, in the Pacific area and Gilbert in Italy. He also has two other brothers, John and Paul, and a sister, Mrs. Luella Wandrey, all of Detroit.

IN the SERVICE

Sgt. Otis A. Smith was cited for heroic achievement in action April 25, 1945, near San Felice, Italy. A large scale withdrawal of approximately one thousand enemy troops was encountered by the first and third platoons of the troop. The jeep section engaged the enemy troops in a fire fight, but due to the small number of personnel, the enemy was able to make a flanking movement, threatening the jeep sections. A call for help brought Sgt. Smith with an armored car, but the enemy met him with bazookas, rifle grenades and machine guns, whereupon a terrific fight began. Sgt. Smith directed his crew members and fired his "tommy" gun from the turret in his machine. The enemy succeeded in knocking out Sgt. Smith's car and injured the driver. With the car ablaze, Sgt. Smith continued to fire from his second position, disregarding the dangers of the fire reaching the gas tank or ammunition stored in the turret near him. Not until Sgt. Smith drove the enemy away, was he able to leave his position and help his injured driver to safety. The heroism displayed by Sgt. Smith on this occasion reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.

Lewis Floyd Bailey, F 1-c, USNR, of East Tawas has been presented the Purple Heart for wounds received while manning his gun during air action in Leyte Gulf.

Donald Wayne Herriman, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Eliza Herriman, Rural Route 1, Tawas City, is receiving his initial Naval training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois.

Sgt. Arthur Bigelow, one of the first in Iosco county to enlist, has returned after nearly five years of service in the army. Most of this time was spent in Australia and New Guinea and recently in the Philippines. He has received his discharge.

Sgt. Laurie Frank is home on a 17 day furlough from the Thomas England Hospital, Atlantic City. He was accompanied here by his brother, Seaman 2nd class Kenneth Frank, who is stationed at Brooklyn.

Sgt. Frank was injured in France by a land mine, and had been in hospitals in France and England before returning to the states.

Ferris Brown, Electricians Mate, 3rd class is enjoying a 5 day leave in San Francisco this week. He has been stationed at Pearl Harbor. He is unable to get home to see his family this trip.

Machinist Mate 1st Class Arthur Dillon, Pvt. Robert Dillon and Machinist Mate 1st Class John Dillon are having a reunion at the Dillon home this week. This is the first time the boys have been together in three years.

Iosco Lacks $90,000

From private to major general—Iosco has them all—over more than 1,000 men and women in the service are making every effort within their power to help win this war. On the battlefields of New Guinea, Africa, Italy, France and Germany—at Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Guam, Saipan, Iwo Jima and Okinawa—Iosco men have been giving their best. Twenty-two have made the supreme sacrifice, and scores of them have been awarded Purple Hearts. Many of them have been cited for bravery and outstanding performance of duty. Our men in the Navy, and our young women serving their country in uniforms have made equally distinguished records.

What are these boys and girls going to think if Iosco fails them in this 7th War Loan?

Right now it looks bad. Only 49 per cent of its quota sold, and only three weeks to the deadline.

IOSCO SCOUTS MEET AT EAST TAWAS JUNE 27

Court of Honor Ceremony; Merit Badges to be Awarded

A Court of Honor for Boy Scouts of Tawas City, East Tawas and Oscoda will be held at the East Tawas Community center on the evening of June 27th (Wednesday) at 8:00 P.M. slow time.

There will be awards for all ranks in Scouting from Cub through to many Merit Badges for the older Scouts. All of these boys have worked hard to advance in rank as Cubs, Tenderfoot, Second Class, First Class and on into the more difficult work of acquiring Merit Badges for advanced work in Boy Scout life.

We expect all troop committee-men and representatives of the various sponsoring organizations such as churches, Chamber of Commerce bodies and clubs to urge all members to meet with the boys that evening and see them receive merit for work done in this fine organization. The boys expect you to come out for their meeting. We owe it to them especially as parents and civic minded folks.

Carter H. Miller, field executive of Alpena and others who are officially connected with Boy Scouting will be in attendance and direct much of the program. Also there will be a special movie of Boy Scout Camp life and it is hoped there will be worked out some musical features to help spice up the program.

It might be added that this community will have the satisfaction of very soon having one or more Eagle awards to boys you know and which is the highest rank in Scouting.

Describes German Military Prison

Pfc. John Coyle, M. P., writing of the Dachau Prison camp says, "This is some place I've seen it all. It is something that will always haunt me." Pfc. Coyle sends the following description of Dachau:

Dachau is no longer a name of terror for hunted men. 32,000 of them have been freed by the 42nd Rainbow Division. The crimes done behind the walls of this worst of Nazi concentration camps now live only to haunt the memories of the Rainbowmen who tore open its gates and first saw its misery and to accuse its SS keepers of one of the worst crimes in all history.

When Infantrymen of the 42nd Division fought their way into Dachau against fanatical SS troops who met deservedly violent attacks along the moats, behind the high fence and in the railyards littered with the bodies of fifty carloads of their starved victims, these hardened soldiers expected to see horrible sights.

But no human imagination fed with the most fantastic of the tales that have leaked out from the earliest and most notorious of all Nazi concentration camps, could have been prepared for what they did see there.

The keen descriptive powers of a score of ace correspondents who entered the camp while the battle of liberation was still in progress, and through whose eyes the whole world looked upon that scene, could not do justice to this story. Seasoned as they were by long acquaintanceship with stark reality, these trained observers gazed at freightcars full of piled cadavers no more than bones covered with skins and they could not believe what they saw with their own eyes.

Riflemen accustomed to witnessing death had no stomach for rooms stacked almost ceiling-high with tangled human bodies adorning the cremation furnaces looking like some maniac's woodpile.

And when an officer pressed through mobs of the forgotten men of all nations inside the electric barbed wire enclosure and entered a (Tun to No. 2, Back Page)

National Quarry Has Outstanding Record

Six mines and one quarry located in Michigan are cited as having outstanding safety records in 1944 by R. R. Sayers, director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines. The Michigan quarry cited by Dr. Sayers is the National Gypsum Quarry at National City.

Eighty four mines and quarries in the United States are cited for working nearly 6½ million man-hours last year without a disabling injury of any kind. This remarkable accident record in the mineral industries was achieved despite wartime handicaps such as greatly increased production losses of skilled workers to the armed forces and other industries, and inability to replace badly worn machinery.

RURAL HOSPITALS TO GET SURPLUS

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rural hospitals and health centers can look for a major share of the hundreds of millions of dollars of medical equipment to be released by the army and the navy. A policy has finally been worked out at the surplus property board to assure release of this material for public health use, first in areas that have no existing facilities, second in areas which have insufficient facilities. So great is the need of rural and small-town hospitals and clinics that there will be little equipment left for replacement.

This policy was achieved only after a long and bitter dispute between the surplus property board and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association. Fishbein, in whose journal advertise the largest makers of medical equipment, had urged that this vast volume of surplus material not be released at once.

Instead, he wanted it stored and released gradually in small quantities in order not to upset the market for manufacturers of medical goods. In addition, Fishbein insisted that huge quantities of certain supplies, such as bandages, could not be used because they differed somewhat from accepted standard sizes.

However, in a lengthy session at the office of U. S. Surgeon General Thomas Parran, Dr. Fishbein finally was won over and even agreed to serve on the overall board which will recommend on the disposal of medical supplies.

Three types of equipment will be distributed—public health supplies, surgical and therapeutic instruments, and pharmaceuticals. A board of public officials and physicians headed by Dr. Parran will recommend their allocation to Federal Security Chairman Paul McNutt, who will work through the surplus property board. Actual allocation of the supplies within the states will rest with state boards to be composed of various federal government and state medical officials.

Note—Federal officials are worried lest the state boards become a weak link in the setup. They fear that, in areas of greatest need, state groups will not be anxious to aid in the equipping of Negro clinics and hospitals. Therefore, an effort will be made to work out rigid requirements in Washington. No building program is yet arranged to go along with the disposal of medical supplies, though every effort will be made to convert army buildings into hospitals and clinics.

CHURCHILL'S NEEDLING

Backstage fact about the Joe Davies pilgrimage to London is that originally he was picked to go to Moscow for an intimate talk with Stalin, but his doctor forbade it.

Davies was slated for the Moscow trip because he is the only U. S. ambassador since the United States recognized Russia who has been welcome at the Kremlin. This was primarily due to Joe's book, "Mission to Moscow" and the film by the same name, which gave a sympathetic portrayal of Soviet progress. Therefore, it was planned to have him impress on Stalin that recent diplomatic snarls had alienated American public opinion.

When Davies was unable to go to Moscow, it was decided that Harry Hopkins should do the job instead; while Davies would go to London and urge Churchill to stop needling Russia.

This latter job is considered almost as important as the Hopkins trip to Moscow. For several White House advisers are convinced that Churchill, always critical of the Russians, delights in anything which keeps the United States and the Soviet in a state of mutual suspicion. The British diplomatic game for a hundred years has been to balance two powers off against each other. Therefore U. S.—U. S. S. R. rivalry is right down Churchill's alley.

That is why Joe Davies is empowered to pull no punches in telling Churchill that balance-of-power needling is not appreciated in Washington.

CAPITAL CHAFF

When French statesmen Bonnet and Bidault appeared at the White House, President Truman and staff were so confident the discussion would be friendly that Truman's statement was prepared before the conference. Mimeographed copies, with the ink already dry, were handed out by White House Press Aid Eben Ayres the minute Bonnet and Bidault left.

When New York Congressman Gus Bennett presented President Truman with a special pocket Bible recently, Truman pulled a magnifying glass from his pocket and told Bennett, "You see, I'm all prepared to read this gift, which I'm very happy to receive."

Democratic members of congress were amazed to see Senator Pappy O'Daniel of Texas turn up for the recent testimonial dinner to Ed Pauley and Bob Hannegan. The bitterly anti-Roosevelt and anti-administration O'Daniel led the applause during most speeches.

THE CHURCH BEGINS ITS WORK

LESSON TEXT—Acts 5:29-35, 38-40, 42.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

The church of Jesus Christ, glorious in spite of her failings, is the greatest institution known to this world. That is true because while it is in this world, the church is not of the world, but of God. He established the church as the fellowship of believers to do His work in the world. For more than 19 centuries the Christian church has served Him with varying degrees of consecration and usefulness.

The beginning of the work of the church is of special interest, for such a study will show whether we today are following in the right path. We find in our lesson that the early church was distinguished by:

I. Obedience to God (vv. 29-32).
The disciples filled with the Holy Spirit were bold in declaring the gospel and in proclaiming their risen Lord. Realizing that the apostles' message was winning the people, the leaders of the Jews admonished them not to speak in the name of Christ (Acts 4:18). When they continued, the priests threw them into prison, but an angel set them free (Acts 5:19).

When they were again apprehended and accused of disobeying the command of the high priest, Peter and the others responded by pointing out that they were under a higher command, that of God Himself. Him they would obey, come what may.
Who will deny that we need a renewal of that spirit in the church today? We need to lose our fear of men and their little authority, and regain a larger measure of obedience to God.

II. A Convicting Message (v. 33).
When God's Word is preached with complete obedience to Him, something is sure to happen. Men and women will be convicted of their sin. They will be cut to the heart. That conviction will show itself in one of two ways. Some will be repentant and will cry out with the jailer at Philippi, "What must I do to be saved?" (Acts 16:30). Turning to Christ, they will find deliverance from sin.

Others will harden themselves in their wicked ways and become even more bitter in their hatred of Christ and the church. In our lesson we find them taking counsel to kill the disciples. Knowing themselves to be wrong and seeing that God's work revealed their sin, but not being willing to give it up, they tried to destroy the witness against them.

We see that same spirit operative today. To be sure, it does not usually show itself in such crude action as physical killing, although the day when that may happen again may not be far away.

In our cultivated time, it is revealed in a scholarly attack upon God's Word, an undermining of the faith of our young people in schools or colleges, or a ridiculing of those who wish to live a separated, consecrated life.

III. No Compromise (vv. 34, 35, 38-40).
A wise man, Gamaliel, presented what we would now call a program of appeasement. He urged that they wait and see what would happen.

At first glance his idea seems to be most commendable, and of course it did save the lives of the disciples at the moment. But it was essentially a "do-nothing" policy of compromise. If he believed in what the disciples were doing, he should have come out boldly on their side.

Notice that the believers had no part in this scheme. They listened, but did not give assent. They took the beating and went right out and preached the gospel again. What a fine example for us to follow! Those who are alert to the real problems of the church today recognize that the willingness to compromise with the world, the flesh, and (so it seems at times) the devil himself for the sake of peace, is destroying the real ministry of the church.

IV. Absolute Fearlessness (vv. 40, 42).
The early church was a very small group of believers with no position of influence or power in the world. Humanly speaking, it would have been expedient for them to heed the admonition now twice given (compare Acts 4:18) and confine their testimony to a private witness.

But they had hearts which were aflame with the fire of God, a commission to take the good news of God's saving grace to all men, and the assurance of God's presence (see Matt. 28:19, 20, Acts 1:8), and they were absolutely fearless.

The world admires true courage not only on the battlefield, but in the pulpit.

The criticism which men in the armed services make of the church centers at this point, namely, that the church has been too timid about giving out the Word of God, about really believing and practicing it.

Reduce Size of Cobs By Increasing Grain

Proper Fertilization Produces Better Corn

How corn growers can avoid "shortchanging" themselves on grain yields by reducing the amount of cobs per bushel through soil improvement practices was described by H. J. Snider of the Illinois college of agriculture.

Professor Snider cited tests at the college's experimental field near Ewing, Ill., to show that the proportion of grain to cobs is increased when corn is grown on fertilized land. Since cobs have little or no feed value and are so low in plant nutrients that they have virtually no use in manure, the advantages of soil improvement are obvious.

At the Ewing field, U. S. Hybrid No. 13 was grown on land treated with limestone, phosphorus and potash and in which nitrogen-fixing legumes had been plowed under, Snider reported. The same hybrid was planted on untreated land and at harvest the results were compared. The corn grown on fertilized land contained 10.5 pounds of cobs per bushel of ear corn weighing 70 pounds. The hybrid grown on untreated land contained 14 pounds per bushel.

"This means that each 100 bushels of corn grown on unfertilized land contained 350 pounds more cobs than 100 bushels of the same hybrid grown on treated land," Snider said.

"On this basis, a farmer who does not treat, shortchanges himself by 5 bushels of grain in each 100 bushels of corn produced. Moreover, when he buys ear corn grown on this type of land, he is subject to the same shortchanging process. The extra poundage of cobs must be handled out of the field into and out of the crib and into the feeders."

Grow more SUGAR BEETS in 1945

MEET WARTIME NEED FOR SUGAR

The above is a direct appeal from the officials appointed by the Commander-in-Chief of our country calling on the farmers of America to grow the sugar that this nation so vitally needs.

To Convert Fuel Oil From Farm Crop Waste

While there has been talk and experimentation for several years about obtaining several by-products from corn stalks and other farm waste, the United States department of agriculture now comes out with a full-fledged program for extracting liquid motor fuel from corncobs, peanut shells, flax shives, oat hulls, cottonseed hulls and burs and sugarcane bagasse and other farm waste.

The department says that experimental laboratory investigations by their chemists indicate that from 90 to 95 gallons of liquid motor fuel can be obtained from a ton of corncobs or cottonseed hulls and that about half of this is in the form of ethyl alcohol.

Experimentations have advanced to the semi-works stage at the D. of A. northern regional research laboratory at Peoria, Ill., and results are so promising that the work is to be enlarged so that it now may be evaluated on a semi-commercial scale.

Campaign Saved Lives

Thousands of human lives have been saved as a result of the nation's campaign against cattle tuberculosis, according to figures released by the American Veterinary Medical association.

Since 1930, human deaths from non-pulmonary tuberculosis in this country have decreased 54 per cent. In 1921, condemnations of swine at packing plants because of tuberculosis averaged .17 per cent, it has now been reduced to .02 per cent.

Cork Can Be Grown on Waste Lands Of Southwest U. S., Survey Reveals

This Vital Material Is Now Imported From Spain and Portugal

CORK OAK, attractive evergreen or "live oak" that will serve about the same ornamental and shade purposes as other live native oaks, yields a product that, despite the many substitutes developed, still remains a highly critical material in wartime.

The cork oak is being grown in many different sections of the country. The map given below shows some of the sections where cork oak trees are now in production. The cork oak is adaptable to a considerable portion of this country. The limiting factors to its growth, are drouth, that is rainfall below 20 inches per year, poor drainage and severe winter temperatures. Cork oak has withstood a minimum temperature of five degrees below zero at several places along the Atlantic seaboard. It is believed to have survived even lower temperatures in the mountains of Spain.

If the future use of cork expands, even in peacetime, a shortage of this versatile material may develop. The development of molded cork insulation, the expanding use of cork for floor and wall coverings, and the increasing need for engine gaskets, as well as such well-known products as bottle stoppers, crown caps, handles for fishing rods and other implements, shoe insoles, linoleum, friction pads, etc., indicate that the total demand for cork products is likely to increase rather than decrease in the future.

One substitute for cork has been developed at the USDA Northern Regional Research laboratory at Peoria, Ill. It is made from the pith and fibers of farm wastes, together with animal or vegetable glues and sugars, apple syrup or glycerine.

By cutting pith into fine particles and incorporating these in a liquid composition that when set, hardens to an elastic body, a product has been produced that closely duplicates the physical structure of cork. Farm crops with pith particles suitable for this purpose are sugarcane, cornstalks, peanut hulls, and similar material.

During normal peacetimes about 160,000 tons of cork is imported annually.

Domestic Cork Prospects.

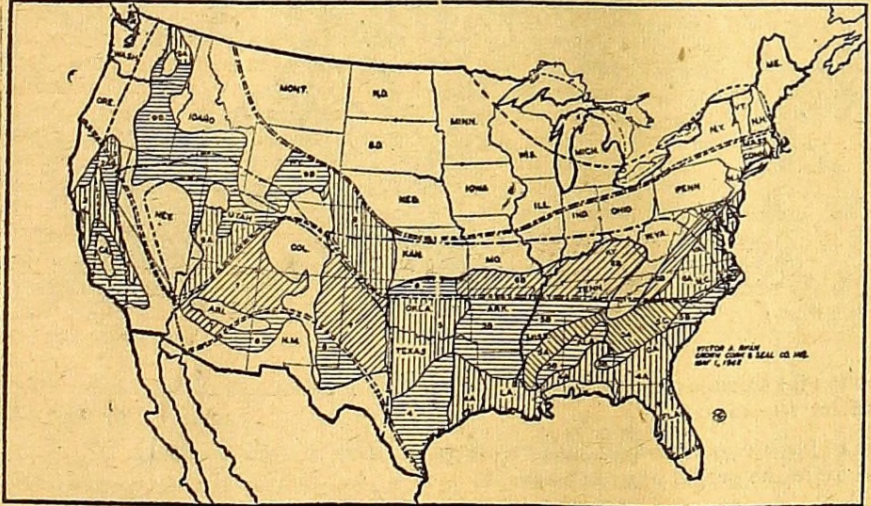

The total potential cork area, in the Southwest alone, covers more than half a million square miles. Out of this area, more than 100,000 square miles or more than 70,000,000 acres are available for cork oak plantings. This represents land that has no economic crop at present, but is suitable to become the center of a great cork industry.

The number of cork oak plantings that can be made each year is limited to the domestic acorn crop. Acorns must be kept in cold storage until planted in order to preserve their viability. So far temperature of 36 to 38 degrees have proven satisfactory.

The largest grove of trees in the United States is in Bidwell Park, Chico, Calif. Here more than 600 cork trees are thriving from a planting made in 1904.

A large nursery at Superior, Ariz., where 50,000 cork seedlings are grown annually, has been put into operation recently.

It will still take many years before domestic cork trees can supply even the cork needed in making engine gaskets. The crankcase and oil compartments of most engines are sealed with cork gaskets. With engines playing the part they are today in our combat as well as defense activities, cork gaskets become a vital wartime necessity. It may not be beyond reason to expect at present rate of plantings, that within 15 years, this need will be met in the United States.

California leads in cork oak acorn production. In 1944 there were harvested 16,000 pounds in this state. Acorns ripen during November, December and January, usually in three different stages. The first of the crop is poor, later it is better, and those collected after December 15 are generally best.

Thorough Study Made.

An exhaustive study of soil, climate, rainfall and temperature conditions in the United States has been made and this data compared with that of the cork-producing sections of Portugal. From this study, the map given herewith has been prepared. While this physico-geographical map serves as a guide in planting cork trees, seedlings have been distributed to persons outside of this theoretical cork area. It is entirely possible some sections indicated as less desirable for growing cork may produce satisfactory trees.

A large quantity of corkwood, harvested in California during the past few years, was sent to the research laboratory of the Crown Cork and Seal company for crown and evaluation. Careful examination and tests indicated that the domestic cork is equal in every way to the imported article of the same grade.

For more than 2,300 years the world's supply of cork has come from the shores of the western Mediterranean. Many of these groves are suffering as the result of neglect, disease and insects, a condition that is not present among the American stands.

In order to standardize the quality of cork produced, bark samples are removed from trees in selected areas for exhaustive laboratory testing. Samples of soil from under the trees have been collected and examined. These vary considerably and include clay loam, sandy loam and rich garden loam—showing that cork oaks grow well on a wide variety of soils.

The fact that cork oaks, in widely scattered places, have thrived for from 60 to 85 years and have grown into beautiful trees shows conclusively that the United States can produce this valuable tree. Many of the large cork oaks in the South do not bear acorns, and efforts are being made to cause these trees to fruit, because the acorns are needed for planting. These trees are being given special care and scions from prolific California cork oaks have been grafted to some of them.

Soil and Climate Needs.

The successful culture of cork oak is no more difficult and not greatly different than the culture of the more common ornamental trees. Cork oak will survive in localities where the winter minimum temperature occasionally drops to zero, or even a few degrees below zero if the trunks of the trees are protected for four or five years until the bark becomes corky. High temperatures will not harm the tree as it is growing vigorously in parts of California where maximum temperatures of 115 degrees Fahrenheit are not uncommon.

Cork oak is said to grow best and produce the highest quality cork in its native habitat on well-drained, sandy-loam soils that are not limey in nature and often rather low in fertility. In the United States, however, trees are growing in many different soil types, including clay soils, peat soils and limey soils. The water table seems more important than the soil texture, for plantations made where the water table is less than six or eight feet below the surface have failed. A surface soil that becomes hard and baked is not a good soil for cork oak as attested by failure of trees planted in such soils.

These cork oak acorns were grown near Winnsboro, S. C. Many big trees in the South do not bear acorns for some reason. This is unfortunate, considering the acute need.

Cork oak naturally grows in sunny locations and does not succeed well in shady situations. It will start growth when partially shaded and even seems to prefer partial shade when young, but to make normal development it must, after a few years, have nearly full-sun conditions. This need for much light may eliminate "fog belt" areas of the West coast.

If drainage is good cork oak grows well in parts that are sprinkled each day or along streams where the soil is continually moist. On the other hand, it also grows well, but more slowly, where the annual precipitation is as low as 20 inches per year.

The cheapest and perhaps more satisfactory method of establishing cork oak is to plant the acorns directly in well-prepared seed spots as soon as they are received. The seed spots are prepared by removing all vegetation from a circle a yard in diameter, then pulverizing the soil to a depth of six inches. The seeds should be planted in moist soil and covered to a depth of about one inch. This may be done at any time during the fall, winter or spring.

JITTERBUG JOOLERY

You've been cluttering yourself up with so much silver jewelry lately that we've kind-a neglected the make-it-yourself jitterbug stuff. But, after looking at lapels and snooping at sweaters we've found some giddy gadgets that you'll enjoy making and wearing.

Locked Lips—Cut some red felt in the shape of lips. Sew together with padding in between. Sew on the double lock from an old diary and wear these locked lips on your sweater to remind you not to spread rumors.

Good Brush Work—Three little brushes from empty nail polish bottles make a lapel gadget if you clean them off and then tie them together with a little piece of ribbon. When you give one of them to a Tick (that's a drip that gets under your skin) he will know he's getting the brush-off.

Prune Puss—Make a Topsy lapel pin out of an uncooked prune, using white thumb tacks for features and colored yarn for little pigtails. Better coat it over with nail polish.

Mock Turtle—Half a walnut shell and five raisins make a turtle pin, believe it or not. Glue on the raisins as feet and head. Decorate the shell with nail polish dots. Glue a piece of felt on the back and you'll have something to attach a pin to.

On the Fringe—Did you know that ball fringe makes swonderful sweater necklaces? Buy it in the upholstery department of your favorite store, attach three graduated strands with a snapper in back for fastening. Attach individual balls to your earrings and you'll make the headlines in your school paper.

Don't Worry About Us!
We'll do it!

THEY tell us that the fat salvage problem has got to be licked in the small cities, the towns and on the farms.

Our country has to have one hundred million more pounds of used fats this year over last. And we're the people who must save it.

We've rolled up our sleeves! We'll save every drop and bit it is possible to scrape—and keep on doing it till the last Jap is licked.

HOW TO DO IT: Save all used fats in a tin can. Keep it handy to the stove. Scrape your broilers and roasting pans, skim soups and gravies, for every drop counts. Keep solid pieces of fat, such as meat trimmings and table scraps, in a bowl. Melt down when your oven's going, add the liquid fat to the salvage can. Take the can to your butcher as soon as it's full. He will give you four cents and two red points for every pound. Your County Agent or Home Demonstration Agent can give you full particulars.

100,000,000 More Pounds of Used Fats Are Needed This Year!

Freed: Buys Bonds

PHILIPPINE SCOUT—When Capt. John B. Smith, Philippine scout, received his back pay and allowances after three years' internment in a Japanese prison camp, he bought War Bonds. The captain was wounded on Bataan and lost 55 pounds in weight during his imprisonment. At the present time he is making a War Bond tour and buys War Bonds at each meeting. "The civilian," he declared, "is taking a poke at Hirohito each time he buys a War Bond." Smith hails from Houston, Texas.

Indians Fought Corn Planting "White men shall not plant corn north of the Ohio," was the rallying cry of the Indians as they saw pioneers pushing their way into the choice hunting grounds of what is now Ohio. Much blood was spilt over this rallying cry.

A Bell for Adano

W.N.U. FEATURES

CHAPTER V

At this angry moment, Gargano, Chief of the Carabinieri, came up to the line. This man was called by the people The Man With Two Hands, because of his continuous and dramatic gesturing. He was, he seemed to think, an actor, and he could not say two words without gesturing with both hands. He possessed and exercised all the essentially Italian gestures: the two forefingers laid side by side, the circle of thumb and forefinger, the hands up in stop position, the salute to the forehead with palm forward, the fingertips of the two hands placed tip to tip, the fingers linked, the hands flat and downward as if patting sand, the hands up heel to heel and pulled toward the chest, the attitude of prayer, the pointing forefinger of accusation, the V as if for victory or smoking cigarettes, the forefinger on the chin, the rolling of the hands. All he used them all.

CHAPTER V

He did not make any arrests. He merely went up to Carmelina, wife of the lazy Fatta, and squeezed between her and the door of Zapulla's shop, and stood there. The people could see that he was merely taking his place at the head of the line to wait for bread.

Carmelina, who was annoyed by having had wood-coke thrown at her, said truculently: "Mister Gargano, you are Chief of the Carabinieri under the old regime, and that entitled you to stand at the head of the line. I am not sure that you are still Chief of the Carabinieri."

Gargano said: "I am the Chief," and he made a kind of Fascist salute with both hands.

Carmelina said: "I doubt it. Where is the proof?"

Gargano said: "See my uniform," and he ran his two forefingers from his shoulders to his knees.

Carmelina said: "That is no proof. The Americans do not care how we dress. I could dress as a rabbit and the Americans would not arrest me."

Gargano said: "Woman, stop your shouting, or I will arrest you," and he gripped his own left wrist with his own right hand, signifying arrest.

Carmelina said: "Where is your authority?"

Margherita the formidable wife of Craxi said: "I believe that this man is still Chief, since the Mister Major is keeping many Fascist scoundrels in office until they prove themselves bad. But I do not believe that under American law he has the right to go to the head of the line. That is where I think you are right, Carmelina."

Gargano stepped out of the line. "Who questions my right?" he roared, and he pounded one clenched fist on the other clenched fist.

Carmelina, wife of the lazy Fatta, standing right beside him, startled him by whispering in his ear: "I question it, Two-Hands."

Up to this time Zapulla the baker, standing in the front of his shop, had been torn between the two authorities, the old and the new. But he was so annoyed with Carmelina for having prodded him that he now said: "Arrest her, Mister Chief, if you have any courage."

Up to this time Gargano the Chief, somewhat unsure of his ground, had been trying to think of a way of retiring gracefully. But now his manhood, as well as his authority, was challenged. He moved toward Carmelina and said: "Woman, you are under arrest."

Carmelina shouted: "Keep your two active hands off me, Gargano." Zapulla said: "Will you let this woman shriek down your courage?" Gargano clapped his hands on Carmelina. She screamed. All up and down the line women shouted: "Out with the Fascist Chief of Carabinieri. Out with Two-Hands. Out with men who push themselves to the head of a line ahead of women who have been waiting three hours."

Gargano dragged Carmelina off screaming and kicking, and the anti-Gargano, anti-Fascist screams in the line grew louder and louder. Even Mercurio Salvatore, although as a criminal he was more or less an official and should have remained neutral or even taken the side of Gargano, raised his huge voice in a careful shout: "Down with injustice!"

When Gargano pulled Carmelina into Major Joppolo's office, she was still screaming. But the Major jumped to his feet and said sharply: "Silence, shrew," and she fell quiet at once.

"What is this all about?" the Major asked.

Gargano said: "This woman questioned my authority," and he pointed at her with both forefingers.

Carmelina said: "There is more to it than that."

Major Joppolo said: "Your authority to do what, Gargano?"

Carmelina shouted: "To push his way to the head of the line in front of Zapulla's bread shop."

Gargano said: "It is a privilege the officials of the town have always enjoyed."

Major Joppolo said: "Is that so?"

Gargano said: "I charge this woman with disturbing the peace and questioning authority." Gargano was shrewd in saying this, for he saw that things were going against him, and now he had put the matter on an official rather than a personal basis. The Major would have to decide the case officially.

The Major decided with a speed which dazzled Gargano. He decided that the woman was right but that he could not say so, because if he did the Chief would never regain his authority, and the Major wanted to keep him in office. Therefore he said: "I sentence this woman to one day in jail, suspended sentence. Let her go, Gargano, and gather all the officials of Adano for me at once."

When Carmelina got outside, she ran straight back to the bread shop. The bread was not ready yet, and the people gave her back her place at the head of the line and shouted to her: "What happened, Carmelina? What did they do to you?"

Carmelina told what had happened and she said: "Did you ever hear of such a light sentence in Adano? I believe in my heart that the Mister Major thought I was right. And what was the meaning of assembling the officials? I believe that he was for me."

In the Major's office, the officials gradually assembled. Some were held-over Fascists, some were new appointments to take the place of Fascists who had fled to the hills. In whispers, and with ample gestures, Gargano described to them the humiliation he had suffered, until Major Joppolo said: "Silence, please."

The officials drew up in a circle around the Major's desk. The Major stood up.

"I want you to be my friends," he said. "As my friends, I will consider it my duty to tell you everything I think, for we do not want Adano to be a town of mysteries and a place of suspicion."

"Adano has been a Fascist town. That is natural, because the country was Fascist, therefore the town was also. But now that the Americans have come, we are going to run the town as a democracy."

"Perhaps you do not know what a democracy is. I will tell you."

"Democracy is this: democracy is that the men of the government are no longer the masters of the people. They are the servants of the people. What makes a man master of another man? It is that he pays him for his work. Who pays the men in the government? The people do, for they pay the taxes out of which you are paid."

"Therefore you are now the servants of the people of Adano. I too am their servant. When I go to buy bread, I shall take my place at the end of the line, and I will wait my turn. You too must behave now as servants, not as masters. You must behave as the servant of the man without shoes just as much as of the baron. If I find that any of you are not giving the type of service that I desire, I shall have to remove you from office."

"Remember: you are servants now. You are servants of the people of Adano. And watch: this thing will make you happier than you have ever been in your lives."

On the ninth morning, General Marvin was driving along the road toward Vicinamare and came to the town of Adano. From time to time along the road his driver had to slow down behind the little Italian two-wheeled carts of the country-side until traffic from the opposite direction had gone by. Then he passed the carts.

As they passed each cart, General Marvin waved his riding crop in such a way as to indicate that the cart should move over. Since there was nothing to move over into except the ditch, which at intervals along the road expanded into tank traps, the carts never did move over. The General grew angrier and angrier.

Now it happened that just as he came to the Fiume Rosso, or Red River, just before Adano, the General's armored car was obliged to slow down for a cart which meandered along right in the center of the road.

The General stood up in his car and shouted in his deep bass voice (you've read about that voice in the supplements; it's famous; one writer said it was like "a foghorn gone articulate"): "Get off the road!"

Unfortunately the driver of the cart was one Errante Gaetano, who earlier that morning had sold three dozen eggs to American soldiers at fourteen times the proper price, had immediately sunk most of his profits in the wine of his friend Mattaliano, and was now sleeping a deep and happy sleep on the seat of his cart. At this particular moment, he was dreaming about eating the nicer parts of a fish nine feet long. Naturally he did not pay much attention to the voice of General Marvin, no matter how famous the voice, because he could not hear it.

The driver, a nice boy from Massachusetts, put the heel of his hand on the horn button against his own wish. He was in no hurry, and knew that no matter how fast they went, he would only have to wait when they got wherever they were going.

The mind of Errante did not react to the horn, even though the horn was something urgent called a klaxon. The cart kept right down the middle of the road, inasmuch as Errante's mule was a cautious creature, just as wary of ditches on the right as of ditches on the left. This was a quality in his mule of which Errante Gaetano often boasted to his friends. "Give me none of your lop-sided mules," he would say, "give me a mule with a sense of the middle."

This sense was going to be the undoing of his mule just now, because General Marvin's face was beginning to grow dark, and some veins which have never been described in the supplements began to wriggle and pound on his forehead.

"I've had enough of these carts," the General shouted. He was standing up in the car, waving his riding crop around. "Do they think they're going to stop the invasion with carts?"

Errante slept beautifully. He was coming to the gray part of the fish just under the ribs. It melted in the mouth of his dream. There was, however, a sound of thunder in the distance which made him think perhaps he had better cover the fish and finish eating the nice parts after the rain.

General Marvin roared: "Do these Italians think they're going to stop a bunch of tanks with a bunch of wooden carts?"

Colonel Middleton, the General's Chief of Staff, and Lieutenant Byrd, his aide, could see the violence coming. Lieutenant Byrd looked back along the road, but he couldn't see any bunch of tanks. The only thing he could see that was being held up besides the General's armored car was one seep, or amphibious jeep, which did not seem to be in a hurry.

Here it came. General Marvin shouted: "Throw that cart off the road."

Errante stirred in his sleep. The thunder of his dream was the most beautiful and most continuous thunder he had ever heard.

The six men surrounded the cart. Colonel Middleton reached up to wake Errante, but the General's roars grew louder. "What are you doing?" he bellowed. "I told you to throw the thing off the road."

"We were just going to wake this fellow up and get him off first," Colonel Middleton shouted back, but the shout was weak because he knew what the answer would be.

"Serve him right. Throw him too. Just turn the whole thing over."

There was no protest from any of the six men. The only thing which was said was muttered by Lieutenant Byrd: "The old man hasn't been getting enough sleep lately."

Colonel Middleton went to the head of the mule and guided it to the side of the road. He directed the other five men to take positions on the left side of the cart and to lift together when he gave the signal.

General Marvin roared: "Come on, get it over with. What a bunch of softies. Get it over with."

Colonel Middleton gave the signal. The five men lifted.

In his dream, Errante rose up above the nine-foot fish and soared off into space. The sensation was extremely pleasant.

Buttons Give Dramatic Accent To Dresses, Bags, Belts, Gloves

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BUTTON drama takes the spotlight in the summer showings of America's leading designers.

Buttons of every size and description are giving dramatic accent to the smartest hats, bags, belts and accessories in addition to providing glamour trappings for every type of dress from sports to formal evening gowns. More highly important news about buttons is that they have become the latest inspiration to costume jewelry designers.

This vogue for button decor on simple wartime fashions offers a particularly happy inspiration to home dressmakers with a thrifty eye on makeovers. With a wonderful array of plastic buttons in jeweled, floral and lacy effects available at the notion counters of local sewing centers, along with a variety of decorative ceramic button styles and lovely simulated metal buttons with jeweled centers, it's easy for any amateur to glamorize simple clothes and accessories with button magic.

You can get buttons from thumb to oversized and bulky types and you can get expert advice at sewing centers as to size, style and color of buttons with relation to the garment they will adorn, or the accessory they are to dramatize. For instance, a simple black bareback dress with a modish white cape as shown in the illustration (right) can be given unusual distinction by adding a scalloped border of black fabric to the cape fronts accenting each scallop with a huge flower-shaped aqua plastic button. The costume touch is achieved by using buckles for the dress belt that match the cape buttons.

The two-piece suit-dress of violet featherweight flannel to the left shows what an amateur teen-ager can do in glamorizing her simple clothes with button decor by taking her cue from high-fashion. For instance new chic is given to her classic felt beanie cap by scalloping the edges and sewing plastic buttons on in pleasing array. The accessorizing trick is repeated in her matching drum-shaped handbag with buttons ranged around the top and bottom cuffs. Billiard green braid trimming outlines the collarless bellhop jacket with weskit-like fronts. The heart-shaped pocket with button-made ornament perched high on either side of the front opening and the bracelet length sleeves are chic details.

Styled for Summer

Meet one of fashion's prettiest pin-up summer girls. Here she is perfectly styled in a summery all-white ensemble save for a dash of color in the contrast piping that finishes off the short sleeves and breast pockets. The idea of color accent on white is one designer's interpreting in many ways. Contrast piping is one way of doing it as here shown; also colorful embroidery on white is very much in evidence. The wide-brim hat and the modish fishnet-trimmed bag also make all-white their theme.

Lovey White Frocks Of Organdy, Pique

Those pretty-pretty black sheers and those gay and lovely print frocks that every woman loves have a rival this summer. It's the simple white frock made of dainty sheers, pique or eyeleted sheers. These "simple whites" bring with them all the romance and feminine charm of the yester years. There's nothing prettier for a young girl than a youthfully styled white-upon-white shadow print organdy with a subtle touch of exquisite lace here and there. This is exactly what they are showing this year for summer dress-up wear. This seasons eyeleted white fabrics are too lovely for words and they are made up in most intriguing ways, minus fuss or furbelows, for the beautiful material speaks for itself. Eyeleted pique vies with the eyeleted sheers. Handpainting on white organdy or crepe is a feature being much exploited.

Flower Wreaths and Jabots

The many new ways of wearing flowers introduced this season bespeak infinite glamour for the forthcoming "summer girl." This year it is the flower wreath she will wear on her pretty head, matched with flowers at her throat arranged in the new jabot silhouette which is perfectly charming.

Pan-American Colors

Vivid Pan-American colors enliven smart sportswear fashions. A mid-riff play dress of black window pane checks on blue cotton is trimmed with a magenta cord at neckline and sleeves. The magenta is repeated on an embroidered hemline about the skirt.

Do not allow your vacuum cleaner bag to become filled with dirt before you empty it. It should be emptied frequently so as not to interfere with the flow of air.

If brown sugar becomes lumpy, place a damp cloth in the jar with the sugar and cover it tightly.

Don't be annoyed by a food chopper that won't stay firmly anchored to the table. Put a piece of sandpaper, gritty side up, on the table before screwing the chopper in place above it.

Boil a cracked dish for about three-quarters of an hour in enough sweet milk to cover it. The crack in the dish will become almost invisible.

Place a small hand brush, bristle side up, in the soap dish. Keep the soap on top of the brush and when you need to use the brush it will already be full of soap.

Two spools nailed to the wall about two inches apart makes a good place to hang the broom (upside down).

An old turkish towel is good for removing dust from upholstered furniture. Wet the towel, wring it dry, and spread over piece to be cleaned. Beat with a broomstick. Escaping dust clings to the towel.

If your furnace has a tendency to rust in a damp cellar choose a dozen or more cool days during the summer to burn papers in the fire box. This will help prevent replacing pipes and other metal appliances every few years. A better precaution, of course, is to remove the cause of the dampness, but this is often costly since it means extensive resealing of cellar walls.

Stretch your meat balls by adding oatmeal to the hamburger.

When boiling potatoes for mashing, cut them as for french fries. Much time and fuel will be saved.

Flat stones pressed beneath a porch that rests directly upon the earth will retard wood decay.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Rubber contracts and ripples into an unstretched state in much the same way as an earthworm moves across the surface of the ground.

From April 1, 1942, to August 31, 1944, the total amount of natural rubber imported into the United States was 214,148 long tons. India and Africa supplied 35.3%; 31.9% came from Latin America, and 15.3% from Liberia. The remaining 17.5% came from shipments in transit when sources were lost to Japan.

Busses now carry more than half the total number of persons transported by intercity public carriers in the United States.

Red Kann relays the one about radio announcer Ken Roberts, who told of a commentator that rounded out a broadcast by declaring: "Adolf Hitler — that swine—that pig!" Roberts had to follow saying: "The commentator's views were his own and do not represent the viewpoint of his sponsor, the Universal Meat Packing Co."

Some of the boys were discussing how Goering should be punished. They all agreed the Allies should be particularly severe with him because of his failure to keep any of his numerous promises. One of the fellows summed up: "If for nothing else, Goering should be punished because he broke every promise he ever made." A little refugee, who was listening, interrupted. "I don't know what you men are talking about," he said. "Goering kept all of his promises to the Jews!"

He's a hotel executive, and they've been married for six years. Last week she celebrated her 27th birthday, and as was the custom in the past he sent roses — one rose for each year. The clerk who filled the order, however, thought that the flowers in stock were rather small and so for the same price tossed in 6 more—making a total of 33. . . . When he got home that night and expected some remark about the flowers, he was embraced—by the vase and all.

Mr. Georges Jomier forwards the following: "We just came back from two weeks in Germany and you have no idea how happy we were to leave that country. Berlin has been a great disappointment — a lot of activity but no warmth or color or spirit."

"We travelled in a car from Berlin to Frankfurt, and we have seen with our own eyes that one should not believe in the complaints of distress by the Germans. The factory chimneys are smoking and the people are working everywhere. The crops are very good — everyone seems to be very well-fed and well-dressed."

"And what is difficult to understand is that the Germans do not believe that the Allies have won the war."

"Of course, their money has no value or very little value, but the bankers are blaming the Allies for that state of affairs and are pretending that it is the fault of the Allies. Therefore, they are trying by every means possible to stop France from accomplishing her program of reparation."

"Thus, Germany remains a menace, and France should fear a new war." — From Le Courier Du Pacific, July 4, 1921.

Low Parker understands some correspondents were interviewing the unit that captured Hermann Goering.

"How'd you find him?" they asked.

"Just pushed back his medals," was the answer, "and there he was."

Recently on a newly won island the all-clear signal blew after a Jap raid—but none of the boys left their fox-holes. . . . The siren blew again, and nothing happened. . . . Finally, in a last desperate move to get the men out of their fox-holes, the officers played a phonograph record over the PA system. . . . A few moments later the soldiers streamed from their shelters. . . . The selection was the Frank Sinatra recording of "Come out, come out, wherever you are."

T. E. Brown, now stationed at Groton, is an unassuming lad. . . . At the battle of Midway he left a flying formation that had destroyed a Jap battleship. . . . Then he "aloned it" for another target and slipped a big egg right into the funnel of a Jap destroyer — sending it to the hari-kari trail. . . . Lt. Brown rejoined his group on the way home—and after two days (and threatened discipline by his CO) he admitted that he knocked off the Jap destroyer. . . . He was afraid, he said, of being yelled at "for breaking the formation!"

Nightfliers, unable to sleep, who spend the wee hours visiting the Central Park zoo. "You probably meet a better class of animals!" . . . Penny-ante booking agents transacting "business" on the sidewalk. This is one of the most tragic aspects of the show business, which is dedicated to making others happy. . . . The penny arcades that have coined fatter profits and lasted longer than most expensive night clubs.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor.

room where lay the dying survivors of the horror train, he wept unashamedly as limp ghosts under filthy blankets lying in human excreta, tried to salute him with broom-stick arms, falling back in deathly stupor from which most would never rouse.

Ten days before the arrival of the Rainbow Division fifty carloads of prisoners arrived at Dachau from the Buchenwald concentration camp in a starving condition after 27 days without food. When Buchenwald was threatened by advancing American troops the Nazis hurriedly crowded about 4,000 of their prisoners into open flatcars unfit even for cattle. 27 days later—days of exposure to freezing weather without anything to eat, a trainload of human suffering arrived at Dachau only to be left to die in the railway leading into this extermination camp. In those stinking cars I saw the bodies of these prisoners too weak even to get out. A few tried, and they made a bloody heap in the door of one of the cars. They had been machine-gunned by the SS. A little girl was in that car.

In another car, sitting on the bodies of his comrades, his face contorted with pain frozen by death, was the body of one who completed the amputation of his gangrenous leg with his own hands and covered the stump with paper. Underneath was one with a crushed skull. 'He's better off now,' was the comment of one newsman.

Close by was one who had been beaten until his entrails protruded from his back.

But most of them had simply died in the attitudes of absolute exhaustion that only starving men can assume.

Crown of Thorns
The crown of thorns, the wreath believed to be the one placed on the head of Jesus before his crucifixion, has been smooth since 1239, when the French king, Louis IX, brought it to Paris, cut off the thorns and distributed them to the churches throughout Europe.

Explaining Tides
Arabs in the Middle Ages explained tides by saying that the moon heated the ocean, causing the water to swell and rise.

Tommy and Sis, They Can't Miss

Through his profits as a junior street salesman of a Kansas newspaper, nine-year-old Tommy Jovialis is the proud possessor of a $100 and a $50 War Bond. But he doesn't own them alone. He asked the man at the post office to make them out in his name with his two-year-old sister, Frances, as co-owner. He presented them to her on their joint birthday last month.

Tommy has been "in business" since last July. Every afternoon after school, he plies his wares—up and down Kansas Avenue in Topeka. "It was his own idea to save his money," according to his father. "As soon as he started, he began bringing his money home to his mother, and asked her to save it for him. He wanted to put it into War Bonds. He wanted to do something for his America."

Asked what he intended to use the bonds for, Tommy replied, "Some day I want to go to college, and I want Frances to go, too."
