Japan Broadcasts Peace Bid Friday Morning

Tokyo Pleads Ready to Accept Terms

Asks That Emperor Remain Sovereign

The Japanese government Friday morning decided to broadcast its plea for peace from Tokyo in place of having Tojo proclaim his peace terms to the United Nations from the steps of the White House at Washington. And the peace plea seems somewhat milder than the peace terms intimated by the Nips on that day at Pearl Harbor. Then it was "We'll take half the world, and give the rest to the Nazis." Now it is "You can have everything if you will give us our beloved Hiroshito."

Tokyo broadcasts this morning that Japan was ready to accept the terms of the Potsdam Declaration. To surrender unconditionally, disarm and give up everything taken by conquest if she is permitted to retain Hiroshito as emperor. Later in the day the offer was officially transmitted to the governments of the United Nations.

"For his gallantry and heroism in the name of the President of the United States, the Commander of First Carrier Task Force, Pacific, presents the Distinguished Flying Cross to Melvin Arthur McArdle, Aviation Radioman 3rd Class, United States Naval Reserve, for service as set forth in the following citation:

"For distinguishing himself in heroism and extraordinary achievement while participating in an aerial flight against major units of the Japanese fleet off Kyushu on April 7, 1945. As radar operator of a carrier based torpedo plane, he guided his pilot through heavy overcast into perfect position for a torpedo run on a Japanese light cruiser. In the subsequent attack, he materially aided his pilot in gauging the proper release point and thus contributed to the direct hit which his pilot scored. Throughout the dive and retirement, which was made through intense anti aircraft fire from the cruiser and one screening destroyer, he performed his duties as radar operator in an outstanding manner. His coolness under fire, his skill and courage were at all times in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Paul Bouchard Holds Auction Sale

Tawas Township Farmer for 60 Years

Paul Bouchard of Tawas township will sell his farm implements at public auction tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon. He has sold his farm to George Prescott III.

One of Iosco county's substantial pioneer farmers, Mr. Bouchard cleared his farm out of the wilderness 60 years ago. In those days access to his land was by way of the Plank road and then by way of the planks—the Hemlock road area as timberland and swamp. By diligent effort Mr. Bouchard chopped out a fine productive farm, and equipped it with stock and implements and excellent buildings, the fine brick 14-room residence being built in 1914.

Coming to Tawas City from Montreal as a young man, although he did not know the English language, he soon became proficient as a mill hand, and quickly acquired the necessary vocabulary. His first job was at C. D. Hale's mill at the mouth of Tawas river, given him the next day after his arrival on the boat. Later he was employed at the C. H. Prescott & Sons' mill and for some time was with Reuben Wade on his Maple Grove Farm.

Mr. Bouchard said that Joseph Brabant settled on land across the road and that the two worked together in those early days clearing their farms.

Over three million gas masks assembles were produced by the Rowley Assembly Company in this city during the earlier days of the war.

Tawas City Scouts Attend District Camp

Awarded Honors At Summer Meeting

Nineteen of the twenty-two members of Tawas City troop No. 73, who attended Summer Camp, returned from the Lake Shore District Camp at Clear Lake last Sunday. Rudy Gingerich, Charles Hughes, A. W. Colby, Albert Yanna and George Myles brought the boys home and the D. & M. Ry. Co. furnished the truck for returning the camping paraphernalia. Scout William Dockett left Saturday night for the upper peninsula and Scouts James Reed and Jack Churchill remained for another week.

Troop 73 was awarded the Camp Honor each of the two weeks they were there. The boys also won that award the one week they attended last year and Tawas City can be congratulated for having a bunch of boys of the caliber that merits honors of that nature. The award is based on day and night citizenship, condition of barracks, helpfulness in the camp activities, and adaptability to camp life.

Eight of the boys won individual honors. Donald Gingerich and Lloyd Hughes won their Teepee and fire awards in addition to their C awards on last year, Albert Yanna and Donald Westcott on their C and Teepee this year, Allen Brown, who had but one week of camp this year, on his Teepee to add to his C won last year, and Gerald Grack, Bruce Leslie and Paul Rutterbush won their C this year.

Every boy in the troop made advancement of some nature and the troop aggregated seventy-eight merit badge requirements passed. It is a very good record, especially when it is known that most of the boys have been members for but a short time.

Some time this fall a Court of Honor will be held for the Troop and badges designating the advancement will be awarded each boy. A few of the boys will be given added responsibilities in the Troop at that time.

The Masonic Order, sponsors of the Troop, have appointed the following Troop Committee to guide the boys: A. W. Colby, Chairman, A. H. Buch, A. E. Giddings, R. B. Murray, H. M. Rollin, Rev. Paul Dean, and George Myles Merit Badge Councilors. Howard Braden, Fred Musolf, W. H. Fitzhugh, H. Read Smith, C. L. McLean, and William F. Klink assist the Committee. Mr. Klink is Neighborhood Commissioner for this district. J. F. Mark is Scoutmaster of the Troop. More Merit Badge Councilors are needed to divide the work of teaching the one hundred eleven subjects. The Scout movement is worthy of the best efforts of each and every citizen and we should all do the best we know how to assist in some way. The fine troop that represents this city and the boys joining in the future are a challenge to the men in this city.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Pressure Grows on Japs; Rip Lag in Reconversion Program; Move 800,000 G.I.s from Europe

Released by Western Newspaper Union. (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

PACIFIC: Talk Back

Premier Suzuki's declaration that the Allied surrender ultimatum would in no way affect the government's fundamental policy to prosecute the war was met by a continuing hail of U. S. and British fire on the enemy homeland and shipping.

While the harassed Nipponese did not burn all of their bridges behind them and still hoped for a modification of Allied terms, U. S. and British policy called for a continuance of the heavy pressure to bend the enemy will in the face of mounting destruction to cities, transport and industry.

Though the Jap leadership maintained a resolute front, there were rumblings within the country, the influential newspaper Asahi calling upon the government to give priority protection to enemy cities; concentrate on the production of more important munitions, and prepare for construction of wooden planes now that parts of the islands have been isolated from metal supplies from the Asiatic mainland and the southern regions of Japan itself.

The plea for priority protection of enemy cities followed the AAF's promised assault on 6 of the 11 secondary industrial centers marked for extinction.

With enemy plane and anti-aircraft opposition remaining slight, 800 Superforts fired Tsu, Amori, Ichinomiya, Ujijamada and Ogaki on Honshu and Uwajima on Shikoku, with the B-29s flying to the northern section of the islands re-

Despite Clement Atlee's displacement of Winston Churchill as Great Britain's ranking representative, and Premier Stalin's sickness, the Big Three meeting hurried to a finale in Potsdam, with substantial agreement reported on Germany's fate, Poland's eastern border, control of the vital Dardanelles straits leading to the Black sea, and the Pacific war.

fuelling at bitterly won Iwo Jima. At the same time, U. S. and British carrier planes and General MacArthur's Far Eastern air force continued to rake the enemy homeland, with the carrier planes concentrating on Japanese airfields and the FEAF ripping Nipponese shipping. As a result of Allied control of the far eastern sea lanes, it was reported that the enemy was seeking to maintain connections with the Asiatic mainland by land routes to Korea and the short water jump to Japan itself.

RECONVERSION: Hit Lag

Replying to charges of the senate war investigating committee that the government's reconversion program was lagging and it was necessary to revitalize it if serious dislocations are to be avoided, a former War Production board official charged that the services had slowed up the switch to civilian output by materials control and excessive buying.

Recently resigned as a chieftain in the civilian requirements branch of the WPB, Lester P. Doidge asserted that while the services' insistence on curbing wider use of material and manpower was justified in some instances to protect munitions output, it was unwarranted in others. "With aluminum as free as air for the last six, seven or eight months," he said, "some firms had to lay off men because of inability to get that metal."

RAIL PROFITS:

Railroad profits in May for the third consecutive month were larger than a year ago and the total gain in this three-month period was more than sufficient to offset the drop which occurred in January and February, according to the Alexander Hamilton institute. As a result, profits during the first five months totaled $264,000,000 this year as compared with $258,000,000 last year. This increase interrupted the downward trend of the past two years it was said.

cessive buying, Doidge said, the army has been claiming large allotments of refrigerators each quarter from restricted production despite its comfortable stockpiles. Whereas the WPB felt 4 1/2 million freezers were needed each year, the present production rate is only 1,000,000.

In ripping the reconversion lag, the senate committee headed by Chairman Mead (Dem., N. Y.) declared that it has fallen so far behind that a sudden end to the Japanese war would find the U. S. in a serious economic situation. As corrective measures, the committee recommended:

Productive capacity not needed for the war be immediately converted to civilian goods; key industrial men be released from the services to aid the switch-over; wider disposal of surplus material to help reconversion and prevent post-war market glut; and dissemination of information to workers and employers alike about the national labor situation.

REDEPLOYMENT: Moves Fast

With 800,000 men scheduled for redeployment from Europe to the Pacific theater by the end of July, an additional 1,000,000 men will be shifted during the last half of 1945, leaving 900,000 vets to be cleared during the first four months of next year, the army revealed.

Up to mid-July, over 635,000 G.I.s had embarked from Europe, it was revealed, with 532,258 arriving in the U. S. by that time, with 407,978 traveling by boat and 124,280 by plane. Others were routed directly to the Pacific.

At the same time, more than 1,226,000 tons of war material have been shipped from Europe and the Near East since V-E Day, with approximately 300,000 tons sent directly to the Pacific. As a result of the speedy redeployment program, troop rail traffic jumped from 504,000 men moved in groups of 40 or more in April to an estimated 1,250,000 in July. Some vets shifted from Europe through the U. S. already have completed furloughs and been sent out from the West coast to the Pacific.

VETS: Job Rights

The question of postwar job rights for G.I.s has come to the fore with the efforts of World War II vets to get the United Automobile Workers CIO union to modify its policy relating to the subject by counting war service as a seniority credit in applying for employment and having one in every four positions go to a fighting man who has not worked before.

Under the UAW-CIO so-called "model clause," vets employed by a company prior to induction would be entitled to count up their war service as seniority, but vets not previously employed would be permitted to include war service as seniority only after they had obtained a job.

With the United Veterans of World War II spearheading the attack, it has been charged that the UAW-CIO policy amounts to a virtual lock-out of the previously unemployed vets, since a company must first give consideration to workers who have gained seniority rights through the course of World War II. The UAW-CIO, on the other hand, states that the policy protects workers who might otherwise be displaced.

CONSERVATION TEST

Waterfowl restoration efforts of Ducks Unlimited face their greatest test in 1945, officials of the organization declare. An area of about 170,000 square miles in south-central and southern Saskatchewan and Alberta is reported drought-stricken, with small water areas completely dried up. Breeding waterfowl in this area are crowded the waters stored by Ducks Unlimited and the Prairie Farms Rehabilitation administration.

FRANCE:
"Evil Genius" Reappears

With Marshal Petain fighting for his life in the historic treason trial in Paris, defense attorneys moved to bring dusky Pierre Laval before the court as a witness for the former Vichy chief of state.

The move was taken as French authorities flew Laval back to Paris following his surrender to U. S. military forces in Austria after a flight from Spain. To stand trial himself for treason, Laval has been charged with the principal responsibility for close collaboration with the Germans, being called Petain's "evil genius."

Meanwhile, with over 1,000,000 words already written into the record, Petain's trial continued apace, with Gen. Maxime Weygand, head of the Allied armies at the time of the French defeat in 1940, assuming the responsibility for cessation of hostilities. In asking for a negotiated armistice rather than total surrender as advocated by Premier Reynaud, he said, he took into account France's inability to maintain organized resistance.

Declaring Petain's government consistently refused to give the Nazis bases, ports and territories in North Africa, Weygand disclosed that he and U. S. Diplomat Robert Murphy had signed an agreement for delivery of American supplies to North Africa on condition the Germans be kept from the French possessions.

RED REVIVAL: In U. S.

Having been dissolved in May, 1944, as a gesture of unity, the Communist party was re-established in the U. S. at a special convention in New York, with William Z. Foster replacing Earl Browder as leader.

Ripped for having soft-pedaled the historic class struggle of the Communists, Browder held his ground, declaring that there were joint policies which could be accepted by employers and workers alike regardless of their motives in the face of Big Business' progressive search for expanding markets.

The convention also marked the Communists' break with the "Roosevelt-Labor-Democratic" coalition, the Reds charging the Truman administration with veering toward the less liberal elements in the Democratic party and even trying to conciliate the reactionary enemies of progressiveness.

Bing Aids Polio Drive

Latest of American celebrities to undertake the leadership of a nation-wide drive against disease is Bing Crosby, newly appointed chairman of the $5,000,000 Elizabeth Kenny Institute campaign to begin in October.

Bing Crosby

Crooner, comedian and producer, but above all father of four children, Crosby's decision to lead the drive to raise funds for promoting the new system of infantile paralysis treatment was prompted by a tour of hospitals, where he saw withered little victims of polio.

"No little child on earth should be asked to suffer pain, humiliating deformities and complications unnecessarily," he said.

Tentative plans call for both movie and radio appeals for funds by Bing, and close state-wide organization of collections. States will retain half of the proceeds for establishing local clinics and combating communal epidemics, with the remainder remitted to national headquarters for new facilities at the Elizabeth Kenny Institute at Minneapolis, Minn., and increased patient capacity.

PROBE CRASH:
$500,000 Damage

With 13 dead, 24 injured and property damage estimated at $500,000, the army undertook an investigation of the crash of an 8-ton Billy Mitchell B-25 bomber into the 78th and 79th floor levels of the Empire State building in New York, tallest structure in the world.

Piloted by Lt. Col. W. F. Smith, 27, of Watertown, Mass., the B-25, with its three occupants, smashed plumb into the north side of the building in the foggy atmosphere after the officer had determined to make the run to Newark, N. J., despite advice to land in New York because of the murky weather prevailing in the area.

Before crashing into the building where office employees were busy at work at the time and either killed by the hurtling plane or burned to death by the fires touched off by gasoline, the B-25 was seen roaring through sky-scraper Manhattan at a 38-story level. Completed in 1931 and valued at $52,000,000, the Empire State building's vaulted tower stands about a quarter of a mile above the street.

FARM LAND:

Farm real estate values continued to rise during the four months ended July 1, 1945, with an increase for the country as a whole of about 3 per cent for a total of 57 per cent above the 1935-39 average and less than one-fourth below the 1920.

The volume of voluntary sales decreased 8 per cent during the year ended March, 1945, after having increased for six consecutive years, reaching a peak almost 15 per cent above that for the "boom" year 1919.

'Secret' Airline to Sweden Saves 3,000

U. S. Army Planes Operated Under Noses of Nazis.

LONDON.—More than 3,000 important passengers were flown out of neutral Sweden during the last year of the European war by the U. S. army's "secret" airline which operated under the noses of the Germans.

It was one of the strangest military operations of the war and the Germans employed every trick they knew to stop it, but without avail.

Some secrets of this mysterious pseudo-civilian airline, which now has blossomed into a full-fledged military line between Scotland and Sweden, were revealed by Brig. Gen. Earl S. Hoag, commander of the European division of the Air Transport command, the agency designated to handle the job. Most of the flying had been scheduled purposely in bad weather.

The airmen, disguised as civilians, had become so accustomed to being shadowed by Gestapo agents in Stockholm that they didn't even bother locking their hotel rooms at night. They were followed everywhere, and their every move was noted by Nazi agents.

Among the passengers were hundreds of interned American airmen, Norwegian soldiers, diplomats, interned nationals and high officials of many governments, including Norwegian, French, Dutch and Russian. On one occasion the personnel of the Norwegian government in exile was flown from London to Sweden.

General Hoag disclosed that one of the most daring operations was the evacuation of some 2,000 trained Norwegian soldiers across German-occupied Norway to Britain, just prior to the invasion of France.

The Swedish government, after negotiations, had approved the release of the Norwegians, but just about the time the first flight was scheduled, it was discovered the Germans had learned of the plan and had started counter-measures.

The Germans alerted at least 250 Luftwaffe night fighters at fields in southern Norway, and had all suspected routes bristling with anti-aircraft and coastal defense guns. But they failed to shoot down a single plane during the operation, which extended over a period of several weeks.

Domestic Problems to Test Truman's Mettle

Harmonious Relations on Foreign Policy Soon To Give Way to Contention Over Difficulties of Reconversion.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

The political armistice in Washington will end shortly after the President's return from Berlin. The Big Three meeting followed so closely on the heels of the San Francisco conference that foreign affairs have dominated the scene almost to the exclusion of domestic matters, which sooner or later must test the mettle of the new administration.

Another reason, perhaps, why President Truman's honeymoon has been extended is the fact that the main issue before the country, the United Nations charter, has been robbed of its partisan flavor. This is largely due to the long and arduous efforts of former Secretary of State Hull. He built up a working understanding on foreign affairs between the administration and the congress, which resulted in the whole-hearted co-operation of most of the leaders of both parties, sturdily supported by public opinion.

Secretary Hull was able to achieve this harmony because of the confidence in which his former colleagues held him and also because of his experience as a member of the legislative branch of the government.

Roosevelt could never have been as successful in this endeavor and, because he realized that fully, he left the matter largely in Hull's hands.

Chief Still One of the Boys

In the first place, President Truman stepped directly from the upper house to the vice presidency, and ever since he left the legislative branch for the executive, he has been acting as liaison between the two.

Shortly before President Roosevelt's death I had occasion to interview the then vice president. I talked about the forthcoming San Francisco conference with him (as well as the field artillery, of which we are both alumni). He indicated that he was holding aloof from any public participation in the discussions of international affairs but was attempting to carry on and to complement the work of Secretary Hull in promoting a sympathetic discussion of the Dumbarton Oaks agreement with members of the senate foreign relations committee, the house committee on foreign affairs and others.

One of his first unorthodox acts was to take lunch with some of his old colleagues at the Capitol. This was almost as if the king of England were to attempt to enter the City of London without first having a formal parley with the lord mayor. But it was a perfectly natural act on Truman's part—like his spontaneous remark to the effect that there was a certain Chinese restaurant where he would like to eat while he was on the West coast. On second thought he realized that, as President, he couldn't do such a thing and admitted it with a smile.

The President's informal visits to the Capitol haven't hurt him. Nor his formal ones. After his last appearance, when he delivered the charter, he lingered so long in the senate chamber, shaking hands and patting backs, that an aide had to hint gently that he wasn't a senator any more and must hurry back to his work.

His cabinet appointments are highly significant. Truman's secretary of state, James Byrnes, is not only a former senator, but a former Supreme court justice. Byrnes provides an understanding link with the judicial branch as well as with the legislative. The secretary of the treasury, Fred Vinson, is a former member of congress as well as an ex-judge. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson is not only a former member of congress, but was head of the house food committee, which directed some of the most serious criticism against the former administration's handling of the food situation. This committee is now working closely with the new cabinet member.

While Secretary of Commerce Wallace does not bring to his department the close associations of the men over whom he presided as president of the senate, the scope and function of his office has been considerably reduced by the reorganization of the department and so is not a source of friction. In his secretary of labor, President Truman has a man who was exceedingly popular in the senate—another judge—Lewis Schwellenbach.

Of course, when it comes to questions like the poll-tax and the fair employment practices act or any other measure in which the race question is involved, the old friction arises with the southern congressmen and any Republicans they can attract to their cause. Also, while there are those who say that the President is steering a course much farther to the right than President Roosevelt did, he nevertheless is committed to a number of the so-called New Deal "reforms," both because of his record in the senate and because of his natural leanings. However, since Truman is known to be a strong party man, it will be easier for him to keep the southern Democrats in line.

Of course, some of the radical New Dealers are doing a lot of eyebrow raising behind the bushes and a remark (perhaps written with tongue in cheek) which appeared in the Wall Street Journal sent shivers down some spines. That newspaper, which hardly depends on Democratic support for its circulation, said recently: "Not since the short-lived administration of Warren Harding has there been the prospect of teamwork as exists today."

If the results of the Berlin meeting are such that they reveal a marked improvement in Big Three relations and a harmonious settlement of some of the difficult international problems, the President's prestige will be greatly increased. However, by that time domestic discontent will be crystallizing, the honeymoon will be on the wane and the President will need all the "teamwork" he can muster.

If the Japanese war should, by any chance, end suddenly—before another year—it would mean that reconversion, threats of inflation and unemployment and a hundred other problems will be upon us and President Truman will be stripped of his protective authority as Commander-in-Chief. Then the slings and arrows which even Roosevelt's enemies were wont to deflect to congress and other government agencies will be aimed squarely at the man in the White House. Peace will not be too peaceful at 3200 Pennsylvania avenue.

NO PANACEA KNOWN FOR FARM PROBLEM
WASHINGTON.—Mr. Truman's new foodmaster, Anderson, put it mildly when he announced, upon taking up his job, that he could not cure the food crisis with a magic wand.

All he has been given is a baton, with no discernible magic appendages. His power has not been increased one-half of a whit in the new OPA bill, and, as food expert Herbert Hoover commented, congress wasted its time when it talked loudly for weeks about helping him, then failed to do anything.

This means Anderson's unmagic wand will be only as long as Mr. Truman decides when Anderson tries to do something from now on.

That Anderson cannot do much is the common conclusion of intimates of the problem. When the supply and distribution system is once broken down, as ours has been, long and powerful mending is required to get it going again.

Anderson is working not only in a delicate price-help-machinery condition, but to restore a system disrupted by years of abusive regulations. That is only half of it. The food system is not only war weary, and heavily laden with disruptive regulation; it is now dominated extensively by the black market, an invisible but powerful force.

For example, the corn-hog ratio has been fixed high enough now by Washington to stimulate pork production. But that result has not followed. Pig production prospects are definitely down despite Washington pulling of the main spring which was supposed to send them up.

These considerations furnish only a fast glance at how high the cards are stacked against Mr. Anderson.

This is all anyone of authority really hopes for, although the publicity mills are grinding out the daily prospects that everything is going to become better and better.

CROP OUTLOOK MIXED

Crop prospects are mixed. The wheat outlook is splendid, corn doubtful. So the publicity mills are playing the wheat prospects, ignoring corn. Yet if you will look into the weekly farm weather bulletins, you will find much corn has not been planted at this late date, due to weather. Much has rotted and been replanted.

Vegetables, outside the Florida area, are hopeful. Apples were ruined by March warmth and cold, which factor also hurt the citrus fruits seriously.

Eggs are getting shorter and shorter. The increased civilian allocations of poultry for six border states will not solve the poultry situation for them, or anyone. Poultry deficiencies are really due to the meat shortage, and will continue as long as it does.

The better June marketing figures for beef will not ease the meat situation, as the army is still taking 50 to 60 per cent of all meat available for interstate commerce. Beef, however, will be somewhat more easily available, due to better local slaughtering arrangements in some areas.

Now as to wheat, the most favorable produce, one of Anderson's first acts was to keep acreage requests to farmers for 1946 about the same as now. Superficially this may appear a doubtful move, especially as the government simultaneously announced it expected to increase shipments to Europe.

The inner truth of the matter is not much can be shipped to Europe, because ships are not available. Most bottoms already have gone to the Pacific to supply our armies. Secondly, we have a carry-over of 350 million bushels of wheat.

Added to our expected production of 1,085 million bushels, this will give us more than 1,400 million bushels at the end of this crop year, and we need normally at home only 750 million bushels. So Anderson has played wheat reasonably safe.

The increase in rye acreage for 1946 anticipates more for whisky and rye bread, the outlook for these two minor matters of living being exceptionally bright.

As for corn (meaning hogs and to some extent cattle) no one will know much what we will have before fall and next year's acreage on that will be announced after a survey of the marketing situation then.

No new farm machinery (excepting harvesters) will be available until fall, and the greatest need is for planters and cultivators. The discharge plans of the army will not be sufficient to solve the farm labor problem this year. Frankly, I would not want Mr. Anderson's job.

Uncle Sam Reports on His Real Estate Deals With His Red Children; He Bought 2,600,000 Square Miles at Average of 48 Cents an Acre

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
Released by Western Newspaper Union.
RECENTLY the department of the interior issued a new colored map, the first of its kind, which shows how Uncle Sam since 1790 has acquired the nation's public domain from 66 principal Indian tribes by some 389 treaties and numerous acts of congress. A study of this map shows that these cessions by the red man constitute about 95% of the public domain, or something like 2,600,000 square miles. In so far as the aggregate cost of this land was approximately $800,000,000—that means a little more than $307 a square mile or approximately 48 cents an acre—it would seem that Uncle Sam certainly got a bargain in these dealings with his red children.

In a statement issued at the time the map was released, Secretary Harold Ickes of the department of the interior declared that "while questions are still frequently raised as to whether the Indians received fair prices for their land, the records show that, except in a very few cases where military duress was present, the prices were such as to satisfy the Indians. Discussions of enhancement of land prices from original costs to the present estimated value of nearly 40 billion dollars only lead to idle speculation. There is no equitable basis of value comparison then and now.

"Some Black Pages."
"While the history of our dealings with the Indians contains some black pages, since the days of the early settlers there has been a fixed policy based upon the principle of free purchase and sale in dealings between the native inhabitants of the land and the white immigrants. In no other continent has any serious attempt ever been made to deal with a weak aboriginal population on these terms.

"While the 15 million dollars that we paid to Napoleon in the Louisiana Purchase was merely in compensation for his cession of political authority, we proceeded to pay the Indian tribes of the ceded territory more than 20 times this sum for such lands as they were willing to sell. Moreover, the Indian tribes were wise enough to reserve from their cessions sufficient land to bring them an income that each year exceeds the amount of our payment to Napoleon."

It is true, as Secretary Ickes says, that in the majority of cases the Indians probably received a fair price for their lands since there is no equitable basis of value comparison, but it is doubtful if the Sioux, the Nez Percés, the Modocs and the Poncas—to name only a few—would agree with Mr. Ickes that the "principle of free purchase and sale" had been observed in their dealings with the Great White Father. Certainly they have reason to regard his treatment of them as some of the "black pages" which the secretary mentions, in which "military duress" was very definitely present.

Louisiana Territory.
Since Mr. Ickes mentions the Louisiana Purchase, it might be well to examine briefly the record of our government's dealings with one of the aboriginal occupants of that region, the Sioux. For generations these Dakotas had occupied a vast empire along the Missouri river, including most of the present states of North and South Dakota and parts of Nebraska, Wyoming and Montana. Gradually their territory had been reduced by a series of treaties until they held only their choicest hunting grounds in the Black Hills, the Powder river country and the Big Horn mountains.

That was guaranteed to them, by the Fort Laramie treaty of 1868, as a "permanent reservation" and, besides, they were granted, for as long as there were buffalo on the plains, "the right to hunt on any land north of the Platte." This reservation was to be considered "unceded Indian territory" in which "no white person or persons shall be permitted to settle or occupy any portion of the same or, without the consent of the Indians first had and obtained, to pass through the same." Moreover, it was agreed that no subsequent treaty should be considered valid "unless executed and signed by at least three-fourths of all the adult male Indians occupying and interested in the same."

The government kept its promise already ridden off to Canada. But the army put it into operation with vast enthusiasm. In the fall and winter of 1876 cavalrymen seized 8,567 ponies from baffled, friendly Indians, at Camp Robinson, Neb., and Dakota Indian agencies. "Sioux and their friends were quick to clamor for payment; by 1892 the U. S. government had paid a quarter of a million dollars in damages. But even this left 2,298 horses still unpaid for.

Great White Father

"When Sitting Bull's outlaw Sioux massacred Gen. George A. Custer and five troops of the Seventh cavalry on the Little Big Horn, the U. S. rumbled with indignation. Amid all the furore the Army brass was struck by a wonderful idea—since it was almost impossible to catch mounted Sioux, why not take away their horses?"
"This scheme had obvious defects, the chief of which was that Sitting Bull and most of his followers had and distrusts of our present profession of friendship and good will, were portrayed in colors so vivid and language so terse that admiration and surprise would have kept us silent had not shame and humiliation done so. That which made this arraignment more telling was that it often came from the lips of men who are our friends and who had hoped against hope that the day might come when their wrongs would be redressed.

Sioux Had to Like It.
Since the Sioux didn't have much choice in the matter, they signed the treaty offered them. Here's what another historian says about it (not an Indian historian, but a white historian). George E. Hyde, author of "Red Cloud's Folk—A History of the Ogala Sioux Indians," writes:
"But the object had been attained at last, and under the cloud of war the government had taken the Black Hills, the Powder River lands and the Bighorn country. The pretense of formal agreement and fair payment which congress had devised to veil this act of robbery did not even deceive the Indians. The chiefs knew that they were being robbed and that they were forced to sign away their lands. Here are beef, flour and blankets (said the United States) for your lands in Laramie Plains and between the forks of the Platte, which we took from you before 1865; and here (said the United States) are the same beef, flour and blankets for your lands in Nebraska which we took before 1870; and (said the United States, with an air of vast generosity) here are the same beef, flour and blankets for the Black Hills, the Powder River, and the Bighorn lands which we are now taking from you. In all fairness, that is very near the true meaning of the 'agreement' of 1876, by means of which these last lands were taken from the Sioux."

So the Sioux were finally settled on a greatly reduced reservation within the present states of North and South Dakota. But even then the Great White Father wasn't through with them. In 1888 another commission went to the Standing Rock reservation to swing the cession of 11 million acres of Sioux lands at a fixed price of 50 cents an acre ("an outrageous robbery," Stanley Vestal, biographer of Sitting Bull, calls it) and break up the great Sioux reservation into smaller ones: Sitting Bull lined up the chiefs against it, then went to Washington where he succeeded in getting the price raised to $1.25 an acre.

The next year another commission came to Standing Rock to bargain with the Sioux at the new price but found themselves blocked at every turn by Sitting Bull. Finally by making various promises (many of which were never kept, incidentally) they managed to get enough chiefs to agree to the sale. So, in the words of Vestal, "the cession was signed, the great Sioux Reservation was only a memory. It was the death of a nation." Among the promises that were not kept was one about supplying rations to the Sioux, penned up on their reduced reservations, and in the winter of 1890-91 that broken promise bore bitter fruit. For the Sioux, suffering from hunger and disillusionment, became easy victims to the apostles of the Ghost Dance and before that excitement was over the shameful story of the massacre at Wounded Knee had been written on one of the "black pages" which Secretary Ickes mentions.

As indicated previously some of the other "black pages" bear the stories of our dealings with the Nez Percés, the Modocs and the Poncas. That is why it is likely that any member of those tribes, as well as the Sioux, who reads the secretary's statement about "a fixed policy based upon the principle of free purchase and sale in dealings between the native inhabitants of the land and the white immigrants" will probably smile—and there won't be much humor in that smile!

Forty Tribes Celebrate Festival at Gallup, N. M.

Indian drums are sounding in the far places of the Southwest, and the Navajos, Zunis, Hopis, Utes, Apaches, Lagunas, Acomas and a score of other tribesmen and their families are trekking to "the place by the bridge," Gallup, N. M.
Here each year 7,000 Indians from nearly 40 different tribes join forces to produce America's most colorful and spectacular Indian show, the annual Inter-Tribal Indian Ceremonial. For four days they dance, chant, compete in sports and engage in weird pagan rites before capacity audiences made up of their white brothers. The Gallup Ceremonial is the largest and most authentic Indian spectacle of its kind in the country. Usually the Ceremonial is held the last part of August.
A special attraction each year is the unusual display of Indian arts and crafts in the Exhibit Hall where thousands of articles are shown. A score of native craftsmen will be at work showing the technique of Indian handicraft.

"By 1928, when an investigation of Indian claims was authorized, time had not simplified the problem. But this spring, 69 years after Little Big Horn, Congress voted to pay off the last of the Sioux claims. Last week the President solemnly signed a bill granting them $101,630 ($91,920 for ponies, $9,710 for property lost in the scuffle). Nobody suggested restoring the Sioux to mobility by replacing the horses with second-hand jeeps."—Time Magazine.

Kathleen Norris Says: Blessed Are the Meek

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"I adore my Bill, but that doesn't mean that I want to swallow his family whole."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

TODAY'S letter comes from a bride of only a few months; Marjorie married her flier when he came home, honorably discharged, after 22 months of hard service. They were engaged for a year, but in that year saw each other only twice, for a few days interval. Bill is handsome, clever, devoted—and rich. Marjorie didn't know how rich until now, when they are going to his home city, Philadelphia, to live.

"This is my trouble," she writes. "My people are poor, but we come of good stock. My mother for many years supported my grandmother and myself by teaching. She is not strong now, lives with my grandmother, and there is almost no money, but for fitness and goodness there never were two more genuine saints."

"Bill and I are to have 'one of the family houses' to live in. We are to have 'Uncle Phil's house,' which he says is filled with old revolutionary junk, or 'Grandpa's house,' which is handsome but smaller. His mother writes me that 'old Emma' will bring to us at once as cook, and bring two granddaughters to 'make themselves useful.' Aunts and cousins of Bill's write him that they want to know when 'dear Marjorie' would like to be entertained—would I like a tea or a formal reception?"

Too Much 'Class.'
"All this appalls and annoys me. I hate that sort of thing. Bill takes it all seriously; he has three brothers, one sister, and countless cousins and other relatives. He hopes his grandmother will give us the Revue portingers, and wants me to be painted by the feller that has painted us all."

"I begin to feel that no wealth or position will make up for the independence I have enjoyed for years as a newspaper woman, and am sure already that I want my mother and grandmother to go East with me. I will be lost and strange in that big family, obliged to grin and bear all sorts of things that are absolutely unnatural to me, and I'll need support—and confidantes. I adore my Bill, but that doesn't mean that I want to swallow his family whole. This business of having a house picked out for me, and servants, too, is a little thick. Bill says we'll have plenty of room for Mother and Gran, but it's afraid they won't like it. Mother is dubious, but Gran says she'll do anything I want. They both love our San Diego cottage, and their life here, but neither is young, and I simply can't bear to leave them. Bill won't promise to come back, and altogether I don't know what to do."

My dear Marjorie, I say in answer, you are trying to pour old wine into new bottles, and it won't succeed. More than most young wives, your place is to follow. Bill's lead now, and accept the situation in Philadelphia wholeheartedly. Go on there determined to be good-natured, adaptable, friendly in every way. Don't have much to say, listen and watch and make them like you by sweetness and amiability. Give this experiment a year, in which you criticize nobody, agree to all arrangements; take this new sort of life as if it were a book you are reading, with yourself as heroine.

Lucky in Many Ways.
Heroine you are, of course. The young western wife of a person whose wealth and family connections make him important, beloved and lovely, rich and socially secure—there is a position many girls would envy you. That you are smarter, quicker, more amusing, more independent, than the men and women you are going to meet, I am taking for granted. Those fine old long-established families have wonderful characteristics, but they can be dull! Only, if you'll be patient enough to endure the surface dullness for awhile, you'll find under it a wonderful dignity and integrity, characteristics that you'll be glad someday to hand on to your children.
As for taking your mother and grandmother with you, that would be a fatal mistake. To move from the fresh sea air and riotous gardens of San Diego, where the climate is the most equable in the whole world, to eastern snows and summer storms, might seriously affect the health of them both. They would both feel intruders—in fact, they would actually be intruders, and in attempting to reconcile their claims and those of the big family you would jeopardize your married happiness, perhaps irretrievably.
Play your part with dignity and patience, always remembering that blessed are the meek, and you'll find yourself most enviably placed one of these days, in the heart of the very finest of our American culture. Your children will have a background as fine as any in the world, and opportunities and advantages worthy of a good name. Don't throw these things away because of the shallow satisfaction that assertiveness, sensitivity, pride, resentment will give you now. Make your new family love you, and you'll presently find yourself loving them.

Soap From Coconuts
Possibly 40 per cent of the 1945 imports of copra into the United States will go to priority uses, but most of the remainder will probably be used in making soap. Glycerine, in great wartime demand for the making of explosives, is a by-product of soap-making. Coconut oil yields about 40 per cent more glycerine than domestic fats and oils.
Soap-making is now a highly technical process. For instance, tallow gives body to soap, but it takes coconut oil to make it lather freely.

Louis Chevalier Land Grant

The Louis Chevalier Land Grant is the oldest title to Isosco county land in existence, extending back to the time when Michigan was a part of New France. The land is located in what is AuSable township and was in the possession of Louis Chevalier, a fur trader associated with Joseph Campau of Detroit when the Northwest territory was taken from Great Britain. Chevalier's claim to the land was confirmed by the United States, and recorded July 4, 1823, at Michilimachic. The original description, written in French, calls for land extending 80 arpents west of the mouth of the Riviere aux Sables, or Sandy river. The three-mile long tract embracing 640 acres, was purchased from the heirs of Chevalier by Joseph Campau and later acquired by H. N. Loud & Sons.

5 Good Country Tricks for Saving More Used Fats

THIS year our domestic supply of fats and oils will be approximately one and one-half billion pounds less than last year. Right now, we are facing our worst fat shortage since the war began. To make up for this staggering loss, the government is depending on the women of America—and particularly women on farms and in smaller cities.

Every spoonful, every drop of fat is needed to help make battlefield and homefront essentials. So roll up your sleeves and do an all-out job, won't you? Clip this checker and pin it up in your kitchen as a reminder.

- FRIED SALT PORK—with milk gravy. Salt pork yields so much grease, you won't need it all for gravy. Pour the rest into the salvage can.
- DEEP FAT FRYING—use the fat over and over, but when it's too dark and smelly to use any more, don't forget Uncle Sam wants it!
- ROASTS AND CHOPS—save all trimmings (scrape from plates, too.) Keep them in a small bowl; once a week melt them down.
- SAUSAGES—they're better if you parboil them first. Skim the fat off the cooking water—scrape the fat from the frying pan.
- CHICKEN SOUP—chill it before you use it. Scoop off the hardened grease (soup tastes better, too!)

When the salvage can is full, take it to your butcher promptly. He will give you 2 red points and up to 4¢ for every pound of used fat you turn in.

100,000,000 More Pounds of Used Fats Are Needed This Year

Approved by WPA and OP. L. Paid for by Industry.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

N. W. U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant Borth was in charge of security. The Major was determined to hold the confidence of the people and to replace the town bell stolen by the Nazis. Despite orders issued by General Marvin, barring carts from the city, Major Joppolo recalled the order, to permit food and water to enter the city. Cacopardo came to the Major asking for permission to see General Marvin, and deliver information on important German troop movements. He was given his pass and set out for the General's headquarters. He was determined to aid the Americans against the Nazis.

CHAPTER XIII

"Oh," said the sentry, "why didn't you say you had a pass? Sure, the General's here." And he shouted: "The Old Man's in, ain't he, Buck?"

"Yeah, I think His Nibs came in about half an hour ago."

"Yeah, he's in," the sentry said. "What do you want to see him about?"

Cacopardo pulled out the tissue paper. "I can tell you where are the Germans," he said.

"Right up there," the sentry said, pointing up the driveway to the main door of the villa. "Right in that there door."

The jeep drove up to the main door. There was another sentry there. When Cacopardo tried to go in, the sentry put his bayoneted rifle across the path. Cacopardo jumped back, alarmed. "I am no enemies," he said. "I have the paper to see General Marvin," and he stretched out the pass. Cacopardo learned quickly, for a man his age.

The sentry took the pass. "Brother, I doubt if you can see the General right now," he said. "He don't like to see no one in the mornings. You stand here a minute." The sentry called the corporal of the guard.

The corporal of the guard came right back. "This way, brother," he said.

He led Cacopardo to a man at a desk.

"Name," the man said gloomily. "Cacopardo."

"Is that a first name, or a last name?" the sour man said.

"That is the name of my family," Cacopardo said.

"How you spell that?"

Cacopardo spelled it out. The man wrote laboriously: Cacoparato.

"First name," the unhappy man said.

"Matteo."

"You got to spell those Dago names."

Cacopardo spelled it and the man misspelled it.

"Who you want to see?"

"General Marvin."

"You haven't got a chance of seeing him," the man said. "There's a war going on, Dago. What you want to see the General about?"

Cacopardo reached in his pocket for the tissue paper. "I can show you where are the Germans," he said.

"You'll have to talk with G-two about that," the man said, and he pointed with his pencil. "First door on the right, where it says Colonel Henderson."

Cacopardo went to the door marked Colonel Henderson, and he knocked.

"Walk in," a voice shouted.

"General Marvin?" Cacopardo asked.

"Upstairs, upstairs," the impatient voice, which belonged to a full colonel, said. Cacopardo started out.

"Say, wait a minute."

Cacopardo turned around. The colonel said: "Who are you, anyway?"

"Cacopardo Matteo, I was sent to see General Marvin."

"General Marvin doesn't like Italians," the colonel said. "What do you want to see him about? You better not ask him for any favors, he'll kick you out, personally, himself."

Cacopardo reached in his pocket for the tissue paper. "I can show you where are the Germans," he said.

"You've got no business taking that kind of thing to General Marvin. What do you think we have a G-two section for around here? You can just show that to me."

"I was sent to see General Marvin. That is the one I am going to see."

After an argument with Colonel Henderson, Cacopardo was sent upstairs under guard, was stopped and questioned by a sentry at the head of the stairs, was sent downstairs because he did not have a proper Division pass, was given a pass, was taken upstairs again, was questioned as to age, religion, political beliefs and sex by a sergeant, was interviewed by a staff officer who doubted whether the General would be free to see him, was referred to Colonel Middleton, the General's Chief of Staff, was questioned by Colonel Middleton's secretary, who thought the Colonel was busy, was finally admitted to Colonel Middleton, who, after an argument, agreed to see whether the General would see Cacopardo, which he doubted.

At the moment, General Marvin was playing mumble-te-peg with Lieutenant Byrd, his aide. They had found that a certain mahogany table took the knife beautifully. The General had just reached the double flip off the forehead.

In the interests of justice, Colonel Middleton let the knife go off his forehead. The surprise of Colonel Middleton's entrance was just enough to throw the General off his aim, and the knife clattered on the table and did not stick in. This annoyed the General.

"Haven't I told you to knock, Middleton?"

"Yes, sir. There's an old Italian here wants to see you."

"Middleton, what's the matter with you? Didn't I tell you I didn't want to see any more Italians?"

"Yes, sir. But this one seems to be above the average. He was sent to you by one of our people. He says he has some information you would want."

"Well, show him in. What are you standing there for? Show him in."

And so Cacopardo was finally brought into the presence of the General. By this time he was just as angry as the General, and being some twenty years the General's senior, he considered it his privilege to vent his anger first.

He found perfect expression for his anger in what he saw on the surface of the mahogany table.

"You are a barbarian," he said.

This was not a very good way for old Cacopardo to begin with General Marvin, especially since he had two strikes against him to begin with: he had caught the General in a bad mood, and he was Italian.

"A what?" the General bellowed in his famous voice.

"I said, you are a barbarian. How dare you chop and pick at the surface of my friend Salatiello's table?"

For the sake of argument, it would have made no difference whatsoever

if General Marvin had known that Salatiello had been thirteen years dead. The General could not possibly have been more outraged. He bellowed at the walls, "who is this wop, anyhow?"

"That table was made circa 1775, when your country had not even begun to exist, barbarian. It was carved by Vincenzo di Lucca of Parma. I cannot calculate the values of that table. You are a pig to chop and pick at it."

The General shouted: "Take this crazy wop out of here."

Colonel Middleton and Lieutenant Byrd rushed into the room. They grabbed old Cacopardo, and started to push him out.

"Wait!" the General roared. "Who sent that idiot here, Middleton?"

"I don't know, sir, it was some Major."

"You don't know? It's your business to know."

Colonel Middleton asked Cacopardo: "Who was it who sent you here?"

"My friend Major Joppolo, who is not a barbarian."

Colonel Middleton said: "What unit is this Major from?"

"Adano, from Adano," old Cacopardo said. "From my home, Adano."

"Adano," the General shouted. "There's something about that place. What is it about Adano, Middleton? What is it?"

"The cart, General," Colonel Middleton said. Colonel Middleton would never forget Adano as long as he lived.

"The cart? What cart? Don't talk in riddles, Middleton. What cart?"

"The cart that we threw off the road, sir. The mule we shot, sir."

General Marvin remembered, and the memory turned his face a shade darker. "So that's the Major who sent you," he roared. "What was that name again? I want to remember that name."

"Joppolo," Middleton said.

General Marvin shouted: "Joppolo. Write that down, Middleton, remember that name. That Major's a wop, too. I remember now, he's a wop himself, isn't he, Middleton?"

General Marvin shouted: "Well, I do. Now throw this crazy Italian out of here, and if you let any more Italians in here, Middleton, I'll break you back to a second lieutenant."

"Yes, sir," Colonel Middleton said. As they started to run him out, Cacopardo said: "But I have information. I can tell you where are the Germans. It is important. The Germans, the Germans."

But the General was much too far gone in rage. Cacopardo was taken out and sent home. He couldn't get anyone, not even the sentry at the front gate, to listen to a description of the German positions before Pinnaro.

Behind Major Joppolo's back, Captain Purvis was very critical of him. To his face, the Captain was cordial, even friendly.

The two men now had, besides their mere community of tongue, another thing to draw them together: they both knew the same girls. In a foreign land, that is enough to make Damon and Pythias out of two sworn enemies.

One day at lunch they talked about the girls. They talked as American men do talk about girls when they are abroad.

The Captain said: "That younger one, that Francesca, she sure is nice."

"Just a matter of taste," the Major said.

"Yeah," the Captain said. "What do you say we go up there tonight and see 'em?"

"Let's do that," the Major said. "That would be fun." Then he wondered why he had reacted so quickly and so happily to the Captain's suggestion. The Captain's attitude toward these girls disgusted the Major. The Captain regarded the girls as trash; he seemed to think of them as something to buy and sell, like Italian watermelon and grapes and red wine. The Major refused to believe that he was falling into this way of thinking.

And so it happened that the two dissimilar men went that evening to the house at 9 Via Vittorio Emanuele with very similar feelings of excitement and anticipation.

Major Joppolo and Captain Purvis caught the family of Tomasino by surprise that evening. The fat Rosa was sitting on the living room floor plucking a chicken, and there were feathers all over the room. The radio was on, and the two little daughters of the sister who was in Rome were sitting by it, also on the floor. Francesca and Tina were in brightly colored pajamas, lying on the floor side by side, reading together a cheap Italian romance called "Un Cuore in Tre." Tomasino, who opened the front door, grimly led the two Americans into the room without any advance notice.

Everyone jumped up, the little girls squealing, fat Rosa calling the name of the Lord in English, and the big girls shouting greetings to the Americans.

The family of Tomasino and their guests spent the next five minutes on their hands and knees picking up the chicken feathers. When that was done Rosa said to Tomasino: "Sad one, put the girls to bed." Tomasino led the little ones out without gentleness. Rosa retired to the kitchen with the feathers and the bird, to finish her job.

As soon as the two officers and the two girls in pajamas were left alone, Tina said: "Mister Major, I want to talk with you," and she stretched out her hand for his and led him into her bedroom. Captain Purvis's sober shouts followed them this time: "Hey, don't desert me. I can't talk to this lovely thing. Where you going?" And he subsided, and settled down for an evening of desperate sign language.

Tina sat down on her bed and the Major sat down on a chair by a wooden dressing table.

"I want to ask you something, Mister Major," Tina said.

"Yes!" the Major said. He did not know what to expect, but he expected it would please him, whatever it was.

"How long do you think the war will last? Here on Italian soil, I mean."

The Major found that he was not pleased. "That's a very serious question," he said. "Let's not talk about war. That's all I have all day long, war, war, war."

"But I have a special reason for wanting to know," Tina said. "How long do you think it will last?"

"How should I know?" the Major asked. His voice was a little testy. "If I knew that, I would have to know a lot more about our plans for the campaign, and if I knew the plans, I would know military secrets, and I couldn't tell you secrets if I knew them."

"But you can guess, Mister Major."

"All right, I guess two more months."

"And how long do you think it will be after those two months before our Italian prisoners of war are released?"

Major Joppolo got the point very quickly, and it did not please him in the least. "You have a sweetheart who has been captured?"

One Dessert—Many Variations (See Recipes Below)

Variations on a Theme

I have often thought that most of us would be better cooks if we learned to make a few dishes well instead of gathering hundreds of recipes without ever learning how to do any one of them well enough to set in front of company. Then, if these few dishes get monotonous, there are always good variations to use to make them seem entirely different than the basic recipe.

One woman whom I know frankly admits that the only dessert which she can be certain of turning out "right and proper" is a bavarian cream. But is it monotonous to have bavarian cream whenever we go to have dinner with her? No, indeed. Sometimes it turns out to be maple flavored, garnished with pecan nuts. Another time she will cleverly flavor it with chocolate and coffee, a most intriguing combination. Then during the fruit season, she has a spree by adding delicious combinations like pineapple and apricots.

Basic Bavarian Cream. (Serves 6)

1 envelope plain, unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup thin cream
2 egg whites

Soften gelatin in cold water. Scald milk in top part of double boiler, then gradually add the combined egg yolks, sugar and salt. Return to the double boiler and cook until custard-like in consistence. Remove from heat, add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add vanilla and cream. Chill, and when mixture begins to thicken, beat until fluffy with rotary egg beater. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour into mold or molds that have been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. When ready to serve, unmold and garnish as desired.

Bavarian Cream Variations.

Maple Bavarian: Make above recipe using shaved maple sugar in place of white sugar. One dozen cut marshmallows may be added or ½ cup chopped pecans or walnuts.

Butterscotch: Omit white sugar. Cook ¾ cup brown sugar with 2 tablespoons butter and add this to hot custard.

Chocolate Rice: Beat 3 tablespoons cocoa into 1 cup cooked rice and fold into bavarian mixture.

Fruit Bavarian: Fold 1 cup diced fruit into bavarian cream after it starts to thicken.

Chocolate Bavarian: Add 2 squares melted, unsweetened chocolate or 6 tablespoons cocoa to scalded milk. Continue as directed. If a slight flavor of coffee is desired with the chocolate, substitute 1 tablespoon cold, boiled coffee for 1 tablespoon of the milk.

Coffee Bavarian: Substitute ½ cup cold, boiled coffee for ½ cup milk and add 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Ice cream comes in for many delicious variations, too, if you have a good basic recipe:

Custard Base Ice Cream.

2 cups milk
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
3 eggs
1 cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Scald ½ cups milk and add all but 2 tablespoons of the sugar to it. Add cornstarch and salt to remaining ½ cup milk. Add to milk which has been heated in top part of double boiler, stirring occasionally. Beat 3 egg yolks and 1 white, add the hot custard and return to double boiler to cook for 5 minutes. Chill. Beat 2 egg whites with the remaining sugar until stiff and add to chilled custard with vanilla. Finally add cream which has been beaten until thick but not stiff. Freeze without stirring.

Ice Cream Variations.

Banana: Crush three bananas through potato ricer, adding 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Add to custard before adding egg white.

Caramel: Heat the sugar of the above recipe in heavy skillet stirring until melted and light brown in color. Add ¼ cup water and stir until smooth. Cook the cornstarch with the milk and salt and add the caramel plus 1 tablespoon of sugar. Proceed as directed above.

Chocolate: Melt ½ to 2 tablespoons of chocolate over hot water adding to custard while hot.

Coffee: Scald ½ cup finely ground coffee in the milk, then strain through three thicknesses of cheesecloth. Proceed as above, adding ½ teaspoon almond flavoring.

Mint: Add ½ teaspoon mint extract for vanilla. Tint the ice cream a delicate green. Or, if mint extract is not available, melt 1 cup crushed or ground mints in milk. Tint pink or green, as desired.

Peach: Add 1 cup crushed peaches, ½ cup sugar and ¾ teaspoon almond extract. Omit vanilla.

Now we come to an interesting variation in the meat department. When you want to dress up pork chops for company, here are two excellent suggestions. They are stuffed to stretch the meat.

Pork Chops I.

6 thick pork chops (cut pocket alongside bone)
2 cups toasted bread cubes
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons parsley
4 tablespoons fat
1 can tomato soup

Stuff pork chops with toasted bread cubes and parsley. Pin together with a toothpick. Sear chops on both sides in skillet. Season with salt and pepper, add tomato soup, cover and cook over low heat for 45 to 60 minutes.

Pork Chops II.

6 thick pork chops, cut for stuffing
1½ cups cooked rice
2 pimientos, shredded
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons lard or substitute

Stuff pork chops with a well seasoned mixture of rice and pimientos. Pin with toothpick. Sear chops until golden brown. Season with salt and pepper, and add ½ cup water, cover tightly, and cook until tender.

There's no business institution more thoroughly American than the General Store.

Yet, do you realize that America is not even self-sufficient enough to keep that General Store running efficiently and prosperously?

For instance, its delivery truck was made in America; but 300 products, from 56 countries, went into its making. The telephone over which the orders come is American-made. But 18 of the telephone's important materials came from outside the country.

The coffee, the tea, the sugar, the tin in the cans, the cocoa and chocolate... these and many more of the things the store buys and sells came from overseas. Take them away and business languishes, becomes more difficult to operate. Take them away, and the community's standard of living declines, life itself becomes less pleasant.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

By drastic planning, production and supervision of current supplies, the equivalent of 900,000 tires was saved in one year in Britain.

By an arrangement of overlapping rubber lips, a zipper has been developed by B. F. Goodrich that effectively seals liquids, air and gases. Now being used in pressure-sealing doors for airplanes, waterproof supply kits and aviation fuel cells, its post-war uses are numerous.

Automatic tire inflation such as now used on the Army's amphibious "Duck" is a post-war possibility for passenger cars.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Christmas parcels shall not exceed 5 pounds in weight or 15 inches in length or 36 inches in length and girth combined. The Armed Forces are amply supplied with food and clothing and the public is urged not to include such matter in gift parcels.

Christmas parcels for Army personnel en route overseas shortly before or subsequent to October 15, 1945, will be accepted after that date, up to and including December 10, 1945, upon the presentation by the senders of a change of address notification. Only one such parcel will be accepted from any one person.

Because of the great distance these parcels must be transported and the handling and storage they must undergo, it is absolutely necessary that all articles for overseas be packed in boxes of metal, wood, solid fiberboard, testing at least 200 lbs.

Each box should be securely tied with strong cord, preferably by four separate pieces, two lengthwise and two crosswise, knotted at crossings. The use of gummed tape alone is not satisfactory since the tape loosens if the boxes become wet or exposed to moist atmosphere.

It is also desirable that all boxes be securely wrapped in heavy paper. The boxes should be tied as above suggested before and after wrapping. Sealed boxes should bear the printed inscription authorizing opening for postal inspection.

Intoxicants, inflammable material, including matches and lighter fluids, poisons, or compositions which may kill or injure another, or damage the mails are unmailable.

Addresses must be legible in type writing or ink. It is preferable that the outside addresses be hand printed directly on the wrappers, since the gummed labels frequently fall off when subjected to moisture. It is also desirable that slips containing the names and addresses of the senders and addresses and a list of the contents be inclosed in the parcel.

The public is urged to use postal money orders to transmit gifts of money. With regards to each, patrons should be informed that in many places there is a local prohibition against the importation of United States money and it could not be used if received.
