Korean City Banquets Yank Soldiers

Ford Turrell Tells About Event

T. Sgt. Ford Turrell, son of Mrs. Mary Turrell of this city, is in Korea. Previous to being stationed at that place he participated in the campaigns at Leyte and Okinawa.

The people of Kaeson, Korea, where Sgt. Turrell is stationed, honored the officers and non commissioned officers of his outfit with a banquet, and in a letter to his mother gives the following interesting description of the affair:

"We are now in the city of Kaeson, about 50 miles north of the capital city. We are in a very nice place—clean and the people are very friendly.

"They gave a banquet last night for officers and non coms, so I got to go. Will try to tell you what we had to eat.

"First we had wine. Then the mayor of the city gave a speech. Of course we had an interpreter tell us what he was saying. Then they served the meal—chicken, hamburger steak, rice potatoes, gravy, a salad of apples and green peppers, and another sort of salad made of onions, garlic, peppers and I don't what else. Boy, these people sure go in for seasoning, especially garlic and peppers. Pretty powerful.

"After we had finished that, an orchestra of three violins, a bass viol and a piano played us music. Then a singer came out, and imagine our surprise, when she sang church hymns. In the Korean language, of course, but you could recognize the music. Then they brought out dessert. (An apple, a piece of cake and a cookie. After we finished that, some little kids dressed in native costumes, came out and danced and sang. Sang Auld Lang Syne in Korean.

"Then a speech by the minister of public relations. After that more dessert. We almost fell out of our chairs when we saw what it was—Ice Cream. Sure was a surprise.

"Then they wanted to hear some of our songs, so we sang for them. Of course all during chow they kept our wine glasses full. Good wine, too. Had a few waitresses waiting on us.

Gordie Myles Goes on Liberty At Yokohama

Bombed City Appears Strangely Quiet

Machinists Mate 1st Class Gordon (Gordie) Myles, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Myles of this city, has spent more than three years aboard ship in the Pacific, and has taken part in many of the landings in the campaigns against the Japs. His ship recently carried a portion of the 43rd Division to Yokohama, Japan.

At Yokohama he went ashore on liberty and in letters to his parents, gives the following graphic account of what he saw and his impressions:

"Yokohama, Sept. 13. We pulled into Yokohama this afternoon at five o'clock and tied up to a dock. From where we are no damage is visible, but it has been bombed. Everything seems strangely quiet. We passed a few small Jap fishing boats on the way in. Tokyo is about an hour from here.

"A large fleet is anchored in the bay—including air craft carriers, cruisers and destroyers—it sure looked good to see them all. We brought in a part of the Army—the 43rd Division from Manila. From here we are supposed to go to Guam. We started to unload as soon as we were moored to the dock, so I don't imagine we will be here very long. We haven't heard anything about getting liberty yet.

"Yokohama, Sept. 14. I was ashore yesterday on liberty. The Air Force certainly done an excellent job of bombing this town. Beck of the waterfront practically everything has been leveled to the ground. Obviously the docks weren't bombed because we intended to use them ourselves. The city reminds me of a cemetery because it is so quiet. Of the buildings still standing—they don't look much different from those in the States except all names are in Japanese.

"There weren't many people in the town. Practically every male between the ages of six to 80 were in uniform of some sort—Army navy and so on. Although everything (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

5,000 Attend 1945 Iosco County Fair

Over 700 Exhibits Shown at Hale Festival

The Third Annual Iosco County Fair which was held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week proved a real success even though weather conditions were questionable for the activities during the last day. It was estimated that more than 5,000 people visited the fair during the three days.

Some one hundred fifty different individuals from Iosco county exhibited a total of more than 700 different articles at this rapidly growing fall festival.

Exhibits were assembled during the day on Wednesday with an evening program consisting of a band concert by the popular high school bands of Hale and Oscoda. A well-rounded amateur program completed the activities for the first day. Judging of the exhibits took place on Thursday with a very interesting baby show being held at 11:00 a. m., while the afternoon program featured a light weight horse pulling contest.

The Thursday evening program consisted of a band concert by the East Tawas High School band under the directorship of Frank Humberger. Clarence Bolander, deputy commissioner of agriculture of Lansing, served as principal speaker, giving a most interesting discussion upon the topic, "New Things Ahead for Michigan Agriculture."

Even though the weather man tried his best to discourage local people from attending the fair on Friday, well over two thousand youngsters and adults wandered over the fair grounds to enjoy the numerous concessions and exhibits. Farmers were unable to work in their fields and so took the opportunity to visit with their friends at the county fair, and during the afternoon saw John Dooley of Plainfield township direct his heavy weight pulling team into first position with competition provided by six other well groomed heavy weight teams.

The calthumpian parade which included several educational agricultural floats was held during the noon hour even though participants were well dampened, and the school bands from Tawas City and Hale presented concerts in the township hall rather than parade in the rain.

Fair association president, Mrs. T. G. Scofield, stated that a more detailed story of the fair activities and winners in the different departments would be ready to release in the next weeks issue of this paper. She stated that the board of directors of the fair association were more than pleased with this 1945 fair and wish to publicly thank all of those who participated in the fair activities in any way.

FARM WAGE DELIRIUM

WASHINGTON. — Live-wire Republican Sen. Ralph Brewster of Maine recently telephoned hard-working Assistant Secretary of Labor Carl Moran, also from Maine, but a Democrat.

"Portland is among the nine distress cities of the country," Senator Brewster reminded Moran. "As you know, Portland shipyard workers have been dismissed from their jobs in Aroostook county, can't get anyone to bring in their potatoes. What can you do about it?"

"What are they paying for farm labor in Aroostook county," asked the assistant secretary of labor; "still four cents?"

"No," replied the senator from Maine, "There's a guaranteed wage of $12 a day."

Assistant Secretary Moran said he would do his best to switch some workers up to the potato farms. However, he might well have replied that the labor department was that in name only and that it actually had almost nothing to do with labor.

For the fact is that, under Miss Perkins, the labor department was stripped of most of its labor duties. The War Labor board is separate and independent, and, most important of all, the U. S. employment service is under the War Manpower commission. Thus, Assistant Secretary of Labor Moran had to turn to an outside agency, the U. S. employment service, to try to get discharged shipyard workers to help harvest the Aroostook potato crop.

This, in turn, has brought out another difficulty affecting not merely Maine but the entire nation. Most war workers, drawing $1 to $2 an hour plus overtime and bonuses, don't want to go back to the farm and farm wages. The labor shortage on the farms, even after V-J Day, is as acute as ever. Farm wages are higher than ever, though still a long way from shipyard and aviation factory pay. So, somehow or other, either farm wages must go up, or war workers must go back to less money on the farm. In the former case, the farmers will have to get more for their crops, which, of course, means a higher cost of living in the city.

Ambassadors' Wives.

Last week this column reported that Mrs. Ed Pauley, wife of the U. S. reparations ambassador to Moscow and former treasurer of the Democratic national committee, was listed to receive $25 a day expenses while accompanying her husband to Russia. Since then, I have received further information that Mrs. Pauley, although listed by the state department as an official member of the party, declined to accept the $25 per diem.

However, I still believe it a highly debatable point, when a million or so G.I.s are not permitted to have their wives come abroad, that American high-ups should take their wives with them to overseas war areas. After all, the average American soldier now occupying Germany or Japan has not seen his wife for more than a year.

When the Pauley reparations mission arrived in western Europe, the party was split up, because of limited accommodations in Moscow.

One group, including some of the best experts on reparations, were told to remain in Frankfurt, Germany, because there was no room to house them in Moscow. But Mrs. Pauley, despite limited accommodations, went on to Moscow.

Later, she also visited Potsdam for the Big Three session. She was the only American wife present. Mrs. Truman and Mrs. Byrnes, wife of the secretary of state, remained at home. And during the last session of the Big Three, Mrs. Pauley sat in the gallery, a privileged witness to the historic ceremony. Many U. S. and British experts who had spent weeks preparing for this big climax and who had burned midnight oil whipping the agreement into shape, were barred from seeing the windup.

NOTE—On August 4, this column reported that the office of war information had given Mrs. R. A. McClure, wife of General McClure, a privileged job as receptionist in OWI's Paris office, thus permitting her to be near her husband in Germany. Immediately after publication of this disclosure, the OWI received an order from the White House for Mrs. McClure to come back to the United States.

Capital Chaff.
The shortening of the congressional recess, which was to last until October 8, has forced several congressmen to look for temporary lodgings in Washington. They had leased their homes for the anticipated recess period. Some, like Los Angeles' Chet Holifield, were foresighted enough to make arrangements to have at least a bedroom available if they returned. Congressman Karl Mundt of South Dakota, one of the most vigorous Red-hunters of the old Dies committee, is traveling in Russia.

Iowa Man Wins Farming Award

John Oeser Voted 'Typical Midwest Farmer' of 1945 at Festival in Yankton, S. D.

"The Typical Midwest Farmer" award for 1945 was conferred upon John Oeser of Westside, Iowa. The presentation was made on Labor Day at Yankton, S. D., before a crowd of 70,000 people who had gathered for the annual "WNAX Midwest Farmer Day." The recognition of the "typical farmer" was inaugurated in 1942 as a means of honoring outstanding war production on the land. Radio station WNAX and the American Broadcasting company sponsored the festivities, in cooperation with the U. S. navy.

Each of the five mid-western states, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, N. Dakota and S. Dakota nominated a "typical farmer," meaning an outstanding one, and sent him to Yankton, S. D., for the contest. John Oeser was chosen, not alone for a remarkable production record, but because of his leadership in war and community activities. The four runners-up, representing four states, were also heaped with honors and valuable prizes.

Festivities opened with an Indian ceremonial staged on the bank of the Missouri river. Indians in full regalia played native music and staged Sioux dances. They also took part in the mile-long parade which was led by the Great Lakes naval training station band.

The whole day's program was planned to honor John Oeser. The 1945 winner, who is 58 years old, was born on his Westside, Iowa, farm. As a boy he made a deathbed promise to his father to always keep the land, which his father as a pioneer emigrant from Germany had plowed for the first time in the world's history.

Father of Eight.
Oeser has eight children. The only son of military age is a technical sergeant with the marine corps, now in the South Pacific. Two daughters are graduate nurses. Since the son joined the service, Oeser has been handling all the work on his 160-acre farm with the help of two younger sons, 13 and 10 years old.

His community record reveals that he has been a director in the Farm bureau, member of the school board, chairman of drives for the Red Cross, USO, salvage, and bond sales.

His average corn yield in 1944 was 96 bushels per acre, with one field over 100 bushels per acre. In 1943 his average was 98 bushels per acre. His oats average over 60 bushels

Mr. and Mrs. 'Typical Midwest Farmer' of '45

Mr. and Mrs. John Oeser of Westside, Iowa, will be guests of President and Mrs. Truman this winter. Oeser was chosen "Typical Midwest Farmer of 1945" in a five-state competition in Yankton, S. D., on Labor Day. The Oesers were given an all-expense tour, escorted, to Washington, D. C., a tractor, Victory bonds, and checks for complete wardrobes. Mrs. Oeser was presented with a wrist watch.

per acre. He raised 125 to 160 head of hogs each year. Over half of Boone oats grown in his county can be traced to him. His farm was chosen for the state corn yield test plot in 1942-'43 and '44. In 1943 and '44 he had the second highest average yield in his state. Good pasture of clover, bromegrass and alfalfa are provided for his cattle, hogs and horses. About half of his farm is kept in pasture and hay. In 1942, he marketed 142 head of hogs, 10 head of beef cattle and approximately 1,400 pounds of butterfat. They now have 170 hogs, 36 head of cattle, and 700 layers and chickens. They also have two large gardens. In 1945 he had 17 litters of porkers, with an average of 8 thrifty, fast-growing porkers.

Five Year Rotation Plan.
The land has been limed, and he has a five year crop rotation plan, that was laid out by the Soil Conservation service, in operation. He and his wife and three younger children carried on a well balanced livestock and grain program despite wartime handicaps of insufficient labor.

During 1942 and '43 he completely modernized his home by installing running water, bathroom, electric lights, refrigerator, radio, electric tank, new tile smoke house, electric washing machine. The home has a fine, well-kept lawn, and an evergreen wind-break. This family was recently awarded a Victory citation. His county extension director said, "In my 32 years of agricultural extension work I know of no one more entitled to the title of being the 'Typical Farmer.' I am thinking of a lot of real folks whom it is a pleasure to know and work with. I feel sure he is tops on our list and well worthy of all honors that can be given him."

Industrial Research Laboratories Shaping Future of 'American Way'

New Products, Processes Mean Jobs, Better Living

Jobs, incomes and more, better and cheaper goods and services for the new era which America is now entering will depend to a large extent upon scientific research. The radio, television, chemical, plastic, automobile and many other industries are direct tangible benefits of industrial research. The invention industry, for example, has spent more than 20 billion dollars on research and it is expected to provide for more than 350,000 new jobs which never existed before.

Other new products and services which may be expected now include:

Aviation type gasoline for automobiles at no extra cost.

Factory made houses with standardized parts but put together according to the owner's design.

Moist-resistant and non-shrinkable wool fabrics treated at the factory with special chemicals.

Transparent window screens that will roll up like a shade.

Windows of polarized glass through which the flow of light can be regulated by turning a button.

Sulfa drugs, penicillin and other new healing aids, plentiful and at costs that can be met by all.

Thousands of familiar prewar achievements will be obsolete. Automobiles, radios, washing machines, refrigerators and similar products will be so greatly improved that customers will want the new products even though their old ones are not worn out. This will provide thousands of new jobs in existing industries in addition to those created by new industries.

'Atomic Age' Coming.
American industry engages not only in applied research but contributes heavily to fundamental research — pioneering new knowledge in chemistry, physics and other sciences.

"Atomic bombs would not have been possible except for the experimentation in atom smashing to which industrial corporations contributed funds, talent and new technological equipment over a period of several years. The application of atomic energy to peacetime products will come eventually.

Between the two World Wars, industrial research in the United States grew almost tenfold, from an expenditure of 2.9 million dollars in 1920 to 23.4 million dollars in 1940. While indications point to industrial research growing faster in the next decade than ever before, the shortage of technical personnel to staff laboratories will be a serious handicap.

Availability of funds will be another important factor in the growth of research. Decline in income from endowments has made educational and research foundations increasingly dependent upon contributions by industry.

Better Handling of Range Helps Forage

Grazing Plans Aid to Natural Reseeding

More than 73,244,000 acres of grazing lands are being conserved, developed and utilized under range management plans which are a part of the government's agricultural conservation program.

Better forage for livestock is a natural result of better handling of accessible range. At the same time, soil on the range and on nearby cropland receives increased protection.

Proper utilization of rangeland requires a carefully worked-out "use plan" involving a number of factors. In widest use are such practices as rotating grazing, natural reseeding through deferred grazing, artificial reseeding by drilling, broadcasting and harrowing in suitable locations, development of properly spaced, adequate and dependable water supplies, eradication of destructive plants, proper fencing to facilitate uniform distribution of stock, and water spreading measures to divert run-off water and prevent erosive action.

Proper management of one range area may require only a few of these practices, while another will need many or all of them in order to return the range soil to its original fertility. Reseeding, both natural and artificial, is an essential to most rangeland. While natural reseeding through deferred grazing is held to be the most practical method, excellent results are reported from artificial reseeding on lands where sufficient remnants of desirable forage plants did not remain.

Extension Oil Can

Oil Can Equipped with Wire.

There are usually one or two oil holes on all machinery that the average oil can will not reach. This can be remedied by taking a copper wire about three inches longer than the spout and bend at right angles, as shown in the illustration. The bent end is inserted into the can, and spout is placed over the wire. The bent piece will prevent wire from falling out but will allow the oil to follow wire into oil hole desired.

Postwar Machinery Harvester

Postwar harvesting will be taken care of by self-propelled harvesters. THE BASEBALL FANS TO A LOSING CLUB

(In the Japanese manner)
To the Club Owners, Managers,
Pitchers and All.

Gents:
Being as how our club has turned out to be one of the worst clubs in history, taking last place at the start of the season and holding it nobly to the finish, we, the fans, now prostrate ourselves before you in deep humility and boundless sorrow

The pitching was sandlot stuff, the fielding would not stand up in the One-Eye League, the longest hit of the year was a two bagger on opening day and the management spend of stood in bed. All of which hurts us deeply on account of we fully understand that we alone were responsible. We had nothing to say about the batteries, the schedule, the strategy or the coaching. All we did was to pay in and show we could take it. This was a rare privilege and we are to blame for everything.

In this hour of disappointment and chagrin we apologize, especially to his August Presence, Tim Maloney, the manager, to their Imperial Majesties Cunnihan & Jones, club owners, to pitchers Ganz, Snaffu and Crummie for the lousy season and for the fact the club wound up in last place. It tears our hearts out when we think of what they must be suffering. With bowed heads and with tears streaming from our eyes we accept full responsibility for every lost game, wild throw, error and strike-out, trusting that the club owners, manager and players will be noble spirited enough to forgive us.

We know that the star pitcher "Lefty" Bizzle, every time he was picked and sent in to pitch against anybody, proclaimed himself as a man of peace, and opposed going through with the game at all. Never at any time in the season did he really want to pitch. In the high nobility of his patchless spirit and love for the team and the fans he always cried, "Include me out of this." Losing every fight by scores of from 18 to 32 to 0 he was ever an exponent of brotherly love.

The club owners, the managers and the coaches also showed in their matchless benevolence they were for harmony and understanding. And so it is with deep sincerity that we apologize for having ever caused them to think seriously of a winning baseball team. In the dust on our knees we express our profound sorrow for all the worries we have caused them.

In All Humility,
The Cash Customers.
P.S.—We also think the outfit, especially that bum who struck out with the bases full, should now concentrate on science and the arts.

The famous estate of J. P. Morgan at Glen Cove has been rented to Amtorg, the Russian purchasing commission in America. We trust there is something in the lease preventing the Russians from singing the Volga boat song in the Morgan swimming pools, doing Russian dances in the floral beds or having all the china done over with a hammer and sickle design.

THOUGHTS ON JAPAN

It is our fear that in most cases the fellows being held as war criminals will be put on trial at a time when they can get off on a claim of old age exemption.

Now that the war is over we can't help wondering whether next season will see the Japanese acrobats back in the circus labeled as Japs and not as Burmese.

We have it on excellent authority that the emperor's horse is in bad repute for accepting the result as a total defeat and not feeling particularly grateful to anybody for it.

WHY DO YOU LOVE THAT VAN?

Now that the Van Johnson hysteria is sweeping the country like the Sinatra tidal wave, we want to know the whys and wherefores. When people asked us what you saw in Frankie to bring on the swoons and squeals, we could only shrug helplessly and say, "We, too." Well, we've asked the 1,800 teenagers who act as "Hi Style Scouts" for Calling All Girls if they're swooning over Van and why. Now, just let somebody ask us about this new crush and we're ready with all the answers.

"He looks like the boy next door—not like a movie glamour boy." (Don't you wish you lived on that girl's block?)

"The way he takes a girl in his arms and kisses her." (Now we're getting somewhere.)

"His cute, squeaky voice." (Well, what's the matter with Mickey Mouse?)

"His divine build, his boyish smile; his red hair." (Three good reasons.)

"He's sweet and shy, when the occasion demands, he can be so-o-o masterful." (Did you sit through his last picture three times just waiting for these "occasions"?)

"He doesn't act as if he were acting." (Then what does M.G.M. pay him for, anyway?)

"Are you kidding? He's positively gorgeous." (That seems to sum up the whole situation.)

DAFFYNITIONS

WARRIOR—A gal who uses too much dazzle dust and pucker paint.
IT PUCKERS ME—It makes me mad.

THE FEET—That's what you call any good dancer. You call Frankie "The Voice," don't you, and Dick Haymes "The Throat"?

VANNY—Wonderful. Well in case you don't know why, just take another look at those love scenes in "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo."

C. O. D.—Crush on a Drip.
SLURPY—Droolsome.

TRIXIE TEEN SAYS—

"Care in the summer—fair in the fall"—that's my motto and I won't be stuck with it. Sure it's fun to fry to a frazzle in the sun all day—but a little creaming every night will help to preserve that peach skin complexion underneath the tan. And, unless you want to be wearing your hair parched in the middle this fall, you'd better protect it from sun and sea with nightly brushings and weekly shampoos. Girls who fall apart over the summer have a hard time putting the pieces together in time for school opening. And, like the Last Rose of Summer, they're apt to be left Blooming Alone when the bell rings.

SILLY STUFF

She—My dad takes things apart to see why they don't go.
He—So what?
She—You'd better go.

She—I could have married anyone I pleased.
He—Then why didn't you marry?
She—I didn't please anyone.

Well, as the Slick Chick said to the Wolf, "Raise your right arm; raise your left arm. Now, go ahead—FENCE ME IN!"

Magnesium Is Smelted Direct Under New Method

WASHINGTON.—Magnesium, the light metal that has revolutionized airplane construction since the beginning of the war, can be smelted directly out of magnesium-silicate ores by a new process. U. S. Alfalfa Meal Valuable Alfalfa meal has been found of high value as a source of the water-soluble vitamins in hog feeding. A supplement of 10 to 12 per cent alfalfa meal in a basal diet to sows in the gestation and lactation period resulted in 82.5 per cent of their pigs reaching weaning stage. This trial showed superior results when compared with ground yellow corn, soybean meal, tankage, fish meal tankage and dried corn distillers' solubles.

A LEADING expert on brain and muscular action has announced that man's mental and physical prime or peak is around 33 years—that most of his good work is done before he is 40 and little of it after 50.

The expert admits that there are certain exceptions, but he is taking the general average. He fixes the physical peak around 33 years in the matter of age. The mental peak around 40. He may be entirely correct in sizing up the mental side of the argument. So many golden autumns have slipped by since we were 33 that most of the details are a bit hazy. But the expert uses up too many years in calling the athletic peak.

Bill Tilden

Here are just a few leading examples—

1. Jack Dempsey was just 24 the day he manured Jess Willard and in this Massacre of Maumee Bay, Dempsey was at his peak. He was better that hot July afternoon than he ever was later on. He earned a one-round knockout in that Toledo assault, bell or no bell.

2. Ty Cobb was 25 when he turned in his greatest season. This was in 1911, when Ty delivered 248 base hits, 147 runs, 83 stolen bases and a batting average of .420. He was almost as good a year later with a .410 average, but not quite up to his 1911 collection. The two ages of 25 and 26 found the Georgia Peach at the top of a great career.

3. Babe Ruth was 33 years old when he blasted his 60 home runs. This was in 1927. But the Babe fired 59 four base blows in 1921 when he was only 27. But it should be recalled that the Babe was a pitcher until he reached the age of 25. He was around 24 when he came to his pitching prime.

Jones a Champ at 21

4. Bobby Jones found his best year in 1930 when he ran into his Grand Slam. He was then 28 years old. A "Boy Wonder" at the age of 14, he was 21 before he won his first championship in 1923. While Jones was only 28 when he retired from active competition, he still had known 15 seasons of hard, tournament golf.

5. Big Bill Tilden was 26 before he won his first major crown. His top years ran from 26 to 31, although he remained a star through another decade. But you could name his peak at 28 or 29 and not miss the mark by many weeks.

6. Jim Thorpe, greatest all-around athlete, came to his best year in 1912 when he was in the general neighborhood of 25 years. That was the year Old Jim won the Olympic all-around championship while also playing his best football and baseball.

You'll find this cross section gives you man's athletic prime around 26 or 27. I mean the top ones. I could name other examples. Walter Hagen was 21 when he bagged his first U. S. open crown in 1914 and he was 26 when he won his last one at Brae Burn in 1919. But after that his British campaign was just as brilliant.

The war cut into any Joe Louis rating but you could name his 27th year and not be far wrong.

And there's the case of Mel Hein, the Giant center now facing his 19th or 20th football season, adding in his college years at Washington State. Hein's peak was in the vicinity of his 27th or 28th year.

Value of Experience

The eminent expert in sizing up the mental and physical side overlooked one important detail—it is the physical side that collapses or takes the first dip.

Many veterans still hang on, veterans with fading legs and fading arms, through greater experience and the smartness that only the years can bring. These men have to offer their brains against younger legs and younger arms.

Jack Quinn was a winning pitcher well beyond 40, after 26 years of pitching. When some one asked Jack how he could hang around so long his answer was quite simple—"A wife and six children."

But the golden age of sport is still youth—those years that run from 23 to 27. At the ages of 26 and 27 we have the winning combination of physical youth and experience. Possibly the ages 22 or 23 would be the big years physically, but they lack the experience which later years bring.

Knute Rockne never liked sophomores and John McGraw never cared for rookies.

After all, there is no substitute for experience, eight times out of ten. In this diagnosis we must stick with the general average—not with the exceptions. In sport the best physical years would be around 23—the top mental years around 28.

"As a matter of fact," several well known trainers tell me, "the ideal physical age, minus experience, is around 21 or 22. It is experience and the know-how that make 26 or 27 the better years."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 7

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

LOVE FOR GOD AND LOVE FOR MAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37. GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

"What shall I do?" The question of the lawyer in our lesson is a query which is on the lips or in the minds of millions of men and women each day. They want to do right and want to be right, but their lives lack the direction which only faith in God can give them.

Never does the question go more deeply than when it concerns man's eternal welfare, as it does in our lesson. Always that question indicates that man is not able to decide for himself, and needs the guidance of someone greater and wiser than he. This should lead us back to God, for only He can fully answer it.

The story of the Good Samaritan tells us what we must do to show our love for God and man, and gives a demonstration of how it is to be done.

I. What to Do (vv. 25-28).

The lawyer (a student of the law of Moses, and hence a theologian rather than an attorney) was posing a question to try to entrap Jesus. He was apparently not much concerned about eternal life and assumed that it could be obtained by doing something.

We know that eternal life is a gift (John 1:12; Rom. 6:23), but if the man wanted to have it by doing, Jesus was ready to meet him. In response to Jesus' question (v. 26), the lawyer gave Him what the Jews regarded as the summary of the whole law.

The man who can perfectly keep that law will have eternal life, declares Jesus. But note that you must do it, not just talk about it. And you must keep the whole law, "for whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet stumble in one point, he is become guilty of all" James 2:10, R.V.; see also Gal. 3:10).

Observe that the commandment, so highly commended by our Lord, concerns a true love for God which shows in an active love for one's fellowman.

Love is the only thing that can save our bruised and bleeding world. How sad it is that in such an hour of need there is so little said in the church about love and it is practiced even less. It is the forgotten fundamental of all the fundamentals of faith! Let us begin to preach it and practice it!

II. How to Do It (vv. 29-37).

It is one thing to realize that one ought to do a thing; it is quite another thing to do it. Here we have what may have been an actual incident given by our Lord as an object lesson of the right and the wrong attitude toward a fellowman in need.

1. The Wrong Attitude (vv. 29-32).

The lawyer's effort to justify himself by diverting attention to the word "neighbor," which he felt needed definition, showed that he could not do the thing expected of him. The reason for man's failure lies primarily in his own weakness and inability to do what God requires, but is also revealed in his pitiable and futile efforts to justify himself.

The one who seeing his sinfulness and his utter inability to keep God's law casts himself on the Lord is ready to receive the gift of eternal life. But the one who tries to defend his position and justify himself has shut the door on God's grace and mercy (see Luke 18:9-14).

The parable of the Good Samaritan answers fully and finally the question, "Who is my neighbor?" by making it clear that anyone who is in need, regardless of race, social position, condition or religion, is our neighbor.

The priest and the Levite doubtless had plenty of excuses for not helping the wounded man, but let us remember that excuses, while they may count with men, mean only our condemnation in the presence of God.

2. The Right Spirit.

It was the spirit of Christ that made the Samaritan show a compassionate and sacrificial interest in the needy man. Only Christ can make you and me like that. His love in the heart is the only "good neighbor program" that will ever work.

Statesmen, philosophers — yes, and the man in the street — of our day are looking hither and yon for an answer to the world's need. They all sense that we must have something great, and tender, and powerful to unite the hearts of men, or we shall soon be in conflict again. The next time we may well write civilization off the globe. What is the answer? Love! First, a real love for God, then love for our fellowmen of all nations. The answer to the world's awful problem is a revival of Christian faith; without it we perish.

Now 4 Points For Used Fats

Help Increase Supplies of Soap and Other Peacetime Products By Saving More Used Fats

Industrial fats far short of last year! We are almost down to the bottom of the barrel. The nation's industrial fat supply is millions of pounds less than it was in 1944. We need fully as much as last year to help make the soaps and other civilian goods you want and need so badly. So...

If you want more soap and soap flakes... if you're dreaming of nylons, sheets, cotton fabrics and want them to hurry back to the store counters... you can help by saving those used kitchen fats as you never saved before! Save every drop, every day!

These fats are vitally necessary to help speed greater supplies of soaps and hundreds of other things—like new cars, electric washers, irons, refrigerators and tires. Industry must have these fats... to help get to you more quickly the peacetime products you've been longing to have for years!

So skim and scrape and scoop just as you did so faithfully before V-J Day. To prove how important it is, your government has increased the point bonus. So help meet this nation's need by continuing to save used fats. If you can't find a store that accepts used fats, call Home Demonstration or County Agent:

NOW THAT THE WAR IS OVER . . .

TELEPHONE manufacturers are reconverting to civilian production as fast as they can. Michigan Bell already has launched its $120,000,000 five-year post-war program of expansion and improvement. We will step it up as rapidly as sufficient equipment and trained manpower become available.

Between a third and a half of the 125,000 families now waiting for service can be cared for as soon as enough telephone instruments are produced—a matter of months.

To fill the majority of orders, however, instruments alone won't do the job. Thousands of miles of wire and cable will have to be produced and placed—central offices enlarged—many new ones built. Central office equipment will have to be manufactured and connected into the system. Much of this is slow, painstaking hand-work.

So, many of those now waiting will not have service for a long time. It may take nearly two years before telephones can be installed generally without delay.

If you are waiting, we appreciate your patience. We promise to provide you with service just as quickly as possible.

A Bell for Adano

John Hersey

W. N. U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: The American troops arrived in Adano, with Major Joppolo, the Amgot officer in charge. Sergeant Borth was in charge of security. The Major was determined to hold the confidence of the people and to replace their bell stolen by the Nazis. Despite orders issued by General Marvin, barring carts from the city, Joppolo recalled the orders, to permit food and water to enter the city. The Major placed a ceiling on prices to stop a black market caused by generosity of the American. General Marvin finally received the note from Captain Purvis telling of the Major's granting carts entrance to town. He issued orders to have the Major recalled at once.

CHAPTER XXI

The General said: "Right, stop the carts. Lousy Italians trying to hold up the whole damn invasion. They better carry out the order."

Lieutenant Byrd droned on, hardly noticing what he read: "On July 20, guards were removed on order of Major—"

Lieutenant Byrd suddenly realized what he was reading. He put the memorandum down and picked up the next.

But the General Roared: "Finish it, finish it!"

The Lieutenant read: "—were removed on order of Major Victor Joppolo, Civil Affairs Officer, town of Adano, because carts were essential to town and town was—"

Now the General had forgotten about finishing the memorandum. "Joppolo," he shouted, and his face was the color of distant mountains. "Joppolo."

General Marvin's memory worked in a peculiar fashion. "Middleton!" he shouted. "Come in here, Middleton."

The Colonel came in. "Middleton, remember the name of Joppolo, a lousy little wop named Joppolo?"

Colonel Middleton said, with a tired face: "Yes, sir. The carts."

General Marvin bellowed: "I just remembered something. That wop was out of uniform that day. You remember? He had on pinks and a khaki shirt. You remember that, Middleton?"

Colonel Middleton said with a tired voice: "No sir."

"Damn him, he had the nerve to let the carts back in that town, what the hell was the name of that—"

Lieutenant Byrd said: "Adano, sir."

"Adano. Damn upstart."

Colonel Middleton said: "Perhaps there was some reason why he had to—"

"Damn you, Middleton, you're getting too independent minded."

Colonel Middleton said: "Yes sir."

Lieutenant Byrd said: "It goes on to say here, sir: 'carts were essential to town and town was in bad shape without same.'"

The General stood up. He said: "I've had enough of that little wop, Middleton."

"Yes sir," the tired voice said.

"Make out an order recalling that Italian wop from that town, what's the name—"

Lieutenant Byrd said: "Adano, sir."

"Order him to report back to Algiers for reassignment. Make out a separate report to Algiers explaining why. I'll fix that little wop. Get it off today, too, none of your delays, Middleton."

"Yes sir," the tired voice said.

The day before the party, the fisherman named Agnello and his men talked about it as they fished.

"Are you going, Merendino?" Agnello asked.

Merendino, who was not one to commit himself too far, said: "I have been invited."

Sconzo, the youngest of Adano's fishermen, said: "I am going. You'd better go, Merendino. I hear that we fishermen are lucky. Mostly the guests will be officials and big people, but because of Tomasino—"

Agnello said: "And perhaps because the daughters of Tomasino are not pock-faced."

Sconzo said: "Perhaps," and laughed.

The men hauled in their net. They spilled the shining, flopping fish into the bins. They were good fish, mostly of the four- and five-lira grades.

Sconzo said: "It is a rare chance for us fishermen, Merendino. You'd better go."

Merendino said: "I will think about it."

They let the net over the side again, and Merendino took the wheel as the boat moved away from the net. As they slowly pulled away, Sconzo lay down at the very bow, with his cheek on the hawser eye, and he watched the forefoot cutting the water and the reflection of the upper parts of the bow moving across the glassy water. It was one of those rare Mediterranean days with not a breath of air on the deep blue water.

Agnello said: "Merendino, don't you think perhaps we are getting too far inshore?"

Merendino said: "I will look at the chart."

Sconzo said: "He's just trying to get away from Tomasino's boat. Old Tomasino splashes his net so much that he scares the fish away. Tomasino has such a bad temper, he's probably angry with the fish and that's why he splashes the net. Merendino's just trying to work the boat away from Tomasino's, aren't you, Merendino?"

Merendino said: "I do not think Tomasino is angry at the fish."

Agnello said: "We'd better not get in too far. We were warned about what would happen if we went out of the zone which they marked for us on the chart."

Merendino looked at the chart and then at the headlands up and down the coast and he said: "Perhaps we are a little far inshore." And he put the wheel over and headed out, but diagonally away from Tomasino's boat.

Sconzo said: "Personally I like the younger daughter of Tomasino better than the blonde. I like honesty in the color of hair."

Agnello said: "Not that either of Tomasino's daughters would pay any attention to you, Sconzo."

Sconzo said: "Oh, I think I could make an impression if I wanted to."

Agnello mimicked Sconzo: "If I wanted to." And then he said: "What makes you think you could? Your nose is too big."

Sconzo said: "What makes you think the daughters of Tomasino are so hard to impress? What do you think, Merendino?"

Merendino said: "I think that people with big noses who are fishermen are apt to retain a smell of fish in their nostrils after working hours, and sometimes they attribute the smell of fish to the young ladies they are with. I think it is time to pull the net in."

The three men stood and began to tug at the net.

"We have a good catch this time," Sconzo said. "Feel that load."

They pulled some more, then Agnello said: "It feels sluggish. It

er fishing boats came up.

Tomasino shouted to the others: "Continue to fish. Move farther offshore. I will take Agnello and Merendino in."

Someone from another boat shouted: "And Sconzo?"

"Sconzo," said Tomasino, not looking at the small pieces of Sconzo floating in the water, "is missing."

As soon as they tied up, Tomasino jumped ashore and walked quickly uptown to the Palazzo. He was the first to bring the news to the Major.

"Good afternoon, Tomasino," the Major said cheerfully. "I'm looking forward to the party tomorrow night. I hear you are one of the hosts."

Tomasino's face was black with misery, but the Major had not thought that unusual.

"I cannot go," Tomasino said. "Why not, Tomasino? It wouldn't be the same without you."

Tomasino said grimly: "I came to talk about the explosion. Did you hear the explosion?"

Major Joppolo said: "I did hear an explosion. About half an hour ago, was it?"

Tomasino said: "About half an hour ago."

"What was it?"

"One of my ships. A mine, I suppose, just as you warned."

The Major stood up. His face had gone white as soon as Tomasino started talking about the explosion. He went around his desk to Tomasino and put a hand on his arm.

"It is my fault, Tomasino, not yours," he said.

"It was Agnello's fault," Tomasino said. "He was too far in. I took bearings, and I know that he was outside the fishing zone."

"I am sorry," the Major said.

Tomasino said: "Why are you sorry? I thought you would be angry."

"I feel as if I had killed your men, Tomasino."

"Accidents happened here before you came, Mister Major. Men have died here before."

And so it happened that before he left, Tomasino was consoling the Major instead of being berated by him for allowing carelessness in the fishing fleet.

As Tomasino started to go, the Major said: "You will continue to fish?"

Tomasino said: "Of course. Four of the boats are still out."

The Major said: "Good, Tomasino. Then he said: 'I'm sorry about tomorrow night.'"

Tomasino said: "I am sorry too. But it would not be decent. I am supposed to be the head of the fishermen."

Major Joppolo hesitated. Then he said, trying to sound delicate about it: "Do you feel that your family should stay away as well?"

Tomasino looked at Major Joppolo's face. Tomasino looked no less sad as he said: "No, I think Tina should go."

The day of the party came, and many things happened.

At about 9:30 in the morning, a U. S. Navy truck pulled up in front of the Palazzo. A Chief Petty Officer and five men unloaded a crate from it onto the sidewalk, and the Chief went inside and delivered a note for Major Victor Joppolo.

Major Joppolo was busy at his desk, and had not noticed the truck. He opened the note and read:

"Dear Major:

"The U. S. Navy is delighted to be able to do the U. S. Army a favor. Here is your bell. . . ."

The Major jumped up and shouted: "Where is it?"

Zito the usher said: "Where is what, Mister Major?"

The Major said: "The bell! The bell! They have brought us our bell." And he ran out on the balcony just in time to see the Navy truck pull away. He saw the crate sitting there on the sidewalk.

Major Joppolo shouted down to an M.P. in front of the Palazzo. "Hey, stand guard over that box, don't let anybody walk off with that."

The M.P. grumbled out loud, but not loud enough for Major Joppolo to hear: "From the way them sailors was gruntin' and groanin', don't strike me that nobody's goin' to strut off with that thing."

The Major hurried back inside, and he said to Zito: "How long did you say it took them to take the old bell down, Zito?"

Zito said: "They had to use six sets of block and tackle. It took them two days to get it down. Then one day to crate it."

The Major said: "I can't wait that long."

He went to the phone and called up the Engineers.

"Major Harvey, please. . . . Major? This is Joppolo. Say, I wonder if you could arrange to do this town a big favor. We've got a delicate job to do, and I'm afraid the workmen we could round up to do it would take ages and maybe hack it. The job is raising a new bell on the clock tower of the Town Hall here. I guess it would take about eight men, and if you've got a good strong block and tackle, and maybe a tow truck to haul out the tackle and raise the bell. . . . You can? That's swell. Can they start right in? What time you think they could get here? Okay, I'll be on hand at eleven thirty to tell them what to do. Don't know how to thank you, Major."

Tomasino and his men hauled the two whole bodies aboard as the other fishing boats came up.

Tomasino shouted to the others: "Continue to fish. Move farther offshore. I will take Agnello and Merendino in."

Someone from another boat shouted: "And Sconzo?"

"Sconzo," said Tomasino, not looking at the small pieces of Sconzo floating in the water, "is missing."

"What was it?"

"One of my ships. A mine, I suppose, just as you warned."

The Major stood up. His face had gone white as soon as Tomasino started talking about the explosion. He went around his desk to Tomasino and put a hand on his arm.

"It is my fault, Tomasino, not yours," he said.

"It was Agnello's fault," Tomasino said. "He was too far in. I took bearings, and I know that he was outside the fishing zone."

"I am sorry," the Major said.

Tomasino said: "Why are you sorry? I thought you would be angry."

"I feel as if I had killed your men, Tomasino."

"Accidents happened here before you came, Mister Major. Men have died here before."

And so it happened that before he left, Tomasino was consoling the Major instead of being berated by him for allowing carelessness in the fishing fleet.

As Tomasino started to go, the Major said: "You will continue to fish?"

Tomasino said: "Of course. Four of the boats are still out."

The Major said: "Good, Tomasino. Then he said: 'I'm sorry about tomorrow night.'"

Tomasino said: "I am sorry too. But it would not be decent. I am supposed to be the head of the fishermen."

Major Joppolo hesitated. Then he said, trying to sound delicate about it: "Do you feel that your family should stay away as well?"

Tomasino looked at Major Joppolo's face. Tomasino looked no less sad as he said: "No, I think Tina should go."

The day of the party came, and many things happened.

At about 9:30 in the morning, a U. S. Navy truck pulled up in front of the Palazzo. A Chief Petty Officer and five men unloaded a crate from it onto the sidewalk, and the Chief went inside and delivered a note for Major Victor Joppolo.

Major Joppolo was busy at his desk, and had not noticed the truck. He opened the note and read:

"Dear Major:

"The U. S. Navy is delighted to be able to do the U. S. Army a favor. Here is your bell. . . ."

The Major jumped up and shouted: "Where is it?"

Zito the usher said: "Where is what, Mister Major?"

The Major said: "The bell! The bell! They have brought us our bell." And he ran out on the balcony just in time to see the Navy truck pull away. He saw the crate sitting there on the sidewalk.

Major Joppolo shouted down to an M.P. in front of the Palazzo. "Hey, stand guard over that box, don't let anybody walk off with that."

The M.P. grumbled out loud, but not loud enough for Major Joppolo to hear: "From the way them sailors was gruntin' and groanin', don't strike me that nobody's goin' to strut off with that thing."

The Major hurried back inside, and he said to Zito: "How long did you say it took them to take the old bell down, Zito?"

Zito said: "They had to use six sets of block and tackle. It took them two days to get it down. Then one day to crate it."

The Major said: "I can't wait that long."

He went to the phone and called up the Engineers.

"Major Harvey, please. . . . Major? This is Joppolo. Say, I wonder if you could arrange to do this town a big favor. We've got a delicate job to do, and I'm afraid the workmen we could round up to do it would take ages and maybe hack it. The job is raising a new bell on the clock tower of the Town Hall here. I guess it would take about eight men, and if you've got a good strong block and tackle, and maybe a tow truck to haul out the tackle and raise the bell. . . . You can? That's swell. Can they start right in? What time you think they could get here? Okay, I'll be on hand at eleven thirty to tell them what to do. Don't know how to thank you, Major."

Tomasino and his men hauled the two whole bodies aboard as the other fishing boats came up.

Tomasino shouted to the others: "Continue to fish. Move farther offshore. I will take Agnello and Merendino in."

Someone from another boat shouted: "And Sconzo?"

"Sconzo," said Tomasino, not looking at the small pieces of Sconzo floating in the water, "is missing."

As soon as they tied up, Tomasino jumped ashore and walked quickly uptown to the Palazzo. He was the first to bring the news to the Major.

"Good afternoon, Tomasino," the Major said cheerfully. "I'm looking forward to the party tomorrow night. I hear you are one of the hosts."

Tomasino's face was black with misery, but the Major had not thought that unusual.

"I cannot go," Tomasino said. "Why not, Tomasino? It wouldn't be the same without you."

Tomasino said grimly: "I came to talk about the explosion. Did you hear the explosion?"

Major Joppolo said: "I did hear an explosion. About half an hour ago, was it?"

Tomasino said: "About half an hour ago."

"What was it?"

"One of my ships. A mine, I suppose, just as you warned."

The Major stood up. His face had gone white as soon as Tomasino started talking about the explosion. He went around his desk to Tomasino and put a hand on his arm.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

A U. S. Senator traveling in the West stopped to help a young lady change a flat tire. The flat developed a friendship that blossomed into marriage.

Soap is one of the important manufacturing agents of synthetic rubber. B. F. Goodrich has developed a synthetic rubber using a resin soap derived from Southern pine trees that is a great improvement over ordinary synthetic.

Demand for passenger car tires will total about 70,000,000 casings in the first year after the war—for both new cars and replacements.

Kidneys Must Work Well—

For You To Feel Well 24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

School Notes

High School
The eleventh grade American history class has completed the study of the first unit of the text; that is, the discovery and settlement of the country. The next unit will consist of how the country won its independence and established a national government. The study of the gradual development of the United States should now be of special interest to all high school students.
The high school band made the trip to the Hale Fair Friday. It had been invited to parade in the afternoon, but the inclemency of the weather made it necessary to change the plans somewhat. The Oscoda, Hale and Tawas City bands formed a massed band which gave a fifty-five minute concert in the Hale auditorium in the afternoon. Each of the three band directors took turns in directing the massed band. All of the members were treated to ice cream, and so it is needless to say that all were pleased that the trip had been made. The school bus was the means of transportation.

Homemaking I
Brushing, washing, setting and combing our hair in the nicest way we can was our aim for last week's work. A few of us got ideas for new hair styles. This week we are practicing giving each other manicures and trying to get our nails well shaped so we will be considered well groomed by our friends.

We tried our hand as artists and we were greatly surprised and pleased at the interesting black and white and colorful designs we made from circles, triangles, diamond and star shaped pieces of paper.

The 7th graders entertained the 8th graders at a luncheon last Thursday. The stew and croutons were very tasty and the 8th graders have consented to act as judges at any time.

Third and Fourth Grades
We have been working on drill problems in subtraction and addition in both grades. We are gaining in speed and accuracy.
Jackie Misener visited school today. (Friday.)

Our new spelling books keep us working. Several pupils in each grade have had A's on the Friday tests.
We are sorry Jack Frost has come to take the flowers. We have had some beautiful ones in our room.

Primary Room
We are glad to have Karen Westrich and Frances Toms back at school this week.

We are making Halloween decorations for our room.
Both the first and second grades are enjoying using "My Weekly Reader."

Kindergarten
Richard Lenski was five years old last Friday. His mother gave a nice party for him at the Gym. We all had a nice time.

We learned a new song, "I Love Little Pussy" and sang it for the Primary Room.
We hope that Constance Roiter can soon be back in school.
