Humphrey Starts New Building

Fletcher Buys Super-Service Site Here

Arthur Ziehl to Start Building Soon

Ground was broken this week by Stanley Humphrey for his new auto sales and service building at the foot of First street on Lake street. The Fletcher Oil Company of Bay City has purchased the adjoining 200 foot frontage for a super service gasoline station. This purchase includes the Frank Dease Garage building now occupied by the Rempert Garage. Arthur Ziehl moved here last week from Detroit and plans to start constructing his new super service station on property formerly occupied by the James Robinson Service Station. All of these projects portend a great improvement to that particular portion of the business section of Tawas City.

Stanley Humphrey's building will be located on the site of the Wilson Grain Company elevator destroyed by fire several years ago. The new building will be constructed of concrete blocks with modern brick and plate glass front. It will be 60x66 feet. Construction work will be by Frank Myers & Son of Wilber. Dynamite was used by Oscar Jarvela to crack up the old coal shed walls, preparatory to putting in footings for the new building. The blast was done Thursday evening.

In addition to the auto sales and service, the new Humphrey Building will accommodate Gulf service and a used car sales department.

Mr. Humphrey is well known in the automobile sales field of this county. He has the agency for Pontiac cars and GM trucks.

Details of the Fletcher Oil Company and Arthur Ziehl projects have not been released.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baker died of a heart attack on Wednesday while working in the yard at her home in Tawas township.

Lucina Parent was born May 15, 1885, in Bay City and came to Tawas township 31 years ago to make her home. She is survived by her husband, George Baker; daughter, Mrs. Cora Congdon of Bay City and son, Pfc. Charles Baker in the European area, six brothers and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 8:30 at the Jacques Funeral Home and at 9:00 from St. Joseph church with Rev. Robert Neumann officiating. Burial will be at Gagetown in the St. Agatha Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moeller and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Moeller spent Sunday at Mackinaw City and Petoskey, where they visited their uncle, Albert Moeller.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schlacht of Detroit spent the week end with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Harris of Buffalo, New York, spent a few days here last week.

Rev. Nathaniel Luedtke and wife and two children of Hemlock, Michigan, and Paul and Mary Luedtke of Toledo, Ohio, spent Saturday with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moeller and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Moeller spent Sunday at Mackinaw City and Petoskey, where they visited their uncle, Albert Moeller.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Glumm of Lansing and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neumann of Detroit visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neumann last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Leslie and daughter, Arlene, spent the week end in Tilsonburg, Ontario, with relatives.

The meeting will be called at 7:30.

Land for New Ex-Servicemen

A piece of land somewhere in northern Michigan, preferably near good fishing water, is what many a serviceman dreamed during the long months since Pearl Harbor.

Now, when the rate of discharges from the services is being stepped up, many veterans are seeking to turn their dreams into actualities.

The conservation department's lands division is getting inquiries by the score from servicemen who want to purchase State-owned lands.

Some lands in the 47 Michigan counties north of the Muskegon-Bay City line, held by the department, are on the market.

They are tax-reverted lands, usually unsuitable for farming, that have not been incorporated in the various state forests, game areas, refuges, or parks that are administered by the department. None of them are frontage lands, the department reserving all such lands to provide access for the public to fishing waters.

Unannounced night patrols of deer territory are to be continued by conservation department law enforcement officers.

Nineteen arrests were made over the Labor Day week-end when a flying squadron of more than 75 conservation officers checked 589 cars on woods roads in eight upstate counties.

It was a second such intensive effort to check illegal taking of deer to be made in recent weeks.

The officers were detailed to patrols in Roscommon, Montmorency, Alpena, Crawford, Alcona, Otsego, Iosco and Cheboygan counties.

IN the SERVICE

Cpl. Arthur R. Wuggazer, who spent 14 months with the 95th Gas Treatment Battalion in Europe, is spending a part of his 30 day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wuggazer in this city.

Cpl. Owen Wheeler arrived Tuesday in Boston from the European War Theatre. His wife (Jeanette Koepke) and little daughter are expecting him home this week end.

S-Sgt. Luke McMurray arrived Wednesday in New York and phoned his mother, Mrs. May McMurray, that he would be home by the first of next week.

Irwin M. Teall, seaman first class, USNR, reported at the Armed Guard Center, Treasure Island, after spending 12 months as a member of a gun crew aboard a merchant ship.

The Armed Guard Center on Treasure Island directs the training and assignment of all officers and enlisted personnel of Navy gun crews of merchant vessels in the Pacific.

Charles N. Simons, ships cook, USNR, serves at the Naval Force organization at Pearl Harbor.

Revocation of government control over deliveries of coal by retail dealers removes the necessity to limit domestic consumers to 80 per cent of normal requirements for anthracite and scarce eastern bituminous.

Ickes, who took the action as Solid Fuels Administrator, said the overall supply of oil for home heating is now sufficient to meet consumers' needs in general.

Controls over shipments from producers and wholesalers to retail dealers will be retained to assure each community an equitable share of available coal, coke and other solid fuels.

Restrictions on delivery of coal to household consumers were lifted by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

Mrs. John McMullen

Mrs. Minnie Etta McMullen, widow of the late John McMullen, well known Wilber township pioneer farmer, died Wednesday following a cerebral hemorrhage. Mrs. McMullen had been in poor health the past year.

Born at Brighton, Michigan, February 8, 1869, she was married to John McMullen in 1887. She and Mr. McMullen resided on their farm in Wilber township until his death February 26, 1936, when she moved to East Tawas. She was a member of the East Tawas Methodist church and Irene Rebekah Lodge.

Mrs. McMullen is survived by thirteen children, William C. McMullen of Detroit, Charles C. McMullen of Lansing, Mrs. Margaret Miller of Mt. Clemens, Roy McMullen of Battle Creek, Mrs. Nellie Smith of Mio, Mrs. Hazel Tait of East Tawas, John and Fay McMullen of Flint Mrs. Mabel LaPayette of Grosse Isle, Walter McMullen of Flint, Mrs. Jennie Schaff of Flint and Mrs. Charlotte Schaff of East Tawas, Mrs. Evelyn Anderson of Ferndale, and 21 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the East Tawas Methodist church. Rev. Frank Benish will officiate.

Veteran D. & M. Employee Retires

J. Roual LaBerge With Road 36 Years

J. Roual LaBerge, chief accountant at the Detroit & Mackinac Railway office for the past 37 years, retired last week after 36 years of service with the railroad.

Mr. LaBerge began his railroad career as a clerk in the Tawas City depot in 1900. He subsequently served as agent at Prescott and was chief clerk at Alpena and Cheboygan. From 1912 to 1920 he was bookkeeper for a firm at Alpena, returning to the railroad office as chief time-keeper in 1920.

Mr. LaBerge reached retirement age of 65 on August 2, but remained on the job for the balance of the month.

Flint Youths Admit Series of Robberies

Change Truck's Color To Avoid Arrest

In an attempt to evade arrest Tuesday—within a period of three hours—two Flint youths repainted a stolen truck and then returned to Hale where they had first been seen by officers. At 12:30 p. m., Sheriff John Moran and Trooper Joseph Svoke saw a truck on the streets of Hale which answered to the description of a truck which had been stolen at West Branch. Everything fit the description except the license number. When they saw it again at 3:30 they did not recognize it in its new shiny aluminum, trimmed with jade green.

Harry N. Davis and Clare C. Smith, the two Flint youths, are now in the county jail awaiting sentence by Judge Herman Dehnke. Davis and Smith were arraigned Thursday before Judge Dehnke. Both pleaded guilty to breaking and entering.

At 9:30 Tuesday morning Charles Bellville of Whittemore called Sheriff Moran stating that his gas station had been broken into, also the Gulf Gas station of Charles Parlo. A few minutes later Millard Dyer phoned from Hale and said that Enos LaBerge's hardware store at Long Lake had been robbed. Sheriff Moran and Trooper Svoke went to Whittemore where they made an investigation and then started for Long Lake. Sheriff Moran said yesterday, "We had information that a truck had been stolen at West Branch. When we got into Hale we noticed a truck which answered to the description, but the license number was different. We stopped at the Atkinson Gas station to enquire about the truck. We found that two young men had been in Hale Monday and Tuesday with the truck. When we went to investigate, the truck had disappeared."

Two more State Police cars were called and thorough search was started in the vicinity of Hale. At 3:30 Mrs. Moran at Tawas City received a call that the wanted truck was back in Hale. The message was relayed to Trooper Svoke and Sheriff Moran who were about two miles from Hale. They returned to the village and the two boys were apprehended. The truck had changed color.

The boys started from Saginaw Saturday with a stolen Hudson car. They spent Sunday at Hale. When a tire blew out near West Branch, they hitch hiked into the city where they stole the truck from Russell Jackson.

When taken by Sheriff Moran and State Police the boys admitted to thefts at Long Lake, West Branch, Whittemore and Standish, and took the officers to the Y. M. C. A. property north of Hale where they had been staying, and where they had left the stolen goods.

(Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson contributes a guest column.)

By CLINTON P. ANDERSON
Secretary of Agriculture

WASHINGTON. — The first Sunday after V-J Day, a friend came by with an automobile to take my family and his for a drive into the country to have dinner with another friend. Nothing like that had happened in years. We were all delighted at the chance to ride through country lanes, to talk about the height of the corn, the possibilities of crops, and the probability that we would enjoy meat for dinner.

But as we started back into Washington, we could not help but notice that the roads were filling up. There was a long line of traffic and many folks drove by at speeds which seemed reckless to us. They were perhaps driving 40 or 45 miles an hour and we had become accustomed to the 35-mile an hour leisurely gait.

When one speeding car swirled past us, I heard my wife murmur, "My, what I wouldn't give to have gasoline rationing back."

I began to wonder how many of the things that war had brought to us as sacrifices or privations we would soon come to appreciate as blessings in disguise. I began to wonder how long it would be before people would sometimes sigh for some of the real advantages of the days during the war when we all lived a little closer together, a little more simply, and perhaps a little more in the traditional American pattern that had started this country on its way to becoming a great nation.

Real Values of Life.

Do you remember back in the years of the depression that Henry Ansley out in Amarillo, Texas, wrote a book entitled, "I Like the Depression?" Frankly, I liked his little book, because he told of the blessings that had come to him with a reversal in his financial situation. He told of the discoveries that he had made as the period of wild prosperity passed and the long months of depression set in. He told of the farmers who had gone back to living on their farms instead of living off their farms.

The war has done something to all of us. It made us appreciate some of the real values of life that many of us had lost sight of. We all complained a little about the war, didn't we? We were a little disappointed when we found that the stocks of new cars were frozen, but we discovered that the old car was a lot better and would run a lot longer than we had thought.

Car-Pool Neighbors.

I remember my first experience with a car pool. We had two automobiles at our house; our next door neighbor had two automobiles at his place. We were not well acquainted, mostly because it wasn't necessary, until the war came along. Then my next door neighbor and I and two others, who heretofore had gone to our offices by separate means, found ourselves fused together into a car pool. We were irrevocably tied to each other. We had to rise at the same time in the morning, leave at the same hour for work, and return home together in the evening.

I am sure that at first we all resented a little the fact that we lost our freedom of action, but we gained a great lesson in neighborliness. We found out that the people who lived next to us might be just as interesting and attractive, just as pleasant and just as companionable as the people whom we had always known who lived down the street or across the city.

Victory Garden Blessing.

How many women improved their figures as they walked to market! And think what Victory gardens did for the men!

Like Drew Pearson, I will perhaps be away from Washington when this column is printed, away on a short vacation. While I am gone, someone will be mowing my lawn. During the war I had to mow my own lawn. I couldn't find anyone interested in taking care of my particular little piece of property. And a strange thing happened: I found that I could mow it as well as anyone else, that I could mow it quickly, and that I could learn within a short time exactly how each particular section could be best mowed to develop the best cut of grass. And I found out also that when I mowed it myself, I not only improved the lawn, I improved my own digestion.

I'll miss that now that the war is over, because I'll tell myself that I'm too busy to do it when I can hire someone else for the job. I suppose that my wife will miss something, too, because she used to walk to market and carry her groceries back home in a basket.

As for myself, I reflect upon the fact that an automobile salesman used to be able to sell me a new car each year. But when the war came I learned that automobiles will go 50,000 or 100,000 miles and still be pretty dependable as a means of transportation.

Lost Child's Best Friend Is Sad-Eyed Bloodhound

These Dogs Find Hundreds Of Little Strays Annually

Even the expression on bloodhounds' faces is classed as being worrisome. But whether they develop the worry over the possibility of failure (happily rare) in following a scent or from the inborn knowledge that their mission in life is not the happy one of canine housepets, we would hardly be in a position to know.

The bloodhound is among the most useful friends of man. While your family pet may bring in the morning paper, how would he do in finding your child, lost in some dense woods? He'd fail, no doubt, but not through any fault of his own. It's just that the hound-type of dog has been blessed with the keenest scent of all canines, and the bloodhounds' scent leads all others in keenness.

When bloodhounds chased Eliza across the ice in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" we didn't have much respect for the breed. But under the right masters, the state police, bloodhounds come into their own as peerless trackers of the hunted criminal, or a lost man or child. Originally the breed, having come upon the hunted quarry, would tear it to pieces. This ferocity has been bred out of the bloodhound, however, and in its place is a hunting skill implemented by the knowledge of man and a stick-to-itiveness which brooks no failure. Once the hunted is found, the dog's job is done, unless ordered to the attack by his master.

At the Hawthorne, N. Y., state police barracks, Cpl. W. W. Horton looks after the canine family. He has five trained hounds, recently supplemented by a set of quintuplets he is now training for trailing. Training is begun when a bloodhound is 18 months old and it will take from two to six months before a dog will be entrusted with a mission. As a result of this training many a home is free from tragedy. So long as children will wander off without their parents, so long will the bloodhound be "child's best friend."

Pictures show Corporal Horton allowing the dog to take a good whiff of a lost child's clothing. The hound is then taken around the spot where the child was last seen. Once the keen-scented animal gets started in the right direction, he will follow the trail to the end, which is pictured below. Here the hound comes upon the exhausted child asleep in the underbrush.

National Dog Week

National Dog Week is being observed this year under the general chairmanship of Robert L. ("Believe-It-or-Not") Ripley the week of September 16 to 22. This year marks the 18th consecutive observance of National Dog Week, a movement of non-profit character which aims to make the dog more valuable to his owner and more acceptable to the non-owner. Through its seven-point educational program National Dog Week seeks to serve dog owner and non-dog owner alike while safeguarding the welfare and future of all dogs.

The observance takes the form of a tribute to the dog and is designed to carry over into peacetime the good will he has won for himself by his outstanding performance on the war front. It is being marked by humane societies, veterinarians, kennels, kennel clubs, obedience clubs and similar organizations, and there will be special educational displays during the week in schools, libraries, department stores, pet shops, book stores, grocery stores, feed stores, drug stores, and hardware stores. Colorful posters, stickers, etc., feature a picture of a U. S. coast-guardsmen and his war-dog buddy.

Millions Sent Home From Pacific Fronts

MANILA, P. I. — American soldiers in the southwest Pacific area mailed home $14,000,000 worth of postal money orders, it was announced recently. Headquarters of American forces in the southwest Pacific also announced that during the same period servicemen and women purchased $1,000,000 worth of air mail stamps.

Danger of Infantile Paralysis Infection Always Greater in August and September

September is the month when infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) reaches its highest incidence. There are usually about 3,000 cases reported throughout the country during this month. This year the total number of cases seems to be lower than last year, but in certain areas there has been a startling increase.

New Jersey has reported more than 400 cases this year, compared with 95 last year. Tennessee has 92, a four-fold increase over last year. A decided upturn has also occurred in Alabama, Connecticut, the District of Columbia, Georgia, Massachusetts, Missouri, Oklahoma and South Carolina.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is giving its assistance to every community where an outbreak of the disease is of such proportions as to be considered serious. Funds are ready where local support is inadequate to cope with the infection. Local chapters of the foundation may call for aid whenever they need it.

In Birmingham, Ala., for instance, which had an unusually large number of cases this year, physicians and the city health department decided to establish a special ward in one of the unused sections of the Hillman General hospital. The Birmingham chapter was called in and assisted with a good deal of the cleanup work which made it possible to get the ward ready within three days. The National foundation, at the request of the Birmingham health department, recruited some physical therapists and rounded up some hot-pack equipment.

Birmingham was one of the first cities in the country to organize a class of Polio Emergency volunteers. The "PEV" program was designed

WHO IS AFFECTED, HOW AND WHEN

More than four fifths of the victims are under 15.

More of the cases are among males—reason unknown.

Proper care of victims helps reduce fractions of weakened muscles, reduces the need for crutches and braces.

SEASONAL PATTERN (seven-year average)

Unlike other virus-borne diseases, polio strikes in summer. Cases between January-May are comparatively few.

by the National foundation to train people to act as "nurses aids."

In other areas around the country where large numbers of cases have been reported, chapters are co-operating with local officials in making preparations to provide proper treatment and care for patients. Cabinet type "iron lung" respirators are being inspected to make sure they are in good condition and location lists of emergency equipment are available.

The National foundation, through its own chapters and through organized medical and nursing groups, is distributing educational material. It has awarded more than 70 scholarships in its $1,267,600 program to train urgently needed physical therapists.

Newspapers and magazines are co-operating by printing articles explaining the disease and outlining precautions.

Aluminum Paint to Improve Old Farms

Delay Deterioration By Proper Painting

One of the most common tell-tale signs of deterioration on the farm is blistered and peeling paint. Yet, paint does remain one of the quickest and most practical of "repair" materials and the best way of stopping deterioration.

The average farmer does not repaint his service buildings oftener than every 10 years. Cheap white paints will not last that long.

Aluminum paint is recommended for agricultural uses because it can be applied satisfactorily to almost any kind of paintable surface. It serves equally well on steel, wood, brick, concrete, plaster, wallboard, galvanized iron, asphalt roofing and even canvas.

Aluminum paint is an effective temperature reducer. A coat on the roof of an uninsulated building will reduce the interior temperature of that building by as much as 10 to 14 degrees. The reduction is effective in a chicken coop, hog house, dairy barn, milk or egg building or the home. Because aluminum paint reflects approximately 70 per cent of the heat striking it, roof temperature as high as 140 degrees can be reduced to 95 or 100 degrees.

Because of its high moisture-proofing powers and its ability to withstand washing as well as constant exposure to steam, fume and other corrosive agencies, aluminum paint has long been widely applied in dairies and similar plants. It is also used to protect all kinds of farm equipment and machinery.

Catch Boring Waste

Saves Apples by Air

By applying the principle of the gas mask to protect apples in storage, apple growers may save thousands of dollars annually, according to research work conducted at Cornell University.

The conditioning prevents storage apples from developing a "scald" disease, which causes the fruit to become unsightly and to lose market value. One of the greatest problems of apple storage has been the formation of gases causing damage.

BACK in the dim and far away season of 1876, Chicago won the first National league pennant under the leadership of Albert G. Spalding. Today in the 70th campaign of the older league, Chicago's Cubs are heading for another pennant with the Cardinals still in hot pursuit. As the count stands at this moment Chicago and New York are tied with 15 National league pennants each and if the Cubs win this year, they will have a one pennant lead over their closest all-time rival from Manhattan.

After Albert Spalding won in 1876, Cap Anson won three in a row in 1880, 1881 and 1882, and the slugging Cap repeated again in 1885 and 1886.

Old Cap was one of the most interesting characters I ever knew in baseball. He was a great hitter for close to 25 years. After the Anson cleanup, the Cubs took a dizzy dip for the next 19 years until Frank L. Chance, the Peerless Leader, arrived on the scene in 1906 to win four pennants in five years against his famous rival, John J. McGraw. McGraw won 10 of New York's 15 pennants, but even his aggressive leadership was not quite enough to catch up with the Cubs.

Outside of the Cubs and Giants, of the 69 pennants already delivered, Boston has 9, St. Louis 8, Pittsburgh 6, Brooklyn 5 and Philadelphia lays claim to her one and only flag which Alexander's pitching brought about 30 years ago.

It has been stated, unofficially, that the Phillies will not win the pennant this season. But we have an idea that under her new owner there will be a change for the better later on.

Grimm's Victories

Returning to the leading Cubs and Chicago's long pennant success, it was Charley Grimm who won for Chicago in 1932 and 1935, using a number of pretty good ball players for this purpose.

Now the cheerful Cub leader has a shot at his third flag, a dream that only the Cardinals can turn into a nightmare. And I don't believe they can with the edge in pitching the Cubs carry. In losing such ball players as the Cooper brothers, Stan Musial and Max Lerner, from last season's squad, the Red Birds apparently have lost more than they could afford.

In spite of these heavy blows, Billy Southworth has turned in one of his best jobs, a statement to which the Dodgers can testify. Southworth's best chance is the 12 games his Cardinals have left with the Cubs.

There may be a wide gap between the Cubs of 1945 and the 1906-1910 teams. That Chance outfit was one of the greatest baseball has ever known. It had one of the game's smartest catchers in Johnny Kling. It had a minor pitching staff headed by Miner Brown and Ed Reulbach. And it had "Tinker to Evers to Chance," plus Steinfeldt at third. It also had such workmen as Scheckard, Hofman, Slagle and Schulte in the outfield. This club was good enough to set a National league record for a season's total — 116 victories.

This 1945 round-up is no 1906 brand. But it is a pretty good ball club for these war years. Above all else it has the most consistent pitching staff in either league. When Charley Grimm calls on a starting pitcher, the odds are he will have one who can finish or at least pitch well.

Two Best Basemen

In Hack at third and Cavarretta at first the Cubs have two of the best now left from either league. Stan Hack has been a badly underrated ball player for several years. He has been one of the best, pre-war or through the war. Phil Cavarretta has been one of the most improved players of 1945. A good outfielder headed by Bill Nicholson has given Grimm a solid phalanx compared to so many other teams who have had few dependable workmen.

After a straggling start, the Giants and the Dodgers out in front, the Cubs hit their stride in early June and have had no bad spots since. Through June and July they had everything it takes against the opposition offered, which wasn't any too hot. But above all, in Passeur, Wyse, Derringer and others they had better pitching than any other club in their league could show.

As the two leagues are today, anything can still happen with several weeks of play left. But there are only the Cardinals to threaten the Cubs, and outside of Washington's Senators I can't see any other American league team threatening anybody.

Whatever happens, the Clark Griffith — Ossie Bluege delegation lounging in the shadow of the Washington monument have been the surprise team of the year. They have proved again what pretty good pitching can do for any pennant cause.

JUDAH'S CONCERN FOR HIS FAMILY

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 44:18-34. GOLDEN TEXT—How shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me?—Genesis 44:34.

The family is the fundamental unit of society, and is therefore of more importance than the church, the state, or the social order of which it is a vital part. Every force which encourages the breakdown of the sacred relationships of the home and family is set for the destruction of society itself.

Men have too often chosen to go the way of the flesh, and therefore they have disregarded God's plan and purpose. But the home is just as sacred as ever in His sight, and brotherly love still finds a high place among the virtues of real men.

The family comes before us as we continue the study of Joseph's life. As we study it we bear in mind Joseph's dealings with his brethren, who as yet did not recognize him as the one they had sold into captivity. He was bringing them kindly but definitely to the point of real repentance, so that he could show himself gracious to them.

To do so he had brought disaster upon them. Being happily on their way homeward with a new supply of food, they were overtaken and proved to be thieves, and Benjamin, the beloved of their father Jacob, stood condemned to death by their own words.

In that crisis the mouths of the others seemed closed, but Judah, who had really saved Joseph's life (Gen. 37:26, 27), and who had apparently finally come to himself as a man of essential goodness, pleaded for Benjamin's life.

That plea presented a truly sacrificial brotherly love, as he manifested.

I. Courage (v. 18).

Easy rests the yoke of family life as long as all is joyful and prosperous. But when adversity strikes, when sorrow comes, or sickness, or sin, then the true test of devotion is at hand.

It was a brave and manly thing for Judah to stand before the one whom he knew only as the man who was "even as Pharaoh." The circumstances were all against him. He expected the flaming anger of the offended ruler. His brethren had collapsed in despair. It was one of those dark hours which come to every family when someone must demonstrate true love by being strong-hearted and fearless.

II. Intelligence (vv. 19-20).

We have become so accustomed to accomplishing things by the use of words that we are in danger of substituting speech for action. Even in times of sorrow or need we send a well-worded card or telegram, and regard our mission as accomplished.

Words have their place, but there comes a time when they must be coupled with intelligent action. Crises call for more than a cheerful smile or an encouraging word, much as they may mean in such an hour. We must be prepared by our close contact with our loved ones to speak and act with vigor and assurance.

III. Self-denial (vv. 30-33).

One step deeper goes the devotion of this man to his father and his brother. He had done no wrong that merited punishment, but evidently his brother Benjamin had been guilty. Had he been of the spirit of Cain he would have said, "Am I my brother's keeper?" and let him answer for himself. Why should Judah suffer for another? Why should he allow himself to be imprisoned in a strange land to save his father from sorrow and his brother from what seemed to be the just reward for his deeds?

Thus reasons the man of the world, but such is not the language of the true brother. He says, "Let thy servant abide instead of the lad as a bondman." Well and courageously spoken!

IV. Love (v. 34).

Love for father and brother underlies all of the courage, conviction and self-sacrifice of a man like Judah. In his younger years, and possibly under the influence of his brothers, he had failed in that respect, but now his real devotion to his brother was evident.

That affection was a real, powerful and beautiful thing, and yet it is but a faint prefiguring of the affection of the One who "sticketh closer than a brother," who "though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich" (Prov. 18:24, II Cor. 8:9).

Let us improve the opportunity to review our relations with our own family, to determine whether there is aught that we in intelligent and courageous self-sacrifice should do for our own. Concern for family will pay rich dividends, especially in these days of broken homes and disturbed personal relationships. Love will do more than anything else to hold us together.

SAYS SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE:

Despite Victory Used Fat Saving Must Go On!

Every woman in America should know that our country continues to face a serious fat shortage. And victory over Japan won't solve the problem immediately. We must keep on saving used fats in our kitchens!

If you have any thought that saving used fats is one of those wartime chores we can drop, now that Victory is here, please consider these facts and tell them to your neighbors.

America still needs salvaged fats. Not even at the peak of our war effort, when fats were required for mountains of shells and bombs and medicines, in addition to the ever-present need for soap, were our needs for salvaging fat greater than now. Our stocks have been drained by four long years of war, and there isn't enough on hand to meet all requirements.

Don't let "Victory psychology" blind you to this national need! If housewives stop saving fats now, the shortage will become even more critical.

Don't let a single drop of used fats go to waste! Little trimmings of fat left on the platter at the table, scraps left on plates, and even the skimmings of soups and gravies are important. It is the consistent saving of even these small amounts that counts.

Don't turn in fats that can be re-used! But some fats, such as those rendered from lamb and mutton, are not suitable for re-use. Put them immediately in the salvage can. And, with other fats, after you've got all cooking good out of them, there is always a little left. No matter how little it is, save it.

Your butcher will still give you 4¢ and 2 red points for every pound you turn in. Save consistently—save every drop you can—every day—until Uncle Sam says the job is done.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived in Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant Borth was in charge of security. The Major was determined to hold the confidence of the people and to replace their bell stolen by the Nazis. Despite orders issued by General Marvin, barring carts from the city, Joppolo recalled the orders, to permit food and water to enter the city. The Major found out that the American generosity was responsible for a troublesome black market. To stop this condition he placed a ceiling on all prices. Mayor Nasta was placed in the prisoner of war cage. He swore that he would not even and that the Americans would suffer.

CHAPTER XVII

Life in the p.w. cage was not very pleasant for Mayor Nasta. None of the men had blankets, and the nights were pretty cold, so they slept in close rows, keeping each other warm with their bodies. But no one would sleep next to the Fascist Pig. They said he had a peculiar smell. As a matter of fact, he did have a peculiar smell for several hours each morning; it came from being a mistake.

At last Mayor Nasta found a man who would talk with him. This was a German who spoke Italian.

Mayor Nasta told him that he was still Mayor of Adano, that he had been treacherously arrested by the Americans, that he was trying to do all he could to help the Germans win and that, in short, he was a pretty important person who ought to be helped. The Italian-speaking German told his friends all about Mayor Nasta, and they decided they ought to help him escape.

For a couple of days Mayor Nasta moved over and lived with the Germans. They made plans for the escape. There was nothing elaborate about the plans. They just decided to lift the Mayor up over the wall. They asked him if he had the courage to sit on barbed wire for a few minutes. He said yes, anything to escape. They asked him if he had the courage to jump down twelve feet on the other side. He said yes.

So in the middle of a dark, cloudy night, the Germans made a pyramid of their bodies and let Mayor Nasta climb up it to the top of the wall. He sat on the barbed wire on top of the wall, quiet as a cat, until he was sure that the sentry outside had marched to the other end of his beat. Then he turned facing the wall, let himself down as far as he could, and let go. He hurt one knee a little; it hit the wall as he landed on the ground. But he was able to get up and run off silently.

The Top Sergeant at the p.w. cage called up Sergeant Borth at eight-thirty the next morning and told him that Nasta had escaped.

Sergeant Borth borrowed Corporal Chuck Schultz and a jeep from the M.P.'s and went hunting. By this time Sergeant Borth had so many voluntary informers and informers-on-informers that the job of tracing Mayor Nasta was not too hard.

He soon found out that Mayor Nasta had been sheltered for a few hours in a house on Via Favemi. He had then left town by the Via Roma. He had stopped in at a farmer's house near the Casa Zambano to change into peasant dress. This was one of the easiest things to check, because the peasant turned up wearing Mayor Nasta's loud powder blue suit, which was dusty from several nights on the ground.

Mayor Nasta had then been seen at several points along the Vicinamare road. One farmer had given him a lift in his cart. Mayor Nasta had evidently had enough of the hills, and was trying now to get to Vicinamare, where friends would be able to hide him.

Sergeant Borth picked him up three miles short of Vicinamare, at about ten-thirty.

Jeeps had been passing Mayor Nasta all morning, so that he was not particularly alarmed when Sergeant Borth's jeep drove up alongside him, and even when it stopped, he waved crudely and shouted: "Good day, good day," in what he thought was a thick peasant accent.

Sergeant Borth mimicked the accent: "Good day, good day, farmer."

Mayor Nasta, who still did not recognize Borth, shouted again: "Good day."

Borth shouted: "Good day. You are the first farmer I have ever seen with pince-nez glasses on."

Then Mayor Nasta knew Borth. Mayor Nasta's spirit, which had been strained by the arrest and by the days in the cage and by the escape, suddenly broke. He turned and ran out across the fields, squealing crazily, just like a soldier who had broken under shellfire.

Sergeant Borth got out of the jeep and went out onto the fields. He did not hurry, because Mayor Nasta was running in circles, wishing to run away from himself more than anything else. By the time Sergeant Borth caught him, he was exhausted and limp, and his eyes were milky with fear.

As Borth half walked, half carried him to the jeep, Mayor Nasta jabbered and mouthed his fear. "If you are going to shoot me, tell me first. Don't shoot me in the back. Tell me if you are going to kill me. I want to know, I want to know . . ."

Sergeant Borth slapped him sharply in the face, and for a few seconds he was silent.

But when he was seated in the jeep, and the jeep began to move, Mayor Nasta began again. "Don't shoot me in the back. I will do anything to be shot from the front, where I can see the gun. I will tell you everything I know. I can give you names. Don't do it from behind."

Borth said: "How can I shoot you from behind when I am in the front seat and you are in the back seat?"

Since it was the noon hour, scores of people had drifted to the Doppo Lavoro clubs along the street near the Albergo dei Pescatori to listen to the radio and wait for lunch. When they saw Borth's jeep, with a man tied up in the back seat, they clustered around, and called for their friends. And when they saw that Borth's cargo was Mayor Nasta, and that after all these years the Mayor had a gag in his mouth, they cheered and laughed at the man.

These noises increased Mayor Nasta's terrors, and he kept twisting and trying to look behind him.

Borth went into the restaurant and found Major Joppolo and brought him out.

Major Joppolo held up his hand to silence the crowd. "I want to speak

He let himself down as far as he could and let go.

to Nasta," he said to Borth. "Can he hear me with that thing on his face?"

"Yeah," Borth said; "you've got the rare pleasure of being able to speak to Nasta and he can't talk back."

Major Joppolo said: "Nasta, you are a disgrace to your people. There is goodness in your people, but not in you, not a bit. The world has had enough of your kind of selfishness."

It was one of Major Joppolo's greatest attributes in his job that he could speak pompous sentences with a sincerity and passion so real that his Italian listeners were always moved by what he said. Now all the listeners except Nasta were moved by his words to shout: "Kill him! Kill him! Kill him!"

Here was one time when Major Joppolo's sincerity and passion bounced back on him, because the people's shouts frightened Mayor Nasta so badly that he fainted, and Major Joppolo was the first to see the ridiculousness of trying to spellbind an unconscious man.

There was nothing left to say except one sentence to Borth: "We'll have to send him to Africa."

And to the music of Adano's delighted cheers, Borth and his limp companion drove down the street.

There was no better index to the state of mind of Adano than the activities of the painter Lojacono. If one had made a graph of the spirits of the town and then put beside it a graph of the number of commissions Lojacono received, the two would have exactly corresponded. Whenever the town was optimistic, Lojacono worked. When the town was blue, Lojacono was idle.

Lojacono could paint anything. He could paint a house or he could paint a saint. He was the one who painted panels in the churches. He was the one who painted the fat and holy people on the fat Basile's two-wheeled cart.

The white-haired Lojacono suffered when he painted. First he suffered the pangs of creation, then he suffered when the people of Adano criticized his work. His work was beautiful and everyone in the town loved it, but for some reason they always criticized it first.

Major Joppolo had not been in Adano very long before Lojacono was busy. His first efforts were a little crude, because the town had been depressed, and his right hand idle, for so very long. But soon he warmed to the town's happiness, and he did things he had never been able to do in his life, which had not been short.

The same morning that the crowd stood around Borth's jeep in front of the Albergo dei Pescatori, another, smaller crowd stood on the Molo Ponente in the harbor and watched Lojacono work. He was painting new names and little figures on the bow surfaces of the fishing boats, and the crowd consisted of fishermen and their families.

Except for Lojacono's work, the boats were all ready to go. Their seams were calked, and they were tight as wine-bottles. The barnacles and the whiskers were off, and the bottoms had been given a little lead paint. The rigging was smart, for Major Joppolo had persuaded the Navy to give the fishermen some bright cable and some unsoaked hemp rope.

The fishermen were impatient to have Lojacono finish.

Lojacono stopped working and looked at the fishermen standing there. He pointed at his work and said angrily: "Have you ever seen a porpoise less messy than that one?"

Agnello said: "The porpoise is not bad, but he will die of loneliness unless you hurry and give him some company. Porpoises like company, you know that, Lojacono. Have you ever seen a porpoise play alone?"

"He will have company," Lojacono said impatiently. "The Mister Major is going to be riding on his back. If you would be silent, I could get on with my work."

Merendino said: "Work then, old man, do not be so slow."

The old man went back to his work. Tomasino, sitting with his head in his hands on the afterdeck of his boat, which was moored next to Agnello's, said gloomily: "I cannot see the point of all this painting. It is frivolous. My boat has been named Tina since the girl was born. It will remain Tina. The leaves and the fruit which dangle from the name are good enough for me, even if they are not new."

Agnello shouted to Tomasino: "What is the matter with you, sour one, this morning? Cheer up, we are going fishing again."

"In the next century," said Tomasino glumly, "after all this painting is finished."

Lojacono stuck his head up over the side of Agnello's boat and shouted: "Be quiet, Tomasino, you know that the only reason you are so impatient is that you like what I did twenty years ago and you have no desire for anything new."

Tomasino said: "If I have to wait another day for the slow painter I will blot out the name Tina and the leaves and fruit with some lead paint I have, and I will go fishing alone in a nameless boat."

Lojacono started painting the Mister Major, and the little crowd came in closer to see the details. He resolved a difficult point by making the Major's hat rather big and by tilting it so that it covered most of his face. At least the hat was definitely American.

"His leg is too short. The leg of the Mister Major is longer," Agnello said.

"I was about to say that the leg is too long," Merendino said.

"In other words," Lojacono said, "the leg is precisely right."

"He does not have a hunch-back like that," said Sconzo, another of Agnello's helpers.

"He is bending forward because of the speed of the porpoise," Lojacono said.

"The color of his skin is too white," said the wife of Agnello. "His skin is more Italian-colored."

"You are dull," Lojacono said, "you do not see the symbolism of the white skin."

This is what the criticism was always like. And this shows the purpose of the criticism: it was not so much that the people did not like what Lojacono was doing, as they wanted to know exactly what was in his mind. In future, showing off his boat, Agnello would be able to say: "You can see how fast the porpoise is going by the way the Mister Major is leaning forward. And do you see how white his skin is? That is because of the symbolism in the Mister Major's skin."

In due course Lojacono finished his work, and everyone pronounced it quite good, although, one said, it would be hard for a porpoise to jump that high out of the water with a man on his back, and, another said, should not the name of the boat, which was now American, be a little lower? Lojacono attributed the former highness to good spirits and the latter highness to the way the name American had been raised in everyone's esteem by the Mister Major; and everyone went away satisfied.

The next morning the boats went out. Major Joppolo went down to the harbor to see them off, and the people in town were all excited at the prospect of eating fish.

The catch that day was excellent. When the boats were all in and the fish all weighed, it was estimated by Agnello that a total of three thousand two hundred pounds had been taken in. Better than that, the fish were mostly of good grades. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Cottons, in Velveteen and Plush To Rule Campus Fashion Picture

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THIS year's college girl is doing a lot of "clothes thinking" just about now. This fall the fancy of a school-faring maiden turns to clothes that are neat and flattering with the look of a thoroughbred about them. No freakish fads for the autumn 1945 campus crowd!

The college girl, the school girl, the career girl and the teenage group who know their fashions have become definitely cotton-conscious these days. The new "rave" is the elegant looking velveteens in black and adorable colors, also the very handsome corduroys that are being made up into coats and suits. There's a new wide-wale cotton plush, too, that is setting a new high in sophisticated cottons.

No doubt the girl going away to school will start her first semester with a few cotton casuals, for it's smart to wear cotton washables. She will be glad she took a chic gingham frock and perhaps a flattering fresh chambray, the sort that looks just right during early warm autumn days under a color-lovely cardigan. There will be dark cotton dirndls in her trunk too, some banded in gay Latin colors; also a very special one with inset border of white eyelet to be worn with her dainty batiste drop-shoulder blouse.

A raft of sturdy campus cottons should be taken along. In the news were pedal-pushers of pin-wale corduroy that's tough and washable. The girls say they are less cumbersome than slacks because of their mid-calf length. Choosing mix-and-match jackets, skirts, pajamas and pedal pushers is great fun. The short boxy flare-back jacket with Chinese collar is a winner, as is also the new lumberjacket that ties with drawstring waist.

When it comes to "date" duds here's where luxury cottons are making a great splurge. A brilliant future is predicted for suits and coats made of rich-looking wide-wale cotton plush. An intriguing style story is told for the 1945 college girl or the younger seminary daughter by Emily Wilkens in the brown wide-wale cotton plush suit as shown centered in the illustration. High neck, broad shoulders, and the tiny waist give a high-style slant on present-day trends. The shoulderline, extending in a wing-like effect, adds width and accents the small waistline by way of contrast. The tiny visor cap matches. This suit will certainly "go places" this fall.

Because the much-beloved velveteen can be had only in dubs and dabs this year (which is why one should buy early) designers are ingeniously working it into dresses using bright wools for contrast. In the junior "date" dress, shown to the left, cotton plays duet with wool in most charming fashion. The shoulder yoke and wide hem are of black velveteen. The rest of the bodice and skirt are violet wool. Red wool binds sleeves and waistline, also outlines the velveteen all around. Here's a type dress that will make "a picture" at college teas and informal dances.

Pale gold and bottle green prove a flattering color combination in wool and cotton for the dress shown to the right below. Green corduroy forms a corselet waist front and full skirt, while gold wool is used for sleeves and bodice top. Rectangular shaped silver nailheads trim the shoulder yoke and sleeve cuffs. Note the clever touch of wool ties. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Slim Silhouette

It's dresses of the lovely lady type that bespeak patrician style in every detail that best-dressed women want. To achieve a slim and svelte silhouette for this good-looking purple wool fall costume, the designer, Joe Copeland, extends the high-necked bodice for the dress into a deep point into the skirt and puckers the skirt on each side in a subtle form-fitting way. Here you see also a charming interpretation of a very new and very important trimming trend, which has to do with necklace and bracelet embroidered right on the material itself in a realistic jewelry effect. East Indian embroidery in pearls and gold makes the "necklace" on the cap-sleeved dress and the single "bracelet" for the bolero.

'Curved Contours'

New Fashion Dictate

A new element has entered into the field of costume design. It's "curves." This styling technique is seen in the soft rounded shoulders that give a very different silhouette from last year. The command of fashion to "curve your contours" is also reflected in the way side fastenings and drapes take on a curved sweep rather than a straight or angular movement. Yokes are rounded too, instead of being square-cornered. Hips have an out-curve, while waists have an in-curve. Compare your last year's suit with your this year's suit, or place your last season's felt hat alongside the fall hat you've just bought, with its rounded, bulky, yet flattering new brim, and you will see how designers are obeying fashion's edict to "curve your contours."

Jewelled Belts Set Off

Sophisticated Gowns

Much ado is being made about belts and corselet effects this season. This season belts have been glamorized into real show pieces. In some instances the jewel work and metal embroidery arrives at almost barbaric splendor. The new fad is to wear an eye-thrilling belt with a black gown of sophisticated simplicity and not another ornament except, perhaps, a bracelet. The new corselet midriff treatments on dressy gowns are also beautifully worked out in rich jewelry embroidery.

Striped Jersey Suit

Jersey is becoming increasingly important either in wool or rayon weave. Gaily colorful striped jersey delights the teen-ager and it is also smart for career-girl cardigan blouses. Just the thing for the school girl is a jacket and skirt dress of striped jersey in red and white or multi-color stripe.

Sideways Through Canal

Although the larger floating dry-docks of the U. S. navy are too wide to enter the locks of the Panama canal, the job of towing one through this waterway was accomplished recently by filling one of its hollow side walls with water and tilting the huge craft on its side.

SNAPPY FACTS

about RUBBER

B. F. Goodrich has produced an airplane tire that figuratively sprouts wings. When wheels are lowered for landing, special vanes or flaps on tire cause it to rotate, which overcomes severe skidding and drag when wheels hit runway.

American scientists and engineers have achieved in five years with synthetic rubber what it took nearly 70 years to accomplish with natural rubber.

Bees upset many plans for cross pollination of fruit trees until B. F. Goodrich developed a "spider web" rubber spray as a blossom protector.

New Dignity Added To Old Wash Stand

IF YOU have a wash stand of the bowl and pitcher era, here is a way to give it new dignity. Add open shelves at the ends with a new base and top for the whole piece, and you have smart, long lines for a chest to fill an important wall space. The shelves are added to the ends of the stand first with small angle irons. The end boards come next, then the top of plywood with a plain finishing piece around it. The new base-board is then added and the piece is finished to match the woodwork of the room.

The sketch also shows a framed panel which helps to give the ensemble quite an air. It is an old picture frame without a glass with a handsome remnant of flowered chintz stretched over cardboard and then varnished to look like an old oil painting.

Bridge, Forest Stolen; Find Unknown Sub and Church

Many objects of incredible size were either lost or found in the decade preceding the present war, says Collier's. An 80-foot bridge was stolen one night in Italy, and a forest was cut down and carted off a large estate in Hungary. On the other hand, a submarine, of which no record existed, was found on the bottom of an abandoned navy dock in France; and an old deserted church was discovered on a farm in England which no one, including the owner of the land, had ever seen or heard of before.

Chimney Repair

Ask yourself these questions when you're examining heating equipment: Have chimneys been cleaned within a year? Are they in good repair? Are smokepipes too close to burnable material, causing charred spots from radiated heat? Are smokepipes rusted or broken, with holes that sparks can pass through? Are walls, ceilings and partitions protected from overheating of stoves and furnaces? And are stoves and furnaces in good repair?

No. 1 Continued from First Page.

Such state-owned lands as may be purchased by veterans or by others are scattered parcels lying distant from the departments various land use projects.

Most such lands are poor quality—the fact that they were permitted to revert to the state because of non-payment of taxes is indication that former owners did not value them highly.

The department continues to advise veterans against the purchase of lands for farming purposes that are not suited for such uses.

However, it does list some lands that are suitable for cabin sites and that will produce some vegetable and garden truck.

Lands listed by the department may be purchased by veterans or others have been offered at public auction without finding purchasers and have not redeemed by former owners.

The department sold 77,192 acres of such lands during the last fiscal year at an average price of $3.54 per acre. The 2,712 platted descriptions sold last year—usually located within the borders of cities or villages—brought an average of $18.61 each.

Lists of available properties in northern counties are furnished by the department's lands division.
