

TAWAS CITY

TAWAS WINS TWO GAMES LAST SUNDAY

Locals to Play Weavers Tavern This Sunday

Sunday afternoon the Tawas City Independents swept a double header away from Pinconning, 9 to 2 and 14 to 3. This was the first game that Tawas team has been able to play on their home diamond with so much rain this year. Tawas City under the fine pitching of "Pete Peterson" jumped Pete Stepanick the Pinconning pitcher for 9 hits in first game. While Peterson allowed only 5 hits one a home run. He only struck out five men in the first game but showed up well in the pinches. The Tawas team made many good fielding plays which helped to bring the victory. Harold Bublitz, Tawas City's catcher, not only turned two fine games behind the plate but also led both teams in hitting with two doubles and three singles.

A few of the loyal Tawas fans were out to see their team win but many were not there, why not make it a date the next home game and see the team play.

William H. Struthers, for several decades top-notch lumbering operations foreman in the AuSable river district, and one of the best known of the old-time lumber jacks, died Sunday at Omer Hospital. Death followed several days after he had been injured when his car collided with a Detroit & Mackinac freight train at the Whittemore street crossing in this city. TWO FINE SIRES PURCHASED FOR COUNTY HERDS

G. A. Prescott and County Farm Dairy Herds Improved

Fred J. Adams, County Farm Supervisor of the Dept. of Social Welfare announced recently that he and Farm Manager, Charles Simons have completed the purchase of a new purebred Holstein sire to head the purebred Holstein herd at the County Farm. The new sire is a light colored, big growthy calf one year of age. He was purchased from the State of Michigan, having been raised by the Iowa State Hospital.

The calf is a son of "Ionia Master piece Perfection" who was sired by the big noted Carnation Farms bull of Seattle, Washington. The mother of the new bull, "Ionia Marathon Inka Duchess" was bred and raised by the State of Michigan. As a three year old she produced 14,885 pounds of milk and 553.1 pounds of butter fat. As a 5 year old she produced 15,746 pounds of 4.0 per cent milk for a total of 631.9 pounds of butter fat.

The county now owns a herd of 20 purebred Holstein and 15 grades. This new Ionia calf will follow the big beautiful typed "Van Hoesen KBOP 343" bull that was purchased four years ago from the Sarah Van Hoesen Jones herd at Rochester, Michigan. The Van Hoesen bull is now being offered for sale.

Another Holstein sire recently to enter Iosco County was purchased by G. A. Prescott, Jr. and Sons of Tawas City. The bull was bred by Jay F. Bowlby on his "Shiawana Farm at Ovid, Michigan but was purchased from the rapidly growing "Del Gres" Farm owned by Lloyd Johnson at Au Gres.

The addition of these fashionably bred Holstein sires should do much to improve the Holstein cattle of Iosco county.

Braddock-Ezo

The New Milford Baptist Church at Northville, Connecticut, was the scene of a pretty wedding Friday afternoon. The attractive old church was decorated with honeysuckle and many roses. The double ring ceremony was used by the pastor of this church, Rev. Brainard Brown.

Miss Patricia Ann Braddock of Tawas City, a niece of Rev. Brown, was married to Sgt. Steve Ezo of Cleveland, Ohio. Miss Braddock and her bridesmaid, Miss Janis Knickerbocker of East Tawas, drove out East in the former's car. Miss Braddock, a graduate of Tawas City High School and Kalamazoo College, has taught in Michigan schools for five years. Dressed in a light blue gaberdine suit, she wore a white hat and lovely corsage of gardenias. She was attended by Miss Knickerbocker, who wore a brown gabardine suit with white hat and a gardenia and sweetheart rosette corsage.

Sgt. Ezo of the Army Air Corps, is stationed at present at Bradley Field, Windsor Locks. He is a graduate of Vintondale (Pa.) High School, earned his license as a motion picture projectionist in 1934, and has been doing specialized work along that line in a number of Army Airfields during the past three years. His best man was Robert W. Tiemann, J. P., of Northville.

Before Sgt. and Mrs. Ezo left for New York City for a two day furlough honeymoon, the wedding party was entertained by her uncle at dinner at Buckingham Place. For the present the happy couple will reside at Hartford.—New Milford Times.

Library Will Be Moved to City Hall

The Tawas City Library will be moved from the Myles Building to the city hall when the extensive alterations at the hall are completed. The carpenter and masonry work is being done by Frank A. Meyer & Son of Wilber.

The assembly room of the city hall has been divided with a partition, making two rooms, the front room for the library and the other for the Water Department office. Entrances to the several rooms will be gained through a long hall extending back from the lobby. This is being constructed at one side of the fire department hall.

For the fine ideals she taught me, Though on these I may fall down, I still thank God on every day, For the finest mother found.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

DREW PEARSON

NEW WHITE HOUSE TEMPO
Harry Truman has now been President of the United States for a little over two months—two of the most historic months in the nation's history. These two months are sufficient to get a fairly accurate gauge of how the new President will function for the rest of his term.

On the surface there is a new atmosphere in the White House when you walk into it these days. If, for instance, you drop in on White House Secretary Charlie Ross, he is cordial, courteous, but brief. There is no invitation or inclination to sit down and gossip. This business-like atmosphere prevails throughout the entire White House staff.

If you go on in to see Ross's boss, you get in on time. There are few waits. And the little man on the other side of the big, broad, shiny desk listens intently. He wants to hear what his visitors have to say. These are two definite innovations.

Truman gives the impression of having a firm grasp on all domestic problems. He knows them thoroughly—undoubtedly better than Franklin Roosevelt during his latter years, when he was devoting all his time to the war.

One of Truman's frequent replies to callers when they urge sanction on some special idea is:

"I realize that. But it takes time to do all these things, and seldom have so many important things confronted us all at one time. I'll get around to that just as soon as I can."

One thing that worries him most is our foreign affairs. The new President frankly realizes it is his main weakness. He does not have Roosevelt's international background, therefore has to rely almost wholly on his diplomats.

Truman's method of running the government is that of picking good men and giving them free rein. This is a good system, and we could have had more of it in the past. But it breaks down when the President is not sure he can rely on the men picked to perform the most important job we now face—building up the peace after the war. Truman told Stettinius, for instance, that he was to be his own boss at San Francisco. But he found that Stettinius called him on the phone once or twice a day to get his approval of almost every decision.

Unlike Roosevelt, Truman does not hesitate to fire a man who doesn't produce. He let Leonard Reinsch go back to his radio job in Atlanta the day after he handled himself badly in a press conference. He transferred Edward D. McKim, his administrative assistant, after it became known that the genial and likeable McKim seemed too engrossed in Mrs. "Hope Diamond" McLean's dinner parties and the social whirl of Washington.

MACARTHUR ONCE FIRED EISENHOWER

Sometimes it is from quirks of fate or personal jealousies that heroes are born.

Old army friends of General Eisenhower couldn't help but remember this as they gathered to pay him tribute.

For, it had not been for a personal row with General MacArthur in the Philippines, Eisenhower probably would be in a Jap prison camp today instead of receiving the plaudits of millions.

When MacArthur retired as chief of staff and began the reorganization of the new Philippine army, he took with him to Manila one of the bright, up-and-coming men of the army, Col. Dwight Eisenhower. But, after some time in the Philippines, things didn't go well, and MacArthur fired him. Eisenhower went back to the U.S.A. to climb to fame and the top command of the American army.

If he had remained with MacArthur, he probably would now be with Gen. "Skinny" Wainwright and the 16 other American generals taken prisoner by the Japs.

BASEBALL AND UNITED NATIONS

In San Francisco, a delegation of Philadelphians called on Australia's External Affairs Minister Herbert Evatt to ask that the city of brotherly love founded by William Penn become the seat of the United Nations in the future.

Dr. Evatt listened carefully. Then he replied:

"I can't vote for Philadelphia until the Phillies get out of the cellar. I'm afraid it would give the United Nations a defeatist attitude if both Philadelphia baseball teams were at the bottom of their leagues."

CAPITAL CHAFF

New Hampshire's one-time isolationist Senator Tobey has got religion. He is so anxious to avoid another war that he has become one of the most ardent advocates of international co-operation. Tobey even blasted (indirectly) his old friend and colleague, ex-Senator Danaher of Connecticut, who, while an executive of the Republican national committee, used his position as ex-senator to go on the senate floor and lobby against the reciprocal trade agreements act.

Flying Garage of the Future

When that "postwar automobile" is ready for the public, a flying garage will be ready to carry it from New York to San Francisco, or to Europe. It will be a quick, though somewhat expensive, means of taking your car on a long-distance vacation trip. Photo shows a sedan being loaded into a Fairchild Packet for test purposes. Two can be carried. It also provides room for entire family.

New Shoes Needed

It was a big moment in the lives of these tiny girls of St. Catherine, N. Y., as they stand in line, in their caps and gowns, to receive diplomas at a kindergarten graduating ceremony. Thousands of others are now receiving their diplomas from kindergarten, grammar and high schools or from colleges in every community of the nation.

White Eyelet, Sheers, Organdy, For Exquisite Summer Frocks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

TO BREAK the news abruptly, his name is Paul Derringer, born in Springfield, Ky., some 37 years ago. Big Paul, 6 feet 3 1/2 inches in height, displacement 215 pounds, has always been one of my favorite pitchers.

In 1931, after knocking around with Danville and Rochester, Big Paul won 18 games for the Cardinals against 8 losses—and then took a heavy dip in 1932.

The Kentucky Rifleman was a complete dud in 1933 when he won 7 games and lost 27 games for St. Louis and Cincinnati. That year Paul couldn't dent the surface of a custard pie. He wasn't much better a year later, in 1934. After that he stumbled along for a while. But he had big years in 1933, 1939 and 1940. And then again he began skidding a trifle, largely through early season injuries.

Just a year ago Paul won 12 and lost 16 games with the Reds—only so-so. Not so hot for Paul—although he was no longer any kid.

"In my opinion," Bill Dickey once told me, "Derringer is one of the best pitchers I ever tried to hit. He has more than his share of speed—he has a fine curve ball—and he has control. I can't understand why Derringer doesn't win around 22 or even 25 games a year. I can tell you he's that good. He's one of the few pitchers I never liked to face."

In any event, Paul Derringer began his 18th pro season at the age of 37 with four successive wins over the Cardinals and the Pirates, picked as the two strongest clubs in the National League.

Pitching for the Cubs, Derringer may be an upsetting factor in the National League race. For the Cubs have shown the league better pitching than any one looked for. Charlie Grimm has gotten them away at what you might call spring pennant speed, where a year ago at this time they were deep down in the quicksands, out of sight at the bottom.

It might be mentioned here that Derringer is on a par with Bill Dickey as a field shot—and a better deer shot—around the Florida Everglades. My guess would be that Derringer is close to being the best pitcher in either league, on a par with Mort Cooper and Bucky Walters.

Stirnweiss and Lindell

We ran into what you might call a representative gathering of baseball people a few days ago, including veteran baseball writers, managers and old-time ball players. Someone started talking about the best baseball player in the American League today. George Stirnweiss, the Yankee second baseman, drew a unanimous vote for this spot.

As Harry Salsinger put it: "Stirnweiss would have been a star in pre-war days. He will still be a star in postwar play. The Yankee infielder is a strong hitter, a fine infielder and a great base-runner. He is fast and smart. An all-around athlete, well up on the competitive side."

In the opinion roundup that followed, Boudreau of Cleveland and Stephens of the Browns were placed close to the Yankee entry for all-around ability.

This is no news to Joe McCarthy. McCarthy was keen about his crack infielder back in his rookie days. "You'll hear a lot more about this fellow," he said a year ago after the first few days of spring training. "He can do about all you could ask from an infielder where all he needs is a little more experience."

Stirnweiss joins the combination of baseball and football stars. He was one of the best backs North Carolina ever had, a chunky bullet. McCarthy has never been any too hilarious about football players. Joe claims they get too many shoulder, ankle and knee bruises or injuries that often return as haunting ghosts of former gridiron glory. Yet Stirnweiss and Spud Chandler, two of his best men, were both football stars. So was Johnny Lindell in high school, which Johnny proved in putting that famous block on Kurovski in the 1943 world series.

Lindell is another winning type whose absence would make more than a small difference in the present race which may be just as steamy as the one last season that moved on to the final pitch. Lindell himself believes the Yankees' all-around power and pitching will carry them through this time, whether he is with them or not.

Speed Comes First

Recently I asked Carl Hubbell, now a Giant scout, what he considered first in selecting pitchers. "First of all," Hubbell said, "a pitcher must have speed. He must have an arm that can slip that fast one by you. If he has speed, you can probably teach him a curve ball and control later on. If he lacks speed he has almost no chance. Here and there you'll get a slow-ball pitcher who can get by. But not one in a hundred can turn the trick."

THERE'S a tremendous vogue on for all-white this summer. You'll find in the current collections a veritable snowdrift of white dresses made of beautiful materials, ranging from exquisite filmy sheers, organdy, lawn, dainty voile, swiss and the beloved eyelets to classic piques, linsens and various other of the firm-weave whites.

Stroll around to the accessory displays and you will become increasingly conscious that designers are playing up white magic for all it is worth. Your eye will glimpse a vast showing of white jewelry with emphasis on white earrings. You will find an intriguing showing of white handbags many of which are of the new white washable plastic.

The new white footwear plays up shoe artistry in such thrilling design, glamorous white shoes become a necessary luxury this summer. The same may be said of white millinery, the supremacy of the white hat in the summer mode is style news of utmost importance. The newest gesture in white headwear is the hat made of phantom-like filmy white sheers or white horsehair. Then too white flower hats and trims are beguilingly lovely this summer, and you can get the smartest sailors ever in various type white straws. White gloves add their dainty touch to the picture.

In the illustration we are showing a trio of lovely gowns that bring a message of the outstanding importance of white eyeleted de luxe cotons for this summer. You will find the gown to the right made of white eyelet pique will prove a beautiful buy for party wear and for gay summer dances. The chic cardigan line of the jacket and cap sleeves are bound with pinwale pique. Vary the jacket with a black skirt to show its wartime versatility as a double-duty dress.

Narrow Silhouette

An interesting thing about this season's print frocks is that they are styled in such versatile ways introducing new silhouettes that give zest to the mode. A glowing instance of the trend to launch "something new" and strikingly distinctive in styling technique for the summer print is seen in the attractive model pictured. In this gown selected from a collection of mid-summer styles by Chicago Fashion Industries the emphasis is on a narrow silhouette skirt contrasted by a decided tunic flare about the hips. This lovely-lady print frock will be outstanding wherever it goes.

There's News in Hat That's Merely a Brim

Designed especially for summer comfort are the new half-hats made of starched pique. The unique part of it is the hat isn't all there. The crown is missing, and for a good reason. You have all the appearance of wearing a hat, without the discomfort of too much hat on a torrid summer day. These little headpieces are one of the big success fashions of the season because of their practicality as well as their flattering ways. Some are so designed they can be laid out flat for ironing. They certainly keep pace with "the style" being designed in clothes, off-face types, Dutch bonnet effects, and other becoming versions. One of the smartest half-hats has no brim at all in front, but at the back there is a down-over-the-hair flange flaring from the fitted headband that shows the influence of the favorite fisherman type.

New Frocks Featuring Braidwork, Embroidery

Braidwork and embroidery is being artfully featured on thin spun rayon dresses also summer jacket suits. The modes are in lovely pastels or even more to be admired—subtle off-whites. Enormous patch pockets, all-over braided in exact tone of the dress, are seen on many a stunning frock. Sometimes the bow tie at the throat also is correspondingly braided. Too lovely for words are frocks of fine chambray, the jackets or bodice tops of which are all-over braided in white.

Broomstick Skirts

One of the biggest fads of the season in the campus group is the broomstick skirt. Girls with an eye to fashion and thrift are making their own this summer. The skirts are usually made of pastel chintz, but any light-weight curtain materials will do. Another trick is to seam two large print squares together, gathering the top into a belt.

MAN'S FAILURES AND GOD'S PROMISES

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 6:5-7; 8:1, 4, 18, 20-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease.—Genesis 8:22.

The beginnings of all things in the book of Genesis include, we are sorry to note, the beginning of sin in the fall of Adam. Soon we read of the first murder, Cain slaying his godly brother, Abel, because his acceptance with God exposed the wrong heart-attitude of Cain. The godly line was renewed in Seth, but before long sin again lifted its ugly head. Now the wickedness of man had become so widespread that God was driven to a drastic judgment.

I. Judgment for the Wicked (6:5-7). The Lord sees the wickedness of men—let us not forget that! At times it seems as though the ungodly flourish in their sin and that there is no judgment upon them. God knows what goes on in the world. He is long-suffering and merciful, but there is a boundary line to His patience, and when that limit is reached, there can be nothing but judgment.

Ever imagination of the thoughts of man's heart was evil continually (v. 5). One is reminded of Jeremiah 17:9, and of such a contemporary estimate of man as that of Dr. Mackay, who said, "Psychology has unveiled the dismal and sinister depths in human nature. Man can no longer flee from reality into the romantic refuge of his own heart; for the human heart has become a house of horrors in whose murky recesses man cannot erect for his solace either a shrine or a citadel. Man is bad; he is a sinner."

God did not change His mind (v. 6), but man by his sin moved himself out of the circle of God's love over into the circle of His judgment. God never changes, but we change our relation to Him by our actions. Such is the evident meaning of this verse.

II. Deliverance for the Upright (8: 1, 4, 18).

God remembered Noah, and he "found grace in the eyes of the Lord" (Gen. 6:8) because he was "a just man" (6:9). At the Lord's command, he prepared the ark for the saving of himself and his house, and after the Lord had "shut him in" (Gen. 7:16), the great judgment by water came upon the earth.

After 150 days (Gen. 7:24), the Lord remembered Noah (8:1) and caused the earth to dry up once again. The same Lord who shut him in to keep him during the flood brought him out after the flood (8: 15, 16), gave him great power (9: 1-4), assured him of His protection (9:5-7), and gave him the great promise (9:8-16) of which the rainbow became the token.

The God who will in no wise forget the sin of the wicked will never leave nor forsake those who walk uprightly before Him. The story of Noah should stimulate our faith, causing us to obey and trust God. His protecting hand is over His children, and He can bring them through the darkest days of tribulation.

III. Mercy in the Midst of Sin (8:20-22).

"Noah builded an altar," for the first impulse of his heart was to give praise to God for His mighty deliverance. His offering came up to God as "a sweet savor," that is, it was pleasing to God.

To come before God with acceptable worship, man must come with clean hands. The question is not whether he is brilliant, learned, or of high position. The one thing that counts is obedience. When such a man offers the worship of his heart before God, it goes up to him like a sweet savor.

God knew man's heart (v. 21). He had no illusions that even the judgment of the flood would change it. Eagerly His love sought man's obedient response, but He well knew that the awful pestilence of sin would continue until the very end of the age.

So in spite of that sin, and in the very midst of it, God promised that He would never again wipe out humanity as He did in the flood. There would be individual judgment and collective judgment on certain groups, but never again the smiting of every living thing. Thus, He set men free from the terror which must have now been in their hearts.

The beautiful rainbow in the cloud became a token of God's promise, and the visible assurance to "all flesh" that the judgment of the flood would not be repeated. Never again would seed time and harvest, nor any of the orderly processes of nature, fail throughout the whole earth. What a gracious God we have! And what a pity that men presume upon His goodness.

A Bit of Earth

By LILLIAN AUSTIN
McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

LILY BELL waited while Mr. Davis checked the books. Then he counted out a fat roll of bills and placed them before her, watching as she wrapped the bundle carefully in a clean handkerchief. "Aren't you going to count it?" he asked.

"No, sir. You is credit us for a year and trust us to stay till the crop's made."

"But you don't realize how much you have there."

"Yes, sir, I know it's a heap of money, but we's got ten chillun and eight in-laws and twicet as many grandbabies and some of 'em need it 'fore nex' year."

"Why should you give it to them?" Mr. Davis asked. "They didn't help make the crop. They're grown men and women, and if they can't make a living for themselves, what'll they do when you and Sam need help? How would you and Sam like to own your own home?"

"You mean us could have a shack and a bit of ground that really belong to us?"

"You've been here a year now and we'll make you the same proposition we do others we want to keep on the place. We'll sell you the land and you can make annual payments with your surplus and each season your share of the crop will increase according to the amount paid up."

"I ain't onderstan' all them words, Mr. Davis, but if it gonna get us somethin' for our old days, us is do it. But I's sho' in for some argu-fyin'."

"Of course we can't make a deal unless Sam is willing."

"Tain't Sam gonna give me trouble. He be proud as a banty rooster, does us own ary foot of earth."

Lily Bell planned as she walked home. No more moving for them; she and Sam were landowners! She thought of her pretty white curtains she could use now when they fixed that broken window, and the best bedspread and that old linoleum rug Mrs. Davis had given her. It could be fitted to the kitchen floor and left there till it wore out. There'd be flower beds and red roses blooming most of the year and a winter garden of hardy vegetables they wouldn't have to leave for the next tenant.

When Sam came up from the barn she turned to watch his face. "How'd you like to own this place?" she asked. "Us can buy on time," she went on. "And Mr. Davis is gonna stop by in the mornin' for us to sign the papers, does you want it?"

Sam got out the new glass Mr. Davis had sent weeks ago for the window. "Cain't you take time to eat you' supper," she grumbled, secretly pleased at Sam's impatience. "Here come Sally," she told him. "I guess she done hear us is settle up and she want to know how long her man can look for a job this winter 'fore he fin' one to suit."

She laid plates for Sally and her little ones. "Go on, set up, gal," she urged, "and quit you studyin' somethin' don't 'cern you. Us is get the money and spend it a'ready."

Sally didn't believe it. "Mama, you ain't buy nothin' but a cotton dress for you'self and a box of 'baccy for Papa."

"Us is buy prop'ty," Lily Bell informed her importantly. "We owns this house and every stick and stone of the land we's been croppin'."

"How you gonna pay it off?" Sally asked. "Papa's a old man a'ready."

"Ain't it the truf," Lily Bell agreed. "He too old to 'sport his young 'uns and from now on us is look out for ourse'fs. Mr. Davis is got the money and tomorrow us is sign up."

"You give up Papa's hard-earned money and you ain't got a writin' or nothin' to show for it?" Sally asked scathingly.

"Now, Sally, Davis' word is good 'nuff for anybody, and—"

"Tain't for me," Sally interrupted angrily. "I's gonna tell Bill and Annie and us go see Mr. Davis, and—"

Sam jerked his chair back and stood up. "Get out!" he told the girl, "fill you is 'member you' manners and talk 'spectful to you' Mama. And the hull lot of you keep out of our business, and if you ain't like what us do, stay out of our house till you is like it!"

Sally was gone and the supper untouched and Lily Bell sat stunned by Sam's sudden show of temper. "Eat you' supper, honey, and don't worry," Sam coaxed. "Them chillun ain't turn 'gin us jes' cause they can't boss us." He grinned at her. "I weren't mad at Sally. I's jes' scared they's gonna git that money 'fore us sign the paper."

"They can't git it offen Mr. Davis," Lily Bell said, "cause he ain't got it. But I ain't tellin' the chillun that. Tain't good business to hand it over till the deal's made."

"Doggone, I didn't know that!" Sam exclaimed, looking at her with new respect.

Lily Bell smiled happily. Why should she admit she hadn't known it either until Mr. Davis told her?

Onions

Next to salt, the world's most valuable seasoning is the onion. It has come to be recognized as a leading garden "must."

Alexander found the onion in Egypt. He fed it to his troops in Greece in the belief that it excited martial ardour.

Seed Onions A new hybrid has been produced in California which yields 38 tons to the acre.

In 1927, John Gerard reported that onions were good against the biting of a mad dog, for colds, bilis, to grow hair, for burns, or gun wounds. He also said it caused headaches, weakened the eyes, dulled the senses and provoked oversleep.

The volatile oil of onion has been found by Russian scientists to contain a bacteria-killing substance. Onion paste is being used in Russia to heal wounds and guard against infections.

Dehydrated onions have proven a most important item for overseas shipping. French dried onions promise to become more popular as the supply of odorless onions becomes larger.

Feed Needed by Cows

In planning the dairy cows requirement, two tons of good quality legume or mixed legume hay should be harvested per cow, or one ton of good quality legume hay or mixed legume roughage, and three tons of silage per cow.

Twenty bushels of corn and 20 bushels of oats should be harvested for each cow. In addition five bushels of soybeans, when silage is provided, or 2 1/2 bushels where silage is not available.

Bonds Over America

SAKOKAWEA

Credit for the success of Lewis and Clark's great expedition across the Rockies to the Pacific has long been attributed to Sakokawea, wife of a French interpreter. The Shoshone Indian girl with a baby on her back acted as guide, cook and emissary to the Indian tribes that dangerously roamed the dangerous trails from Stanton, North Dakota, to the West Coast. Her statue adorns the State House lawn at Bismarck, serving as a constant inspiration to North Dakotans fighting to defend the great lands she opened to white men. Japs might already have a foothold on that land but for the supplies furnished American service men through the purchase of War Bonds.

Four hours versus Four Days

Air transportation is aiding northern farmers who raise crops for the canneries. Recently 320,000 tomato plants, shipped in two planes, were moved from their Georgia growing field to a northern unit in four hours instead of the usual four days required by ground transportation. Thus it was possible to transplant many of the tomato plants the same day they were lifted from the field.

Night Shift
ON THE FOOD FRONT

THEY DID IT BEFORE—
THEY CAN DO IT AGAIN
With Farmall Tractor Power

Throughout the Spring, from the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard, worried farmers searched the skies for signs of clear weather, but the cold rains fell relentlessly.

For more than a month the seed should have been germinating in the warm soil. Millions of acres lay unplanted because the ground was too wet for preparation of the seed bed and too cold for germination of the seed.

Only a generation ago there could have been but one outcome—crop shortage and food scarcity. Nature allows scant time for planting when the warm sun waits till late May or June before drying the soggy soil. Horses are too slow and tire too quickly to get the job done then.

But the farmers remember May of 1943—only two years ago—when their fast, untiring tractors averted crop failure. Then, too, rains flooded the fields and the month was all but spent before they could go in on the land and plant.

In 1943, most farmers drove their tractors from dark to dark, and longer. Many planted around the clock, working in two or three shifts. They made one of the greatest crops in history.

In today's war-torn world—with hunger and disease already stalking many peoples—even one major crop failure could bring famine. This is why the sound of tractors and planting machinery was heard, day and night, from the Plains states to the Eastern seaboard—why headlights stabbed the darkness over the fields.

America's farmers are doing it again, in spite of an unprecedented combination of adverse circumstances—bad weather, shortages of machines and shortages of manpower. For the second time in three years, they are relying upon their tractor-powered machines to help rescue large areas of the world from catastrophe. More of these tractors are products of International Harvester than of any other company.

A Bell for Adano
By John Hersey

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, a seaport in Italy, with Major Victor Joppolo, the Army officer in charge. Sergeant Borth, an M.P., was in charge of security. The Major set out to win the trust of the citizens and promised to replace the town bell stolen by the Nazis. General Marvin, chief of American forces in that section, became enraged at the carts on road leading into the city and ordered the Major to keep them out of the city. Hearing that the city could not get water without the carts, Major Joppolo said Captain Purvis to let them enter the city. Purvis, to protect himself, reported the matter to headquarters. The letter was held up in the office.

CHAPTER VIII

"Giuseppe," the Major said, "I want to see Tina's father because you said he was the most respected of all the fishermen. I want to start the fishermen going out again, so that Adano will have something besides pasta and tomatoes and eggplant to eat. That's all there is to it."

"Boss, you're a kid Giuseppe."

"Giuseppe, do you want me to get another interpreter?"

"Okay, a boss, you're not a kid Giuseppe."

"I do want to see the old man. Will you fix that for me?"

"That's what I'm a sorry, boss."

"What do you mean?"

"Tina's old man Tomasino no want a see you, a boss."

"Why not? Did you say something about my wanting to go out with his daughter?"

"Oh no, a boss. Old man Tomasino say he never been in a Palazzo di Citta in a life. He hate a Fascist a crooks. He don't know you're a different. He won't a come a here."

"That's easy, Giuseppe. We'll go see him." The Major looked at a pad of appointments he had begun to keep on his desk. "Be ready to go at three this afternoon, Giuseppe."

And so it happened that another precedent was broken in Adano. Never in the memory of anyone in the town had an official gone calling on a citizen on business. Either the citizen had come willingly to the Palazzo, or else the citizen had been arrested, and had come against his will.

Between the time of this conversation and three o'clock, Giuseppe told several people about this amazing flexibility on the part of the Major. And therefore when it came time for them to go down to the port looking for old Tomasino, quite a large crowd had gathered in front of the Palazzo, and the crowd followed the Major and Giuseppe as they walked.

"Where do these people think they're going?" the Major asked Giuseppe.

"Just a bunch a busybody," Giuseppe said.

The Major turned around. "Go home, you people," he said in Italian. "Don't you have anything better to do at three in the afternoon?"

But the people kept right on following Giuseppe and the Major. Giuseppe led the Major, and therefore the crowd, down to the harbor and past the stone pier, past the sulphur loading jetties, past the patent slips, past the Molo Martino to the Molo di Ponente, where the fishing boats were tied up.

The Major sensed that he was going to have a tough time with old Tomasino, so he said to Giuseppe: "Interpreter, unless you keep this crowd well back, you will lose your job."

"What is an interpreter to us," people said, "when we have a chance to see something new in Adano? . . . This has never happened before. . . . What is the unemployment of one man?" And they kept moving forward.

Giuseppe shouted: "The Major will be very angry if you do not stop right here." And then he added softly: "Let us make a deal. If you stop, I will listen to the conversation, and I will tell you what is said."

On this basis the crowd was willing to stop.

By this time, Major Joppolo had come to the boat of old Tomasino. He recognized the boat not only by the fact that there was a morose-looking man sitting on the after-deck, but also by the illuminated inscription, with its letters trailing off into leaves and fruits, just under the eye-piece of the bow: Tina.

The Major jumped up onto the bow.

"All right, man of authority," said the morose man, "arrest me."

"I haven't come to arrest you, Tomasino," the Major said.

Giuseppe came running up to listen. He stayed on the mole, so that he could commute easily between Adano and the Major.

"Why are you wearing your pistol?" the morose man said. "Shoot me, go ahead, shoot me."

"I always wear my pistol, Tomasino," the Major said.

"You have come to arrest me because I refused to go and see the American Major," the morose man said.

"That is not true," the Major said.

"Then why have you brought this informer, Ribaldo Giuseppe, who asked me to go see the American Major, and to whom I refused?"

"I am the American Major, Tomasino."

Tomasino did not bat an eye. "Why have you brought this crowd, and went to the crowd.

"Do you want fish?" he asked the crowd.

"Yes!" the people shouted.

"Then you must go home," the Major said. "It is not easy to persuade Tomasino to go fishing. You must choose between this stupid gaping and having fish."

The crowd chose. Watching this unprecedented conversation and getting bulletins on it from Giuseppe was immediate, it was now. Eating fish was future and uncertain at best. The crowd chose staying to watch.

When he saw that he could not argue them into going home, Major Joppolo said to Giuseppe: "Where is the nearest telephone?"

Giuseppe said: "I guess she's in a Port a Captain's office, I show a you."

A thrill of curiosity ran through the crowd as the Major and Giuseppe went off. What had previously been the Italian Port Captain's office was now the office of the American Naval Lieutenant in charge of harbor facilities at Adano. This was Lieutenant Livingston, who had gone into the Navy's V-7 program early in the war, and had entered on his application blank as one of his main qualifications to be an officer and a gentleman: "Have had experience with small boats." This experience, as a matter of fact, consisted of rowing on the crew at Kent School and at Yale. At Yale, Crofts Livingston was known as a fellow who would do anything for you if he liked you, but he was rather choosy in his friends.

Lieutenant Livingston had not yet decided to like Major Joppolo. The Major had not gone to either Kent or Yale. There was a rumor around that he had once been some kind of clerk in the New York City government under Walker and O'Brien. Lieutenant Livingston was inclined to the opinion that it was too bad the Army had sent such a meatball to be administrator of a town like Adano. And besides, when the Major saw a Navy officer wearing two bars, which anyone ought to know stood for Lieutenant Senior Grade, Major Joppolo would address him as Captain.

"Hello, Captain," the Major said when he walked into Lieutenant Livingston's office, "can I use your phone?"

"Good morning," the Lieutenant said, "what are you doing down here?" The tone of the Lieutenant's Kent-Yale voice indicated that he thought the Army ought to stay on Army ground, and let the Navy stay on Navy shore.

"Can I use your phone?" the Major said. The Major was a single-minded man.

"Sure, help yourself."

The Major called Rowboat Blue Forward.

While he was waiting, he said to the Lieutenant: "I'm trying to get these fishermen organized, got to get rid of a mob first."

The Lieutenant did not look particularly pleased with this summary of the Major's activities.

"Hello, this the M.P.'s? Purvis? Listen, I want you to come down here. I got a mob to break up. Bring your Colt along. I think if you fire six into the air, that's all we'll need to send 'em home. . . . We're down at the port, over by the breakwater on the western side. Okay, hurry down."

The Major thanked Lieutenant Livingston for the use of the phone.

Lieutenant Livingston said: "Uh, Major, seems to me this fishing racket is more or less a Navy deal, isn't it?"

The Major said: "Yeah, I'll be back to see you, I'm in a hurry now. Thanks for the phone, Captain. See you later."

As the Major and Giuseppe passed the crowd on the way back to the Tina, Giuseppe said to the crowd: "As a friend, I advise you to go home."

People in the crowd, delighted with the mystery of the Major's hurried visit to the Port Captain's office, mocked Giuseppe. "Poor Ribaldo Giuseppe," they said, "speaking two languages has weakened his head."

"All right," Giuseppe said, "I have advised you as a friend."

At the Tina, Tomasino was sullen again. "I see you gave your hired crowd their instructions," he said. "Go ahead, take me, what have I to lose?"

Major Joppolo said: "They will all go home soon, Tomasino. I have given instructions for them to be sent home. Now, about the fishing. Do you think you could get together crews for five or six boats?"

Tomasino said: "Who is to be the protector of these crews? What criminal?"

"Protector?"

"To whom do the fishermen have to pay tribute this time?"

"Don't mock me, fisherman. What are you talking about?"

"Hah," said Tomasino, a man who could be amused with the most gruesomely sad face. "Hah, does the man of authority pretend he doesn't understand the system of protection?"

Major Joppolo spoke harshly: "What are you talking about, fisherman?"

"What did he say?"

The people in front shouted: "He thinks we ought to have fish for our hunger."

The whole crowd shouted then: "Live the Mister Major!"

Tomasino on the boat heard this, and it made him suspicious. "Why have you hired these people to come and jeer at me? No, I will not go fishing."

Major Joppolo shouted to Giuseppe in English: "Make the people go away! They are ruining everything." Giuseppe passed on the Major's request, but the people just laughed at him. "Now?" they said. "You are crazy, interpreter. Speaking two languages has made you crazy."

Giuseppe shouted to the Major: "I'm a can't a do nothing, a boss."

So the Major said to Tomasino: "Wait for me, Tomasino, I will show you that I mean well toward you." And he jumped down on the mole and went to the crowd.

"Do you want fish?" he asked the crowd.

"Yes!" the people shouted.

"Then you must go home," the Major said. "It is not easy to persuade Tomasino to go fishing. You must choose between this stupid gaping and having fish."

"Don't mock me, fisherman. What are you talking about?"

"Hah," said Tomasino, a man who could be amused with the most gruesomely sad face. "Hah, does the man of authority pretend he doesn't understand the system of protection?"

Major Joppolo spoke harshly: "What are you talking about, fisherman?"

Household Hints

Never wash china patterned in gold in water containing soda.

Use cotton thread to mend leather gloves. Silk thread will cut the leather and pull out again.

To remove the odor of fish from dishes, wash them in a strong hot solution of salt in water, without the addition of soap.

Household sponges are kept fresh by soaking in salt water after they have been washed.

Powdered graphite, in lieu of oil, will keep door hinges from squeaking.

GASOLINE, SWEET GASOLINE!

With Washington deciding to let autoists have more gasoline, millions of Americans are beginning to dream of the day when the country can return to its peacetime slogan—"Fill 'er up!"

This may be a long distance away, but it no longer seems something for the next generation to worry about.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast and in the tourist's heart. As goes the garage so goes the nation.

Secretary Ickes will raise the gas ante from four gallons per A coupon to six. That won't bring back the week-end traffic tie-ups but it will revive those pleasant memories of the days when the gas station attendants rushed out, wiped your windshield, gave you a road map and asked, "How many can you take?"

And when he frequently let a quart overflow from the tank to the ground with a "Damp, ain't it?"

Oh, for those hot dog-eating, way-side-lunch storming, detour crashing beach blitzing, dust-swallowing era when the answer to "Shall we motor over to Aunt Minnie's?" was never "How?" and always "When?"

Oh, for the days when you didn't have to hammer on the windows to find out if the gas station was open!

Ah, the good old times when there was a two-pump gas station in every block and a nozzle in every tank!

It is just as well that the return to full tanks is going to be gradual. A sudden restoration of open gas stations openly arrived at would be too much for normal emotions to endure.

Four years of regarding the pumping station as an arid retreat for the over-optimistic have done things to the American character.

If a fellow got over four gallons at a crack he thought he had struck oil.

And if the gas station proprietor threw in a smile and five drops extra he knew he had hit gusher territory.

No wonder Ickes survived that recent cabinet shake-up. He announced the new gas ration at the hour the President was making the changes. And Harry Truman is nobody's fool. He knew the public would never stand for changing fuel administrators in mid-stream.

ALL DONE BY MIRRORS ("Quisling Trial Postponed Until August."—Headline.) Oh, don't be hasty with this man—This kind and gentle soul! There is such heavy doubt that he Essayed the traitor's role.

Oh, do not rush proceedings when It comes his time to go; Delay them until autumn for He loves the summer so!

Oh, let his trial be deferred—Go slowly, if you please, For Vikdum wants to play a while Among the birds and bees.

Love Is Like That (From a Canadian Newspaper) NOTICE—Whereas my wife, Ponana Gertie Crouse, has left my bed and board, I give notice that I will not be responsible for any debts she may contract in my name. Wm. Aseph Crouse, East Clifford—May 5-2ic.

NOTICE!—To all Persons Whom It May Concern: I wish to say that I did not leave my husband's bed and board as he did not own the bed I slept in. I bought it and when I left Wm. A. Crouse of East Clifford, Lunen Co., N. S., I took my bed with me. (Sgd.) Ponana Gertie Crouse.

HOPE V-E ended some of our trouble, And burst the loony German bubble. Now may I ask of our noble nation: Take white pennies out of circulation. —H. N. MORSE

The sale of sulfa drugs has been stopped except by prescription, it having been found that people were rushing into drugstores to get sulfa for everything from dandruff and corns to a broken rib and gas pains.

A druggist tells us that a customer asked for sulfa drugs the other day to get rid of pains caused by taking sulfa drugs.

New Uses for an Old Fashioned Knife Box

THESE old fashioned knife boxes are popular as a quaint touch for serving food or drinks or to fill with plants or cut flowers. They are useful for sewing, knitting or reading matter too. And here is good news—you don't have to rummage in antique shops to find one. It may be made right at home without any complicated tools. Even the little stand with handy pull-out leaves is of such simple construction that it can be made by any amateur. It may be attached to the knife box and carried right along with it. It is fun to cut these pieces out of good clear pine or maple. The joinings are of the simplest type made with quick-drying plastic glue.

NOTE—Pattern 281 gives actual-size patterns for all parts of the knife box and for the sides of the stand. Illustrated assembly directions, a complete list of materials and directions for an antique finish for both pieces are included. To get Pattern 281, send 15 cents with name and address direct to:

Bell Telephone Pays $1,794,863 Taxes

A check for $1,794,863 was turned over this week by the Michigan Bell
Telephone Company to Louis H.
Nims, state commissioner of revenue, as it's semiannual property tax payment, earmarked by the Constitution for the Primary School Fund.

The Company's state tax this year, amounting to $3,589,705, is the highest tax ever paid by the company and the largest paid by any company into the Primary School Fund.

Michigan Bell's total tax bill for 1944 was about $15,900,000, an increase of about $1,500,000 over 1943 taxes. Operating taxes amounted to $14.05 per average telephone in service, or about 2 1/2 cents for every dollar of operating revenue.
